INTRODUCTION

1. Inspired by the Divine Spirit, the Sacred Writers composed those books, which God, in His paternal charity towards the human race, deigned to bestow on them in order "to teach, to reprove, to correct, to instruct in justice: that the man of God may be perfect, furnished to every good work." [1] This heaven-sent treasure Holy Church considers as the most precious source of doctrine on faith and morals. No wonder therefore that, as she received it intact from the hands of the Apostles, so she kept it with all care, defended it from every false and perverse interpretation and used it diligently as an instrument for securing the eternal salvation of souls, as almost countless documents in every age strikingly bear witness. In more recent times, however, since the divine origin and the correct interpretation of the Sacred Writings have been very specially called in question, the Church has with even greater zeal and care undertaken their defense and protection. The sacred Council of Trent ordained by solemn decree that "the entire books with all their parts, as they have been wont to be read in the Catholic Church and are contained in the old vulgate Latin edition, are to be held sacred and canonical." [2] In our own time the Vatican Council, with the object of condemning false doctrines regarding inspiration, declared that these same books were to be regarded by the Church as sacred and canonical "not because, having been composed by human industry, they were afterwards approved by her authority, not merely because they contain revelation without error, but because, having been written under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, they have God for their author, and as such were handed down to the Church herself." [3] When, subsequently, some Catholic writers, in spite of this solemn definition of Catholic doctrine, by which such divine authority is claimed for the "entire books with all their parts" as to secure freedom from any error whatsoever, ventured to restrict the truth of Sacred Scripture solely to matters of faith and morals, and to regard other matters, whether in the domain of physical science or history, as "obiter dicta" and—as they contended—in no wise connected with faith, Our Predecessor of immortal memory, Leo XIII, in the Encyclical Letter Providentissimus Deus, published on November 18th in the year 1893, justly and rightly condemned these errors and safeguarded the studies of the Divine Books by most wise precepts and rules.

2. Since then it is fitting that We should commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the publication of this Encyclical Letter, which is considered the supreme guide in biblical studies, We, moved by that solicitude for sacred studies, which We manifested from the very beginning of Our Pontificate,[4] have considered that this may most opportunely be done by ratifying and inculcating all that was wisely laid down by Our Predecessor and ordained by His Successors for the consolidating and perfecting of the work, and by pointing out what seems necessary in the present day, in order to incite ever more earnestly all those sons of the Church who devote themselves to these studies, to so necessary and so praiseworthy an enterprise.

I. HISTORICAL PART

WORK OF LEO XIII AND OF HIS SUCCESSORS IN FAVOR OF BIBLICAL STUDIES

1. WORK OF LEO XIII

3. The first and greatest care of Leo XIII was to set forth the teaching on the truth of the Sacred Books and to defend it from attack. Hence with grave words did he proclaim that there is no error whatsoever if the sacred writer, speaking of things of the physical order "went by what sensibly appeared" as the Angelic Doctor says,[5] speaking either "in figurative language, or in terms which were commonly used at the time, and which in many instances are in daily use at this day, even among the most eminent men of science." For "the sacred writers, or to speak more accurately—the words of St. Augustine's—[6] the Holy Ghost, Who spoke by them, did not intend to teach men these things—that is the essential nature of the things of the universe—things in no way profitable to salvation:" [7] which principle "will apply to cognate sciences, and especially to history," that is, by refuting, "in a somewhat similar way the fallacies of the adversaries and defending the historical truth of Sacred Scripture from their attacks." [8] Nor is the sacred writer to be taxed with error, if "copyists have made mistakes in the text of the Bible," or, "if the real meaning of a passage remains ambiguous." Finally it is absolutely wrong and forbidden "either to narrow inspiration to certain passages of Holy Scriptures, or to admit that the sacred writer has erred," since divine inspiration "not only is essentially incompatible with error but excludes and rejects it as absolutely and necessarily as it is impossible that God Himself, the supreme Truth, can utter that which is not true. This is the ancient and constant faith of the Church." [9]

4. This teaching, which Our Predecessor Leo XIII set forth with such solemnity, We also proclaim with Our authority and We urge all to adhere to it religiously. No less earnestly do We inculcate obedience at the present day to the counsels and exhortations which he, in his day, so wisely enjoined. For whereas there arose new and serious difficulties and questions, from the widespread prejudices of rationalism and more especially from the discovery and investigation of the antiquities of the East, this same Our Predecessor, moved by zeal of the apostolic office, not only that such an excellent source of Catholic revelation might be more securely and abundantly available to the advantage of the Christian flock, but also that he might not suffer it to be in any way tainted, wished and most earnestly desired "to see an increase in the number of approved and persevering laborers in the cause of the Holy Scripture; and more especially that those whom Divine Grace has called to Holy Orders should, day-by-day, as their state demands, display greater diligence and industry in reading, meditating and explaining it." [10]

Impulse given to biblical studies

5. Wherefore the same Pontiff, as he had already praised and approved the school for biblical studies, founded at St. Stephen's, Jerusalem, by the Master General of the Sacred Order of Preachers—from which, to use his own words, "biblical science itself had received no small advantage, while giving promise of more" [11]—so in the last year of his life he provided yet another way, by which these same studies, so warmly commended in the Encyclical Letter Providentissimus Deus, might daily make greater progress and be pursued with the greatest possible security. By the Apostolic Letter Vigilantiae, published on October 30 in the year 1902, he founded a Council or Commission, as it is called, of eminent men, "whose duty it would be to procure by every means that the sacred texts may receive everywhere among us that more thorough exposition which the times demand, and be kept safe not only from every breath of error, but also from all inconsiderate opinions." [12] Following the example of Our Predecessors, We also have effectively confirmed and amplified this Council using its good offices, as often before, to remind commentators of the Sacred Books of those safe rules of Catholic exegesis, which have been handed down by the Holy Fathers and Doctors of the Church, as well as by the Sovereign Pontiffs themselves.[13]

2. WORK OF THE SUCCESSORS OF LEO XIII

6. It may not be out of place here to recall gratefully the principal and more useful contributions made successively by Our Predecessors towards this same end, which contributions may be considered as the complement or fruit of the movement so happily initiated by Leo XIII. And first of all Pius X, wishing "to provide a sure way for the preparation of a copious supply of teachers, who, commended by the seriousness and the integrity of their doctrine, might explain the Sacred Books in Catholic schools . . ." instituted "the academic degrees of licentiate and doctorate in Sacred Scripture . . . ; to be conferred by the Biblical Commission";[14] he later enacted a law "concerning the method of Scripture studies to be followed in Clerical Seminaries" with this end in view viz: that students of the sacred sciences "not only should themselves fully understand the power, purpose and teaching of the Bible, but should also be equipped to engage in the ministry of the Divine Word with elegance and ability and repel attacks against the divinely inspired books";[15] finally "in order that a center of higher biblical studies might be established in Rome, which in the best way possible might promote the study of the Bible and all cognate sciences in accordance with the mind of the Catholic Church" he founded the Pontifical Biblical Institute, entrusted to the care of the illustrious Society of Jesus, which he wished endowed "with a superior professorial staff and every facility for biblical research"; he prescribed its laws and rules, professing to follow in this the "salutary and fruitful project" of Leo XIII.[16]

PIUS XI: Academic degrees prescribed

7. All this in fine Our immediate Predecessor of happy memory Pius XI brought to perfection, laying down among other things "that no one should be appointed professor of Sacred Scripture in any Seminary, unless, having completed a special course of biblical studies, he had in due form obtained the academic degrees before the Biblical Commission or the Biblical Institute." He wished that these degrees should have the same rights and the same effects as the degrees duly conferred in Sacred Theology or Canon Law; likewise he decreed that no one should receive "a benefice having attached the canonical obligation of expounding the Sacred Scripture to the people, unless, among other things, he had obtained the licentiate or doctorate in biblical science." And having at the same time urged the Superiors General of the Regular Orders and of the religious Congregations, as well as the Bishops of the Catholic world, to send the more suitable of their students to frequent the schools of the Biblical Institute and obtain there the academical degrees, he confirmed these exhortations by his own example, appointing out of his bounty an annual sum for this very purpose.[17]

8. Seeing that, in the year 1907, with the benign approval of Pius X of happy memory, "to the Benedictine monks had been committed the task of preparing the investigations and studies on which might be based a new edition of the Latin version of the Scriptures, commonly called the Vulgate," [18] the same Pontiff, Pius XI, wishing to consolidate more firmly and securely this "laborious and arduous enterprise," which demands considerable time and great expense, founded in Rome and lavishly endowed with a library and other means of research, the monastery of St. Jerome, to be devoted exclusively to this work.[19]

3. SOLICITUDE OF SOVEREIGN PONTIFFS

9. Nor should We fail to mention here how earnestly these same Our Predecessors, when the opportunity occurred, recommended the study or preaching or in fine the pious reading and meditation of the Sacred Scriptures. Pius X most heartily commended the society of St. Jerome, which strives to promote among the faithful—and to facilitate with all its power—the truly praise-worthy custom of reading and meditating on the holy Gospels; he exhorted them to persevere in the enterprise they had begun, proclaiming it "a most useful undertaking, as well as most suited to the times," seeing that it helps in no small way "to dissipate the idea that the Church is opposed to or in any way impedes the reading of the Scriptures in the vernacular." [20] And Benedict XV, on the occasion of the fifteenth centenary of the death of St. Jerome, the greatest Doctor of the Sacred Scriptures, after having most solemnly inculcated the precepts and examples of the same Doctor, as well as the principles and rules laid down by Leo XIII and by himself, and having recommended other things highly opportune and never to be forgotten in this connection, exhorted "all the children of the Church, especially clerics, to reverence the Holy Scripture, to read it piously and meditate it constantly"; he reminded them "that in these pages is to be sought that food, by which the spiritual life is nourished unto perfection," and "that the chief use of Scripture pertains to the holy and fruitful exercise of the ministry of preaching"; he likewise once again expressed his warm approval of the work of the society called after St. Jerome himself, by means of which the Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles are being so widely diffused, "that there is no Christian family any more without them and that all are accustomed to read and meditate them daily." [21]

4. FRUITS OF MANIFOLD INITIATIVE

10. But it is right and pleasing to confess openly that it is not only by reason of these initiatives, precepts and exhortations of Our Predecessors that the knowledge and use of the Sacred Scriptures have made great progress among Catholics; for this is also due to the works and labors of all those who diligently cooperated with them, both by meditating, investigating and writing, as well as by teaching and preaching and by translating and propagating the Sacred Books. For from the schools in which are fostered higher studies in theological and biblical science, and especially from Our Pontifical Biblical Institute, there have already come forth, and daily continue to come forth, many students of Holy Scripture who, inspired with an intense love of the Sacred Books, imbue the younger clergy with this same ardent zeal and assiduously impart to them the doctrine they themselves have acquired. Many of them also, by the written word, have promoted and do still promote, far and wide, the study of the Bible; as when they edit the sacred text corrected in accordance with the rules of textual criticism or expound, explain, and translate it into the vernacular; or when they propose it to the faithful for their pious reading and meditation; or finally when they cultivate and seek the aid of profane sciences which are useful for the interpretation of the Scriptures. From these therefore and from other initiatives which daily become more widespread and vigorous, as, for example, biblical societies, congresses, libraries, associations for meditation on the Gospels, We firmly hope that in the future reverence for, as well as the use and knowledge of, the Sacred Scriptures will everywhere more and more increase for the good of souls, provided the method of biblical studies laid down by Leo XIII, explained more clearly and perfectly by his Successors, and by Us confirmed and amplified—which indeed is the only safe way and proved by experience—be more firmly, eagerly and faithfully accepted by all, regardless of the difficulties which, as in all human affairs, so in this most excellent work will never be wanting.

II. DOCTRINAL PART

BIBLICAL STUDIES AT THE PRESENT DAY

11. There is no one who cannot easily perceive that the conditions of biblical studies and their subsidiary sciences have greatly changed within the last fifty years. For, apart from anything else, when Our Predecessor published the Encyclical Letter Providentissimus Deus, hardly a single place in Palestine had begun to be explored by means of relevant excavations. Now, however, this kind of investigation is much more frequent and, since more precise methods and technical skill have been developed in the course of actual experience, it gives us information at once more abundant and more accurate. How much light has been derived from these explorations for the more correct and fuller understanding of the Sacred Books all experts know, as well as all those who devote themselves to these studies. The value of these excavations is enhanced by the discovery from time to time of written documents, which help much towards the knowledge of the languages, letters, events, customs, and forms of worship of most ancient times. And of no less importance is the discovery and investigation, so frequent in our times, of papyri which have contributed so much to the knowledge of letters and institutions, both public and private, especially of the time of Our Savior.

12. Moreover ancient codices of the Sacred Books have been found and edited with discerning thoroughness; the exegesis of the Fathers of the Church has been more widely and thoroughly examined; in fine the manner of speaking, relating and writing in use among the ancients is made clear by innumerable examples. All these advantages which, not without a special design of Divine Providence, our age has acquired, are as it were an invitation and inducement to interpreters of the Sacred Literature to make diligent use of this light, so abundantly given, to penetrate more deeply, explain more clearly and expound more lucidly the Divine Oracles. If, with the greatest satisfaction of mind, We perceive that these same interpreters have resolutely answered and still continue to answer this call, this is certainly not the last or least of the fruits of the Encyclical Letter Providentissimus Deus, by which Our Predecessor Leo XIII, foreseeing as it were this new development of biblical studies, summoned Catholic exegetes to labor and wisely defined the direction and the method to be followed in that labor.

13. We also, by this Encyclical Letter, desire to insure that the work may not only proceed without interruption, but may also daily become more perfect and fruitful; and to that end We are specially intent on pointing out to all what yet remains to be done, with what spirit the Catholic exegete should undertake, at the present day, so great and noble a work, and to give new incentive and fresh courage to the laborers who toil so strenuously in the vineyard of the Lord.

1. RECOURSE TO ORIGINAL TEXTS

14. The Fathers of the Church in their time, especially Augustine, warmly recommended to the Catholic scholar, who undertook the investigation and explanation of the Sacred Scriptures, the study of the ancient languages and recourse to the original texts.[22] However, such was the state of letters in those times, that not many,—and these few but imperfectly—knew the Hebrew language. In the middle ages, when Scholastic Theology was at the height of its vigor, the knowledge of even the Greek language had long since become so rare in the West, that even the greatest Doctors of that time, in their exposition of the Sacred Text, had recourse only to the Latin version, known as the Vulgate.

15. On the contrary in this our time, not only the Greek language, which since the humanistic renaissance has been, as it were, restored to new life, is familiar to almost all students of antiquity and letters, but the knowledge of Hebrew also and of other oriental languages has spread far and wide among literary men. Moreover there are now such abundant aids to the study of these languages that the biblical scholar, who by neglecting them would deprive himself of access to the original texts, could in no wise escape the stigma of levity and sloth. For it is the duty of the exegete to lay hold, so to speak, with the greatest care and reverence of the very least expressions which, under the inspiration of the Divine Spirit, have flowed from the pen of the sacred writer, so as to arrive at a deeper and fuller knowledge of his meaning.

16. Wherefore let him diligently apply himself so as to acquire daily a greater facility in biblical as well as in other oriental languages and to support his interpretation by the aids which all branches of philology supply. This indeed St. Jerome strove earnestly to achieve, as far as the science of his time permitted; to this also aspired with untiring zeal and no small fruit not a few of the great exegetes of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, although the knowledge of languages then was much less than at the present day. In like manner therefore ought we to explain the original text which, having been written by the inspired author himself, has more authority and greater weight than any even the very best translation, whether ancient or modern; this can be done all the more easily and fruitfully, if to the knowledge of languages be joined a real skill in literary criticism of the same text.

Importance of textual criticism

17. The great importance which should be attached to this kind of criticism was aptly pointed out by Augustine, when, among the precepts to be recommended to the student of the Sacred Books, he put in the first place the care to possess a corrected text. "The correction of the codices"—so says this most distinguished Doctor of the Church—"should first of all engage the attention of those who wish to know the Divine Scripture so that the uncorrected may give place to the corrected." [23] In the present day indeed this art, which is called textual criticism and which is used with great and praiseworthy results in the editions of profane writings, is also quite rightly employed in the case of the Sacred Books, because of that very reverence which is due to the Divine Oracles. For its very purpose is to insure that the sacred text be restored, as perfectly as possible, be purified from the corruptions due to the carelessness of the copyists and be freed, as far as may be done, from glosses and omissions, from the interchange and repetition of words and from all other kinds of mistakes, which are wont to make their way gradually into writings handed down through many centuries.

18. It is scarcely necessary to observe that this criticism, which some fifty years ago not a few made use of quite arbitrarily and often in such wise that one would say they did so to introduce into the sacred text their own preconceived ideas, today has rules so firmly established and secure, that it has become a most valuable aid to the purer and more accurate editing of the sacred text and that any abuse can easily be discovered. Nor is it necessary here to call to mind—since it is doubtless familiar and evident to all students of Sacred Scripture—to what extent namely the Church has held in honor these studies in textual criticism from the earliest centuries down even to the present day.

19. Today therefore, since this branch of science has attained to such high perfection, it is the honorable, though not always easy, task of students of the Bible to procure by every means that as soon as possible may be duly published by Catholic editions of the Sacred Books and of ancient versions, brought out in accordance with these standards, which, that is to say, unite the greatest reverence for the sacred text with an exact observance of all the rules of criticism. And let all know that this prolonged labor is not only necessary for the right understanding of the divinely-given writings, but also is urgently demanded by that piety by which it behooves us to be grateful to the God of all providence, Who from the throne of His majesty has sent these books as so many paternal letters to His own children.

Meaning of Tridentine decree

20. Nor should anyone think that this use of the original texts, in accordance with the methods of criticism, in any way derogates from those decrees so wisely enacted by the Council of Trent concerning the Latin Vulgate.[24] It is historically certain that the Presidents of the Council received a commission, which they duly carried out, to beg, that is, the Sovereign Pontiff in the name of the Council that he should have corrected, as far as possible, first a Latin, and then a Greek, and Hebrew edition, which eventually would be published for the benefit of the Holy Church of God.[25] If this desire could not then be fully realized owing to the difficulties of the times and other obstacles, at present it can, We earnestly hope, be more perfectly and entirely fulfilled by the united efforts of Catholic scholars.

21. And if the Tridentine Synod wished "that all should use as authentic" the Vulgate Latin version, this, as all know, applies only to the Latin Church and to the public use of the same Scriptures; nor does it, doubtless, in any way diminish the authority and value of the original texts. For there was no question then of these texts, but of the Latin versions, which were in circulation at that time, and of these the same Council rightly declared to be preferable that which "had been approved by its long-continued use for so many centuries in the Church." Hence this special authority or as they say, authenticity of the Vulgate was not affirmed by the Council particularly for critical reasons, but rather because of its legitimate use in the Churches throughout so many centuries; by which use indeed the same is shown, in the sense in which the Church has understood and understands it, to be free from any error whatsoever in matters of faith and morals; so that, as the Church herself testifies and affirms, it may be quoted safely and without fear of error in disputations, in lectures and in preaching; and so its authenticity is not specified primarily as critical, but rather as juridical.

22. Wherefore this authority of the Vulgate in matters of doctrine by no means prevents—nay rather today it almost demands—either the corroboration and confirmation of this same doctrine by the original texts or the having recourse on any and every occasion to the aid of these same texts, by which the correct meaning of the Sacred Letters is everywhere daily made more clear and evident. Nor is it forbidden by the decree of the Council of Trent to make translations into the vulgar tongue, even directly from the original texts themselves, for the use and benefit of the faithful and for the better understanding of the divine word, as We know to have been already done in a laudable manner in many countries with the approval of the Ecclesiastical authority.

2. INTERPRETATION OF SACRED BOOKS

23. Being thoroughly prepared by the knowledge of the ancient languages and by the aids afforded by the art of criticism, let the Catholic exegete undertake the task, of all those imposed on him the greatest, that namely of discovering and expounding the genuine meaning of the Sacred Books. In the performance of this task let the interpreters bear in mind that their foremost and greatest endeavor should be to discern and define clearly that sense of the biblical words which is called literal. Aided by the context and by comparison with similar passages, let them therefore by means of their knowledge of languages search out with all diligence the literal meaning of the words; all these helps indeed are wont to be pressed into service in the explanation also of profane writers, so that the mind of the author may be made abundantly clear.

24. The commentators of the Sacred Letters, mindful of the fact that there is a question of a divinely inspired text, the care and interpretation of which have been confided to the Church by God Himself, should no less diligently take into account the explanations and declarations of the teaching authority of the Church, as likewise the interpretation given by the Holy Fathers, and even "the analogy of faith" as Leo XIII most wisely observed in the Encyclical Letter Providentissimus Deus.[26] With special zeal should they apply themselves, not only to expounding exclusively these matters which belong to the historical, archeological, philological and other auxiliary sciences—as, to Our regret, is done in certain commentaries,—but, having duly referred to these, in so far as they may aid the exegesis, they should set forth in particular the theological doctrine in faith and morals of the individual books or texts so that their exposition may not only aid the professors of theology in their explanations and proofs of the dogmas of faith, but may also be of assistance to priests in their presentation of Christian doctrine to the people, and in fine may help all the faithful to lead a life that is holy and worthy of a Christian.

25. By making such an exposition, which is above all, as We have said, theological, they will efficaciously reduce to silence those who, affirming that they scarcely ever find anything in biblical commentaries to raise their hearts to God, to nourish their souls or promote their interior life, repeatedly urge that we should have recourse to a certain spiritual and, as they say, mystical interpretation. With what little reason they thus speak is shown by the experience of many, who, assiduously considering and meditating the word of God, advanced in perfection and were moved to an intense love of God; and this same truth is clearly proved by the constant tradition of the Church and the precepts of the greatest Doctors. Doubtless all spiritual sense is not excluded from the Sacred Scripture.

26. For what was said and done in the Old Testament was ordained and disposed by God with such consummate wisdom, that things past prefigured in a spiritual way those that were to come under the new dispensation of grace. Wherefore the exegete, just as he must search out and expound the literal meaning of the words, intended and expressed by the sacred writer, so also must he do likewise for the spiritual sense, provided it is clearly intended by God. For God alone could have known this spiritual meaning and have revealed it to us. Now Our Divine Saviour Himself points out to us and teaches us this same sense in the Holy Gospel; the Apostles also, following the example of the Master, profess it in their spoken and written words; the unchanging tradition of the Church approves it; finally the most ancient usage of the liturgy proclaims it, wherever may be rightly applied the well-known principle: "The rule of prayer is the rule of faith."

27. Let Catholic exegetes then disclose and expound this spiritual significance, intended and ordained by God, with that care which the dignity of the divine words demands; but let them scrupulously refrain from proposing as the genuine meaning of Sacred Scripture other figurative senses. It may indeed be useful, especially in preaching, to illustrate and present the matters of faith and morals by a broader use of the Sacred Text in the figurative sense, provided this be done with moderation and restraint; it should, however, never be forgotten that this use of the Sacred Scripture is, as at were, extrinsic to it and accidental, and that, especially in these days, it is not free from danger, since the faithful, in particular those who are well-informed in the sciences sacred and profane, wish to know what God has told us in the Sacred Letters rather than what an ingenious orator or writer may suggest by a clever use of the words of Scripture. Nor does "the word of God, living and effectual and more piercing than any two-edged sword and reaching unto the division of the soul and the spirit, of the joints also and the marrow, and a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart" [27] need artificial devices and human adaptation to move and impress souls; for the Sacred Pages, written under the inspiration of the Spirit of God, are of themselves rich in original meaning; endowed with a divine power, they have their own value; adorned with heavenly beauty, they radiate of themselves light and splendor, provided they are so fully and accurately explained by the interpreter, that all treasures of wisdom and prudence, therein contained, are brought to light.

Study of Holy Fathers

28. In the accomplishment of this task the Catholic exegete will find invaluable help in an assiduous study of those works, in which the Holy Fathers, the Doctors of the Church and the renowned interpreters of past ages have explained the Sacred Books. For, although sometimes less instructed in profane learning and in the knowledge of languages than the scripture scholars of our time, nevertheless by reason of the office assigned to them by God in the Church, they are distinguished by a certain subtle insight into heavenly things and by a marvellous keenness of intellect, which enables them to penetrate to the very innermost meaning of the divine word and bring to light all that can help to elucidate the teaching of Christ and promote holiness of life.

29. It is indeed regrettable that such precious treasures of Christian antiquity are almost unknown to many writers of the present day, and that students of the history of exegesis have not yet accomplished all that seems necessary for the due investigation and appreciation of so momentous a subject. Would that many, by seeking out the authors of the Catholic interpretation of Scripture and diligently studying their works and drawing thence the almost inexhaustible riches therein stored up, might contribute largely to this end, so that it might be daily more apparent to what extent those authors understood and made known the divine teaching of the Sacred Books, and that the interpreters of today might thence take example and seek suitable arguments.

30. For thus at long last will be brought about the happy and fruitful union between the doctrine and spiritual sweetness of expression of the ancient authors and the greater erudition and maturer knowledge of the modern, having as its result new progress in the never fully explored field of the Divine Letters.

3. SPECIAL TASKS OF INTERPRETERS

31. Moreover we may rightly and deservedly hope that our times also can contribute something towards the deeper and more accurate interpretation of Sacred Scripture. For not a few things, especially in matters pertaining to history, were scarcely at all or not fully explained by the commentators of past ages, since they lacked almost all the information, which was needed for their clearer exposition. How difficult for the Fathers themselves, and indeed well nigh unintelligible, were certain passages is shown, among other things, by the oft-repeated efforts of many of them to explain the first chapters of Genesis; likewise by the reiterated attempts of St. Jerome so to translate the Psalms that the literal sense, that, namely, which is expressed by the words themselves, might be clearly revealed.

32. There are, in fine, other books or texts, which contain difficulties brought to light only in quite recent times, since a more profound knowledge of antiquity has given rise to new questions, on the basis of which the point at issue may be more appropriately examined. Quite wrongly therefore do some pretend, not rightly understanding the conditions of biblical study, that nothing remains to be added by the Catholic exegete of our time to what Christian antiquity has produced; since, on the contrary, these our times have brought to light so many things, which call for a fresh investigation and a new examination, and which stimulate not a little the practical zeal of the present-day interpreter.

Character of sacred writer

33. As in our age indeed new questions and new difficulties are multiplied, so, by God's favor, new means and aids to exegesis are also provided. Among these it is worthy of special mention that Catholic theologians, following the teaching of the Holy Fathers and especially of the Angelic and Common Doctor, have examined and explained the nature and effects of biblical inspiration more exactly and more fully than was wont to be done in previous ages. For having begun by expounding minutely the principle that the inspired writer, in composing the sacred book, is the living and reasonable instrument of the Holy Spirit, they rightly observe that, impelled by the divine motion, he so uses his faculties and powers, that from the book composed by him all may easily infer "the special character of each one and, as it were, his personal traits."[28] Let the interpreter then, with all care and without neglecting any light derived from recent research, endeavor to determine the peculiar character and circumstances of the sacred writer, the age in which he lived, the sources written or oral to which he had recourse and the forms of expression he employed.

34. Thus can he the better understand who was the inspired author, and what he wishes to express by his writings. There is no one indeed but knows that the supreme rule of interpretation is to discover and define what the writer intended to express, as St. Athanasius excellently observes: "Here, as indeed is expedient in all other passages of Sacred Scripture, it should be noted on what occasion the Apostle spoke; we should carefully and faithfully observe to whom and why he wrote, lest, being ignorant of these points, or confounding one with another, we miss the real meaning of the author." [29]

Importance of mode of writing

35. What is the literal sense of a passage is not always as obvious in the speeches and writings of the ancient authors of the East, as it is in the works of the writers of our own time. For what they wished to express is not to be determined by the rules of grammar and philology alone, nor solely by the context; the interpreter must, as it were, go back wholly in spirit to those remote centuries of the East and with the aid of history, archaelogy, ethnology and other sciences, accurately determine what modes of writing, so to speak, the authors of that ancient period would be likely to use, and in fact did use.

36. For the ancient peoples of the East, in order to express their ideas, did not always employ those forms or kinds of speech, which we use today; but rather those used by the men of their times and countries. What those exactly were the commentator cannot determine as it were in advance, but only after a careful examination of the ancient literature of the East. The investigation, carried out, on this point, during the past forty or fifty years with greater care and diligence than ever before, has more clearly shown what forms of expression were used in those far off times, whether in poetic description or in the formulation of laws and rules of life or in recording the facts and events of history. The same inquiry has also clearly shown the special preeminence of the people of Israel among all the other ancient nations of the East in their mode of compiling history, both by reason of its antiquity and by reason of the faithful record of the events; qualities which may well be attributed to the gift of divine inspiration and to the peculiar religious purpose of biblical history.

37. Nevertheless no one, who has a correct idea of biblical inspiration, will be surprised to find, even in the Sacred Writers, as in other ancient authors, certain fixed ways of expounding and narrating, certain definite idioms, especially of a kind peculiar to the Semitic tongues, so-called approximations, and certain hyberbolical modes of expression, nay, at times, even paradoxical, which help to impress the ideas more deeply on the mind. For of the modes of expression which, among ancient peoples, and especially those of the East, human language used to express its thought, none is excluded from the Sacred Books, provided the way of speaking adopted in no wise contradicts the holiness and truth of God, as, with his customary wisdom, the Angelic Doctor already observed in these words: "In Scripture divine things are presented to us in the manner which is in common use amongst men." [30] For as the substantial Word of God became like to men in all things, "except sin," [31] so the words of God, expressed in human languages, are made like to human speech in every respect, except error. In this consists that "condescension" of the God of providence, which St. John Chrysostom extolled with the highest praise and repeatedly declared to be found in the Sacred Books.[32]

38. Hence the Catholic commentator, in order to comply with the present needs of biblical studies, in explaining the Sacred Scripture and in demonstrating and proving its immunity from all error, should also make a prudent use of this means, determine, that is, to what extent the manner of expression or the literary mode adopted by the sacred writer may lead to a correct and genuine interpretation; and let him be convinced that this part of his office cannot be neglected without serious detriment to Catholic exegesis. Not infrequently—to mention only one instance—when some persons reproachfully charge the Sacred Writers with some historical error or inaccuracy in the recording of facts, on closer examination it turns out to be nothing else than those customary modes of expression and narration peculiar to the ancients, which used to be employed in the mutual dealings of social life and which in fact were sanctioned by common usage.

39. When then such modes of expression are met with in the sacred text, which, being meant for men, is couched in human language, justice demands that they be no more taxed with error than when they occur in the ordinary intercourse of daily life. By this knowledge and exact appreciation of the modes of speaking and writing in use among the ancients can be solved many difficulties, which are raised against the veracity and historical value of the Divine Scriptures, and no less efficaciously does this study contribute to a fuller and more luminous understanding of the mind of the Sacred Writer.

Studies of biblical antiquities

40. Let those who cultivate Biblical studies turn their attention with all due diligence towards this point and let them neglect none of those discoveries, whether in the domain of archaeology or in ancient history or literature, which serve to make better known the mentality of the ancient writers, as well as their manner and art of reasoning, narrating and writing. In this connection Catholic laymen also should consider that they will not only further profane science, but moreover will render a conspicuous service to the Christian cause if they devote themselves with all due diligence and application to the exploration and investigation of the monuments of antiquity and contribute, according to their abilities, to the solution of questions hitherto obscure.

41. For all human knowledge, even the non-sacred, has indeed its own proper dignity and excellence, being a finite participation of the infinite knowledge of God, but it acquires a new and higher dignity and, as it were, a consecration, when it is employed to cast a brighter light upon the things of God.

4. WAY OF TREATING MORE DIFFICULT QUESTIONS

42. The progressive exploration of the antiquities of the East, mentioned above, the more accurate examination of the original text itself, the more extensive and exact knowledge of languages both biblical and oriental have, with the help of God, happily provided the solution of not a few of those questions, which, in the time of Our Predecessor Leo XIII of immortal memory, were raised by critics outside or hostile to the Church against the authenticity, antiquity, integrity and historical value of the Sacred Books. For Catholic exegetes, by a right use of those same scientific arms, not infrequently abused by the adversaries, proposed such interpretations, which are in harmony with Catholic doctrine and the genuine current of tradition, and at the same time are seen to have proved equal to the difficulties either raised by new explorations and discoveries, or bequeathed by antiquity for solution in our time.

43. Thus has it come about that confidence in the authority and historical value of the Bible, somewhat shaken in the case of some by so many attacks, today among Catholics is completely restored; moreover there are not wanting even non-Catholic writers, who by serious and calm inquiry have been led to abandon modern opinion and to return, at least in some points, to the more ancient ideas. This change is due in great part to the untiring labor, by which Catholic commentators of the Sacred Letters, in no way deterred by difficulties and obstacles of all kinds, strove with all their strength to make suitable use of what learned men of the present day, by their investigations in the domain of archaeology or history or philology, have made available for the solution of new questions.

Difficulties not yet solved

44. Nevertheless no one will be surprised, if all difficulties are not yet solved and overcome; but that even today serious problems greatly exercise the minds of Catholic exegetes. We should not lose courage on this account; nor should we forget that in the human sciences the same happens as in the natural world; that is to say, new beginnings grow little by little and fruits are gathered only after many labors. Thus it has happened that certain disputed points, which in the past remained unsolved and in suspense, in our days, with the progress of studies, have found a satisfactory solution. Hence there are grounds for hope that those also will by constant effort be at last made clear, which now seem most complicated and difficult.

45. And if the wished-for solution be slow in coming or does not satisfy us, since perhaps a successful conclusion may be reserved to posterity, let us not wax impatient thereat, seeing that in us also is rightly verified what the Fathers, and especially Augustine,[33] observed in their time, viz: God wished difficulties to be scattered through the Sacred Books inspired by Him, in order that we might be urged to read and scrutinize them more intently, and, experiencing in a salutary manner our own limitations, we might be exercised in due submission of mind. No wonder if of one or other question no solution wholly satisfactory will ever be found, since sometimes we have to do with matters obscure in themselves and too remote from our times and our experience; and since exegesis also, like all other most important sciences, has its secrets, which, impenetrable to our minds, by no efforts whatsoever can be unravelled.

Definite solutions sought

46. But this state of things is no reason why the Catholic commentator, inspired by an active and ardent love of his subject and sincerely devoted to

Holy Mother Church, should in any way be deterred from grappling again and again with these difficult problems, hitherto unsolved, not only that he may refute the objections of the adversaries, but also may attempt to find a satisfactory solution, which will be in full accord with the doctrine of the Church, in particular with the traditional teaching regarding the inerrancy of Sacred Scripture, and which will at the same time satisfy the indubitable conclusions of profane sciences.

47. Let all the other sons of the Church bear in mind that the efforts of these resolute laborers in the vineyard of the Lord should be judged not only with equity and justice, but also with the greatest charity; all moreover should abhor that intemperate zeal which imagines that whatever is new should for that very reason be opposed or suspected. Let them bear in mind above all that in the rules and laws promulgated by the Church there is question of doctrine regarding faith and morals; and that in the immense matter contained in the Sacred Books—legislative, historical, sapiential and prophetical—there are but few texts whose sense has been defined by the authority of the Church, nor are those more numerous about which the teaching of the Holy Fathers is unanimous. There remain therefore many things, and of the greatest importance, in the discussion and exposition of which the skill and genius of Catholic commentators may and ought to be freely exercised, so that each may contribute his part to the advantage of all, to the continued progress of the sacred doctrine and to the defense and honor of the Church.

48. This true liberty of the children of God, which adheres faithfully to the teaching of the Church and accepts and uses gratefully the contributions of profane science, this liberty, upheld and sustained in every way by the confidence of all, is the condition and source of all lasting fruit and of all solid progress in Catholic doctrine, as Our Predecessor of happy memory Leo XIII rightly observes, when he says: "Unless harmony of mind be maintained and principles safeguarded, no progress can be expected in this matter from the varied studies of many." [34]

5. USE OF SCRIPTURE IN INSTRUCTION OF FAITHFUL

49. Whosoever considers the immense labors undertaken by Catholic exegetes during well nigh two thousand years, so that the word of God, imparted to men through the Sacred Letters, might daily be more deeply and fully understood and more intensely loved, will easily be convinced that it is the serious duty of the faithful, and especially of priests, to make free and holy use of this treasure, accumulated throughout so many centuries by the greatest intellects. For the Sacred Books were not given by God to men to satisfy their curiosity or to provide them with material for study and research, but, as the Apostle observes, in order that these Divine Oracles might "instruct us to salvation, by the faith which is in Christ Jesus" and "that the man of God may be perfect, furnished to every good work." [35]

50. Let priests therefore, who are bound by their office to procure the eternal salvation of the faithful, after they have themselves by diligent study perused the sacred pages and made them their own by prayer and meditations

assiduously distribute the heavenly treasures of the divine word by sermons, homilies and exhortations; let them confirm the Christian doctrine by sentences from the Sacred Books and illustrate it by outstanding examples from sacred history and in particular from the Gospel of Christ Our Lord; and—avoiding with the greatest care those purely arbitrary and far-fetched adaptations, which are not a use, but rather an abuse of the divine word—let them set forth all this with such eloquence, lucidity and clearness that the faithful many not only be moved and inflamed to reform their lives, but may also conceive in their hearts the greatest veneration for the Sacred Scripture.

51. The same veneration the Bishops should endeavor daily to increase and perfect among the faithful committed to their care, encouraging all those initiatives by which men, filled with apostolic zeal, laudably strive to excite and foster among Catholics a greater knowledge of and love for the Sacred Books. Let them favor therefore and lend help to those pious associations whose aim it is to spread copies of the Sacred Letters, especially of the Gospels, among the faithful, and to procure by every means that in Christian families the same be read daily with piety and devotion; let them efficaciously recommend by word and example, whenever the liturgical laws permit, the Sacred Scriptures translated, with the approval of the Ecclesiastical authority, into modern languages; let them themselves give public conferences or dissertations on biblical subjects, or see that they are given by other public orators well versed in the matter.

52. Let the ministers of the Sanctuary support in every way possible and diffuse in fitting manner among all classes of the faithful the periodicals which so laudably and with such heartening results are published from time to time in various parts of the world, whether to treat and expose in a scientific manner biblical questions, or to adapt the fruits of these investigations to the sacred ministry, or to benefit the faithful. Let the ministers of the Sanctuary be convinced that all this, and whatsoever else an apostolic zeal and a sincere love of the divine word may find suitable to this high purpose, will be an efficacious help to the cure of souls.

Curriculum in Seminaries

53. But it is plain to everyone that priests cannot duly fulfill all this, unless in their Seminary days they have imbibed a practical and enduring love for the Sacred Scriptures. Wherefore let the Bishops, on whom devolves the paternal care of their Seminaries, with all diligence see to it that nothing be omitted in this matter which may help towards the desired end. Let the professors of Sacred Scripture in the Seminaries give the whole course of biblical studies in such a way, that they may instruct the young aspirants to the Priesthood and to the ministry of the divine word with that knowledge of the Sacred Letters and imbue them with that love for the same, without which it is vain to hope for copious fruits of the apostolate.

54. Hence their exegetical explanation should aim especially at the theological doctrine, avoiding useless disputations and omitting all that is calculated rather to gratify curiosity than to promote true learning and solid piety. The literal sense and especially the theological let them propose with such definite-

ness, explain with such skill and inculcate with such ardor that in their students may be in a sense verified what happened to the disciples on the way to Emmaus, when, having heard the words of the Master, they exclaimed: "Was not our heart burning within us, whilst He opened to us the Scriptures?" [36]

55. Thus the Divine Letters will become for the future priests of the Church a pure and never-failing source for their own spiritual life, as well as food and strength for the sacred office of preaching which they are about to undertake. If the professors of this most important matter in the Seminaries accomplish all this, then let them rest joyfully assured that they have most efficaciously contributed to the salvation of souls, to the progress of the Catholic faith, to the honor and glory of God, and that they have performed a work most closely connected with the apostolic office.

Value of divine word

56. If these things which We have said, Venerable Brethren and beloved sons, are necessary in every age, much more urgently are they needed in our sorrowful times, when almost all peoples and nations are plunged in a sea of calamities, when a cruel war heaps ruins upon ruins and slaughter upon slaughter, when, owing to the most bitter hatred stirred up among the nations, We perceive with greatest sorrow that in not a few has been extinguished the sense not only of Christian moderation and charity, but also of humanity itself. Who can heal these mortal wounds of the human family if not He, to Whom the Prince of the Apostles, full of confidence and love, addresses these words: "Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life." [37]

57. To this Our most merciful Redeemer we must therefore bring all back by every means in our power: for He is the divine consoler of the afflicted; He it is Who teaches all, whether they be invested with public authority or are bound in duty to obey and submit, true honesty, absolute justice and generous charity; it is He in fine, and He alone, Who can be the firm foundation and support of peace and tranquility: "For other foundation no man can lay, but that which is laid: which is Christ Jesus." [38] This the author of salvation, Christ, will men more fully know, more ardently love and more faithfully imitate in proportion as they are more assiduously urged to know and meditate the Sacred Letters, especially the New Testament, for, as St. Jerome the Doctor of Stridon says: "To ignore the Scripture is to ignore Christ"; [39] and again: "If there is anything in this life which sustains a wise man and induces him to maintain his serenity amidst the tribulations and adversities of the world, it is in the first place, I consider, the meditation and knowledge of the Scriptures." [40]

58. There those who are wearied and oppressed by adversities and afflictions will find true consolation and divine strength to suffer and bear with patience; there—that is in the Holy Gospels—Christ, the highest and greatest example of justice, charity and mercy, is present to all; and to the lacerated and trembling human race are laid open the fountains of that divine grace without which both peoples and their rulers can never arrive at, never establish, peace in the state and unity of heart; there in fine will all learn Christ, "Who is the head of all principality and power" [41] and "Who of God is made unto us wisdom and justice and sanctification and redemption." [42]

CONCLUSION

Exhortation to all those who cultivate biblical studies

59. Having expounded and recommended those things which are required for the adaptation of Scripture studies to the necessities of the day, it remains, Venerable Brethren and beloved sons, that to biblical scholars who are devoted sons of the Church and follow faithfully her teaching and direction, We address with paternal affection, not only Our congratulations that they have been chosen and called to so sublime an office, but also Our encouragement to continue with ever renewed vigor, with all zeal and care, the work so happily begun. Sublime office, We say; for what is more sublime than to scrutinize, explain, propose to the faithful and defend from unbelievers the very word of God, communicated to men under the inspiration of the Holy Ghost?

60. With this spiritual food the mind of the interpreter is fed and nourished "to the commemoration of faith, the consolation of hope, the exhortation of charity." [43] "To live amidst these things, to meditate these things, to know nothing else, to seek nothing else, does it not seem to you already here below a foretaste of the heavenly kingdom?" [44] Let also the minds of the faithful be nourished with this same food, that they may draw from thence the knowledge and love of God and the progress in perfection and the happiness of their own individual souls. Let, then, the interpreters of the Divine Oracle devote themselves to this holy practice with all their heart. "Let them pray, that they may understand"; [45] let them labor to penetrate ever more deeply into the secrets of the Sacred Pages; let them teach and preach, in order to open to others also the treasures of the word of God.

61. Let the present-day commentators of the Sacred Scripture emulate, according to their capacity, what those illustrious interpreters of past ages accomplished with such great fruit; so that, as in the past, so also in these days, the Church may have at her disposal learned doctors for the expounding of the Divine Letters; and, through their assiduous labors, the faithful may comprehend all the splendor, stimulating language, and joy contained in the Holy Scriptures. And in this very arduous and important office let them have "for their comfort the Holy Books," [46] and be mindful of the promised reward: since "they that are learned shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and they that instruct many unto justice, as stars for all eternity." [47]

62. And now, while ardently desiring for all sons of the Church, and especially for the professors in biblical science, for the young clergy and for preachers, that, continually meditating on the divine word, they may taste how good and sweet is the spirit of the Lord; [48] as a presage of heavenly gifts and a token of Our paternal good-will, We impart to you one and all, Venerable Brethren and beloved sons, most lovingly in the Lord, the Apostolic Benediction.

63. Given at Rome, at St. Peter's, on the 30th of September, the feast of St. Jerome, the greatest Doctor in the exposition of the Sacred Scriptures, in the year 1943, the fifth of Our Pontificate.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

1. THE BIBLE

The Bible is a collection of sacred books contained in the Old and New Testaments. These books of Sacred Scripture have a greater dignity and excellence than any other written books or collection of books, whether among the ancient or modern writers, because of their origin and content.

2. INSPIRATION AND INERRANCY

Sacred Scripture is the Word of God and contains His Word. Above all, we must keep in mind that God inspired the Bible. As the principal cause of the Biblical books, He used the sacred writers with their minds, wills and hearts as His free instruments: "For, by supernatural power, He so moved and impelled them to write—He was so present to them—that the things which He ordered, and those only, they first rightly understood, then willed faithfully to write down, and finally expressed in apt words and with infallible truth. Otherwise, it could not be said that He was the Author of the entire Scripture" (Providentissimus Deus of Pope Leo XIII).

Hence, this divine authorship is our guarantee that the Bible is immune, free from any error; it makes the entire contents of the Sacred Scriptures to be the Word of God or His message; it gives to this entire message divine authority. This joint collaboration or authorship, divine and human, which presupposes God's condescension in using men as His instruments in writing according to their nature, also produces a variety of literary characteristics in the individual books.

3. CANON OF THE SCRIPTURES

The Bible is a collection of seventy-two sacred books, of which forty-five are contained in the Old Testament and twenty-seven in the New Testament. Seven of the books of the Old Testament (Tobias, Judith, Wisdom, Sirach, Baruch, 1 and 2 Machabees) and some of their fragments (Esther 10, 4—16, 24 and Daniel 3, 24-90; 13—14) which Roman Catholics call deuterocanonical books or parts are not recognized by the Jews and Protestants as part of the Old Testament and are designated by them as apocryphal books.

All of these books were recognized from the earliest times by the Church and were formally and definitely canonized by the Council of Trent (April 8, 1546) and it is an article of faith to believe that all these books were divinely inspired.

4. TEXT AND VERSIONS

In general terms it may be said that the Old Testament was written in the Semitic language and the New Testament in the Aryan or Indo-European language. But specifically all of the books were originally composed in one of three languages; namely, Hebrew, Aramaic or Greek. Most of the Old Testament was originally written in Hebrew, but only two books were composed in Greek (e.g., Wisdom, 2 Machabees) and a few parts of Daniel and 1 Esdras in Aramaic. All of the New Testament was originally written in Greek with the exception of the Gospel of St. Matthew which the Apostle composed in Aramaic.

All of the books of the Old and New Testaments have been preserved in ancient manuscripts. The newly discovered Dead Sea Scrolls (or Qumran literature) and Papyri have added extensively to our knowledge of the texts of both Testaments. Even though the synagogue and the Church always encouraged the reading of the Bible in the original languages, yet, for those who did not understand these languages, it was necessary to provide translations, if the Word of God was to remain a guide for religious and moral life.

Hence, from earliest times the Bible was translated into various languages. The oldest version of the Old Testament was the Septuagint. This Greek version of the Old Testament began with the Pentateuch and gradually the other books were translated in pre-Christian times (250—100 B.C.) at Alexandria, Egypt to serve the religious needs of the Jews living in Egypt and elsewhere outside of Palestine. According to Divine Providence this Greek version served the Apostles and early Christian missionaries as a religious instrument to bring revealed truths to the attention of the dispersed Jews and pious pagans throughout the Roman Empire.

The Latin Vulgate Version of St. Jerome (b.331/347—d.420) which had been preceded by earlier Latin translations played and plays an important role in the Church. The clear exposition, faithful translation and elegant diction of this Vulgate were and are always admired by the Fathers and scholars. This Latin translation of St. Jerome was declared official and authentic for the Latin rite by the Council of Trent (April 8, 1546). The so-called "Insuper" Decree of this Council simply means that the Vulgate is to be preferred to all other current Latin versions and that it is free from substantial errors, at least in matters pertaining to faith and morals.

There are other versions of the Bible which play an important role in the history of the Universal Church. Worthy of mention are the Peshitto and other Syriac versions; the Armenian, Gothic, Georgian, Arabic and Slavonic versions.

Among the Christian Anglo-Saxon people the Bible always was considered with special reverence. Prior to the Reformation there was also a Catholic version of the Scriptures in English. During the Reformation Period various Protestant English Bibles appeared; as for instance, William Tyndale (1525ff), Myles Coverdale (1535), Thomas Matthew (1537), Richard Taverner (1539), Geneva Bible (1557ff), Bishops' Bible (1568) and the King James or Authorized Version (1611ff; revised, 1881-1885 and 1901), and the further revised Revised Standard Version (New York, 1952). There are also other translations as that of James Moffatt, Smith-Goodspeed and the Oxford-Cambridge Edition of the New Testament.

Nor have English speaking Roman Catholics been idle during this entire period. After the New Testament translation appeared at Rheims (1582) and the Old Testament at Douay (1609-1610), there were numerous reprints and revisions, especially in England (e.g., by Bishop Richard Challoner), Scotland and Ireland. In the United States the above mentioned European editions were generally reprinted for the immigrants. However, independent versions are represented by the Bible of Archbishop F. P. Kenrick (1849-1860), F. Spencer (1898; re-edited by Callan-McHugh in 1939f) and the Confraternity Edition of the New and Old Testaments (1941-).

5. INTERPRETATION

To interpret the Word of God, to discover and understand the true meaning of the divine message and to live according to its demands; in a word, this complete communication and challenge transmitted through human channels requires the consideration of various other factors than mere personal ability. First, every due reflection must be given to the usual, common literary norms, figures of speech and forms or modes of expression as well as the historical and religious environment of every sacred writer to determine the precise literal meaning of their words and expressions. There is also to be noted at times in the Old Testament the typical or spiritual sense whereby persons, historical events or things are employed by God to prefigure other persons, events or things. Secondly, the sacred books and their contents, being divine documents by reason of their inspiration, cannot be given a purely secular interpretation but must be in harmony with the authentic interpretation of the magisterium of the Church, which through her various channels (e.g., Ecumenical Councils, Papal Encyclicals, tradition, doctrine of the Fathers, decisions of the Pontifical Biblical Commission, etc.) she either directly or indirectly imparts to the faithful as her teaching.

6. HISTORY OF EXEGESIS

Religious scholars were always interested in a deeper interpretation and practical application of the religious and moral truths to contemporary needs.

Both the Hellenic and Palestinian Jews had the highest regard and reverence for Sacred Scripture not merely as literature but also as the guide for practical living. Philo of Egypt, Josephus Flavius of Palestine and Rome as well as the various learned rabbinical schools interpreted and applied the Old Testament according to the religious (haggada) or moral (halaka) needs of their period. Up to modern times the Old Testament retained for the Jews a vigorous vitality as a divine authority for knowing how to comport oneself in this life.

The dignity, reverence and authority of the Bible within the Catholic Church needs no special defense. The entire history of the Church (e.g., the Apostolic Fathers and Apologists; the Fathers of Alexandria and Antioch; the Latin, Cappadocian, Syrian Fathers; scholars of the Scholastic and More Recent Periods up to modern times) shows that she always regards the Bible as one of the most important sources of spiritual truths and inner life.

7. SACRED ANTIQUITIES

A student of the Bible should also have a general knowledge of sacred antiquities to understand intelligently the revealed religion especially of the Old Testament.

First, among the sacred places the Mosaic tabernacle plays a very important role. It had an altar of holocaust for sacrifices and a bronze laver in the courtyard; an altar of incense, a table of showbreads and a golden lampstand in the Holy Place; and the ark of the covenant in the Most Holy Place. The tabernacle and its arrangement served as a pattern for the subsequent t*emple* of Solomon 961 to its destruction 586 B.C.), the post-Exilic temple of Zorobabel (516 B.C.) and its reconstruction and redecoration begun by Herod the Great (20/19 B.C.). After the destruction of the Herodian temple by the Roman general Titus in A.D. 70, synagogues throughout the world became centers of prayer and unity for the Jewish people.

Secondly, there were sacred persons. From Mosaic times there existed two classes of people among the Hebrews; namely, the religious, that is, the male members of the tribe of Levi, and the laity, that is, the male members of the other tribes. At the top of the religious class or hierarchy was the high priest Aaron and then the first-born of Aaron and his successor according to the right of the first-born. Below the high priest were the priests, that is, all the male descendants of Aaron and their sons. Finally, the Levites, the non-priestly members of the tribe, who were the priest assistants especially in liturgical functions. With the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans in A.D. 70 and the dispersion of the Jews, the hierarchical order disappeared completely.

At the time of Our Lord there existed the Sanhedrin, the supreme religious court, consisting of the acting high priest as president, Scribes (most of whom were Pharisees) and Ancients or Elders (members of priestly families or representatives of the nobility). There were also religious divisions among the people as the Pharisees, the Sadducees, the Herodians and the Essenes or Messianists who are known to us from the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Thirdly, there was the sacred ritual. Every Israelite was to acknowledge God's absolute majesty and his own dependence upon Him. By offering various sacrifices, whether bloody (e.g., holocausts or burnt offerings; sin and guilt offerings; peace offerings) or unbloody (e.g., grain, wine, oil, salt, incense) through the official priesthood, Israel was honoring God through acts of adoration, thanksgiving, atonement and petition. By observing various laws of purification for legally incurred uncleanness, every Israelite was thus encouraged to foster moral purity by becoming conscious of actual or possibly sinful conduct. By refraining from various types of food, he was to practice daily self sacrifice or mortification and to remind himself constantly of his special election by God and of his segregation from the pagan world.

Fourthly, the Hebrews had their own particular sacred seasons. Although among the Hebrews the division of the days with its various parts (equivalent to our hours) as well as the division of the months and seasons based upon a lunar calendar may have been quite common with the entire Near East, yet there are various features peculiar to the Hebrew calendar.

The Sabbath or seventh day, which is based upon the story of creation, was to be celebrated with complete rest. The seventh month Tishri was to have various celebrations: on the first of that month was the New Year's festival; on the tenth, the Day of Atonement; on the fifteenth, the Feast of Tabernacles. The Sabbatical Year, that is, in every seventh year, the entire land was to have a rest; in the fiftieth year the laws of the Sabbatical Year were also followed.

Then, too, three great feasts were celebrated throughout the year; namely, the feast of the Passover (an eight day celebration), Pentecost (one day) and the feast of Tabernacles (an eight day celebration). After the Babylonian Captivity various festivals were introduced into the Jewish calendar; the principal ones are: the feast of Purim and the feast of the Dedication of the Temple, also called Encaenia or the feast of Lights.

8. SECULAR ANTIQUITIES OR ARCHAEOLOGY

Archaeological excavations conducted between the two World Wars (1918-1941) have enriched our knowledge of the history, culture and religion of the entire Near East, including Palestine. Particular mention must be made of Palestinian excavations by various non-religious British (e.g., British School of Archaeology) and American schools (e.g., American School of Oriental Research) as well as Catholic schools (e.g., the Dominican Ecole Biblique and the Jesuit Pontifical Biblical Institute, both at Jerusalem.

From these excavations we may learn of the existence of man and of human culture in Palestine somewhere in the (1) Prehistorical Period (?-5000 B.C.) as for instance in the Mesolithic Period (8300/8000—5000 B.C.) represented by the so-called Natufian culture. There is no difficulty in finding traces of human culture at various sites in Palestine during the (2) Protohistorical Period (c.5000-3000 B.C.), as for instance at Jericho for the Neolithic Period (5000-4000 B.C.) and at Teleilat el-Ghassul and other parts of Palestine for the Chalcolithic Period or Copper Stone Age (4000-3000 B.C.). The (3) Historical Period of Palestine (3000-B.C.—A.D. 100) includes historical evidence covering the Bronze Period (3000—1200 B.C.), the Iron Age (1200—330 B.C.), the Hellenistic (330—100 B.C.) and the Hellenistic-Roman Ages (100 B.C.—A.D. 100). Many of the monuments and documents from the Historical Period of the Near East help to verify or clarify some of the Biblical accounts and texts of the Old Testament.

9. GEOGRAPHY OF PALESTINE

A knowledge of Palestinian geography is also required for a fuller understanding of the Bible.

Palestine was divinely chosen as a suitable dwelling place for Israel, where, because of its almost isolated position, it could preserve its true religion and become an instrument in the salvation of the world.

Its weather conditions vary according to its three zonal divisions: the Jordan valley, the maritime plain and the mountainous regions. Similarly, different agricultural conditions prevail in accordance with its varied climatic conditions. Then, too, the Holy Land is rich in the different types of fauna found there.

If we consider the physical aspect of Palestine based upon its mountain and waterway system, three zones can be distinguished. First, there is the long Jordan depression, which from the sources of the Jordan extends for about 275 miles to the Gulf of Akabah and is 12½ miles wide in some places. Along this long fissure mention may be made of the following places from north to south. The valley includes Cæsarea Philippi (one of the sources of the Jordan River); Lake Huleh; the Lake of Tiberias or Sea of Galilee (13 miles long, 7 miles wide; 682 feet below the Mediterranean; 154 feet the greatest depth) with various towns dotting its shores, as Tiberias, Magdala, Capharnaum, Corozain, Bethsaida-Julias, etc.; the El Ghor (i.e., depression; direct distance is 65 miles between the two seas); the Dead Sea (47 miles long, 10 miles wide, 1292 feet below Mediterranean, 1310 feet the greatest depth); El Arabah (115 miles long to the Gulf of Akabah).

Secondly, there is western Palestine consisting of two longitudinal divisions. The maritime plain extends for about 140 miles from Nahr el-Kasimiyeh in the north through the region of Mount Carmel and the Philistine cities to Wady el-Arish, the ancient "Torrent of Egypt" in the south. The western plateau—as an extension of the Lebanon system—comprises the mountains of Upper and Lower Galilee, and (after the Plain of Esdraelon with such towns as Mageddo, Thanach, Jenin, Jezrael, Sunem, Naim and Endor), the Samaritan mountain system (including Mount Carmel [1810 feet] and Mount Garizim [2850 feet] and such Biblical towns as Dothain, Sichem, Thersa and Samaria), and the Judean mountain system extending from Bethel to Bersabee, a distance of about 60 miles. This region included the area about Jerusalem (with Mount Scopus [2726 feet] and Mount of Olives [2681 feet]), Bethlehem (2549 feet), Hebron (3000 feet) and Bersabee (787 feet). The area to the south was called the Negeb, and to the extreme south the Sinai peninsula.

Thirdly, there is the vast Transjordan region, an extensive plateau stretching from Mount Hermon in the north to Wady el-Hesa in the south, from the Jordan river in the west to the Syrian desert in the east; this plateau is divided into three parts by the Yarmuk and Jaboc Rivers.

The area north of the Yarmuk included the Jaulan or Gualanitis territory (with such important towns as Cæsarea Philippi, Bethsaida Julias), the Hauran or Auranitis region (with towns as Edrai and Astaroth, the capitals of King Og, and Bostra) and the land around the very ancient and important city of Damascus.

The area between the two seas (Galilee and Dead) east of the Jordan comprised Upper and Lower Galaad, and is divided into two parts by the Jaboc River. This land of rich pastures and forests contained some towns of importance in the history of Israel (e.g., Amman or Rabbath-Ammon, the capital of the Ammonites, Mahanaim, etc.).

The area roughly east and contiguous with the Dead Sea was the land of Moab which is divided in half by the Arnon River so as to form Upper and Lower Moab. Worthy of note are far northern Moab, Mount Nebo (2644 feet) from which Moses looked over the Promised Land; Machaerus (2425 feet) where St. John the Baptist was imprisoned and beheaded; the sulphureal thermal baths of Callirrhoe (with 140° F. temperature) used by King Herod the Great shortly before his death.

The territory south of Moab was called in Old Testament times Edom with its famous capital at Petra.

The physical geography of Palestine does not always correspond with its political or historical boundaries.

The Old Testament boundaries were those occupied by the twelve tribes. The Transjordan was settled by the two tribes of Ruben and Gad and the one half tribe of Manasse; the Promised Land proper was inhabited by the other nine and one half tribes according to the territory alloted to them by the assembly at Galgal and Silo (Jos 14—19); namely, Juda, Simeon, Benjamin, Dan, Ephraim, one half Manasse, Issachar, Zabulon, Aser and Nephtali.

The New Testament boundaries presupposed another political division based upon the Roman authority. There was the province of Judea with its capital at Jerusalem and containing such important towns as Bethlehem, Jericho, Emmaus, Lydda, Arimathea and Jaffa; the province of Samaria contained the towns of Samaria (once the capital of the Northern Kingdom), Sichar and Cæsarea; the province of Galilee, together with such towns as Nazareth, Naim, Cana, Capharnaum and Tiberias, well known in New Testament times. In the northern Transjordan region two towns are best known from the life of Christ; namely, Bethsaida Julias and Cæsarea Philippi; in the region of Perea (corresponding to parts of ancient Galaad and Moab) was the Decapolis (Mt 4, 25; Mk 5, 20; 7, 31), that is, ten towns bearing the stamp of Græco-Roman civilization.

10. HISTORICAL OUTLINE OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

The first eleven chapters of Genesis treating of cosmic and human origins (or primitive history) serve as an introduction to the history of Israel which covers a period of more than fifteen hundred years before the Christian Era. It may be divided into several important phases.

a) With Abraham the age of the patriarchs and the history of Israel begin (Gn 12, 1ff). He was chosen by God to become the founder or forefather of the entire nation. His son was Isaac and his grandson Jacob from whose twelve sons the twelve tribes of Israel originated. Spiritually speaking the special blessing of Noe to Sem after the Deluge was inherited by the Semite Abraham and his descendants.

The span of time between Abraham and the twelve tribes under Moses cannot be stated with certainty for two reasons. First, it is not known exactly how long before or how long after the destruction of the Third Dynasty of Ur (c. 1960 B.C.) by the Amorrites that Abraham left Ur for the land of Chanaan. Secondly, the date of the Exodus of the twelve tribes under Moses from the land of Egypt may have occurred about 1440 B.C. (early dating) or according to other scholars the latter part of the fourteenth, the early or latter part of the thirteenth century. Thus, this period between Abraham and Moses can be placed anywhere between 1960 and 1230 B.C.

b) The second period represents the Mosaic Period when Israel under the leadership of Moses left Egypt and the various tribes confederated on Mount Sinai to become a united, independent nation by agreeing to a national Covenant and its obligations which contained various religious, ethical and ritualistic precepts. In this Sinaitic Covenant between Almighty God and Israel, Moses acted as the representative of the people. To this day many modern Jews feel themselves obliged to observe the essentials of this Mosaic Law or Torah. Because of their disobedience the people had to spend forty years in the desert and very few of them were permitted to enter the Promised Land.

c) The third period describes the gradual conquest of Chanaan by the Israelites and the period between Josue and Samuel, the last of the judges. During this time the twelve tribes were alloted their boundaries and tried to consolidate their positions. The loose national unity existing between these tribes encouraged at times hostile neighbors, as the Chanaanites and Philistines, to threaten them, but the judges protected their people from calamity and destruction. This period ended with a popular demand for a king.

d) The fourth period represents Israel as a political power under the monarchical form of government. All Israel was unified during the reign of three kings; namely, Saul (1052-1012 B.C.), David (1012-972) and his son Solomon (972-932 B.C.). Under the able leadership of King Saul the nation was delivered from some of its enemies, especially the powerful Philistines who had settled in the coastal region. The great warrior David acquired for the national capital Jerusalem by its capture from the Jebusites, extended and fortified the borders of Israel, established a royal court, made plans for a great temple by accumulating the building material, establishing various musical schools and personally composing many psalms for various liturgical functions. Solomon, inheriting a powerful unified nation and enjoying an era of peace and prosperity, was able to build the magnificent temple of Jerusalem as the religious center of all Israel, to beautify this city with many buildings and palaces, to regulate the national economy through various means of taxation, and to establish friendly diplomatic relations with foreign governments through trading or cultural relations (e.g., the visit of the Queen of Saba).

e) With the death of King Solomon (932 B.C.) the dynasty of David lost much of its power due to internal difficulties in the country. Juda and Israel were established as two separate, independent kingdoms.

1) The Kingdom of Israel was the larger of the two kingdoms and embraced ten tribes. After the election of Jeroboam, an Ephraimite, there succeeded him eighteen other kings, who either ruled without leaving heirs to the throne (e.g., Zambri) or became heads of dynasties (e.g., Amri, Jehu). These relatively rich agricultural tribes were constantly torn by regional conflicts so that they seldom enjoyed a consolidated powerful kingdom. At times this Northern Kingdom waged war against Juda and at other times there prevailed a peaceful coexistence between the two separated and related kingdoms. At times this Kingdom of Israel struggled against the Aramæan kingdom, a buffer state between Israel and the powerful Assyria. It is noteworthy that the Israelite and Aramæan kingdoms, both weakened by constant wars, disappeared in historical records as nations about the same time. The Assyrian ruler, Sargon II, put an end to the independence of both. Thus, the Kingdom of Israel ceased to exist as an independent nation after 210 years (932-722 B.C.); its citizens were scattered throughout the Assyrian Empire and were absorbed by the people who received them. Some of them remained faithful to the Mosaic faith as is recorded in the Book of Tobias.

The religious history of Israel was also a great factor in the moral decline of the nation. King Amri (887 [883]-876 B.C.) moved his capital from Thersa to Samaria as a possible rival to the southern capital of Jerusalem. Special cultic idolatrous shrines were established at Galgal and Bethel. The Chanaanite or Phœnician worship of Baal was introduced into the country and was accepted by many of the rulers and citizens (cf. the struggle between the prophet Elia and King Achab with his Phœnician Queen Jezabel). In trying to preserve the purity of the monotheistic Yahweh cult and morals, the prophets as guardians and defenders of revealed religion and ethics were often regarded as enemies by the governing classes, and therefore presecuted, expelled from the land and in some cases murdered as enemies of the state.

Today the memory of the Northern Kingdom of Israel as recorded in the Third and Fourth Books of Kings, should remind every faithful of the love and mercy of Almighty God toward all men in trying to bring them closer to Him in their charity and trust.

2) The Kingdom of Juda was the smaller of the two kingdoms and was symbolic of the blessing of Jacob who singled out Juda of his twelve sons as the carrier and a participant of the Messianic blessings (cf Gn 49, 8-12).

This kingdom remained a Davidic dynasty, from its first post-Solomonic king, Roboam (992-917 B.C.) to his twentieth and last representative, Sedecia or Matthania (597-586 B.C.). In this period of nearly 350 years this little kingdom politically played only a small or minor role as a buffer state surrounded by powerful big nations, as Egypt, Assyria, Aramæa, Phœnicia and Babylonia. But it played a tremendous spiritual role in the religion of the world to the present day. Thus it had its periods of war, peaceful coexistence and renewed hostilities with the Northern Kingdom; of war and alliances with Assyria. But it made the wrong and fatal decision of fighting against the Neo-Babylonian army of Nabuchodonosor, who destroyed the nation, its capital Jerusalem, the temple, and took many of its citizens back to Babylon as captives. These events are graphically described in the Third and Fourth Books of Kings and the Second Book of Paralipomenon.

During this entire period the religious spirit of Juda varied. Polytheism or idolatry under the form of the Chanaanite Baal worship or of the Babylonian astral religion was the greatest danger to the revealed monotheistic religion of Yahweh and to the faithful observance of the Law. Thus, for example, there was a continuous seesaw struggle for almost a century and a half between idolatrous kings and reform kings who were encouraged by the prophets. Thus, for example, King Achaz (736-728 B.C.) introduced Assyrian idolatrous practices in Jerusalem and kept suppressing the worship of the true God, Yahweh. His son and successor, King Ezechia (727-699 B.C.) who was guided by the prophet Isaia, inaugurated religious reforms by officially restoring Juda to its monotheistic constitution and observance of the Law. His son and successor, Manasse (698-643 B.C.) followed the bad example of his grandfather and re-introduced idol worship into the country. After his death religious reforms were again renewed by King Josia (640-609 B.C.) who being encouraged by the prophetess Holda and the high priest Helcia made rigorous attempts to root out idolatry and enforce the Mosaic Law.

Jeremia, the last of the pre-Exilic prophets, supported the reforms of Josia but these were soon forgotten in Juda's last struggle to retain its independence. The prophet was regarded as a prophet of gloom and later became the prophet of hope. He urged successive kings of Juda to live on terms of peaceful coexistence with the Neo-Babylonians and to reject the military alliance with the weak Egyptians. He had to suffer for his advice and preaching, which proved subsequently to be true. Juda lost its independence and many of its leading citizens were carried into the Babylonian Exile (586 B.C.) where they studied and took to heart the prophet's words by counting the years of the exile predicted by him, by receiving confidence in a restored nation based eventually upon a new covenant and the reign of the Messia(s).

f) The sixth period of the history of Israel comprises the Babylonian Exile. The first group to be sent into exile left Palestine in 605 B.C. Mass deportations followed in 587-586 B.C. The Persian Cyrus the Great allowed them to return home in 536 B.C. Two great prophets brought the exiles in Babylon courage and strength; namely, Daniel and Ezechiel.

The faith of the Jews was purified in the exile. They freed themselves from idolatry, reflected upon the teachings and lessons of their past and present prophets as the men of God, met every Sabbath in a synagogue for prayers and instructions in the Law prepared by the Scribes.

The period immediately following the Exile represented the return of the Jews to their homeland after seventy years and the restoration of Juda as a commonwealth under the Persians. This era is treated in the First and Second Books of Ezra (Esdras) and in the books of the prophets Aggai, Zacharia and Malachia.

The Davidic descendant Zorobabel and the high priest Josue headed the list of leaders who returned to Palestine. One of their first tasks was to construct the second temple and they rejected the offer of the Samaritans, a mixed population occupying the north of the country, to participate in this work. The prophets Aggai and Zacharia encouraged the Jews to rebuild the temple and it was finally dedicated in 516 B.C. Later Nehemia, the cupbearer of Artaxerxes I (465-424 B.C.) succeeded in having the walls of Jerusalem rebuilt and then with the help of the scribe Ezra (Esdras) corrected various fiscal and religious abuses, and made the people solemnly renew the covenant with Yahweh.

g) The seventh period of the history of Israel marked their domination by the Greeks after the defeat of the Persians by Alexander the Great (336-323 B.C.) at the Battle of Arbela in 331 B.C. After the untimely death of Alexander the Jews were the subjects of the Egyptian Ptolemies who by and large lived on friendly terms with them. At Alexandria there was a large Jewish colony, for whose members the Hebrew books of the Old Testament were translated into Greek and this first version of the Bible was called the Septuagint (250-100 B.C.).

After Antiochus the Great (223-189 B.C.) defeated the Egyptian Ptolemies, the Seleucids began to rule over Judea in 198 B.C. from Antioch, Syria. Their interference in the religious and civil affairs of the Jews lasted until 142 B.C., when the commonwealth of Judea finally gained its complete independence. The long bitter struggle between the Seleucid kings and Mathathia together with his sons, Juda (also called Machabeus), Jonathan and Simon (142-135 B.C.) has been described in the First and Second Books of Machabees.

h) The eighth and final period of the history of Israel brings us to the threshold of New Testament times under the Romans. The little commonwealth of Judea enjoyed its independence only for a short period of about eighty years. On the occasion of a dispute about the legal succession to the Jewish high priesthood, the Roman general Pompey came to Jerusalem in 63 B.C. and extended Roman control over Judea. This Roman power over the country lasted more than a century. The history of Israel came to its sad, tragic end in A.D. 70, when the Jewish nation reduced to one tribe and representing the last of Jacob's twelve sons came to an end with the destruction of Jerusalem, its temple and priesthood.

11. RELIGION OF THE OLD TESTAMENT

The principal source of the Old Testament religion was God's revelation which represented an active, energizing, dynamic force and was accompanied by divine intervention and guidance in the affairs of man. Monotheistic was this religion from the very beginning of Israel. Its inspired sacred authors were enabled to judge and interpret correctly ancient cosmic and human origins (Gn 1-11) in terms of non-polytheistic belief.

The revealed religion of Israel proposes a threefold progressive stage: patriarchal, Mosaic, prophetic. Finally, the fruition or culmination of this entire religious schooling was to be found in the beliefs and practices of the Jews in the post-Exilic Period.

a) Patriarchal Religion. A very special phase in the history of revealed religion began with Abraham, the father of the Hebrew race. He received a special call from Almighty God who made promises of a temporal and spiritual nature to the patriarch and his descendants. He entered a very intimate and personal convenant (berith) with him, which was afterwards repeated to his descendants Isaac and Jacob, and He demanded of him the rite of circumcision as the ratification and seal of this covenant. Of these patriarchs God required the observance of a very strict moral code superior to that of their polytheistic neighbors.

b) Mosaic Religion. To this day modern Jews insist that they are bound to the essential requirements of the Mosaic Covenant. At Sinai, Almighty God, had chosen Moses (the greatest of the Old Testament prophets) as His mediator or agent for the historically important national covenant (berith). This important event was to mark the birth of Israel as a nation or the Chosen People of God in the Old Testament. This national covenant represented historically the culmination of the personal covenants between Almighty God and Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

In this Sinaitic Covenant the Law or Torah was to play a special role and regulate the religious, moral and civil life of every Israelite. In its relation with God, Israel was to act like a priestly kingdom and a holy nation (Ex 19, 6). Accordingly, it was given a Levitical priesthood according to the order of Aaron, a tabernacle (i.e., a holy place to worship), a sacred annual calendar for religious festival celebrations, and a ritual for all kinds of sacrifices, laws of purification and dietary laws. All these holy things were to remind the people of the intimate bond of friendship that should exist with God and were to stimulate a pious disposition in the soul of every Israelite.

The social legislation of the Israelites in the form of ethical and civil laws was contained in the Decalogue or Ten Commandments (Ex 20,1-17; cf. also Dt 5, 6-21), the so-called Covenant Code (Ex 20, 22—23, 33) and other parts of the Pentateuch. This entire legislation of the new state of Israel was in many respects superior to or at least compared in some respects very favorably with the laws and customs of other ancient races, as the Sumerians, Babylonians (e.g., Code of Hammurabi) and Chanaanites. A seriously pious spirit of monotheism permeates this entire legislation and its structure.

c) Prophetic Religion. After Israel felt itself very powerful and was recognized as an important international state by various foreign countries, some of its leaders, kings and officials both of the Southern and Northern Kingdoms relied solely upon human wisdom. Hence, practical politics of expediency followed by defensive alliances with pagan or polytheistic countries weakened the religious and moral fiber of Israel: first, by removing the Holy Land from its monotheistic isolation, and secondly, by allowing heathen beliefs and practices to be introduced into the two kingdoms.

Consequently, the solemn promises once given by Almighty God Himself (to the patriarchs and to the nation through Moses) for His special providential care, protection, guidance and His beneficent intervention in their history were either forgotten, neglected or ignored by the people. On the contrary, the prophets, as inspired agents of God, revolted against a too secularistic state and against any idea of placing, Yahweh, the God of Israel, in any secondary position. Being divinely called and enlightened as to their message, these prophets by their energetic preaching became the watchmen of Israel, the guardians of the purity of the Hebrew religion. They were responsible for keeping Israel monotheistic and enriched the history of revelation with their predictions of the coming Messia and His kingdom.

Both the non-writing prophets (e.g. Nathan, Elia, Eliseus, etc.) and the writing ones (e.g., Major and Minor Prophets) remained a powerful influence in the thoughts of the Hebrew people. They also played at times an important role in the history of their people (e.g., Elia, Isaia, Jeremia, Osee). These prophets by acting as the instruments of God continually stressed man's spiritual importance and the necessity of the nation's supernatural deliverance or salvation. Their spiritual outlook and interpretation of events contradicted the purely secularistic understanding of life and events given by some of their kings and leaders who showed very little confidence in divine assistance and seemed overwhelmed by their self importance, personal power and judgments. Thus, in brief, when the average student of the Bible reads the books of the Major or Minor Prophets, he must bear in mind that these prophets were the preachers, defenders of the traditional revealed truths; the bulwarks of a minority of believers who trusted in God's promises, and finally, the exemplars of those practising charity, especially toward the poor, the widows, the orphans and the oppressed. Thus, these prophets were the instructors and defenders of social justice.

d) Post-Exilic Religion. The Jewish religion after the Exile (536 B.C.-) was predominantly and rigidly monotheistic and this spirit remained with the Jews to the present day. In the beginning of this period the inspired literature of the Old Testament was enriched by some sacred wisdom books. This period was also marked by an intense yearning for the coming of the Messia(s), as we see expressed in the apocryphal books, the Qumran or Dead Sea Scrolls and by some of the very pious souls of the last of the Old Testament period, as Zachary, Elizabeth, their son John the Baptist, Simeon and Anna.

12. HISTORICAL OUTLINE OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

Chronology and geography are the eyes of history and some of both are contained in the Gospels treating of the life of Jesus Christ as well as in the other inspired books of the New Covenant dealing with the establishment of His Church or the Kingdom of God.

a) The Gospels. Most of the events recorded in the Gospels took place in Judea of Palestine, the land of the Jews, between 8/4 B.C. (i.e., at the birth of Jesus or before the death of Herod the Great [40/37-4 B.C.]) and A.D. 30/33 (i.e., the year of His death according to two astronomical possibilities).

The problem of the precise year of Jesus' death, whether in A.D. 30 or 33, depends upon the definite solution of two questions. First, when did the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Cæsar begin, for it was the start of the mission of John the Baptist (cf. Luke 3,1ff)? St. Luke in his Gospel could have reckoned this according to the Syrian calendar calculation (i.e., Oct. 1, A.D. 27 to Sept. 30, A.D. 28) or according to the Roman calendar based upon his collegiate role (i.e., Aug. 19, A.D. 28 to Aug. 18, A.D. 28). Secondly, there is still the unsolved problem, whether the public ministry of Jesus lasted two or three years according to the Gospel records.

There is a substantial agreement between the inspired historian St. Luke (both in his Gospel and Acts) regarding secular history and the profane writers. Although he and the other Evangelists were not writing a strict history of the life of Jesus according to modern standards, yet they had a real biographical interest in His life and placed it in an historical framework.

The sayings of Jesus were actually uttered and are historically true. His actions, regardless of what forms and contexts may be ascribed to them, have actually and objectively been performed by Him.

b) The Other New Testament Books. The second phase of New Testament history comprises the time between the death of Jesus and the death of His beloved Apostle, John (i.e., A.D. 30/33-c.100). The Acts of the Apostles, the Pauline and Pastoral Epistles and the Apocalypse or Revelation of John represent the period in which the primitive Church was established and organized especially throughout the Roman Empire.

The Acts of the Apostles by Luke is the first important Church history. It treats of the Pentecostal experience of the Apostles and disciples; the initial extension of the Church to the Gentiles through the conversion of Cornelius and his family by Peter; the First Ecumenical Council of Jerusalem (A.D. 50) declaring that the Old Testament law of circumcision was not binding upon the Gentile converts to the Christian faith; the three missionary journeys of Paul, together with his Cæsarean and Roman imprisonments.

The Apostles through their various Epistles give us a deep insight into the historical, religious and moral conditions surrounding the early faithful. The Apocalypse written at the end of the first century to the second and third generation of Christians in Asia Minor is a witness of the dangers confronting the early Church.

13. RELIGION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

The religion of the New Testament treats of the New Covenant (berith). This covenant had been promised by some of the Old Testament prophets; it was to extend beyond the narrow confines of the Holy Land of the Chosen People in Palestine and was to embrace all nations of the world or all mankind, and to make the entire world the holy land of God. This is the new pact of the Heavenly Father with all the inhabitants of the earth, regardless of race or color.

This New Covenant in contrast with the Mosaic Covenant (cf. Mt 26,28; 2 Cor 3,6) was inaugurated by the life and teaching of the Mediator and Messia(s), Jesus Christ, who by His words and deeds proved that He was also the Son of the Eternal Father; or in other words that He was also divine. This better and everlasting covenant (Heb 7,22; 13,20) was finally concluded at the Last Supper (Mk 14, 24) and ratified by His blood on Golgotha or Calvary (Lk 22, 20). But the historical events of Christ's life, words and deeds were not to remain unproductive, unfruitful and inoperative for the salvation of mankind. The Apostles guided by the gifts of the Holy Spirit spread the truths of Christ and the church established by Him on the rock foundation of Peter through their preaching (kerygma) and writings to all parts of the Roman Empire.

The Four Gospels contain truths about and of Jesus with the promise that during the period of the New Covenant there would be an entirely new spiritual order or economy. The new divine plan outlined especially in the parables of Jesus under the concept of the "Kingdom of God" or the "Kingdom of Heaven," that is, His Church (cf Mt 16, 16-18) describes its nature, members and their duties as well as its consummation. After the descent of the Holy Spirit upon the Apostles on Pentecost, they and later Paul, the converted Pharisee, fulfilled their call and mission of going forth, preaching the redemptive value of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the God-Man, to all nations and making them members of the Church, His Mystical Body (Mt 28, 18-20).

This Kingdom of God or the Church, which Jesus Christ established on earth, consisted essentially in the spiritual union of its members with God and this spiritual fellowship was effected particularly through the reception of the Sacraments (e.g., Baptism, Holy Eucharist). Functioning as spiritual shepherds, the Apostles (in particular Paul) stressed the variety of the members of the Church, their rights and duties as well as their charismatical endowments. Thus, from the very beginning every one, even the least in human society, was considered spiritually equal in the Church. Each one had his soul to save and God was not a respecter of persons.

Conclusion. Jesus Christ, by His life, words and deeds showed that He was divine. He established a New Covenant in contrast with the Mosaic Covenant. In this newly established covenant representing the fulfillment of the promises made to the prophets there was to be the Kingdom of God or the Church, which was to spread the gospel of eternal truths and divine love or charity throughout the world for all times as fruits of the redemptive work of the Son of God, Jesus Christ. The Church with historically proven Apostolic succession is constantly renewing its efforts to live according to the spirit of Jesus Christ. In modern times this spiritual renewal is being strongly advocated by Pope John XXIII through Vatican Council II.

14. CHRIST IN THE BIBLE

The Hebrews had two fundamental dogmas; namely, the belief in only one God and in the future Messia(s).

The entire period of thousands of years from Adam to John the Baptist may be briefly described as a gradual preparation for the Messia(s) or Christ (both words from the Hebrew and Greek meaning "the Anointed One"). At first a vague promise was given in Paradise after the fall of our first parents; then, it became a little clearer after the Deluge, when Sem, the son of Noe, was selected as the bearer of the Messianic promise; finally, of all the Semitic peoples, Abraham, the father of the Hebrew race, and his descendants were chosen to be transmitters of this promise. Hence, although the Hebrew nation was always conscious of its future complete salvation through the personal Messia(s), yet the rest of the world did not lose every trace of Messianic deliverance and their common tradition.

But beyond this common tradition among mankind of its ultimate salvation and victory through some kind of divine intervention, Israel received special and detailed revelations concerning the origin and religious functions of the future Messia(s) of the entire world. According to the prophets of Israel, He as a superhuman, divine Mediator, was to be a descendant of David, to be born in Bethlehem of a virgin mother, would institute a New Covenant and function in it as a prophet, priest, king and shepherd. They also predicted that He would be a suffering Messia(s), would redeem all mankind and would be finally exalted by God.

Various names and titles were applied to or used in the New Testament by Jesus which have Messianic implications; thus, for example, Messia(s), Christ, Son of David, Son of Man, Son of God, Emmanuel, Orient, Prince of Peace. By His words and deeds Jesus Christ showed that He was the promised Messia(s) and He often referred to the Old Testament and its prophecies as being or having been fulfilled in Him. The Apostles in their preaching and writings often mentioned that the Messiaship of Jesus was in accordance with the Old Testament prophecies.

15. DEVOTION TO OUR BLESSED LADY AND ST. JOSEPH IN THE BIBLE

Holy Mother Church has always had a cherished position in her liturgy for the natural mother and the foster-father of Jesus based upon the Bible.

Mary who was "full of grace" and was to be recognized as "blessed among women" received her exalted position in the annals of history because she is the mother of the Messia(s) and the mother of the God-Man, Jesus Christ. The allusions and references to her in the Old Testament, especially the prophecy of her as the virgin mother of the future Messia(s) in the Book of Isaia, show that she was not completely ignored in Hebrew tradition. She played the leading role besides Jesus in the Infancy stories contained in the First and Second Gospels. Her name occurs occasionally in the Gospels during the public ministry of her Son. She was present, where we would expect to find her, under the Cross of Calvary. As spiritual mother of the Apostles and disciples, of the Infant Church, she was with them in Jerusalem before and at the time of the descent of the Holy Spirit on the first Christian Pentecost.

St. Joseph, a descendant from King David, was divinely chosen and privileged to be the spouse of the Blessed Virgin Mary and the foster-father of Jesus. He played a sublime role in the birth and infancy of Jesus as recorded in the first two Gospels and is mentioned for the last time when the Holy Family went to Jerusalem for the Passover and the Child Jesus was lost and found in the temple. Even later the association of Jesus and St. Joseph was considered very intimate in the eyes of the people, who regarded Him during His public ministry as "the carpenter's son." Thus, St. Joseph fulfilled his threefold mission in life; namely, to protect by marriage the miraculously fruitful virginity of the Mother of God; to provide for the needs of the Holy Family and for their physical protection; to keep the mystery of the Incarnation a secret from the people until our redemption by Jesus on the Cross was accomplished. In modern times May 1, the liturgical Feast of St. Joseph the Worker, is to remind mankind of the Church's solicitude for the workingman and is to take the place of the Red May Day of the Communists.

16. READING THE BIBLE

The Church has at all times encouraged her children to read and to study the Bible and to meditate upon its message and lessons. The faithful are constantly urged to acquire a greater knowledge and love for the Word of God and to apply the divine message to daily living. For the protection of her children, she urges that translations in the vernacular be approved by the bishops, the successors of the Apostles, because in the past footnotes in some of the versions of the Bible belittled the Church, her doctrines, teachings and traditions.

The reading of the Bible will not only increase man's knowledge and spiritual values, but also what is more important will give a wider, deeper and richer spiritual life to his soul.

RT. REV. MSGR. JOHN E. STEINMUELLER, S.T.D., S.S.L., V.F.

PREFACE TO THE CONFRATERNITY EDITION OF THE HOLY BIBLE

"Inspired by the Divine Spirit, the Sacred Writers composed these books which God, in His paternal charity toward the human race, deigned to bestow on them 'for teaching, for reproving, for correcting, for instructing in justice; that the man of God may be perfect, equipped for every good work' (2 Tm 3, 16f). This heaven-sent treasure Holy Church considers as the most precious source of doctrine on faith and morals. No wonder therefore that, as she received it intact from the hands of the Apostles, she has kept it with all care, defended it from every false and perverse interpretation, and used it diligently as an instrument for securing the eternal salvation of souls" (Pope Pius XII, encyclical letter Divino afflante Spiritu, September 30, 1943).

In conformity with the spirit of this encyclical of Pope Pius XII, and with the encouragement of His Excellency the Apostolic Delegate to the United States, the Episcopal Committee of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine requested members of the Catholic Biblical Association of America to translate the Sacred Scriptures from the original languages or from the oldest extant form of the text, and to present the sense of the Biblical text in as correct a form as possible.

The first printed English Catholic version of the Bible, the Douay-Rheims version, and its revision by Bishop Challoner were based on the Latin Vulgate. Today, however, when the science of textual criticism has attained great perfection, it is desirable that a new English version of the Sacred Books be prepared, combining due reverence for the text with strict observance of the rules of criticism.

The use of the original texts as the basis of a new translation does not derogate from the decree of the Council of Trent concerning the Latin Vulgate. The Council does not forbid "translations into the vernacular tongue even directly from the original texts themselves, for the use and benefit of the faithful and for the better understanding of the divine word, as We know to have been already done in a laudable manner in many countries with the approval of the Ecclesiastical authority" (Divino afflante Spiritu).

The text of the first Eight Books [the Seven Sapiential Books and the Eighteen Prophetic Books] contained in this volume is . . . part of a completely new translation of the Bible. This translation is based on the original and oldest texts of the Sacred Books. It gives the translators opportunity to convey directly the thought and individual style of the inspired writers. A better understanding of Hebrew and of the science of textual criticism, which has been the fruit of earnest and patient study since the time of St. Jerome, can now be reflected in the translation itself. The translators and editors intend to draw constantly on all material available to obtain in every instance a translation which represents, as far as possible, what the Sacred Author actually wrote.

In most matters pertaining to format and manner of presentation, this new translation will follow the pattern set by the Confraternity revision of the New Testament. . . . As regards the matter of English style, it will be seen that the deliberate compromise with earlier usage frequently retained in Bible translations has here been given up.

The work of translating the Bible has been characterized as "the sacred and apostolic work of interpreting the word of God and of presenting it to the laity in translations as clear as the difficulty of the matter and the limitations of human knowledge permit" (His excellency A. G. Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate, in the Catholic Biblical Quarterly, 6, 1944, 389f). In the appraising of the present work, it is hoped that the words of the encyclical Divino afflante Spiritu will serve as a guide: "Let all the sons of the Church bear in mind that the efforts of these resolute laborers in the vineyard of the Lord should be judged not only with equity and justice, but also with the greatest charity; all moreover should abhor that intemperate zeal which imagines that whatever is new should for that very reason be opposed or suspected."

Conscious of their personal limitations for the task thus defined, those who have prepared this text cannot hope that it will be perfect, but only that it may deepen in its readers "the right understanding of the divinely given Scriptures," and awaken in them "that piety by which it behooves us to be grateful to the God of all providence, who from the throne of His majesty has sent these books as so many personal letters to His own children" (Divino afflante Spiritu).

INDULGENCES FOR READING THE BIBLE

An indulgence of three years is granted to the faithful who read the Books of the Bible for at least a quarter of an hour, with the reverence due to the Divine Word and as spiritual reading.

To the faithful who piously read at least some verses of the Gospel and in addition, while kissing the Gospel Book, devoutly recite one of the following invocations: "May our sins be blotted out through the words of the Gospel" — "May the reading of the Gospel be our salvation and protection" — "May Christ, the Son of God, teach us the words of the Holy Gospel":

an indulgence of 500 days is granted;

a plenary indulgence under the usual conditions is granted to those who for a whole month daily act in the way indicated above;

a plenary indulgence is granted at the hour of death to those who often during life have performed this pious exercise, provided they have confessed and received Communion, or at least having sorrow for their sins, they invoke the most holy name of Jesus with their lips, if possible, or at least in their hearts, and humbly accept death from the hand of God as the price of sin.

(Enchiridion Indulgentiarum, 694)

Prayers

COME, Holy Spirit, fill the hearts of Thy faithful and enkindle in them the fire of Thy love.

℣. Send forth Thy spirit and they shall be created.

℟. And Thou shalt renew the face of the earth.

Let Us Pray

O God, Who didst instruct the hearts of the faithful by the light of the Holy Spirit, grant us by the same Spirit to have a right judgment in all things and ever to rejoice in His consolation. Through Christ our Lord. Amen.

Indulgence of five years. Plenary indulgence, under the usual conditions, if the prayer has been recited daily for a month.

(Enchiridion Indulgentiarum, 287)

After Reading the Holy Scriptures

(Prayer of St. Bede the Venerable)

LET me not, O Lord, be puffed up with wordly wisdom, which passes away, but grant me that love which never abates, that I may not choose to know anything among men but Jesus, and Him crucified. (1 Cor. 13, 8; 2, 2.)

I pray Thee, loving Jesus, that as Thou hast graciously given me to drink in with delight the words of Thy knowledge, so Thou wouldst mercifully grant me to attain one day to Thee, the Fountain of all Wisdom and to appear forever before Thy face. Amen.

THE BOOK OF GENESIS

The Pentateuch is substantially the work of Moses. It is a closely knit literary unit and was originally conceived as one work written for a single purpose, viz., to keep before the Israelites the memory that God had called them to be His chosen people and had entrusted them with the promise of the Messias.

The Pentateuch was divided in the course of time into five parts or books: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy. It begins as a kind of universal history of mankind (Gen 1-11), but quickly limits itself to an account of the immediate ancestors of the Hebrews (Gen 12ff), and finally becomes in the following books (Exodus-Deuteronomy) the history of the Hebrews up to the time of the conquest of the Promised Land.

Genesis, therefore, is the introduction to the history of Israel. Its purpose is evident. By a careful selection of material, the author shows how God's omnipotence and loving care bring about the formation of the people whom He had chosen in a special manner as His "inheritance." He Himself is to rule over them. Their leaders, judges, prophets and kings are to be merely God's representatives.

Genesis (50 chapters) covers the period from the creation of the world to Joseph's death in Egypt. At this point Exodus takes up the narrative of Israel's sojourn in Egypt. The main divisions of Genesis are: I. The Primitive History (Gen 1, 1—11, 26). II. The Patriarch Abraham (Gen 11, 27—25, 18). III. The Patriarchs Isaac and Jacob (Gen 25, 19—36, 43). IV. The History of Joseph (Gen 37, 1—50, 26).

I: THE PRIMITIVE HISTORY

CHAPTER 1.

The Story of Creation. 1 In the beginning God created* the heavens and the earth;
2 [a] the earth was *waste and void; [b] darkness covered the abyss, and the spirit of God was stirring above the waters.

3 God said, [c] "Let there be light," and there was light. God saw that the light was good.* 4 God separated the light from the darkness, 5 calling the light Day and the darkness Night. And there was evening and morning, the first day.

6 Then God said, "Let there be a firmament in the midst of the waters to divide the waters." And so it was. 7 [d] God made the firmament, dividing the waters that were below the firmament from those that were above it. 8 God called the firmament Heaven. And there was evening and morning, the second day.

9 Then God said, "Let the waters below
the heavens be gathered into one place and let the dry land appear." [e] And so it was. 10 God called the dry land Earth and the assembled waters Seas. And God saw that it was good. 11 Then God said, [f] "Let the earth bring forth vegetation: seed-bearing plants and all kinds of fruit trees that bear fruit containing their seed."
And so it was. 12 The earth brought forth vegetation, every kind of seed-bearing plant and all kinds of trees that bear fruit containing their seed. God saw that it was good. 13 And there was evening and morning, the third day.

14 And God said, "Let there be lights* in the firmament of the heavens to separate day from night; let them serve as signs and for the fixing of seasons, days and years; 15 let them serve as lights in the firmament of the heavens to shed light upon the earth." So it was. 16 God made the two great lights,[g] the greater light to rule the day and the smaller one to rule the night, and he made the stars.
17 God set them in the firmament of the heavens to shed light upon the earth, 18 to rule the day and the night and to separate the light from the darkness.[h] God saw that it was good. 19 And there was evening and morning, the fourth day.

20 Then God said, "Let the waters abound with life, and above the earth let winged creatures fly below the firmament* of the heavens." And so it was. 21 God created the great sea monsters, all kinds of living, swimming creatures with which the waters abound and all kinds of winged birds. God saw that it was good, 22 and God blessed them, saying, "Be fruitful, multiply, and fill the waters of the seas; and let the birds multiply on the earth." 23 And there was evening and morning, the fifth day.

24 God said, "Let the earth bring forth all kinds of living creatures: cattle, crawling creatures and wild animals." And so it was. 25 God made all kinds of wild beasts, every kind of cattle, and every kind of creature crawling on the ground. And God saw that it was good.

26 God said, "Let us make mankind in our image and likeness;* and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, the birds of the air, the cattle, over all the wild animals and every creature that crawls on the earth."

27 God created man in his image. In the image of God he created him. Male and female he created them.[i]

28 Then God blessed them and said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply;[j] fill the earth and subdue it. Have dominion over the fish of the sea, the birds of the air, the cattle and all the animals that crawl on the earth." 29 God also said, "See, I give you every seed-bearing plant on the earth and every tree which has seed-bearing fruit to be your food.[k] 30 To every wild animal of the earth, to every bird of the air, and to every creature that crawls on the earth and has the breath of life, I give the green plants for food." And so it was. 31 God saw that all he had made was very good. And there was evening and morning, the sixth day.[l]

CHAPTER 2.

1 Thus the heavens and the earth were finished[m] and all their array.* 2 On the sixth day God finished the work he had been doing. And he rested on the seventh day from all the work he had done.[n]

3 God blessed the seventh day and made it holy[o] because on it he rested* from all his work of creation.

4 This is the story* of the heavens and the earth at their creation. When the Lord God made the earth and the heavens, 5 there was not yet any field shrub on the earth nor had the plants of the field sprung up, for the Lord God had sent no rain on the earth and there was no man to till the soil; 6 but a mist* rose from the earth and watered all the surface of the ground. 7 Then the Lord God formed man* out of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living being.[p]

The Garden of Eden. 8 The Lord God planted a garden in Eden,* to the east, and he put there the man he had formed. 9 The Lord God made to grow out of the ground all kinds of trees pleasant to the sight and good for food, the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil.[q]

10 A river rose in Eden watering the garden; and from there, it separated into four branches. 11 The name of the first is Phison, which encircles all the land of Hevila where there is gold. 12 And the gold of that land is good; bdellium and onyx are there. 13 The name of the second river is Gihon, which encircles all the land of Chus. 14 The name of the third river is Tigris, which flows east of Assur. And the fourth river is the Euphrates.

15 The Lord God took the man and placed him in the garden of Eden to till it and to keep it.[r] 16 And the Lord God commanded the man thus, "From every tree of the garden you may eat; 17 but from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil you must not eat;[s] for the day you eat of it, you must die."

1, 20: Above the earth . . . below the firmament: the whole phrase is equivalent to "in the air," for which Hebrew has no special expression.

1, 26: In our image and likeness: endowment with intellect and free will in imitation of God's perfections of understanding and willing. The expressions are really synonymous. In other passages only the one or the other is used: Gn 1, 27; 5, 1; 9, 6. Some of the Fathers saw in the use of the plural here and in Gn 3, 22 a veiled reference to the existence of more than one Person in God.

2, 1: Array: the sun, moon, stars, animals, birds, etc., are regarded as the armies or hosts of the places they inhabit.

2, 3: Rested: in a figurative sense. The seventh day differs from the other days in that no mention is made of its close.

2, 4: Story: or history. Literally: "generations." When: literally: "in the day that," without implying a definite date. Cf Gn 2, 17; 3, 5.

2, 6: Mist: the Hebrew word is found only here and in Jb 36, 27. Its precise meaning is uncertain. It seems to indicate an abundance of water on the earth for the use of man.

2, 7: In Hebrew "man" is adam and "the ground" is adamah.

2, 8: The garden was only a part of Eden. After the fall of Adam and Eve, they still lived in Eden but outside the garden.

18 Then the Lord God said, "It is not good that the man* is alone; I will make him a helper like himself." t
19 When the Lord God had formed out of the ground all the beasts of the field and the birds of the air, he brought them to the man to see what he would call them; for that which the man called each of them would be its name. 20 The man named all the cattle, all the birds of the air and all the beasts of the field; but he found no helper like himself.
21 The Lord God cast the man into a deep sleep and, while he slept, took one of his ribs and closed up its place with flesh. 22 And the rib which the Lord God took from the man, he made into a woman, and brought her to him. 23 Then the man said, u "She now is bone of my bone, and flesh of my flesh; she shall be called Woman,* for from man she has been taken." 24 For this reason a man leaves his father and mother, and clings to his wife, and the two become one flesh. v 25 Both the man and his wife were naked, but they felt no shame.

CHAPTER 3.

Temptation and Fall. 1 Now the serpent was more cunning than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. He said to the woman, "Did God say, 'You shall not eat of any tree of the garden'?"
2 The woman answered the serpent, "Of the fruit of all the trees in the garden we may eat; 3 but 'Of the fruit of the tree in the middle of the garden,' God said, 'you shall not eat, neither shall you touch it, lest you die.' "
4 But the serpent said to the woman,
w "No, you shall not die; 5 for God knows that when you eat of it, your eyes will be opened and you will be like God, x knowing good and evil." 6 Now the woman saw that the tree was good for food, pleasing to the eyes, and desirable for the knowledge it would give. y She took of its fruit and ate it, and also gave some to her husband and he ate. 7 Then the eyes of both were opened, and they realized that they were naked; so they sewed fig-leaves together and made themselves coverings.
8 When they heard the sound of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day, the man and his wife hid themselves from the Lord God among the trees of the garden. z 9 But the Lord God called the man and said to him, "Where are you?" 10 And he said, "I heard you in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked; and I hid." 11 Then he said, "Who told you that you were naked? You have eaten then of the tree of which I commanded you not to eat." 12 The man said,
*"The woman you placed at my side
gave me fruit from the tree and I ate."
13 Then the Lord God said to the woman, "Why have you done this?" The woman said, "The serpent deceived me and I ate." a

Punishment; the Promise of a Redeemer.
14 Then the Lord God said to the serpent: "Because you have done this, cursed are you among all animals, and among all beasts of the field; on your belly shall you crawl, dust shall you eat,* all the days of your life. b 15 I will put enmity between you and the woman, between your seed and her seed;* he shall crush your head, and you shall lie in wait for his heel." c 16 To the woman he said: "I will make great your distress in child-bearing; in pain shall you bring forth children; for your husband shall be your longing,
though he have dominion over you." d
17 And to Adam he said, "Because you have listened to your wife, and have eaten of the tree of which I commanded you not to eat: Cursed be the ground e
because of you; in toil shall you eat of it all the days of your life; 18 thorns and thistles shall it bring forth to you, and

2, 18: The man: i.e., Adam and also man in general. Man is so constituted that the two sexes complement each other.

2, 23: She shall be called Woman: in Hebrew there is a play on words (woman: ishah; man: ish), intended not as scientific etymology, but to convey the idea of close relationship between man and woman.

3, 12f: Instead of acknowledging his guilt, Adam placed the blame on Eve, and she in turn blamed the serpent.

3, 14: Dust . . . eat: to crawl on the ground and take dust into its mouth together with food was a mark of degradation. Cf Is 65, 25; Mi 7, 17. Similar expressions are used in Semitic languages to portray extreme humiliation and disgrace.

3, 15: Her seed; he . . . his: refers principally to Jesus Christ, the Conqueror of Satan. The Hebrew words include also all faithful children of God in every age who share in Christ's victory by their opposition to Satan and his offspring, God's enemies. Crush . . . lie in wait for: though the same Hebrew verb is used in both instances, these two meanings are determined by the parts of the body injured (head, heel) and by the serpent's manner of attack.

This verse contains the first promise of a Redeemer for fallen mankind.

the sweat of your brow you shall eat bread, till you return to the ground, since out of it you were taken; for dust you are and unto dust you shall return."[f] [20] [And the man called his wife Eve* because she was the mother of all the living.]

Adam and Eve Expelled from the Garden. [21] The Lord God made garments of skin for Adam and his wife and clothed them. [22] And he said, "Indeed! the man has become like one of us, knowing good and evil!* And now perhaps he will put forth his hand and take also from the tree of life[g] and eat, and live forever!" [23] Therefore the Lord God put him out of the garden of Eden to till the ground from which he was taken. [24] *He drove out the man; and at the east of the garden of Eden he placed the Cherubim, and the flaming sword, which turned every way, to guard the way to the tree of life.

The Story of Cain and Abel. [1] The man knew Eve his wife, and she conceived and bore Cain, saying, "I have given birth to a man-child with the help of the Lord."* [2] Later, she bore his brother Abel. Now Abel was a keeper of flocks and Cain a tiller of the soil. [3] In the course of time Cain brought to the Lord an offering of the fruit of the ground. [4] [h] Abel also brought some of the firstlings of his flock with their fat portions. The Lord was pleased with Abel and his offerings; [5] but for Cain and his offering he had no regard. Cain was very angry and downcast. [6] The Lord said to Cain, "Why are you angry and why are you downcast? [7] If you do well, will you not be accepted; but if you do not do well, will not sin crouch at the door! Its desire is for you, but you must master it."

[8] Cain said to his brother Abel, "Let us go out into the field." Now when they were in the field, Cain turned against his brother Abel and slew him.[i] [9] Then the Lord said to Cain, "Where is your brother Abel?" He answered, "I do not know. Am I my brother's keeper?" [10] And the Lord said, "What have you done? The voice of your brother's blood cries to me from the ground.[j] [11] And now cursed are you in the soil which has opened its mouth to receive your brother's blood from your hand.[k] [12] When you till the soil, it shall not give its fruit to you; a fugitive and a wanderer shall you be on the earth." [13] Cain said to the Lord, "My punishment is too great to bear. [14] You are driving me today from the soil; and from your face I shall be hidden. And I shall be a fugitive and a wanderer on the earth, and whoever finds me will kill me."* [15] But the Lord said to him, "Not so! Whoever kills Cain shall be punished sevenfold." Then the Lord gave Cain a token* so that no one finding him should kill him. [16] And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord and dwelt in the land of Nod,* to the east of Eden.

[17] Cain knew his wife, and she conceived and bore Henoch; Cain was the founder of a city which he named after his son Henoch. [18] To Henoch was born Irad, and Irad became the father of Mahujael, and Mahujael the father of Mathusael, and Mathusael the father of Lamech. [19] Lamech took two wives, the one named Ada and the other Sella. [20] Ada bore Jabel; he was the forerunner* of those who dwell in tents and have flocks. His brother's name was Jubal; [21] he was the forerunner of all who play the harp and flute. [22] It was Sella who bore Thubalcain, the forerunner of those who forge vessels of bronze and iron. The sister of Thubalcain was Noema.

[23] Lamech said to his wives: "Ada and Sella, hear my voice, wives of Lamech, give ear to my speech: I kill a man for

3, 22: "Indeed! . . . and evil": spoken in irony.

3, 24: The Greek reads: "And he cast out Adam [or the man] and made him dwell [or settled him] east of the garden of Eden and placed the Cherubim and the flaming sword," etc.

4, 1: I have given birth . . . Lord: in Hebrew there is a play on words between the name Cain and the verb meaning to give birth. The verb also means "to create, to make." Hence possibly: "I have made a man [child] with [the help of] the Lord"—a natural expression of wonderment on the part of the mother of the first child ever born. The remark in Gn 3, 20 seems to belong here.

4, 14: Cain referred to his expulsion from the land where his parents and family were living under God's special protection.

4, 15: Gave Cain a token: i.e., a sign or pledge to reassure him. Others think that God put a mark on Cain or that a warning was given to people not to kill Cain. Thus: "appointed a sign for Cain." The nature of this sign is unknown.

4, 16: Nod: unknown, but the name recalls the Hebrew word Nad used in verse 14 to describe Cain as a wanderer.

4, 20: Forerunner: Hebrew has "father," not in the genealogical sense but only as the progenitor or first of that class of people who are described in verses 20-22.

Lamech seventy times sevenfold."

25 Adam knew his wife again and she bore a son and called him Seth,* saying, "God has given me another child in place of Abel whom Cain slew." 26 Seth also had a son whom he called Enos.

At that time men began to call on the name of the Lord.*

CHAPTER 5.

Adam's Descendants. 1 This is the record of the descendants of Adam. When God created man, he made him in the likeness of God.[m] 2 Male and female he created them, and he blessed them and called them Man when they were created. 3 When Adam was one hundred and thirty years old, he became the father of a son in his own likeness, after his image, and he called him Seth.[n] 4 Adam lived eight hundred years after the birth of Seth, and had other sons and daughters. 5 The whole lifetime of Adam was nine hundred and thirty years; then he died.

6 When Seth was one hundred and five years old, he became the father of Enos. 7 Seth lived eight hundred and seven years after the birth of Enos, and had other sons and daughters. 8 The whole lifetime of Seth was nine hundred and twelve years; then he died.

9 When Enos was ninety years old, he became the father of Cainan. 10 Enos lived eight hundred and fifteen years after the birth of Cainan, and had other sons and daughters. 11 The whole lifetime of Enos was nine hundred and five years; then he died.

12 When Cainan was seventy years old, he became the father of Malaleel. 13 Cainan lived eight hundred and forty years after the birth of Malaleel, and had other sons and daughters. 14 The whole lifetime of Cainan was nine hundred and ten years; then he died.

15 When Malaleel was sixty-five years old, he became the father of Jared. 16 Malaleel lived eight hundred and thirty years after the birth of Jared, and had other sons and daughters. 17 The whole lifetime of Malaleel was eight hundred and ninety-five years; then he died.

18 When Jared was one hundred and sixty-two years old, he became the father of Henoch. 19 Jared lived eight hundred years after the birth of Henoch, and had other sons and daughters. 20 The whole lifetime of Jared was nine hundred and sixty-two years; then he died.

21 When Henoch was sixty-five years old, he became the father of Mathusale. 22 Henoch walked with God three hundred years after the birth of Mathusale, and had other sons and daughters. 23 The whole lifetime of Henoch was three hundred and sixty-five years. 24 Henoch walked with God;[o] and he was seen no more because God took him.*

25 When Mathusale was one hundred and eighty-seven years old, he became the father of Lamech. 26 Mathusale lived seven hundred and eighty-two years after the birth of Lamech, and had other sons and daughters. 27 The whole lifetime of Mathusale was nine hundred and sixty-nine years; then he died.

28 When Lamech was one hundred and eighty-two years old, he became the father of a son, and called him Noe, saying, 29 *"This one shall bring us comfort from our work and from the toil of our hands in the ground which the Lord cursed."[p] 30 Lamech lived five hundred and ninety-five years after the birth of Noe, and had other sons and daughters. 31 The whole lifetime of Lamech was seven hundred and seventy-seven years; then he died.

32 When Noe was five hundred years old, he became the father of Sem, Ham and Japheth.[q]

4, 25: Seth . . . has given: the two words sound very much alike in Hebrew: Sheth—Shath.

4, 26: Call on . . . Lord: probably refers to organized worship of God. The expression, "to call on the name of the Lord" (Yahweh) is a fixed formula used regularly of the one true God. Cf Gn 21, 33; 3 Kgs 18, 24-26; Mi 4, 5.

5, 24: The case of Henoch was extraordinary. He did not die but was taken away by God while yet alive. Some think that he and Elias (4 Kgs 2, 11) will appear again before the end of the world.

5, 29: Noe, as his name implies, would bring comfort in some way to the human race.

6, 2: Sons of God: it seems that these were the descendants of Seth and Enos, who should have been close to God because of their virtuous ancestors (cf Gn 4, 25f); or it may refer to men in general. Daughters of men: these might be the immoral female descendants of Cain, or, as some hold, of Seth; or, as still others hold, women in general. Fair: beauty alone is not meant but exceptional physical characteristics, so that the women were able to bear children and to establish a race of giants. Cf verse 4.

of men were fair, and they took wives for themselves, as many as they wished.[r] 3 Then the Lord said, "My spirit* shall not remain in man forever, since he is flesh. His lifetime shall be one hundred and twenty years."

4 There were* giants[s] on the earth in those days, and also afterward, when the sons of God had relations with the daughters of men, who bore children to them. These were the mighty men who were of old, the men of renown.

5 When the Lord saw that the wickedness of man on the earth was great,[t] and that man's every thought and all the inclination of his heart were only evil, 6 he regretted that he had made man on the earth and was grieved to the heart. 7 Then the Lord said, "I will wipe from the earth man whom I have created—man and beast, crawling creature and bird of the air as well—for I regret that I made them." 8 But Noe found favor with the Lord.*

Warning of the Flood. 9 This is the story of Noe. Noe was a just man, blameless among the men of his day.[u] 10 He walked with God. Noe became the father of three sons, Sem, Ham and Japheth.

11 The earth was corrupt in the sight of God, and it was filled with violence.[v] 12 God saw that the earth was corrupt; for all men lived corruptly on the earth.[w] 13 And God said to Noe, "The end of all creatures of flesh is in my mind; the earth is full of violence because of them. I will destroy them with the earth.[x]

Description of the Ark. 14 "Make an ark of resin-wood;* make it tight with fibre and cover it with pitch inside and out.

15 "This is how you shall make it: the length of the ark three hundred cubits,* its width fifty cubits, and its height thirty cubits. 16 Make an opening* for the ark and finish it a cubit from the top. Set a door in the side of the ark; make it with a bottom, second and third level. 17 For in truth I will bring the flood upon the earth to destroy from under heaven all flesh in which there is the breath of life.[y] All that are on the earth shall die. 18 But I will establish my covenant with you;[z] you shall go into the ark, you, your sons, your wife and your sons' wives with you. 19 Of every sort of living creature of all flesh you shall bring two into the ark, to keep them alive with you; they shall be male and female. 20 Of birds according to their kind and of cattle according to their kind, of every kind of creature moving over the ground, two of each shall enter with you to be kept alive. 21 Take with you also every kind of food that can be eaten and store it up with you, and it shall serve as food for you and for them." 22 And Noe did all that God commanded him.

1 Then the Lord said to Noe, "Go into the ark, you and all your household; for you, in this generation, I have found just[a] in my sight. 2 Of all clean animals take with you seven pairs, a male and its mate; and of the unclean* animals two, a male and its mate; 3 of the birds of the air also, seven pairs, male and female, that they may raise up offspring over all the earth. 4 For after seven days I will send rain on the earth for forty days and forty nights, and I will wipe from the ground every living thing that I have made."

Noe and His Household Enter the Ark. 5 Noe did all that God commanded him. 6 He was six hundred years old when the flood came upon the earth. 7 Noe and his sons, his wife and his sons' wives went together into the ark[b] to escape the waters of the flood. 8 Of clean animals and the unclean, of birds and of every creature crawling on the ground, 9 pairs, male and female, entered the ark with Noe,[c] as God had commanded him. 10 And after the seven days the waters of the flood came upon the earth.

6, 3: My spirit: the breath of life referred to in Gn 2, 7. His lifetime . . . years: the meaning is doubtful. Many consider this period of time to be an opportunity given to men for repentance before the flood.

6, 4: Giants: men who were noted for their strength and cruelty.

6, 8f: Noe, like Enos, worshipped the one true God at a time when other men were idolaters. He probably succeeded in keeping the members of his own family free from the general corruption.

6, 14: Resin-wood: the meaning of the Hebrew word is uncertain; it may refer to the resinous trees such as the cypress. Tight with fibre: the allusion is to papyrus fibre used in ancient times for caulking a ship.

6, 15: The cubit was about a foot and a half.

6, 16: Opening: the real meaning is unknown. Most probably the reference is to an open space or latticework around the whole ark to admit light and air, and in some way to serve as a support for the roof.

7, 2: Clean . . . unclean: this distinction seems to indicate that people ate flesh meat before the flood. Cf Gn 6, 19f; 7, 8. 15f; 8, 20; Lv 11.

life, on the seventeenth day of the second month, on that very day all the fountains of the great deep burst forth, and the floodgates of the heavens were opened. 12 And rain fell on the earth forty days and forty nights. 13 On the very same day Noe and his sons, Sem, Ham and Japheth, Noe's wife and the three wives of Noe's sons entered the ark together: 14 they and every kind of wild animal, every kind of cattle, every kind of reptile crawling on the earth and every kind of bird, every kind of winged creature. 15 Pairs of all flesh in which there was the breath of life entered the ark with Noe. 16 And they that entered were male and female of all flesh as God had commanded him; and the Lord shut him in.

17 The flood continued forty days upon the earth. The waters increased and bore up the ark and it rose above the earth. 18 The waters rose higher and increased greatly on the earth; but the ark floated on the surface of the waters. 19 The waters rose higher and higher on the earth so that all the highest mountains everywhere under the heavens were covered.

20 The waters rose fifteen cubits above the mountains so that they were covered. 21 All flesh that moved on the earth died: birds, cattle, wild animals, all creatures that creep on the earth, and all men.[d] 22 All that were on the dry land in whose nostrils was the breath of life, died.[e] 23 And every living thing on the earth was wiped out, from man to beast, from reptile to bird of the air; they were wiped from the earth.[f] Only Noe and those with him in the ark were left. 24 The waters rose on the earth one hundred and fifty days.

1 Then God remembered Noe, and all the wild animals and all the cattle that were with him in the ark. And God sent a wind over the earth and the waters subsided. 2 The fountains of the deep and the floodgates of the heavens were closed. The rain from the heavens was withheld. 3 The waters steadily receded from the earth. They subsided at the end of one hundred and fifty days. 4 And in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, the ark rested on the mountains of Ararat.* 5 The waters continued to recede until the tenth month; on the first day of the tenth month the tops of the mountains appeared.

6 At the end of forty days, Noe opened the window which he had made in the ark, 7 and released a raven. It flew to and fro until the waters had dried off the earth. 8 Then he sent a dove to see if the waters had abated from the surface of the ground. 9 But the dove found no place to alight, so she returned to him in the ark; for the water covered the whole earth. He put forth his hand and caught her and drew her to him in the ark.

10 He waited another seven days, and again sent forth the dove from the ark. 11 The dove came back to him in the evening, and there in her mouth was a green olive leaf! So Noe knew that the waters had abated from the earth. 12 Then he waited another seven days, and sent forth the dove; but she did not return to him any more.

13 Now in the six hundred and first year,* in the first month, on the first day of the month, the waters were dried off the earth. Noe removed the covering of the ark and saw that the surface of the ground had dried. 14 In the second month, on the twenty-seventh day of the month, the earth was dry. 15 Then God said to Noe, 16 "Go out of the ark, you and your wife and your sons and your sons' wives with you. 17 [g] Bring out with you every living thing you have of all flesh: birds, cattle, and every creature crawling on the earth, that they may abound on the earth and be fruitful and multiply on the earth." 18 Noe went forth with his sons and his wife and his sons' wives. 19 All wild animals, all cattle, all birds and all creatures crawling on the earth: according to their kinds they went out of the ark.

Noe's Sacrifice after the Flood. 20 Then Noe built an altar* to the Lord; he took of every clean animal and of every clean bird, and offered holocausts on the altar. 21 When the Lord smelled the sweet odor he said to himself,* "I will never again curse the ground on account of man, for the inclination of man's heart is evil from

CHAPTER 9.

Noe Blessed; Blood Forbidden. 1 God blessed Noe and his sons and said to them, "Be fruitful and multiply, and fill the earth.[j] 2 The fear and dread of you shall be upon all the wild animals of the earth and upon every bird of the air, upon all creatures that crawl on the ground, and all the fish of the sea; into your power they are delivered. 3 Every creature that moves and lives shall be food for you; as I gave you the green plants, I give you everything. 4 But flesh with its life—that is, its blood*—you shall not eat.[k] 5 Surely I will require an account of your life's blood; from every beast I will require it, and from man; from every man I will require the life of his fellow.[l] 6 Whoever sheds the blood of man, by man shall his blood be shed; for in the image of God man was made.[m] 7 But you, be fruitful and multiply; abound on the earth and subdue it."[n]

The Covenant with Noe. 8 Then God said to Noe and to his sons with him, 9 "I will establish my covenant with you,[o] and with your descendants after you; 10 and with every living creature that is with you, the birds, the cattle, and every wild animal with you; all that came out of the ark, even the wild animals. I establish my covenant with you. 11 Never again shall all flesh be destroyed by the waters of the flood;* never again shall there be a flood to destroy the earth."[p] 12 And God said, "This is the token of the covenant; I set it between me and you and every living creature that is with you, for all generations to come. 13 I will set my bow[q] in the clouds and it shall be a token of the covenant between me and the earth.* 14 When I bring clouds over the earth, and the bow appears in the clouds, 15 I will remember my covenant which is between me and you and every living creature of all flesh. Never again shall the waters become a flood to destroy all flesh.[r] 16 When the bow is in the clouds, I will look upon it and recall the perpetual covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is on the earth." 17 And God said to Noe, "This is the token of the covenant which I establish between me and all flesh that is on the earth."

The Sons of Noe. 18 The sons of Noe who went out of the ark were Sem, Ham and Japheth.[s] [Ham is the father of Chanaan.] 19 These three were the sons of Noe and from these the whole earth was peopled.* 20 Now Noe began to till the ground, and he planted a vineyard. 21 When he drank of the wine, he became drunk and lay naked in his tent. 22 Ham [the father of Chanaan] saw his father's nakedness and told his two brothers outside.* 23 But Sem and Japheth took a robe, and laying it upon their shoulders, went backward and covered their father's nakedness; as their faces were turned away, they did not see their father's nakedness. 24 When Noe awoke from his drunkenness and learned what his youngest son had done to him, 25 he said: "Cursed be Chanaan; meanest of slaves shall he be to his brethren."[t] 26 Then he said: "Blessed be the Lord, the God of Sem; let Chanaan be his slave.* 27 May God expand Japheth;* let him dwell in the tents of Sem; let Chanaan be his slave."

28 Noe lived three hundred and fifty years after the flood. 29 The whole lifetime of Noe was nine hundred and fifty years; then he died.

9, 4: Blood was considered by the ancients the sign of life. Since God reserves the disposition of life to Himself, man was forbidden to eat meat with blood in it. Moreover, dominion over human life belongs to God. Therefore, He demands an accounting when human life is unjustly taken.

9, 11: God does not promise that floods will not come but declares that He will never again send the same kind of flood because of sin. Here He makes the covenant which He promised in Gn 6, 18.

9, 13: Henceforth, the rainbow, a natural phenomenon even before this event, is to be a pledge that God will keep His promise never again to destroy the earth by a flood.

9, 19: The author has in mind, not the entire earth, but only that part inhabited by peoples related to the descendants of the patriarchs.

9, 22: It seems that the real crime was committed by Chanaan, for he is the one cursed by Noe (v 25). It may be that Ham was partly responsible, in not having punished him.

9, 26: Noe prays that Sem will always acknowledge and worship the one true God; thus God will be praised and honored.

9, 27: Noe prays that Japheth will enjoy earthly blessings and, through friendship with Sem, spiritual blessings too. In the Hebrew there is a resemblance between the word for "expand" and the name "Japheth."

CHAPTER 10.

1 These are the descendants of the sons of Noe, Sem, Ham and Japheth; sons were born to them after the flood.
2 The descendants* of Japheth u are Gomer, Magog, Madai, Javan, Thubal, Mosoch and Thiras. 3 The descendants of Gomer are Aschenez, Riphath and Thogorma. 4 The descendants of Javan are Elisa, Tharsis, Chetthim and Rodanim. 5
From these sprang the island-peoples.
These are the descendants of Japheth in their countries, according to their languages and their families, and by their nations.*

6 The descendants of Ham are Chus, Mesraim, Phut and Chanaan. 7 The descendants of Chus are Saba, Hevila, Sabatha, Regma and Sabathacha. The descendants of Regma are Saba and Dedan.
8 Chus was the father of Nemrod; he was the first to be a conqueror on the earth.
9 He was a mighty hunter before the Lord.* Hence the saying, "Like Nemrod,
a mighty hunter before the Lord."

Nemrod the Empire Builder. 10 The beginning of his kingdom was Babylon, Arach and Acchad, all of them in the land of Sennaar. 11 From that region Assur went forth and built Nineve and Rohoboth-Ir and Chale and Resen* 12 between Nineve and Chale [that is, the great city].

13 v Mesraim became the father of Ludim, Anamim, Laabim, Nephthuhim, 14
Phethrusim, Chasluhim and Caphthorim
– from whom the Philistines sprang. 15 Chanaan became the father of Sidon his first-born, and Heth, 16 and the Jebusite,
the Amorrite, the Gergesite, 17 the Hevite,
the Aracite, the Sinite, 18 the Aradite, the Samarite and the Hamathite. Afterward, the families of the Chanaanites spread abroad. 19 And the border of the Cha-naanite extended from Sidon, in the direction of Gerara, as far as Gaza; in the direction of Sodom, Gomorra, Adama and Seboim as far as Lesa. 20 These are the descendants of Ham according to their families and their languages, in their countries, by their nations.

21 To Sem also, the father of all the descendants of Eber, the elder brother of Japheth, children were born. 22 w The descendants of Sem were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud and Aram. 23 The descendants of Aram were Us, Hul, Gether and Mes. 24 Arphachsad became the father of Sale; and Sale became the father of Eber. 25 Two sons were born to Eber; the one was Phaleg–for in his time the world was divided–and his brother was Jectan.
26 Jectan became the father of Elmodad, Saleph, Hasarmoth, Jare, 27 Adoram,
Uzal, Decla, 28 Ebal, Abimael, Saba, 29
Ophir, Hevila and Jobab; all these were the sons of Jectan. 30 Their settlements extended from Messa in the direction of Sephar, to the mountains of the East.
31 These are the descendants of Sem according to their families and their languages, in their countries, by their nations.

32 These are the families of the sons of Noe according to their descent in their nations. From these the nations branched out over the earth after the flood.

CHAPTER 11.

The Tower of Babel. 1 The whole earth used the same language and the same speech.* 2 While men were migrating eastward, they discovered a valley in the land of Sennaar* and settled there. 3 They said to one another, "Come, let us make bricks and bake them." They used bricks for stone and bitumen* for mortar. 4 Then they said, "Let us build ourselves a city
and a tower with its top in the heavens;
let us make a name for ourselves lest we be scattered all over the earth." 5 The Lord came down* to see the city and the tower which men had built. 6 And the Lord said, "Truly, they are one people and they all have the same language. This

10, 2: Descendants: used here instead of "sons" because in many verses of this chapter the proper names seem to be names of peoples and of cities, rather than of individuals.

10, 5: Here the descendants of Japheth are divided according to languages, families and territories.

10, 9: Mighty hunter before the Lord: that is, he enjoyed a great reputation as a hunter.

10, 11: Rohoboth-Ir . . . Resen: though unknown as names of cities in Assyria, these names are descriptive, representing a play on words. Rohoboth-Ir, disfigured in the text, is explained by the gloss at the end of v 12 as "the great city." Resen means "fortress."

11, 1-9: It is certain that all living beings were not at the tower of Babel. The story cannot mean that this was the only cause of the diversity of languages. Rather, it shows God's supremacy over man and the futility of human attempts to create and maintain unity by material means alone, without God.

11, 2: Sennaar: that is, Babylonia. Cf Gn 10, 10.

11, 3: Bitumen: the black, tarry pitch of the soil which was used for cement.

is the beginning of what they will do. Hereafter they will not be restrained from anything which they determine to do. 7 Let us go down, and there confuse their language so that they will not understand one another's speech." 8 So the Lord scattered them from that place all over the earth; and they stopped building the city. 9 For this reason it was called Babel, because there the Lord confused the speech of all the earth. From there the Lord scattered them all over the earth.

Sem's Descendants. 10 These are the descendants of Sem.[x] When Sem was one hundred years old he became the father of Arphachsad, two years after the flood. 11 Sem lived five hundred years after the birth of Arphachsad, and had other sons and daughters. 12 When Arphachsad* was thirty-five years old he became the father of Sale. 13 Arphachsad lived four hundred and three years after the birth of Sale, and had other sons and daughters. 14 When Sale was thirty years old he became the father of Eber. 15 Sale lived four hundred and three years after the birth of Eber, and had other sons and daughters. 16 When Eber was thirty-four years old he became the father of Phaleg. 17 Eber lived four hundred and thirty years after the birth of Phaleg, and had other sons and daughters. 18 When Phaleg[y] was thirty years old he became the father of Reu. 19 Phaleg lived two hundred and nine years after the birth of Reu, and had other sons and daughters. 20 When Reu[z] was thirty-two years old he became the father of Sarug. 21 Reu lived two hundred and seven years after the birth of Sarug, and had other sons and daughters. 22 When Sarug was thirty years old he became the father of Nahor. 23 Sarug lived two hundred years after the birth of Nahor, and had other sons and daughters. 24 When Nahor was twenty-nine years old he became the father of Thare. 25 Nahor lived one hundred and nineteen years after the birth of Thare, and had other sons and daughters. 26 When Thare[a] was seventy years old he became the father of Abram, Nahor and Aran.

II: THE PATRIARCH ABRAHAM

Thare. 27 These are the descendants of Thare. Thare was the father of Abram, Nahor and Aran. 28 Aran became the father of Lot. Aran died before his father Thare in the land of his birth, in Ur of the Chaldees. 29 Abram and Nahor married. Abram's wife was Sarai[b] and Nahor's wife was Melcha, the daughter of Aran, father of Melcha and Jescha.* 30 Now Sarai was barren; she had no children. 31 Thare took his son Abram and his grandson Lot, the son of Aran, and his daughter-in-law Sarai, the wife of his son Abram, and led them from Ur of the Chaldees toward the land of Chanaan;[c] but when they reached Haran, they settled there. 32 The lifetime of Thare was two hundred and five years; and he died in Haran.

CHAPTER 12.

Abram's Call and First Blessing. 1 The Lord said to Abram: "Leave your country, your kinsfolk and your father's house, for the land which I will show you;[d] 2 I will make a great nation of you.[e] I will bless you, and make your name great, so that you shall be a blessing. 3 *I will bless them that bless you, and curse them that curse you. In you shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."[f]

4 Abram went away as the Lord had commanded him, and Lot went with him.[g] Abram was seventy-five years old when he left Haran. 5 Abram took Sarai his wife, Lot his brother's son, all the property they had acquired and the persons* they had got in Haran; and they departed for the land of Chanaan.[h] When they came to the land of Chanaan, 6 Abram passed through the land to the sacred place* at Sichem, near the terebinth of More. At that time the Chanaanite was in the land.

7 The Lord appeared to Abram, and said, "To your descendants I will give this land."[i] So Abram built an altar there to the Lord, who had appeared to him. 8 He moved from there to the mountain region east of Bethel, and pitched his tent with Bethel to the west and Ai to the east. He built an altar there to the Lord and called on the name of the Lord. 9 Then Abram journeyed on toward the Negeb.*

Abram in Egypt during a Famine. 10 Now there was a famine[j] in the land and Abram went down to Egypt where he lived as a stranger; for the famine in the land was severe. 11 When he was about to enter Egypt, he said to Sarai his wife, "I know that you are a woman beautiful to behold. 12 When the Egyptians see you, they will say, 'She is his wife'; then they will kill me, but will spare you. 13 Therefore, say you are my sister[k] so that I may be treated well on your account, and my life may be spared for your sake." 14 When Abram came to Egypt, the Egyptians saw that the woman was very beautiful. 15 Pharao's princes saw her and they praised her to Pharao. And the woman was taken to Pharao's house. 16 He treated Abram well on her account so that he received flocks, herds, he-asses, men-servants, maid-servants, she-asses and camels.

17 But the Lord struck Pharao and his household with great plagues because of Sarai, Abram's wife.[l] 18 Then Pharao summoned Abram and said, "Why have you done this to me? Why did you not tell me she was your wife? 19 Why did you say she was your sister and let me marry her? Here now is your wife; take her and go." 20 Then Pharao gave his men orders concerning Abram; and they sent him away with his wife and all that belonged to him.

CHAPTER 13.

Abram and Lot Part. 1 Abram went up from Egypt to the Negeb,* he and his wife and all that belonged to him, and Lot with him.[m] 2 Now Abram was very rich in cattle, silver and gold.[n] 3 He journeyed by stages from the Negeb to Bethel[o] to the place where his tent had been before, between Bethel and Ai. 4 At the place where the altar was which he had previously built there,[p] Abram called on the name of the Lord.

5 Lot, who went with Abram, also had flocks, herds and tents, 6 so that the land would not support them dwelling together; for their possessions were so great that they could not dwell together. 7 And there was strife between the herdsmen of Abram's cattle and the herdsmen of Lot's cattle. At that time the Chanaanite and the Pherezite dwelt in the land. 8 Then Abram said to Lot, "Let there be no strife between you and me, nor between my herdsmen and your herdsmen; for we are kinsmen. 9 Does not the whole land lie before you? Withdraw from me. If you go to the left, I will go to the right; or if you take the right, then I will go to the left." 10 Then Lot looked about and saw that the whole region of the Jordan toward Segor was well-watered – this was before the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorra – like the Lord's garden or like Egypt. 11 So Lot chose for himself the whole region of the Jordan and journeyed eastward. Thus they separated from each other. 12 Abram dwelt in the land of Chanaan, while Lot dwelt in the cities of the Jordan region, pitching his tent near Sodom. 13 Now the men of Sodom were wicked,[q] and sinned exceedingly against the Lord.

Abram Moves to Hebron. 14 The Lord said to Abram, after Lot had parted from him, "Raise your eyes, and from where you are now look to the north and the south and the east and the west.[r] 15 All the land which you see I will give to you and your posterity forever.[s] 16 I will make your posterity as the dust of the earth; if anyone can count the grains of dust, your posterity can also be counted.[t] 17 Arise, walk the length and breadth of the land, for to you I will give it." 18 Abram moved his tent and came to dwell by the terebinths of Mamre which are at Hebron; and he built an altar there to the Lord.

Expedition of the Four Kings. 1 In the time of Amraphel king of Sennaar, Arioch king of Ellasar, Chodorlahomor king of Elam, and Thadal king of Goyyim, 2 these kings waged war against Bara king of Sodom, Bersa king of Gomorra, Sennaab king of Adama, Semeber king of Seboim, and the king of Bala – that is, Segor. 3 These other kings formed an alliance in the valley of Siddim – that is, the Salt Sea. 4 Twelve years they had been subject to Chodorlahomor, but in the thirteenth year they rebelled. 5 In the fourteenth year came Chodorlahomor and the kings with him. They defeated the Raphaim in Astharothcarnaim, the Zuzim in Ham, the Emim in Save-cariathaim, 6 the Horrites[u] in the mountains of Seir, as far as El-Pharan, close by the desert. 7 Then they turned back and came to En-mesphat–that is, Cades–and subdued all the country of the Amalecites, and also the Amorrites, who dwelt in Hasason-thamar. 8 Then the king of Sodom and the king of Gomorra, the king of Adama, the king of Seboim and the king of Bala–that is, Segor–went out, and they drew up in battle against them in the valley of Siddim: 9 against Chodorlahomor king of Elam, Thadal king of Goyyim, Amraphel king of Sennaar, and Arioch king of Ellasar, four kings against five. 10 Now the valley of Siddim was full of bitumen pits; and as the kings of Sodom and Gomorra fled, some fell there, but the rest fled to the mountain. 11 The victors took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorra and all their provisions, and went their way; 12 they also took Lot, Abram's nephew, and his goods, for he had been living in Sodom.[v] 13 Then came a fugitive and reported to Abram the Hebrew, who was living near the terebinths of Mamre the Amorrite, a kinsman of Eschol and Aner; these were allies of Abram.

Abram Pursues and Defeats the Kings. 14 When Abram heard that his kinsman had been taken prisoner, he called out three hundred and eighteen of his trained men, born in his house, and went in pursuit as far as Dan. 15 He and his servants formed parties against them by night, defeated them and pursued them as far as Hoba, north of Damascus. 16 He recovered all the goods; and his kinsman Lot and his goods he also recovered, besides the women and the people. 17 When Abram returned from the defeat of Chodorlahomor and the kings with him, the king of Sodom went out to meet Abram in the valley of Save–that is, in the king's valley.

Melchisedec Blesses Abram. 18 Then Melchisedec,[w] the king of Salem, brought out bread and wine; for he was a priest* of the Most High God. He blessed Abram and said, 19 "Blessed be Abram by the Most High God, creator of heaven and earth. 20 Blessed be the Most High God, who has delivered your enemies into your hand." Then Abram gave him a tenth of everything.

21 The king of Sodom said to Abram, "Give me the people, keep the goods for yourself." 22 But Abram answered him, "I raise my hand* to the Lord God Most High, creator of heaven and earth, 23 that I will not take thread or sandal-strap or anything that is yours, lest you should say, 'I have made Abram rich'; 24 nothing but what the young men have eaten, and the share of those who accompanied me. Let Aner, Eschol and Mamre take their share."

1 After these things the word of the Lord came to Abram in a vision, "Fear not, Abram, I am your shield; your reward shall be very great." 2 And Abram said, "O Lord God, what will you give me? I am childless, and the steward of my house, Eliezer, is my heir." 3 Abram also said, "To me you have given no descendants; the slave born in my house will be my heir." 4 But the word of the Lord came to him, "He shall not be your heir;[x] your heir shall be one of your own flesh." 5 Then the Lord led him outside and said, "Look at the heavens and, if you can, count the stars." And he said to him, "So shall your posterity be."[y] 6 Abram believed the Lord,* who credited the act to him as justice.[z] 7 He said to him, "I am the Lord, who brought you from Ur in Chaldea, to give you this land to possess."[a] 8 But he said, "O Lord God, how am I to know that I shall possess it?"

years old, a turtledove and a young pigeon." 10 He brought him all these and cut them in two, and laid each half opposite the other; but the birds he did not cut in two.* 11 Birds of prey swooped down on the carcasses, but Abram drove them off. 12 As the sun was setting, Abram fell into a deep sleep; and terror came upon him, a great darkness.* 13 The Lord said to Abram, "Know for certain that your posterity will be strangers in a land not their own; they shall be subjected to slavery and shall be oppressed four hundred years.[b] 14 But I will judge that nation which they shall serve, and afterward they shall go free with great possessions.[c] 15 And you shall go to your fathers in peace, and be buried at a good old age. 16 In the fourth generation they shall return here; for the wickedness of the Amorrites[d] is not yet complete."

17 Now when the sun had set and it was dark, a smoking oven and a fiery torch* passed between the pieces. 18 On that day the Lord made a covenant with Abram, saying, "To your posterity I will give this land, from the river of Egypt to the Great River [the Euphrates],[e] 19 the land of the Cinites, Cenezites, Cedmonites, 20 Hethites, Pherezites, Raphaim, Amorrites, Chanaanites, Gergesites and Jebusites."

CHAPTER 16.

Birth of Ismael. 1 Sarai, Abram's wife, had borne him no children. She had an Egyptian maid named Agar. 2 Sarai said to Abram, "The Lord has kept me from bearing; go in to my maid; perhaps I shall get children through her."[f] Abram listened to Sarai. 3 After Abram had lived ten years in the land of Chanaan, Sarai his wife took Agar, her Egyptian maid, and gave her to Abram, her husband, to be his wife. 4 And he went in to Agar, and she conceived. When she was aware that she had conceived, she looked with disdain on her mistress. 5 Then Sarai said to Abram, "The injury done me is your fault! I gave my maid to your embrace and when she was aware that she had conceived she looked on me with disdain. The Lord judge between you and me!" 6 Abram answered Sarai, "Your maid is in your power; do to her what seems good to you." Then Sarai humiliated her, and she fled from her. 7 Afterward an angel of the Lord found her beside a spring of water in the desert, the spring on the road to Sur. 8 He said, "Agar, maid of Sarai, where have you come from and where are you going?" She answered, "I am fleeing from my mistress Sarai." 9 The angel of the Lord said to her, "Return to your mistress and submit to her authority." 10 The angel of the Lord added, "I will so multiply your posterity that it shall be too many to count."[g] 11 The angel of the Lord also said to her: "You are with child, and shall bear a son; you shall call him Ismael,* because the Lord has heard of your humiliation. 12 He shall be a wild ass of a man,[h] his hand against everyone, and everyone's hand against him; he shall dwell apart, opposing all his kinsmen." 13 She named the Lord, who spoke to her: "You are the God of vision"; for she said, "Have I really seen God and remained alive after my vision?" 14 Therefore the well was called Beer-lahai-roi.* It is between Cades and Barad.

15 So Agar bore Abram a son;[i] and Abram called his son whom Agar bore, Ismael. 16 Abram was eighty-six years old when Agar bore him Ismael.

Covenant of Circumcision. 1 When Abram was ninety-nine years old, the Lord appeared to him and said, "I am God the Almighty.[j] Walk in my presence* and be perfect. 2 I will make my covenant between you and me, and will multiply you exceedingly."[k] 3 Abram fell prostrate, and God spoke to him thus, 4 "This is my covenant with you: You shall be the father of a multitude of nations;[l] 5 you shall no longer be called Abram,[m] but your name shall be Abraham;* for I will make you the father of a multitude of nations. 6 I will make you exceedingly fruitful; I will make nations of you, and kings shall descend from you. 7 I will establish my covenant between you and me and your descendants after you throughout their generations, as a perpetual covenant, that I may be a God to you and to your descendants after you.[n] 8 I will give you and your descendants after you

this land in which you are immigrants,
all the land of Chanaan as a perpetual possession;[o] and I will be their God."

9 God also said to Abraham, "You shall keep my covenant, you and your descendants after you throughout their generations. 10 This is my covenant which you shall keep, between you and me and your descendants after you: Every male among you shall be circumcised.[p] 11 You shall circumcise the flesh of your fore-skin; it shall be a token of the covenant between you and me.[q] 12 He that is eight days old among you shall be circumcised,[r]
every male throughout your generations,
including the slave born in your house,
or bought with money from any foreigner, not of your own race. 13 Both he that is born in your house and he that is bought with your money must be circumcised. My covenant shall be in your flesh as a perpetual covenant. 14 If any male have not the flesh of his foreskin circumcised, that person shall be cut off from his people; he has broken my covenant."

Isaac's Birth Promised. 15 God said to Abraham, "Sarai your wife you shall not call Sarai but Sara.* 16 I will bless her,
and will also give you a son by her;* yes,
I will bless her, and she shall be the mother of nations; kings of peoples shall descend from her."[s] 17 And as Abraham fell prostrate, he laughed and said to himself, "Shall a son be born to one who is a hundred years old? Shall Sara who is ninety bear a child?"[t] 18 Then Abraham said to God, "Oh, that Ismael may live in your favor!" 19 God answered, "No,
but Sara your wife shall bear you a son,[u]
and you shall call him Isaac.* I will establish my covenant with him as a perpetual covenant for his descendants after him.

20 "As for Ismael, I have heard you. I will bless him and make him fruitful and multiply him exceedingly.[v] He shall become the father of twelve princes, and I will make him a great nation. 21 But my covenant I will establish with Isaac, whom Sara shall bear to you at this time next year."[w] 22 And when he had finished talking with him, God left Abraham.

Abraham and his Household Circumcised. 23 Then Abraham took his son Ismael, and all who were born in his house, and all who had been bought with his money, every male in his household, and he circumcised the flesh of their foreskins
on that very day, as God had commanded him. 24 Abraham was ninety-nine years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin.[x] 25 Ismael his son was thirteen years old when he was circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin. 26 That very day Abraham and his son Ismael were circumcised. 27 All the male members of his household, including the slaves
born in his house or bought with money from a foreigner, were circumcised with him.

CHAPTER 18.

Isaac's Birth Announced. 1 Now the Lord appeared to him by the terebinths of Mamre as he sat at the entrance of his tent in the heat of the day. 2 And when he raised his eyes he saw three men standing at a distance from him. As soon as he saw them, he ran from the entrance of the tent door to meet them, and bowed down to the earth,[y] 3 and said, "My Lord,
if I find favor with you, do not pass by your servant. 4 Let a little water be brought that you may wash your feet; and then rest yourselves under the tree. 5
Since you have come to your servant,
I will bring you a little food that you may refresh yourselves; then you may go on."* They replied, "Do as you have said."

6 Then Abraham hastened into the tent
to Sara and said, "Quick, three measures of fine flour! Knead it, and make loaves."
7 And he ran to the herd, picked out a good, tender bullock, and gave it to the servant who hastened to prepare it. 8 Then he took curds and milk and the bullock which had been prepared, and set it before them; and he stood by them under the tree while they ate. 9 They said to him, "Where is Sara your wife?"* He answered, "She is in the tent." 10 *"I will surely return to you at this time next year," he said, "and Sara your wife shall have a son."[z] Sara was listening inside the entrance of the tent. 11 Now Abraham and Sara were old, advanced in years;[a] and Sara no longer had periods as is customary with women. 12 So Sara laughed to herself and said, "Now that I am grown old and my husband is old, shall I have pleasure?" 13 The Lord said to Abraham, "Why did Sara laugh, saying, 'Shall I indeed bear a child, though I am old?' 14 Is anything too wonderful for the Lord?[b] At this time next year I will return to you, and Sara shall have a son." 15 But Sara denied it, saying, "I did not laugh"; for she was afraid. But he said, "You did laugh."

Ruin of Sodom and Gomorra Foretold. 16 Then the men set out from there and looked toward Sodom; and Abraham walked with them to escort them on their way. 17 The Lord said, "Can I keep from Abraham what I am about to do? 18 For Abraham shall surely become a great and powerful nation,[c] and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him. 19 Indeed, I have chosen him, that he may charge his sons and his household after him to observe the way of the Lord, doing what is good and right, so that the Lord may fulfill for Abraham what he has promised him." 20 Then the Lord said, "Because the outcry against Sodom and Gomorra is great,[d] and their sin is very grave, 21 I will go down to see whether they have done all that the outcry which has come to me indicates; if not, I will know." 22 So they turned from there, and went toward Sodom, while Abraham remained standing in the presence of the Lord.*

23 Abraham drew near and said, "Will you destroy the good with the wicked? 24 If there be fifty just men in the city, will you then destroy the place and not spare it for the sake of the fifty just men within it? 25 Far be it from you to do such a thing as kill the just with the wicked, treating just and wicked alike! Far be it from you![e] Shall not the judge of all the earth act justly?" 26 And the Lord said, "If I find that there are fifty just men in the city, I will spare the whole place for their sake." 27 Abraham answered, "I have ventured to speak to the Lord though I am but dust and ashes. 28 What if there be five less than fifty just men? Will you destroy the whole city on account of five?" He said, "I will not destroy it if I find forty-five there." 29 And Abraham spoke to him again, "What if forty be found there?" He said, "I will not do it for the sake of the forty." 30 Then he said, "O Lord, be not angry if I speak; what if thirty be found there?" He answered, "I will not do it if I find thirty there." 31 Abraham said, "I have ventured to speak to the Lord, what if twenty be found there?" And he said, "I will not destroy it for the sake of the twenty." 32 Abraham said again, "O Lord, be not angry if I speak once more; what if ten be found there?" He said, "I will not destroy it for the sake of the ten." 33 The Lord departed after he had finished speaking to Abraham; and Abraham returned to his place.

Sinfulness of the Men of Sodom. 1 Now the two angels came to Sodom in the evening, while Lot was sitting at the gate of Sodom. When Lot saw them, he rose to meet them, and falling prostrate to the earth, 2 he said, "Come aside, my lords, into the house of your servant, stay overnight and bathe your feet; then you may arise early, and go on your way."[f] They said, "No, we shall pass the night in the public square." 3 But he urged them so strongly that they turned aside and entered his house; and he prepared a meal for them, and baked unleavened bread, and they ate. 4 They had not yet retired when the townsmen, the men of Sodom, all the people from every quarter, both young and old, surrounded the house, 5 and called Lot, and said to him, *"Where are the men who came to your house tonight? Bring them out that we may abuse them." [g] 6 Lot went out to the men, and shut the door behind him, 7 and said, "I entreat you, brethren, do not act wickedly. 8 I have two daughters who have not known man. Let me bring them out to you; do as you please with them. Only do nothing to these men, for they have come under the shelter of my roof." 9 But they said, "Stand back! This fellow came in as a stranger, and he would play the judge! Why, we will treat you worse than we will them!" Then they pressed hard against Lot, and drew near to break in the door.[h] 10 But the visitors reached out their hands, and drew Lot back into the house with them, and closed the door. 11 Those who were at the door of the house they struck with blindness, from the least to the greatest, so that they could not find the door.

Instructions to Lot. 12 Then they said to Lot, "Have you anyone else here? Sons-in-law, sons, daughters, or anyone you have in the city, take them out of the place; [i] 13 for we are about to destroy this place, because the outcry against them has become so great before the Lord that he sent us to destroy it." 14 Lot went out therefore to speak to his intended sons-in-law, and said, "Come, leave this place; for the Lord shall destroy the city." But they thought he was jesting.

15 When morning came, the angels urged Lot on, saying, "Come, take your wife and your two daughters here, lest you perish in the punishment of the city." 16 And as he lingered the visitors took him, his wife and his two daughters by the hand, through the mercy of the Lord toward him, and led him forth, and set him outside the city. 17 When they had brought them forth, they said, "Flee for your life; do not look behind you nor stop anywhere in the valley; flee to the hills, lest you perish." [i] 18 But Lot said to them, "No, my lords; 19 surely, your servant has found favor with you, and great is the mercy which you have shown me in saving my life. I cannot flee to the hills, lest the disaster overtake me and I die. 20 But there is a city nearby to which I can flee; it is a little one. Let me save myself there; it is a little one, is it not? So let me live." 21 He said to him, "I grant you this favor also; I will not destroy the city of which you speak. 22 Make haste, seek safety there; [k] for I can do nothing till you arrive there." *Therefore the city was called Segor.

Destruction of Sodom and Gomorra. 23 The sun had risen on the earth when Lot entered Segor. 24 The Lord poured down on Sodom and Gomorra [l] sulphur and fire from the Lord out of heaven. 25 He overthrew those cities and the whole region, all the inhabitants of the cities and the plants of the soil.[m]

26 But his wife who was behind him looked back, and became a pillar of salt.[n]

27 Early in the morning Abraham came to the place where he had stood before the Lord. 28 He looked toward Sodom and Gomorra and toward the whole region and saw smoke rising from the earth as though from a furnace.

29 While God destroyed the cities of the region, he remembered Abraham, and led Lot away from the catastrophe, when the cities where Lot lived were overthrown.

Origin of the Moabites and Ammonites. 30 Lot went up from Segor, and lived in the hills with his two daughters; for he was afraid to live in Segor. He and his daughters lived in a cave. 31 Then the elder said to the younger, "Our father is old, and there is no man in the land to marry us as is the custom everywhere. 32 Let us give our father wine to drink, then lie with him, that we may have offspring by our father." 33 So they gave their father wine to drink that night, and the elder went in, and lay with her father; but he did not know of it when she lay down, or when she arose. 34 The next day the elder said to the younger, "Last night I lay with my father. Let us give him wine to drink tonight also; then you go in, lie with him that we may have offspring by our father." 35 So they gave their father wine to drink that night also, and the younger went and lay with him; but he did not know of it when she lay down, or when she arose. 36 Thus both daughters of Lot were with child by their

CHAPTER 20.

Abraham in Gerara. 1 Abraham journeyed from there toward the land of the Negeb, and dwelt between Cades and Sur. While he lived in Gerara, 2 Abraham said of Sara his wife, "She is my sister." So Abimelech, king of Gerara, sent and took Sara. 3 But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night and said to him, "You shall die because of the woman you have taken; for she is married." 4 Now Abimelech had not approached her; so he said, "Lord, will you slay the innocent? [q] 5 Did not he himself say to me, 'She is my sister'? and did not she herself say, 'He is my brother'? With a sincere heart and with clean hands I have done this." 6 Then God said to him in the dream, "I know that you have done this with a sincere heart. It was I who kept you from sinning against me; therefore I did not allow you to touch her. 7 Therefore, restore the man's wife; since he is a prophet he will pray for you that you may live. But if you do not restore her, know that you will surely die, you and all that are yours." 8 So Abimelech rose early in the morning, and calling his servants, told them all these things. And the men were very much afraid.

9 Abimelech called Abraham, and said to him, "What have you done to us? And how have I offended you that you should bring down on me and my kingdom a great sin? No one should be treated as you have treated me." 10 Abimelech also said to Abraham, "What had you in mind in doing this thing?" 11 Abraham answered, "I thought, 'Surely there is no fear of God in this place; and they will kill me on account of my wife!' 12 Besides, she is indeed my sister, my father's daughter but not my mother's; and she became my wife. 13 When God brought me out of my father's house, I said to her, 'This favor you must do for me; in every place to which we shall go, say of me that I am your brother.' " [r]

14 Then Abimelech took flocks and herds and cattle, men and women servants, and gave them to Abraham, and restored Sara his wife to him, 15 and said, "My land is before you; settle wherever it pleases you." 16 To Sara he said, *"I am giving your brother a thousand pieces of silver; it is your compensation in the eyes of all who are with you; and before all men you are vindicated." 17 Then Abraham prayed to God and God cured Abimelech and his wife and maidservants, and they bore children. 18 For the Lord had closed the wombs of Abimelech's household because of Sara, the wife of Abraham.

The Birth and Circumcision of Isaac. 1 The Lord looked after Sara as he had said; the Lord did to Sara as he had promised. [s] 2 Sara conceived and bore Abraham a son in his old age at the time which God had promised. [t] 3 And Abraham called the son whom Sara bore him, Isaac. [u] 4 When his son Isaac was eight days old, Abraham circumcised him as God had commanded him. [v] 5 Abraham was one hundred years old when his son Isaac was born to him. 6 Sara said, "God has given me cause for laughter, and whoever hears of it will laugh with me." 7 Again she said, "Who would have said to Abraham that Sara would nurse children? Yet I bore him a son in his old age."

8 The child grew and was weaned; and Abraham gave a great feast on the day of his weaning.

Ismael and Agar Expelled. 9 Sara saw the son of Agar the Egyptian, whom she bore to Abraham, playing with* her son Isaac. 10 She said to Abraham, "Cast out this slave-girl with her son; for the son of this slave-girl shall not be heir with my son Isaac." [w] 11 The matter was very distressing to Abraham on account of his son. 12 But God said to Abraham, "Be not distressed on account of the boy and your slave-girl; heed all that Sara says to you; for through Isaac shall your descendants be called. the son of the slave-girl a great nation because he is your offspring."

14 Abraham rose early in the morning, took bread and a bottle of water, and gave them to Agar, placing them on her shoulder. Then he dismissed her with the child. She departed, and wandered about in the desert of Bersabee. 15 When the water in the bottle was gone, she left the child under a bush. 16 Then she went and sat opposite the place at about the distance of a bowshot; for she said, "Let me not see the child die." As she sat opposite the spot, the child cried aloud. 17 God heard the boy's cry, and the angel of God called to Agar from heaven, and said to her, "What is the matter, Agar? Fear not; for God has heard the boy's cry in this plight of his.* 18 Rise up, take the boy, be assured in his regard; for I will make him a great nation."

19 Then God opened her eyes, and she saw a well. She went and filled the bottle with water and gave the boy a drink. 20 God was with the boy, and he grew up. He lived in the desert and became an expert bowman. 21 He lived in the desert of Pharan; and his mother chose a wife for him from the land of Egypt.*

Abraham in Bersabee. 22 At that time Abimelech and Phichol, the commander of his army, said to Abraham, "God is with you in everything you do. 23 Therefore, swear to me by God that you will not deal falsely with me nor with my children nor with my descendants. As I have treated you with kindness, so must you treat me and the land in which you live as a stranger." 24 Abraham said, "I will swear." 25 But he chided Abimelech about a well which Abimelech's men had seized by force. 26 Abimelech said, "I do not know who did this; you did not tell me, nor did I hear of it till today."

27 Then Abraham took sheep and cattle and gave them to Abimelech; and the two men made a covenant. 28 Abraham set apart seven ewe lambs of the flock. 29 But Abimelech said to Abraham, "What do these seven ewe lambs mean which you have set apart?" 30 He said, "Take these seven ewe lambs from me, to be proof for me that I dug this well." 31 Therefore that place was called Bersabee, because both of them took an oath there. 32 So they made a covenant at Bersabee. Then Abimelech and Phichol, the commander of his army, returned to the land of the Philistines. 33 Abraham planted a tamarisk tree at Bersabee where he called on the name of the Lord, the everlasting God. 34 Abraham lived a long time in the land of the Philistines.

CHAPTER 22.

Sublime Obedience of Abraham. 1 After these events God put Abraham to a test. He said to him, "Abraham." He answered, "Here I am." 2 God said, "Take your only son Isaac whom you love and go into the district of Moria,[y] and there offer him as a holocaust on the hill which I shall point out to you." 3 Early in the morning Abraham harnessed his ass, took with him two of his servants and his son Isaac, and cut wood for the holocaust. Then he set out on his journey to the place which God had indicated to him. 4 On the third day he looked up and saw the place at a distance. 5 He said to his servants, "Stay here with the ass while the boy and I go there to worship; then we shall come back to you." 6 Abraham took the wood for the holocaust and put it upon his son Isaac while he himself carried the fire and the knife. As they walked together, 7 Isaac said to his father Abraham, "Father." He answered, "Yes, son!" He said, "You have the fire and the wood, but where is the sheep for the holocaust?" 8 Abraham replied, "God himself will provide the sheep for the holocaust, my son." And they went on together.

9 When they arrived at the place of which God had told him, Abraham built an altar there and arranged the wood on it. Then he bound his son Isaac and laid him on the wood upon the altar.[z] 10 Abraham stretched out his hand, and took the knife to kill his son.[a] 11 But an angel of the Lord called to him from heaven, "Abraham, Abraham!" He answered, "Here I am." 12 He said, "Do not lay a hand on the boy; do nothing to him. I know now that you fear God, since you have not withheld your only son from me." 13 Abraham looked about and saw a ram caught by its horns in the bush. He went and took it, and offered it as a holocaust in place of his son. 14 Abraham named the place, "Yahweh-yireh."* Hence even to this day people say, "On the mountain of the Lord provision will be made."

15 Again the angel of the Lord called from heaven to Abraham 16 and said, "I swear by myself, says the Lord, since you have done this and have not withheld your only son,[b] 17 I will indeed bless you, and will surely multiply your descendants as the stars of the heavens, as the sands on the seashore.[c] Your descendants shall possess the gates* of their enemies. 18 In your descendants all the nations of the earth shall be blessed,[d] because you have obeyed me." 19 Abraham returned to his servants, and together they went to Bersabee where Abraham made his home.

Abraham's Relatives. 20 After these events, Abraham was told, "Melcha too has borne sons to your brother Nahor: 21 Us, the first-born, Buz, his brother, Camuel, the father of Aram, 22 Chased, Hazau, Pheldas, Jedlaph, and Bathuel." 23 [Bathuel was the father of Rebecca.] Melcha bore these eight to Nahor, Abraham's brother. 24 As for his concubine,* whose name was Roma, she brought forth Tabee, Gaham, Thahas and Maacha.

CHAPTER 23.

Death and Burial of Sara. 1 Sara lived one hundred and twenty-seven years. 2 She died in Cariath-arbe, that is, Hebron, in the land of Chanaan. Abraham prepared to mourn for Sara and weep over her. 3 He left the side of his dead wife and said to the Hethites, 4 "I am a stranger resident among you;[e] give me burial ground among you that I may bury my dead." 5 The Hethites answered Abraham, 6 "Hear us, my lord, you are a mighty prince* among us. Choose any of our tombs to bury your dead. None of us will refuse you a tomb for your dead." 7 Abraham rose and bowed low before the Hethites, the natives of the land. 8 He said to them, "If it is acceptable to you that I bury my dead, then hear me: ask Ephron, the son of Sohar, in my behalf 9 to give me the cave of Machphela which he has at the end of his field. Let him sell it to me in your presence for its full value, as a burial ground." 10 Now the Hethite Ephron, sitting among the Hethites, answered Abraham in the hearing of all his fellow citizens,* 11 "No, my lord! Hear me: I give you the field and the cave that is in it. In the presence of my people do I give it; bury your dead." 12 Abraham bowed low before the natives of the land, 13 and in their hearing said to Ephron, "If you are really willing, hear me. I will give you money for the field; accept it from me that I may bury my dead there." 14 Ephron answered Abraham, 15 "Hear me, my lord! A piece of land worth four hundred shekels of silver, what is that between you and me? Bury your dead in it." 16 f Abraham came to terms with Ephron and weighed out for him the sum he had mentioned in the hearing of the Hethites, four hundred shekels of silver of commercial standard.* 17 Thus Ephron's field in Machphela, facing Mamre,[g] that is, the field, the cave and all the trees in the entire field, became 18 the property of Abraham in the presence of all the Hethites, his fellow citizens. 19 After this Abraham buried his wife Sara in the cave of the field at Machphela, facing Mamre, that is, Hebron, in the land of Chanaan. 20 Thus the field with its cave passed from the Hethites to Abraham for use as a burial ground.*

A Wife Sought for Isaac. 1 Abraham was now an old man well advanced in years. The Lord had blessed him in every way. 2 Abraham said to the oldest servant* of his household, who had charge of all his possessions, "Put your hand

under my thigh [3] that I may adjure you by the Lord, the God of heaven and the God of earth, not to obtain a wife for my son from the women of the Cha-naanites among whom I live, [4] but to go to my land and kindred to obtain a wife for my son Isaac." [5] The servant answered, "Perhaps the woman will not wish to follow me to this land; shall I then take your son back to the land from which you came?" [6] Abraham said to him, "Never take my son back there. [7]
The Lord, the God of heaven, who took me from my father's house, from the land of my kindred, who spoke to me and swore to me, 'I will give you this land to your descendants,' [h] will send his angel* ahead of you and you will obtain a wife for my son there. [8] If the woman does not wish to follow you, you will be released from this oath; but do not take my son back there." [9] So the servant put his hand under the thigh of his master Abraham and swore an oath to him in this matter.

[10] The servant then took ten of his master's camels and a variety of his master's treasures. He set out and journeyed to the city where Nahor lived in Aram Naharaim.* [11] In the evening, at the time when the women came out to draw water,
he made the camels kneel near the well
outside the city. [12] Then he said, "Lord, God of my master Abraham, grant me success this day; be gracious to my master Abraham. [13] I stand here at the spring, and the young women of the city are coming out to draw water. [14] Now if I say to a young woman, 'Lower your jar
that I may drink,' and she answers,
'Drink, and I will also water your camels,' she it is whom you have chosen for your servant Isaac. Thereby shall I know that you have shown your favor to my master." * [15] He had not yet finished speaking when Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bathuel, son of Melcha, wife of Abraham's brother, Nahor. She came out with a jar on her shoulder.

[16] The young woman was very beautiful, a virgin undefiled. She went down to the spring, filled her jar, and as she came up, [17] the servant hastened to meet her and said, "If you please, let me drink a little water from your jar." [18] She answered, "Drink, sir," and quickly lowered
the jar to her hand and gave him a drink.
[19] When she had given him the drink,
she said, "I will draw water also for your camels until they have finished drinking." [20] She quickly emptied her jar into the trough, hastened again to the well, and drew water for all the camels. [21] All the while the man was watching her, waiting to learn whether or not the Lord had made his trip successful. [22] When the camels had finished drinking, the man took out a gold ring, a half shekel in weight,* and he put on her wrists two gold bracelets weighing ten shekels. [23] He said to her, "Tell me whose daughter you are! Is there room in your father's house for us to stay overnight?" [24] She answered him, "I am the daughter of Bathuel, a son of Nahor, whom Melcha bore to him." [25] She added, "We have plenty of straw and fodder, and there is room to spend the night." [26] Then the man bowed in worship to the Lord, [27] saying, "Blessed be the Lord, the God of my master Abraham, whose constant favor to my master has not ceased. Me also the Lord has guided on my way to the house of my master's kinsmen." [28] Meanwhile the maiden hastened to inform her mother's household of what had happened.

[29] Now Rebecca had a brother named Laban. [30] As soon as he saw the ring,
and the bracelets on his sister's wrists,
and heard his sister Rebecca say, "Thus the man spoke to me," Laban hastened to the man at the spring. When he reached the man he found him standing by the camels near the spring. [31] He said,
"Come in, blessed of the Lord! Why should you stay outdoors when I have made ready the house, as well as a place for the camels?" [32] So the man went into the house. Laban unloaded the camels, and provided them with straw and fodder. Then he brought water for the man himself and for those who were with him, to wash their feet. [33] Food was placed before the men, but he said, "I will not eat before I have delivered my message." They answered, "Speak."

The Proposal of Marriage. 34 So he said, "I am Abraham's servant. 35 The Lord has blessed my master abundantly so that he has become a rich man. He has given him flocks, herds, silver, gold, men and women servants, camels and asses. 36 My master's wife Sara bore a son to my master in her old age, and he has given him all his property. 37 My master adjured me, 'You must not choose a wife for my son from the women of the Chanaanites in whose country I live, 38 but you shall go to my family and kindred to choose a wife for my son.' 39 I answered my master, 'Perhaps the woman will not follow me.' 40 He said, 'The Lord in whose sight I have lived will send his angel with you and make your trip successful. You will choose a wife for my son from my kindred and family; 41 then will you be released from your oath to me. If you go to my kindred and they refuse you, you will be free from your oath to me.'

42 "Today when I came to the spring I said, 'Lord, God of my master Abraham, may you prosper the journey I am making! 43 Here I stand at the spring; if I say to a girl coming out to draw water: Give me a little water from your jar to drink, 44 and she answers me: Drink, and I will also draw water for your camels, she is the wife whom the Lord has chosen for my master's son.'

45 "I had not yet finished planning this when Rebecca came with her jar on her shoulder, went down to the spring, and drew water. I said to her, 'Give me a drink, please.' 46 She quickly lowered her jar and said, 'Drink; and I will also water your camels.' So I drank and she also watered the camels. 47 Then I asked her, 'Whose daughter are you?', and she replied, 'I am the daughter of Bathuel, son of Nahor and his wife Melcha.' Then I put the ring in her nose and the bracelets on her wrists. 48 And I bowed and worshipped the Lord, blessing the Lord, the God of my master Abraham, who guided me along the right road to choose the daughter of my master's kinsman for his son. 49 Now tell me whether my master can depend on your favor;* if not, let me know that I may determine my course."

Rebecca's Kinsfolk Agree. 50 Laban and his family answered, "This comes from the Lord. We can say nothing at all to you. 51 Here before you is Rebecca; take her and go. Let her be married to your master's son as the Lord has decided." 52 When Abraham's servant heard their answer, he bowed to the ground before the Lord. 53 He brought out silver and gold jewelry, and clothing, and gave them to Rebecca. He also gave costly presents to her brother and mother. 54 Then he and the men with him had food and drink. They stayed overnight, and when they rose the next morning he said, "Let me go to my master." 55 Her brother and mother answered, "Let the girl stay with us some days, say ten, and then she may go."* 56 But he said to them, "Do not detain me, because the Lord has prospered my journey; let me go and return to my master." 57 Then they said, "Let us call the girl and ask her in person."

58 They called Rebecca and asked her, "Will you go with this man?" And she answered, "I will." 59 So they let their sister Rebecca and her nurse go with Abraham's servant and his men. 60 They blessed Rebecca and said, "May you, sister, become a thousand times ten thousand, and may your descendants conquer the gates of their foes." 61 Then Rebecca and her maids mounted camels and followed the man. So the servant took Rebecca and departed.

62 Isaac had gone to the desert of Beer-lahai-roi;[i] he was living in the district of the Negeb. 63 One day toward evening, when he went out in the field for a walk, he looked up and saw camels approaching. 64 Rebecca too looked up, and when she saw Isaac she dismounted from the camel, 65 and asked the servant, "Who is the man coming through the field toward us?" The servant said, "It is my master." Then she covered herself with her veil.

66 The servant told Isaac all he had done. 67 Isaac led Rebecca into the tent and took her to wife. Because he loved her, Isaac was consoled for the loss of his mother.

was Cetura.[j] 2 She bore him Zamran, Jecsan, Madian, Madan, Jesboc and Sue.
3 Jecsan became the father of Saba and Dedan. The descendants of Dedan were the Assurim, the Latusim and the Loommim. 4 The descendants of Madian were Epha, Epher, Henoch, Abida and Eldaa.
All these were the descendants of Cetura.
5 Abraham gave Isaac everything he had. 6 Abraham gave presents to his children by his concubines,* and while yet alive sent them away eastward, to the land of the East apart from Isaac. 7 Abraham's life span was one hundred and seventy-five years when he expired. 8 He died at a good old age, an old man, after a full life, and was gathered to his kinsmen. 9 His sons Isaac and Ismael buried him in the cave of Machphela, facing Mamre, in the field of Ephron the Heth-ite, the son of Sohar. 10 Abraham was buried with his wife Sara in the field which he had bought from the Hethites.
11 After the death of Abraham, God blessed his son Isaac, who made his home near Beer-lahai-roi.

12 These are the descendants of Abraham's son Ismael, whom Agar the Egyptian, Sara's maid, bore to Abraham. 13
These are the names of Ismael's[k] sons, in the order of their birth: Nabaioth, the first-born of Ismael, Cedar, Adbeel, Mabsam, 14 Masma, Duma, Massa, 15 Hadad, Thema, Jetur, Naphis and Cedma. 16
These were the sons of Ismael and these are their names according to their villages and encampments; twelve princes
according to their tribes.[l]

17 The length of Ismael's life was one hundred and thirty-seven years when he expired. He died, and was gathered to his kinsmen. 18 The Ismaelites dwelt from Hevila to Sur, on the border of Egypt on the way to Assur. He died in conflict with* all his kinsmen.

III: THE PATRIARCHS ISAAC AND JACOB

Birth of Esau and Jacob. 19 This is the family history of Isaac, the son of Abraham. Abraham was the father of Isaac.
20 Isaac was forty years old when he married Rebecca, daughter of Bathuel, an Aramean of Phaddan-Aram, and sister of Laban the Aramean. 21 Isaac prayed to the Lord for his wife because she was barren. The Lord answered Isaac and his wife Rebecca conceived. 22 The children jostled each other within her, and she said, "If this be so, why am I pregnant?"*
Then she went to consult the Lord. 23 He said to her, "Two nations are in your womb; two peoples shall stem from* your body. One people shall be stronger than the other, and the elder shall serve the younger."[m]

24 When the time of her delivery came,
there were indeed twins in her womb.[n] 25 The first to come forth was red. His whole body was like a hairy garment, so they named him Esau.* 26 Afterward his brother came forth, with his hand gripping Esau's heel;[o] so he was called Jacob.* Isaac was sixty years old when they were born.

Esau Sells His Birthright. 27 When the boys grew up, Esau became a skillful hunter, a man of the open country, while Jacob was a settled man who stayed among the tents. 28 Isaac preferred Esau because he was fond of game, but Rebecca preferred Jacob.

29 Once when Jacob was cooking some food, Esau came in from the field famished. 30 Esau said to Jacob, "Let me have some of that red food, for I am famished." Hence he was called Edom.*
31 But Jacob replied, "Sell me first your birthright."* 32 Esau said, "I am dying;
of what use to me is the birthright?" 33 Jacob said, "Swear to me first." So he swore to Jacob, and sold him his birthright.[p] 34 Then Jacob gave Esau some bread and lentils. He ate and drank and went his way. Thus lightly did Esau value his birthright.

CHAPTER 26.

Isaac in Gerara. 1 Now another famine occurred in the land, besides the earlier famine of the days of Abraham. And Isaac went away to Gerara, to Abime-lech, king of the Philistines. 2 The Lord appeared to him and said, "Do not go down into Egypt, but dwell in the land which I shall point out to you. 3 Reside

as a stranger in this land and I will be with you and bless you; for I will give all these lands to you and your descendants. I will fulfill the oath which I swore to your father Abraham.[q] 4 I will make your descendants as numerous as the stars of the heavens. I will give your descendants all these lands, and in your descendants all the nations of the earth shall be blessed;[r] 5 for Abraham obeyed
me and heeded my charge [my commands, my ordinances and my laws]."

6 So Isaac dwelt in Gerara. 7 When the men of the place inquired about his wife, he said, "She is my sister"; for he feared to call her his wife lest the men of the place should kill him on Rebecca's account, as she was beautiful.

8 When he had been there a long time,
Abimelech king of the Philistines happened to look out a window and saw Isaac fondling his wife Rebecca. 9 Abimelech summoned Isaac and said, "It is evident that she is your wife; why did you say,
'She is my sister'?" Isaac replied, "Because I feared that I should die on her account." 10 Abimelech said, "Why did you do this to us? How easily someone could have lain with your wife, and you would have brought guilt upon us!" 11
Then Abimelech warned all the people, saying, "Whoever touches this man or his wife shall be put to death."

12 Isaac sowed a crop in that land, and harvested a hundredfold the same year.
The Lord blessed him; 13 he became rich,
and increased in riches until he was very wealthy. 14 He had flocks and herds and many beasts for plowing. The Philistines became envious of him. 15 [They had stopped up and filled with dirt all the wells which his father's servants had dug in the days of his father Abraham.] 16 So Abimelech said to Isaac, "Depart from us, for you have become much too strong for us." 17 Isaac departed, camped in the valley of Gerara, and settled there. 18 [Isaac reopened the wells dug by the servants of his father Abraham which the Philistines had filled up after the death of Abraham. He called them by the same names which his father had given them.] 19 Isaac's servants dug in the valley and found a well of running water, 20 but the shepherds of Gerara disputed with Isaac's shepherds and said, "The water belongs to us." So he called the well Esec* because they had wrangled with him. 21
They dug another well, but they quarreled over this also, so he named it Sitna.*
22 He moved from there and dug still another well over which they did not dispute. He called it Rohoboth* and said,
"For now the Lord has made room for us; we shall prosper in the land."

Isaac in Bersabee. 23 From there he went up to Bersabee. 24 The Lord appeared to him that very night and said,
"I am the God of your father Abraham;
fear not, for I am with you. I will bless you and multiply your descendants for the sake of my servant Abraham." 25 He built an altar there, and invoked the name of the Lord. Isaac pitched his tent there, and his servants dug a well. 26 Then Abimelech came to him from Gerara with Ochozath, his friend, and Phichol, the general of his army. 27 Isaac said to them,
"Why do you come to me? You hate me and have driven me away from you." 28
They answered, "We see clearly that the Lord is with you, so we say, let there be a sworn agreement between you and us.
29 Let us make a covenant with you; you shall do us no harm, as we have not harmed you, but have done only good
to you and sent you away peacefully.
You are indeed the blessed of the Lord!"
30 Isaac gave a feast for them and they ate and drank. 31 Early the next morning they exchanged oaths. Isaac sent them away and they departed from him in peace. 32 That same day the servants of Isaac came and informed him of the well they had dug. They said to him, "We have found water." 33 So he named it Siba.* Therefore the name of the city is Bersabee to this day.

The Wives of Esau. 34 When Esau was forty years old he married Judith, daughter of Beeri the Hethite, and Basemath, daughter of Elon the Hethite.[s] 35 But they were a source of bitterness to Isaac and Rebecca.

CHAPTER 27.

Jacob Receives His Father's Blessing. 1
When Isaac was old and his eyesight had failed, he called his elder son Esau, and said to him, "Son!" 2 He replied, "Here

I am!" He said, "You see I have grown old; I do not know when I may die. 3 Take your weapons, quiver and bow; go out into the fields to hunt me some game. 4 Prepare for me some savory food such as I like; bring it to me to eat, so that I may bless you before I die." 5 Rebecca listened while Isaac was talking to his son Esau. When Esau had gone out into the field to hunt some game for his father, 6 Rebecca said to her son Jacob, "I heard your father tell your brother Esau, 7 'Bring me some game; prepare some savory food for me to eat, and then I will bless you in the sight of the Lord before I die.' 8 Now my son, do what I tell you. 9 Go to the flock and bring me two choice kids that I may make of them savory food for your father, such as he likes. 10 Then bring it to your father to eat, that he may bless you before he dies." 11 Jacob said to his mother Rebecca, "But Esau my brother is a hairy man, while I am smooth. 12 If my father touches me, it will seem to him that I am mocking him. Thus I shall bring a curse on myself instead of a blessing." His mother replied, 13 "Let the curse fall on me, my son! Do but listen to me; go, get them for me."

14 He went, selected them, and brought them to his mother, who prepared savory food such as his father liked. 15 Then Rebecca took the best clothes of her elder son Esau, which she had in the house, and put them on her younger son Jacob. 16 She put the skins of the kids on his hands and over the smooth parts of his neck. 17 Then she gave her son Jacob the savory food and bread she had prepared. 18 He went to his father and said, "Father!" He answered, "Here I am. Who are you, my son?" 19 And Jacob said to his father, "I am Esau, your first-born. I have done as you told me; sit up, please! Eat again of my game, that you may bless me."* 20 Isaac replied, "How did you find it so quickly, my son?" He answered, "The Lord your God let me come upon it." 21 Then Isaac said to Jacob, "Come close that I may touch you, my son, to know whether you are really my son Esau or not." 22 Jacob went close to his father; Isaac touched him and said, "The voice is the voice of Jacob, but the hands are the hands of Esau." 23 (He did not recognize him because his hands were hairy like those of his brother Esau; so he blessed him*).

24 Isaac said, "Are you really my son Esau?" Jacob answered, "Yes, I am." 25 Isaac continued, "Set your game near me, my son, that I may eat it, and bless you." He set it before him and he ate of it, and he brought him some wine, which he drank. 26 Then his father Isaac said to him, "Come close and kiss me, my son." He came close and kissed him. 27 When he smelled the fragrance of his garments, he blessed him and said: [t] "The fragrance of my son is like the fragrance of a field which the Lord has blessed! 28 God give you dew from heaven, and fruitfulness of the earth, abundance of grain and wine. 29 Let nations serve you, peoples bow down to you. Be master of your brothers; may your mother's sons bow down to you. Cursed be those who curse you, blessed be those who bless you."

30 Isaac had pronounced the blessing and Jacob had just left his father's presence, when his brother Esau returned from hunting. 31 He also prepared savory food and brought it to his father, saying, "Sit up, father, and eat of your son's game, that you may bless me." 32 His father Isaac said to him, "Who are you?" He answered, "I am Esau, your first-born son." 33 Isaac was greatly disturbed, and asked, "Who was it, then, that hunted game and brought it to me? Before you came I ate heartily and then blessed him; and he shall be blessed." 34 On hearing his father's words, Esau uttered a very loud and bitter cry, and said to him, "Father, bless me too." 35 But he answered, "Your brother came deceitfully and received your blessing." 36 Then he said, "Must he, true to his name Jacob, supplant me now a second time? He took my birthright [u] and now he has taken my blessing." He added, "Have you not reserved a blessing for me?" 37 Isaac answered Esau, "I have appointed him your lord, and have given him all his brothers as servants. I have enriched him with grain and wine; what then can I do for you, my son?" 38 But Esau said to his father, "Have you only one blessing, father? Bless me also, my father." And Esau wept aloud.[v]

39 His father Isaac answered him:
"Without the fruitfulness of the earth shall you live; you shall serve your brother. But when you become restive, you shall shake his yoke from your neck."[x]

Jacob Goes to Phaddan-Aram. 41 Esau bore Jacob a grudge because of the blessing his father had given him.[y] He said to himself, "The time of mourning for my father is coming; then I will kill my brother Jacob." 42 Rebecca was told of these words of her elder son, Esau. She summoned her younger son, Jacob, and said to him, "Your brother Esau intends to revenge himself on you by killing you. 43 Listen to me therefore, my son; flee to my brother Laban in Haran. 44 Stay with him awhile until your brother's fury subsides [until your brother's wrath against you relents], 45 and he forgets what you have done to him. Then I will send for you and bring you back. Why should I be bereaved of you both on the same day?"

46 Rebecca said to Isaac, "I am disgusted with life because of the Hethite women;[z] if Jacob should marry a Hethite woman like these, a native of the land, what would life mean to me?"

CHAPTER 28.

1 Isaac therefore called Jacob and having blessed him, charged him, "Do not marry any Chanaanite woman; 2 go then to Phaddan-Aram, the home of Bathuel, your mother's father, and there choose your wife from the daughters of your uncle Laban. 3 May God Almighty bless you, and make you fruitful; may he multiply you so that you may become many nations. 4 May he bestow on you, and your descendants also, the blessing of Abraham that you may inherit this land in which you are immigrants, which God gave to Abraham."[a] 5 Isaac sent forth Jacob, who went to Phaddan-Aram to Laban, the son of the Aramean Bathuel, and brother of Rebecca, mother of Jacob and Esau.

Esau Marries a Descendant of Ismael. 6 Esau learned that Isaac had blessed Jacob and sent him away to Phaddan-Aram to marry there, and while blessing him had charged him not to marry a Chanaanite woman, 7 and that Jacob departed for Phaddan-Aram in obedience to his father and mother. 8 Since he realized his father Isaac's displeasure with Chanaanite women, Esau went to Ismael, 9 and in addition to the wives he had, married Maheleth, daughter of Abraham's son Ismael and sister of Nabaioth.

Jacob's Vision at Bethel. 10 Meanwhile, Jacob left Bersabee and journeyed toward Haran. 11 He came to a place* where he spent the night because the sun had set. He took one of the stones of the place, put it under his head, and went to sleep there. 12 He dreamed that a ladder was set up on the ground with its top reaching to heaven; angels of God were ascending and descending on it.[b] 13 The Lord stood beside him and said, "I am the Lord, the God of Abraham your father, and the God of Isaac. I will give you and your descendants the land on which you lie. 14 They shall be as the dust of the earth. You shall spread abroad to the west, to the east, to the north, and to the south;[c] in you and in your descendants, all the nations of the earth shall be blessed. 15 I will be with you and protect you wherever you go. I will bring you back to this land; indeed I will not forsake you till I fulfill my promise."

16 When Jacob woke from his sleep he said, "Truly the Lord is in this place and I did not know it." 17 Reverently he continued, "How awesome is this place! This is none other than the house of God; this is the gate of heaven." Jacob arose in the morning, 18 took the stone which he had placed under his head, set it up as a memorial pillar* and poured oil over it.[d] 19 He called the place Bethel;* formerly the name of the city was Luza.[e] 20 Jacob also made a vow: "If the Lord is with me and protects me on my present journey, and gives me food to eat and clothing to wear, 21 and a safe return to my father's house, the Lord shall be my God; 22 and this stone which I have set up as a memorial pillar shall be the house

Jacob Meets Rachel. 1 Then Jacob continued his journey and came to the land of the people of the East. 2 Looking about he saw a well in the open country, and three flocks of sheep lying nearby, for the flocks were watered from this well. But the stone over the mouth of the well was large. 3 After all the shepherds were gathered there, the stone was rolled back from the mouth of the well and the flocks were watered. Then the stone was replaced over the mouth of the well.

4 Jacob said to them, "My brothers,* where are you from?" And they answered, "We are from Haran." 5 Then he inquired, "Do you know Laban the son of Nahor?" 6 And they said, "We do." He asked further, "Is he well?" They replied, "He is, and here comes his daughter Rachel with his flock." 7 Then he said, "Much of the day is left; it is not yet time for the stock to be gathered; water the flock and lead them back to pasture." 8 But they answered, "We cannot, until all the shepherds have assembled; then they remove the stone from the mouth of the well and we water the flock."

9 While he was still talking with them, Rachel arrived with her father's flock; for it was her custom to tend them. 10 When Jacob saw Rachel, the daughter of his uncle Laban, with the flock, he drew near, rolled the stone from the mouth of the well, and watered his uncle's flock. 11 Then Jacob kissed Rachel and wept aloud. 12 Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's relative, a son of Rebecca, and she hastened to tell her father. 13 When Laban heard about Jacob, his nephew, he hastened to meet him, received him with embraces and kisses, and brought him to his dwelling. 14 Jacob told Laban all these things, and Laban said to him, "You are indeed my flesh and bone." And Jacob stayed with him a whole month. 15 Then Laban said to Jacob, "Should you serve me for nothing because you are a relative of mine? Tell me what your wages shall be."

Jacob Marries Lia. 16 Laban had two daughters. The elder was called Lia, and the younger Rachel. 17 Lia's eyes were weak, but Rachel was shapely and beautiful. 18 Jacob loved Rachel. He said, therefore, "I will serve you seven years for your younger daughter Rachel." 19 Laban answered, "It is better to give her to you than to another man; stay with me." 20 So Jacob served seven years for Rachel,[f] and they seemed to him but a few days because of his love for her. Then Jacob said to Laban, "Give me my wife; 21 for the time has come for me to go in to her."

22 Laban gathered all the men of the place and gave a feast. 23 That night he brought Lia, his daughter, to Jacob, who had relations with her. 24 Laban gave his servant Zelpha to his daughter Lia to be her maid. 25 In the morning, to Jacob's amazement, it was Lia. Then he said to Laban, "What have you done to me? Did I not serve you for Rachel? Why then have you cheated me?" 26 Laban replied, "It is not the custom in our country to give the younger daughter before the firstborn; 27 complete the week of this one's nuptials and I will give you the other in return for another seven years of service with me." [g]

28 Jacob did so; he completed her week. Then Laban gave him his daughter Rachel in marriage. 29 Laban gave his servant Bala to his daughter Rachel to be her maid. 30 So Jacob went in to Rachel also; he loved her more than Lia, and served Laban another seven years.

31 When the Lord saw that Lia was disliked, he made her fruitful, while Rachel remained barren. 32 Lia conceived and bore a son, naming him Ruben;* "For," she said, "the Lord has had regard for my misery; now my husband will love me." 33 Again she conceived and bore a son saying, "The Lord has heard that I am disliked; therefore he has given me this one also." She named him Simeon.* 34 She conceived again and bore a son, saying, "This time my husband will become attached to me, for I have borne him three sons." Therefore she named him Levi.* 35 Once more she conceived and bore a son,[h] saying, "Now I will praise the Lord." Therefore she named him Juda.* Then she ceased bearing.

CHAPTER 30.

Rivalry of Rachel and Lia. 1 When Rachel saw that she was not bearing children to Jacob, she became jealous of her sister and said to Jacob, "Give me children or I shall die." 2 Jacob became impatient with Rachel and answered her, "Can I take the place of God, who has made you barren?" 3 She replied, "Here is my slave-girl, Bala; go in to her that she may bear on my knees,* and I too may have children by her." 4 She gave him Bala, her maid, in marriage, and Jacob had relations with her. 5 Bala conceived and bore Jacob a son. 6 Then Rachel said, "God has pronounced judgment in my favor, for he has heard my prayer and given me a son." Therefore she named him Dan.* 7 Bala, Rachel's maid, conceived again and bore a second son to Jacob. Then Rachel said, 8 "I have used a clever device against my sister, and I have indeed prevailed." So she called him Nephthali.*

9 When Lia knew that she had ceased bearing, she gave Zelpha her maid to Jacob in marriage. 10 Zelpha, Lia's maid, bore Jacob a son. 11 Lia said, "What good fortune!" And she named him Gad. 12 Lia's maid Zelpha bore Jacob another son. 13 And Lia said, "What happiness! Women will call me happy." So she named him Aser.*

14 During the wheat harvest, Ruben went into the field, found some mandrakes, and brought them to his mother Lia. Rachel said to Lia, "Give me some of your son's mandrakes." 15 She answered her, "Is it a trivial matter to have taken my husband? Will you also take my son's mandrakes?"* Rachel said, "Very well! In exchange for your son's mandrakes, Jacob shall lie with you tonight." 16 As Jacob was returning from the field in the evening, Lia went to meet him and said, "You are to come to me; for I have bargained for you with my son's mandrakes." So he slept with her that night. 17 God heard Lia's prayer, and she conceived and bore Jacob a fifth son. 18 Then she said, "God has rewarded me because I gave my maid to my husband." 19 She called him Issachar.* Lia conceived again and bore a sixth son to Jacob. 20 She said, "God has made me an excellent gift. Now my husband will honor me; for I have borne him six sons." Therefore she named him Zabulon.* 21 Afterward she bore a daughter whom she named Dina.

The Birth of Joseph. 22 But God remembered Rachel; he heard her prayer and made her fruitful. 23 She conceived and bore a son,[i] and she said, "God has taken away my reproach." 24 She named him Joseph,* saying, "May the Lord give me another son."

Jacob Outwits Laban. 25 When Rachel had given birth to Joseph, Jacob said to Laban, "Let me return to my own home and country. 26 Give me my wives for whom I served you, and my children; let me depart. You know well the service I have given you." 27 Laban said to him, "If you please,* I surmise that God blessed me because of you. 28 Name your wages and I will pay." 29 He answered, "But you know well how I have served you, how your stock fared under my care. 30 Before I came you had little indeed, but now it has greatly increased. The Lord blessed you at my every step. And now, when shall I provide for my own household?" 31 He asked, "What shall I give you?" But Jacob answered, "Give me nothing at all, if you agree to this proposal: I shall again pasture and tend your flock, 32 but today go through your entire flock and separate every speckled and spotted goat, and all black lambs; then every goat that is spotted or speckled and every black lamb shall be my wages. 33 In the future, when the time comes, I will stand self-condemned before you in the matter of my wages. Every goat that is not speckled or spotted, and every lamb that is not black, shall be considered stolen." 34 Laban said, "Let it be as you say."

35 That day Laban separated the striped and spotted he-goats, and all the speckled or spotted she-goats, everyone with white on it, and all the lambs that were black, and he gave them into the care of his sons. 36 He put a distance of three days' journey between himself and Jacob, who had charge of the rest of Laban's flock. 37 Jacob took green boughs of poplar, almond and plane and by laying bare the white in the boughs, he peeled white stripes in them. 38 Then he set the boughs he had peeled in front of the flock in the watering troughs where they came to be watered. And they mated when they came to be watered. 39 Since they mated in front of the boughs, they brought forth young lambs that were striped, speckled and spotted. 40 Jacob set these lambs apart, and the young animals were all speckled or black in a white flock. Thus he formed droves of his own which he did not join to Laban's flock. 41 Whenever the hardier sheep were breeding, Jacob placed the boughs in the troughs in front of the sheep so that they might mate in front of the boughs, 42 but not so in the case of the weaker ones. The weaker ones fell to Laban and the stronger to Jacob. 43 Thus the man became exceedingly rich and had large flocks, male and female servants, camels and asses.

Jacob Leaves Phaddan-Aram. 1 Jacob learned that Laban's sons were saying, "Jacob has taken all our father had, and he has acquired all these riches from what belonged to our father." 2 Jacob perceived, too, that Laban's attitude toward him was not what it had previously been. 3 The Lord said to Jacob, "Return to the land of your fathers and to your own kin; I will be with you." 4 Jacob sent for Rachel and Lia, calling them to his flock in the field, 5 and said to them, "I see that your father's attitude toward me is not what it was previously; but the God of my father has been with me.

6 "You yourselves know that I have served your father with all my strength, 7 yet your father cheated me and changed my pay time after time; but God did not allow him to harm me. 8 Whenever he said, 'The spotted animals will be your pay,' the entire flock had spotted young; but whenever he said, 'The striped ones will be your wages,' then the entire flock had striped young. 9 So God took away your father's stock and gave it to me. 10 At breeding time of the flock, I saw in a dream that the he-goats mating were striped, spotted and speckled. 11 An angel of God said to me in the dream, 'Jacob!' and I answered, 'Here I am!' 12 Then he said, 'Look and take note: all the he-goats mating are striped, spotted and speckled; I have seen all that Laban has been doing to you. 13 I am the God who appeared to you at Bethel, where you anointed the memorial pillar and made a vow to me.j Rise now, leave this land, and return to the land of your kin.' "

14 Rachel and Lia answered him, "Have we any share or heritage left in our father's house? 15 Are we not regarded as strangers by him? For he has sold us, and entirely used up the money he received through us. 16 Surely all the property God has taken away from our father belongs to us and our children. Do whatever God has told you."

17 Jacob began by mounting his children and wives on camels. 18 Then he took away all his herds, all the property he had acquired [the stock he had obtained] in Phaddan-Aram, to go to his father Isaac in the land of Chanaan.

19 When Laban* had gone to shear his flock, Rachel stole her father's household idols; 20 and Jacob outwitted Laban the Aramean by not mentioning to him his intended flight, and fled with all that belonged to him. 21 Jacob set out, crossed the River* and made for the highlands of Galaad.

22 On the third day, Laban was informed of Jacob's flight. 23 Taking his kinsmen with him, he pursued Jacob seven days and overtook him in the highlands of Galaad. 24 But God came to Laban the Aramean in a dream at night and cautioned him, "Take care not to say anything at all to Jacob."

tent on Mount Galaad, [26] Laban said to Jacob, "Why have you acted so, deceiving me and carrying off my daughters like prisoners of war? [27] Why did you flee secretly and steal away from me? You did not let me know, so that I could send you off with rejoicing and song, with tambourine* and lyre. [28] You did not allow me to kiss my sons* and daughters; you have acted foolishly. [29] It is in my power to do you harm; but last night the God of your father said to me, 'Take care not to say anything at all to Jacob.' [30] *If you had to leave because you longed so much for your father's home, why did you steal my gods?" [31] Jacob replied to Laban, "I was afraid, for I thought you would take away your daughters from me by force. [32] If you find your gods in anyone's possession, he shall not live. In the presence of our kinsmen, identify whatever of yours I may have, and take it." But Jacob did not know Rachel had stolen them.

[33] Then Laban went through Jacob's tent, through Lia's and through those of both the maids without finding them. From Lia's tent he went to Rachel's; [34] but Rachel had taken the household idols, put them in the camel's saddle, and was sitting on them. When Laban had felt around the whole tent without finding them, [35] she said to her father, "Be not offended, my lord, that I cannot rise in your presence; I am having my periods."* Though he searched, he did not find the household gods.

[36] Then Jacob became angry and remonstrated with Laban. "What is my offense or my crime," he said, "that you have pursued me, and have ransacked all my belongings? [37] What household article of yours have you found? Put it out here in the presence of your kinsmen and mine that they may decide between us two. [38] Twenty years now I have been with you; your ewes and your she-goats have never miscarried, nor have I eaten the rams of your flock. [39] I have not brought to you any torn by wild beasts; I bore the loss myself. You held me responsible for anything stolen by day or night.[k] [40] The heat wasted me by day, the cold by night; sleep fled from my eyes. [41] This has been my twenty years with you: I served you fourteen years for your two daughters, six years for your flocks; you changed my pay time after time. [42] If the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the God whom Isaac fears, had not favored me, even now you would have sent me away empty-handed. God saw my affliction and my toil, and last night he pronounced sentence."

[43] Laban answered Jacob, "The daughters are mine, the grandchildren are mine, the flocks are mine, indeed all that you see is mine. What can I do today to these daughters of mine and to the children they have borne? [44] Come, then, let us make a covenant, you and I; then the Lord shall be a witness between you and me."

[45] Then Jacob took a stone[l] and set it up as a memorial pillar. [46] Jacob said to his kinsmen, "Gather some stones." And they gathered stones, made a heap, and ate there near the heap. [47] Laban called it Jegar-sahadutha and Jacob named it Galaad.* [48] Laban said, "This heap is a witness between you and me today. [Therefore he called it Galaad; [49] and Maspha,* because he said, "May the Lord watch between you and me when we are away from each other."] [50] You shall not mistreat my daughters, or marry others besides them; even though there be no man near us, remember, God is witness between you and me." [51] Laban continued, "Note this heap and this memorial pillar I have set up between you and me. [52] This heap is a witness, and the memorial is a witness that I will not go beyond this heap toward you, and that you shall not go beyond this heap and memorial toward me to do harm. [53] The God of Abraham and the gods of Nahor [the gods of their father*] judge between us." Jacob swore by him whom his father Isaac revered.

[54] Jacob offered sacrifice in the highlands and invited his kinsmen to take

1 Early in the morning, Laban kissed his grandchildren and daughters, bade them farewell, and returned to his home.
2 Jacob also resumed his journey and God's angels met him. 3 When he saw them, Jacob said, "This is the encampment of God"; and he named the place Mahanaim.*

Jacob Sends an Embassy to Esau. 4 Then Jacob sent messengers ahead to his brother Esau in the region of Seir in the country of Edom, 5 commanding them,
"Thus shall you say to my lord Esau:
Your servant Jacob sends you this message: 'I have been dwelling with Laban and stayed till now. 6 I have acquired cattle, asses, flocks, men and women servants; so I am sending word to my lord that I may find favor with you.'" 7 The messengers returned to Jacob and said, "We went to your brother Esau. He is coming to meet you with four hundred men." 8 Filled with fear and anxiety, Jacob divided into two camps the people with him, as well as the flocks, the cattle, and the camels. 9 He said, "Should Esau come on one camp and attack it, the other will be saved." 10 Jacob prayed,
"God of my father Abraham and God
of my father Isaac, Lord who said to me,
'Return to your land and to your kin, and I will deal well with you': 11 I am not worthy of all the kindnesses and the constant solicitude which you have shown your servant. With only my staff I crossed this Jordan; now I have grown into two camps.
12 "Save me from my brother Esau;
for I fear that he is coming to kill me
and all my family.m 13 You have promised, 'I will surely deal well with you. I will make your descendants as the sands
of the sea, too numerous to count.'" 14 After sleeping there that night, he chose a present for his brother Esau from what he had with him: 15 two hundred she-goats, twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes, twenty rams, 16 thirty milch camels
with their young, forty cows, ten bullocks, twenty she-asses and ten foals. 17 He delivered these to his servants, in separate droves, instructing them, "Go ahead of me, but leave a space between one drove
and the next." 18 He charged the leaders,
"If my brother Esau meets you and asks,
'To whom do you belong? where are you going? and whose animals are these before you?', 19 you shall answer, 'They belong to your servant Jacob; they are a gift sent to my lord Esau, and Jacob is just behind us.'" 20 He also charged the second, the third and all who followed the droves, "Give this same message to Esau when you meet him, 21 and say also,
'Your servant Jacob is just behind us.'"
He thought, "I will appease him with the gift that precedes me; then when I see him, perhaps he will be kind to me."
Struggle with the Angel. 22 So the gift went ahead of him while he lodged that night in the camp. 23 That same night he arose, took his two wives, the two maids and his eleven sons, and forded the Jaboc. 24 He took them and sent them across the stream, with everything that belonged to him; 25 but Jacob himself remained behind, all alone. Someone* wrestled with him until the break of dawn.
26 When he saw that he could not overcome Jacob, he touched the socket of Jacob's thigh so that it was dislocated while Jacob wrestled with him.n 27 Then he said, "Let me go; it is dawn." But Jacob answered, "I will not let you go till you bless me." 28 Then he asked Jacob,
"What is your name?" And he answered,
"Jacob." o 29 He said, "You shall no longer be called Jacob, but Israel,* because you have contended with God and men,
and have triumphed." 30 Jacob asked,
"What is your name?" He answered,
"Why do you ask my name?" But he blessed him there. 31 Jacob named the place Phanuel,* saying, "I have seen a heavenly being face to face, yet my life has been spared." p
32 The sun rose on him just as he passed
Phanuel, limping because of his thigh.
33 To this day the Israelites do not eat the cause he touched the socket of Jacob's thigh on the hip-muscle.

CHAPTER 33.

Meeting of Jacob and Esau. 1 Jacob looked up and saw Esau approaching with four hundred men. So he divided the children among Lia, Rachel and the two maids, 2 putting the maids and their children in front, then Lia and her children, with Rachel and Joseph in the rear. 3 He himself went ahead of them, bowing to the ground seven times, until he reached his brother. 4 Esau ran to meet him, embraced him, fell on his neck and kissed him. And they wept.

5 When he looked up and saw the women and the children, he said, "What relation are they to you?" Jacob answered, "They are the children whom God has graciously given your servant." 6 Then the maids and their children drew near and bowed down. 7 Lia and her children also drew near, made their bow, and lastly Joseph and Rachel drew near and bowed. 8 He said, "What do you mean by all this company which I met?" Jacob answered, "To win favor with my lord." 9 Esau said, "I have plenty; keep what is yours, my brother." 10 Jacob replied, "No, I beg you; if only I find favor with you, accept the gift from my hand, because I have come before you as before God, and you have received me kindly. 11 I beg you, accept the gift I have brought you, for God has been good to me, and I have all I need." When he urged him, Esau accepted. 12 Then he said, "Let us break camp, and go on; I will march alongside you." 13 But Jacob replied, "My lord can see that the children are young, and the flocks and herds giving suck are a care to me; if overdriven for a single day, the whole flock will die. 14 Let my lord go on ahead of his servant and I shall proceed slowly at the pace of the stock I am driving and the pace of the children, until I come to my lord at Seir." 15 Esau answered, "Allow me to leave some of my men with you." But he said, "Why all this trouble for me, my lord?"

16 That same day Esau started back on his way to Seir, 17 while Jacob went to Socchoth,* and built a home for himself and made sheds for his stock. For this reason he named the place Socchoth.

18 During his journey from Phaddan-Aram Jacob came safely to the city of Sichem, in the land of Chanaan, and camped near* the city. 19 For the price of one hundred pieces of money he bought the plot of ground on which he had pitched his tent, from the sons of Hemor, the father of Sichem.q 20 There he erected a memorial pillar and named it "El, God of Israel."*

CHAPTER 34.

Dina is Violated. 1 Dina, the daughter whom Lia bore to Jacob, went to present herself among the women of the region. 2 When Sichem, son of Hemor the Hevite, prince of the region, saw her, he took her, and lay with her by force. 3 He became attached to Dina, Jacob's daughter, and fell in love with the girl, speaking tenderly to her. 4 Sichem said to his father Hemor, "Get me this girl as my wife." 5 Now Jacob heard that Sichem had defiled his daughter; but his sons were out in the fields with his stock, so he held his peace until their return.

6 Hemor, the father of Sichem, came out to Jacob to speak with him. 7 Now Jacob's sons came in from the field as soon as they heard the news. They were aroused and very angry because Sichem had committed a crime against Israel by lying with Jacob's daughter—an intolerable crime. 8 Hemor said to them, "My son Sichem has set his heart on your daughter; give her to him as wife. 9 Intermarry with us; give us your daughters in marriage and marry ours. 10 Live with us, and the land will be yours; dwell and trade and settle here." 11 Sichem, too, said to her father and brothers, "Let me find favor with you; I will pay whatever you demand of me. 12 Increase the marriage price and gifts as you will. I will give you whatever you demand of me; only give me the girl as wife."

Revenge of Jacob's Sons. 13 The sons of Jacob answered Sichem, who had defiled their sister Dina, and his father Hemor; and they spoke deceitfully. 14 They said to them, "We cannot do this: give our sister to a man who is uncircumcised; for to us that would be a disgrace. 15 We will agree to you only on condition that you become like us, by having every male among you circumcised. 16 Then we will give you our daughters and take yours; we will live among you and become one people. 17 But if you refuse to be circumcised, we will take our daughter and depart."

18 Their proposal pleased Hemor and his son Sichem. 19 The young man carried out the proposal without delay because he was in love with Jacob's daughter, and he was the most distinguished member of his family. 20 So Hemor and his son Sichem went to the gate of their city and spoke to their fellow citizens. 21 "These men," they said, "are friendly; let them dwell with us and trade in the land, since there is ample room for them. Let us marry their daughters and give them our daughters to marry. 22 Only on this condition will the men agree to live with us and form one people: all the males among us must be circumcised as they are. 23 Will not their stock, their property and all their beasts be to our advantage? Let us agree with them, so that they may dwell with us."

24 All their fellow citizens* were persuaded by Hemor and his son Sichem, and all the males were circumcised. 25 [r] On the third day, when they were in pain, the two sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dina's brothers, took their swords, advanced boldly against the city and slew all the males. 26 They put Hemor and his son Sichem to the sword, and took Dina from Sichem's house.[s] 27 Then the sons of Jacob went out, attacked the sick men, and sacked the city, because their sister had been defiled. 28 They took its flocks, herds and asses, whatever was in the city and in the fields. 29 All its wealth, its women and its children they carried off;[t] and they looted whatever was in the houses.

30 Jacob said to Simeon and Levi, "You have brought trouble on me, making me loathsome to the inhabitants of the land, the Chanaanites and the Pherezites. I have but few men; if they unite against me and attack me, my family and I will be destroyed." 31 They answered, "Should our sister have been treated as a harlot?"

CHAPTER 35.

Jacob Again in Bethel. 1 God said to Jacob, "Rise and go up to Bethel. Build there an altar to the God who appeared to you as you fled from your brother Esau." [u] 2 So Jacob said to his family and to all who were with him, "Do away with the strange gods* you have among you, purify yourselves, and change your garments. 3 Let us be on our way to Bethel, that I may build an altar there to the God who helped me in my distress and was with me on my journey." 4 They handed over to Jacob all the strange gods they had, with their earrings;* Jacob buried them under the terebinth near Sichem, 5 and they departed. But a great fear lay upon the cities in the vicinity, so that they did not pursue the sons of Jacob.

6 So Jacob and all who were with him came to Luza [v] [now called Bethel] in the land of Chanaan. 7 He built an altar there and named the place Bethel,[w] because God had appeared to him there when he was fleeing from his brother. 8 Debora, Rebecca's nurse,* died and was buried below Bethel at the foot of an oak tree, so the place was called Allon-Bachuth.

God Renews the Promises. 9 As Jacob returned from Phaddan-Aram, God appeared to him again and blessed him. 10 God said to him, "Your name is Jacob; no longer shall you be called Jacob, but Israel shall be your name." [x] Thus he named him Israel. 11 God said to him, "I am God Almighty. Be fruitful and multiply; a nation and many nations shall spring from you; kings shall stem from you. 12 I will give you the land which I gave to Abraham and Isaac; this land will I give also to your descendants." [y] 13 Then God departed from him at the place where he had spoken to him. 14 But Jacob erected a memorial pillar in the place where God had spoken with him, a pillar of stone, and he poured out a libation and oil on it.[z] 15 The place where God had spoken to him, Jacob named Bethel.

Death of Rachel. 16 They journeyed from Bethel, and when they were still a distance from Ephratha, Rachel gave birth to a child amid great pain. 17 While she was in painful labor the midwife said to her, "Fear not; for this time also you have a son." [18] As her soul was departing her—for she was at the point of death—she named him Benoni,* but his father called him Benjamin. [19] Rachel died and was buried on the way to Ephratha,[a] that is, Bethlehem. [20] Jacob erected a memorial over her grave; and this memorial marks Rachel's grave to this day.

Jacob's Children. [21] Israel moved on and pitched his tent beyond Magdal-eder.* [22] While Israel was living in that region, Ruben went and lay with Bala, his father's concubine;[b] and Israel heard of it. . . .

The sons of Jacob were twelve: [23] the sons of Lia: Ruben, Jacob's first-born, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issachar and Zabulon; [24] the sons of Rachel: Joseph and Benjamin; [25] the sons of Bala, Rachel's maid: Dan and Nephthali; [26] the sons of Zelpha, Lia's maid: Gad and Aser. These were the sons of Jacob who were born to him in Phaddan-Aram.*

[27] Jacob went to his father Isaac at Mamre in Cariatharbe, that is, Hebron, where Abraham and Isaac had sojourned. [28] The lifetime of Isaac was one hundred and eighty years. [29] Isaac breathed his last and died, and was gathered to his kin, an old man who had lived a full life. His sons Esau and Jacob buried him.

Résumé of Esau's History. [1] These are the descendants of Esau, that is, Edom. [2] Esau married the Chanaanite women, Ada, daughter of Elon the Hethite, and Oholibama,* daughter of Ana, son of Sebeon the Hevite; [3] also Basemath, daughter of Ismael and sister of Nabaioth. [4] [c] Ada bore Eliphaz to Esau, Basemath bore Raguel, [5] [d] Oholibama bore Jehus, Jelom and Core. These are the sons of Esau who were born to him in the land of Chanaan.

[6] Esau took his wives, sons, daughters, and all the members of his household, his stock, all his beasts, and all he had acquired in the land of Chanaan, and went to the land of Seir, out of the way of his brother Jacob; [7] for their possessions were too great for them to live together, and the land where they sojourned could not support them because of their stock.

[8] Esau settled in the highlands of Seir, that is, Edom.[e] [9] These are the descendants of Esau, father of the Edomites in the highlands of Seir.

[10] *These are the names of Esau's sons: Eliphaz, son of Ada, Esau's wife, and Raguel, son of Basemath, the wife of Esau. [11] The sons of Eliphaz were Theman, Omar, Sepho, Gatham and Cenez [12] [Thamna was a concubine of Esau's son Eliphaz and bore Amalec to Eliphaz]; these are the descendants of Ada, Esau's wife.[f]

[13] [g] The sons of Raguel were Nahath, Zara, Samma and Meza. These are the descendants of Basemath, Esau's wife.

He overthrew the Madianites in the country of Moab, and the name of his city was Avith. 36 Adad died and Semla of Masreca succeeded him. 37 Semla died and Saul from Rohoboth-Nahar succeeded him. 38 When Saul died, Baalhanan, son of Achobor succeeded him. 39 Baalhanan, son of Achobor, died and Adad succeeded him. The name of his city was Phau, and his wife's name was Meetebel. She was the daughter of Matred, who was the daughter of Mezaab.

40 These are the names of the chiefs of Esau, according to their families or their dwelling places, namely: the chiefs of Thamna, Alva, Jetheth, 41 Oholibama, Ela, Phinon, 42 Cenez, Theman, Mabsar, 43 Magdiel, Iram. These are the chiefs of Edom, according to their settlements in the land they occupied. Esau was the father of the Edomites.

IV: THE HISTORY OF JOSEPH

CHAPTER 37.

Early History of Joseph. 1 Jacob lived in the land of Chanaan, where his father had dwelt as a stranger. 2 This is his family history.* When Joseph was seventeen years old, still a mere youth, he was pasturing the flock with his brothers, the sons of Bala and Zelpha, his father's wives, and he brought a bad report to his father concerning them.

3 Israel loved Joseph best of all his sons because he was born in his old age. He made him a long tunic.* 4 When his brothers saw that their father loved him best of all his sons, they hated him and could not even greet him.

Joseph's Dreams. 5 Now Joseph had a dream, and when he told it to his brothers, they hated him the more. 6 He said to them, "Listen to this dream I had. 7 We were binding sheaves in the field; my sheaf rose up and remained standing, while your sheaves gathered round and bowed down to my sheaf." 8 His brothers answered, "Are you to be our king? Are you to rule over us?" And because of his dreams and words they hated him the more.

9 He had another dream which he also told to his brothers. "I had another dream," he said. "The sun, the moon and eleven stars were worshiping me." 10 When he told that to his father and his brothers, his father reproved him. "What is this dream that you have had?" he said. "Can it be that I and your mother and your brothers will come to bow to the ground before you?" 11 So his brothers envied him, while his father pondered the matter.

12 When his brothers had gone to pasture their father's flocks at Sichem, 13 Israel said to Joseph, "Your brothers are pasturing the flocks at Sichem; get ready, I will send you to them." Joseph answered, "I am ready." 14 "Go then," said Israel, "and see if all is well with your brothers and with the flocks; and bring back a report to me." So he sent him from the valley of Hebron, and he came to Sichem. 15 A man found Joseph wandering about in the fields and asked him, j 1 Par 1, 39-42.—k 1 Par 1, 43-54.

36, 31: Before . . . kings: since Saul, the first Israelite king, lived long after the time of Moses, it is clear that verses 31-39 were not written by Moses.

37, 1: The sacred author continues his story, which had been interrupted by chapter 36.

37, 3: It was a long garment with sleeves, reaching to the ankles. Such a garment was considered a mark of distinction and was worn regularly by princes and other members of royalty.

"What are you looking for?" 16 "I am looking for my brothers," he answered. "Tell me, please, where they are pasturing." 17 The man said, "They have moved on from here because I heard them say, 'Let us go to Dothain.'" So Joseph went after his brothers and found them in Dothain. 18 They saw him in the distance, and before he drew near them, they plotted to kill him. 19 They said to one another, "Here comes that dreamer! 20 Let us therefore kill him and throw him into a cistern; we can say that a wild beast devoured him.[l] Let us see then what becomes of his dreams."

21 But when Ruben heard of it, he tried to rescue him from them, saying, "We must not kill him." 22 Then he continued, "Do not shed blood.[m] Throw him into the cistern there in the desert, but do not lay a hand on him." His purpose was to rescue him from them and restore him to his father.

23 When Joseph came to his brothers, they stripped him of the long tunic he had on. 24 They seized him and threw him into the cistern, which was empty and dry.

Joseph Sold into Egypt. 25 Then they sat down to eat. Looking up, they saw a caravan of Ismaelites* coming from Galaad, their camels laden with gum, balm, and myrrh, with which they were on their way down to Egypt. 26 Then Juda said to his brothers, "What is to be gained by killing our brother and concealing his blood? 27 Let us sell him to the Ismaelites, and let us not lay hands on him; for he is our brother, our own flesh." His brothers agreed.

28 And when some Madianite traders passed by, they drew Joseph up out of the cistern;[n] they sold him to the Ismaelites for twenty pieces of silver.* And they took Joseph to Egypt.

29 When Ruben went back to the cistern and saw that Joseph was not in it, he rent his garments, returned to his brothers and said, 30 "The boy is not there; and I, where shall I turn?"

31 Then they took Joseph's tunic and after killing a goat, dipped the tunic in blood. 32 They sent someone who brought the long tunic to their father with the message: "We have found this; see whether it is your son's tunic, or not." 33 He recognized it and said, "It is my son's tunic. A wild beast has devoured him;[o] Joseph has been torn to pieces!" 34 Then Jacob rent his garments, girded himself with sackcloth and mourned his son many days. 35 Though all his sons and daughters tried to comfort him, he refused to be consoled, and said, "I will go down mourning, to my son in the nether world." So his father wept over him. 36 Meanwhile the Madianites sold[p] Joseph in Egypt to one of Pharao's officers, Phutiphar, captain of the guard.

CHAPTER 38.

Events from the History of Juda. 1 About that time Juda went down from his relatives to tent near an Adullamite named Hiras.* 2 There Juda saw the daughter of Sue, a Chanaanite.[q] He married her and had relations with her. 3 She conceived and bore a son, whom he named Her. 4 Again she conceived and bore a son, whom she named Onan. 5 She bore still another son and named him Sela;[r] she was at Chezib when she gave birth to him. 6 Juda took a wife named Thamar* for his first-born, Her. 7 *But Juda's first-born, Her,[s] was wicked in the sight of the Lord, so the Lord killed him.

The Sin of Onan. 8 Then Juda said to Onan, "Go to your brother's wife, perform your duty as brother-in-law, and raise up descendants for your brother."[t] 9 Onan knew that the descendants would not be his own, so whenever he had relations with his brother's wife, he wasted his seed on the ground, in order not to raise up descendants for his brother. 10 What he did was evil in the sight of the Lord, and he killed him also. 11 Then Juda said to his daughter-in-law Thamar, "Remain a widow in your father's house until my son Sela grows up"; for Juda feared that Sela too would die as his 37, 28: Twenty pieces of silver: cf Lv 27, 5.

38, 1: Here there is another interruption in the story. The chronological background of this incident is not known. Although Juda seems to have settled among the Chanaanites, he continued to frequent the company of his father and brothers.

38, 6: Thamar was an ancestress of Christ: cf Mt 1, 3.

38, 7-9: It seems that Her was guilty of some kind of sexual sin. Onan committed the sin of contraception which takes its name from him: onanism.

brothers had. So she went away and dwelt in her father's house.

12 After a long time Juda's wife, the daughter of Sue, died. After the time of mourning, Juda went to Thamna with his friend Hiras, the Adullamite, to superintend the shearing of his flock.* 13 When Thamar learned her father-in-law was on his way up to Thamna to shear his flock, 14 she put off her widow's garments, put on a veil, wrapped herself up and sat at the gateway of Enaim on the road to Thamna; for she was aware that Sela had grown up, yet she had not been given to him in marriage.

15 When Juda saw her, he thought she was a harlot; for she had covered her face. 16 He went over to her at the roadside and said, "Come, let me have intercourse with you," not knowing that she was his daughter-in-law. She asked, "What will you give me to have intercourse with me?" 17 He answered, "I will send you a kid from the flock." She responded, "Provided you give a pledge until you send it." 18 Juda said, "What pledge shall I give you?" She replied, "Your signet and cord,* with the staff that you are carrying." He gave them to her, and had relations with her, and she conceived by him. 19 Afterward she arose and went away. She took off her veil and put on her widow's garments.

20 When Juda sent the kid by his friend, the Adullamite, to recover the pledge from the woman, he did not find her. 21 So he asked the men of the place, "Where is the temple-prostitute* who was by the roadside at Enaim?" They answered, "No temple-prostitute has been here."

22 He returned to Juda, saying, "I did not find her; moreover the men of the place told me, 'No temple-prostitute has been here.'" 23 Juda replied, "Let her keep the things; otherwise we shall be ridiculed. I sent this kid, but you could not find her."

24 About three months later Juda was told, "Your daughter-in-law, Thamar, has played the harlot and is pregnant as a result." Juda said, "Bring her out to be burned."* 25 But as she was being brought, she sent word to her father-in-law, "I am with child by the man to whom these things belong; look whose signet, cord and staff these are." 26 Juda recognized them and said, "She is more in the right than I; for I did not give her to my son Sela!" But he had no further relations with her.

27 When the time of her delivery came, there were twins in her womb. 28 During the delivery one put out a hand. The midwife took a scarlet thread, tied it on his hand and said, "This one is born first."* 29 But as he drew back his hand, his brother was born. Then the woman said, "How have you made your way forth?" u For this reason he was called Phares.* 30 Afterward his brother with the scarlet thread on his hand was born,v and he was named Zara.*

CHAPTER 39.

Joseph's Virtue in Temptation. 1 When Joseph was taken down to Egypt, Phutiphar, an Egyptian, one of Pharao's officers, the captain of his bodyguard, bought him w from the Ismaelites who had taken him down there. 2 The Lord was with Joseph so that he was successful. He lived* in the house of his master, the Egyptian. 3 When his master saw that the Lord was with him and prospered all his undertakings, 4 Joseph found favor with him and became his attendant. He placed him in charge of his household, and entrusted all his property to him. 5 From the time he placed him in charge of his household and over all his property, the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house on account of Joseph. The Lord's blessing rested on everything that was his, in house and field. 6 He left everything he had in Joseph's charge, and having him, was concerned about nothing except the food he ate.*

Now Joseph was well formed and handsome. 7 Some time afterward, the wife of his master cast her eyes on Joseph and said, "Lie with me." [8] *But he refused, saying, "Because of me, my master is not concerned about anything in the house, but has put all that he owns in my care. [9] He exercises no greater authority in this house than I, nor has he withheld a single thing from me, except yourself, because you are his wife. How then can I commit this great crime, and sin against God?" [10] She urged Joseph day after day, but he would not consent to lie with her, or to be with her.[x] [11] On one such day, Joseph went into the house to do his work, while none of the household servants was at hand. She seized him by his garment and said, "Lie with me." But Joseph left his garment in her hand, and fled outdoors.

Joseph Cast into Prison. [13] When she saw that he had left his cloak in her hand and had fled outside, [14] she summoned the servants of her house and said to them, "Look! My husband has brought in a Hebrew to us to insult us. He came in to lie with me but I screamed. [15] When he heard me raise my voice and call out, he left his garment beside me, and fled outdoors." [16] She kept the garment beside her until his master came home; [17] then she told him the same story: "The Hebrew slave whom you brought to us came in to insult me, [18] but when I raised my voice and called out, he left his garment beside me and fled outside." [19] When the master heard his wife's story about how his slave had treated her, he became angry. [20] Then Joseph's master took him and committed him to the prison[y] where the king's prisoners were kept; so he remained there in prison.

Joseph Put in Charge of the Prison. [21] But the Lord was with Joseph.[z] He showed kindness to him and gave him favor with the warden, [22] who put him in charge of all prisoners; and everything that was done there was done under his management. [23] The warden did not concern himself with anything in Joseph's charge because the Lord was with him and prospered all that he did.

x 1 Mc 2, 53.—y Ps 104 (105), 18.—z Acts 7, 9.

39, 8f: Note the three motives of Joseph: gratitude to his master, the woman's position as wife, sin in God's eyes.

40, 5: The probable meaning is, each had a dream concerning his own occupation.

40, 8: The nature of the dreams and the absence of an interpreter made them sad.

40, 16: Wicker baskets: open-worked baskets; interpreted by some as "baskets of white bread."

Joseph Interprets Two Dreams. [1] Some time after this the royal butler and baker both offended their lord, the king of Egypt; [2] and Pharao became angry with his two officials, the chief butler and the chief baker, [3] and had them put in custody in the house of the captain of the guard, in the prison where Joseph was confined. [4] The captain of the guard assigned Joseph to them and he became their attendant. They remained in custody for some time.

[5] On one and the same night, the royal butler and baker of Egypt, confined in prison, each had a dream of peculiar significance to himself.* [6] When Joseph came to them in the morning, he saw they were disturbed; [7] so he asked Pharao's officials, in custody with him in his master's house, "Why do you look sad today?" [8] They answered him, "We each had a dream but there is no one to interpret them."* Joseph said to them, "Does not interpretation belong to God? Tell them to me, please."

[9] So the chief butler told Joseph his dream. "In my dream," he said, "there was a vine in front of me. [10] Three branches were on the vine. It budded and blossomed, and its clusters ripened into grapes. [11] Pharao's cup was in my hand and I took the grapes, squeezed them into his cup, and placed it in his hand." [12] Joseph said to him, "This is its meaning: the three branches are three days. [13] Within three days Pharao will take up your case and restore you to your office. You will present Pharao's cup to him as formerly, when you were his butler. [14] So if you think of me when good fortune comes to you, do me the favor of mentioning me to Pharao, and get me out of this house. [15] I was kidnapped from the land of the Hebrews, and here I have done nothing for which I should have been put into a dungeon."

[16] When the chief baker saw that he had given a favorable interpretation, he said to Joseph, "I too had a dream: I had three wicker baskets* on my head. [17] In the top basket was every kind of baked food for Pharao, but the birds were eating it out of the basket on my head." 18 Joseph answered, "This is its meaning: the three baskets are three days. 19 Within three days Pharao will take up your case and hang you on a gibbet; and the birds will eat the flesh off your body."

20 On the third day, which was Pharao's birthday, he made a feast for all his courtiers, and in their presence took up the cases of the chief butler and the chief baker. 21 He reinstated the chief butler in his office of presenting the cup into his hand; 22 but the chief baker he hanged, as Joseph had interpreted to them. 23 The chief butler did not think of Joseph, but forgot him.

Pharao's Dreams. 1 Two full years afterward, Pharao had a dream. He was standing by the Nile. 2 Seven cows, sleek and fat, came up out of the Nile and were browsing in the reed grass. 3 After them, seven other cows, ugly and thin, came up out of the Nile, and stood beside those on the bank of the Nile. 4 The ugly, thin cows devoured the seven sleek, fat ones. Then Pharao awoke. 5 But he fell asleep again and had another dream. Seven ears of grain, fat and fine, were growing on a single stalk. 6 After them sprouted seven other ears, thin and blasted by the east wind. 7 The thin ears swallowed up the seven fat, full ears. Then Pharao awoke to find it was a dream.

8 When morning came he was troubled; so he summoned all the magicians and wise men of Egypt. Pharao related his dream to them, but there was no one who could interpret it for him. 9 Then the chief butler said to Pharao, "Today I must recall my offenses. 10 When Pharao was angry with his servants, and put me and the chief baker in custody in the house of the captain of the guard, 11 on the one same night he and I each had a dream of peculiar significance to himself. 12 A Hebrew youth was with us there, a slave of the captain of the guard. We told him our dreams and he interpreted them for us. He gave each the proper interpretation of his dream; 13 and it turned out just as he had interpreted to us: I was reinstated in my office, but the other was hanged."

Joseph Interprets the Dreams. 14 Then Pharao sent for Joseph, and they brought him quickly out of the dungeon.[a] After he had shaved and changed his clothes, he came into Pharao's presence. 15 Pharao said to Joseph, "I had a dream which no one can interpret; but I have heard it said of you that you know how to interpret a dream." 16 Joseph answered Pharao, "Who but God shall give Pharao a favorable response!"* 17 Then Pharao said to Joseph, "I dreamed I was standing on the bank of the Nile, 18 when seven cows, fat and sleek, came out of the Nile, and were browsing in the reed grass. 19 After them, seven other cows came up, lean, very ugly and scrawny. I have never seen such poor cows as these in all the land of Egypt. 20 The scrawny, ugly cows devoured the first seven fat cows. 21 But when they had consumed them, it was not apparent that they had done so, because they were as ugly as before. Then I awoke. 22 Again I dreamed I saw seven ears of grain, full and fine, growing on a single stalk. 23 After them sprouted seven withered, thin ears, blasted by the east wind. 24 The thin ears swallowed up the seven fine ears. I told the magicians, but no one could explain it to me."

25 Joseph said to Pharao: "Pharao's dream is but one.* God has revealed to Pharao what he is about to do. 26 The seven fine cows are seven years, and the seven fine ears are seven years; it is but one dream. 27 The seven thin, ugly cows which came up after them are seven years; and the seven empty ears blasted by the east wind are seven years. There will be seven years of famine. 28 It is as I told Pharao: God has revealed to Pharao what he is about to do. 29 Seven years of great plenty will come through the land of Egypt, 30 but there will follow seven years of famine, and then all the plenty will be forgotten in the land of Egypt. The famine will devastate the land, 31 and the plenty will not be discernible in the land, because of the famine which is to follow; for it will be very severe. 32 The reason the dream was sent twice* to Pharao is that the matter is determined by God, and God will soon bring it about.

41, 16: Joseph means that only God has the power to interpret Pharao's dream; he has no power of himself.

41, 25: Joseph refers to Pharao's dreams as one because both had the same meaning.

41, 32: The dream was sent in two forms in order that Pharao might believe that God had determined on this course of action and that His will would soon be fulfilled.

33 Let Pharao select an intelligent and prudent man, and give him charge of the land of Egypt. 34 Let Pharao take action, appoint officials over the land, and prepare the land of Egypt through the seven years of plenty. 35 And let them collect all the food of these good years to come,
and store up under the authority of Pharao food in the cities, and preserve it.
36 The food shall be a reserve for the land against the seven years of famine which shall be in the land of Egypt, so that the land will not perish by the famine."

Joseph Is Exalted. 37 The advice pleased Pharao and all his courtiers; [b] 38 so Pharao said to his court, "Can we find another like him in whom is the spirit of God?"*
39 Then Pharao said to Joseph, "Since God has made all this known to you,
there is no one as intelligent and prudent
as you; 40 you shall be in charge of my palace and all my people shall obey your commands; [c] only as regards the royal throne* will I be greater than you." 41 Pharao continued, "I give you charge of the whole land of Egypt." 42 Taking the signet-ring from his own hand, he put it on Joseph's. He dressed him in linen robes, and put a chain of gold around his neck. 43 He had him ride in his second chariot. And they cried out before him,
"Bow down."* In this way he put him in charge of the whole land of Egypt. 44 Pharao said to Joseph, "I am Pharao;
without your command, no one shall move hand or foot in the whole land of Egypt."

45 Then Pharao changed Joseph's name to Saphaneth-phanee,* and gave to him in marriage Aseneth, daughter of Phutiphare, the priest of On. [Joseph made a tour of the land of Egypt.] 46 Joseph was thirty years old when he entered the service of Pharao, king of Egypt. He left Pharao and traversed the whole land of Egypt.

The Years of Plenty and Famine. 47 During the seven years of plenty the land produced abundant crops. 48 So he collected all the food of the seven years of plenty in the land of Egypt, and stored
it in the cities, placing in each city the food from the neighboring fields. 49 Joseph heaped up grain in great quantities like the sands of the sea until he ceased measuring it, for it could not be measured.

50 Before the years of famine came,
two sons were born to Joseph by Asen-eth, [d] daughter of Phutiphare, the priest of On. 51 Joseph named the first-born Manasse;* "Because," he said, "God has made me forget entirely my sufferings and my family." 52 He named the second one Ephraim* and said, "God has made me fruitful in the land of my affliction."

53 When the seven years of plenty in the land of Egypt had passed, 54 the seven years of famine [e] began, as Joseph had foretold. There was famine in all other countries, while in all Egypt there was food. 55 But when the whole land of Egypt also was famished, the people cried to Pharao for food. Pharao said to all the Egyptians, "Go to Joseph and do what he tells you." 56 When the famine had spread throughout the land, Joseph opened all the store-houses and sold grain to the Egyptians; for the famine gripped
the land of Egypt. 57 And all peoples*
came to Egypt to buy grain from Joseph,
for the famine was grievous everywhere.

CHAPTER 42.

First Visit of Joseph's Brothers. 1 When Jacob learned that there was grain for sale in Egypt, he said to his sons, 2 "Why do you look at one another?* I have heard there is grain for sale in Egypt. Go down there and buy some for us, that we may live and not perish." [f] 3 So ten of Joseph's brothers went down to buy grain in Egypt; 4 but Benjamin, Joseph's full brother, Jacob did not send with his brothers, for he thought some harm might befall him. 5 Thus the sons of Israel went with the other purchasers, because of the famine in the land of Chanaan. [g]

41, 38: Spirit of God: does not mean that Pharao believed in the one true God. He believed merely that Joseph was the object of divine favor.

41, 40: Royal throne: Pharao means that he reserves the royal power to himself.

41, 43: Bow down: the meaning of this word in Hebrew is uncertain and many explanations have been offered. Some scholars think that it came into the Hebrew from the Egyptian or Assyrian.

41, 45: Saphaneth-phanee: the exact meaning of this name is not known. St. Jerome proposed: "savior of the world." A modern suggestion is, "The God spoke: he lives."

41, 51: Manasse: from the verb meaning "to cause to forget."

41, 52: Ephraim: comes from the verb meaning "to be fruitful."

41, 57: All peoples: i.e., who lived near Egypt.

6 Now Joseph was the governor of the land;[h] it was he who sold to all the people of the land. Joseph's brothers also came and prostrated themselves before him. 7 Though Joseph saw his brothers, and recognized them, he acted as a stranger toward them and spoke harshly to them. "Where do you come from?" he asked. They replied, "From the land of Chanaan, to buy food."

8 Joseph knew his brothers, but they did not recognize him. 9 Remembering the dreams he had once had about them, he said, "You are spies; you have come to discover the weak spots of the land." 10 But they said to him, "No, my lord; your servants have come to buy food. 11 We are all sons of the same man. We are honest; your servants are not spies." 12 But he said to them, "Not so, but you have come to discover the weak spots of the country." 13 They replied, "We, your servants, were twelve brothers, the sons of the same man in the land of Chanaan. The youngest is at present with our father; another is no more."[i] 14 "As for my saying you are spies," Joseph rejoined, 15 "this shall be your test: as Pharao lives,* you shall not leave this place until your youngest brother comes here! 16 Send one of your number to bring your brother while you others remain in bonds.* Thus shall your statements be tested for their truth; if they are untrue, as Pharao lives, you are spies!" 17 Then he consigned them to custody for three days.

Simeon Kept as Hostage. 18 On the third day Joseph said to them, "If you do this, you shall live. I am a God-fearing man. 19 If you are honest, let one of your brothers remain confined in your prison, while the rest go and carry food for the needs of your families. 20 You shall bring me your youngest brother.[j] Thus your words will be verified, and you shall not die." And they agreed. 21 They said to one another, "Alas! we are guilty regarding our brother, whose anguish of heart we witnessed. When he pleaded with us we did not heed; therefore this anguish has come upon us." 22 Ruben remarked, "Did I not say to you, 'Do not sin against the boy'? But you would not listen. Now comes the reckoning for his blood!"[k] 23 They did not know that Joseph understood them, for an interpreter was employed. 24 Then Joseph withdrew from them and wept. When he returned he spoke with them; and taking Simeon* from them, he bound him before their eyes.

29 When they came to their father Jacob in the land of Chanaan, they told him all that had happened to them. 30 "The man who is lord of the land," they said, "spoke harshly to us and regarded us as spies of the country. 31 But we said to him, 'We are honest men, not spies; 32 we were twelve brothers, sons of the same father. One is no more, and the youngest is at present with our father in the land of Chanaan.' 33 Then this man who is lord of the land said to us, 'Hereby I shall know whether you are honest men: leave one of your brothers with me, take grain for the needs of your families, and go your way. 34 Bring your youngest brother to me, that I may know you are not spies but honest men. Then I will restore your brother to you, and you may trade in the land.' "

Jacob's Grief. 35 When they were emptying their sacks, there in each man's sack was his own purse! At the sight of their purses, they and their father were dismayed. 36 Their father, Jacob, said to them, "It is I whom you bereave. Joseph is no more, Simeon is no more, and now you would take Benjamin. It is I upon whom all this falls!" 37 Ruben said to his father, "Put him in my charge and I will bring him back to you. You may kill my two sons if I do not bring him back to you." 38 But Jacob said, "My son shall not go down with you. His brother is dead, and he alone* remains. If any harm should befall him on the journey you must make, you would bring down my gray hairs with sorrow to the grave."

1 Now the famine in the land was severe, 2 so when they had eaten all the grain they had brought from Egypt, their father said to them, "Go back and buy us some food." 3 But Juda answered, "The man strictly warned us, 'You shall not appear in my presence unless your brother is with you.'[l] 4 If you will let our brother accompany us, we will go down to buy food for you. 5 But if you do not let him, we will not go, because the man said to us, 'You shall not appear in my presence unless your brother is with you.'"[m] 6 Israel replied, "Why did you wrong me by telling the man you had another brother?" 7 They answered, "The man questioned us in detail about ourselves and our family: 'Is your father still living? Have you another brother?' What we told him was in response to these questions. Could we possibly know that he would say, 'Bring your brother down'?"

8 Then Juda said to his father Israel, "Let the boy go with me, that we may begin our journey and save from death both you and ourselves, as well as our children. 9 I will be surety for him. Hold me responsible for him. If I do not bring him back to you and place him before you, I shall be guilty of a crime against you all my life.[n] 10 Had we not delayed, we could by now have made the journey twice." 11 Their father Israel said to them, "If it must be so, then do this: take some of the country's best products in your bags and bring them down to the man for a gift: some balsam, syrup, gum, laudanum, pistachio nuts and almonds. 12 Also take double the money along; for you must return the money placed in the mouths of your sacks, in case a mistake was made. 13 Take your brother too, and go back to the man. 14 May Almighty God give you favor with the man so that he will release to you your other brother as well as Benjamin. As for me, if I must be bereft, let me be bereft."

Second Visit to Egypt. 15 So the men took their gift, and taking double the money with them, they went with Benjamin to Egypt and came before Joseph. 16 When Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to his steward, "Bring the men into the house, and have an animal slaughtered and made ready, for the men are to dine with me at noon." 17 He did as Joseph ordered, bringing the men to Joseph's house.* 18 They became frightened on being led to Joseph's house, and said, "It is on account of the money put back in our sacks the first time that we are brought in, so that he may seek an excuse to enslave us by treachery, and take our asses." 19 So they went to Joseph's steward and spoke to him at the entrance of the house. 20 "If you please, sir," they said, "once before we came down to buy food;[o] 21 but when we reached the stopping-place and opened our sacks, there in the mouth of his sack was each one's money in full. But we have brought it back with us, 22 and also other money to buy food. We do not know who put the money in our sacks." 23 "Be calm," he replied; "have no fear. Your God, the God of your fathers, put treasure in your sacks for you. I received your money." Then he brought Simeon out to them.

Joseph's Brothers Dine with Him. 24 The man brought them into Joseph's house, gave them water to wash their feet, and fodder for their asses. 25 Then they set out the present for Joseph's arrival at noon; for they had heard that they were to dine there.

26 When Joseph came home, they presented him with the gift they had with them in the house, and prostrated themselves before him. 27 He inquired about their health, and said, "Is your father, the old man of whom you spoke, in good health? Is he still living?" 28 "Your servant, our father, is well; he is still living," they said, bowing low to him.* 29 Then 42, 38: He alone: only Joseph and Benjamin were the children of Rachel (cf Gn 43, 29; 44, 20). Jacob believed that Joseph was already dead.

43, 8-10: Less dramatically but apparently more earnestly than Ruben in Gn 42, 37, Juda now promises to bring Benjamin back safely to his father.

43, 14: As for me . . . : an expression of sorrowful resignation.

43, 17: This time they were to dine with Joseph privately in his own house. Before, they had met him publicly.

43, 28: Bowing low to him: the Greek and the Samaritan texts add the words: "And he said, 'Blessed be that man by God.' "

Joseph looked up and saw his brother Benjamin, the son of his own mother, and said, "So this is your youngest brother of whom you spoke to me? God be gracious to you, my son," he continued. 30 Thereupon Joseph broke off and was on the verge of tears, for his heart yearned for his brother. He retired to his room and wept.

31 Then he bathed his face and came out. Restraining himself, he said, "Serve the meal." 32 It was served separately for him, for them, and for his Egyptian guests, because the Egyptians may not eat with the Hebrews; this is abhorrent to the Egyptians. 33 They were seated in his presence in the order of age, from the oldest to the youngest; and at this they looked at one another in amazement. 34 Joseph had portions brought to them from his own table, but Benjamin's portion was five times as much as any other's. They drank and became merry with him.

CHAPTER 44.

The Cup Found in Benjamin's Sack. 1 Joseph gave orders to his steward, saying, "Fill the men's sacks with as much food as they will hold, and put each one's money in the mouth of his sack; 2 *but in that of the youngest put my cup, the silver cup, together with his money for the grain." 3 The steward carried out Joseph's instructions. At daybreak the men were sent off together with their asses. 4 They had not gone far out of the city when Joseph said to his steward, "Go, follow the men, and when you overtake them, say to them, 'Why have you returned evil for good? 5 Why have you stolen the silver cup from me? It is the very one from which my master drinks. He will certainly guess where it is. This is an evil thing that you have done.'"

6 When he overtook them he repeated these words; 7 but they replied, "Why does my lord speak this way? Far be it from your servants to do such a thing! 8 We even brought back to you from the land of Chanaan the money we found in the mouths of our sacks. Would we then steal silver or gold from your master's house? If it is found with any one of us, he shall die, and we will be my lord's slaves." 10 He replied, "Though it ought to be as you suggest, the one with whom it is found shall be my slave; and the rest of you shall go free."

11 Then each one of them quickly lowered his sack to the ground and opened it. 12 A search was made beginning with the oldest and ending with the youngest, and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack. 13 Then they tore their garments, and having reloaded the asses, returned to the city. 14 Juda and his brothers arrived at Joseph's house while he was still there, so they fell to the ground before him. 15 Joseph said to them, "What is this you have done? Did you not know that such a man as I would guess correctly?"

16 Juda replied, *"What can we say to my lord? How can we explain matters so as to clear ourselves? God has discovered the guilt of your servants. We are indeed the slaves of my lord, both we and the one with whom the cup was found." 17 "Far be it from me to act thus," said Joseph. "The one with whom the cup was found shall be my slave; as for the rest, go in peace to your father."

18 Then Juda approached him and said, "I beg you, my lord, let your servants speak to my lord, and let not your anger be aroused against your servant; you are as Pharao himself. 19 My lord asked his servants, 'Have you a father or a brother?' 20 And we answered my lord, 'We have an aged father, and a young brother, a child of his old age; his brother is dead, so that he is the only one left of his mother's children, and his father loves him.' p 21 Then you said to your servants, 'Bring him to me that I may look after him.' 22 We told my lord, 'The boy cannot leave his father; his father would die if he were to leave him.' 23 But you said to your servants, 'Unless your youngest brother comes with you, you shall not come into my presence again.' q 24 When we returned to your servant, my father, we reported to him the words of my lord. 25 Later our father said, 'Go back and buy some food for us.' 26 But we answered, 'We cannot go. If our youngest brother is with us, we will go down; for we may not see the man unless our youngest brother is with us.' 27 Then your servant, my father, said to us, 'You know that my 44, 2-5: Joseph acted in this manner to test his brothers once more. If he had found them as hostile to Benjamin as they had been to him, he would probably have kept his younger brother in Egypt lest harm come to him on the way home, and would have sent a message to Jacob in some other way.

wife bore me two sons; [28] one is gone from me, and I said: He has surely been torn to pieces; I have not seen him since.[r] [29] If you take this one also from me, and some harm befalls him, you will bring down my gray hairs in sorrow to the grave.' [30] Now if I go to your servant, my father, and the boy is not with us—his life is so bound up with the life of the boy—he will die as soon as he sees that the boy is not with us; [31] and your servants will bring down the gray hairs of your servant, our father, in sorrow to the grave. [32] However, your servant became surety for the boy to my father, saying, 'If I do not bring him back to you, I will be guilty of a crime against you all my life.'[s] [33] Therefore, let your servant remain in place of the boy as a slave of my lord, but let the boy return with his brothers. [34] How can I return to my father without the boy? Never could I witness the anguish that would come to my father!"

CHAPTER 45.

Joseph Makes Himself Known. [1] Joseph could not control himself before all his attendants, so he exclaimed, "Let everyone withdraw from me." No one was with Joseph when he made himself known to his brothers. [2] He wept aloud so that the Egyptians heard it, and the household of Pharao heard it. [3] Joseph said to his brothers, "I am Joseph. Is my father still alive?" But his brothers could not answer him because they were terrified in his presence. [4] Then he said to them, "Come closer to me." When they drew near, he continued, "I am your brother Joseph, whom you sold into Egypt.[t] [5] Do not be distressed nor angry with yourselves that you sold me here; for God sent me before you to save life.[u] [6] For two years now
the famine has been in the land, and for five more years there will be neither plowing nor reaping. [7] God sent me before you to preserve a remnant for you in the land,
and to deliver you in a striking way. [8]
Not you but God sent me here, and made me a father to Pharao,* lord of all his house, and ruler over all the land of Egypt.

Joseph's Message to Jacob. [9] "Go quickly to my father and say to him, 'Your son Joseph sends you this message: God has made me master of all Egypt; come down to me, and do not delay.[v] [10] You shall live in the land of Gesen* and be near me, you, your sons, your grandsons, your flocks, your herds, and all that belongs to you. [11] Five years of famine are still to come. I will provide for you there, that you, and your household, and all who belong to you may not be impoverished.' [12] You yourselves see, and my brother Benjamin sees, that it is I who speak to you. [13] Tell my father of my splendor in Egypt, and of all that you have seen. Hurry now and bring my father here." [14] Then Joseph fell on the neck of his brother Benjamin and wept; and Benjamin wept on his neck. [15] Joseph kissed all his brothers, weeping over each,
and after that his brothers conversed with
him.

[16] When the news was received at Pharao's house that Joseph's brothers had arrived, Pharao and his court were pleased. [17] Pharao said to Joseph, "Say to your brothers, 'Do this: load your animals, be off to the land of Chanaan; [18]
then come to me with your father and your families,[w] and I will give you the best of the land of Egypt so that you shall eat the fat of the land.' [19] Give them
this command also: 'Take carts from the land of Egypt for your little ones and your wives. Bring your father and come.
[20] Do not be concerned about your goods,
for the best of the whole land of Egypt
is yours.' "

[21] The sons of Israel did this. Joseph gave them carts as Pharao had commanded, and provisions for the journey. [22] He gave each of them one festal garment, but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver and five festal garments.
[23] Likewise to his father he sent ten asses loaded with the good things of Egypt, and ten she-asses loaded with grain, bread and provisions for his father on the journey.
[24] Then he sent his brothers on their way;
and as they departed he said to them,
"Do not quarrel on the way."* [25] So they went up from Egypt and came to their father Jacob in the land of Chanaan. [26]
They told him, "Joseph is still alive, and

But he was unmoved because he did not believe them. 27 However, when they related to him all that Joseph had said to them, and when he saw the carts Joseph had sent to convey him, their father Jacob revived. 28 "It is enough," said Israel. "My son Joseph is still alive; I will go and see him before I die."

CHAPTER 46.

Jacob Goes to Egypt. 1 Israel set out with all that belonged to him; and when he arrived at Bersabee* he offered sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac. 2 At night in a vision God said to Israel, "Jacob, Jacob." And he answered, "Here I am." 3 Then he said, "I am God, the God of your father. Do not fear to go down to Egypt, for there I will make you a great people. 4 I will go down to Egypt with you, and will surely bring you up again, after Joseph's hand has closed your eyes."

5 Jacob departed from Bersabee. The sons of Israel conveyed their father Jacob, their little ones, and their wives in the carts Pharao had sent to transport him. 6 They also took their stock and the goods they had got in the land of Chanaan; and Jacob [x] and all of his descendants migrated to Egypt. 7 With him were his sons and grandsons, his daughters and granddaughters; with all his descendants Jacob migrated to Egypt.

8 *These are the names of the Israelites, Jacob and his descendants, who migrated to Egypt: [y] Ruben, Jacob's first-born, 9 and the sons of Ruben: [z] Henoch, Phallu, Hesron and Charmi; 10 the sons of Simeon: [a] Jamuel, Jamin, Ahod, Jachin, Sohar and Saul, the son of a Chanaanite woman; 11 the sons of Levi: [b] Gerson, Caath and Merari; 12 the sons of Juda: [c] Her, Onan, Sela, Phares and Zara, of whom Her and Onan, however, died in the land of Chanaan; and the sons of Phares were Hesron and Hamul. 13 The sons of Issachar: [d] Thola, Phua, Jasub and Semron; 14 the sons of Zabulon: [e] Sared, Elon and Jahelel. 15 These are the sons whom Lia bore to Jacob in Phaddan-Aram, together with his daughter Dina. The total number of these descendants, male and female, was thirty-three.

16 The sons of Gad: [f] Sephon, Haggi, Suni, Esebon, Heri, Arodi and Ariel. 17 The sons of Aser: [g] Jemna, Jesua, Jesui and Baria, with their sister Sara; and Baria's sons were Heber and Melchiel. 18 These are the descendants of Zelpha, whom Laban gave to his daughter Lia; these she bore to Jacob, sixteen persons in all.

19 The sons of Jacob's wife Rachel were Joseph and Benjamin. 20 Sons were born to Joseph in the land of Egypt, [h] Manasse and Ephraim, whom Aseneth, the daughter of Phutiphare, the priest of On, bore to him. 21 *The sons of Benjamin: [i] Bala, Bechor, Asbel, Gera, Naaman, Ehi, Ros, Mopphim, Hopphim and Ared. 22 These are the descendants of Rachel who were born to Jacob fourteen persons in all.

23 The son of Dan: [i] Husim. 24 The sons of Nephthali: [k] Jaseel, Guni, Jeser and Sellum. 25 These were the descendants of Bala, whom Laban gave to his daughter Rachel; these she bore to Jacob, seven persons in all.

26 The total number of persons belonging to Jacob (except his sons' wives) who came to Egypt, his direct descendants, was sixty-six.[l] 27 The sons of Joseph who were born to him in Egypt were two; the total number* of Jacob's household who migrated to Egypt was seventy.[m]

Meeting of Jacob and Joseph. 28 Israel sent Juda ahead of him to Joseph, so that he would meet him in Gesen. On their arrival in the land of Gesen, 29 Joseph made ready his chariot and rode to meet his father Israel in Gesen. When he met him he fell on his neck, weeping long in his arms. 30 Israel said to Joseph, "Now I can die, after seeing you still alive."

31 Joseph said to his brothers and to his father's household, "I shall go and inform Pharao, and say to him, 'My brothers and my father's household, who lived in the land of Chanaan, have come to me. 32 The men are shepherds, for they breed livestock. They have brought their flocks and herds and all their possessions.' 33 Accordingly, when he summons you and asks, 'What is your occupation?' 34 you must answer, 'We your servants have bred livestock from our youth until now, both we and our ancestors,' in order that you may sojourn in the land of Gesen." For shepherds are all repugnant to the Egyptians.*

Settlement in Gesen. 1 Joseph came and told Pharao, "My father and brothers have come from the land of Chanaan with their flocks and herds and all their possessions, and they are now in the land of Gesen." 2 He had selected five of his brothers, whom he presented to Pharao. 3 When Pharao asked them, "What is your occupation?" they answered, "Your servants, both we and our ancestors, are shepherds. 4 We have come to sojourn in your land,[n] for there is no pasture for your servants' flocks, and the famine is severe in the land of Chanaan. Permit your servants to settle in the land of Gesen." 5 Pharao said to Joseph, *"Your father and your brothers have come to you. 6 The land of Egypt is at your disposal. Settle your father and your brothers in the choicest section of the land. Let them live in the land of Gesen, and if you know of any able men among them, place them in charge of my own stock."

7 Then Joseph brought his father Jacob, and presented him to Pharao. Jacob greeted Pharao, 8 who said to him, "How old are you?" 9 Jacob answered Pharao, "The length of my pilgrimage has been one hundred and thirty years; short and wretched has been my life, nor does it compare with the years my fathers lived during their pilgrimage." 10 Then Jacob bade Pharao goodbye and left his presence.

11 Joseph settled his father and brothers in the land of Egypt, giving them property in the choicest* section of the land, in the district of Rameses, as Pharao had ordered. 12 Joseph provided his father and brothers and all his father's household with food, according to the number of their dependents. 13 There was no food in the entire land, for the famine was very severe; Egypt and Chanaan were languishing because of the famine. 14 Joseph collected all the money he found in Egypt and in Chanaan as payment for the grain that was bought, and he brought it to Pharao's palace.

The People Become Slaves. 15 When there was no more money in Egypt and Chanaan, all the Egyptians came to Joseph clamoring, "Give us food lest we die in your presence; we have no money." 16 Joseph replied, "If you have no money bring me your livestock, and I will give you food in exchange for it." 17 So they brought their stock to Joseph, who bartered food for horses, flocks, herds and asses; and he supplied them with food in exchange for all their stock that year. 18 The year ended, and they came again the next year* and said: "We cannot hide from my lord that our money is gone, and our livestock has come into the possession of my lord. There is nothing left for my lord but our bodies and our land. 19 Why should we and our land perish before your eyes? Buy us and our land in exchange for food, and we and our land will be the property of Pharao. Give us seed that we may live and not perish, and the land may not become a waste." 20 Joseph therefore bought all the land of Egypt for Pharao, for every one of the Egyptians sold his field because the famine was unbearable for them. Thus the land became Pharao's, 21 and from one end of Egypt to the other Joseph made the people slaves.* 22 But the priests' lands he did not buy,* because they had a stated allowance from Pharao, and lived on the allowance which Pharao granted them.

46, 34: Joseph wisely settled his father and brothers in Gesen, because it was suitable for their flocks and herds. Here too they would avoid too frequent contact with the Egyptians, who despised shepherds.

47, 5f: The Greek transposes as follows: "Pharao said to Joseph, 'Let them live in the land of Gesen. And if you know of any able men among them, place them in charge of my own stock.' So Jacob and his sons came into Egypt to Joseph. And Pharao, king of Egypt, heard. And he spoke to Joseph, 'Your father and your brothers have come to you. The land of Egypt is at your disposal. Settle your father and brothers in the best land.' "

47, 11: Choicest: i.e., most suitable for shepherds. Rameses: so called in anticipation; a city was built there later, probably by Ramses II.

47, 18: Next year: probably the fourth or fifth year of the famine, or even later. Cf Gn 45, 11.

47, 21: Slaves: the people, however, were allowed to keep four fifths of the revenue for themselves (cf v 24). An income tax of twenty per cent was not considered excessive.

47, 22: Joseph exempts the priests because of time-honored custom.

Therefore they did not sell their land.
23 Joseph said to the people: "Today,
indeed, I have bought you and your land for Pharao. Here is your seed to sow the land. 24 Of the produce you must give a fifth part of the crops to Pharao; four fifths are for yourselves for seeding and for food for yourselves, your families and your dependents." 25 They answered,
"You have kept us alive; let us win the favor of my lord, and we will be slaves of Pharao." 26 So Joseph made it an ordinance for the land of Egypt, which holds to this day, that one fifth is Pharao's.
Only the land of the priests did not become Pharao's.

Jacob's Death Approaches. 27 Now
Israel dwelt in Egypt, in the land of Gesen. They acquired property there, were fruitful, and became very numerous.[o] 28
Jacob lived seventeen years in the land of Egypt, and the length of his life was one hundred and forty-seven years. 29 As the time approached for Israel to die, he summoned his son Joseph and said to him, "If I find favor with you, put your hand under my thigh, and act kindly and faithfully toward me. Do not bury me in Egypt, 30 but let me rest with my fathers;[p] carry me out of Egypt and bury me in their sepulchre." 31 He answered, "I will do as you say." Then Jacob said, "Swear to me"; and Joseph swore to him. Then Israel bowed toward the head of the bed.

CHAPTER 48.

Jacob Adopts Joseph's Sons. 1 After these events it was reported to Joseph,
"Your father is ill." So he came to see Jacob, bringing along his two sons, Ma-nasse and Ephraim. 2 When Jacob was told, "Your son Joseph has come to see you," Israel rallied his strength and sat up in bed. 3 Jacob said to Joseph, "God Almighty appeared to me at Luza in the land of Chanaan.[q] He blessed me 4 and said, 'I will make you fruitful and numerous; I will make you many nations,
and I will give this land to your descendants after you as a possession for all time.' 5 Therefore I adopt your two sons who were born to you in the land of Egypt before I joined you here. Ephraim and Manasse* shall be mine even as Ruben and Simeon. 6 The children born to you after them shall be yours, and they shall be named after their brothers and included in their inheritance. 7 *And as for me, when I was returning from Phaddan, to my sorrow Rachel died during the journey in the land of Chanaan,
a short distance from the environs of Ephratha. And I buried her there on the road to Ephratha,[r] that is, Bethlehem."

8 When Israel saw Joseph's sons and asked, "Who are these?", 9 Joseph said to his father, "They are my sons, whom God has given me here." Then he said,
"Bring them to me that I may bless them." 10 Now Israel's eyes were dim from old age so that he could not see.
Joseph brought them near him, and he kissed and embraced them. 11 Then Israel said to Joseph, "I had no hope of ever seeing you, and now God has allowed me to see your children as well."

12 Joseph took them away from his knees, and prostrated himself before him with his face to the ground. 13 Afterward Joseph took the two of them, Ephraim on his right at Israel's left, Manasse on his left at Israel's right,* and led them to him. 14 But Israel stretched out his right hand and placed it on the head of Ephraim, though he was the younger,
and his left hand on Manasse's head—
thus crossing his hands—although Ma-nasse was the first-born. 15 Blessing Joseph, he said, [s] "May the God in whose presence my fathers Abraham and Isaac lived, the God who has been my shepherd all my life until this day, 16 the angel
who has delivered me from all evil, bless the boys; that my name and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac be preserved through them; and may they grow in numbers on the earth."

17 When Joseph saw that his father had placed his right hand on Ephraim's head,
he was displeased, so he took hold of his father's hand to remove it from Ephraim's head to that of Manasse. 18 He said to his father, "That is not right, father, for this one is the first-born; put

48, 5: Manasse and Ephraim were adopted by Jacob as his own children and eventually became the respective heads of the tribes which bore their names.

48, 7: Joseph's presence reminds the dying Jacob of his deceased wife Rachel, the mother of Joseph and Benjamin.

your right hand on his head." [19] But his father refused. "I know, my son, I know," he said. "He too shall become a people; he too shall be great; but his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his descendants shall become a multitude of nations." [20] So he blessed them that day and said, [t] "By you shall the people of Israel pronounce blessings, saying, 'God make you like Ephraim and Manasse' "; thus placing Ephraim ahead of Manasse.

[21] Then Israel said to Joseph, "I am about to die. But God will be with you, and will lead you back to the land of your fathers; [22] I give you one more portion* than your brothers, which I captured from the Amorrites with my sword and bow." [u]

CHAPTER 49.

Jacob Prophesies of His Sons. [1] Then Jacob summoned his sons and said: *"Come together, I will tell you what shall befall you in days to come.

[2] "Gather together and listen, you sons of Jacob, listen to Israel your father. [3] Ruben, you are my first-born, my strength, the first-fruit of my manhood, exceedingly proud, exceedingly fierce. I will disperse them in Jacob, I will scatter them in Israel.

But when the tribes of Israel later entered the Promised Land, Sichem was in the territory assigned to Ephraim. Jacob's reference to his capture of the portion with his sword and bow suggests that after the destruction of Sichem (Gn 34, 27) he had to return and win it back by force.

Jacob's Last Words; His Death. 28 All these are the twelve tribes of Israel, and this is what their father said to them. He blessed them, and gave each his proper blessing. 29 He gave them this charge, "I am about to be gathered to my people. Bury me with my fathers in the cave which is in the field of Ephron, the Hethite, 30 the cave in the field of Machphela, facing Mamre in the land of Chanaan. Abraham bought it from Ephron, the Hethite, together with the field, for use as a burial ground.[y] 31 There Abraham and his wife Sara are buried; there Isaac and his wife Rebecca are buried; and it was there I buried Lia." 32 [The field with its cave was purchased from the Hethites.]

33 When Jacob had finished giving directions to his sons, he drew up his feet into the bed and expired. And he was gathered to his people.

CHAPTER 50.

Jacob Mourned in Egypt. 1 Joseph fell on his father's face, weeping over him and kissing him. 2 Then he ordered the physicians among his servants to embalm his father. They embalmed Israel, 3 spending forty days at it, for it takes that much time to embalm. And the Egyptians mourned Israel for seventy days.

Buried in Chanaan. 4 When the days of mourning had passed, Joseph said to Pharao's household, "If I find favor with you, say to Pharao 5 that my father at the point of death made me promise on oath to bury him in the sepulchre that he dug for himself in the land of Chanaan.[z] Now therefore I beg to go up to bury my father, and I will return." 6 Pharao replied, "Go up, and bury your father as he made you swear."

7 So Joseph went up to bury his father, and all Pharao's servants, the elders of his household and all the elders of the land of Egypt went with him, 8 together with all of Joseph's household, his brothers, and all his father's household. They left only their children, their flocks and their herds in the land of Gesen. 9 Chariots and charioteers too went up with him, so that there was a very large caravan.

10 When they arrived at Goren-Atad,* which is beyond the Jordan, they held an exceedingly great lamentation there. And Joseph mourned his father for seven days. 11 When the inhabitants of the land, the Chanaanites, noticed the mourning at Goren-Atad, they said, "That is a solemn mourning the Egyptians are observing." Therefore it was named Abel-Mesraim,* which is beyond the Jordan. 12 Jacob's sons did for him what he had commanded them. 13 They carried him into the land of Chanaan, and buried him in the cave in the field of Machphela, facing Mamre. Both the cave and the field Abraham had bought from Ephron, the Hethite, for use as a burial ground.[a]

Joseph Reassures His Brothers. 14 After Joseph had buried his father, he returned to Egypt with his brothers and all who had gone up with him to bury his father. 15 Joseph's brothers were fearful after their father's death, and said, "What if Joseph should hate us, and pay us back for all the harm we did him!" 16 So they sent this message to Joseph, "Before he died, your father gave us this command, 17 'Thus shall you say to Joseph: Jacob begs* you to forgive your brothers' crime, and the sin they committed in doing you harm.' Now we also pray that you forgive the crime of the servants of the God of your father." Joseph wept over their message to him. 18 Then his brothers came to him in person and prostrated themselves before him, saying, "We are your slaves." 19 But Joseph said to them, "Do not fear; can I take the place of God? 20 You intended evil against me, but God intended it for good, to do as he has done today, namely, to save the lives of many people.[b] 21 Therefore do not fear. I will provide for you and your dependents."[c] Thus he reassured them, speaking kindly to them.

Last Days and Death of Joseph. 22 Joseph remained in Egypt with all his father's household. He lived one hundred and ten years. 23 He saw Ephraim's children to the third generation. The sons of Machir too, the son of Manasse,[d] were born on Joseph's knees.*

24 Joseph said to his brothers, "I am about to die, but God will certainly come to you and lead you up from this land to the land which he promised on oath to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."[e] 25 Joseph made the sons of Israel swear that when God should come to them, they would carry his bones with them from that place.[f]

26 Joseph died at the age of one hundred and ten years. He was embalmed and placed in a coffin in Egypt.

THE BOOK OF EXODUS

The second book of the Pentateuch is called Exodus from the Greek word for "departure," because the central event narrated in it is the departure of the Israelites from Egypt. It continues the history of the chosen people from the point where the Book of Genesis leaves off. It recounts the oppression by the Egyptians of the ever-increasing descendants of Jacob and their miraculous deliverance by God through Moses, who led them across the Red Sea to Mount Sinai where they entered into a special covenant with the Lord.

These events were of prime importance to the chosen people, for they became thereby an independent nation and enjoyed a unique relationship with God. Through Moses God gave to the Israelites at Mount Sinai the "Law": the moral, civil and ritual legislation by which they were to become a holy people, in whom the promise of a Savior of all mankind would be fulfilled.

The principal divisions of Exodus are: I. The Israelites in Egypt (Ex 1, 1—12, 36). II. The Exodus from Egypt and the Journey to Sinai (Ex 12, 37—18, 27). III. The Covenant at Mount Sinai (Ex 19, 1—24, 18). IV. The Dwelling and Its Furnishings (Ex 25, 1—40, 38).

I: THE ISRAELITES IN EGYPT

CHAPTER 1.

Jacob's Descendants in Egypt. 1 These are the names of the sons of Israel* who, accompanied by their households, migrated with Jacob into Egypt: 2 Ruben, Simeon, Levi and Juda; 3 Issachar, Zabulon and Benjamin; 4 Dan and Nephthali; Gad and Aser. 5 The total number of the direct descendants of Jacob was seventy.[a] Joseph was already in Egypt.

6 Now Joseph and all his brothers and that whole generation died.[b] 7 But the Israelites were fruitful and prolific. They became so numerous and strong that the land was filled with them.

The Oppression. 8 Then a new king, who knew nothing of Joseph,* came to power in Egypt.[c] 9 He said to his subjects, "Look how numerous and powerful the Israelite people are growing, more so than we ourselves! 10 Come, let us deal shrewdly with them to stop their increase; otherwise, in time of war they too may join our enemies to fight against us, and so leave our country."

a Gn 46, 27; Dt 10, 22; Acts 7, 14.—b Gn 50, 26.—c Acts 7, 18.

1, 1: Sons of Israel: here literally the first-generation sons of Jacob. Cf v 5. However, beginning with Ex 1, 7 the same Hebrew phrase refers to the more remote descendants of Jacob; hence, from here on, it is ordinarily rendered as "the Israelites." Households: the family in its fullest sense, including wives, children and servants.

1, 2: The sons of Jacob are listed here according to the respective mothers. Cf Gn 29, 31; 30, 20; 35, 16-20.

1, 5: Direct descendants: literally, persons coming from the loins of Jacob; hence, wives and servants are here excluded. Cf Gn 46, 26.

1, 8: Who knew nothing of Joseph: this king ignored the services that Joseph had rendered to Egypt.

11 Accordingly, taskmasters were set over the Israelites to oppress them with forced labor.[d] Thus they had to build for Pharao* the supply cities of Phithom and Rameses. 12 Yet the more they were oppressed, the more they multiplied and spread. The Egyptians, then, dreaded the Israelites 13 and reduced them to cruel slavery, 14 making life bitter for them with hard work in mortar* and brick and all kinds of field work—the whole cruel fate of slaves.

Command to the Midwives. 15 The king of Egypt told the Hebrew midwives, one of whom was called Sephra and the other Phua, 16 "When you act as midwives for the Hebrew women and see them giving birth,* if it is a boy, kill him; but if it is a girl, she may live." 17 The midwives, however, feared God; they did not do as the king of Egypt had ordered them, but let the boys live. 18 So the king summoned the midwives and asked them,
"Why have you acted thus, allowing the boys to live?" 19 The midwives answered Pharao, "The Hebrew women are not like the Egyptian women. They are robust and give birth before the midwife arrives." 20 Therefore God dealt well with the midwives. The people, too, increased and grew strong. 21 And because the midwives feared God, he built up families for them. 22 Pharao then commanded all his subjects, "Throw into the river* every boy that is born to the Hebrews,[e] but you may let all the girls live."

CHAPTER 2.

Birth and Adoption of Moses. 1 Now a certain man of the house of Levi married a Levite woman,[f] 2 who conceived and bore a son. Seeing that he was a goodly child, she hid him for three months.[g] 3 When she could hide him no longer, she took a papyrus basket,*
daubed it with bitumen and pitch, and putting the child in it, placed it among the reeds on the river bank. 4 His sister stationed herself at a distance to find out what would happen to him.

5 Pharao's daughter came down to the river to bathe, while her maids walked along the river bank. Noticing the basket among the reeds, she sent her handmaid to fetch it. 6 On opening it, she looked,
and lo, there was a baby boy, crying!
She was moved with pity for him and said, "It is one of the Hebrews' children."
7 Then his sister asked Pharao's daughter,
"Shall I go and call one of the Hebrew women to nurse the child for you?" 8
"Yes, do so," she answered. So the maiden went and called the child's own mother.
9 Pharao's daughter said to her, "Take this child and nurse it for me, and I will repay you." The woman therefore took the child and nursed it. 10 When the child grew,* she brought him to Pharao's daughter, who adopted him as her son[h] and called him Moses; for she said, "I drew him out of the water."

Moses' Flight to Madian. 11 On one occasion, after Moses had grown up,* when he visited his kinsmen[i] and witnessed their forced labor, he saw an Egyptian striking a Hebrew, one of his own kinsmen. 12 Looking about and seeing no one, he slew the Egyptian and hid him in the sand. 13 The next day he went out again, and now two Hebrews were fighting! So he asked the culprit, "Why are you striking your fellow Hebrew?" 14 But he replied, "Who has appointed you ruler and judge over us? Are you thinking of killing me as you killed the Egyptian?"
Then Moses became afraid and thought,
"The affair must certainly be known."

15 Pharao, too, heard of the affair and sought to put him to death. But Moses fled from him and stayed in the land of Madian.[j] As he was seated there by a well, 16 seven daughters of a priest of Madian
came to draw water and fill the troughs to water their father's flock. 17 But some shepherds came and drove them away.
Then Moses got up and defended them and watered their flock. 18 When they returned to their father Raguel,* he said to

1, 11: Pharao: not a personal name, but a title common to all the kings of Egypt.

1, 14: Mortar: either the wet clay with which the bricks were made, as in Na 3, 14, or the cement used between the bricks in building, as in Gn 11, 3.

1, 16: And see them giving birth: the Hebrew text is uncertain.

1, 22: The river: the Nile, which was "the" river for the Egyptians.

2, 3: Basket: literally, "chest" or "ark"; the same Hebrew word is used in Gn 6, 14 for Noe's ark. Here, however, the chest was made of papyrus stalks.

2, 10: When the child grew: probably when he was weaned or a little later. Moses: in Hebrew, Mosheh; the Hebrew word for "draw out" is mashah. This explanation of the name is not intended as a scientific etymology but merely as a play on words. The name is probably derived from an Egyptian word for "son."

2, 11: After Moses had grown up: Acts 7, 23 indicates that this was after an interval of nearly forty years. Cf Ex 7, 7. Striking: probably in the sense of "flogging"; according to some, "slaying."

2, 18: Raguel: he was also called Jethro. Cf Ex 3, 1; 4, 18; 18, 1.

them, "How is it you have returned so soon today?" [19] They answered, "An Egyptian* saved us from the interference of the shepherds. He even drew water for us and watered the flock!" [20] "Where is the man?" he asked his daughters. "Why did you leave him there? Invite him to have something to eat." [21] Moses agreed to live with him, and the man gave him his daughter Sepphora in marriage. [22] She bore him a son, whom he named Gersam;* for he said, "I am a stranger in a foreign land." k

The Burning Bush. [23] A long time passed, during which the king of Egypt died. Still the Israelites groaned and cried out because of their slavery. As their cry for release went up to God,l [24] he heard their groaning and was mindful of his covenant m with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. [25] He saw the Israelites and knew. . . .

[1] Meanwhile Moses was tending the flock of his father-in-law Jethro, the priest of Madian. Leading the flock across the desert, he came to Horeb, the mountain of God.* [2] There an angel of the Lord* appeared to him in fire flaming out of a bush.n As he looked on, he was surprised to see that the bush, though on fire, was not consumed. [3] So Moses decided, "I must go over to look at this remarkable sight, and see why the bush is not burned."

The Call of Moses. [4] When the Lord saw him coming over to look at it more closely, God called out to him from the bush, "Moses! Moses!" He answered, "Here I am." [5] God said, "Come no nearer! o Remove the sandals from your feet, for the place where you stand is holy ground. [6] p I am the God of your father," he continued, "the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob."* Moses hid his face, for he was afraid to look at God. [7] But the Lord said, "I have witnessed the affliction of my people in Egypt and have heard their cry of complaint against their slave drivers, so I know well what they are suffering. [8] Therefore I have come down* to rescue them from the hands of the Egyptians and lead them out of that land into a good and spacious land, a land flowing with milk and honey, the country of the Chanaanites, Hethites, Amorrites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites.q [9] So indeed the cry of the Israelites has reached me, and I have truly noted that the Egyptians are oppressing them. [10] Come, now! I will send you to Pharao to lead my people, the Israelites, out of Egypt."

[11] But Moses said to God, "Who am I* that I should go to Pharao and lead the Israelites out of Egypt?" [12] He answered, "I will be with you; and this shall be your proof that it is I who have sent you: when you bring my people out of Egypt, you will worship God on this very mountain." [13] "But," said Moses to God, "when I go to the Israelites and say to them, 'The God of your fathers has sent me to you,' if they ask me, 'What is his name?' what am I to tell them?" [14] God replied, "I am who am." * Then he added, "This is what you shall tell the Israelites: I AM sent me to you."

[15] God spoke further to Moses, "Thus shall you say to the Israelites: The Lord, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob, has sent me to you. This is my name forever; r this is my title for all generations.

[16] "Go and assemble the elders* of the

2, 19: An Egyptian: Moses was probably wearing Egyptian dress, or spoke Egyptian to Raguel's daughters.

2, 22: Gersam: the name is explained as if it came from the Hebrew word ger, "stranger," joined to the Hebrew word sham, "there." Some Greek and Latin manuscripts add here a passage taken from Ex 18, 4.

3, 1: The mountain of God: probably given this designation because of the divine apparitions which took place there, such as on this occasion and when the Israelites were there after the departure from Egypt.

3, 2: An angel of the Lord: the visual form under which God appeared and spoke to men is referred to indifferently in the Old Testament either as God's angel or as God Himself. Cf Gn 16, 7. 13.

3, 6: The God of Abraham . . . Isaac . . . Jacob: not a strange deity but one whom the Israelites already knew. Christ cited this passage as a proof of the resurrection of the dead, arguing that, since the patriarchs still live on in God, He is the God of the living. Cf Mt 22, 32; Mk 12, 26; Lk 20, 37.

3, 8: I have come down: a figure of speech signifying an extraordinary divine intervention in human affairs. Cf Gn 11, 5. 7. Flowing with milk and honey: an expression denoting agricultural prosperity, which seems to have been proverbial in its application to Palestine. Cf Ex 13, 5; Nm 13, 27; Jos 5, 6; Jer 11, 5; 32, 22; Ez 20, 6. 15.

3, 11: Who am I: besides naturally shrinking from such a tremendous undertaking, Moses realized that, as a fugitive from Pharao, he could hardly hope to carry out a mission to him. Perhaps he also recalled that on one occasion even his own kinsmen questioned his authority. Cf Ex 2, 14.

3, 14: I am who am: apparently this utterance is the source of the word Yahweh, the proper personal name of the God of Israel. It is commonly explained in reference to God as the absolute and necessary Being. It may be understood of God as the Source of all created beings. Out of reverence for this name, the term Adonai, "my Lord," was later used as a substitute. The word Lord in the present version represents this traditional usage. The word "Jehovah" arose from a false reading of this name as it is written in the current Hebrew text.

3, 16: Elders: the Israelite leaders, who were usually older men. They were representatives of the people.

Israelites, and tell them: The Lord, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, has appeared to me and said: I am concerned about you and about the way you are being treated in Egypt; [17] so I have decided to lead you up out of the misery of Egypt into the land of the Chanaanites, Hethites, Amorrites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites, a land flowing with milk and honey.

[18] "Thus they will heed your message. Then you and the elders of Israel shall go to the king of Egypt and say to him: [s] The Lord, the God of the Hebrews, has sent us word. Permit us, then, to go a three days' journey in the desert, that we may offer sacrifice to the Lord, our God.

[19] "Yet I know that the king of Egypt will not allow you to go unless he is forced. [20] I will stretch out my hand, therefore, and smite Egypt by doing all kinds of wondrous deeds there. After that he will send you away. [21] I will even make the Egyptians so well-disposed toward this people that, when you leave, you will not go empty-handed. [22] [t] Every woman shall ask her neighbor and her house guest for silver and gold articles* and for clothing to put on your sons and daughters. Thus you will despoil the Egyptians."

Confirmation of Moses' Mission. [1] "But," objected Moses, "suppose they will not believe me, nor listen to my plea? For they may say, 'The Lord did not appear to you.'" [2] The Lord therefore asked him, "What is that in your hand?" "A staff," he answered. [3] The Lord then said, "Throw it on the ground." When he threw it on the ground it was changed into a serpent,[u] and Moses shied away from it. [4] "Now, put out your hand," the Lord said to him, "and take hold of its tail." So he put out his hand and laid hold of it, and it became a staff in his hand. [5] "This will take place so that they may believe," he continued, "that the Lord, the God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, the God of Jacob, did appear to you."

[6] Again the Lord said to him, "Put your hand in your bosom." He put it in his bosom, and when he withdrew it, to his surprise his hand was leprous, like snow. [7] The Lord then said, "Now, put your hand back in your bosom." Moses put his hand back in his bosom, and when he withdrew it, to his surprise it was again like the rest of his body. [8] "If they will not believe you, nor heed the message of the first sign, they should believe the message of the second. [9] And if they will not believe even these two signs, nor heed your plea, take some water from the river and pour it on the dry land. The water you take from the river will become blood on the dry land." [v]

Aaron's Office as Assistant. [10] Moses, however, said to the Lord, "If you please, Lord, I have never been eloquent, neither in the past, nor recently, nor now that you have spoken to your servant; but I am slow of speech and tongue." [w] [11] The Lord said to him, "Who gives one man speech and makes another deaf and dumb? Or who gives sight to one and makes another blind? Is it not I, the Lord? [12] Go, then! It is I who will assist you in speaking and will teach you what you are to say." [13] Yet he insisted, "If you please, Lord, send someone else!"* [14] Then the Lord became angry with Moses and said, "Have you not your brother, Aaron the Levite? I know that he is an eloquent speaker. Besides, he is now on his way to meet you. [15] You are to speak to him, then, and put the words in his mouth. I will assist both you and him in speaking and will teach the two of you what you are to do. [16] He shall speak to the people for you: he shall be your spokesman,* and you shall be as God to him.[x] [17] Take this staff* in your hand; with it you are to perform the signs."

Moses' Return to Egypt. [18] After this Moses returned to his father-in-law Jethro and said to him, "Let me go back, please, to my kinsmen in Egypt, to see whether they are still living." Jethro replied, "Go in peace."* [19] In Madian [y] the Lord said to Moses, "Go back to Egypt, for all the men who sought your life are dead." [20] So

3, 22: Articles: probably jewelry. Despoil: this was permissible, that the Israelites might compensate themselves for their many years of servitude; besides, the Egyptians would give these things willingly. Cf Ex 12, 33-36.

4, 13: Send someone else: literally, "Send by means of him whom you will send," that is, "Send whom you will."

4, 16: Spokesman: literally, "mouth"; Aaron was to serve as a mouthpiece for Moses, as a prophet does for God; hence the relation between Moses and Aaron is compared to that between God and His prophet. Cf Ex 7, 1.

4, 17: This staff: probably the same as that of vv 2ff; but some understand it here of a new staff now given by God to Moses.

4, 18: Moses did not tell his father-in-law his main reason for returning to Egypt, but this secondary motive which he offered was also true.

Moses took his wife and his sons, and started back to the land of Egypt, with them riding the ass. The staff of God he carried with him. 21 The Lord said to him, "On your return to Egypt, see that you perform before Pharao all the wonders I have put in your power. I will make him obstinate,* however, so that he will not let the people go. 22 z So you shall say to Pharao: Thus says the Lord: Israel is my son, my first-born. 23 Hence I tell you: Let my son go, that he may serve me. If you refuse to let him go, I warn you, I will kill your son, your first-born."a 24 *On the journey, at a place where they spent the night, the Lord came upon Moses and would have killed him. 25 But Sepphora took a piece of flint and cut off her son's foreskin and, touching his feet, she said, "You are a spouse of blood to me." 26 Then God let Moses go. At that time she said, "A spouse of blood," in regard to the circumcision.

27 The Lord said to Aaron, "Go into the desert to meet Moses." So he went, and when they met at the mountain of God, Aaron kissed him. 28 Moses informed him of all the Lord had said in sending him, and of the various signs he had enjoined upon him. 29 Then Moses and Aaron went and assembled all the elders of the Israelites. 30 Aaron told them everything the Lord had said to Moses, and he performed the signs before the people. 31 The people believed, and when they heard that the Lord was concerned about them and had seen their affliction, they bowed down in worship.

CHAPTER 5.

Pharao's Obduracy. 1 After that, Moses and Aaron went to Pharao and said, "Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Let my people go, that they may celebrate a feast to me in the desert." 2 Pharao answered, "Who is the Lord, that I should heed his plea to let Israel go? I do not know the Lord; even if I did, I would not let Israel go." 3 They replied, "The God of the Hebrews has sent us word. Let us go a three days' journey in the desert, that we may offer sacrifice to the Lord, our God; b otherwise he will punish us with pestilence or the sword."

4 The king of Egypt answered them, "What do you mean, Moses and Aaron, by taking the people away from their work? Off to your labor! 5 Look how numerous the people of the land are already," continued Pharao, "and yet you would give them rest from their labor!"

6 That very day Pharao gave the taskmasters and foremen* of the people this order: 7 "You shall no longer supply the people with straw for their brickmaking* as you have previously done. 8 Let them go and gather straw themselves! Yet you shall levy upon them the same quota of bricks as they have previously made. Do not reduce it. They are lazy; that is why they are crying, 'Let us go to offer sacrifice to our God.' 9 Increase the work for the men, so that they keep their mind on it and pay no attention to lying words."

10 So the taskmasters and foremen of the people went out and told them, "Thus says Pharáo: I will not provide you with straw. 11 Go and gather the straw yourselves, wherever you can find it. Yet there must not be the slightest reduction in your work." 12 The people, then, scattered throughout the land of Egypt to gather stubble for straw, 13 while the taskmasters kept driving them on, saying, "Finish your work, the same daily amount as when your straw was supplied."

Complaint of the Foremen. 14 The foremen of the Israelites, whom the taskmasters of Pharao had placed over them, were beaten, and were asked, "Why have you not completed your prescribed amount of bricks yesterday and today, as before?"

15 Then the Israelite foremen came and made this appeal to Pharao: "Why do you treat your servants in this manner? 16 No straw is supplied to your servants, and still we are told to make bricks. Look how your servants are beaten! It is you who are at fault." 17 Pharao answered, "It is just because you are lazy that you keep saying, 'Let us go and offer sacrifice to the Lord.' 18 Off to work, then! Straw shall not be provided for you, but you must still deliver your quota of bricks."

z Sir 36, 8.—a Ex 11, 5; 12, 29.—b Ex 3, 18.

4, 21: Make him obstinate: literally, "harden his heart." God permitted Pharao to be stubborn in his opposition to the departure of the Israelites. Cf Rom 9, 17f.

4, 24ff: This whole passage is very obscure. Apparently God was angry with Moses for having failed to keep the divine command given to Abraham in Gn 17, 10ff. Moses' life is spared when his wife circumcises their son. Touching his feet: whose feet were touched, or why, is not clear; some render, "touched it to his feet."

5, 6: The taskmasters and foremen: the former were higher officials and probably Egyptians; the latter were lower officials, chosen from the Israelites themselves. Cf v 14.

5, 7: Straw was mixed with the clay to give the sun-dried bricks greater consistency.

19 The Israelite foremen knew they were in a sorry plight, having been told not to reduce the daily amount of bricks.
20 When, therefore, they left Pharao and came upon Moses and Aaron, who were waiting to meet them, 21 they said to them,
"The Lord look upon you and judge! You have brought us into bad odor with Pharao and his servants and have put a sword
in their hands to slay us."

Renewal of God's Promise. 22 Moses again had recourse to the Lord and said,
"Lord, why do you treat this people so badly? And why did you send me on such a mission? 23 Ever since I went to Pharao
to speak in your name, he has maltreated
this people of yours, and you have done nothing to rescue them."

CHAPTER 6.

1 Then the Lord answered Moses, "Now
you shall see what I will do to Pharao.
Forced by my mighty hand, he will send them away; compelled by my outstretched arm, he will drive them from his land."
2 God also said to Moses, "I am the Lord. 3 As God the Almighty I appeared [c] to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, but my name, Lord, I did not make known to them. 4 I also established my covenant with them, to give them the land of Chanaan, the land in which they were living as aliens.[d] 5 And now that I have heard the groaning of the Israelites, whom the Egyptians are treating as slaves, I am mindful of my covenant.[e] 6 Therefore, say to the Israelites: I am the Lord. I will free you from the forced labor of the Egyptians and will deliver you from their slavery. I will rescue you by my outstretched arm and with mighty acts of judgment. 7 I will take you as my own people, and you shall have me as your God.[f] You will know that I, the Lord, am your God when I free you from the labor of the Egyptians 8 and bring you into the land which I swore to give to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. I will give it to you as your own possession – I, the Lord!" 9 But when Moses told this to the Israelites, they would not listen to him because of their dejection and hard slavery.

10 Then the Lord said to Moses, 11 "Go and tell Pharao, king of Egypt, to let the Israelites leave his land." 12 But Moses protested to the Lord, "If the Israelites would not listen to me, how can it be that Pharao will listen to me, poor speaker [g]
that I am!" 13 Still, the Lord, to bring the Israelites out of Egypt, spoke to Moses and Aaron and gave them his orders regarding both the Israelites and Pharao, king of Egypt.

Genealogy of Moses and Aaron. 14
These are the heads of the ancestral born of Israel, were Henoch, Phallu, Hes-ron and Charmi; these are the clans of Ruben. 15 The sons of Simeon [i] were Jamuel, Jamin, Ahod, Jachin, Sohar and Saul, who was the son of a Chanaanite woman;

these are the clans of Simeon. 16 The names of the sons of Levi,[j] in their genealogical order, are Gerson, Caath and Merari. Levi lived one hundred and thirty-seven years.

17 The sons of Gerson,[k] as heads of clans, were Lebni and Semei. 18 The sons of Caath [l] were Amram, Isaar, Hebron and Oziel. Caath lived one hundred and thirty-three years. 19 The sons of Merari [m] were Moholi and Musi. These are the clans of Levi in their genealogical order.
20 Amram married his aunt* Jochabed,[n]
who bore him Aaron, Moses and Mariam.
Amram lived one hundred and thirty-seven years. 21 The sons of Isaar were Core, Napheg and Zechri. 22 The sons of Oziel were Misael, Elisaphan and Sethri.
23 Aaron married Amminadab's [o] daughter, Elisabe, the sister of Nahasson; she bore him Nadab, Abiu, Eleazar and Itha-mar. 24 The sons of Core were Asir, Elcana and Abiasaph. These are the clans of the Corites. 25 Aaron's son, Eleazar, married one of Phutiel's daughters, who bore him Phinees. These are the heads of the ancestral clans of the Levites. 26 This is the Aaron and this the Moses to whom the Lord said, "Lead the Israelites from the land of Egypt, company by company." 27 These are the ones who spoke to Pharao, king of Egypt, to bring the Israelites out of Egypt–the same Moses and Aaron.

Moses and Aaron before Pharao. 28 On the day the Lord spoke to Moses in Egypt 29 he said, "I am the Lord. Repeat to Pharao, king of Egypt, all that I tell you."

30 But Moses protested to the Lord, "Since
I am a poor speaker,[p] how can it be that Pharao will listen to me?"

CHAPTER 7.

1 The Lord answered him, "See! I have made you as God to Pharao,[q] and Aaron your brother shall act as your prophet.*
2 You shall tell him all that I command
you. In turn, your brother Aaron shall tell Pharao to let the Israelites leave his land. 3 Yet I will make Pharao so obstinate that, despite the many signs and wonders that I will work in the land of Egypt, 4 he will not listen to you. Therefore I will lay my hand on Egypt and by great acts of judgment I will bring the hosts of my people, the Israelites, out of the land of Egypt, 5 so that the Egyptians may learn that I am the Lord, as I stretch out my hand against Egypt and lead the Israelites out of their midst."
6 Moses and Aaron did as the Lord had commanded them. 7 Moses was eighty years old and Aaron eighty-three when they spoke to Pharao.

The Staff Turned into a Snake. 8 The Lord told Moses and Aaron, 9 "If Pharao demands that you work a sign or wonder,
you shall say to Aaron: Take your staff and throw it down before Pharao, and it will be changed into a snake."[r] 10 Then Moses and Aaron went to Pharao and did as the Lord had commanded. Aaron threw his staff down before Pharao and his servants, and it was changed into a snake. 11 Pharao, in turn, summoned wise men and sorcerers, and they also, the magicians[s]
of Egypt, did likewise by their magic arts.
12 Each one threw down his staff, and it was changed into a snake. But Aaron's staff swallowed their staffs. 13 Pharao, however, was obstinate and would not listen to them, just as the Lord had foretold.

First Plague: Water Turned into Blood.
14 *Then the Lord said to Moses, "Pharao is obdurate in refusing to let the people go. 15 Tomorrow morning, when he sets out for the water, go and present yourself
by the river bank, holding in your hand
the staff that turned into a serpent. 16 Say to him: The Lord, the God of the Hebrews, sent me to you with the message:
Let my people go to worship me in the desert. But as yet you have not listened.
17 The Lord now says: This is how you shall know that I am the Lord. I will strike the water of the river with the staff
I hold, and it shall be changed into blood.[t] 18 The fish in the river shall die, and the river itself shall become so polluted that the Egyptians will be unable to drink its water."
19 The Lord then said to Moses, "Say to Aaron: Take your staff and stretch out your hand over the waters of Egypt—their streams and canals and pools, all their supplies of water—that they may become blood. Throughout the land of Egypt there shall be blood, even in the wooden pails and stone jars."
20 Moses and Aaron did as the Lord had commanded. Aaron raised his staff and struck the waters of the river in full view of Pharao and his servants, and all the water of the river was changed into blood. 21 The fish in the river died, and the river itself became so polluted that the Egyptians could not drink its water.
There was blood throughout the land of Egypt. 22 But the Egyptian magicians did the same by their magic arts. So Pharao remained obstinate and would not listen to Moses and Aaron, just as the Lord had foretold. 23 He turned away and went into his house, with no concern even for this.
24 All the Egyptians had to dig in the neighborhood of the river for drinking water, since they could not drink the river
water.

Second Plague: The Frogs. 25 Seven days passed after the Lord had struck the river.
26 *Then the Lord said to Moses, "Go to Pharao and tell him: Thus says the Lord:
Let my people go to worship me. 27 If you refuse to let them go, I warn you, I will send a plague of frogs[u] over all your territory. 28 The river will teem with frogs.
They will come up into your palace and into your bedroom and onto your bed, into the houses of your servants, too, and your subjects, even into your oven and your kneading bowls. 29 The frogs will swarm all over you and your subjects and your servants."

7, 1: Just as God had His prophets to speak to men in His name, so Moses had Aaron as his "prophet" to speak to Pharao. Cf Ex 4, 16.

7, 14: Most of the ten plagues of Egypt seem to be similar to certain natural phenomena of that country; but they were supernatural at least in their greater intensity and in their occurring exactly according to Moses' commands.

7, 26-8, 28: This is Ex 8, 1-32 in the verse enumeration of the Vulgate.

CHAPTER 8.

1 The Lord then told Moses, "Say to Aaron: Stretch out your hand and your staff over the streams and canals and pools, to make frogs overrun the land of Egypt." 2 Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt, and the frogs came up and covered the land of Egypt.
3 But the magicians did the same by their magic arts. They, too, made frogs overrun the land of Egypt.

4 Then Pharao summoned Moses and Aaron and said, "Pray the Lord to remove the frogs from me and my subjects,
and I will let the people go to offer sacrifice to the Lord." 5 Moses answered Pharao, "Do me the favor of appointing the time when I am to pray for you and your servants and your subjects, that the frogs may be taken away from you and your houses and be left only in the river." 6
"Tomorrow," said Pharao. Then Moses replied, "It shall be as you have said, so that you may learn that there is none like the Lord, our God. 7 The frogs shall leave you and your houses, your servants and your subjects; only in the river shall they be left."

8 After Moses and Aaron left Pharao's presence, Moses implored the Lord to fulfill the promise he had made to Pharao about the frogs; 9 and the Lord did as Moses had asked. The frogs in the houses and courtyards* and fields died off. 10 Heaps and heaps of them were gathered up, and there was a stench in the land.
11 But when Pharao saw that there was a respite, he became obdurate and would not listen to them, just as the Lord had foretold.

Third Plague: the Gnats. 12 Thereupon the Lord said to Moses, "Tell Aaron to stretch out his staff and strike the dust of the earth, that it may be turned into gnats[v] throughout the land of Egypt."*
13 They did so. Aaron stretched out his hand, and with his staff he struck the dust of the earth, and gnats came upon man and beast. The dust of the earth was turned into gnats throughout the land of Egypt. 14 Though the magicians tried to bring forth gnats by their magic arts, they could not do so.[w] As the gnats infested man and beast, 15 the magicians said to Pharao, "This is the finger of God."* Yet Pharao remained obstinate and would not listen to them, just as the Lord had fore-
told.

Fourth Plague: the Flies. 16 Again the Lord told Moses, "Early tomorrow morning present yourself to Pharao when he goes forth to the water, and say to him:
Thus says the Lord: Let my people go to worship me. 17 If you will not let my people go, I warn you, I will loose swarms of flies upon you and your servants and your subjects and your houses. The houses of the Egyptians and the very ground on which they stand shall be filled with swarms of flies. 18 But on that day I will make an exception of the land of Gesen:
there shall be no flies where my people dwell, that you may know that I am the Lord in the midst of the earth. 19 I will make this distinction between my people and your people. This sign shall take place tomorrow." 20 This the Lord did.
Thick swarms of flies entered the house of Pharao and the houses of his servants;
throughout Egypt the land was infested with flies.[x]

21 Then Pharao summoned Moses and Aaron and said to them, "Go and offer sacrifice to your God in this land." 22 But Moses replied, "It is not right to do so,
for the sacrifices we offer to the Lord, our God, are an abomination to the Egyptians.* If before their very eyes we offer sacrifices which are an abomination to them, will not the Egyptians stone us?
23 We must go a three days' journey in the desert to offer sacrifice to the Lord,
our God, as he commands us." 24 "Well, then," said Pharao, "I will let you go to offer sacrifice to the Lord, your God, in the desert, provided that you do not go too far away and that you pray for me." 25 Moses answered, "As soon as I leave your presence I will pray to the Lord that the flies may depart tomorrow from Pharao and his servants and his subjects.
Pharao, however, must not play false again by refusing to let the people go to offer sacrifice to the Lord." 26 When Moses left Pharao's presence, he prayed to the Lord; 27 and the Lord did as Moses had asked. He removed the flies from Pharao and his servants and subjects. Not one remained. 28 But once more Pharao became obdurate and would not let the people go.

CHAPTER 9.

Fifth Plague: the Pestilence. 1 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Go to Pharao and tell him: Thus says the Lord, the God of the Hebrews: Let my people go to worship me. 2 If you refuse to let them go and persist in holding them, 3 I warn you, the Lord will afflict all your livestock in the field—your horses, asses, camels, herds and flocks—with a very severe pestilence. 4 But the Lord will distinguish between the livestock of Israel and that of Egypt, so that none belonging to the Israelites will die." 5 And setting a definite time, the Lord added, "Tomorrow the Lord shall do this in the land." 6 And on the next day the Lord did so. All the livestock of the Egyptians died,[y] but not one beast belonging to the Israelites. 7 But though Pharao's messengers informed him that not even one beast belonging to the Israelites had died, he still remained obdurate and would not let the people go.

Sixth Plague: the Boils. 8 Then the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, "Take a double handful of soot from a furnace, and in the presence of Pharao let Moses scatter it toward the sky. 9 It will then turn into fine dust over the whole land of Egypt and cause festering boils on man and beast throughout the land."

10 So they took soot from a furnace and stood in the presence of Pharao. Moses scattered it toward the sky, and it caused festering boils on man and beast. 11 The magicians could not stand in Moses' presence, for there were boils on the magicians no less than on the rest of the Egyptians. 12 But the Lord made Pharao obstinate, and he would not listen to them, just as the Lord had foretold to Moses.

Seventh Plague: the Hail. 13 Then the Lord told Moses, "Early tomorrow morning present yourself to Pharao and say to him: Thus says the Lord, the God of the Hebrews: Let my people go to worship me, 14 or this time I will hurl all my blows upon you and your servants and your subjects, that you may know that there is none like me anywhere on earth. 15 For by now I would have stretched out my hand and struck you and your subjects with such pestilence as would wipe you from the earth. 16 But this is why I have spared you: to show you* my power and to make my name resound throughout the earth! 17 [z] Will you still block the way for my people by refusing to let them go? 18 I warn you, then, tomorrow at this hour I will rain down such fierce hail as there has never been in Egypt from the day the nation was founded up to the present. 19 Therefore, order all your livestock and whatever else you have in the open fields to be brought to a place of safety. Whatever man or beast remains in the fields and is not brought to shelter shall die when the hail comes upon them." 20 Some of Pharao's servants feared the warning of the Lord and hurried their servants and livestock off to shelter. 21 Others, however, did not take the warning of the Lord to heart and left their servants and livestock in the fields.

22 The Lord then said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand toward the sky, that hail may fall upon the entire land of Egypt, on man and beast and every growing thing in the land of Egypt." 23 When Moses stretched out his staff toward the sky, the Lord sent forth hail [a] and peals of thunder. Lightning flashed toward the earth, and the Lord rained down hail upon the land of Egypt: 24 and lightning constantly flashed through the hail, such fierce hail as had never been seen in the land since Egypt became a nation. 25 It struck down every man and beast that was in the open throughout the land of Egypt; it beat down every growing thing and splintered every tree in the fields. 26 Only in the land of Gesen, where the Israelites dwelt, was there no hail.

27 Then Pharao summoned Moses and Aaron and said to them, "I have sinned again! The Lord is just; it is I and my subjects who are at fault. 28 Pray to the Lord, for we have had enough of God's thunder and hail. Then I will let you go; you need stay no longer." 29 Moses replied, "As soon as I leave the city I will extend my hands to the Lord; the thunder will cease, and there will be no more hail. Thus you shall learn that the earth is the Lord's. 30 But you and your servants, I know, do not yet fear the Lord God."

31 Now the flax and the barley were ruined, because the barley was in ear and the flax in bud. 32 But the wheat and the spelt were not ruined, for they grow later.

33 When Moses had left Pharao's presence and had gone out of the city, he extended his hands to the Lord. Then the thunder and the hail ceased, and the rain no longer poured down upon the earth. 34 But Pharao, seeing that the rain and hail and thunder had ceased, sinned again: he with his servants became obdurate, 35 and in his obstinacy he would not let the Israelites go, as the Lord had foretold through Moses.

Eighth Plague: the Locusts. 1 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Go to Pharao, for I have made him and his servants obdurate in order that I may perform these signs of mine among them 2 and that you may recount to your son and grandson how ruthlessly I dealt with the Egyptians and what signs I wrought among them, so that you may know that I am the Lord." b

3 So Moses and Aaron went to Pharao and told him, "Thus says the Lord, the God of the Hebrews: How long will you refuse to submit to me? Let my people go to worship me. 4 If you refuse to let my people go, I warn you, tomorrow I will bring locusts into your country. 5 They shall cover the ground, so that the ground itself will not be visible. They shall eat up the remnant you saved unhurt from the hail, as well as all the foliage that has since sprouted in your fields. 6 They shall fill your houses and the houses of your servants and of all the Egyptians; such a sight your fathers or grandfathers have not seen from the day they first settled on this soil up to the present day." With that he turned and left Pharao.

7 But Pharao's servants said to him, "How long must he be a menace to us? Let the men go to worship the Lord, their God. Do you not yet realize that Egypt is being destroyed?" 8 So Moses and Aaron were brought back to Pharao, who said to them, "You may go and worship the Lord, your God. But how many of you will go?" 9 "Young and old must go with us," Moses answered, "our sons and daughters as well as our flocks and herds must accompany us. That is what a feast of the Lord means to us." 10 "The Lord help you,"* Pharao replied, "if I ever let your little ones go with you! Clearly, you have some evil in mind. 11 No, no! Just you men can go and worship the Lord.* After all, that is what you want." With that they were driven from Pharao's presence.

12 The Lord then said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand over the land of Egypt, that locusts c may swarm over it and eat up all the vegetation and whatever the hail has left." 13 So Moses stretched out his staff over the land of Egypt, and the Lord set an east wind* blowing over the land all that day and all that night. 14 At dawn the east wind brought the locusts. They swarmed over the whole land of Egypt and settled down on every part of it. Never before had there been such a fierce swarm of locusts, nor will there ever be. 15 They covered the surface of the whole land, till it was black with them. They ate up all the vegetation in the land and the fruit of whatever trees the hail had spared. Nothing green was left on any tree or plant throughout the land of Egypt.

16 Hastily Pharao summoned Moses and Aaron and said, "I have sinned against the Lord, your God, and against you. 17 But now, do forgive me my sin once more, and pray the Lord, your God, to take at least this deadly pest from me." 18 When Moses left the presence of Pharao, he prayed to the Lord, 19 and the Lord changed the wind to a very strong west wind, which took up the locusts and hurled them into the Red Sea.* But though not a single locust remained within the confines of Egypt, 20 the Lord made Pharao obstinate, and he would not let the Israelites go.

Ninth Plague: the Darkness. 21 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand toward the sky, that over the land

10, 10: The Lord help you . . . . literally, "May the Lord be with you in the same way as I let you . . . "; a sarcastic blessing intended as a curse.

10, 11: Pharao realized that if the men alone went they would have to return to their families. He suspected that the Hebrews had no intention of returning.

of Egypt there may be such intense darkness* that one can feel it." 22 So Moses stretched out his hand toward the sky, and there was dense darkness [d] throughout the land of Egypt for three days. 23 Men could not see one another, nor could they move from where they were, for three days. But all the Israelites had light where they dwelt.

24 Pharao then summoned Moses and Aaron and said, "Go and worship the Lord. Your little ones, too, may go with you. But your flocks and herds must remain." Moses replied, "You must also grant us sacrifices and holocausts to offer up to the Lord, our God. 26 Hence, our livestock also must go with us. Not an animal must be left behind. Some of them we must sacrifice to the Lord, our God, but we ourselves shall not know which ones we must sacrifice to him until we arrive at the place itself." 27 But the Lord made Pharao obstinate, and he would not let them go. 28 "Leave my presence," Pharao said to him, "and see to it that you do not appear before me again! The day you appear before me you shall die!" 29 Moses replied, "Well said! I will never appear before you again."

CHAPTER 11.

Tenth Plague: the Death of the First-born. 1 Then the Lord told Moses, "One more plague will I bring upon Pharao and upon Egypt. After that he will let you depart. In fact, he will not merely let you go; he will drive you away. 2 Instruct your people that every man is to ask his neighbor, and every woman her neighbor, for silver and gold articles and for clothing." [e] 3 The Lord indeed made the Egyptians well-disposed toward the people; Moses himself was very highly regarded by Pharao's servants and the people in the land of Egypt.

4 Moses then said, "Thus says the Lord: At midnight I will go forth through Egypt.[f] 5 Every first-born in this land shall die,[g] from the first-born of Pharao on the throne to the first-born of the slave-girl at the handmill, as well as all the first-born of the animals. 6 Then there shall be loud wailing throughout the land of Egypt, such as has never been, nor will ever be again. 7 But among the Israelites and their animals not even a dog shall growl, so that you may know how the Lord distinguishes between the Egyptians and the Israelites. 8 [h] All these servants of yours shall then come down to me, and prostrate before me, they shall beg me, 'Leave us, you and all your followers!' Only then will I depart." With that he left Pharao's presence in hot anger.

9 The Lord said to Moses, "Pharao refuses to listen to you that my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt." 10 Thus, although Moses and Aaron performed these various wonders in Pharao's presence, the Lord made Pharao obstinate, and he would not let the Israelites leave his land.

CHAPTER 12.

The Passover Ritual Prescribed. 1 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, 2 "This month* shall stand at the head of your calendar; you shall reckon it the first month of the year. 3 Tell the whole community of Israel: On the tenth of this month every one of your families must procure for itself a lamb, one apiece for each household. 4 If a family is too small for a whole lamb, it shall join the nearest household in procuring one and shall share in the lamb* in proportion to the number of persons who partake of it. 5 The lamb must be a year-old male and without blemish. You may take it from either the sheep or the goats. 6 You shall keep it until the fourteenth day of this month,[i] and then, with the whole assembly of Israel present, it shall be slaughtered during the evening twilight. 7 They shall take some of its blood and apply it to the two doorposts and the lintel of every house in which they partake of the lamb. 8 That same night they shall eat its roasted flesh with unleavened bread and bitter herbs. 9 It shall not be eaten raw or boiled, but roasted whole, with its head and shanks and inner organs. 10 None of it must be kept beyond the next morning; whatever is left over in the morning shall be burned up.

d Ps 104 (105), 28.—e Ex 3, 21f; 12, 35f.—f Ex 12, 12.—g Ex 12, 29f.—h Ex 12, 31ff.—i Lv 23, 5-8; Nm 9, 2-5; 28, 16ff; Dt 16, 1-8.

10, 21: Darkness: at times a storm from the south, called the khamsin, blackens the sky of Egypt with sand from the Sahara; the dust in the air is then so thick that the darkness can, in a sense, "be felt."

12, 2: This month: Abib, the month of "ripe grain." Cf Ex 13, 4; 23, 15; 34, 18; Dt 16, 1. It occurred near the vernal equinox, March-April. Later it was known by the Babylonian name of Nisan. Cf Neh 2, 1; Est 3, 7.

12, 4: Share in the lamb: probably, in the expenses of its purchase. Some explain, "reckon for the lamb the number of persons required to eat it." Cf Ex 12, 10.

11 "This is how you are to eat it: with your loins girt, sandals on your feet and your staff in hand, you shall eat like those who are in flight. It is the Passover* of the Lord. 12 For on this same night I will go through Egypt, striking down every first-born of the land, both man and beast, and executing judgment on all the gods of Egypt – I, the Lord! 13 But the blood will mark the houses where you are. Seeing the blood, I will pass over you;
thus, when I strike the land of Egypt, no destructive blow will come upon you.

14 This day shall be a memorial feast for you, which all your generations shall celebrate with pilgrimage to the Lord as a perpetual institution. 15 For seven days j
you must eat unleavened bread. From the very first day you shall have your houses clear of all leaven. Whoever eats leavened bread from the first day to the seventh shall be cut off from Israel. 16 On the first day you shall hold a sacred assembly, and likewise on the seventh. On these days you shall not do any sort of work, except to prepare the food that everyone needs.

17 "Keep, then, this custom of the unleavened bread.k Since it was on this very day that I brought your ranks out of the land of Egypt, you must celebrate this day throughout your generations as a perpetual institution. 18 From the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month until the evening of the twenty-first day of this month you shall eat unleavened bread. 19 For seven days no leaven may be found in your houses. Anyone, be he a resident alien or a native, who eats leavened food shall be cut off from the community of Israel. 20 Nothing leavened may you eat; wherever you dwell you may eat only unleavened bread.

Promulgation of the Passover. 21 Moses called all the elders of Israel and said to them, "Go and procure lambs for your families, and slaughter them as Passover victims. 22 Then take a bunch of hyssop,*
and dipping it in the blood that is in the basin, sprinkle the lintel and the two door-posts with this blood.l But none of you shall go outdoors until morning. 23 For the Lord will go by, striking down the Egyptians. Seeing the blood on the lintel and the two doorposts, the Lord will pass over that door and not let the destroyer
come into your houses to strike you down.

24 "You shall observe this as a perpetual ordinance for yourselves and your descendants. 25 Thus, you must also observe this rite when you have entered the land which the Lord will give you as he promised. 26 When your children ask you,
'What does this rite of yours mean?'m 27
you shall reply, 'This is the Passover sacrifice of the Lord, who passed over the houses of the Israelites in Egypt; when he struck down the Egyptians, he spared
our houses.'"

28 Then the people bowed down in worship, and the Israelites went and did as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron.

Death of the First-born. 29 At midnight
the Lord slew every first-born in the land of Egypt,n from the first-born of Pharao
on the throne to the first-born of the prisoner in the dungeon, as well as all the first-born of the animals. 30 Pharao arose in the night, he and all his servants and all the Egyptians; and there was loud wailing throughout Egypt, for there was not a house without its dead.

Permission To Depart. 31 During the night Pharao summoned Moses and Aaron and said, "Leave my people at once, you and the Israelites with you!
Go and worship the Lord as you said. 32
Take your flocks, too, and your herds,
as you demanded, and begone; and you will be doing me a favor."

33 The Egyptians likewise urged the people on, to hasten their departure from the land; they thought that otherwise they would all die. 34 The people, therefore,
took their dough before it was leavened,
in their kneading bowls wrapped in their cloaks on their shoulders. 35 The Israelites did as Moses had commanded: they asked the Egyptians for articles of silver and gold and for clothing.o 36 The Lord indeed had made the Egyptians so well-disposed toward the people that they let them have whatever they asked for. Thus did they despoil the Egyptians.

II: THE EXODUS FROM EGYPT AND THE JOURNEY TO SINAI

Departure from Egypt. 37 The Israelites set out from Rameses p for Socchoth, about six hundred thousand men on foot, not counting the children. 38 A crowd of mixed ancestry* also went up with them, besides their livestock, very numerous flocks and herds. 39 Since the dough they had brought out of Egypt was not leavened, they baked it into unleavened loaves. They had been rushed out of Egypt and had no opportunity even to prepare food for the journey.

40 The time the Israelites had stayed in Egypt* was four hundred and thirty years.[q] 41 At the end of four hundred and thirty years, all the hosts of the Lord left the land of Egypt on this very date. 42 This was a night of vigil for the Lord, as he led them out of the land of Egypt; so on this same night all the Israelites must keep a vigil for the Lord throughout their generations.

Passover Regulations. 43 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron, "These are the regulations for the Passover. No foreigner may partake of it. 44 However, any slave who has been bought for money may partake of it, provided you have first circumcised him. 45 But no transient alien or hired servant may partake of it. 46 It must be eaten in one and the same house; you may not take any of its flesh outside the house.[r] You shall not break any of its bones.* 47 The whole community of Israel must keep this feast. 48 If any aliens[s] living among you wish to celebrate the Passover of the Lord, all the males among them must first be circumcised, and then they may join in its observance just like the natives. 49 But no man who is uncircumcised may partake of it. The law shall be the same for the resident alien as for the native.

50 All the Israelites did just as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron. 51 On that same day the Lord brought the Israelites out of Egypt company by company.

CHAPTER 13.

Consecration of the First-born. 1 The Lord spoke to Moses and said, 2 "Consecrate to me every first-born that opens the womb among the Israelites,[t] both of man and beast, for it belongs to me."

3 Moses said to the people, "Remember this day on which you came out of Egypt, that place of slavery.[u] It was with a strong hand that the Lord brought you away. Nothing made with leaven must be eaten. 4 This day of your departure is in the month of Abib. 5 Therefore, it is in this month that you must celebrate this rite, after the Lord, your God, has brought you into the land of the Chanaanites, Hethites, Amorrites, Hevites and Jebusites, which he swore to your fathers he would give you, a land flowing with milk and honey. 6 For seven days you shall eat unleavened bread, and the seventh day shall also be a festival to the Lord. 7 Only unleavened bread may be eaten during the seven days; no leaven and nothing leavened may be found in all your territory. 8 On this day you shall explain to your son, 'This is because of what the Lord did for me when I came out of Egypt.' 9 It shall be as a sign of your hand and as a reminder on your forehead;[v] thus the law of the Lord will ever be on your lips, because with a strong hand the Lord brought you out of Egypt. 10 Therefore, you shall keep this prescribed rite at its appointed time from year to year.

11 "When the Lord, your God, has brought you into the land of the Chanaanites, which he swore to you and your fathers he would give you, 12 you shall dedicate to the Lord every son that opens the womb;[w] and all the male firstlings of your animals shall belong to the Lord. 13 Every first-born of an ass you shall redeem with a sheep. If you do not redeem it, you shall break its neck. Every first-born son you must redeem. 14 If your son should ask you later on, 'What does this mean?' you shall tell him, 'With a strong hand the Lord brought us out of Egypt, that place of slavery. 15 When Pharao stubbornly refused to let us go, the Lord killed every first-born in the land of Egypt, every first-born of man and of beast. That is why I sacrifice to the Lord everything of the male sex that opens the womb, and why I redeem every first-born of my sons.' 16 Let this, then, be as a sign on your hand and as a pendant on your forehead: with a strong hand the Lord brought us out of Egypt."[x]

Toward the Red Sea. 17 Now, when Pharao let the people go, God did not lead them by way of the Philistines' land,* though this was the nearest; for he thought, should the people see that they would have to fight, they might change their minds and return to Egypt. 18 Instead, he rerouted them toward the Red Sea by way of the desert road. In battle array the Israelites marched out of Egypt. 19 Moses also took Joseph's bones [y] along, for Joseph had made the Israelites swear solemnly that, when God should come to them, they would carry his bones away with them.

21 The Lord preceded them, in the daytime by means of a column of cloud to show them the way, and at night by means of a column of fire* to give them light.[a] Thus they could travel both day and night. 22 Neither the column of cloud by day nor the column of fire by night ever left its place in front of the people.

CHAPTER 14.

1 Then the Lord said to Moses, 2 *"Tell the Israelites to turn about and camp before Phi-hahiroth, between Magdol and the sea.[b] You shall camp in front of Baal-Saphon, just opposite, by the sea. 3 Pharao will then say, 'The Israelites are wandering about aimlessly in the land. The desert has closed in on them.' 4 Thus will I make Pharao so obstinate that he will pursue them. Then I will receive glory through Pharao and all his army, and the Egyptians will know that I am the Lord."

This the Israelites did. 5 When it was reported to the king of Egypt that the people had fled, Pharao and his servants changed their minds about them. "What have we done!" they exclaimed. "Why, we have released Israel from our service!" 6 So Pharao made his chariots ready and mustered his soldiers—7 six hundred first-class chariots and all the other chariots of Egypt, with warriors on them all. 8 So obstinate had the Lord made Pharao that he pursued [c] the Israelites even while they were marching away in triumph. 9 The Egyptians, then, pursued them; Pharao's whole army, his horses, chariots and charioteers, caught up with them as they lay encamped by the sea at Phi-hahiroth in front of Baal-Saphon.

Crossing of the Red Sea. 10 Pharao was already near when the Israelites looked up and saw that the Egyptians were on the march in pursuit of them. In great fright they cried out to the Lord. 11 And they complained to Moses, "Were there no burial places in Egypt that you had to bring us out here to die in the desert? Why did you do this to us? Why did you bring us out of Egypt? 12 Did we not tell you this in Egypt, when we said, 'Leave us alone. Let us serve the Egyptians'? Far better for us to be the slaves of the Egyptians than to die in the desert." 13 But Moses answered the people, "Fear not! Stand your ground, and you will see the victory the Lord will win for you today. These Egyptians whom you see today you will never see again. 14 The Lord himself will fight for you; you have only to keep still."

15 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Why are you crying out to me? Tell the Israelites to go forward. 16 And you, lift up your staff and, with hand outstretched over the sea, split the sea in two, that the Israelites may pass through it on dry land. 17 But I will make the Egyptians so obstinate that they will go in after them. Then I will receive glory through Pharao and all his army, his chariots and charioteers. 18 The Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I receive glory through Pharao and his chariots and charioteers."

19 The angel of God, who had been leading Israel's camp, now moved and went around behind them. The column of cloud also, leaving the front, took up its place behind them, 20 so that it came between the camp of the Egyptians and that of Israel. But the cloud now became dark,* and thus the night passed without the rival camps coming any closer together all night long. 21 Then Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and the Lord swept the sea with a strong east wind throughout the night and so turned it into dry land.[d] When the water was thus divided, 22 the Israelites marched into the midst of the sea on dry land, with the water like a wall to their right and to their left.

14, 2: These places have not been definitively identified. Even the relative position of Phi-hahiroth and Baal-Saphon is not clear; perhaps the former was on the west shore of the sea, where the Israelites were, and the latter on the opposite shore.

Destruction of the Egyptians. 23 The Egyptians followed in pursuit; all Pharao's horses and chariots and charioteers went after them right into the midst of the sea. 24 In the night watch just before dawn the Lord cast through the column of the fiery cloud upon the Egyptian force a glance that threw it into a panic; 25 and he so clogged their chariot wheels that they could hardly drive. With that the Egyptians sounded the retreat before Israel, because the Lord was fighting for them against the Egyptians.

26 Then the Lord told Moses, "Stretch out your hand over the sea, that the water may flow back upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots and their charioteers." 27 So Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and at dawn the sea flowed back to its normal depth. The Egyptians were fleeing head on toward the sea, when the Lord hurled them into its midst. 28 As the water flowed back, it covered the chariots and the charioteers of Pharao's whole army [e] which had followed the Israelites into the sea. Not a single one of them escaped. 29 But the Israelites had marched on dry land through the midst of the sea, with the water like a wall to their right and to their left. 30 Thus the Lord saved Israel on that day from the power of the Egyptians. When Israel saw the Egyptians lying dead on the seashore 31 and beheld the great power that the Lord had shown against the Egyptians, they feared the Lord and believed in him [f] and in his servant Moses.

1 Then Moses and the Israelites sang [g] this song to the Lord: I will sing to the Lord, for he is gloriously triumphant; horse and chariot he has cast into the sea. 2 My strength and my courage [h] is the Lord, and he has been my savior. He is my God, I praise him; the God of my father, I extol him.

3 The Lord is a warrior, Lord is his name! 4 Pharao's chariots and army he hurled into the sea; the elite of his officers were submerged in the Red Sea.

5 The flood waters covered them, they sank into the depths like a stone.[i]

6 Your right hand, O Lord, magnificent in power, your right hand, O Lord, has shattered the enemy. 7 In your great majesty you overthrew your adversaries; you loosed your wrath to consume them like stubble. 8 At a breath of your anger the waters piled up, the flowing waters stood like a mound, the flood waters congealed in the midst of the sea.

9 The enemy boasted, "I will pursue and overtake them; I will divide the spoils and have my fill of them; I will draw my sword; my hand shall despoil them!" 10 When your wind blew, the sea covered them; like lead they sank in the mighty waters.

11 Who is like to you among the gods, O Lord? Who is like to you, magnificent in holiness? O terrible in renown, worker of wonders, 12 when you stretched out your right hand, the earth swallowed them!

13 *In your mercy you led the people you redeemed; in your strength you guided them to your holy dwelling. 14 The nations heard and quaked; anguish gripped the dwellers in Philistia. 15 Then were the princes of Edom dismayed; trembling seized the chieftains of Moab; all the dwellers in Chanaan melted away; 16 terror and dread fell upon them. By the might of your arm they were frozen like stone, while your people, O Lord, passed over, while the people you had made your own passed over.[j]

17 And you brought them in and planted them on the mountain of your inheritance—the place where you made your seat, O Lord, the sanctuary, O Lord, which your hands established. 18 The Lord shall reign forever and ever.

19 [k] They sang thus because Pharao's horses and chariots and charioteers had gone into the sea, and the Lord made the waters of the sea flow back upon them, though the Israelites had marched on dry land through the midst of the sea. 20 So the prophetess Mariam, Aaron's sister, took a tambourine in her hand, while all the women went out after her with tambourines, dancing; 21 and she answered them* with the refrain: l Sing to the Lord, for he is gloriously triumphant; horse and chariot he has cast into the sea.

At Mara and Elim. 22 Then Moses led Israel forward from the Red Sea, and they marched out to the desert of Sur. After traveling for three days through the desert without finding water, 23 they arrived at Mara,m where they could not drink the water, because it was too bitter. Hence this place was called Mara. 24 As the people grumbled against Moses, saying, "What are we to drink?" 25 he appealed to the Lord, who pointed out to him a certain piece of wood. When he threw this into the water, the water became fresh.n

It was here that the Lord, in making rules and regulations for them, put them to the test. 26 "If you really listen to the voice of the Lord, your God," he told them, "and do what is right in his eyes: if you heed his commandments and keep all his precepts, I will not afflict you with any of the diseases with which I afflicted the Egyptians;o for I, the Lord, am your healer."

27 Then they came to Elim, where there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees, and they camped there near the water.p

CHAPTER 16.

The Desert of Sin. 1 Having set out from Elim,q the whole Israelite community came into the desert of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month* after their departure from the land of Egypt. 2 Here in the desert the whole Israelite community grumbled r against Moses and Aaron. 3 The Israelites said to them, "Would that we had died at the Lord's hand in the land of Egypt, as we sat by our fleshpots and ate our fill of bread! But you had to lead us into this desert to make the whole community die of famine!"

The Quail and Manna. 4 Then the Lord said to Moses, s "I will now rain down bread from heaven* for you. Each day the people are to go out and gather their daily portion; thus will I test them, to see whether they follow my instructions or not. 5 On the sixth day, however, when they prepare what they bring in, let it be twice as much as they gather on the other days." 6 So Moses and Aaron told all the Israelites, "At evening you will know that it was the Lord who brought you out of the land of Egypt; 7 and in the morning you will see the glory of the Lord, as he heeds your grumbling against him.t But what are we that you should grumble against us? 8 When the Lord gives you flesh to eat in the evening," continued Moses, "and in the morning your fill of bread, as he heeds the grumbling you utter against him, what then are we? Your grumbling is not against us, but against the Lord."

9 Then Moses said to Aaron, "Tell the whole Israelite community: Present yourselves before the Lord, for he has heard your grumbling." 10 When Aaron announced this to the whole Israelite community, they turned toward the desert, and lo, the glory of the Lord appeared in the cloud! 11 The Lord spoke to Moses and said, 12 "I have heard the grumbling of the Israelites. Tell them: In the evening twilight you shall eat flesh, and in the morning you shall have your fill of bread, so that you may know that I, the Lord, am your God."

13 In the evening quail u came up and covered the camp. In the morning a dew lay all about the camp, 14 and when the dew evaporated, there on the surface of the desert were fine flakes like hoarfrost on the ground. 15 On seeing it, the Israelites asked one another, "What is this?"* for they did not know what it was. But

15, 21: She answered them: in Hebrew the word "them" is masculine and apparently refers to the men who sang the preceding song. Mariam's refrain re-echoes the first verse of this song and was probably sung as an antiphon after each verse.

16, 1: On the fifteenth day of the second month: just one full month after their departure from Egypt. Cf Ex 12, 2. 51.

16, 4: Bread from heaven: as a gift from God, the manna is said to come down from the sky. Cf Ps 77 (78), 25; Wis 16, 20. Perhaps it was similar to a natural substance that is still found in small quantities on the Sinai peninsula, but here it is, at least in part, clearly miraculous. Our Lord referred to the manna as a type of the Blessed Eucharist. Cf Jn 6, 32. 49-52.

16, 15: What is this: the original man hu is thus rendered by the ancient versions, which understood the phrase as a popular etymology of the Hebrew word man, "manna"; some render, "This is manna."

Moses told them, "This is the bread which the Lord has given you to eat.[v]

Regulations Regarding the Manna. 16 "Now, this is what the Lord has commanded. So gather it that everyone has enough to eat, a gomor for each person, as many of you as there are, each man providing for those of his own tent." 17 The Israelites did so. Some gathered a large and some a small amount. 18 *But when they measured it out by the gomor, he who had gathered a large amount did not have too much, and he who had gathered a small amount did not have too little.[w] They so gathered that everyone had enough to eat. 19 Moses also told them, "Let no one keep any of it over until tomorrow morning." 20 But they would not listen to him. When some kept a part of it over until the following morning, it became wormy and rotten. Therefore Moses was displeased with them.

21 Morning after morning they gathered it, till each had enough to eat; but when the sun grew hot, the manna melted away. 22 On the sixth day they gathered twice as much food, two gomors for each person. When all the leaders of the community came and reported this to Moses, 23 he told them, "That is what the Lord prescribed. Tomorrow is a day of complete rest, the Sabbath, sacred to the Lord. You may either bake or boil the manna, as you please; but whatever is left put away and keep for the morrow." 24 When they put it away for the morrow, as Moses commanded, it did not become rotten or wormy. 25 Moses then said, "Eat it today, for today is the Sabbath of the Lord. On this day you will not find any of it on the ground. 26 On the other six days you can gather it, but on the seventh day, the Sabbath, none of it will be there." 27 Still, on the seventh day some of the people went out to gather it, although they did not find any. 28 Then the Lord said to Moses, "How long will you refuse to keep my commandments and laws? 29 Take note! The Lord has given you the Sabbath. That is why on the sixth day he gives you food for two days. On the seventh day everyone is to stay home and no one is to go out." 30 After that the people rested on the seventh day.

31 The Israelites called this food manna.[x] It was like coriander seed,* but white, and it tasted like wafers made with honey.

32 Moses said, "This is what the Lord has commanded. Keep a gomorful of manna for your descendants, that they may see what food I gave you to eat in the desert when I brought you out of the land of Egypt." 33 Moses then told Aaron, "Take an urn* and put a gomor of manna in it. Then place it before the Lord in safekeeping for your descendants."[y] 34 So Aaron placed it in front of the Commandments* for safekeeping, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

35 The Israelites ate this manna for forty years, until they came to settled land; [z] they ate manna until they reached the borders of Chanaan. 36 [A gomor is one tenth of an epha.]

CHAPTER 17.

Water from the Rock. 1 From the desert of Sin the whole Israelite community journeyed by stages, as the Lord directed, and encamped at Raphidim.[a]

Here there was no water for the people to drink. 2 They quarreled, therefore, with Moses and said, "Give us water to drink."[b] Moses replied, "Why do you quarrel with me? Why do you put the Lord to a test?" 3 Here, then, in their thirst for water, the people grumbled against Moses, saying, "Why did you ever make us leave Egypt? Was it just to have us die here of thirst with our children and our livestock?" 4 So Moses cried out to the Lord, "What shall I do with this people? A little more and they will stone me!" 5 The Lord answered Moses, "Go over there in front of the people, along with some of the elders of Israel, holding in your hand, as you go, the staff with which you struck the river. 6 I will be standing there in front of you on the rock in Horeb. Strike the rock, and the water will flow from it for the people to drink."[c] This Moses did, in the presence of the elders of Israel. 7 The place was called Massa and Meriba,* because the Israelites quarreled there and tested the Lord, saying, "Is the Lord in our midst or not?" d

Battle with Amalec. 8 At Raphidim, Amalec* came and waged war against Israel.e 9 Moses, therefore, said to Josue, "Pick out certain men, and tomorrow go out and engage Amalec in battle. I will be standing on top of the hill with the staff of God in my hand." 10 So Josue did as Moses told him: he engaged Amalec in battle after Moses had climbed to the top of the hill with Aaron and Hur. 11 As long as Moses kept his hands raised up, Israel had the better of the fight, but when he let his hands rest, Amalec had the better of the fight. 12 Moses' hands, however, grew tired; so they put a rock in place for him to sit on. Meanwhile Aaron and Hur supported his hands, one on one side and one on the other, so that his hands remained steady till sunset. 13 And Josue mowed down Amalec and his people with the edge of the sword.

14 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Write this down in a document as something to be remembered, and recite it in the ears of Josue: f I will completely blot out the memory of Amalec from under the heavens." 15 Moses also built an altar there, which he called Yahweh-nissi;* 16 for he said, "The Lord takes in hand his banner; the Lord will war against Amalec through the centuries."

Meeting with Jethro. 1 Now Moses' father-in-law Jethro, the priest of Madian, heard of all that God had done for Moses and for his people Israel: how the Lord had brought Israel out of Egypt. 2 So his father-in-law Jethro took along Sepphora, Moses' wife, whom Moses had sent back to him, 3 and her two sons. One of these was called Gersam; g for he said, "I am a stranger in a foreign land." 4 The other was called Eliezer; for he said, "My father's God is my helper; he has rescued me from Pharao's sword." 5 Together with Moses' wife and sons, then, his father-in-law Jethro came to him in the desert where he was encamped near the mountain of God, 6 and he sent word to Moses, "I, Jethro, your father-in-law, am coming to you, along with your wife and her two sons."

7 Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, bowed down before him, and kissed him. Having greeted each other, they went into the tent. 8 Moses then told his father-in-law of all that the Lord had done to Pharao and the Egyptians for the sake of Israel, and of all the hardships they had had to endure on their journey, and how the Lord had come to their rescue. 9 Jethro rejoiced over all the goodness that the Lord had shown Israel in rescuing them from the hands of the Egyptians. 10 "Blessed be the Lord," he said, "who has rescued his people from the hands of Pharao and the Egyptians. 11 Now I know that the Lord is a deity great beyond any other; for he took occasion of their being dealt with insolently to deliver the people from the power of the Egyptians." 12 Then Jethro, the father-in-law of Moses, brought a holocaust and other sacrifices to God, and Aaron came with all the elders of Israel to participate with Moses' father-in-law in the meal before God.

Appointment of Minor Judges. 13 The next day Moses sat in judgment for the people, who waited about him from morning until evening. 14 When his father-in-law saw all that he was doing for the people, he inquired, "What sort of thing is this that you are doing for the people? Why do you sit alone while all the people have to stand about you from morning till evening?" 15 Moses answered his father-in-law, "The people come to me to consult God. 16 Whenever they have a disagreement, they come to me to have me settle the matter between them and make known to them God's decisions and regulations."

17 "You are not acting wisely," his father-in-law replied. 18 "You will surely wear yourself out, and not only yourself but also these people with you. The task is too heavy for you; h you cannot do it alone. 19 Now, listen to me, and I will give you some advice, that God may be with you. Act as the people's representa-

More important cases they should refer to you, but all the lesser cases they can settle themselves. Thus, your burden will be lightened, since they will bear it with you. 23 If you do this, when God gives you orders you will be able to stand the strain, and all these people will go home satisfied."

24 Moses followed the advice of his father-in-law and did all that he had suggested. 25 He picked out able men from all Israel and put them in charge of the people as officers over groups of thousands, of hundreds, of fifties, and of tens. 26 They rendered decisions for the people in all ordinary cases. The more difficult cases they referred to Moses, but all the lesser cases they settled themselves 27 Then Moses bade farewell to his father-in-law, who went off to his own country.

III: THE COVENANT AT MOUNT SINAI

CHAPTER 19.

Arrival at Sinai. 1 In the third month after their departure from the land of Egypt, on its first day, the Israelites came to the desert of Sinai. 2 After the journey from Raphidim to the desert of Sinai, they pitched camp.[j]

While Israel was encamped here in front of the mountain, 3 Moses went up the mountain to God. Then the Lord called to him and said, "Thus shall you say to the house of Jacob; 4 tell the Israelites: You have seen for yourselves how I treated the Egyptians and how I bore you up on eagle wings and brought you here to myself.[k] 5 Therefore, if you hearken to my voice and keep my covenant, you shall be my special possession, dearer to me than all other people,[l] though all the earth is mine. 6 You shall be to me a kingdom of priests,* a holy nation.[m] That is what you must tell the Israelites." 7 So Moses went and summoned the elders of the people. When he set before them all that the Lord had ordered him to tell them, 8 the people all answered together, "Everything the Lord has said, we will do." Then Moses brought back to the Lord the response of the people.

9 The Lord also told him, "I am coming to you in a dense cloud,[n] so that when the people hear me speaking with you, they may always have faith in you also." When Moses, then, had reported to the Lord the response of the people, 10 the Lord added, "Go to the people and have them sanctify themselves today and tomorrow. Make them wash their garments 11 and be ready for the third day; for on the third day the Lord will come down on Mount Sinai before the eyes of all the people. 12 Set limits for the people all around the mountain,[o] and tell them: Take care not to go up the mountain, or even to touch its base. If anyone touches the mountain he must be put to death. 13 No hand shall touch him; he must be stoned to death or killed with arrows. Such a one, man or beast, must not be allowed to live. Only when the ram's horn resounds may they go up to the mountain." 14 Then Moses came down from the mountain to the people and had them sanctify themselves and wash their garments. 15 He warned them, "Be ready for the third day. Have no intercourse with any woman."

The Great Theophany. 16 On the morning of the third day there were peals of thunder and lightning, and a heavy cloud over the mountain, and a very loud trumpet blast, so that all the people in the camp trembled. 17 But Moses led the people out of the camp to meet God, and they stationed themselves at the foot of the mountain.[p] 18 Mount Sinai was all wrapped in smoke, for the Lord came down upon it in fire. The smoke rose from it as though from a furnace, and the whole mountain trembled violently.

19 The trumpet blast grew louder and louder, while Moses was speaking and God answering him with thunder.

20 When the Lord came down to the top of Mount Sinai, he summoned Moses to the top of the mountain, and Moses went up to him. 21 Then the Lord told Moses, "Go down and warn the people not to break through toward the Lord in order to see him; otherwise many of them will be struck down. 22 The priests, too, who approach the Lord must sanc-tify themselves; else he will vent his anger upon them." 23 Moses said to the Lord, "The people cannot go up to Mount Sinai, for you yourself warned us to set limits around the mountain to make it sacred." 24 The Lord repeated, "Go down now! Then come up again along with Aaron. But the priests and the people must not break through to come up to the Lord; else he will vent his anger upon them." 25 So Moses went down to the people and told them this.

CHAPTER 20.

The Ten Commandments. 1 Then God
delivered all these commandments:*

2 q "I, the Lord, am your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt,r that place of slavery. 3 You shall not have other gods besides me. 4 You shall not carve idols s for yourselves in the shape of anything in the sky above or on the earth below or in the waters beneath the earth; 5 you shall not bow down before them or worship them. t For I, the Lord, your God, am a jealous* God, inflicting punishment for their fathers' wickedness
on the children of those who hate me,
down to the third and fourth generation;
6 but bestowing mercy down to the thousandth generation, on the children of those who love me and keep my commandments.

7 "You shall not take the name of the Lord, your God, in vain.u For the Lord will not leave unpunished him who takes
his name in vain.

8 "Remember to keep holy the Sabbath
day. 9 Six days you may labor and do all your work, 10 but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord, your God.v No work may be done then either by you, or your son or daughter, or your male or female slave, or your beast, or by the alien who lives with you. 11 In six days
the Lord made the heavens and the earth,
the sea and all that is in them; but on the seventh day he rested.w That is why
the Lord has blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy.

12 x "Honor your father and your mother, that you may have a long life in the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you.y

13 "You shall not kill.z

14 "You shall not commit adultery.a

15 "You shall not steal.b

16 "You shall not bear false witness against your neighbor.c

17 "You shall not covet your neighbor's house. You shall not covet your neighbor's wife, nor his male or female slave, nor his ox or ass, nor anything else that belongs to him."d

The Fear of God. 18 When the people witnessed the thunder and lightning, the trumpet blast and the mountain smoking, they all feared and trembled.e So they took up a position much farther away 19
and said to Moses, "You speak to us, and we will listen; but let not God speak to us, or we shall die." 20 Moses answered
the people, "Do not be afraid, for God has come to you only to test you and put his fear upon you, lest you should sin."
21 Still the people remained at a distance, while Moses approached the cloud where God was.

22 The Lord told Moses, "Thus shall you speak to the Israelites: You have seen for yourselves that I have spoken to you from heaven. 23 Do not make anything to rank with me; neither gods of silver nor gods of gold shall you make for yourselves.f

24 "An altar of earth you shall make for me, and upon it you shall sacrifice your holocausts and peace offerings, your sheep and your oxen.g In whatever place
I choose for the remembrance of my

do not build it of cut stone, for by putting a tool to it you desecrate it. 26 You shall not go up by steps to my altar, on covered.

CHAPTER 21.

Laws Regarding Slaves. 1 "These are the rules* you shall lay before them.[i] 2
When you purchase a Hebrew slave, he is to serve you for six years, but in the seventh year he shall be given his freedom without cost. 3 If he comes into service alone, he shall leave alone; if he comes with a wife, his wife shall leave with him. 4 But if his master gives him
a wife and she bears him sons or daughters, the woman and her children shall remain the master's property and the man shall leave alone. 5 If, however, the slave declares, 'I am devoted to my master and my wife and children; I will not go free,' 6 his master shall bring him to God* and there, at the door or doorpost, he shall pierce his ear with an awl, thus keeping him as his slave forever.

7 "When a man sells his daughter as a slave, she shall not go free as male slaves
do. 8 But if her master who had destined her* for himself dislikes her, he shall let her be redeemed. He has no right to sell her to a foreigner, since he has broken faith with her. 9 If he destines her for his son, he shall treat her like a daughter.
10 If he takes another wife, he shall not withhold her food, her clothing, or her conjugal rights. 11 If he does not grant her these three things, she shall be given her freedom absolutely, without cost to her.

Personal Injury. 12 "Whoever strikes a man a mortal blow must be put to death.[j] 13 He, however, who did not hunt a man down, but caused his death by an act of God, may flee to a place which I will set apart for this purpose. 14 But when a man kills another after maliciously scheming to do so, you must take him even from my altar and put him to death. 15 Whoever strikes his father or mother shall be put to death.

16 "A kidnaper, whether he sells his victim or still has him when caught, shall be put to death.[k]

17 "Whoever curses his father or mother
shall be put to death.[l]

18 "When men quarrel and one strikes
the other with a stone or with his fist, not mortally, but enough to put him in bed, 19 the one who struck the blow shall be acquitted, provided the other can get up and walk around with the help of his staff. Still, he must compensate him for his enforced idleness and provide for his complete cure.

20 "When a man strikes his male or female slave with a rod so hard that the slave dies under his hand, he shall be punished. 21 If, however, the slave survives for a day or two, he is not to be punished, since the slave is his own property.

22 "When men have a fight and hurt a pregnant woman, so that she suffers a miscarriage, but no further injury, the guilty one shall be fined as much as the woman's husband demands of him, and he shall pay in the presence of the judges.
23 *But if injury ensues, you shall give life for life, 24 eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, 25
burn for burn, wound for wound, stripe
for stripe.[m]

26 "When a man strikes his male or female slave in the eye and destroys the use of the eye, he shall let the slave go free in compensation for the eye. 27 If he knocks out a tooth of his male or female slave, he shall let the slave go free in compensation for the tooth.

28 "When an ox gores a man or a woman to death, the ox must be stoned; its flesh may not be eaten. The owner of the ox, however, shall go unpunished. 29 But if an ox was previously in the habit of 21, 1: Rules: judicial precedents to be used in settling questions of law and custom. This introductory phrase serves as the title of the following collection of civil and religious laws (chapters 21-23) which is called in Ex 24, 7, the Book of the Covenant.

21, 6: To God: to the sanctuary; or perhaps the phrase is to be rendered, "to the gods," in the sense of "to the judges." Cf Ps 81 (82), 1. Since the expression "to have an open ear" meant "to obey," a pierced ear lobe was an ancient symbol of obedience. Cf Ps 39 (40), 7.

21, 8f: Destined her: intended her as a wife of second rank.

21, 23ff: This section is known as the lex talionis, the law of tit for tat. The purpose of this law was not merely the enforcement of rigorous justice, but also the prevention of greater penalties than would be just. Christ refers to this passage when He exhorts Christians to cede their lawful rights for the sake of charity. Cf Mt 5, 38ff.

goring people and its owner, though warned, would not keep it in; should it then kill a man or a woman, not only must the ox be stoned, but its owner also must be put to death. 30 If, however, a fine is imposed on him, he must pay in ransom for his life whatever amount is imposed on him. 31 This law applies if it is a boy or a girl that the ox gores. 32 But if it is a male or a female slave that it gores, he must pay the owner of the slave thirty shekels of silver, and the ox must be stoned.

Property Damage. 33 "When a man uncovers or digs a cistern and does not cover it over again, should an ox or an ass fall into it, 34 the owner of the cistern must make good by restoring the value of the animal to its owner; the dead animal, however, he may keep.

35 "When one man's ox hurts another's ox so badly that it dies, they shall sell the live ox and divide this money as well as the dead animal equally between them. 36 But if it was known that the ox was previously in the habit of goring and its owner would not keep it in, he must make full restitution, an ox for an ox; but the dead animal he may keep.

37 *"When a man steals an ox or a sheep and slaughters or sells it, he shall restore five oxen for the one ox, and four sheep for the one sheep.[n]

CHAPTER 22.

1 "[If a thief is caught* in the act of housebreaking and beaten to death, there is no bloodguilt involved. 2 But if after sunrise he is thus beaten, there is bloodguilt.] He must make full restitution. If he has nothing, he shall be sold to pay for his theft. 3 If what he stole is found alive in his possession, be it an ox, an ass or a sheep, he shall restore two animals for each one stolen.

4 *"When a man is burning over a field or a vineyard, if he lets the fire spread so that it burns in another's field, he must make restitution with the best produce of his own field or vineyard. 5 If the fire spreads further, and catches on to thorn bushes, so that shocked grain or standing grain or the field itself is burned up, the one who started the fire must make full restitution.

Trusts and Loans. 6 "When a man gives money or any article to another for safekeeping and it is stolen from the latter's house, the thief, if caught, must make twofold restitution. 7 If the thief is not caught, the owner of the house shall be brought to God,* to swear that he himself did not lay hands on his neighbor's property. 8 In every question of dishonest appropriation, whether it be about an ox, or an ass, or a garment, or anything else that has disappeared, where another claims that the thing is his, both parties shall present their case before God; the one whom God convicts must make twofold restitution to the other.

9 "When a man gives an ass, or an ox, or a sheep, or any other animal to another for safekeeping, if it dies, or is maimed or snatched away, without anyone witnessing the fact, 10 the custodian shall swear by the Lord that he did not lay hands on his neighbor's property; the owner must accept the oath, and no restitution is to be made. 11 But if the custodian is really guilty of theft, he must make restitution to the owner. 12 If it has been killed by a wild beast, let him bring it as evidence, and he need not make restitution for the mangled animal.[o]

13 "When a man borrows an animal from his neighbor, if it is maimed or dies while the owner is not present, the man must make restitution. 14 But if the owner is present, he need not make restitution. If it was hired, this was covered by the price of its hire.

Social Laws. 15 "When a man seduces a virgin who is not betrothed, and lies with her, he shall pay her marriage price and marry her.[p] 16 If her father refuses to give her to him, he must still pay him the customary marriage price for virgins.*

17 "You shall not let a sorceress live.[q]

18 "Anyone who lies with an animal shall be put to death.[r]

19 "Whoever sacrifices to any god, except to the Lord alone, shall be doomed.[s]

22, 1f: If a thief is caught: this seems to be a fragment of what was once a longer law on housebreaking, which has been inserted here into the middle of a law on stealing animals. At night the householder would be justified in killing a burglar outright, but not so in the daytime, when the burglar could more easily be caught alive. He must make full restitution: this stood originally immediately after 21, 37.

22, 4: The Greek and Latin versions understood this verse as a prohibition against allowing one's cattle to graze in the field of another.

22, 7: Brought to God: see note on Ex 21, 6. Cf also Ex 22, 10.

22, 16: The customary marriage price for virgins: fifty shekels according to Dt 22, 29.

20 "You shall not molest or oppress an alien, for you were once aliens yourselves in the land of Egypt.[t] 21 You shall not wrong any widow or orphan. 22 If ever you wrong them and they cry out to me, I will surely hear their cry. 23 My wrath will flare up, and I will kill you with the sword; then your own wives will be widows, and your children orphans.

24 [u] "If you lend money to one of your poor neighbors among my people, you shall not act like an extortioner toward him by demanding interest from him. 25 If you take your neighbor's cloak as a pledge, you shall return it to him before sunset; 26 for this cloak of his is the only covering he has for his body. What else has he to sleep in? If he cries out to me, I will hear him; for I am compassionate.

27 "You shall not revile God,* nor curse a prince of your people.[v]

28 "You shall not delay the offering of your harvest and your press. You shall give me the first-born of your sons. 29 You must do the same with your oxen and your sheep; for seven days the firstling may stay with its mother, but on the eighth day you must give it to me.[w]

30 "You shall be men sacred to me. Flesh torn to pieces in the field you shall not eat; throw it to the dogs.[x]

CHAPTER 23.

1 "You shall not repeat a false report. Do not join the wicked in putting your hand, as an unjust witness, upon anyone.[y] 2 Neither shall you allege the example of the many as an excuse for doing wrong, nor shall you, when testifying in a lawsuit, side with the many in perverting justice. 3 You shall not favor a poor man in his lawsuit.[z]

4 "When you come upon your enemy's ox or ass going astray, see to it that it is returned to him.[a] 5 When you notice the ass of one who hates you lying prostrate under its burden, by no means desert him; help him, rather, to raise it up.

6 "You shall not deny one of your needy fellow men his rights in his lawsuit. 7 You shall keep away from anything dishonest. The innocent and the just you shall not put to death, nor shall you acquit the guilty. 8 Never take a bribe, for a bribe blinds even the most clear-sighted and twists the words even of the just.[b] 9 You shall not oppress an alien; you well know how it feels to be an alien, since you were once aliens yourselves in the land of Egypt.[c]

Religious Laws. 10 [d] "For six years you may sow your land and gather in its produce. 11 But the seventh year you shall let the land lie untilled and unharvested, that the poor among you may eat of it and the beasts of the field may eat what the poor leave. So also shall you do in regard to your vineyard and your olive grove.

12 "For six days you may do your work, but on the seventh day you must rest,[e] that your ox and your ass may also have rest, and that the son of your maidservant and the alien may be refreshed. 13 Give heed to all that I have told you.

"Never mention the name of any other god; it shall not be heard from your lips.

14 [f] "Three times a year you shall celebrate a pilgrim feast to me.* 15 You shall keep the feast of Unleavened Bread. As I have commanded you, you must eat unleavened bread for seven days at the prescribed time in the month of Abib, for it was then that you came out of Egypt. No one shall appear before me* empty-handed. 16 You shall also keep the feast of the grain harvest with the first of the crop that you have sown in the field; and finally, the feast at the fruit harvest at the end of the year, when you gather in the produce from the fields. 17 Thrice a year shall all your men appear before the Lord God.

18 "You shall not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread; [g] nor shall the fat of my feast be kept overnight till the next day. 19 The choicest first fruits of your soil you shall bring to the house of the Lord, your God.

"You shall not boil a kid in its mother's milk.*

Reward of Fidelity. 20 "See, I am sending an angel [h] before you, to guard you on the way and bring you to the place I have prepared. 21 Be attentive to him and heed his voice. Do not rebel against him, for he will not forgive your sin. My authority resides in him.* 22 If you heed his voice and carry out all I tell you, I will be an enemy to your enemies and a foe to your foes.

23 "My angel will go before you and bring you to the Amorrites, Hethites, Pherezites, Chanaanites, Hevites and Jebusites; and I will wipe them out. 24 Therefore, you shall not bow down in worship before their gods, nor shall you make anything like them;* rather, you must demolish them and smash their sacred pillars.[i] 25 The Lord, your God, you shall worship; then I will bless your food and drink, and I will remove all sickness from your midst; 26 no woman in your land will be barren or miscarry; and I will give you a full span of life.

27 "I will have the fear of me precede you, so that I will throw into panic every nation you reach.[j] I will make all your enemies turn from you in flight, 28 and ahead of you I will send hornets* to drive the Hevites, Chanaanites and Hethites out of your way. 29 But not in one year will I drive them all out before you; else the land will become so desolate that the wild beasts will multiply against you. 30 Instead, I will drive them out little by little before you, until you have grown numerous enough to take possession of the land. 31 [k] I will set your boundaries from the Red Sea to the sea of the Philistines,* and from the desert to the River; all who dwell in this land I will hand over to you to be driven out of your way. 32 You shall not make a covenant with them or their gods. 33 They must not abide in your land, lest they make you sin against me by ensnaring you into worshiping their gods." [l]

Ratification of the Covenant. 1 Moses himself was told, "Come up to the Lord, you and Aaron, with Nadab, Abiu, and seventy of the elders of Israel. You shall all worship at some distance, 2 but Moses alone is to come close to the Lord; the others shall not come too near, and the people shall not come up at all with Moses."

3 When Moses came to the people and related all the words and ordinances of the Lord, they all answered with one voice, "We will do everything that the Lord has told us." [m] 4 Moses then wrote down all the words of the Lord and, rising early the next day, he erected at the foot of the mountain an altar and twelve pillars* for the twelve tribes of Israel. 5 Then, having sent certain young men of the Israelites to offer holocausts and sacrifice young bulls as peace offerings to the Lord, 6 Moses took half of the blood and put it in large bowls; the other half he splashed on the altar. 7 Taking the Book of the Covenant, he read it aloud to the people, who answered, "All that the Lord has said, we will heed and do." 8 Then he took the blood and sprinkled it on the people, saying, "This is the blood of the covenant which the Lord has made with you in accordance with all these words of his." [n]

9 Moses then went up with Aaron, Nadab, Abiu, and seventy elders of Israel, 10 and they beheld the God of Israel. Under his feet there appeared to be sapphire tilework, as clear as the sky itself. 11 Yet he did not smite these chosen Israelites. After gazing on God,* they could still eat and drink.

Moses on the Mountain. 12 The Lord said to Moses, "Come up to me on the mountain and, while you are there, I will give you the stone tablets [o] on which I have written the commandments intended for their instruction." 13 So Moses set out with Josue, his aide, and went up to

23, 21: My authority resides in him: literally, "My name is within him."

23, 24: Make anything like them: some render, "act according to their conduct." Sacred pillars: objects of religious veneration at Chanaanite sanctuaries.

23, 28: Hornets: some understand this figuratively of various troublesome afflictions; others translate the Hebrew word as "leprosy." Cf Dt 7, 20; Jos 24, 12; Wis 12, 8.

23, 31: The sea of the Philistines: the Mediterranean. The River: the Euphrates. Only in the time of David and Solomon did the territory of Israel come near to reaching such distant borders.

24, 4: Pillars: stone shafts or slabs, erected as symbols of the fact that each of the twelve tribes had entered into this covenant with God; not idolatrous as in Ex 23, 24, although the same Hebrew word is used in both passages. See note on Gn 28, 18.

24, 11: After gazing on God: the ancients thought that the sight of God would bring instantaneous death. Cf Ex 33, 20; Gn 16, 13; 32, 31; Jgs 6, 22f; 13, 22. Eat and drink: partake of the sacrificial meal.

the mountain of God. 14 The elders, however, had been told by him, "Wait here for us until we return to you. Aaron and Hur are staying with you. If anyone has a complaint, let him refer the matter to them." 15 After Moses had gone up, a cloud covered the mountain. 16 The glory of the Lord settled upon Mount Sinai. The cloud covered it for six days, and on the seventh day he called to Moses from the midst of the cloud.[p] 17 To the Israelites the glory of the Lord was seen as a consuming fire on the mountaintop.[q] 18 But Moses passed into the midst of the cloud as he went up on the mountain; and there he stayed for forty days and forty nights.[r]

IV: THE DWELLING AND ITS FURNISHINGS

CHAPTER 25.

Collection of Materials. 1 This is what the Lord then said to Moses:[s] 2 "Tell the Israelites to take up a collection for me. From every man you shall accept the contribution that his heart prompts him to give me. 3 These are the contributions you shall accept from them: gold, silver and bronze;[t] 4 violet, purple and scarlet yarn; fine linen and goat hair; 5 rams' skins dyed red, and thahas* skins; acacia wood; 6 oil for the light; spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense; 7 onyx stones and other gems for mounting on the ephod and the breastpiece.

8 "They shall make a sanctuary for me, that I may dwell in their midst.[u] 9 This Dwelling and all its furnishings you shall make exactly according to the pattern that I will now show you.[v]

Plan of the Ark. 10 "You shall make an ark of acacia wood,[w] two and a half cubits long, one and a half cubits wide, and one and a half cubits high. 11 Plate it inside and outside with pure gold, and put a molding of gold around the top of it. 12 Cast four gold rings and fasten them on the four supports of the ark, two rings on one side and two on the opposite side. 13 Then make poles of acacia wood and plate them with gold. 14 These poles you are to put through the rings on the sides of the ark, for carrying it; 15 they must remain in the rings of the ark and never be withdrawn. 16 In the ark you are to put the Commandments which I will give you.

17 "You shall then make a propitiatory* of pure gold, two cubits and a half long, and one and a half cubits wide. 18 Make two cherubim* of beaten gold for the two ends of the propitiatory, 19 fastening them so that one cherub springs direct from each end. 20 The cherubim shall have their wings spread out above, covering the propitiatory with them; they shall be turned toward each other, but with their faces looking toward the propitiatory. This propitiatory you shall then place on top of the ark. 21 In the ark itself you are to put the Commandments which I will give you. 22 There I will meet you and there, from above the propitiatory, between the two cherubim on the Ark of the Commandments, I will tell you all the commandments that I wish you to give the Israelites.

The Table. 23 "You shall also make a table of acacia[x] wood, two cubits long, a cubit wide, and a cubit and a half high. 24 Plate it with pure gold and make a molding of gold around it. 25 Surround it with a frame,* a handbreadth high, with a molding of gold around the frame. 26 You shall also make four rings of gold for it and fasten them at the four corners, 27 one at each leg, on two opposite sides of the frame as holders for the poles to carry the table. 28 These poles for carrying the table you shall make of acacia wood and plate with gold. 29 Of pure gold you shall make its plates* and cups, as well as its pitchers and bowls for pouring libations. 30 On the table you shall 25, 5: Thahas: perhaps the name of a marine animal, such as the dugong or the porpoise. The Greek and Latin versions took it for the color hyacinth.

25, 17: Propitiatory: this traditional rendering of the Hebrew term, which may mean merely "cover," is derived from its connection with the ceremony of the Day of Atonement whereby God was rendered "propitious." Cf Lv 16, 14ff.

25, 18ff: Cherubim: probably in the form of human-headed winged lions. The cherubim over the ark formed the throne for the invisible Lord. Cf Ps 79 (80), 2. For a more detailed description of the somewhat different cherubim in Solomon's temple, see 3 Kgs 6, 23-28; 2 Par 3, 10-13.

25, 25: A frame: probably placed near the bottom of the legs to keep them steady. The golden table of Herod's temple is pictured thus on the Arch of Titus.

25, 29f: The plates held the showbread, that is, the holy bread which was placed upon the table every Sabbath as an offering to God, and was later eaten by the priests. The cups held the incense which was strewn upon the bread. Cf Lv 24, 5-9. The libation wine was poured from the pitchers into the bowls. All these vessels were kept on the golden table.

always keep showbread set before me.[y]

The Lampstand. 31 "You shall make a lampstand of pure beaten gold [z]—its shaft and branches—with its cups and knobs and petals springing directly from it. 32 Six branches are to extend from the sides of the lampstand, three branches on one side, and three on the other. 33 On one branch there are to be three cups, shaped like almond blossoms, each with its knob and petals; on the opposite branch there are to be three cups, shaped like almond blossoms, each with its knob and petals; and so for the six branches that extend from the lampstand. 34 On the shaft there are to be four cups, shaped like almond blossoms, with their knobs and petals, 35 including a knob below each of the three pairs of branches that extend from the lampstand. 36 Their knobs and branches shall so spring from it that the whole will form but a single piece of pure beaten gold. 37 You shall then make seven lamps [a] for it and so set up the lamps that they shed their light on the space in front of the lampstand. 38 These, as well as the trimming shears and trays, must be of pure gold. 39 Use a talent of pure gold for the lampstand and all its appurtenances. 40 See that you make them according to the pattern shown you on the mountain.[b]

CHAPTER 26.

The Tent Cloth. 1 "The Dwelling itself you shall make out of sheets* woven of fine linen twined and of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, with cherubim embroidered on them.[c] 2 The length of each shall be twenty-eight cubits, and the width four cubits; all the sheets shall be of the same size. 3 Five of the sheets are to be sewed together, edge to edge; and the same for the other five. 4 Make loops of violet yarn along the edge of the end sheet in one set, and the same along the edge of the end sheet in the other set. 5 There are to be fifty loops along the edge of the end sheet in the first set, and fifty loops along the edge of the corresponding sheet in the second set, and so placed that the loops are directly opposite each other. 6 Then make fifty clasps of gold, with which to join the two sets of sheets, so that the Dwelling forms one whole.

7 "Also make sheets woven of goat hair, to be used as a tent covering* over the Dwelling. 8 Eleven such sheets are to be made; the length of each shall be thirty cubits, and the width four cubits: all eleven sheets shall be of the same size. 9 Sew five of the sheets, edge to edge, into one set, and the other six sheets into another set. Use the sixth sheet double at the front of the tent.* 10 Make fifty loops along the edge of the end sheet in one set, and fifty loops along the edge of the end sheet in the second set. 11 Also make fifty bronze clasps and put them into the loops, to join the tent into one whole. 12 There will be an extra half sheet of tent covering, which shall be allowed to hang down over the rear of the Dwelling. 13 Likewise, the sheets of the tent will have an extra cubit's length to be left hanging down on either side of the Dwelling to protect it. 14 Over the tent itself you shall make a covering of rams' skins dyed red, and above that, a covering of thahas skins.

The Wooden Walls. 15 [d] "You shall make boards of acacia wood as walls for the Dwelling. 16 The length of each board is to be ten cubits, and its width one and a half cubits. 17 Each board shall have two arms* that shall serve to fasten the boards in line. In this way all the boards of the Dwelling are to be made. 18 Set up the boards of the Dwelling as follows: twenty boards on the south side, 19 with forty silver pedestals under the twenty boards, so that there are two pedestals

y Lv 24, 5ff.—z Ex 37, 17-24.—a Lv 24, 2ff; Nm 8, 2.—b Heb 8, 5.—c Ex 36, 8-19.—d Ex 36, 20-34.

25, 33: In keeping with the arrangement of the ornaments on the shaft, the three sets of ornaments on each branch were probably so placed that one was at the top and the other two equally spaced along the length of the branch. Knob the cup-shaped seed capsule at the base of a flower.

25, 34f: Of the four ornaments on the shaft, one was at the top and one was below each of the three sets of side branches.

25, 37: The lamps were probably shaped like small boats, with the wick at one end; the end with the wick was turned toward the front of the lampstand.

25, 38: Trays small receptacles for the burnt-out wicks.

26, 1: Sheets strips of tapestry, woven of white linen, the colored threads being used for the cherubim which were embroidered on them. These sheets were stretched across the top of the Dwelling to form a roof, their free ends hanging down inside the boards which formed walls.

26, 7: Tent covering the cloth made of sheets of goat hair to cover the Dwelling. However, when Tent is capitalized in the text, it refers, not to this covering, but to the entire Meeting Tent.

26, 9: Half the width of the end strip was folded back at the front of the Dwelling, thus leaving another half-strip to hang down at the rear. Cf v 12.

26, 17: Arms: literally, "hands." According to some, they served as "tongue and groove" to mortise the boards together; according to others, they were pegs at the bottom of the boards and fitted into sockets in the pedestals.

under each board, at its two arms; [20] twenty boards on the other side of the Dwelling, the north side, [21] with their forty silver pedestals, two under each board; [22] six boards for the rear of the Dwelling, to the west; [23] and two boards for the corners at the rear of the Dwelling. [24] These two shall be double at the bottom, and likewise double at the top, to the first ring. That is how both boards in the corners are to be made. [25] Thus, there shall be in the rear eight boards, with their sixteen silver pedestals, two pedestals under each board. [26] Also make bars of acacia wood: five for the boards on one side of the Dwelling; [27] five for those on the other side, and five for those at the rear, toward the west. [28] The center bar, at the middle of the boards, shall reach across from end to end. [29] Plate the boards with gold, and make gold rings on them as holders for the bars, which are also to be plated with gold. [30] You shall erect the Dwelling according to the pattern shown you on the mountain.

The Veils. [31] "You shall have a veil woven of violet, purple and scarlet yarn,[e] and of fine linen twined, with cherubim embroidered on it.[f] [32] It is to be hung on four gold-plated columns of acacia wood, which shall have hooks* of gold and shall rest on four silver pedestals. [33] Hang the veil from clasps. The Ark of the Commandments you shall bring inside, behind this veil which divides the Holy Place from the Holy of Holies. [34] Set the propitiatory on the Ark of the Commandments in the Holy of Holies.

[35] "Outside the veil you shall place the table and the lampstand, the latter on the south side of the Dwelling, opposite the table, which is to be put on the north side. [36] For the entrance of the tent make a variegated* curtain of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and of fine linen twined. [37] Make five columns of acacia wood for this curtain; have them plated with gold, with their hooks of gold; and cast five bronze pedestals for them.

e 2 Par 3, 14.—f Ex 36, 35-38.—g Ex 38, 1-7.—h Ex 38, 9-20.

26, 32: Hooks: probably placed near the tops of the columns, to hold the rope from which the veils and curtains hung.

26, 36: Variegated: without definite designs such as the cherubim on the inner veil.

27, 4: Grating: it is not clear whether this was flush with the altar or at some small distance from it; in the latter case the space between the altar and the grating would be filled with stones and serve as a platform around the altar, which would otherwise be too high for the priest to reach conveniently.

27, 8: Hollow: probably filled with earth or stones when in use. Cf Ex 20, 24f.

CHAPTER 27.

The Altar of Holocausts. [1] "You shall make an altar[g] of acacia wood, on a square, five cubits long and five cubits wide; it shall be three cubits high. [2] At the four corners there are to be horns, so made that they spring directly from the altar. You shall then plate it with bronze. [3] Make pots for removing the ashes, as well as shovels, basins, forks and fire pans, all of which shall be of bronze. [4] Make a grating* of bronze network for it; this to have four bronze rings, one at each of its four corners. [5] Put it down around the altar, on the ground. This network is to be half as high as the altar. [6] You shall also make poles of acacia wood for the altar, and plate them with bronze. [7] These poles are to be put through the rings, so that they are on either side of the altar when it is carried. [8] Make the altar itself in the form of a hollow* box, just as it was shown you on the mountain.

Court of the Dwelling. [h] "You shall also make a court for the Dwelling. [9] On the south side the court shall have hangings a hundred cubits long, woven of fine linen twined, [10] with twenty columns and twenty pedestals of bronze; the hooks and bands on the columns shall be of silver. [11] On the north side there shall be similar hangings, a hundred cubits long, with twenty columns and twenty pedestals of bronze; the hooks and bands on the columns shall be of silver. [12] On the west side, across the width of the court, there shall be hangings, fifty cubits long, with ten columns and ten pedestals. [13] The width of the court on the east side shall be fifty cubits. [14] On one side there shall be hangings to the extent of fifteen cubits, with three columns and three pedestals; [15] on the other side there shall be hangings to the extent of fifteen cubits, with three columns and three pedestals.

[16] "At the entrance of the court there shall be a variegated curtain, twenty cubits long, woven of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and of fine linen twined. It shall have four columns and four pedestals.

17 "All the columns around the court shall have bands and hooks of silver, and pedestals of bronze. 18 The enclosure of the court is to be one hundred cubits
long, fifty cubits wide, and five cubits high. Fine linen twined must be used, and the pedestals must be of bronze. 19
All the fittings of the Dwelling, whatever be their use, as well as all its tent pegs and all the tent pegs of the court, must be of bronze.

Oil for the Lamps. 20 "You shall order
the Israelites to bring you clear oil of crushed olives, to be used for the light,
so that you may keep lamps burning regularly.[i] 21 From evening to morning
Aaron and his sons shall maintain them
before the Lord in the Meeting Tent, outside the veil which hangs in front of the Commandments. This shall be a perpetual ordinance for the Israelites throughout their generations.

CHAPTER 28.

The Priestly Vestments. 1 "From among the Iraelites have your brother Aaron, together with his sons Nadab, Abiu, Eleazar and Ithamar, brought to you, that they may be my priests. 2 For the glorious adornment of your brother Aaron
you shall have sacred vestments made.
3 Therefore, to the various expert workmen whom I have endowed with skill, you shall give instructions to make such vestments for Aaron as will set him apart
for his sacred service as my priest. 4
These are the vestments they shall make:
a breastpiece, an ephod, a robe, a brocaded tunic, a miter and a sash. In making these sacred vestments which your brother Aaron and his sons are to wear
in serving as my priests, 5 they shall use gold, violet, purple and scarlet yarn and fine linen.[j]

The Ephod and Breastpiece. 6 "The ephod* they shall make of gold thread
and of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, embroidered on cloth of fine linen twined.[k] 7 It shall have a pair of shoulder straps joined to its two upper ends. 8 The embroidered belt on the ephod shall extend out from it and, like it, be made of gold thread, of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, and of fine linen twined.

9 "Get two onyx stones and engrave
on them the names of the sons of Israel:
10 six of their names on one stone, and the other six on the other stone, in the order of their birth. 11 As a gem-cutter engraves a seal, so shall you have the two stones engraved with the names of the sons of Israel and then mounted in gold filigree work. 12 Set these two stones on the shoulder straps of the ephod as memorial stones of the sons of Israel. Thus Aaron shall bear their names on his shoulders as a reminder before the Lord.
13 Make filigree rosettes of gold,[l] 14 as well as two chains of pure gold, twisted like cords, and fasten the cordlike chains to the filigree rosettes.

15 m "The breastpiece* of decision you shall also have made, embroidered like
the ephod with gold thread and violet, purple and scarlet yarn on cloth of fine linen twined. 16 It is to be square when folded double, a span high and a span wide. 17 *On it you shall mount four rows of precious stones: in the first row, a carnelian, a topaz and an emerald; 18 in the second row, a garnet, a sapphire and a beryl; 19 in the third row, a jacinth, an agate and an amethyst; 20 in the fourth row, a chrysolite, an onyx and a jasper.
These stones are to be mounted in gold
filigree work, 21 twelve of them to match
the names of the sons of Israel, each stone engraved like a seal with the name of one of the twelve tribes.

22 "When the chains of pure gold, twisted like cords, have been made for the breastpiece, 23 you shall then make two rings of gold for it and fasten them to the two upper ends of the breastpiece.
24 The gold cords are then to be fastened to the two rings at the upper ends of the breastpiece, 25 the other two ends of the cords being fastened in front to the two filigree rosettes which are attached to the shoulder straps of the ephod. 26 Make two other rings of gold and put them on the two lower ends of the breastpiece, on its edge that faces the ephod. 27 Then i Lv 24, 1-4.—j Ex 39, 1; Sir 45, 6.—k Ex 39, 2-7; Sir 45, 7-12.—l Ex 28, 22. 25; 39, 15. 18.—m Ex 39, 15-21.

28, 6: Ephod: this Hebrew word is retained in the translation because it is the technical term for a peculiar piece of the priestly vestments, the exact nature of which is uncertain. It seems to have been a sort of apron that hung from the shoulders of the priest by shoulder straps (v 7) and was tied around his waist by the loose ends of the attached belt (v 8).

28, 15-30 Breastpiece: in shape like a modern altar burse, it was a pocketlike receptacle for holding the Urim and Thummim (v 30), and formed an integral part of the ephod, to which it was attached by an elaborate system of rings and chains. Both the ephod and its breastpiece were made of brocaded linen.

28, 17-20: The translation of the Hebrew names of some of these gems is quite conjectural.

make two more rings of gold and fasten them to the bottom of the shoulder straps next to where they join the ephod in front, just above its embroidered belt. 28 Violet ribbons shall bind the rings of the breastpiece to the rings of the ephod, so that the breastpiece will stay right above the embroidered belt of the ephod and not swing loose from it.

29 "Whenever Aaron enters the sanctuary, he will thus bear the names of the sons of Israel on the breastpiece of decision over his heart as a constant reminder before the Lord. 30 In this breastpiece of decision[n] you shall put the Urim and Thummim,* that they may be over Aaron's heart whenever he enters the presence of the Lord. Thus he shall always bear the decisions for the Israelites over his heart in the Lord's presence.

Other Vestments. 31 "The robe of the ephod[o] you shall make entirely of violet material. 32 It shall have an opening for the head in the center, and around this opening there shall be a selvage, woven as at the opening of a shirt, to keep it from being torn. 33 All around the hem at the bottom you shall make pomegranates, woven of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and fine linen twined, with gold bells between them; 34 first a gold bell, then a pomegranate, and thus alternating all around the hem of the robe. 35 Aaron shall wear it when ministering, that its tinkling may be heard as he enters and leaves the Lord's presence in the sanctuary; else he will die.

36 "You shall also make a plate of pure gold and engrave on it, as on a seal engraving, "Sacred to the Lord." 37 This plate is to be tied over the miter with a violet ribbon in such a way that it rests on the front of the miter, 38 over Aaron's forehead. Since Aaron bears whatever guilt the Israelites may incur in consecrating any of their sacred gifts, this plate must always be over his forehead, so that they may find favor with the Lord.

39 [p] "The tunic of fine linen shall be brocaded. The miter shall be made of fine linen. The sash shall be of variegated work.

40 "Likewise, for the glorious adornment of Aaron's sons you shall have tunics and sashes and turbans made. 41 With these you shall clothe your brother Aaron and his sons. Anoint and ordain them,* consecrating them as my priests. 42 You must also make linen drawers for them, to cover their naked flesh from their loins to their thighs.[q] 43 Aaron and his sons shall wear them whenever they go into the Meeting Tent or approach the altar to minister in the sanctuary, lest they incur guilt and die. This shall be a perpetual ordinance for him and for his descendants.

Consecration of the Priests. 1 "This is the rite you shall perform in consecrating them as my priests.[r] Procure a young bull and two unblemished rams. 2 With fine wheat flour make unleavened cakes mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers spread with oil, 3 and put them in a basket. Take the basket of them along with the bullock and the two rams. 4 Aaron and his sons you shall also bring to the entrance of the Meeting Tent, and there wash them with water. 5 Take the vestments and clothe Aaron with the tunic, the robe of the ephod, the ephod itself, and the breastpiece, fastening the embroidered belt of the ephod around him. 6 Put the miter on his head, the sacred diadem on the miter. 7 Then take the anointing oil and anoint him with it, pouring it on his head. 8 Bring forward his sons also and clothe them with the tunics, 9 gird them with the sashes, and tie the turbans on them.[s] Thus shall the priesthood be theirs by perpetual law, and thus shall you ordain Aaron and his sons.

Ordination Sacrifices. 10 [t] "Now bring forward the bullock in front of the Meeting Tent. There Aaron and his sons shall lay their hands on its head. 11 Then slaughter the bullock before the Lord, at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. 12 Take some of its blood and with your finger put it on the horns of the altar. All the rest of the blood you shall pour out at the base of the altar. 13 All the fat that

28, 30: Urim and Thummim: both the meaning of these Hebrew words and the exact nature of the objects so designated are uncertain. They were apparently lots of some kind which were drawn or cast by the priest to ascertain God's decision in doubtful matters. Hence, the burse in which they were kept was called "the breastpiece of decision."

28, 41: Ordain them: literally, "fill their hands," a technical expression used solely for the installation of priests. The phrase probably originated in the custom of placing in the priests' hands the instruments or other symbols of the sacerdotal office.

covers its inner organs, as well as the lobe of its liver and its two kidneys, together with the fat that is on them, you shall take and burn on the altar. 14 But the flesh and hide and offal of the bullock you must burn up outside the camp, since this is a sin offering.[u]

15 "Then take one of the rams, and after Aaron and his sons have laid their hands on its head, 16 slaughter it. The blood you shall take and splash on all the sides of the altar. 17 Cut the rams into pieces; its inner organs and shanks you shall first wash, and then put them with the pieces and with the head. 18 The entire ram shall then be burned on the altar, since it is a holocaust, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.

19 "After this take the other ram, and when Aaron and his sons have laid their hands on its head, 20 slaughter it. Some of its blood you shall take and put on the tip of Aaron's right ear and on the tips of his sons' right ears and on the thumbs of their right hands and the great toes of their right feet. Splash the rest of the blood on all the sides of the altar. 21 Then take some of the blood that is on the altar, together with some of the anointing oil, and sprinkle this on Aaron and his vestments, as well as on his sons and their vestments, that his sons and their vestments may be sacred.

22 "Now, from this ram you shall take its fat: its fatty tail,* the fat that covers its inner organs, the lobe of its liver, its two kidneys with the fat that is on them, and its right thigh, since this is the ordination ram; 23 then, out of the basket of unleavened food that you have set before the Lord, you shall take one of the loaves of bread, one of the cakes made with oil, and one of the wafers. 24 All these things you shall put into the hands of Aaron and his sons, so that they may wave them as a wave offering* before the Lord. 25 After you have received them back from their hands, you shall burn them on top of the holocaust on the altar as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 26 Finally, take the breast of Aaron's ordination ram and wave it as a wave offering before the Lord; this is to be your own portion.

27 *"Thus shall you set aside the breast of whatever wave offering is waved,[v] as well as the thigh of whatever raised offering is raised up, whether this be the ordination ram or anything else belonging to Aaron or to his sons. 28 Such things are due to Aaron and his sons from the Israelites by a perpetual ordinance as a contribution. From their peace offerings, too, the Israelites shall make a contribution, their contribution to the Lord.

29 "The sacred vestments[w] of Aaron shall be passed down to his descendants, that in them they may be anointed and ordained. 30 The descendant who succeeds him as priest and who is to enter the Meeting Tent to minister in the sanctuary shall be clothed with them for seven days.

31[x] "You shall take the flesh of the ordination ram and boil it in a holy place. 32 At the entrance of the Meeting Tent Aaron and his sons shall eat the flesh of the ram and the bread that is in the basket. 33 They themselves are to eat of these things by which atonement was made at their ordination and consecration; but no layman may eat of them, since they are sacred. 34 If some of the flesh of the ordination sacrifice or some of the bread remains over on the next day, this remnant must be burned up; it is not to be eaten, since it is sacred. 35 Carry out all these orders in regard to Aaron and his sons just as I have given them to you.[y]

"Seven days you shall spend in ordaining them,[z] 36 sacrificing a bullock each day as a sin offering, to make atonement. Thus also shall you purge the altar* in making atonement for it; you shall anoint it in order to consecrate it. 37 Seven days you shall spend in making atonement for the altar and in consecrating it. Then the altar will be most sacred, and whatever touches it will become sacred.

38 *"Now, this is what you shall offer on the altar: two yearling lambs[a] as the sacrifice established for each day; 39 one lamb in the morning and the other lamb at the evening twilight. 40 With the first lamb there shall be a tenth of an epha of fine flour mixed with a fourth of a hin of oil of crushed olives and, as its libation, a fourth of a hin of wine. 41 The other lamb you shall offer at the evening twilight, with the same cereal offering and libation as in the morning. You shall offer this as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 42 Throughout your generations this established holocaust shall be offered before the Lord at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, where I will meet you and speak to you.

43 "There, at the altar, I will meet the Israelites; hence, it will be made sacred by my glory.[b] 44 Thus I will consecrate the Meeting Tent and the altar, just as I also consecrate Aaron and his sons to be my priests. 45 I will dwell in the midst of the Israelites and will be their God. 46 They shall know that I, the Lord, am their God who brought them out of the land of Egypt, so that I, the Lord, their God, might dwell among them.

CHAPTER 30.

Altar of Incense. 1 "For burning incense you shall make an altar of acacia wood,[c] 2 with a square surface, a cubit long, a cubit wide, and a cubit high, with horns that spring directly from it. 3 Its grate on top, its walls on all four sides, and its horns you shall plate with pure gold. Put a gold molding around it. 4 Underneath the molding you shall put gold rings two on one side and two on the opposite side, as holders for the poles used in carrying it. 5 Make the poles, too, of acacia wood and plate them with gold. 6 This altar you are to place in front of the veil that hangs before the Ark of the Commandments where I will meet you.[d]

7 "On it Aaron shall burn fragrant incense. Morning after morning, when he prepares the lamps, 8 and again in the evening twilight, when he lights the lamps, he shall burn incense. Throughout your generations this shall be the established incense offering before the Lord. 9 On this altar you shall not offer up any profane incense, or any holocaust or cereal offering; nor shall you pour out a libation upon it. 10 Once a year Aaron shall perform the atonement rite on its horns.[e] Throughout your generations this atonement is to be made once a year with the blood of the atoning sin offering. This altar is most sacred to the Lord."

Census Tax. 11 The Lord also said to Moses, 12 "When you take a census[f] of the Israelites who are to be registered, each one, as he is enrolled, shall give the Lord a forfeit for his life, so that no plague may come upon them for being registered. 13 Everyone who enters the registered group must pay a half-shekel, according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel, twenty geras to the shekel. This payment of a half-shekel is a contribution to the Lord. 14 Everyone of twenty years or more who enters the registered group must give this contribution to the Lord.[g] 15 The rich need not give more, nor shall the poor give less, than a half-shekel in this contribution to the Lord to pay the forfeit for their lives. 16 [h] When you receive this forfeit money from the Israelites, you shall donate it to the service of the Meeting Tent, that there it may be the Israelites' reminder before the Lord, of the forfeit paid for their lives."

The Laver. 17 The Lord said to Moses, 18 "For ablutions you shall make a bronze laver with a bronze base. Place it between the Meeting Tent and the altar, and put water in it.[i] 19 Aaron and his sons shall use it in washing their hands and feet.[j] 20 When they are about to enter the Meeting Tent, they must wash with water, lest they die. Likewise when they approach the altar in their ministry, to offer an oblation to the Lord, 21 they must wash their hands and feet, lest they die. This shall be a perpetual ordinance for him and his descendants throughout their generations."

The Anointing Oil. 22 The Lord said to Moses, 23 "Take the finest spices: five hundred shekels of free-flowing myrrh; half that amount, that is, two hundred and fifty shekels, of fragrant cinnamon; two hundred and fifty shekels of fragrant cane; 24 five hundred shekels of cassia—all according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel; together with a hin of olive oil; 25 and blend them into sacred anointing oil,[k] perfumed ointment expertly prepared. 26 [l] With this sacred anointing oil you shall anoint the Meeting Tent and the Ark of the Commandments, [27] the table and all its appurtenances, the lampstand and its appurtenances, the altar of incense [28] and the altar of holocausts with all its appurtenances, and the laver with its base. [29] When you have consecrated them, they shall be most sacred; whatever touches them shall be sacred. [30] Aaron and his sons you shall also anoint and consecrate as my priests.[m] [31] To the Israelites you shall say: As sacred anointing oil this shall belong to me throughout your generations. [32] It may not be used in any ordinary anointing of the body, nor may you make any other oil of a like mixture. It is sacred, and shall be treated as sacred by you. [33] Whoever prepares a perfume like this, or whoever puts any of this on a layman, shall be cut off from his kinsmen."

The Incense. [34] [n] The Lord told Moses, "Take these aromatic substances: storax and onycha and galbanum, these and pure frankincense in equal parts; [35] and blend them into incense. This fragrant powder, expertly prepared, is to be salted and so kept pure and sacred. [36] Grind some of it into fine dust and put this before the Commandments in the Meeting Tent where I will meet you. This incense shall be treated as most sacred by you. [37] You may not make incense of a like mixture for yourselves; you must treat it as sacred to the Lord. [38] Whoever makes an incense like this for his own enjoyment of its fragrance, shall be cut off from his kinsmen."

Choice of Artisans. [1] The Lord said to Moses, [2] [o] "See, I have chosen Beseleel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Juda, [3] and I have filled him with a divine spirit of skill and understanding and knowledge in every craft: [4] in the production of embroidery, in making things of gold, silver or bronze, [5] in cutting and mounting precious stones, in carving wood, and in every other craft. [6] As his assistant I have appointed Oholiab, son of Achisamach, of the tribe of Dan. I have also endowed all the experts with the necessary skill to make all the things I have ordered you to make: [7] [p] the Meeting Tent, the Ark of the Commandments with the propitiatory on top of it, all the furnishing of the Tent, [8] the table with its appurtenances, the pure gold lampstand with all its appurtenances, the altar of incense, [9] the altar of holocausts with all its appurtenances, the laver with its base, [10] the service cloths,* the sacred vestments for Aaron the priest, the vestments for his sons in their ministry, [11] the anointing oil, and the fragrant incense for the sanctuary. All these things they shall make just as I have commanded you."

Sabbath Laws. [12] The Lord said to Moses, [13] "You must also tell the Israelites: Take care to keep my Sabbaths,[q] for that is to be the token between you and me throughout the generations, to show that it is I, the Lord, who make you holy. [14] Therefore, you must keep the Sabbath as something sacred. Whoever desecrates it shall be put to death. If anyone does work on that day, he must be rooted out of his people. [15] Six days there are for doing work, but the seventh day is the Sabbath of complete rest, sacred to the Lord. Anyone who does work on the Sabbath day shall be put to death. [16] So shall the Israelites observe the Sabbath, keeping it throughout their generations as a perpetual covenant. [17] Between me and the Israelites it is to be an everlasting token; for in six days the Lord made the heavens and the earth, but on the seventh day he rested at his ease."

[18] When the Lord had finished speaking to Moses on Mount Sinai, he gave him the two tablets of the Commandments, the stone tablets inscribed by God's own finger.[r]

CHAPTER 32.

The Golden Calf. [1] When the people became aware of Moses' delay in coming down from the mountain, they gathered around Aaron and said to him, "Come, make us a god who will be our leader; as for the man Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him."[s] [2] Aaron replied, "Have your wives and sons and daughters take off the golden earrings they are wearing, and bring them to me." [3] So all the people took off their earrings and brought them to Aaron, [4] who accepted their offering, and fashioning this gold with a graving tool, made a molten calf. Then they cried out, "This is your God, O Israel, who brought you out of the land of Egypt." [t] 5 On seeing this, Aaron built an altar before the calf and proclaimed, "Tomorrow is a feast of the Lord."* 6 Early the next day the people offered holocausts and brought peace offerings. Then they sat down to eat and drink, and rose up to revel.[u]

7 With that, the Lord said to Moses, "Go down at once to your people, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt, for they have become depraved. 8 [v] They have soon turned aside from the way I pointed out to them, making for themselves a molten calf and worshiping it, sacrificing to it and crying out, 'This is your God, O Israel, who brought you out of the land of Egypt!' 9 I see how stiff-necked this people is," [w] continued the Lord to Moses. 10 "Let me alone, then, that my wrath may blaze up against them to consume them. Then I will make of you a great nation."

11 But Moses implored the Lord, his God, saying, [x] "Why, O Lord, should your wrath blaze up against your own people, whom you brought out of the land of Egypt with such great power and with so strong a hand? 12 Why should the Egyptians say, 'With evil intent he brought them out, that he might kill them in the mountains and exterminate them from the face of the earth'? Let your blazing wrath die down; relent in punishing your people. 13 Remember your servants Abraham, Isaac and Israel, and how you swore to them by your own self, saying, [y] 'I will make your descendants as numerous as the stars in the sky; and all this land that I promised, I will give your descendants as their perpetual heritage.'" 14 So the Lord relented in the punishment he had threatened to inflict on his people.

15 Moses then turned and came down the mountain with the two tablets of the Commandments in his hands,[z] tablets that were written on both sides, front and back; 16 tablets that were made by God, having inscriptions on them that were engraved by God himself.[a] 17 Now, when Josue heard the noise of the people shouting, he said to Moses, "That sounds like a battle in the camp." 18 But Moses answered, "It does not sound like cries of victory, nor does it sound like cries of defeat; the sounds that I hear are cries of revelry." 19 As he drew near the camp, he saw the calf and the dancing. With that, Moses' wrath flared up, so that he threw the tablets down and broke them on the base of the mountain.[b] 20 Taking the calf they had made, he fused it in the fire and then ground it down to powder, which he scattered on the water* and made the Israelites drink.[c]

21 Moses asked Aaron, "What did this people ever do to you that you should lead them into so grave a sin?" Aaron replied, "Let not my lord be angry. 22 You know well enough how prone the people are to evil. 23 They said to me, 'Make us a god to be our leader; as for the man Moses who brought us out of the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.' 24 So I told them, 'Let anyone who has gold jewelry take it off.' They gave it to me, and I threw it into the fire, and this calf came out."

25 When Moses realized that, to the scornful joy of their foes, Aaron had let the people run wild, 26 he stood at the gate of the camp and cried, "Whoever is for the Lord, let him come to me!" All the Levites [d] then rallied to him, 27 and he told them, "Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Put your sword on your hip, every one of you! Now go up and down the camp, from gate to gate, and slay your own kinsmen,* your friends and neighbors!" 28 The Levites carried out the command of Moses, and that day there fell about three thousand of the people. 29 Then Moses said, "Today you have been dedicated to the Lord,* for you were against your own sons and kinsmen, to bring a blessing upon yourselves this day."

The Atonement. 30 On the next day

32, 5: The calf . . . a feast of the Lord: from this it is clear that the golden calf was intended as an image, not of a false god, but of the Lord Himself, His strength being symbolized by the strength of a young bull. The Israelites, however, had been forbidden to represent the Lord under any visible form. Cf Ex 20, 4.

32, 20: The water: the stream that flowed down Mount Sinai. Cf Dt 9, 21.

32, 27: Slay your own kinsmen . . . : those who were especially guilty of the idolatry.

32, 29: Dedicated to the Lord: because of their zeal for the true worship of the Lord, the Levites were chosen to be special ministers of the ritual service. However, the meaning of the Hebrew here is somewhat disputed.

Moses said to the people, [e] "You have committed a grave sin. I will go up to the Lord, then; perhaps I may be able to make atonement for your sin." [31] So Moses went back to the Lord and said, "Ah, this people has indeed committed a grave sin in making a god of gold for themselves! [32] If you would only forgive their sin! If you will not, then strike me out of the book that you have written."* [33] The Lord answered, "Him only who has sinned against me will I strike out of my book. [34] Now, go and lead the people whither I have told you. My angel will go before you. When it is time for me to punish, I will punish them for their sin."

[35] Thus the Lord smote the people for having had Aaron make the calf for them.

CHAPTER 33.

[1] The Lord told Moses, "You and the people whom you have brought up from the land of Egypt, are to go up from here to the land which I swore to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob I would give to their descendants.[f] [2] Driving out the Chanaanites, Amorrites, Hethites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites, I will send an angel before you [g] [3] to the land flowing with milk and honey. But I myself will not go up in your company, because you are a stiff-necked people; otherwise I might exterminate you on the way." [4] When the people heard this bad news, they went into mourning, and no one wore his ornaments.

[5] The Lord said to Moses, "Tell the Israelites: You are a stiff-necked people. Were I to go up in your company even for a moment, I would exterminate you. Take off your ornaments, therefore; I will then see what I am to do with you." [6] So, from Mount Horeb onward, the Israelites laid aside their ornaments.

Moses' Intimacy with God. [7] The Tent,[h] which was called the Meeting Tent,* Moses used to pitch at some distance away, outside the camp. Anyone who wished to consult the Lord would go to this Meeting Tent outside the camp. [8] Whenever Moses went out to the Tent, the people would all rise and stand at the entrance of their own tents, watching Moses until he entered the Tent. [9] As Moses entered the Tent, the column of cloud would come down and stand at its entrance while the Lord spoke with Moses. [10] On seeing the column of cloud stand at the entrance of the Tent, all the people would rise and worship at the entrance of their own tents. [11] The Lord used to speak to Moses face to face,[i] as one man speaks to another. Moses would then return to the camp, but his young assistant, Josue, son of Nun, would not move out of the Tent.

[12] Moses said to the Lord, "You, indeed, are telling me to lead this people on;[j] but you have not let me know whom you will send with me. Yet you have said, 'You are my intimate friend,' and also, 'You have found favor with me.' [13] Now, if I have found favor with you, do let me know your ways so that, in knowing you, I may continue to find favor with you. Then, too, this nation is, after all, your own people." [14] "I myself,"* the Lord answered, "will go along, to give you rest." [15] Moses replied, "If you are not going yourself, do not make us go up from here. [16] For how can it be known that we, your people and I, have found favor with you, except by your going with us? Then we, your people and I, will be singled out from every other people on the earth." [17] The Lord said to Moses, "This request, too, which you have just made, I will carry out, because you have found favor with me and you are my intimate friend."

[18] Then Moses said, "Do let me see your glory!" [19] He answered, "I will make all my beauty pass before you, and in your presence I will pronounce my name, 'Lord'; I who show favors to whom I will, I who grant mercy to whom I will.[k] [20] But my face you cannot see,[l] for no man sees me and still lives. [21] Here," continued the Lord, "is a place near me where you shall station yourself on the rock. [22] When my glory passes I will set you in the hollow of the rock and will cover you with

CHAPTER 34.

Renewal of the Tablets. 1 The Lord said to Moses, "Cut two stone tablets like the former,[m] that I may write on them the Commandments which were on the former tablets that you broke. 2 Get ready for tomorrow morning, when you are to go up Mount Sinai and there present yourself to me on the top of the mountain. 3 No one shall come up with you, and no one is even to be seen on any part of the mountain;[n] even the flocks and the herds are not to go grazing toward this mountain." 4 Moses then cut two stone tablets like the former, and early the next morning he went up Mount Sinai as the Lord had commanded him, taking along the two stone tablets.

5 Having come down in a cloud, the Lord stood with him there and proclaimed his name, "Lord." 6 Thus the Lord passed before him and cried out, "The Lord, the Lord, a merciful and gracious God, slow to anger and rich in kindness and fidelity, 7 continuing his kindness for a thousand generations, and forgiving wickedness and crime and sin; yet not declaring the guilty guiltless, but punishing children and grandchildren to the third and fourth generation for their fathers' wickedness!"[o] 8 Moses at once bowed down to the ground in worship. 9 Then he said, "If I find favor with you, O Lord, do come along in our company. This is indeed a stiff-necked people; yet pardon our wickedness and sins, and receive us as your own."

Religious Laws. 10 "Here, then," said the Lord, "is the covenant I will make. Before the eyes of all your people I will work such marvels as have never been wrought in any nation anywhere on earth, so that this people among whom you live may see how awe-inspiring are the deeds which I, the Lord, will do at your side. 11 But you, on your part, must keep the commandments I am giving you today.[p]

12 [q] "I will drive out before you the Amorrites, Chanaanites, Hethites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites. 12 Take care, therefore, not to make a covenant with these inhabitants of the land that you are to enter; else they will become a snare among you. 13 Tear down their altars; smash their sacred pillars, and cut down their sacred poles.* 14 You shall not worship any other god, for the Lord is 'the Jealous One';* a jealous God is he. 15 Do not make a covenant with the inhabitants of that land; else, when they render their wanton worship to their gods and sacrifice to them, one of them may invite you and you may partake of his sacrifice. 16 Neither shall you take their daughters as wives for your sons; otherwise, when their daughters render their wanton worship to their gods, they will make your sons do the same.

17 "You shall not make for yourselves molten gods.[r]

18 "You shall keep the feast of Unleavened Bread.[s] For seven days at the prescribed time in the month of Abib you are to eat unleavened bread, as I commanded you; for in the month of Abib you came out of Egypt.

19 "To me belongs every first-born male that opens the womb among all your livestock, whether in the herd or in the flock.[t] 20 The firstling of an ass you shall redeem with one of the flock; if you do not redeem it, you must break its neck. The first-born among your sons you shall redeem.

Radiance of Moses' Face. 27 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Write down these words, for in accordance with them I have made a covenant with you and with Israel." 28 So Moses stayed there with the Lord for forty days and forty nights,[x] without eating any food or drinking any water, and he wrote on the tablets the words of the covenant, the Ten Commandments.

29 As Moses came down from Mount Sinai with the two tablets of the Commandments in his hands, he did not know that the skin of his face had become radiant while he conversed with the Lord. 30 When Aaron, then, and the other Israelites saw Moses and noticed how radiant the skin of his face had become, they were afraid to come near him. 31 Only after Moses called to them did Aaron and all the rulers of the community come back to him. Moses then spoke to them. 32 Later on, all the Israelites came up to him, and he enjoined on them all that the Lord had told him on Mount Sinai. 33 When he finished speaking with them, he put a veil over his face.* 34 Whenever Moses entered the presence of the Lord to converse with him, he removed the veil until he came out again.[y] On coming out, he would tell the Israelites all that had been commanded. 35 Then the Israelites would see that the skin of Moses' face was radiant; so he would again put the veil over his face until he went in to converse with the Lord.

Sabbath Regulations. 1 Moses assembled the whole Israelite community and said to them, [z] "This is what the Lord has commanded to be done. 2 On six days work may be done, but the seventh day shall be sacred to you as the Sabbath of complete rest to the Lord. Anyone who does work on that day shall be put to death. 3 You shall not even light a fire in any of your dwellings on the Sabbath day."

Collection of Materials. 4 Moses told the whole Israelite community, "This is what the Lord has commanded: 5 [a] Take up among you a collection for the Lord. Everyone, as his heart prompts him, shall bring, as a contribution to the Lord, gold, silver and bronze; 6 violet, purple and scarlet yarn; fine linen and goat hair; 7 rams' skins dyed red, and thahas skins; acacia wood; 8 oil for the light; spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense; 9 onyx stones and other gems for mounting on the ephod and on the breastpiece.

Call for Artisans. 10 [b] "Let every expert among you come and make all that the Lord has commanded: 11 the Dwelling, with its tent, its covering, its clasps, its boards, its bars, its columns and its pedestals; 12 the ark, with its poles, the propitiatory, and the curtain veil; 13 the table, with its poles and all its appurtenances, and the showbread; 14 the lampstand, with its appurtenances, the lamps, and the oil for the light; 15 the altar of incense, with its poles; the anointing oil, and the fragrant incense; the entrance curtain for the entrance of the Dwelling; 16 the altar of holocausts, with its bronze grating, its poles, and all its appurtenances; the laver, with its base; 17 the hangings of the court, with their columns and pedestals; the curtain for the entrance of the court; 18 the tent pegs for the Dwelling and for the court, with their ropes; 19 the service cloths for use in the sanctuary; the sacred vestments for Aaron, the priest, and the vestments worn by his sons in their ministry."

tion to the Lord for the construction of the Meeting Tent, for all its services, and for the sacred vestments. 22 Both the men and the women, all as their hearts prompted them, brought brooches, earrings, rings, necklaces and various other gold articles.[c] Everyone who could presented an offering of gold to the Lord. 23 Everyone who happened to have violet, purple or scarlet yarn, fine linen or goat hair, rams' skins dyed red or thahas skins, brought them. 24 Whoever could make a contribution of silver or bronze offered it to the Lord; and everyone who happened to have acacia wood for any part of the work, brought it. 25 All the women who were expert spinners brought hand-spun violet, purple and scarlet yarn and fine linen thread. 26 All the women who possessed the skill, spun goat hair. 27 The princes brought onyx stones and other gems for mounting on the ephod and on the breastpiece; 28 as well as spices, and oil for the light, anointing oil, and fragrant incense. 29 Every Israelite man and woman brought to the Lord such voluntary offerings as they thought best, for the various kinds of work which the Lord had commanded Moses to have done.

The Artisans. 30 Moses said to the Israelites, [d] "See, the Lord has chosen Beseleel, son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Juda, 31 and has filled him with a divine spirit of skill and understanding and knowledge in every craft: 32 in the production of embroidery, in making things of gold, silver or bronze, 33 in cutting and mounting precious stones, in carving wood, and in every other craft. 34 He has also given both him and Oholiab, son of Achisamach, of the tribe of Dan, the ability to teach others. 35 He has endowed them with skill to execute all types of work: engraving, embroidering, the making of variegated cloth of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and fine linen thread, weaving, and all other arts and crafts.

1 "Beseleel, therefore, will set to work with Oholiab and with all the experts whom the Lord has endowed with skill and understanding in knowing how to execute all the work for the service of the sanctuary, just as the Lord has commanded." [e]

2 Moses then called Beseleel and Oholiab and all the other experts whom the Lord had endowed with skill, men whose hearts moved them to come and take part in the work. 3 They received from Moses all the contributions which the Israelites had brought for establishing the service of the sanctuary. Still, morning after morning the people continued to bring their voluntary offerings to Moses. 4 Thereupon the experts who were executing the various kinds of work for the sanctuary, all left the work they were doing, 5 and told Moses, "The people are bringing much more than is needed to carry out the work which the Lord has commanded us to do." 6 Moses, therefore, ordered a proclamation to be made throughout the camp: "Let neither man nor woman make any more contributions for the sanctuary." So the people stopped bringing their offerings; 7 there was already enough at hand, in fact, more than enough, to complete the work to be done.

The Tent Cloth and Coverings. 8 [f] The various experts who were executing the work, made the Dwelling with its ten sheets woven of fine linen twined, having cherubim embroidered on them with violet, purple and scarlet yarn. 9 The length of each sheet was twenty-eight cubits, and the width four cubits; all the sheets were of the same size. 10 Five of the sheets were sewed together, edge to edge; and the same for the other five. 11 Loops of violet yarn were made along the edge of the end sheet in the first set, and the same along the edge of the end sheet in the second set. 12 Fifty loops were thus put on one inner sheet, and fifty loops on the inner sheet in the other set, with the loops directly opposite each other. 13 Then fifty clasps of gold were made, with which the sheets were joined so that the Dwelling formed one whole.

14 Sheets of goat hair were also woven as a tent over the Dwelling. Eleven such sheets were made. 15 The length of each sheet was thirty cubits and the width four cubits; all eleven sheets were of the same size. 16 Five of these sheets were sewed edge to edge into one set; and the other six sheets into another set. 17 Fifty loops were made along the edge of the end sheet in one set, and fifty loops along the edge of the corresponding sheet in the other set. 18 Fifty bronze clasps were made with which the tent was joined so that it formed one whole. 19 A covering for the tent was made of rams' skins dyed red, and above that, a covering of thahas skins.

The Boards. 20 g Boards of acacia wood were made as walls for the Dwelling. 21 The length of each board was ten cubits, and the width one and a half cubits. 22 Each board had two arms, fastening them in line. In this way all the boards of the Dwelling were made. 23 They were set up as follows: twenty boards on the south side, 24 with forty silver pedestals under the twenty boards, so that there were two pedestals under each board, at its two arms; 25 twenty boards on the other side of the Dwelling, the north side, 26 with their forty silver pedestals, two under each board; 27 six boards at the rear of the Dwelling, to the west; 28 and two boards at the corners in the rear of the Dwelling. 29 These were double at the bottom, and likewise double at the top, to the first ring. That is how both boards in the corners were made. 30 Thus, there were in the rear eight boards, with their sixteen silver pedestals, two pedestals under each board. 31 Bars of acacia wood were also made, five for the boards on one side of the Dwelling, 32 five for those on the other side, and five for those at the rear, to the west. 33 The center bar, at the middle of the boards, was made to reach across from end to end. 34 The boards were plated with gold, and gold rings were made on them as holders for the bars, which were also plated with gold.

The Veil. 35 h The veil was woven of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, and of fine linen twined, with cherubim embroidered on it. 36 Four gold-plated columns of acacia wood, with gold hooks, were made for it, and four silver pedestals were cast for them.

37 The curtain for the entrance of the tent was made of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, and of fine linen twined, woven in a variegated manner. 38 Its five columns, with their hooks as well as their capitals and bands, were plated with gold; their five pedestals were of bronze.

CHAPTER 37.

The Ark. 1 Beseleel made the ark of acacia wood, two and a half cubits long, one and a half cubits wide, and one and a half cubits high. 2 The inside and outside were plated with gold, and a molding of gold was put around it. 3 Four gold rings were cast and put on its four supports, two rings for one side and two for the opposite side. 4 Poles of acacia wood were made and plated with gold; 5 these were put through the rings on the sides of the ark, for carrying it.

6 The propitiatory was made of pure gold, two and a half cubits long and one and a half cubits wide. 7 Two cherubim of beaten gold were made for the two ends of the propitiatory, 8 one cherub fastened at one end, the other at the other end, springing directly from the propitiatory at its two ends. 9 The cherubim had their wings spread out above, covering the propitiatory with them. They were turned toward each other, but with their faces looking toward the propitiatory.i

The Table. 10 j The table was made of acacia wood, two cubits long, one cubit wide, and one and a half cubits high. 11 It was plated with pure gold, and a molding of gold was put around it. 12 A frame a handbreadth high was also put around it, with a molding of gold around the frame. 13 Four rings of gold were cast for it and fastened, one at each of the four corners. 14 The rings were alongside the frame as holders for the poles to carry the table. 15 These poles were made of acacia wood and plated with gold. 16 The vessels that were set on the table, its plates and cups, as well as its pitchers and bowls for pouring libations, were of pure gold.

The Lampstand. 17 k The lampstand was made of pure beaten gold—its shaft and branches as well as its cups and knobs and petals springing directly from it. 18 Six branches extended from its sides, three branches on one side and three on the other. 19 On one branch there were three cups, shaped like almond blossoms, each with its knob and petals; on the opposite branch there were three cups, shaped like almond blossoms, each with its knob and petals; and so for the six branches that extended from the lampstand. 20 On the shaft there were four cups, shaped like almond blossoms, with their knobs and petals, 21 including a knob below each of the three pairs of branches that extended from the lampstand. 22 The knobs and branches sprang so directly from it that the whole formed but a single piece of pure beaten gold. 23 Its seven lamps, as well as its trimming shears and trays, were made of pure gold. 24 A talent of pure gold was used for the lampstand and its various appurtenances.

The Altar of Incense. 25 l The altar of incense was made of acacia wood, on a square, a cubit long, a cubit wide, and two cubits high, having horns that sprang directly from it. 26 Its grate on top, its walls on all four sides, and its horns were plated with pure gold; and a molding of gold was put around it. 27 Underneath the molding gold rings were placed, two on one side and two on the opposite side, as holders for the poles to carry it. 28 The poles, too, were made of acacia wood and plated with gold.

29 The sacred anointing oil and the fragrant incense were prepared in their pure form by a perfumer.m

CHAPTER 38.

The Altar of Holocausts. 1 The altar of holocausts n was made of acacia wood, on a square, five cubits long and five cubits wide; its height was three cubits. 2 At the four corners horns were made that sprang directly from the altar. The whole was plated with bronze. 3 All the utensils of the altar, the pots, shovels, basins, forks and fire pans, were likewise made of bronze. 4 A grating of bronze network was made for the altar and placed round it, on the ground, half as high as the altar itself. 5 Four rings were cast for the four corners of the bronze grating, as holders for the poles, 6 which were made of acacia wood and plated with bronze. 7 The poles were put through the rings on the sides of the altar for carrying it. The altar was made in the form of a hollow box.

8 The bronze laver,o with its bronze base, was made from the mirrors of the women who served* at the entrance of the Meeting Tent.

The Court. 9 p The court was made as follows. On the south side of the court there were hangings, woven of fine linen twined, a hundred cubits long, 10 with twenty columns and twenty pedestals of bronze, the hooks and bands of the columns being of silver. 11 On the north side there were similar hangings, one hundred cubits long, with twenty columns and twenty pedestals of bronze, the hooks and bands of the columns being of silver. 12 On the west side there were hangings, fifty cubits long, with ten columns and ten pedestals, the hooks and bands of the columns being of silver. 13 On the east side the court was fifty cubits long. 14 Toward one side there were hangings to the extent of fifteen cubits, with three columns and three pedestals; 15 toward the other side, beyond the entrance of the court, there were likewise hangings to the extent of fifteen cubits, with three columns and three pedestals. 16 The hangings on all sides of the court were woven of fine linen twined. 17 The pedestals of the columns were of bronze, while the hooks and bands of the columns were of silver; the capitals were silver-plated, and all the columns of the court were banded with silver.

18 At the entrance of the court there was a variegated curtain, woven of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and of fine linen twined, twenty cubits long and five cubits wide, in keeping with the hangings of the court. 19 There were four columns and four pedestals of bronze for it, while their hooks were of silver. 20 All the tent pegs for the Dwelling and for the court around it were of bronze.

Amount of Metal Used. 21 The following is an account of the various amounts used on the Dwelling, the Dwelling of the Testimony, drawn up at the command of Moses by the Levites under the direction of Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest. 22 However, it was Beseleel, son of Uri,q son of Hur, of the tribe of Juda, who made all that the Lord commanded Moses, 23 and he was assisted by Oholiab, son of Achisamach, of the tribe of Dan, who was an engraver, an embroiderer, and a weaver of variegated cloth of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and of fine linen.

24 All the gold used in the entire construction of the sanctuary, having previously been given as an offering, amounted to twenty-nine talents and seven hundred and thirty shekels, according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel. 25 The amount of the silver received from the community was one hundred talents and one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five shekels, according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel; 26 one beca apiece, that is, a half-shekel apiece, according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel, was received from every man of twenty years or more who entered the registered group; the number of these was six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty men.[r] 27 One hundred talents of silver were used for casting the pedestals of the sanctuary and the pedestals of the veil, one talent for each pedestal, or one hundred talents for the one hundred pedestals. 28 The remaining one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five shekels were used for making the hooks on the columns, for plating the capitals, and for banding them with silver. 29 The bronze, given as an offering, amounted to seventy talents and two thousand four hundred shekels. 30 With this were made the pedestals at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, the bronze altar with its bronze gratings and all the appurtenances of the altar, 31 the pedestals around the court, the pedestals at the entrance of the court, and all the tent pegs for the Dwelling and for the court around it.

CHAPTER 39.

The Vestments. 1 With violet, purple and scarlet yarn were woven the service cloths for use in the sanctuary, as well as the sacred vestments[s] for Aaron, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

2[t] The ephod was woven of gold thread and of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and of fine linen twined. 3 Gold was first hammered into gold leaf and then cut up into threads, which were woven with the violet, purple and scarlet yarn into an embroidered pattern on the fine linen. 4 Shoulder straps were made for it and joined to its two upper ends. 5 The embroidered belt on the ephod extended out from it, and like it, was made of gold thread, of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, and of fine linen twined, as the Lord had commanded Moses. 6 The onyx stones were prepared and mounted in gold filigree work; they were engraved like seal engravings with the names of the sons of Israel. 7 These stones were set on the shoulder straps of the ephod as memorial stones of the sons of Israel, just as the Lord had commanded Moses.

8[u] The breastpiece was embroidered like the ephod, with gold thread and violet, purple and scarlet yarn on cloth of fine linen twined. 9 It was square and folded double, a span high and a span wide in its folded form. 10 Four rows of precious stones were mounted on it: in the first row a carnelian, a topaz and an emerald; 11 in the second row, a garnet, a sapphire and a beryl; 12 in the third row a jacinth, an agate and an amethyst; 13 in the fourth row a chrysolite, an onyx and a jasper. They were mounted in gold filigree work. 14 These stones were twelve, to match the names of the sons of Israel, and each stone was engraved like a seal with the name of one of the twelve tribes.

15[v] Chains of pure gold, twisted like cords, were made for the breastpiece, 16 together with two gold filigree rosettes and two gold rings. The two rings were fastened to the two upper ends of the breastpiece. 17 The two gold chains were then fastened to the two rings at the ends of the breastpiece. 18 The other two ends of the two chains were fastened in front to the two filigree rosettes, which were attached to the shoulder straps of the ephod. 19 Two other gold rings were made and put on the two lower ends of the breastpiece, on the edge facing the ephod. 20 Two more gold rings were made and fastened to the bottom of the two shoulder straps next to where they joined the ephod in front, just above its embroidered belt. 21 Violet ribbons bound the rings of the breastpiece to the rings of the ephod, so that the breastpiece stayed right above the embroidered belt of the ephod and did not swing loose from it. All this was just as the Lord had commanded Moses.

The Other Vestments. 22 The robe of the ephod was woven entirely of violet yarn, 23 with an opening in its center like the opening of a shirt, with selvage around the opening to keep it from being torn. 24 At the hem of the robe pomegranates were made of violet, purple and scarlet yarn and of fine linen twined; 25 bells of pure gold were also made and put between the pomegranates all around the hem of the robe: [26] first a bell, then a pomegranate, and thus alternating all around the hem of the robe which was to be worn in performing the ministry—all this, just as the Lord had commanded Moses.

[27] For Aaron and his sons there were also woven tunics of fine linen; w [28] the miter of fine linen; the ornate turbans of fine linen; drawers of linen [of fine linen twined]; [29] and sashes of variegated work made of fine linen twined and of violet, purple and scarlet yarn, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [30] The plate of the sacred diadem was made of pure gold x and inscribed, as on a seal engraving: "Sacred to the Lord." [31] It was tied over the miter with a violet ribbon, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

Presentation of the Work to Moses. [32] Thus the entire work of the Dwelling of the Meeting Tent was completed. The Israelites did the work just as the Lord had commanded Moses. [33] They then brought to Moses the Dwelling, the tent with all its appurtenances, the clasps, the boards, the bars, the columns, the pedestals, [34] the covering of rams' skins dyed red, the covering of thahas skins, the curtain veil; [35] the Ark of the Commandments with its poles, the propitiatory, [36] the table with all its appurtenances and the showbread, [37] the pure gold lampstand with its lamps set up on it and with all its appurtenances, the oil for the light, [38] the golden altar, the anointing oil, the fragrant incense; the curtain for the entrance of the Tent, [39] the altar of bronze with its bronze grating, its poles and all its appurtenances, the laver with its base, [40] the hangings of the court with their columns and pedestals, the curtain for the entrance of the court with its ropes and tent pegs, all the equipment for the service of the Dwelling of the Meeting Tent; [41] the service cloths for use in the sanctuary, the sacred vestments for Aaron the priest, and the vestments to be worn by his sons in their ministry. [42] The Israelites had carried out all the work just as the Lord had commanded Moses. [43] So when Moses saw that all the work was done just as the Lord had commanded, he blessed them.

Erection of the Dwelling. [1] Then the Lord said to Moses, [2] y "On the first day of the first month* you shall erect the Dwelling of the Meeting Tent.z [3] Put the Ark of the Commandments in it, and screen off the ark with the veil.a [4] Bring in the table and set it. Then bring in the lampstand and set up the lamps on it. [5] Put the golden altar of incense in front of the Ark of the Commandments, and hang the curtain at the entrance of the Dwelling. [6] Put the altar of holocausts in front of the entrance of the Dwelling of the Meeting Tent. [7] Place the laver between the Meeting Tent and the altar, and put water in it. [8] Set up the court round about, and put the curtain at the entrance of the court.

[9] b "Take the anointing oil and anoint the Dwelling and everything in it, consecrating it and all its furnishings, so that it will be sacred. [10] Anoint the altar of holocausts and all its appurtenances, consecrating it, so that it will be most sacred. [11] Likewise, anoint the laver with its base, and thus consecrate it.

[12] c "Then bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance of the Meeting Tent, and there wash them with water. [13] Clothe Aaron with the sacred vestments and anoint him, thus consecrating him as my priest. [14] Bring forward his sons also, and clothe them with the tunics. [15] As you have anointed their father, anoint them also as my priests. Thus, by being anointed, shall they receive a perpetual priesthood throughout all future generations."

[16] Moses did exactly as the Lord had commanded him. [17] On the first day of the first month of the second year the Dwelling was erected. [18] It was Moses who erected the Dwelling. He placed its pedestals, set up its boards, put in its bars, and set up its columns. [19] He spread the tent over the Dwelling and put the covering on top of the tent, as the Lord had commanded him. [20] d He took the Commandments and put them in the ark; he placed poles alongside the ark and set the propitiatory upon it. [21] He brought the ark into the Dwelling and hung the curtain veil, thus screening off the Ark of the Commandments, as the Lord had commanded him. 22 He put the table in the Meeting Tent, on the north side of the Dwelling, outside the veil, 23 and arranged the bread on it before the Lord, as the Lord had commanded him.[e] 24 He placed the lampstand in the Meeting Tent, opposite the table, on the south side of the Dwelling, 25 and he set up the lamps before the Lord, as the Lord had commanded him. 26 He placed the golden altar in the Meeting Tent, in front of the veil, 27 and on it he burned fragrant incense, as the Lord had commanded him. 28 He hung the curtain at the entrance of the Dwelling. 29 He put the altar of holocausts in front of the entrance of the Dwelling of the Meeting Tent, and offered holocausts and cereal offerings on it, as the Lord had commanded him. 30 f He placed the laver between the Meeting Tent and the altar, and put water in it for washing. 31 Moses and Aaron and his sons used to wash their hands and feet there, 32 for they washed themselves whenever they went into the Meeting Tent or approached the altar, as the Lord had commanded Moses. 33 Finally, he set up the court around the Dwelling and the altar and hung the curtain at the entrance of the court. Thus Moses finished all the work.

God's Presence in the Dwelling. 34 g Then the cloud covered the Meeting Tent, and the glory of the Lord filled the Dwelling. 35 Moses could not enter the Meeting Tent, because the cloud settled down upon it and the glory of the Lord filled the Dwelling. 36 Whenever the cloud rose from the Dwelling, the Israelites would set out on their journey. 37 But if the cloud did not lift, they would not go forward; only when it lifted did they go forward. 38 In the daytime the cloud of the Lord was seen over the Dwelling; whereas at night, fire was seen in the cloud by the whole house of Israel in all the stages of their journey.

THE BOOK OF LEVITICUS

The name "Leviticus" was bestowed on the third book of the Pentateuch by the ancient Greek translators because a good part of this book consists of sacrificial and other ritual laws prescribed for the priests of the tribe of Levi.

Continuing the legislation given by God to Moses at Mount Sinai, Leviticus is almost entirely legislative in character; the rare narrative portions are subordinate to the main legislative theme. Generally speaking, the laws contained in this book serve to teach the Israelites that they should always keep themselves in a state of legal purity, or external sanctity, as a sign of their intimate union with the Lord. Accordingly, the central idea of Leviticus is contained in its oft-repeated injunction: "You shall be holy, because I, the Lord, am holy."

The main divisions of Leviticus are: I. Ritual of Sacrifices (Lev. 1-7). II. Ceremony of Ordination (Lev. 8-10). III. Laws regarding Legal Purity (Lev. 11-16). IV. Code of Legal Holiness (Lev. 17-26). V. Redemption of Offerings (Lev. 27).

I: RITUAL OF SACRIFICES

CHAPTER 1.

Holocausts. 1 The Lord called Moses, and from the Meeting Tent gave him this message: 2 a "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When any one of you wishes to bring an animal offering to the Lord, such an offering must be from the herd or from the flock.*

3 "If his holocaust* offering is from the herd, it must be a male without blemish.[b] To find favor with the Lord, he shall bring it to the entrance of the Meeting Tent 4 and there lay his hand on the head of the holocaust, so that it may be acceptable to make atonement for him.[c] 5 He shall then slaughter the bull before the Lord, but Aaron's sons, the priests, shall

1, 2: From the herd or from the flock: the only animals which could be used as sacrificial victims were either of the bovine class (bulls, cows and calves) or the ovine class (sheep and lambs, goats and kids). Excluded, therefore, were not only all wild animals, but also such "unclean" domestic animals as the camel and the ass. See note on Lv 11, 1ff.

1, 3: Holocaust: from the Greek word meaning "wholly burned," this is the technical term for the special type of sacrifice in which an entire animal except its hide was consumed in the fire on the altar. The primary purpose of this complete gift was to render glory and praise to God.

offer up its blood by splashing it on the sides of the altar which is at the entrance of the Meeting Tent.[d] 6 Then he shall skin the holocaust and cut it up into pieces. 7 After Aaron's sons, the priests, have put some burning embers on the altar and laid some wood on them, 8 they shall lay the pieces of meat, together with the head and the suet, on top of the wood and embers on the altar. 9 The inner organs and the shanks, however, the offerer shall first wash with water. The priest shall then burn the whole offering on the altar as a holocaust, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.[e]

10 "If his holocaust offering is from the flock, that is, a sheep or a goat, he must bring a male without blemish. 11 This he shall slaughter before the Lord at the north side of the altar. Then Aaron's sons, the priests, shall splash its blood on the sides of the altar. 12 When the offerer has cut it up into pieces, the priest shall lay these, together with the head and suet, on top of the wood and the fire on the altar. 13 The inner organs and the shanks, however, the offerer shall first wash with water. The priest shall offer them up and then burn the whole offering on the altar as a holocaust, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.

14 "If he offers a bird as a holocaust to the Lord, he shall choose a turtledove or a pigeon as his offering.[f] 15 Having brought it to the altar where it is to be burned, the priest shall snap its head loose and squeeze out its blood against the side of the altar.[g] 16 Its crop and feathers shall be removed and thrown on the ash heap at the east side of the altar. 17 Then, having split the bird down the middle without separating the halves, the priest shall burn it on the altar, over the wood on the fire, as a holocaust, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.

CHAPTER 2.

Cereal Offerings. 1 "When anyone wishes to bring a cereal offering to the Lord, his offering must consist of fine flour. He shall pour oil on it and put frankincense over it. 2[h] When he has brought it to Aaron's sons, the priests, one of them shall take a handful of this fine flour and oil, together with all the frankincense, and this he shall burn on the altar as a token offering,* a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.[i] 3 The rest of the cereal offering belongs to Aaron and his sons. It is a most sacred oblation to the Lord.[j]

4 "When the cereal offering you present is baked in an oven, it must be in the form of unleavened cakes made of fine flour mixed with oil, or of unleavened wafers spread with oil. 5 If you present a cereal offering that is fried on a griddle, it must be of fine flour mixed with oil and unleavened.[k] 6 Such a cereal offering must be broken into pieces, and oil must be poured over it. 7 If you present a cereal offering that is prepared in a pot, it must be of fine flour, deep-fried in oil. 8 A cereal offering that is made in any of these ways you shall bring to the Lord, offering it to the priest, who shall take it to the altar. 9 Its token offering the priest shall then lift from the cereal offering and burn on the altar as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 10 The rest of the cereal offering belongs to Aaron and his sons. It is a most sacred oblation to the Lord.

11 "Every cereal offering that you present to the Lord shall be unleavened, for you shall not burn any leaven or honey as an oblation to the Lord.[l] 12 Such you may indeed present to the Lord in the offering of first fruits, but they are not to be placed on the altar for a pleasing odor. 13 However, every cereal offering that you present to the Lord shall be seasoned with salt.[m] Do not let the salt of the covenant of your God* be lacking from your cereal offering. On every offering you shall offer salt.

14 "If you present a cereal offering of first fruits to the Lord, you shall offer it in the form of fresh grits of new ears of grain, roasted by fire. 15 On this cereal offering you shall put oil and frankincense. 16 For its token offering the priest shall then burn some of the grits and oil, together with all the frankincense, as an oblation to the Lord.

2, 2: Token offering: literally, "reminder." Instead of burning the whole cereal offering, they burned only this part of it on the altar; it thus corresponded to the fat of the peace offering. See note on Lv 3, 1.

2, 13: The salt of the covenant of your God: the partaking in common of salt by those seated together at table was an ancient symbol of friendship and alliance. Cf Mk 9, 49 and Col 4, 6; and see note on Nm 18, 19.

CHAPTER 3.

Peace Offerings. 1 "If someone in presenting a peace offering* makes his offering from the herd, he may offer before the Lord either a male or a female animal, but it must be without blemish.[n] 2 He shall lay his hand on the head of his offering,[o] and then slaughter it at the entrance of the Meeting Tent; but Aaron's sons, the priests, shall splash its blood on the sides of the altar. 3 From the peace offering he shall offer as an oblation to the Lord the fatty membrane over the inner organs, and all the fat that adheres to them,[p] 4 as well as the two kidneys, with the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver,* which he shall sever above the kidneys. 5 All this Aaron's sons shall then burn on the altar with the holocaust,[q] on the wood over the fire, as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.

6 "If the peace offering he presents to the Lord is from the flock, he may offer either a male or a female animal, but it must be without blemish. 7 If he presents a lamb as his offering, he shall bring it before the Lord, 8 and after laying his hand on the head of his offering, he shall slaughter it before the Meeting Tent; but Aaron's sons shall splash its blood on the sides of the altar. 9 As an oblation to the Lord he shall present the fat of the peace offering: the whole fatty tail,* which he must sever close to the spine, the fatty membrane over the inner organs, and all the fat that adheres to them,[r] 10 as well as the two kidneys, with the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver, which he must sever above the kidneys. 11 All this the priest shall burn on the altar as the food of the Lord's oblation.

12 "If he presents a goat, he shall bring it before the Lord, 13 and after laying his hand on its head, he shall slaughter it before the Meeting Tent; but Aaron's sons shall splash its blood on the sides of the altar. 14 From it he shall offer as an oblation to the Lord the fatty membrane over the inner organs, and all the fat that adheres to them, 15 as well as the two kidneys, with the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver, which he must sever above the kidneys. 16 All this the priest shall burn on the altar as the food of the sweet-smelling oblation. All the fat belongs to the Lord. 17 This shall be a perpetual ordinance for your descendants wherever they may dwell. You shall not partake of any fat* or any blood."[s]

Sin Offerings: For Priests. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Tell the Israelites: When a person inadvertently commits a sin* against some command of the Lord by doing one of the forbidden things,[t] 3 if it is the anointed priest* who thus sins and thereby makes the people also become guilty, he shall present to the Lord a young, unblemished bull as a sin offering for the sin he committed.[u] 4 Bringing the bullock to the entrance of the Meeting Tent, before the Lord, he shall lay his hand on its head and slaughter it before the Lord.[v] 5 The anointed priest shall then take some of the bullocks's blood and bring it into the Meeting Tent, 6 where, dipping his finger in the blood, he shall sprinkle it seven times before the Lord, toward the veil of the sanctuary.[w] 7 The priest shall also put some of the blood on the horns of the altar[x] of fragrant incense which is before the Lord in the Meeting Tent. The rest of the bullock's blood he shall pour out at the base of the altar of holocausts which is at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. 8 From the sin-offering bullock he shall remove all the fat: the fatty membrane over the inner organs, and all the fat that adheres to them, 9 as well as the two kidneys, with the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver, which he must sever above the kidneys. 10 This is the same as is removed from the ox of the peace offering; and the priest shall burn it on the altar of holocausts. 11 The hide of the bullock and all its flesh, with its head,

3, 1: Peace offering: thus the ancient versions have rendered the Hebrew word, which perhaps means more exactly, "fulfillment sacrifice," offered up in fulfillment of a vow. Cf Prv 7, 14. Its characteristic feature was the sacred banquet at which the offerer and his guests partook of the meat of the sacrificed animal. Cf Lv 7, 11-21.

3, 4: The lobe of the liver: some render, "the fatty covering of the liver."

3, 9: The whole fatty tail: see note on Ex 29, 22.

3, 17: Any fat: only the fat mentioned in vv 9f. 14f is meant; other fat could be eaten by the Israelites.

4, 2: A sin: not necessarily a moral fault; included are all the cases of ritual uncleanness which people necessarily incurred in certain unavoidable circumstances.

4, 3: The anointed priest: his violation of the ceremonial law brought a sort of collective guilt on all the people whom he represented before God. Sin offering: more exactly, "sacrifice for remitting sin"; sin is here understood as explained above.

legs, inner organs and offal,[y] 12 in short, the whole bullock, shall be brought outside the camp to a clean place where the ashes are deposited and there be burned up in a wood fire. At the place of the ash heap, there it must be burned.

For the Community. 13 "If the whole community of Israel inadvertently and without even being aware of it does something that the Lord has forbidden and thus makes itself guilty,[z] 14 should it later on become known that the sin was committed, the community shall present a young bull as a sin offering. They shall bring it before the Meeting Tent, 15 and here, before the Lord, the elders of the community shall lay their hands on the bullock's head.[a] When the bullock has been slaughtered before the Lord, 16 the anointed priest shall bring some of its blood into the Meeting Tent, 17 and dipping his finger in the blood, he shall sprinkle it seven times before the Lord, toward the veil. 18 He shall also put some of the blood on the horns of the altar of fragrant incense which is before the Lord in the Meeting Tent. The rest of the blood he shall pour out at the base of the altar of holocausts which is at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. 19 All of its fat he shall take from it and burn on the altar, 20 doing with this bullock just as he did with the other sin-offering bullock. Thus the priest shall make atonement for them, and they will be forgiven. 21 This bullock must also be brought outside the camp and burned, just as has been prescribed for the other one. This is the sin offering for the community.

For the Princes. 22 "Should a prince commit a sin inadvertently by doing one of the things which are forbidden by some commandment of the Lord, his God, and thus become guilty, 23 if later on he learns of the sin he committed, he shall bring as his offering an unblemished male goat. 24 Having laid his hands on its head, he shall slaughter the goat as a sin offering before the Lord, in the place where the holocausts are slaughtered. 25 The priest shall then take some of the blood of the sin offering on his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of holocausts. The rest of the blood he shall pour out at the base of this altar. 26 All of the fat he shall burn on the altar like the fat of the peace offering.[b] Thus the priest shall make atonement for the prince's sin, and it will be forgiven.

For Private Persons. 27 "If a private person commits a sin inadvertently [c] by doing one of the things which are forbidden by the commandments of the Lord, and thus becomes guilty, 28 should he later on learn of the sin he committed, he shall bring an unblemished she-goat as the offering for his sin. 29 Having laid his hands on the head of the sin offering,[d] he shall slaughter it at the place of the holocausts. 30 The priest shall then take some of its blood on his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of holocausts. The rest of the blood he shall pour out at the base of the altar. 31 All the fat shall be removed, just as the fat is removed from the peace offering, and the priest shall burn it on the altar for an odor pleasing to the Lord.[e] Thus the priest shall make atonement for him, and he will be forgiven.

32 "If, however, for his sin offering he presents a lamb, he shall bring an unblemished female. 33 Having laid his hand on its head, he shall slaughter this sin offering in the place where the holocausts are slaughtered. 34 The priest shall then take some of the blood of the sin offering on his finger and put it on the horns of the altar of holocausts. The rest of the blood he shall pour out at the base of the altar. 35 All the fat shall be removed, just as the fat is removed from the peace-offering lamb,[f] and the priest shall burn it on the altar with the other oblations of the Lord. Thus the priest shall make atonement for the man's sin, and it will be forgiven.

For Special Cases. 1 "If any person refuses to give the information which, as a witness of something he has seen or learned, he has been adjured to give, and thus commits a sin and has guilt to bear; [g] 2 or if someone, without being aware of it, touches any unclean thing, as the carcass of an unclean wild animal,[h] or that of an unclean domestic animal, or that of an unclean swarming creature, and thus becomes unclean and guilty; 3 or if someone, without being aware of it, touches some human uncleanness, whatever kind of uncleanness this may be, and then recognizes his guilt; [4] or if someone, without being aware of it, rashly utters an oath [i] to do good or evil, such as men are accustomed to utter rashly, and then recognizes that he is guilty of such an oath; [5] then whoever is guilty in any of these cases shall confess the sin he has incurred,[j] [6] and as his sin offering for the sin he has committed he shall bring to the Lord a female animal from the flock, a ewe lamb or a she-goat. The priest shall then make atonement for his sin.

[7] "If, however, he cannot afford an animal of the flock, he shall bring to the Lord as the sin offering for his sin two turtledoves or two pigeons, one for a sin offering and the other for a holocaust.[k] [8] He shall bring them to the priest, who shall offer the one for the sin offering first. Snapping its head loose at the neck, yet without breaking it off completely,[l] [9] he shall sprinkle some of the blood of the sin offering against the side of the altar.[m] The rest of the blood shall be squeezed out against the base of the altar. Such is the offering for sin. [10] The other bird shall be offered as a holocaust in the usual way. Thus the priest shall make atonement for the sin the man committed, and it will be forgiven.

[11] "If he is unable to afford even two turtledoves or two pigeons, he shall present as a sin offering for his sin one tenth of an epha of fine flour. He shall not put oil or frankincense on it, because it is a sin offering. [12] When he has brought it to the priest, the latter shall take a handful of this flour as a token offering, and this he shall burn as a sin offering on the altar with the other oblations of the Lord. [13] Thus the priest shall make atonement for the sin that the man committed in any of the above cases, and it will be forgiven.[n] The rest of the flour, like the cereal offering, shall belong to the priest."

Guilt Offerings. [14] The Lord said to Moses, [15] "If someone commits a sin by inadvertently cheating* in the Lord's sacred dues, he shall bring to the Lord as his guilt offering an unblemished ram from the flock, valued at two silver shekels according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel. [16] He shall also restore what he has sinfully withheld from the sanctuary, adding to it a fifth of its value.[o] This is to be given to the priest, who shall then make atonement for him with the guilt-offering ram, and he will be forgiven.

[17] [p] "If someone, without being aware of it,* commits such a sin by doing one of the things which are forbidden by some commandment of the Lord, that he incurs guilt for which he must answer, [18] he shall bring as a guilt offering to the priest an unblemished ram of the flock of the established value. The priest shall then make atonement for the fault which was unwittingly committed, and it will be forgiven. [19] Such is the offering for guilt; the penalty of the guilt must be paid to the Lord."

[20] The Lord said to Moses, [21] "If someone commits a sin of dishonesty against the Lord by denying his neighbor a deposit or a pledge or a stolen article, or by otherwise retaining his neighbor's goods unjustly, [22] or if, having found a lost article, he denies the fact and swears falsely about it with any of the sinful oaths that men make in such cases, [23] he shall therefore, since he has incurred guilt by his sin, restore the thing that was stolen or unjustly retained by him or the deposit left with him or the lost article he found [24] or whatever else he swore falsely about; on the day of his guilt offering he shall make full restitution of the thing itself, and in addition, give the owner one fifth of its value. [25] As his guilt offering he shall bring to the Lord an unblemished ram of the flock of the established value. When he has presented this as his guilt offering to the priest, [26] the latter shall make atonement for him before the Lord, and he will be forgiven whatever guilt he may have incurred."

CHAPTER 6.

The Daily Holocaust. [1] The Lord said to Moses, [2] "Give Aaron and his sons the following command: This is the ritual*

i Jgs 11, 30f; 1 Kgs 14, 24; Mk 6, 23; Acts 23, 12.—j Lv 26, 40; Nm 5, 7.—k Lv 12, 8; Lk 2, 24.—l Lv 1, 15. 17.—m Lv 1, 15.—n Lv 4, 26. 35.—o Lv 22, 14.—p Lv 4, 2.

5, 15: Cheating: not offering the full amount in tithes, first fruits, etc. Guilt offering: its characteristic was a certain additional penalty imposed as reparation for the injustice involved in the fault which was atoned for by this sacrifice. However, in certain passages, e.g., Lv 14, 12f; Nm 6, 12; Esd 10, 19, the term "guilt offering" is used for more important cases of "sin offerings" where no apparent injustice is involved.

5, 17: Without being aware of it: the case naturally presupposes that later on the offender learns of his mistake. Cf Lv 4, 13f.

for holocausts. The holocaust is to remain on the hearth of the altar all night until the next morning, and the fire is to be kept burning on the altar. [3] The priest, clothed in his linen robe and wearing linen drawers on his body, shall take away the ashes to which the fire has reduced the holocaust on the altar, and lay them at the side of the altar. [4] Then, having taken off these garments and put on other garments, he shall carry the ashes to a clean place outside the camp. [5] The fire on the altar is to be kept burning; it must not go out. Every morning the priest shall put firewood on it. On this he shall lay out the holocaust and burn the fat of the peace offerings. [6] The fire is to be kept burning continuously on the altar; it must not go out.

Daily Cereal Offering. [7] "This is the ritual of the cereal offering. One of Aaron's sons shall first present it before the Lord, in front of the altar. [8] Then he shall take from it a handful of its fine flour and oil, together with all the frankincense that is on it, and this he shall burn on the altar as its token offering, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. [9] The rest of it Aaron and his sons may eat; but it must be eaten in the form of unleavened cakes and in a sacred place: in the court of the Meeting Tent they shall eat it. [10] It shall not be baked with leaven. I have given it to them as their portion from the oblations of the Lord; it is most sacred, like the sin offering and the guilt offering. [11] All the male descendants of Aaron may partake of it as their rightful share in the oblations of the Lord perpetually throughout your generations. Whatever touches the oblations becomes sacred."

[12] *The Lord said to Moses, [13] "This is the offering that Aaron and his sons shall present to the Lord [on the day he is anointed]: one tenth of an epha of fine flour for the established cereal offering, half in the morning and half in the evening. [14] It shall be well kneaded and fried in oil on a griddle when you bring it in. Having broken the offering into pieces, you shall present it as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. [15] Aaron's descendant who succeeds him as the anointed priest shall do likewise. This is a perpetual ordinance: for the Lord the whole offering shall be burned. [16] Every cereal offering of a priest shall be a whole burnt offering; it may not be eaten."

Sin Offerings. [17] The Lord said to Moses, [18] "Tell Aaron and his sons: This is the ritual for sin offerings. At the place where holocausts are slaughtered, there also, before the Lord, shall the sin offering be slaughtered.[q] It is most sacred. [19] The priest who presents the sin offering may partake of it; but it must be eaten in a sacred place,[r] in the court of the Meeting Tent. [20] Whatever touches its flesh shall become sacred. If any of its blood is spilled on a garment, the stained part must be washed in a sacred place. [21] A clay vessel in which it has been cooked shall thereafter be broken;[s] if it is cooked in a bronze vessel, this shall be scoured afterward and rinsed with water. [22] All the males of the priestly line may partake of the sin offering, since it is most sacred.[t] [23] But no one may partake of any sin offering of which some blood has been brought into the Meeting Tent[u] to make atonement in the sanctuary; such an offering must be burned up in the fire.

CHAPTER 7.

Guilt Offerings. [1] "This is the ritual for guilt offerings, which are most sacred. [2] At the place where the holocausts are slaughtered, there also shall the guilt offering be slaughtered.[v] Its blood shall be splashed on the sides of the altar. [3] [w] All of its fat shall be taken from it and offered up: the fatty tail, the fatty membrane over the inner organs, [4] as well as the two kidneys with the fat on them near the loins, and the lobe of the liver, which must be severed above the kidneys. [5] All this the priest shall burn on the altar as an oblation to the Lord. This is the guilt offering. [6] All the males of the priestly line may partake of it; but it must be eaten in a sacred place, since it is most sacred.[x]

[7] "Because the sin offering and the guilt offering are alike, both having the same ritual, the guilt offering likewise belongs to the priest who makes atonement with it. 8 Similarly, the priest who offers a holocaust for someone may keep for himself the hide of the holocaust that he has offered. 9 y Also, every cereal offering that is baked in an oven or deep-fried in a pot or fried on a griddle shall belong to the priest who offers it, 10 whereas all cereal offerings z that are offered up dry or mixed with oil shall belong to all of Aaron's sons without distinction.

6, 12-16: This is another law about the daily or "established" cereal offering. It differs in some respects from the preceding law (vv 7-11) and also from the law in Ex 29, 38-42. Hence, the words on the day he is anointed were probably added by some later scribe in order to avoid the difficulty of harmonizing this law with the other two laws on the same matter.

Peace Offerings. 11 "This is the ritual for the peace offerings that are presented to the Lord. 12 When anyone makes a peace offering in thanksgiving, together with his thanksgiving sacrifice he shall offer unleavened cakes mixed with oil, unleavened wafers spread with oil, and cakes made of fine flour mixed with oil and well kneaded. 13 His offering shall also include loaves of leavened bread* along with the victim of his peace offering for thanksgiving. 14 From each of his offerings he shall present one portion as a contribution to the Lord; this shall belong to the priest who splashes the blood of the peace offering.

15 a "The flesh of the thanksgiving sacrifice shall be eaten on the day it is offered; none of it may be kept till the next day. 16 However, if the sacrifice is a votive or a free-will offering, it should indeed be eaten on the day the sacrifice is offered, but what is left over may be eaten on the next day. 17 Should any flesh from the sacrifice be left over on the third day, it must be burned up in the fire. 18 If, therefore, any of the flesh of the peace offering is eaten on the third day, it shall not win favor for him nor shall it be reckoned to his credit; rather, it shall be considered as refuse, and anyone who eats of it shall have his guilt to bear. 19 Should the flesh touch anything unclean, it may not be eaten, but shall be burned up in the fire.

"All who are clean may partake of this flesh. 20 If, however, someone while in a state of uncleanness eats any of the flesh of a peace offering belonging to the Lord, that person shall be cut off from his people. 21 Likewise, if someone touches anything unclean, whether the uncleanness be of human or of animal origin or from some loathsome crawling creature, and then eats of a peace offering belonging to the Lord, that person, too, shall be cut off from his people."

Prohibition against Blood and Fat. 22 The Lord said to Moses, 23 "Tell the Israelites: You shall not eat the fat* of any ox or sheep or goat. b 24 Although the fat of an animal that has died a natural death or has been killed by wild beasts may be put to any other use, you may not eat it. c 25 If anyone eats the fat of an animal from which an oblation is made to the Lord, such a one shall be cut off from his people. 26 Wherever you dwell, you shall not partake of any blood, be it of bird or of animal. 27 Every person who partakes of any blood shall be cut off from his people." d

The Portions for Priests. 28 The Lord said to Moses, 29 "Tell the Israelites: He who presents a peace offering to the Lord shall bring a part of it as his special offering to him, 30 carrying in with his own hands the oblations to the Lord. The fat is to be brought in, together with the breast, which is to be waved as a wave offering* before the Lord. 31 The priest shall burn the fat on the altar, e but the breast belongs to Aaron and his sons. 32 Moreover, from your peace offering you shall give to the priest the right leg as a raised offering. 33 The descendant of Aaron who offers up the blood and fat of the peace offering shall have the right leg as his portion, 34 for from the peace offerings of the Israelites I have taken the breast that is waved and the leg that is raised up, and I have given them to Aaron, the priest, and to his sons by a perpetual ordinance as a contribution from the Israelites." f

35 This is the priestly share* from the oblations of the Lord, allotted to Aaron and his sons on the day he called them to be the priests of the Lord; 36 on the day he anointed them the Lord ordered the Israelites to give them this share by a 37 This is the ritual for holocausts, cereal offerings, sin offerings, guilt offerings, [ordination offerings] and peace offerings,

II: CEREMONY OF ORDINATION

CHAPTER 8.

Ordination of Aaron and His Sons. 1 The Lord g said to Moses,* 2 "Take Aaron and his sons, together with the vestments,* the anointing oil, the bullock for a sin offering, the two rams, and the basket of unleavened food. 3 Then assemble the whole community at the entrance of the Meeting Tent." 4 And Moses did as the Lord had commanded. When the community had assembled at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, 5 Moses told them what the Lord had ordered to be done. 6 Bringing forward Aaron and his sons, he first washed them with water.h 7 Then he put the tunic on Aaron,i girded him with the sash, clothed him with the robe, placed the ephod on him, and girded him with the embroidered belt of the ephod, fastening it around him. 8 i He then set the breastpiece on him, with the Urim and Thummim* in it, 9 k and put the miter on his head, attaching the gold plate, the sacred diadem, over the front of the miter, at his forehead, as the Lord had commanded him to do.

10 Taking the anointing oil, Moses anointed and consecrated the Dwelling, with all that was in it.l 11 Then he sprinkled some of this oil seven times on the altar, and anointed the altar, with all its appurtenances, and the laver, with its base, thus consecrating them. 12 He also poured some of the anointing oil on Aaron's head, thus consecrating him.m 13 Moses likewise brought forward Aaron's sons, clothed them with tunics, girded them with sashes, and put turbans on them, as the Lord had commanded him to do.

Ordination Sacrifices. 14 When he had brought forward the bullock for a sin offering, Aaron and his sons laid their hands on its head. 15 Then Moses slaughtered it, and taking some of its blood, with his finger he put it on the horns around the altar, thus purifying the altar. He also made atonement for the altar by pouring out the blood at its base when he consecrated it.n 16 Taking all the fat that was over the inner organs, as well as the lobe of the liver and the two kidneys with their fat,o Moses burned them on the altar. 17 The bullock, however, with its hide and flesh and offal he burned in the fire outside the camp, as the Lord had commanded him to do.

18 He next brought forward the holocaust ram, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on its head. 19 When he had slaughtered it, Moses splashed its blood on all sides of the altar. 20 After cutting up the ram into pieces, he burned the head, the cut-up pieces and the suet; 21 then, having washed the inner organs and the shanks with water, he also burned these remaining parts of the ram on the altar as a holocaust, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord, as the Lord had commanded him to do.

22 Then he brought forward the second ram, the ordination ram, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on its head. 23 When he had slaughtered it, Moses took some of its blood and put it on the tip of Aaron's right ear, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot.p 24 Moses had the sons of Aaron also come forward, and he put some of the blood on the tips of their right ears, on the thumbs of their right hands, and on the big toes of their right feet. The rest of the blood he splashed on the sides of the altar. 25 He then took the fat: the fatty tail and all the fat over the inner organs, the lobe of the liver and the two kidneys with their fat, and likewise the right leg; 26 from the basket of unleavened food that was set before the Lord he took one unleavened cake, one loaf of bread made with oil, and one wafer; these he placed on top of the portions of fat and the right leg. 27 He then put all these things into the hands of Aaron and his sons, whom he had wave them as a wave offering before the Lord. 28 When he had received them back, Moses burned them with the holocaust on the altar as the ordination offering, a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 29 He then took the breast and waved it as a wave offering before the Lord; this was Moses' own portion of the ordination ram. All this was in keeping with the Lord's command to Moses. 30 Taking some of the anointing oil and some of the blood that was on the altar, Moses sprinkled with it Aaron and his vestments, as well as his sons and their vestments, thus consecrating both Aaron and his vestments and his sons and their vestments.

31 Finally, Moses said to Aaron and his sons, "Boil the flesh at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, and there eat it with the bread that is in the basket of the ordination offering,[q] in keeping with the command I have received: 'Aaron and his sons shall eat of it.' 32 What is left over of the flesh and the bread you shall burn up in the fire. 33 Moreover, you are not to depart from the entrance of the Meeting Tent for seven days, until the days of your ordination are completed; for your ordination is to last for seven days.34 *The Lord has commanded that what has been done today be done to make atonement for you. 35 Hence you must remain at the entrance of the Meeting Tent day and night for seven days, carrying out the prescriptions of the Lord; otherwise you shall die; for this is the command I have received." 36 So Aaron and his sons did all that the Lord had commanded through Moses.

Octave of the Ordination. 1 On the eighth day Moses summoned Aaron and his sons, together with the elders of Israel, 2 and said to Aaron, "Take a calf for a sin offering and a ram for a holocaust, both without blemish, and offer them before the Lord. 3 Tell the elders of Israel, too: Take a he-goat for a sin offering, a calf and a lamb, both unblemished yearlings, for a holocaust, 4 and an ox and a ram for a peace offering, to sacrifice them before the Lord, along with a cereal offering mixed with oil; for today the Lord will reveal himself to you." 5 So they brought what Moses had ordered. When the whole community had come forward and stood before the Lord, 6 Moses said, "This is what the Lord orders you to do, that the glory of the Lord may be revealed to you. 7 Come up to the altar," Moses then told Aaron, "and offer your sin offering and your holocaust in atonement for yourself and for your family; then present the offering of the people in atonement for them, as the Lord has commanded."

8 Going up to the altar, Aaron first slaughtered the calf that was his own sin offering. 9 When his sons presented the blood to him, he dipped his finger in the blood and put it on the horns of the altar. The rest of the blood he poured out at the base of the altar. 10 He then burned on the altar the fat, the kidneys and the lobe of the liver that were taken from the sin offering, as the Lord had commanded Moses; 11 but the flesh and the hide he burned up in the fire outside the camp. 12 Then Aaron slaughtered his holocaust. When his sons brought him the blood, he splashed it on all sides of the altar. 13 They then brought him the pieces and the head of the holocaust, and he burned them on the altar. 14 Having washed the inner organs and the shanks, he burned these also with the holocaust on the altar.

15 Thereupon he had the people's offering brought up. Taking the goat that was for the people's sin offering, he slaughtered it and offered it up for sin as before. 16 Then he brought forward the holocaust, other than the morning holocaust, and offered it in the usual manner. 17 He then presented the cereal offering; taking a handful of it, he burned it on the altar. 18 Finally he slaughtered the ox and the ram, the peace offering of the people. When his sons brought him the blood, Aaron splashed it on all sides of the altar. 19 The portions of fat from the ox and from the ram, the fatty tail, the fatty membrane over the inner organs, the two kidneys, with the fat that is on them, and the lobe of the liver,[r] 20 he placed on top of the breasts and burned them on the altar, 21 having first waved the breasts and the right legs as a wave offering before the

q Ex 29, 32.—r Lv 3, 3ff.

8, 34: The sense is not quite clear. Either the verse gives merely the reason why God ordered this ceremony, or it contains God's command that the same ceremony be used in all future ordinations, or it decrees a repetition of the entire ceremony on each of the seven days. At least a sin offering for atonement was made on each of these days. Cf Ex 29, 29-36.

Lord,[s] in keeping with the Lord's command to Moses.

Revelation of the Lord's Glory. 22 Aaron then raised his hands over the people and blessed them. When he came down from offering the sin offering and holocaust and peace offering, 23 Moses and Aaron went into the Meeting Tent.[t] On coming out they again blessed the people. Then the glory of the Lord was revealed to all the people. 24 Fire came forth from the Lord's presence[u] and consumed the holocaust and the remnants of the fat on the altar. Seeing this, all the people cried out and fell prostrate.

CHAPTER 10.

Nadab and Abiu. 1 During this time Aaron's sons Nadab and Abiu* took their censers and, strewing incense on the fire they had put in them,[v] they offered up before the Lord profane fire, such as he had not authorized. 2 Fire* therefore came forth from the Lord's presence and consumed them,[w] so that they died in his presence. 3 Moses then said to Aaron, "This is as the Lord said: 'Through those who approach me I will manifest my sacredness;* in the sight of all the people I will reveal my glory.'"[x] But Aaron said nothing. 4 Then Moses summoned Misael and Elisaphan, the sons of Aaron's uncle Oziel, with the order, "Come, remove your kinsmen from the sanctuary and carry them to a place outside the camp." 5 So they went in and took them, in their tunics,* outside the camp, as Moses had commanded.

10, 3: I will manifest my sacredness: the presence of God is so sacred that it strikes dead those who approach Him without the proper holiness. Cf Nm 20, 13; Ez 28, 22.

10, 5: In their tunics: they were buried just as they were, with no shroud or funeral solemnities.

10, 6: Bare your heads: go without the customary head covering, as a sign of mourning. Some interpreters, however, understand it as the cutting off of one's hair, which ordinarily all the Israelites, men as well as women, let grow long. Cf Is 15, 2; Jer 7, 29. Still others understand the verb to mean "to let one's hair hang loose and wild." Cf Lv 13, 45; 21, 10, where the same phrase is used.

10, 16-19: Eleazar and Ithamar burned the entire goat of the sin offering (Lv 9, 15) instead of eating it in a sacred place (Lv 6, 19) to bear the guilt of the community. Aaron defends this action of his sons against Moses' displeasure by implying that they did not have sufficient sanctity to eat the flesh of the victim and thus perform the expiation of the people. They themselves still labored under the blow of the divine anger which struck their brothers Nadab and Abiu.

Conduct of the Priests. 6 Moses said to Aaron and his sons Eleazar and Ithamar, "Do not bare your heads* or tear your garments,[y] lest you bring not only death on yourselves but God's wrath also on the whole community. Your kinsmen, the rest of the house of Israel, shall mourn for those whom the Lord's fire has smitten; 7 but do not you go beyond the entry of the Meeting Tent, else you shall die; for the anointing oil of the Lord is upon you." So they did as Moses told them.

8 The Lord said to Aaron, 9 "When you are to go to the Meeting Tent, you and your sons are forbidden under pain of death, by a perpetual ordinance throughout your generations, to drink any wine or strong drink.[z] 10 You must be able to distinguish between what is sacred and what is profane, between what is clean and what is unclean;[a] 11 you must teach the Israelites all the laws that the Lord has given them through Moses."[b]

The Eating of the Priestly Portions. 12 Moses said to Aaron and his surviving sons, Eleazar and Ithamar, "Take the cereal offering left over from the oblations of the Lord, and eat it beside the altar in the form of unleavened cakes.[c] Since it is most sacred, 13 you must eat it in a sacred place. This is your due from the oblations of the Lord, and that of your sons; such is the command I have received. 14 With your sons and daughters you shall also eat the breast of the wave offering and the leg of the raised offering, in a clean place; for these have been assigned to you and your children as your due from the peace offerings of the Israelites. 15 The leg of the raised offering and the breast of the wave offering shall first be brought in with the oblations, the fatty portions, that are to be waved as a wave offering before the Lord. Then they shall belong to you and your children by a perpetual ordinance, as the Lord has commanded."[d]

16 *When Moses inquired about the goat of the sin offering, he discovered that it had all been burned. So he was angry with the surviving sons of Aaron, Eleazar and Ithamar, and said, 17[e] "Why did you not eat the sin offering in the sacred place, since it is most sacred? It has been given to you that you might bear the guilt of the community and make atonement for them before the Lord. 18 If its blood was not brought into the inmost part of the sanctuary, you should certainly have eaten the offering in the sanctuary, in keeping with the command I had received." 19 Aaron answered Moses, "Even though they presented their sin offering and holocaust before the Lord today, yet this misfortune has befallen me. Had I then eaten of the sin offering today, would it have been pleasing to the Lord?" 20 On hearing this, Moses was satisfied.

III: LEGAL PURITY

CHAPTER 11.

Clean and Unclean Food. 1 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron,* 2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: Of all land animals these are the ones you may eat: 3 any animal that has hoofs you may eat, provided it is cloven-footed and chews the cud. 4 But you shall not eat any of the following that only chew the cud or only have hoofs: the camel, which indeed chews the cud, but does not have hoofs and is therefore unclean for you; 5 the rock badger,* which indeed chews the cud, but does not have hoofs and is therefore unclean for you; 6 the hare, which indeed chews the cud, but does not have hoofs and is therefore unclean for you; and the pig, 7 which does indeed have hoofs and is cloven-footed, but does not chew the cud and is therefore unclean for you. 8 Their flesh you shall not eat, and their dead bodies you shall not touch; they are unclean for you.

9 "Of the various creatures that live in the water, you may eat the following: whatever in the seas or in river waters has both fins and scales you may eat. 10 But of the various creatures that crawl or swim in the water, whether in the sea or in the rivers, all those that lack either fins or scales are loathsome for you, 11 and you shall treat them as loathsome. Their flesh you shall not eat, and their dead bodies you shall loathe. 12 Every water creature that lacks fins or scales is loathsome for you.

20 "The various winged insects that walk on all fours are loathsome for you. 21 But of the various winged insects that walk on all fours you may eat those that have jointed legs for leaping on the ground; 22 hence of these you may eat the following: the various kinds of locusts,* the various kinds of grasshoppers, the various kinds of katydids, and the various kinds of crickets. 23 All other winged insects that have four legs are loathsome for you.

24 "Such is the uncleanness that you contract, that everyone who touches their dead bodies shall be unclean until evening, 25 and everyone who picks up any part of their dead bodies shall wash his garments and be unclean until evening. 26 All hoofed animals that are not cloven-footed or do not chew the cud are unclean for you; everyone who touches them becomes unclean. 27 Of the various quadrupeds, all those that walk on paws* are unclean for you; everyone who touches their dead bodies shall be unclean until evening, 28 and everyone who picks up their dead bodies shall wash his garments and be unclean until evening. Such is their uncleanness for you.

29 "Of the creatures that swarm on the ground, the following are unclean for you: the rat, the mouse, the various kinds of lizards, 30 the gecko, the chameleon, the agama, the skink, and the mole. 31 Among the various swarming creatures, these are unclean for you. Everyone who touches them when they are dead shall be

11, 1ff: These distinctions between edible and inedible meats were probably based on traditional ideas of hygiene, but they are here given a moral, religious basis: the inedible varieties are classified as "unclean" to remind the Israelites that they are to be a pure and holy people, dedicated to the Lord.

11, 5f: According to modern zoology, the rock badger (hyrax Syriacus) is classified as an ungulate, and the hare as a rodent; neither is a ruminant. They appear to chew their food as the true ruminants do, and it is upon this appearance that the classification in the text is based.

11, 13-19. 30: The identification of the various Hebrew names for these birds and reptiles is in many cases uncertain.

11, 19: The bat: actually a mammal, but listed here with the birds because of its wings.

11, 22: The Hebrew distinguishes four classes of edible locust—like insects, but the difference between them is quite uncertain. Cf Mt 3, 4.

11, 24-28: This paragraph sharpens the prohibition against unclean animals: not only is their meat unfit for food, but contact with their dead bodies makes a person ritually unclean.

11, 26: All hoofed animals that are not clovenfooted: such as the horse and the ass.

11, 27: All those that walk on paws: such as dogs and cats.

unclean until evening. 32 Everything on which one of them falls when dead becomes unclean. Any such article that men use, whether it be an article of wood, cloth, leather or goat hair, must be put in water and remain unclean until evening, when it again becomes clean. 33 Should any of these creatures fall into a clay vessel, everything in it becomes unclean, and the vessel itself you must break. 34 Any solid food that was in contact with water, and any liquid that men drink, in any such vessel become unclean. 35 Any object on which one of their dead bodies falls, becomes unclean; if it is an oven or a jar-stand, this must be broken to pieces; they are unclean and shall be treated as unclean by you. 36 However, a spring or a cistern for collecting water remains clean; but whoever touches the dead body* becomes unclean. 37 Any sort of cultivated grain remains clean even though one of their dead bodies falls on it; but if the grain has become moistened, 38 it becomes unclean when one of these falls on it.

39 "When one of the animals that you could otherwise eat, dies of itself, anyone who touches its dead body shall be unclean until evening; 40 and anyone who eats of its dead body shall wash his garments and be unclean until evening; f so also, anyone who removes its dead body shall wash his garments and be unclean until evening.

41 "All the creatures that swarm on the ground are loathsome and shall not be eaten. 42 Whether it crawls on its belly; goes on all fours, or has many legs, you shall eat no swarming creature: they are loathsome. 43 Do not make yourselves loathsome or unclean with any swarming creature through being contaminated by them.g 44 For I, the Lord, am your God; and you shall make and keep yourselves holy, because I am holy.h You shall not make yourselves unclean, then, by any swarming creature that crawls on the ground. 45 Since I, the Lord, brought you up from the land of Egypt that I might be your God, you shall be holy, because I am holy.

46 "This is the law for animals and birds and for all the creatures that move about in the water or swarm on the ground, 47 that you may distinguish between the clean and the unclean, between creatures that may be eaten and those that may not be eaten." i

12, 2f: The uncleanness of the woman was more serious during the first period, the seven days after the birth of a boy or the fourteen days after the birth of a girl; only during this period would the rules given in Lv 15, 19-24 apply.

12, 8: Forty days after the birth of Jesus, His Virgin Mother made this offering of the poor (Lk 2, 22. 24); since the holocaust was offered in thanksgiving for the birth of the child, this was most fittingly offered by Mary. However, because of her miraculous delivery, she was not really obliged to make the sin offering of purification.

13, 2ff: Various kinds of skin blemishes are treated here which were not contagious but simply disqualified their subjects from association with others, especially in public worship, until they were declared ritually clean. The Hebrew term used does not refer to Hansen's disease, currently called leprosy.

CHAPTER 12.

Uncleanness of Childbirth. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Tell the Israelites: When a woman has conceived and gives birth to a boy, she shall be unclean* for seven days, with the same uncleanness as at her menstrual period.j 3 On the eighth day, the flesh of the boy's foreskin shall be circumcised,k 4 and then she shall spend thirty-three days more in becoming purified of her blood; she shall not touch anything sacred nor enter the sanctuary till the days of her purification are fulfilled. 5 If she gives birth to a girl, for fourteen days she shall be as unclean as at her menstruation, after which she shall spend sixty-six days in becoming purified of her blood.

6 "When the days of her purification for a son or for a daughter are fulfilled,l she shall bring to the priest at the entrance of the Meeting Tent a yearling lamb for a holocaust and a pigeon or a turtledove for a sin offering. 7 The priest shall offer them up before the Lord to make atonement for her, and thus she will be clean again after her flow of blood. Such is the law for the woman who gives birth to a boy or a girl child. 8 *If, however, she cannot afford a lamb, she may take two turtledoves or two pigeons,m the one for a holocaust and the other for a sin offering. The priest shall make atonement for her, and thus she will again be clean."

CHAPTER 13.

Leprosy. 1 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron, 2 n "If someone has on his skin* a scab or pustule or blotch which appears to be the sore of leprosy, he shall be brought to Aaron, the priest, or to one of the priests among his descendants, 3 who shall examine the sore on his skin. If the hair on the sore has turned white and the sore itself shows that it has penetrated below the skin, it is indeed the sore of leprosy; the priest, on seeing this, shall declare the man unclean. 4 If, however, the blotch on the skin is white, but does not seem to have penetrated below the skin, nor has the hair turned white, the priest shall quarantine the stricken man for seven days. 5 On the seventh day the priest shall again examine him. If he judges that the sore has remained unchanged and has not spread on the skin, the priest shall quarantine him for another seven days, 6 and once more examine him on the seventh day. If the sore is now dying out and has not spread on the skin, the priest shall declare the man clean; it was merely eczema. The man shall wash his garments and so become clean. 7 But if, after he has shown himself to the priest to be declared clean, the eczema spreads at all on his skin, he shall once more show himself to the priest. 8 Should the priest, on examining it, find that the eczema has indeed spread on the skin, he shall declare the man unclean; it is leprosy.

9 "When someone is stricken with leprosy, he shall be brought to the priest. 10 Should the priest, on examining him, find that there is a white scab on the skin which has turned the hair white and that there is raw flesh in it, 11 it is skin leprosy that has long developed. The priest shall declare the man unclean without first quarantining him, since he is certainly unclean. 12 If leprosy breaks out on the skin* and, as far as the priest can see, covers all the skin of the stricken man from head to foot, 13 should the priest then, on examining him, find that the leprosy does cover his whole body, he shall declare the stricken man clean; since it has all turned white, the man is clean. 14 But as soon as raw flesh appears on him, he is unclean; 15 on observing the raw flesh, the priest shall declare him unclean, because raw flesh is unclean; it is leprosy. 16 If, however, the raw flesh again turns white, he shall return to the priest; 17 should the latter, on examining him, find that the sore has indeed turned white, he shall declare the stricken man clean, and thus he will be clean.

18 "If a man who had a boil on his skin which later healed, 19 should now in the place of the boil have a white scab or a pink blotch, he shall show himself to the priest. 20 If the latter, on examination, sees that it is deeper than the skin and that the hair has turned white, he shall declare the man unclean; it is the sore of leprosy that has broken out in the boil. 21 But if the priest, on examining him, finds that there is no white hair in it and that it is not deeper than the skin and is already dying out, the priest shall quarantine him for seven days. 22 If it has then spread on the skin, the priest shall declare him unclean; the man is stricken. 23 But if the blotch remains in its place without spreading, it is merely the scar of the boil; the priest shall therefore declare him clean.

24 "If a man had a burn on his skin, and the proud flesh of the burn now becomes a pink or a white blotch, 25 the priest shall examine it. If the hair has turned white on the blotch and this seems to have penetrated below the skin, it is leprosy that has broken out in the burn; the priest shall therefore declare him unclean and stricken with leprosy. 26 But if the priest, on examining it, finds that there is no white hair on the blotch and that this is not deeper than the skin and is already dying out, the priest shall quarantine him for seven days. 27 Should the priest, when examining it on the seventh day, find that it has spread at all on the skin, he shall declare the man unclean and stricken with leprosy. 28 But if the blotch remains in its place without spreading on the skin and is already dying out, it is merely the scab of the burn; the priest shall therefore declare the man clean, since it is only the scar of the burn.

29 "When a man or a woman has a sore on the head or cheek, 30 should the priest, on examining it, find that the sore has penetrated below the skin and that there is fine yellow hair on it, the priest shall declare the person unclean, for this is scall,* a leprous disease of the head or 13, 12ff: If leprosy breaks out on the skin: the symptoms described here point to a form of skin disease which is merely on the surface and therefore easily cured.

13, 30: Scall: a scabby or scaly eruption of the scalp. According to some, "ringworm."

cheek. 31 But if the priest, on examining the scall sore, finds that it has not penetrated below the skin, though the hair on it may not be black, the priest shall quarantine the person with scall sore for seven days, 32 and on the seventh day again examine the sore. If the scall has not spread and has no yellow hair on it and does not seem to have penetrated below the skin.
33 the man shall shave himself, but not on the diseased spot. Then the priest shall quarantine him for another seven days.
34 If the priest, when examining the scall on the seventh day, finds that it has not spread on the skin and that it has not penetrated below the skin, he shall declare the man clean; the latter shall wash
his garments, and thus he will be clean.
35 But if the scall spreads at all on his skin after he has been declared clean, 36
the priest shall again examine it. If the scall has indeed spread on the skin, he need not look for yellow hair; the man is surely unclean. 37 If, however, he judges that the scall has remained in its place and that black hair has grown on it, the disease has been healed; the man is clean,
and the priest shall declare him clean.

38 "When the skin of a man or a woman is spotted with white blotches, 39 the priest shall make an examination. If the blotches on the skin are white and already dying out, it is only tetter* that has broken out on the skin, and the person therefore is clean.

40 "When a man loses the hair of his head, he is not unclean merely because of his bald crown. 41 So too, if he loses
the hair on the front of his head, he is not unclean merely because of his bald forehead. 42 But when there is a pink sore on his bald crown or bald forehead, it is leprosy that is breaking out there. 43 The priest shall examine him; and if the scab
on the sore of the bald spot has the same pink appearance as that of skin leprosy
of the fleshy part of the body, 44 the man is leprous and unclean, and the priest shall declare him unclean by reason of the sore on his head.

45 "The one who bears the sore of lep-rosy shall keep his garments rent and his head bare, and shall muffle his beard; he shall cry out, 'Unclean, unclean!' 46 As long as the sore is on him he shall declare himself unclean, since he is in fact unclean.[o] He shall dwell apart, making his abode outside the camp.

Leprosy of Clothes. 47 "When a leprous infection* is on a garment of wool or of linen, 48 or on woven or knitted material of linen or wool, or on a hide or anything made of leather, 49 if the infection on the garment or hide, or on the woven or knitted material, or on any leather article is greenish or reddish, the thing is indeed infected with leprosy and must be shown to the priest. 50 Having examined the infection, the priest shall quarantine the infected article for seven days.

51 "On the seventh day the priest shall again examine the infection. If it has spread on the garment, or on the woven or knitted material, or on the leather, whatever be its use, the infection is malignant leprosy, and the article is unclean.
52 He shall therefore burn up the garment,
or the woven or knitted material of wool
or linen, or the leather article, whatever it may be, which is infected; since it has malignant leprosy, it must be destroyed by fire. 53 But if the priest, on examining the infection, finds that it has not spread on the garment, or on the woven or knitted material, or on the leather article, 54
he shall give orders to have the infected article washed and then quarantined for another seven days.

55 "Then the priest shall again examine the infected article after it has been washed. If the infection has not changed its appearance, even though it may not have spread, the article is unclean and shall be destroyed by fire. 56 But if the priest, on examining the infection, finds that it is dying out after the washing, he shall tear the infected part out of the garment, or the leather, or the woven or knitted material. 57 If, however, the infection again appears on the garment, or on the woven or knitted material, or on the leather article, it is still virulent and the thing infected shall be destroyed by fire.
58 But if, after the washing, the infection has left the garment, or the woven or knitted material, or the leather article, the thing shall be washed a second time, and thus it will be clean. 59 This is the law for leprous infection[p] on a garment of wool
or linen, or on woven or knitted material,

CHAPTER 14.

Purification after Leprosy. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 q "This is the law for the victim of leprosy at the time of his purification. He shall be brought to the priest, who is to go outside the camp to examine him. 3 If the priest finds that the sore of leprosy has healed in the leper, 4 he shall order the man who is to be purified, to get two live, clean birds, as well as some cedar wood, scarlet yarn,* and hyssop. 5 The priest shall then order him to slay one of the birds over an earthen vessel with spring water* in it. 6 Taking the living bird with the cedar wood, the scarlet yarn and the hyssop, the priest shall dip them all in the blood of the bird that was slain over the spring water, 7 and then sprinkle seven times the man to be purified from his leprosy. When he has thus purified him, he shall let the living bird fly away over the countryside. 8 The man being purified shall then wash his garments and shave off all his hair and bathe in water; only when he is thus made clean may he come inside the camp; but he shall still remain outside his tent for seven days. 9 On the seventh day he shall again shave off all the hair of his head, his beard, his eyebrows, and any other hair he may have, and also wash his garments and bathe his body in water; and so he will be clean.

Purification Sacrifices. 10 "On the eighth day he shall take two unblemished male lambs, one unblemished yearling ewe lamb, three tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering, and one log of oil. 11 The priest who performs the purification ceremony shall place the man who is being purified, as well as all these offerings, before the Lord at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. 12 Taking one of the male lambs, the priest shall present it as a guilt offering, along with the log of oil, waving them as a wave offering before the Lord. 13 (This lamb he shall slaughter in the sacred place where the sin offering and the holocaust are slaughtered; because, like the sin offering, the guilt offering belongs to the priest and is most sacred.) 14 Then the priest shall take some of the blood of the guilt offering and put it on the tip of the man's right ear, the thumb of his right hand, and the big toe of his right foot.r 15 The priest shall also take the log of oil and pour some of it into the palm of his own left hand; 16 then, dipping his right forefinger in it, he shall sprinkle it seven times before the Lord. 17 Of the oil left in his hand the priest shall put some on the tip of the man's right ear, the thumb of his right hand, and the big toe of his right foot, over the blood of the guilt offering. 18 The rest of the oil in his hand the priest shall put on the head of the man being purified. Thus shall the priest make atonement for him before the Lord. 19 Only after he has offered the sin offering in atonement for the man's uncleanness shall the priest slaughter the holocaust 20 and offer it, together with the cereal offering, on the altar before the Lord. When the priest has thus made atonement for him, the man will be clean.

Poor Leper's Sacrifice. 21 "If a man is poor and cannot afford so much, he shall take one male lamb for a guilt offering, to be used as a wave offering in atonement for himself, one tenth of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering, a log of oil, 22 and two turtledoves* or pigeons, which he can more easily afford, the one as a sin offering and the other as a holocaust. 23 On the eighth day of his purification he shall bring them to the priest, at the entrance of the Meeting Tent before the Lord. 24 Taking the guilt-offering lamb, along with the log of oil, the priest shall wave them as a wave offering before the Lord. 25 When he has slaughtered the guilt-offering lamb, he shall take some of its blood, and put it on the tip of the right ear of the man being purified, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot. 26 The priest shall then pour some of the oil into the palm of his own left hand 27 and with his right forefinger sprinkle it seven times before the Lord. 28 Some of the oil in his hand the priest shall also put on the tip of the man's right ear, the thumb of his right hand, and the big toe of his right foot, over the blood of the guilt offering. [29] The rest of the oil in his hand the priest shall put on the man's head. Thus shall he make atonement for him before the Lord. [30] Then, of the turtledoves or pigeons, such as the man can afford, [31] the priest shall offer up one as a sin offering and the other as a holocaust, along with the cereal offering. Thus shall the priest make atonement before the Lord for the man who is to be purified. [32] This is the law for one afflicted with leprosy who has insufficient means for his purification."

Leprosy of Houses. [33] The Lord said to Moses and Aaron, [34] "When you come into the land of Chanaan, which I am giving you to possess, if I put a leprous infection on any house of the land you occupy, [35] the owner of the house shall come and report to the priest, 'It looks to me as if my house were infected.' [36] The priest shall then order the house to be cleared out before he goes in to examine the infection, lest everything in the house become unclean. Only after this is he to go in to examine the house. [37] If the priest, on examining it, finds that the infection on the walls of the house consists of greenish or reddish depressions which seem to go deeper than the surface of the wall, [38] he shall close the door of the house behind him and quarantine the house for seven days. [39] On the seventh day the priest shall return to examine the house again. If he finds that the infection has spread on the walls, [40] he shall order the infected stones to be pulled out and cast in an unclean place outside the city. [41] The whole inside of the house shall then be scraped, and the mortar that has been scraped off shall be dumped in an unclean place outside the city. [42] Then new stones shall be brought and put in the place of the old stones, and new mortar shall be made and plastered on the house.

[43] "If the infection breaks out once more after the stones have been pulled out and the house has been scraped and replastered, [44] the priest shall come again; and if he finds that the infection has spread in the house, it is corrosive leprosy, and the house is unclean. [45] It shall be pulled down, and all its stones, beams and mortar shall be hauled away to an unclean place outside the city. [46] Whoever enters a house while it is quarantined shall be unclean until evening. [47] Whoever sleeps or eats in such a house shall also wash his garments. [48] If the priest finds, when he comes to examine the house, that the infection has in fact not spread after the plastering, he shall declare the house clean, since the infection has been healed. [49] To purify the house, he shall take two birds, as well as cedar wood, scarlet yarn, and hyssop. [50] One of the birds he shall slay over an earthen vessel with spring water in it. [51] Then, taking the cedar wood, the hyssop and the scarlet yarn, together with the living bird, he shall dip them all in the blood of the slain bird and the spring water, and sprinkle the house seven times. [52] Thus shall he purify the house with the bird's blood and the spring water, along with the living bird, the cedar wood, the hyssop, and the scarlet yarn. [53] He shall then let the living bird fly away over the countryside outside the city. When he has thus made atonement for it, the house will be clean.

[54] "This is the law for every kind of human leprosy and scall, [55] [s]for leprosy of garments and houses, [56] as well as for scabs, pustules and blotches, [57] so that it may be manifest when there is a state of uncleanness and when a state of cleanness. This is the law for leprosy."

CHAPTER 15.

Personal Uncleanness. [1] The Lord said to Moses and Aaron, [2] "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: Every man who is afflicted with a chronic flow from his private parts is thereby unclean.[t] [3] Such is his uncleanness from this flow that it makes no difference whether the flow drains off or is blocked up; his uncleanness remains. [4] Any bed on which the man afflicted with the flow lies, is unclean, and any piece of furniture on which he sits, is unclean. [5] Anyone who touches his bed shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. [6] Whoever sits on a piece of furniture on which the afflicted man was sitting, shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. [7] Whoever touches the body of the afflicted man shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. [8] If the afflicted man spits on a clean man, the latter shall

wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. 9 Any saddle on which the afflicted man rides, is unclean. 10 Whoever touches anything that was under him shall be unclean until evening; whoever lifts up any such thing shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. 11 Anyone whom the afflicted man touches with unrinsed hands shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. 12 Earthenware touched by the afflicted man shall be broken; and every wooden article shall be rinsed with water.

13 "When a man who has been afflicted with a flow becomes free of his affliction, he shall wait seven days for his purification. Then he shall wash his garments and bathe his body in fresh water, and so he will be clean. 14 On the eighth day he shall take two turtledoves or two pigeons, and going before the Lord, to the entrance of the Meeting Tent, he shall give them to the priest, 15 who shall offer them up, the one as a sin offering and the other as a holocaust. Thus shall the priest make atonement before the Lord for the man's flow.

16 "When a man has an emission of seed, he shall bathe his whole body in water and be unclean until evening. 17 Any piece of cloth or leather with seed on it shall be washed with water and be unclean until evening.

18 "If a man lies carnally with a woman, they shall both bathe in water and be unclean until evening.

19 "When a woman has her menstrual flow, she shall be in a state of impurity for seven days.[u] Anyone who touches her shall be unclean until evening. 20 Anything on which she lies or sits during her impurity shall be unclean. 21 Anyone who touches her bed shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. 22 Whoever touches any article of furniture on which she was sitting, shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening. 23 *But if she is on the bed or on the seat when he touches it, he shall be unclean until evening. 24 If a man dares to lie with her, he contracts her impurity and shall be unclean for seven days;[v] every bed on which he then lies also becomes unclean.

25 "When a woman is afflicted with a flow of blood for several days outside her menstrual period, or when her flow continues beyond the ordinary period,[w] as long as she suffers this unclean flow she shall be unclean, just as during her menstrual period. 26 Any bed on which she lies during such a flow becomes unclean, as it would during her menstruation, and any article of furniture on which she sits becomes unclean just as during her menstruation. 27 Anyone who touches them becomes unclean; he shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening.

28 "If she becomes freed from her affliction, she shall wait seven days, and only then is she to be purified. 29 On the eighth day she shall take two turtledoves or two pigeons and bring them to the priest at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. 30 The priest shall offer up one of them as a sin offering and the other as a holocaust. Thus shall the priest make atonement before the Lord for her unclean flow.

31 "You shall warn the Israelites of their uncleanness, lest by defiling my Dwelling, which is in their midst, their uncleanness be the cause of their death.

32 "This is the law for the man who is afflicted with a chronic flow, or who has an emission of seed, and thereby becomes unclean; 33 as well as for the woman who has her menstrual period, or who is afflicted with a chronic flow; the law for male and female; and also for the man who lies with an unclean woman."

CHAPTER 16.

The Day of Atonement. 1 After the death of Aaron's two sons, who died when they approached the Lord's presence, the Lord spoke to Moses 2 and said to him, [x] "Tell your brother Aaron that he is not to come whenever he pleases into the sanctuary, inside the veil,* in front of the propitiatory on the ark; otherwise, when I reveal myself in a cloud above the propitiatory, he will die. 3 Only u Lv 12, 2. 5.—v Lv 18, 19.—w Mt 9, 20; Mk 5, 25; Lk 8, 43.—x Heb 9, 6-12.

15, 23: What is added to the legislation by this verse is uncertain in both the Hebrew and the Greek.

16, 2: The sanctuary, inside the veil: the innermost part of the sanctuary, known also as "the Holy of Holies." Cf Ex 26, 33f. Here the high priest was allowed to enter only once a year, on Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. In Heb 9, 3-12 this ceremony is applied to Christ's single act of Redemption, whereby He won for us an everlasting atonement. Propitiatory: see note on Ex 25,17.

in this way may Aaron enter the sanctuary. He shall bring a young bullock for a sin offering and a ram for a holocaust. He shall wear the sacred linen tunic, with the linen drawers next his flesh, gird himself with the linen sash and put on the linen miter. [4] But since these vestments are sacred, he shall not put them on until he has first bathed his body in water. [5] From the Israelite community he shall receive two male goats for a sin offering and one ram for a holocaust.[y]

[6] "Aaron shall bring in the bullock, his sin offering to atone for himself and for his household. [7] Taking the two male goats and setting them before the Lord at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, [8] he shall cast lots to determine which one is for the Lord and which for Azazel.* [9] The goat that is determined by lot for the Lord Aaron shall bring in and offer up as a sin offering. [10] But the goat determined by lot for Azazel he shall set alive before the Lord, so that with it he may make atonement by sending it off to Azazel in the desert.

[11] "Thus shall Aaron offer up the bullock, his sin offering, to atone for himself and for his family. When he has slaughtered it, [12] he shall take a censer full of glowing embers from the altar before the Lord, as well as a double handful of finely ground fragrant incense, and bringing them inside the veil, [13] there before the Lord he shall put incense on the fire, so that a cloud of incense may cover the propitiatory over the Commandments; else he will die.* [14] Taking some of the bullock's blood, he shall sprinkle it with his finger on the fore part of the propitiatory and likewise sprinkle some of the blood with his finger seven times in front of the propitiatory.[z]

[15] "Then he shall slaughter the people's sin-offering goat, and bringing its blood inside the veil, he shall do with it as he did with the bullock's blood, sprinkling it on the propitiatory and before it.[a] [16] Thus he shall make atonement for the sanctuary because of all the sinful defilements and faults of the Israelites. He shall do the same for the Meeting Tent, which is set up among them in the midst of their uncleanness. [17] No one else may be in the Meeting Tent from the time he enters the sanctuary to make atonement until he departs. When he has made atonement for himself and his household, as well as for the whole Israelite community, [18] he shall come out to the altar before the Lord and make atonement for it also. Taking some of the bullock's and the goat's blood, he shall put it on the horns around the altar, [19] and with his finger sprinkle some of the blood on it seven times. Thus he shall render it clean and holy, purged of the defilements of the Israelites.

The Scapegoat. [20] "When he has completed the atonement rite for the sanctuary, the Meeting Tent and the altar, Aaron shall bring forward the live goat. [21] Laying both hands on its head, he shall confess over it all the sinful faults and transgressions of the Israelites, and so put them on the goat's head.[b] He shall then have it led into the desert by an attendant. [22] Since the goat is to carry off their iniquities to an isolated region, it must be sent away into the desert.[c]

[23] *"After Aaron has again gone into the Meeting Tent, he shall strip off and leave in the sanctuary the linen vestments he had put on when he entered there. [24] After bathing his body with water in a sacred place, he shall put on his vestments, and then come out and offer his own and the people's holocaust, in atonement for himself and for the people, [25] and also burn the fat of the sin offering on the altar.

[26] "The man who has led away the goat for Azazel shall wash his garments and bathe his body in water; only then may he enter the camp. [27] The sin-offering bullock and goat whose blood was brought into the sanctuary to make atonement, shall be taken outside the camp,[d] where their hides and flesh and offal shall be burned up in the fire. [28] The one who burns them shall wash his garments and bathe his body in water; only then may he enter the camp.

The Fast. [29] [e] "This shall be an everlasting ordinance for you: on the tenth day of the seventh month every one of you, whether a native or a resident alien, shall mortify himself* and shall do no work. 30 Since on this day atonement is made for you to make you clean, so that you may be cleansed of all your sins before the Lord, 31 by everlasting ordinance it shall be a most solemn sabbath for you, on which you must mortify yourselves.

32 "This atonement is to be made by the priest who has been anointed and ordained to the priesthood in succession to his father. He shall wear the linen garments, the sacred vestments, 33 and make atonement for the sacred sanctuary, the Meeting Tent and the altar, as well as for the priests and all the people of the community. 34 This, then, shall be an everlasting ordinance for you: once a year atonement shall be made for all the sins of the Israelites." f

Thus was it done, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

IV: LEGAL HOLINESS

CHAPTER 17.

Sacredness of Blood. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Speak to Aaron and his sons, as well as to all the Israelites, and tell them: This is what the Lord has commanded.3 *Any Israelite who slaughters an ox or a sheep or a goat, whether in the camp or outside of it, 4 without first bringing it to the entrance of the Meeting Tent to present it as an offering to the Lord in front of his Dwelling, shall be judged guilty of bloodshed; and for this, such a man shall be cut off from among his people. 5 Therefore, such sacrifices as they used to offer up in the open field the Israelites shall henceforth offer to the Lord, bringing them to the priest at the entrance of the Meeting Tent and sacrificing them there as peace offerings to the Lord. 6 The priest shall splash the blood on the altar of the Lord at the entrance of the Meeting Tent and there burn the fat for an odor pleasing to the Lord. 7 No longer shall they offer their sacrifices to the satyrs to whom they used to render their wanton worship.g This shall be an everlasting ordinance for them and their descendants.

8 "Tell them, therefore: Anyone, whether of the house of Israel or of the aliens residing among them, who offers a holocaust or sacrifice 9 without bringing it to the entrance of the Meeting Tent to offer it to the Lord, shall be cut off from his kinsmen. 10 And if anyone, whether of the house of Israel or of the aliens residing among them, partakes of any blood, I will set myself against that one who partakes of blood and will cut him off from among his people.h 11 i Since the life of a living body is in its blood, I have made you put it on the altar, so that atonement may thereby be made for your own lives,* because it is the blood, as the seat of life, that makes atonement. 12 That is why I have told the Israelites: No one among you, not even a resident alien, may partake of blood.

13 "Anyone hunting, whether of the Israelites or of the aliens residing among them, who catches an animal or a bird that may be eaten, shall pour out its blood and cover it with earth. 14 Since the life of every living body is its blood, I have told the Israelites: You shall not partake of the blood of any meat.j Since the life of every living body is its blood, anyone who partakes of it shall be cut off.

15 k "Everyone, whether a native or an alien, who eats of an animal that died of itself or was killed by a wild beast, shall wash his garments, bathe in water, and be unclean until evening, and then he will be clean. 16 If he does not wash or does not bathe his body, he shall have the guilt to bear."

CHAPTER 18.

The Sanctity of Sex. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: I, the Lord, am your God. 3 You shall not do as they do in the land of Egypt, where you once lived, nor shall you do as they do in the land of Cha-

16, 29: Mortify himself: literally, "afflict his soul"; traditionally understood by the Jews as signifying abstinence from all food. This is the only fast day prescribed in the Mosaic Law.

17, 3ff: The ancients considered blood the seat and sign of life, and therefore something sacred, even in animals. Cf Gn 9, 4f. Hence, even the ordinary butchering of an animal for meat was looked upon as having a sacrificial character, so that it should be performed at the sanctuary. This law, however, could not be carried out without great difficulty when the Israelites were scattered throughout Palestine, and so was modified in Dt 12, 20ff.

17, 11: That atonement may thereby be made for your own lives: hence, the sacrifice of an animal was a symbolic act which substituted the victim's life for the life of the offerer, who thus acknowledged that he deserved God's punishments for his sins. This idea of sacrifice is applied in Heb 9-10 to the death of Christ, inasmuch as "without the shedding of blood there is no forgiveness" (Heb 9, 22).

6 "None of you shall approach a close relative to have sexual intercourse with her. I am the Lord. 7 [m] You shall not disgrace your father by having intercourse with your mother. Besides, since she is your own mother, you shall not have intercourse with her. 8 You shall not have intercourse with your father's wife,[n] for that would be a disgrace to your father. 9 You shall not have intercourse with your sister, your father's daughter or your mother's daughter, whether she was born in your own household or born elsewhere. 10 You shall not have intercourse with your son's daughter or with your daughter's daughter, for that would be a disgrace to your own family. 11 You shall not have intercourse with the daughter whom your father's wife bore to him, since she, too, is your sister. 12 [o] You shall not have intercourse with your father's sister, since she is your father's relative. 13 You shall not have intercourse with your mother's sister, since she is your mother's relative. 14 You shall not disgrace your father's brother by being intimate with his wife,[p] since she, too, is your aunt. 15 You shall not have intercourse with your daughter-in-law; she is your son's wife, and therefore you shall not disgrace her. 16 You shall not have intercourse with your brother's wife, for that would be a disgrace to your brother.[q] 17 You shall not have intercourse with a woman and also with her daughter, nor shall you marry and have intercourse with her son's daughter or her daughter's daughter; this would be shameful, because they are related to her. 18 While your wife is still living you shall not marry her sister as her rival; for thus you would disgrace your first wife.

19 "You shall not approach a woman to have intercourse with her while she is unclean from menstruation. 20 You shall not have carnal relations with your neighbor's wife, defiling yourself with her. 21 [r] You shall not offer any of your offspring to be immolated to Moloch,* thus profaning the name of your God. I am the Lord. 22 You shall not lie with a male as with a woman; such a thing is an abomination.[s] 23 You shall not have carnal relations with an animal, defiling yourself with it; nor shall a woman set herself in front of an animal to mate with it; such things are abhorrent.[t]

24 "Do not defile yourselves by any of these things by which the nations whom I am driving out of your way have defiled themselves. 25 Because their land has become defiled, I am punishing it for its wickedness, by making it vomit out its inhabitants. 26 You, however, whether natives or resident aliens, must keep my statutes and decrees forbidding all such abominations 27 by which the previous inhabitants defiled the land; 28 otherwise the land will vomit you out also for having defiled it, just as it vomited out the nations before you. 29 Everyone who does any of these abominations shall be cut off from among his people. 30 Heed my charge, then, not to defile yourselves by observing the abominable customs that have been observed before you.[u] I, the Lord, am your God."

CHAPTER 19.

Various Rules of Conduct. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Speak to the whole Israelite community and tell them: Be holy, for I, the Lord, your God, am holy.[v] 3 Revere your mother and father,[w] and keep my Sabbaths. I, the Lord, am your God.

4 "Do not turn aside to idols, nor make molten gods for yourselves.[x] I, the Lord, am your God.

18, 6-18: These laws are formulated as directed to the male Israelites only, but naturally the same norms of consanguinity and affinity would apply to the women as well. Marriage, as well as casual intercourse, is here forbidden between men and women of the specified degrees of relationship.

18, 16: With your brother's wife: it was the violation of this law which aroused the wrath of John the Baptist against Herod Antipas. Cf Mk 6, 18. An exception to this law is made in Dt 25, 5.

18, 21: Immolated to Moloch: the reference is to the Chanaanite custom of sacrificing children to the god Moloch. The little victims were first slain and then cremated. Cf Ez 16, 20ff; 20, 26. 31; 23, 37.

day of your sacrifice or on the following day. Whatever is left over until the third day shall be burned up in the fire. 7 If any of it is eaten on the third day, the sacrifice will be unacceptable as refuse;[y] 8 whoever eats of it then shall pay the penalty for having profaned what is sacred to the Lord. Such a one shall be cut off from his people.

9 "When you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not be so thorough that you reap the field to its very edge, nor shall you glean the stray ears of grain.[z] 10 Likewise, you shall not pick your vineyard bare, nor gather up the grapes that have fallen. These things you shall leave for the poor and the alien. I, the Lord, am your God.

11 "You shall not steal. You shall not lie or speak falsely to one another.[a] 12 You shall not swear falsely by my name, thus profaning the name of your God.[b] I am the Lord.

13 "You shall not defraud or rob your neighbor. You shall not withhold overnight the wages of your day laborer.[c] 14 You shall not curse the deaf, or put a stumbling block in front of the blind, but you shall fear your God. I am the Lord.

15 "You shall not act dishonestly in rendering judgment. Show neither partiality to the weak nor deference to the mighty, but judge your fellow men justly.[d] 16 You shall not go about spreading slander among your kinsmen; nor shall you stand by idly when your neighbor's life is at stake. I am the Lord.

17 "You shall not bear hatred for your brother in your heart.[e] Though you may have to reprove your fellow man, do not incur sin because of him. 18 Take no revenge and cherish no grudge against your fellow countrymen. *You shall love your neighbor as yourself.[f] I am the Lord.

20 *"If a man has carnal relations with a female slave who has already been living with another man but has not yet been redeemed or given her freedom, they shall be punished but not put to death, because she is not free. 21 The man, moreover, shall bring to the entrance of the Meeting Tent a ram as his guilt offering to the Lord. 22 With this ram the priest shall make atonement before the Lord for the sin he has committed, and it will be forgiven him.

23 "When you come into the land and plant any fruit tree there, first look upon its fruit as if it were uncircumcised. For three years, while its fruit remains uncircumcised,* it may not be eaten. 24 In the fourth year, however, all of its fruit shall be sacred to the Lord as a thanksgiving feast to him. 25 Not until the fifth year may you eat its fruit. Thus it will continue its yield for you. I, the Lord, am your God.

26 "Do not eat meat with the blood still in it.[g] Do not practice divination or soothsaying. 27 *Do not clip your hair at the temples, nor trim the edges of your beard. 28 Do not lacerate your bodies for the dead, and do not tattoo yourselves.[h] I am the Lord.

29 "You shall not degrade your daughter by making a prostitute of her; else the land will become corrupt and full of lewdness. 30 Keep my Sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary.[i] I am the Lord.

31 "Do not go to mediums or consult fortunetellers, for you will be defiled by them.[j] I, the Lord, am your God.

32 "Stand up in the presence of the aged, and show respect for the old; thus shall you fear your God. I am the Lord.

33 "When an alien resides with you in your land, do not molest him.[k] 34 You shall treat the alien who resides with you no differently than the natives born among you; have the same love for him as for yourself; for you too were once aliens in the land of Egypt.[l] I, the Lord, am your God.

brought you out of the land of Egypt. 37

utes and decrees. I am the Lord."

CHAPTER 20.

Penalties for Various Sins. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Tell the Israelites: Anyone, whether an Israelite or an alien residing in Israel, who gives any of his offspring to Moloch shall be put to death.[n]
Let his fellow citizens stone him. 3 [o] I myself will turn against such a man and cut him off from the body of his people;
for in giving his offspring to Moloch, he has defiled my sanctuary and profaned
my holy name. 4 Even if his fellow citizens connive at such a man's crime of giving his offspring to Moloch, and fail to put him to death, 5 I myself will set my face against that man and his family and will cut off from their people both him
and all who join him in his wanton worship of Moloch. 6 Should anyone turn to mediums and fortune tellers and follow their wanton ways,[p] I will turn against such a one and cut him off from his people. 7 Sanctify yourselves, then, and be holy; for I, the Lord, your God, am holy.[q] 8 Be careful, therefore, to observe what I, the Lord, who make you holy,
have prescribed.

9 "Anyone who curses his father or mother shall be put to death;[r] since he has cursed his father or mother, he has forfeited his life. 10 If a man commits adultery with his neighbor's wife, both the adulterer and the adulteress shall be put to death.[s] 11 If a man disgraces his father[t] by lying with his father's wife, both the man and his stepmother shall be put to death; they have forfeited their lives. 13 If a man lies with his daughter-in-law,[u] both of them shall be put to death; since they have committed an abhorrent deed, they have forfeited their lives. 13 If a man lies with a male as with a woman,[v] both of them shall be put to death for their abominable deed; they have forfeited their lives. 14 If a man marries a woman and her mother also,[w] the man and the two women as well shall be burned to death for their shameful conduct, so that such shamefulness may not be found among you. 15 If a man has carnal relations with an animal, the man shall be put to death,[x] and the animal shall be slain. 16 If a woman goes up to any animal to mate with it,[y] the woman and the animal shall be slain; let them both be put to death; their lives are forfeit. 17 If a man consummates marriage with his sister or his half-sister,[z] they shall be publicly cut off from their people for this shameful deed; the man shall pay the penalty of having had intercourse with his own sister. 18 If a man lies in sexual intercourse with a woman during her menstrual period,[a] both of them shall be cut off from their people, because they have laid bare the flowing fountain of her blood. 19 You shall not have intercourse with your mother's sister or your father's sister;[b] whoever does so shall pay the penalty of incest. 20 If a man disgraces his uncle by having intercourse with his uncle's wife, the man and his aunt shall pay the penalty by dying childless. 21 If a man marries his brother's wife and thus disgraces his brother, they shall be childless because of this incest.

22 "Be careful to observe all my statutes and all my decrees; otherwise the land where I am bringing you to dwell will vomit you out. 23 Do not conform, therefore, to the customs of the nations[c] whom I am driving out of your way, because all these things that they have done have filled me with disgust for them. 24 But to you I have said: [d] Their land shall be your possession, a land flowing with milk and honey. I am giving it to you as your own, I, the Lord, your God, who have set you apart from the other nations. 25 [e] You, too, must set apart, then, the clean animals from the unclean, and the clean birds from the unclean, so that you may not be contaminated with the uncleanness
of any beast or bird or of any swarming creature in the land that I have set apart for you. 26 To me, therefore, you shall be sacred; for I, the Lord, am sacred,[f] I,
who have set you apart from the other nations to be my own.

27 *"A man or a woman who acts as a medium or fortuneteller[g] shall be put to death by stoning; they have no one but themselves to blame for their death."

CHAPTER 21.

Sanctity of the Priesthood. 1 The Lord said to Moses, "Speak to Aaron's sons, the priests, and tell them: None of you shall make himself unclean for any dead person* among his people,[h] 2 except for his nearest relatives, his mother or father, his son or daughter, his brother 3 or his maiden sister, who is of his own family while she remains unmarried; for these he may make himself unclean. 4 But for a sister who has married out of his family he shall not make himself unclean; this would be a profanation.

5 "The priests shall not make bare the crown of the head, nor shave the edges of the beard,[i] nor lacerate the body. 6 To their God they shall be sacred, and not profane his name; since they offer up the oblations of the Lord, the food of their God, they must be holy.

7 "A priest shall not marry a woman who has been a prostitute or has lost her honor, nor a woman who has been divorced by her husband; for the priest is sacred to his God.[j] 8 Honor him as sacred who offers up the food of your God; treat him as sacred, because I, the Lord, who have consecrated him, am sacred.

9 "A priest's daughter who loses her honor by committing fornication and thereby dishonors her father also, shall be burned to death.

10 "The most exalted of the priests, upon whose head the anointing oil has been poured and who has been ordained to wear the special vestments, shall not *bare his head[k] or rend his garments, 11 nor shall he go near any dead person. Not even for his father or mother may he thus become unclean 12 or leave the sanctuary;[l] otherwise he will profane the sanctuary of his God, for with the anointing oil upon him, he is dedicated to his God, to me, the Lord.

13 "The priest shall marry a virgin. 14 Not a widow or a woman who has been divorced or a woman who has lost her honor as a prostitute, but a virgin, taken from his own people, shall he marry; 15 otherwise he will have base offspring among his people. I, the Lord, have made him sacred."

Irregularities. 16 The Lord said to Moses, 17 "Speak to Aaron and tell him: None of your descendants, of whatever generation, who has any defect shall come forward to offer up the food of his God. 18 Therefore, he who has any of the following defects may not come forward: he who is blind, or lame, or who has any disfigurement or malformation, 19 or a crippled foot or hand, 20 or who is humpbacked or weakly or walleyed, or who is afflicted with eczema, ringworm or hernia. 21 No descendant of Aaron the priest who has any such defect may draw near to offer up the oblations of the Lord; on account of his defect he may not draw near to offer up the food of his God. 22 He may, however, partake of the food of his God: of what is most sacred as well as of what is sacred. 23 Only, he may not approach the veil nor go up to the altar on account of his defect; he shall not profane these things that are sacred to me, for it is I, the Lord, who make them sacred."

24 Moses, therefore, told this to Aaron and his sons and to all the Israelites.

CHAPTER 22.

Sacrificial Banquets. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Tell Aaron and his sons to respect the sacred offerings which the Israelites consecrate to me; else they will profane my holy name. I am the Lord.

3 "Tell them: If any one of you, or of your descendants in any future generation, dares, while he is in a state of uncleanness, to draw near the sacred offerings which the Israelites consecrate to the Lord, such a one shall be cut off from my presence. I am the Lord.

4 "No descendant of Aaron who is stricken with leprosy, or who suffers from a flow, may eat of these sacred offerings,

21, 1: Unclean for any dead person: by preparing the corpse for burial. Cf Nm 6, 6; 19, 11-19.

21, 5: Such mourning customs of the Chanaanites were forbidden to all the Israelites, but especially to the priests. Cf Lv 19, 27f.

21, 6: Sacred: the same Hebrew word has both the active meaning of "holy," that is, keeping oneself free from profane impurities, and the passive meaning of "sacred," that is, set apart from what is profane and therefore treated with religious reverence.

21, 10: Bare his head: see note on Lv 10, 6.

unless he again becomes clean.[m] Moreover, if anyone touches a person who has become unclean by contact with a corpse, or if anyone has an emission of seed, [5] or if anyone touches[n] any swarming creature or any man whose uncleanness, of whatever kind it may be, is contagious, [6] the one who touches such as these shall be unclean until evening and may not eat of the sacred portions until he has first bathed his body in water;[o] [7] then, when the sun sets, he again becomes clean. Only then may he eat of the sacred offerings, which are his food. [8] He shall not make himself unclean by eating of any animal that has died of itself or has been killed by wild beasts.[p] I am the Lord.

[9] "They shall keep my charge and not do wrong in this matter; else they will die for their profanation. I am the Lord who have consecrated them.

[10] "Neither a lay person nor a priest's tenant or hired servant may eat of any sacred offering.[q] [11] But a slave whom a priest acquires by purchase or who is born in his house may eat of his food. [12] A priest's daughter who is married to a layman may not eat of the sacred contributions. [13] But if a priest's daughter is widowed or divorced and, having no children, returns to her father's house, she may then eat of her father's food as in her youth. No layman, however, may eat of it. [14][r] If such a one eats of a sacred offering through inadvertence, he shall make restitution to the priest for the sacred offering, with an increment of one fifth of the amount. [15] The sacred offerings which the Israelites contribute to the Lord the priests shall not allow to be profaned[s] [16] nor in the eating of the sacred offering shall they bring down guilt that must be punished; it is I, the Lord, who make them sacred."

Unacceptable Victims. [17] The Lord said to Moses, [18] "Speak to Aaron and his sons and to all the Israelites, and tell them: When anyone of the house of Israel, or any alien residing in Israel, who wishes to offer a sacrifice, brings a holocaust as a votive offering or as a free-will offering to the Lord, [19] if it is to be acceptable, the ox or sheep or goat that he offers must be an unblemished male.[t] [20] You shall not offer one that has any defect, for such a one would not be acceptable for you.[u] [21] When anyone presents a peace offering[v] to the Lord from the herd or the flock in fulfillment of a vow, or as a free-will offering, if it is to find acceptance, it must be unblemished; it shall not have any defect. [22] One that is blind or crippled or maimed, or one that has a running sore or mange or ringworm, you shall not offer to the Lord; do not put such an animal on the altar as an oblation to the Lord. [23] An ox or a sheep that is in any way ill-proportioned or stunted you may indeed present as a free-will offering, but it will not be acceptable as a votive offering. [24] One that has his testicles bruised or crushed or torn out or cut off you shall not offer to the Lord. You shall neither do this in your own land [25] nor receive from a foreigner any such animals to offer up as the food of your God; since they are deformed or defective,[w] they will not be acceptable for you."

[26] The Lord said to Moses, [27] "When an ox or a lamb or a goat is born, it shall remain with its mother for seven days; only from the eighth day onward will it be acceptable, to be offered as an oblation to the Lord.[x] [28] You shall not slaughter an ox or a sheep on one and the same day with its young. [29] Whenever you offer a thanksgiving sacrifice to the Lord, so offer it that it may be acceptable for you; [30] it must, therefore, be eaten on the same day; none of it shall be left over until the next day.[y] I am the Lord.

[31] "Be careful to observe the commandments which I, the Lord, give you, [32] and do not profane my holy name; in the midst of the Israelites I, the Lord, must be held as sacred. It is I who made you sacred [33] and led you out of the land of Egypt, that I, the Lord, might be your God."

CHAPTER 23.

Holy Days. [1] The Lord said to Moses, [2] "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: The following are the festivals of the Lord, my feast days, which you shall celebrate with a sacred assembly.

[3] "For six days work may be done; but the seventh day is the sabbath rest, a day for sacred assembly, on which you shall do no work. The Sabbath shall belong to the Lord wherever you dwell.[z]

Passover. 4 "These, then, are the festivals of the Lord which you shall celebrate at their proper time with a sacred assembly.[a] 5 The Passover of the Lord falls on the fourteenth day of the first month, at the evening twilight.[b] 6 The fifteenth day of this month is the Lord's feast of Unleavened Bread. For seven days you shall eat unleavened bread.[c] 7 On the first of these days you shall hold a sacred assembly and do no sort of work.[d] 8 On each of the seven days you shall offer an oblation to the Lord. Then on the seventh day you shall again hold a sacred assembly and do no sort of work."

9 The Lord said to Moses, 10 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you come into the land which I am giving you, and reap your harvest, you shall bring a sheaf of the first fruits of your harvest to the priest, 11 who shall wave the sheaf before the Lord that it may be acceptable for you. On the day after the Sabbath* the priest shall do this. 12 On this day, when your sheaf is waved, you shall offer to the Lord for a holocaust an unblemished yearling lamb. 13 Its cereal offering shall be two tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil, as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord; and its libation shall be a fourth of a hin of wine. 14 Until this day, when you bring your God this offering, you shall not eat any bread* or roasted grain or fresh kernels. This shall be a perpetual statute for you and your descendants wherever you dwell.

Pentecost. 15 "Beginning with the day after the Sabbath, the day on which you bring the wave-offering sheaf, you shall count seven full weeks,[e] 16 and then on the day after the seventh week, *the fiftieth day,[f] you shall present the new cereal offering to the Lord. 17 For the wave offering of your first fruits to the Lord, you shall bring with you from wherever you live two loaves of bread made of two tenths of an epha of fine flour and baked with leaven. 18 Besides the bread, you shall offer to the Lord a holocaust of seven unblemished yearling lambs, one young bull, and two rams, along with their cereal offering and libations, as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 19 One male goat shall be sacrificed as a sin offering, and two yearling lambs as a peace offering.[g] 20 The priest shall wave the bread of the first fruits and the two lambs as a wave offering before the Lord; these shall be sacred to the Lord and belong to the priest. 21 On this same day you shall by proclamation have a sacred assembly, and no sort of work may be done. This shall be a perpetual statute for you and your descendants wherever you dwell.

22 "When you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not be so thorough that you reap the field to its very edge, nor shall you glean the stray ears of your grain. These things you shall leave for the poor and the alien. I, the Lord, am your God."

New Year's Day. 23 The Lord said to Moses, 24 "Tell the Israelites: On the first day of the seventh month you shall keep a sabbath rest, with a sacred assembly and with the trumpet blasts as a reminder; 25 you shall then do no sort of work, and you shall offer an oblation to the Lord.

The Day of Atonement. 26 [h] The Lord said to Moses, 27 "The tenth of this seventh month is the Day of Atonement,[i] when you shall hold a sacred assembly and mortify yourselves and offer an oblation to the Lord. 28 On this day you shall not do any work, because it is the Day of Atonement, when atonement is made for you before the Lord, your God. 29 Anyone who does not mortify himself on this day shall be cut off from his people; 30 and if anyone does any work on this day, I will remove him from the midst of his people. 31 This is a perpetual statute for you and your descendants wherever you dwell: you shall do no work, 32 but shall keep a sabbath of complete rest and mortify yourselves. Pentecost was the thanksgiving feast at the end of the grain harvest, which began at the Passover. Later tradition made it a commemoration of the giving of the Law at Sinai.

month, you shall keep this sabbath of yours from evening to evening.

The Feast of Booths. 33 The Lord said to Moses, 34 "Tell the Israelites: The fifteenth day of this seventh month i is the Lord's feast of Booths,* which shall continue for seven days. 35 On the first day there shall be a sacred assembly, and you shall do no sort of work. 36 For seven days you shall offer an oblation to the Lord, and on the eighth day you shall again hold a sacred assembly and offer an oblation to the Lord. On that solemn closing you shall do no sort of work.

37 "These, therefore, are the festivals of the Lord on which you shall proclaim a sacred assembly, and offer as an oblation to the Lord holocausts and cereal offerings, sacrifices and libations, as prescribed for each day, 38 in addition to those of the Lord's Sabbaths, your donations, your various votive offerings and the free-will offerings that you present to the Lord.

39 "On the fifteenth day, then, of the seventh month, when you have gathered in the produce of the land,k you shall celebrate a pilgrim feast of the Lord for a whole week. The first and the eighth day shall be days of complete rest. 40 On the first day you shall gather foliage* from majestic trees, branches of palms and boughs of myrtles and of valley poplars, and then for a week you shall make merry before the Lord, your God. 41 By perpetual statute for you and your descendants you shall keep this pilgrim feast of the Lord for one whole week l in the seventh month of the year. 42 During this week every native Israelite among you shall dwell in booths, 43 that your descendants m may realize that, when I led the Israelites out of the land of Egypt, I made them dwell in booths. I, the Lord, am your God."

44 Thus did Moses announce to the Israelites the festivals of the Lord.

CHAPTER 24.

The Sanctuary Light. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Order the Israelites to bring you clear oil of crushed olives for the light, so that you may keep lamps burning regularly.n 3 In the Meeting Tent, outside the veil that hangs in front of the Commandments, Aaron shall set up the lamps to burn before the Lord regularly, from evening till morning. Thus, by a perpetual statute for you and your descendants, 4 the lamps shall be set up on the pure gold lampstand,o to burn regularly before the Lord.

The Showbread. 5 "You shall take fine flour and bake it p into twelve cakes, using two tenths of an epha of flour for each cake. 6 These you shall place in two piles, six in each pile, on the pure gold table before the Lord. 7 On each pile put some pure frankincense, which shall serve as an oblation to the Lord, a token offering for the bread. 8 Regularly on each Sabbath day this bread shall be set out afresh q before the Lord, offered on the part of the Israelites by an everlasting agreement. 9 It shall belong to Aaron and his sons, who must eat it in a sacred place, since, as something most sacred among the various oblations to the Lord, it is his by perpetual right."

Punishment of Blasphemy. 10 Among the Israelites there was a man born of an Israelite mother (Salomith, daughter of Dabri, of the tribe of Dan) and an Egyptian father. 11 This man quarreled publicly with another Israelite and cursed and blasphemed the Lord's name. So the people brought him to Moses, 12 who kept him in custody till a decision from the Lord should settle the case for them. 13 The Lord then said to Moses, 14 "Take the blasphemer outside the camp, and when all who heard him have laid their hands on his head, let the whole community stone him. 15 Tell the Israelites: Anyone who curses his God shall bear the penalty of his sin; 16 whoever blasphemes the name of the Lord shall be put to death.r The whole community shall stone

During the seven days of the feast the Israelites camped in booths of branches erected on the roofs of their houses or in the streets in commemoration of their wanderings in the desert, whereby they dwelt in booths.

23, 40: Foliage: literally, "fruit," but here probably used in the general sense of "produce, growth." These branches were used for constructing the "booths" or huts in which the people lived during the feast. Cf Neh 8, 15. However, from about the time of Christ on, the Jews have understood this of "fruit" in the strict sense; hence, branches of lemons and oranges were carried with the other branches in joyous procession.

him; alien and native alike must be put to death for blaspheming the Lord's name.

17 "Whoever takes the life of any human being shall be put to death;[s] 18 whoever takes the life of an animal shall make restitution of another animal. A life for a life![t] 19 Anyone who inflicts an injury on his neighbor shall receive the same in return. 20 Limb for limb, eye for eye, tooth for tooth! The same injury that a man gives another shall be inflicted on him in return.[u] 21 Whoever slays an animal shall make restitution, but whoever slays a man shall be put to death. 22 You shall have but one rule, for alien and native alike.[v] I, the Lord, am your God."

23 When Moses told this to the Israelites, they took the blasphemer outside the camp and stoned him;[w] they carried out the command that the Lord had given Moses.

CHAPTER 25.

The Sabbatical Year. 1 The Lord said to Moses on Mount Sinai, 2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you enter the land that I am giving you, let the land, too, keep a sabbath for the Lord. 3 For six years you may sow your field, and for six years prune your vineyard, gathering in their produce.[x] 4 But during the seventh year the land shall have a complete rest, a sabbath for the Lord,[y] when you may neither sow your field nor prune your vineyard. 5 *The aftergrowth of your harvest you shall not reap, nor shall you pick the grapes of your untrimmed vines in this year of sabbath rest for the land. 6 While the land has its sabbath, all its produce will be food equally for you yourself and for your male and female slaves, for your hired help and the tenants who live with you, 7 and likewise for your livestock and for the wild animals on your land.

The Jubilee Year. 8 "Seven weeks of years shall you count—seven times seven years—so that the seven cycles amount to forty-nine years. 9 Then, on the tenth day of the seventh month let the trumpet resound; on this, the Day of Atonement, the trumpet blast shall re-echo throughout your land. 10 This fiftieth year* you shall make sacred by proclaiming liberty in the land for all its inhabitants.[z] It shall be a jubilee for you, when every one of you shall return to his own property, every one to his own family estate. 11 In this fiftieth year, your year of jubilee, you shall not sow, nor shall you reap the aftergrowth or pick the grapes from the untrimmed vines. 12 Since this is the jubilee, which shall be sacred for you, you may not eat of its produce, except as taken directly from the field.

13 "In this year of jubilee, then, every one of you shall return to his own property. 14 Therefore, when you sell any land to your neighbor or buy any from him, do not deal unfairly. 15 On the basis of the number of years since the last jubilee shall you purchase the land from him;[a] and so also, on the basis of the number of years for crops, shall he sell it to you. 16 When the years are many, the price shall be so much the more; when the years are few, the price shall be so much the less. For it is really the number of crops that he sells you. 17 Do not deal unfairly, then; but stand in fear of your God. I, the Lord, am your God.

18 "Observe my precepts and be careful to keep my regulations, for then you will dwell securely in the land. 19 The land will yield its fruit and you will have food in abundance, so that you may live there without worry.[b] 20 Therefore, do not say, 'What shall we eat in the seventh year, if we do not then sow or reap our crop?'[c] 21 I will bestow such blessings on you in the sixth year that there will then be crop enough for three years. 22 When you sow in the eighth year, you will continue to eat from the old crop; and even into the ninth year, when the crop comes in, you will still have the old to eat from.[d]

Redemption of Property. 23[e] "The land shall not be sold in perpetuity; for the land is mine, and you are but aliens who have become my tenants. 24 Therefore, in every part of the country that you oc-

25, 10: Fiftieth year: to arrive at this number, both the first and the last year of the series are counted, and therefore this is more exactly the forty-ninth year, the seventh Sabbatical year. Liberty: Israelite slaves were set free (v 50) and landed property was returned to its original owner (v 13): two important laws for preserving the social and economic equilibrium. Jubilee: derived from the Hebrew word yobel, "ram's horn," which was blown on this occasion.

cupy, you must permit the land to be redeemed. 25 When one of your countrymen is reduced to poverty and has to sell some of his property, his closest relative, who has the right to redeem it, may go and buy back what his kinsman has sold.[f] 26 If, however, the man has no relative to redeem his land, but later on acquires sufficient means to buy it back in his own name, 27 he shall make a deduction from the price in proportion to the number of years since the sale, and then pay back the balance to the one to whom he sold it, so that he may thus regain his own property. 28 But if he does not acquire sufficient means to buy back his land, what he has sold shall remain in the possession of the purchaser until the jubilee, when it must be released and returned to its original owner.[g]

29 "When someone sells a dwelling in a walled town, he has the right to buy it back during the time of one full year from its sale. 30 But if such a house in a walled town has not been redeemed at the end of a full year, it shall belong in perpetuity to the purchaser and his descendants; nor shall it be released in the jubilee. 31 However, houses in villages that are not encircled by walls shall be considered as belonging to the surrounding farm land; they may be redeemed at any time, and in the jubilee they must be released.

32 "In Levitical cities the Levites shall always have the right to redeem the town houses that are their property. 33 Any town house of the Levites in their cities that had been sold and not redeemed, shall be released in the jubilee; for the town houses of the Levites are their hereditary property in the midst of the Israelites. 34 Moreover, the pasture land belonging to their cities shall not be sold at all;[h] it must always remain their hereditary property.

35 "When one of your fellow countrymen is reduced to poverty and is unable to hold out beside you, extend to him the privileges of an alien or a tenant, so that he can continue to live with you.[i] 36 Do not exact interest from your countryman either in money or in kind,[j] but out of fear of God let him live with you. 37 You are to lend him neither money at interest nor food at a profit. 38 I, the Lord, am your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to give you the land of Chanaan and to be your God.

39 "When, then, your countryman becomes so impoverished beside you that he sells you his services, do not make him work as a slave.[k] 40 Rather, let him be like a hired servant or like your tenant, working with you until the jubilee year, 41 when he, together with his children, shall be released from your service and return to his kindred and to the property of his ancestors. 42 Since those whom I brought out of the land of Egypt are servants of mine, they shall not be sold as slaves to any man. 43 Do not lord it over them harshly, but stand in fear of your God.

44 "Slaves, male and female, you may indeed possess, provided you buy them from among the neighboring nations. 45 You may also buy them from among the aliens who reside with you and from their children who are born and reared in your land. Such slaves you may own as chattels, 46 and leave to your sons as their hereditary property, making them perpetual slaves. But you shall not lord it harshly over any of the Israelites, your kinsmen.[l]

47 "When one of your countrymen is reduced to such poverty that he sells himself to a wealthy alien who has a permanent or a temporary residence among you, or to one of the descendants of an immigrant family, 48 even after he has thus sold his services he still has the right of redemption; he may be redeemed by one of his own brothers, 49 or by his uncle or cousin, or by some other relative or fellow clansman; or, if he acquires the means, he may redeem himself. 50 With his purchaser he shall compute the years from the sale to the jubilee, distributing the sale price over these years as though he had been hired as a day laborer. 51 The more such years there are, the more of the sale price he shall pay back as ransom; 52 the fewer years there are left before the jubilee year, the more he has to his credit; in proportion to his years of service shall he pay his ransom. 53 The alien shall treat him as a servant hired on an annual basis, and he shall not lord it over him harshly under your very eyes. 54 If he is not thus redeemed, he shall nevertheless be released, together with his children, in the jubilee year.[m] 55 For to me the Israelites belong as servants; they are servants of mine, because I brought them out of the land of Egypt, I, the Lord, your God.

CHAPTER 26.

The Reward of Obedience. 1 "Do not make false gods for yourselves. You shall not erect an idol or a sacred pillar for yourselves, nor shall you set up a stone figure for worship in your land;[n] for I, the Lord, am your God. 2 Keep my Sabbaths,[o] and reverence my sanctuary. I am the Lord.

3 *"If you live in accordance with my precepts and are careful to observe my commandments, 4 I will give you rain in due season, so that the land will bear its crops, and the trees their fruit;[p] 5 your threshing will last till vintage time, and your vintage till the time for sowing, and you will have food to eat in abundance, so that you may dwell securely in your land. 6 I will establish peace in the land, that you may lie down to rest without anxiety. I will rid the country of ravenous beasts, and keep the sword of war from sweeping across your land. 7 You will rout your enemies and lay them low with your sword. 8 Five of you will put a hundred of your foes to flight, and a hundred of you will chase ten thousand of them, till they are cut down by your sword. 9 I will look with favor upon you, and make you fruitful and numerous, as I carry out my covenant with you. 10 So much of the old crops will you have stored up for food that you will have to discard them to make room for the new.[q] 11 I will set my Dwelling among you, and will not disdain you. Ever present in your midst,[r] 12 I will be your God, and you will be my people; 13 for it is I, the Lord, your God, who brought you out of the land of the Egyptians and freed you from their slavery, breaking the yoke they had laid upon you and letting you walk erect.

Punishment of Disobedience. 14 "But if you do not heed me and do not keep all these commandments, 15 if you reject my precepts and spurn my decrees, refusing to obey all my commandments and breaking my covenant, 16 then I, in turn, will give you your deserts. I will punish you with terrible woes—with wasting and fever to dim the eyes and sap the life. You will sow your seed in vain, for your enemies will consume the crop. 17 I will turn against you, till you are beaten down before your enemies and lorded over by your foes. You will take to flight though no one pursues you.[s]

18 "If even after this you do not obey me, I will increase the chastisement for your sins sevenfold, 19 to break your haughty confidence. I will make the sky above you as hard as iron, and your soil as hard as bronze, 20 so that your strength will be spent in vain; your land will bear no crops, and its trees no fruit.

21 "If then you become defiant in your unwillingness to obey me, I will multiply my blows another sevenfold, as your sins deserve. 22 I will unleash the wild beasts against you, to rob you of your children and wipe out your livestock, till your population dwindles away and your roads become deserted.

23 "If, with all this, you still refuse to be chastened by me and continue to defy me, 24 I, too, will defy you and will smite you for your sins seven times harder than before.[t] 25 I will make the sword, the avenger of my covenant, sweep over you. Though you then huddle together in your walled cities, I will send in pestilence among you, till you are forced to surrender to the enemy. 26 And as I cut off your supply of bread, ten women will need but one oven for baking all the bread they dole out to you in rations[u]—not enough food to still your hunger.

27 "If, despite all this, you still persist in disobeying and defying me, 28 I, also, will meet you with fiery defiance and will chastise you with sevenfold fiercer punishment for your sins, 29[v] till you begin to eat the flesh of your own sons and daughters.* 30 I will demolish your high places,[w] overthrow your incense stands, and cast your corpses on those of your idols. In my abhorrence of you, 31 I will lay waste your cities and devastate your sanctuaries, refusing to accept your sweet-smelling offerings. 32 So devastated will I leave the land that your very enemies who come to live there will stand aghast at the sight of it.[x] 33 You yourselves I will scatter among the nations[y] at the point of my drawn sword, leaving your countryside desolate and your cities deserted. 34 Then shall the land retrieve its lost sabbaths during all the time it lies waste, while you are in the land of your enemies; then shall the land have rest and make up for its sabbaths[z] 35 during all the time that it lies desolate, enjoying the rest that you would not let it have on the sabbaths when you lived there.

36 "Those of you who survive in the lands of their enemies I will make so fainthearted that, if leaves rustle behind them, they will flee headlong, as if from the sword, though no one pursues them; 37 stumbling over one another as if to escape a weapon, while no one is after them—so helpless will you be to take a stand against your foes! 38 You will be lost among the Gentiles, swallowed up in your enemies' country. 39 Those of you who survive in the lands of their enemies will waste away for their own and their fathers' guilt.[a]

40 "Thus they will have to confess that they and their fathers were guilty of having rebelled against me and of having defied me, 41 so that I, too, had to defy them and bring them into their enemies' land. Then, when their uncircumcised hearts are humbled and they make amends for their guilt, 42 I will remember my covenant with Jacob, my covenant with Isaac, and my covenant with Abraham;[b] and of the land, too, I will be mindful. 43 But the land must first be rid of them, that in its desolation it may make up its lost sabbaths, and that they, too, may make good the debt of their guilt for having spurned my precepts and abhorred my statutes. 44 Yet even so, even while they are in their enemies' land, I will not reject or spurn them, lest, by wiping them out, I make void my covenant with them; for I, the Lord, am their God. 45 I will remember them because of the covenant I made with their forefathers, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt under the very eyes of the Gentiles,[c] that I, the Lord, might be their God."

46 *These are the precepts, decrees and laws which the Lord had Moses promulgate on Mount Sinai in the pact between himself and the Israelites.

V: REDEMPTION OF OFFERINGS

CHAPTER 27.

Redemption of Votive Offerings. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When anyone fulfills a vow of offering one or more persons to the Lord, who are to be ransomed at a fixed sum of money, 3 for persons between the ages of twenty and sixty, the fixed sum, in sanctuary shekels, shall be fifty silver shekels for a man, 4 and thirty shekels for a woman; 5 for persons between the ages of five and twenty, the fixed sum shall be twenty shekels for a youth, and ten for a maiden; 6 for persons between the ages of one month and five years, the fixed sum shall be five silver shekels for a boy, and three for a girl; for persons of sixty or more, 7 the fixed sum shall be fifteen shekels for a man, and ten for a woman. 8 However, if the one who took the vow is too poor to meet the fixed sum, the person must be set before the priest, who shall determine the sum for his ransom in keeping with the means of the one who made the vow.

9 "If the offering vowed to the Lord is an animal that may be sacrificed, every such animal, when vowed to the Lord, becomes sacred. 10 The offerer shall not present a substitute for it by exchanging either a better for a worse one or a worse for a better one. If he attempts to offer one animal in place of another, both the original and its substitute shall be treated as sacred. 11 If the animal vowed to the Lord is unclean and therefore unfit for sacrifice, it must be set before the priest, 12 who shall determine its value* in keeping with its good or bad qualities, and the value set by the priest shall stand. 13 If

27, 12: Determine its value: fix the price at which the animal may be sold to someone else. Only the original owner must pay the twenty percent tax, as a penalty for buying back what he had vowed to God. So also for houses and fields that are vowed to the Lord, as treated of in the following verses. The money from the sale or from the redemption of such vowed property naturally goes to the sanctuary.

the offerer wishes to redeem the animal, he shall pay one fifth more than this valuation.[d]

14 "When someone dedicates his house as sacred to the Lord, the priest shall determine its value in keeping with its good or bad points, and the value set by the priest shall stand. 15 If the one who dedicated his house wishes to redeem it, he shall pay one fifth more than the price thus established, and then it will again be his.

16 "If the object which someone dedicates to the Lord is a piece of his hereditary land, its valuation shall be made according to the amount of seed required to sow it, the acreage sown with a homor of barley seed being valued at fifty silver shekels. 17 If the dedication of a field is made at the beginning of a jubilee period, the full valuation shall hold; 18 but if it is some time after this, the priest shall estimate its money value according to the number of years left until the next jubilee year, with a corresponding rebate on the valuation.[e] 19 If the one who dedicated his field wishes to redeem it, he shall pay one fifth more than the price thus established, and so reclaim it. 20 If, instead of redeeming such a field, he sells it to someone else, it may no longer be redeemed; 21 but at the jubilee it shall be released as sacred to the Lord; like a field that is doomed, it shall become priestly property.

22 "If the field that some man dedicates to the Lord is one he had purchased and not a part of his hereditary property, 23 the priest shall compute its value in proportion to the number of years until the next jubilee, and on the same day the price thus established shall be given as sacred to the Lord; 24 at the jubilee,[f] however, the field shall revert to the hereditary owner of this land from whom it had been purchased.

25 "Every valuation shall be made according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel. There are twenty geras to the shekel.

Offerings Not To Be Redeemed. 26 "Note that a first-born animal,[g] which as such already belongs to the Lord, may not be dedicated by vow to him. If it is an ox or a sheep, it shall be ceded to the Lord; but if it is an unclean animal,* 27 it may be redeemed by paying one fifth more than its fixed value. If it is not redeemed, it shall be sold at its fixed value.

28 "Note, also, that any one of his possessions which a man vows as doomed to the Lord, whether it is a human being or an animal or a hereditary field, shall be neither sold nor ransomed; everything that is thus doomed becomes most sacred to the Lord.[h] 29 All human beings that are doomed* lose the right to be redeemed; they must be put to death.

30 "All tithes of the land, whether in grain from the fields or in fruit from the trees, belong to the Lord, as sacred to him.[i] 31 If someone wishes to buy back any of his tithes, he shall pay one fifth more than their value. 32 The tithes of the herd and the flock shall be determined by ceding to the Lord as sacred every tenth animal as they are counted by the herdsman's rod. 33 It shall not matter whether good ones or bad ones are thus chosen, and no exchange may be made. If any exchange is attempted, both the original animal and its substitute shall be treated as sacred, without the right of being bought back."

34 These are the commandments which the Lord gave Moses on Mount Sinai for the Israelites.

27, 26: An unclean animal: such as the first-born of an ass, which was unfit for sacrifice. According to Ex 13, 13; 34, 20, a first-born ass was to be redeemed by offering a sheep in its stead, or was to have its neck broken. The present law is probably a later modification of the earlier one.

27, 29: All human beings that are doomed: according to some interpreters, this signifies the idolatrous Chanaanites, who were doomed to destruction by divine authority; according to others, this drastic law was enacted for the purpose of discouraging private persons from rashly vowing their slaves or other dependents as offerings to God. Cf Ex 22, 19; Dt 13, 13-19.

THE BOOK OF NUMBERS

The Book of Numbers derives its name from the account of the two censuses of the Hebrew people taken, one near the beginning and the other toward the end of the journey in the desert (chapters 1 and 26). It continues the story of that journey, begun in Exodus, and describes briefly the experiences of the Israelites for a period of thirty-eight years, from the end of their encampment at Sinai to their arrival at the border of the Promised Land. Numerous legal ordinances are interspersed in the account, making the book a combination of law and history.

The various events described clearly indicate the action of God, who punishes the murmuring of the people by prolonging their stay in the desert, at the same time preparing them by this discipline to be His witnesses among the nations.

In the New Testament Christ and the Apostles derive useful lessons from such events in the Book of Numbers as the brazen serpent (Jn 3, 14f), the seditoin of Core and its consequences (1 Cor 10, 10), the prophecies of Balaam (2 Pt 2, 15f), and the water gushing from the rock (1 Cor 10, 4).

The chief divisions of the Book of Numbers are as follows: I. Preparation for the Departure from Sinai (Nm 1, 1–10, 10). II. From Sinai to the Plains of Moab (Nm 10, 11–22, 1). III. On the Plains of Moab (Nm 22, 2–36, 13).

I: PREPARATION FOR THE DEPARTURE FROM SINAI

CHAPTER 1.

The Census. 1 In the year following that of the Israelites' departure from the land of Egypt, on the first day of the second month, the Lord said to Moses in the Meeting Tent in the desert of Sinai: 2 *"Take a census of the whole community of the Israelites,[a] by clans and ancestral houses, registering each male individually. 3 You and Aaron shall enroll in companies all the men in Israel of twenty years or more who are fit for military service.

Moses' Assistants. 4 "To assist you there shall be a man from each tribe, the head of his ancestral house. 5 [b] These are the names of those who are to assist you: from Ruben: Elisur, son of Sedeur; 6 from Simeon: Salamiel, son of Surisaddai; 7 from Juda: Nahasson, son of Amminadab; 8 from Issachar: Nathanael, son of Suar; 9 from Zabulon: Eliab, son of Helon; 10 from Ephraim: Elisama, son of Ammiud, and from Manasse: Gamaliel, son of Phadasur, for the descendants of Joseph; 11 from Benjamin: Abidan, son of Gedeoni; 12 from Dan: Ahiezer, son of Ammisaddai; 13 from Aser: Phagiel, son of Ochran; 14 from Gad: Eliasaph, son of Raguel; 15 from Nepththali: Ahira, son of Enan."

16 [c] These were councilors of the community, princes of their ancestral tribes, chiefs of the troops* of Israel. 17 So Moses and Aaron took these men who had been designated, 18 and assembled the whole community on the first day of the second month. Every man of twenty years or more then declared his name and lineage according to clan and ancestral house, 19 as the Lord had commanded Moses.

Count of the Twelve Tribes. This is their census as taken in the desert of Sinai. 20 Of the descendants of Ruben, the firstborn of Israel, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, 21 forty-six thousand five hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Ruben.

22 Of the descendants of Simeon, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, 23 fifty-nine thousand three hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Simeon.

24 Of the descendants of Gad, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [25] forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty were enrolled in the tribe of Gad.

Of the descendants of Ephraim, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [33] forty thousand five hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Ephraim.

[34] Of the descandants of Manasse, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [35] thirty-two thousand two hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Manasse.

[36] Of the descendants of Benjamin, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [37] thirty-five thousand four hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Benjamin.

[38] Of the descendants of Dan, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [39] sixty-two thousand seven hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Dan.

[40] Of the descendants of Aser, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [41] forty-one thousand five hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Aser.

[42] Of the descendants of Nephthali, registered by lineage in clans and ancestral houses: when all the males of twenty years or more who were fit for military service were polled, [43] fifty-three thousand four hundred were enrolled in the tribe of Nephthali.

[44] It was these who were registered, each according to his ancestral house, in the census taken by Moses and Aaron and the twelve princes of Israel. [45] The total number of the Israelites of twenty years or more who were fit for military service, registered by ancestral houses, [46] was six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty.

Levites Omitted in the Census. [47] The Levites, however, were not registered[d] by ancestral tribe with the others.* [48] For the Lord had told Moses, [49] "The tribe of Levi alone you shall not enroll nor include in the census along with the other Israelites. [50] You are to give the Levites charge of the Dwelling of the Commandments with all its equipment and all that belongs to it. It is they who shall carry the Dwelling with all its equipment and who shall be its ministers.[e] They shall therefore camp around the Dwelling. [51] When the Dwelling is to move on, the Levites shall take it down; when the Dwelling is to be pitched, it is the Levites who shall set it up.[f] Any layman who comes near it shall be put to death. [52] While the other Israelites shall camp by companies, each in his own division of the camp,[g] [53] the Levites shall camp around the Dwelling of the Commandments.[h] Otherwise God's wrath will strike the Israelite community. The Levites, then, shall have charge of the Dwelling of the Commandments." [54] All this the Israelites fulfilled as the Lord had commanded Moses.

Arrangement of the Tribes. [1] The Lord said to Moses and Aaron, [2] "The Israelites shall camp, each in his own division, under the ensigns of their ancestral houses.[i] They shall camp around the Meeting Tent, but at some distance from it.

3 *"Encamped on the east side, toward the sunrise, shall be the divisional camp of Juda, arranged in companies. [The prince of the Judaites was Nahasson, son of Amminadab, 4 and his soldiers amounted in the census to seventy-four thousand six hundred.] 5 With Juda shall camp the tribe of Issachar [Their prince was Nathanael, son of Suar, 6 and his soldiers amounted in the census to fifty-four thousand four hundred.] 7 and the tribe of Zabulon. [Their prince was Eliab, son of Helon, 8 and his soldiers amounted in the census to fifty-seven thousand four hundred. 9 The total number of those registered by companies in the camp of Juda was one hundred and eighty-six thousand four hundred.] These shall be first on the march.

10 "On the south side shall be the divisional camp of Ruben, arranged in companies. [Their prince was Elisur, son of Sedeor, 11 and his soldiers amounted in the census to forty-six thousand five hundred.] 12 Beside them shall camp the tribe of Simeon [Their prince was Salamiel, son of Surisaddai, 13 and his soldiers amounted in the census to fifty-nine thousand three hundred.] 14 and next the tribe of Gad. [Their prince was Eliasaph, son of Raguel, 15 and his soldiers amounted in the census to forty-five thousand six hundred and fifty. 16 The total number of those registered by companies in the camp of Ruben was one hundred and fifty-one thousand four hundred and fifty.] These shall be second on the march.

17 "Then the Meeting Tent and the camp of the Levites shall set out in the middle of the line. As in camp, so also on the march, every man shall be in his proper place, with his own division.

18 "On the west side shall be the divisional camp of Ephraim, arranged in companies. [Their prince was Elisama, son of Ammiud, 19 and his soldiers amounted in the census to forty thousand five hundred.] 20 Beside them shall camp the tribe of Manasse [Their prince was Gamaliel, son of Phadasur, 21 and his soldiers amounted in the census to thirty-two thousand two hundred.] 22 and the tribe of Benjamin. [Their prince was Abidan, son of Gedeoni, 23 and his soldiers amounted in the census to thirty-five thousand four hundred. 24 The total number of those registered by companies in the camp of Ephraim was one hundred and eight thousand one hundred.] These shall be third on the march.

25 "On the north side shall be the divisional camp of Dan, arranged in companies. [Their prince was Ahiezer, son of Ammisaddai, 26 and his soldiers amounted in the census to sixty-two thousand seven hundred.] 27 Beside them shall camp the tribe of Aser [Their prince was Phagiel, son of Ochran, 28 and his soldiers amounted in the census to forty-one thousand five hundred.] 29 and next the tribe of Nephthali. [Their prince was Ahira, son of Enan, 30 and his soldiers amounted in the census to fifty-three thousand four hundred. 31 The total number of those registered by companies in the camp of Dan was one hundred and fifty-seven thousand six hundred.] These shall be the last of the divisions on the march."

32 i This was the census of the Israelites taken by ancestral houses. The total number of those registered by companies in the camps was six hundred and three thousand five hundred and fifty. 33 The Levites, however, were not registered with the other Israelites, for so the Lord had commanded Moses. 34 The Israelites did just as the Lord had commanded Moses; both in camp and on the march they were in their own divisions, every man according to his clan and his ancestral house.

CHAPTER 3.

The Sons of Aaron. 1 The following were the descendants of Aaron and Moses at the time that the Lord spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai. 2 The sons of Aaron were Nadab his first-born, Abiu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.[k] 3 These are the names of the sons of Aaron, the anointed priests who were ordained to exercise the priesthood. 4 But when Nadab and Abiu offered profane fire before the Lord in the desert of Sinai, they met death[l] in the presence of the Lord, and left no sons. Thereafter only Eleazar and Ithamar performed the priestly functions under the direction of their father Aaron.

Levites in Place of the First-born. 5 Now the Lord said to Moses: 6 "Summon the tribe of Levi and present them to Aaron the priest, as his assistants.[m] 7 They shall discharge his obligations and those of the whole community before the Meeting Tent[n] by serving at the Dwelling. 8 They shall have custody of all the furnishings of the Meeting Tent and discharge the duties of the Israelites in the service of the Dwelling. 9 You shall give the Levites to Aaron and his sons;[o] they have been set aside from among the Israelites as dedicated to me. 10 But only Aaron and his descendants shall you appoint to have charge of the priestly functions.[p] Any layman who comes near shall be put to death."

11 The Lord said to Moses, 12 "It is I who have chosen the Levites from the Israelites in place of every first-born that opens the womb among the Israelites.[q] The Levites, therefore, are mine, 13 because every first-born is mine. When I slew all the first-born in the land of Egypt, I made all the first-born in Israel sacred to me, both of man and of beast. They belong to me; I am the Lord."

Census of the Levites. 14 The Lord said to Moses in the desert of Sinai, 15 "Take a census of the Levites by ancestral houses and clans, registering every male of a month or more."[r] 16 Moses, therefore, took their census in accordance with the command the Lord had given him.

17[s] The sons of Levi were named Gerson, Caath and Merari. 18 The descendants of Gerson, by clans, were named Lebni and Semei. 19 The descendants of Caath, by clans, were Amram, Isaar, Hebron and Oziel. 20 The descendants of Merari, by clans, were Moholi and Musi. These were the clans of the Levites by ancestral houses.

Duties of the Levitical Clans. 21 To Gerson belonged the clan of the Lebnites and the clan of the Semeites; these were the clans of the Gersonites. 22 When all their males of a month or more were registered, they numbered seven thousand five hundred. 23 The clans of the Gersonites camped behind the Dwelling, to the west. 24 The prince of their ancestral house was Eliasaph, son of Lael. 25[t] At the Meeting Tent they had charge of whatever pertained to the Dwelling,* the tent and its covering, the curtain at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, 26 the hangings of the court, the curtain at the entrance of the court enclosing both the Dwelling and the altar, and the ropes.

27 To Caath belonged the clans of the Amramites, the Isaarites, the Hebronites, and the Ozielites; these were the clans of the Caathites. 28 When all their males of a month or more were registered, they numbered eight thousand three hundred. They had charge of the sanctuary. 29 The clans of the Caathites camped at the south side of the Dwelling. 30 The prince of their ancestral house was Elisaphan, son of Oziel. 31 They had charge of whatever pertained to the ark, the table, the lampstand, the altars, the utensils with which the ministry of the sanctuary was exercised, and the veil.* 32 The chief prince of the Levites, however, was Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest; he was supervisor over those who had charge of the sanctuary.

33 To Merari belonged the clans of the Moholites and the Musites; these were the clans of Merari. 34 When all their males of a month or more were registered, they numbered six thousand two hundred. 35 The prince of the ancestral house of the clans of Merari was Suriel, son of Abihajil. They camped at the north side of the Dwelling. 36 *The Merarites were charged with the care of whatever pertained to the boards of the Dwelling, its bars, columns, pedestals, and all its fittings, 37 as well as the columns of the surrounding court with their pedestals, pegs and ropes.

38 East of the Dwelling, that is, in front of the Meeting Tent, toward the sunrise, were camped Moses and Aaron and the latter's sons. They discharged the obliga-

39 The total number of male Levites a month old or more whom Moses had registered by clans in keeping with the Lord's command, was twenty-two thousand.

Census and Ransom of First-born. 40 The Lord then said to Moses, "Take a census of all the first-born males of the Israelites a month old or more, and compute their total number. 41 Then assign the Levites to me, the Lord, in place of all the first-born of the Israelites, as well as their cattle in place of all the first-born among the cattle of the Israelites." 42 So Moses took a census of all the first-born of the Israelites, as the Lord had commanded him. 43 When all the first-born males of a month or more were registered, they numbered twenty-two thousand two hundred and seventy-three.

44 The Lord said to Moses: 45 "Take the Levites in place of all the first-born of the Israelites, and the Levites' cattle in place of their cattle, that the Levites may belong to me. I am the Lord. 46 As ransom for the two hundred and seventy-three first-born of the Israelites who outnumber the Levites, 47 you shall take five shekels for each individual, according to the standard of the sanctuary shekel, twenty geras to the shekel.[u] 48 Give this silver to Aaron and his sons as ransom for the extra number." 49 So Moses took the silver as ransom from those who were left when the rest had been redeemed by the Levites. 50 From the first-born of the Israelites he received in silver one thousand three hundred and sixty-five shekels according to the sanctuary standard. 51 He then gave this ransom silver to Aaron and his sons, as the Lord had commanded him.

CHAPTER 4.

Duties Further Defined. 1 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron: 2 "Among the Levites take a total of the Caathites, by clans and ancestral houses, all the men of the Caathites 3 between thirty* and fifty years of age; these are to undertake obligatory tasks in the Meeting Tent.[v]

4 "The service of the Caathites in the Meeting Tent concerns the most sacred objects. 5 In breaking camp, Aaron and his sons shall go in and take down the screening curtain* and cover the Ark of the Commandments with it. 6 Over these they shall put a cover of thahas skin, and on top of this spread an all-violet cloth. They shall then put the poles in place. 7 On the table of the Presence they shall spread a violet cloth and put on it the plates and cups, as well as the bowls and pitchers for libations; the established bread offering shall remain on the table. 8 Over these they shall spread a scarlet cloth and cover all this with thahas skin. They shall then put the poles in place. 9 They shall use a violet cloth to cover the lampstand with its lamps, trimming shears, and trays, as well as the various containers of oil from which it is supplied. 10 The lampstand with all its utensils they shall then enclose in a covering of thahas skin, and place on a litter. 11 Over the golden altar* they shall spread a violet cloth, and cover this also with a covering of thahas skin. They shall then put the poles in place. 12 Taking the utensils of the sanctuary service, they shall wrap them all in violet cloth and cover them with thahas skin. They shall then place them on a litter. 13 After cleansing the altar* of its ashes, they shall spread a purple cloth over it. 14 On this they shall put all the utensils with which it is served: the fire pans, forks,* shovels, basins, and all the utensils of the altar. They shall then spread a covering of thahas skin over this, and put the poles in place.

15 "Only after Aaron and his sons have finished covering the sacred objects and all their utensils on breaking camp, shall the Caathites enter to carry them. But they shall not touch the sacred objects; if they do they will die.[w] These, then, are the objects in the Meeting Tent that the Caathites shall carry.

16 "Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, shall be in charge of the oil for the light, the fragrant incense, the established cereal offering, and the anointing oil. He shall be in charge of the whole Dwelling with all the sacred objects and utensils that are in it."

17 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron:
18 "Do not let the group of Caathite clans perish from the body of the Levites. 19 That they may live and not die when they approach the most sacred objects, this is what you shall do for them: Aaron and his sons shall go in and assign to each of them his task and what he must carry;
20 but the Caathites shall not go in to look upon the sacred objects, even for an instant; if they do, they will die." x

21 The Lord said to Moses, 22 "Take a total among the Gersonites also, by ancestral houses and clans, 23 of all the men between thirty and fifty years of age; these are to undertake obligatory tasks in the Meeting Tent. 24 This is the task of the clans of the Gersonites, what they must do and what they must carry: 25 they shall carry the sheets of the Dwelling, the Meeting Tent with its covering and the outer wrapping of thahas skin, the curtain at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, 26 the hangings of the court, the curtain at the entrance of the court that encloses both the Dwelling and the altar, together with their ropes and all other objects necessary in their use. Whatever is to be done with these things shall be their task.
27 The service of the Gersonites shall be entirely under the direction of Aaron and his sons, with regard to what they must do and what they must carry; you shall make each man of them responsible for what he is to carry. 28 This, then, is the task of the Gersonites in the Meeting Tent; and they shall be under the supervision of Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest.

29 "Among the Merarites, too, you shall enroll by clans and ancestral houses 30 all their men between thirty and fifty years of age; these are to undertake obligatory tasks in the Meeting Tent. 31 y This is what they shall be responsible for carrying, all the years of their service in the Meeting Tent: the boards of the Dwelling with its bars, columns and pedestals, 32 and the columns of the surrounding court with their pedestals, pegs and ropes. You shall designate for each man of them all the objects connected with his service, which he shall be responsible for carrying. 33 This, then, is the task of the clans of the Merarites during all their service in the Meeting Tent under the supervision of Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest."

Number of Adult Levites. 34 So Moses and Aaron and the princes of the community made a registration among the Caathites, by clans and ancestral houses, 35 of all the men between thirty and fifty years of age. These were to undertake obligatory tasks in the Meeting Tent; 36 as registered by clans, they numbered two thousand seven hundred and fifty. 37 Such was the census of all the men of the Caathite clans who were to serve in the Meeting Tent, which Moses took, together with Aaron, as the Lord bade him.

38 The registration was then made among the Gersonites, by clans and ancestral houses, 39 of all the men between thirty and fifty years of age. These were to undertake obligatory tasks in the Meeting Tent; 40 as registered by clans and ancestral houses, they numbered two thousand six hundred and thirty. 41 Such was the census of all the men of the Gersonite clans who were to serve in the Meeting Tent, which Moses took, together with Aaron, at the Lord's bidding.

42 Then the registration was made among the Merarites, by clans and ancestral houses, 43 of all the men from thirty up to fifty years of age. These were to undertake obligatory tasks in the Meeting Tent; 44 as registered by clans, they numbered three thousand two hundred. 45 Such was the census of the men of the Merarite clans which Moses took, together with Aaron, as the Lord bade him.

46 Therefore, when Moses and Aaron and the Israelite princes had completed the registration among the Levites, by clans and ancestral houses, 47 of all the men between thirty and fifty years of age who were to undertake tasks of service or transport at the Meeting Tent, 48 the total number registered was eight thousand five hundred and eighty. 49 According to the Lord's bidding to Moses, they gave them their individual assignments for service and for transport; so the Lord had commanded Moses.

CHAPTER 5.

The Unclean Expelled. 1 The Lord said to Moses: 2 *"Order the Israelites to expel from camp every leper, and everyone suffering from a discharge, and everyone who has become unclean by contact with a corpse.[z] 3 Male and female alike, you shall compel them to go out of the camp; they are not to defile the camp in which I dwell."[a] 4 The Israelites obeyed the command that the Lord had given Moses; they expelled them from the camp.

Unjust Possession. 5 The Lord said to Moses, 6 [b] "Tell the Israelites: If a man (or woman) commits a fault against his fellow man and wrongs him, thus breaking faith with the Lord, 7 he shall confess the wrong he has done, restore his ill-gotten goods in full, and in addition give one fifth of their value to the one he has wronged. 8 However, if the latter has no next of kin to whom restoration of the ill-gotten goods can be made, the goods to be restored shall be the Lord's and shall fall to the priest; this is apart from the atonement ram with which the priest makes amends for the guilty man. 9 Likewise, every sacred contribution that the Israelites are bound to make shall fall to the priest.[c] 10 Each Israelite man may dispose of his own sacred contributions; they become the property of the priest to whom he gives them."[d]

Ordeal for a Suspected Adulteress. 11 The Lord said to Moses, 12 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: If a man's wife goes astray and becomes unfaithful to him 13 by having intercourse with another man,[e] though her husband has not sufficient evidence of the fact, so that her impurity remains unproved for lack of a witness who might have caught her in the act; 14 or if a man is overcome by a feeling of jealousy that makes him suspect his wife, whether she was actually impure or not: 15 he shall bring his wife to the priest and shall take along as an offering for her a tenth of an epha of barley meal. However, he shall not pour oil on it nor put frankincense over it, since it is a cereal offering of jealousy, a cereal offering for an appeal in a question of guilt.

16 "The priest shall first have the woman come forward and stand before the Lord. 17 In an earthen vessel he shall meanwhile put some holy water,* as well as some dust that he has taken from the floor of the Dwelling.[f] 18 Then, as the woman stands before the Lord, the priest shall uncover her head and place in her hands the cereal offering of her appeal,* that is, the cereal offering of jealousy, while he himself shall hold the bitter water that brings a curse. 19 Then he shall adjure the woman, saying to her, 'If no other man has had intercourse with you, and you have not gone astray by impurity while under the authority of your husband, be immune to the curse brought by this bitter water. 20 But if you have gone astray while under the authority of your husband and have acted impurely by letting a man other than your husband have intercourse with you'—21 so shall the priest adjure the woman with this oath of imprecation—'may the Lord make you an example of malediction and imprecation* among your people by causing your thighs to waste away and your belly to swell! 22 May this water, then, that brings a curse, enter your body to make your belly swell and your thighs waste away!'[g] And the woman shall say, 'Amen, amen!'* 23 The priest shall put these imprecations in writing and shall then wash them off into the bitter water, 24 which he is to have the woman drink, so that it may go into her with all its bitter curse. 25 But first he shall take the cereal offering of jealousy from the woman's hand, and having waved this offering before the Lord, shall put it near the altar, 26 where he shall take a handful of the cereal offering as its token offering and burn it on the altar.[h] Only then shall he have the woman drink the water. 27 Once she has done so, if she has been impure and unfaithful to her husband, this bitter water that brings a

[29] "This, then, is the law for jealousy: When a woman goes astray while under the authority of her husband and acts impurely, [30] or when such a feeling of jealousy comes over a man that he becomes suspicious of his wife, he shall have her stand before the Lord, and the priest shall apply this law in full to her. [31] The man shall be free from guilt,* but the woman shall bear such guilt as she may have."

CHAPTER 6.

Laws Concerning Nazirites. [1] The Lord said to Moses: [2] "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When a man (or a woman) solemnly takes the Nazirite* vow to dedicate himself to the Lord, [3] he shall abstain from wine and strong drink;[i] he may neither drink wine vinegar, other vinegar, or any kind of grape juice, nor eat either fresh or dried grapes. [4] As long as he is a Nazirite he shall not eat anything of the produce of the vine; not even unripe grapes or grapeskins. [5] While he is under the Nazirite vow, no razor shall touch his hair.[j] Until the period of his dedication to the Lord is over, he shall be sacred, and shall let the hair of his head grow freely. [6] As long as he is dedicated to the Lord, he shall not enter where a dead person is.[k] [7] Not even for his father or mother, his sister or brother, should they die, may he become unclean, since his head bears his dedication to God. [8] As long as he is a Nazirite he is sacred to the Lord.

[9] "If someone dies very suddenly in his presence, so that his dedicated head becomes unclean, he shall shave his head on the day of his purification, that is, on the seventh day. [10] On the eighth day he shall bring two turtledoves or two pigeons to the priest at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. [11] The priest shall offer up the one as a sin offering and the other as a holocaust, thus making atonement for him for the sin he has committed by reason of the dead person. On the same day he shall reconsecrate his head [12] and begin anew the period of his dedication to the Lord as a Nazirite, bringing a yearling lamb as a guilt offering. The previous period is not valid, because his dedicated head became unclean.

[13] "This is the ritual for the Nazirite: [l] On the day he completes the period of his dedication he shall go to the entrance of the Meeting Tent, [14] bringing as his offering to the Lord one unblemished yearling lamb for a holocaust, one unblemished yearling ewe lamb for a sin offering, one unblemished ram as a peace offering, along with their cereal offerings and libations, [15] and a basket of unleavened cakes of fine flour mixed with oil and of unleavened wafers spread with oil. [16] The priest shall present them before the Lord, and shall offer up the sin offering and the holocaust for him. [17] He shall then offer up the ram as a peace offering to the Lord, with its cereal offering and libation, and the basket of unleavened cakes. [18] Then at the entrance of the Meeting Tent the Nazirite shall shave his dedicated head,[m] collect the hair, and put it in the fire that is under the peace offering. [19] After the Nazirite has shaved off his dedicated hair, the priest shall take a boiled shoulder of the ram, as well as one unleavened cake and one unleavened wafer from the basket, and shall place them in the hands of the Nazirite. [20] The priest shall then wave them as a wave offering before the Lord. They become sacred and shall belong to the priest, along with the breast of the wave offering and the leg of the raised offering. Only after this may the Nazirite drink wine.

[21] "This, then, is the law for the Nazirite; this is the offering to the Lord which is included in his vow of dedication apart from anything else which his means may allow. Thus shall he carry out the law of his dedication in keeping with the vow he has taken."

5, 31: Free from guilt: by fulfilling his obligation of obtaining a decision in the matter.

6, 1ff: Nazirite: from the Hebrew word nazir, meaning "set apart as sacred, dedicated, vowed." The Nazirite vow could be either for a limited period or for life. Those bound by this vow had to abstain from all the products of the grapevine, from cutting or shaving their hair, and from contact with a corpse. They were regarded as men of God like the prophets; cf Am 2, 11f. Examples of lifelong Nazirites were Samson (Jgs 13, 4f. 7; 16, 17), Samuel (1 Kgs 1, 11), and John the Baptist (Lk 1, 15). At the time of Christ the practice of taking the Nazirite vow for a limited period seems to have been quite common even among the early Christians; cf Acts 18, 18; 21, 23f. 26.

The Priestly Blessing. 22 The Lord said to Moses: 23 "Speak to Aaron and his sons and tell them: This is how you shall bless the Israelites. Say to them: 24 The Lord bless you and keep you! 25 The Lord let his face shine* upon you, and be gracious to you! 26 The Lord look upon you kindly and give you peace!* So shall they invoke my name upon the Israelites, and I will bless them."

CHAPTER 7.

Offerings of Princes. 1 Now, when Moses had completed the erection of the Dwelling and had anointed and consecrated it with all its equipment[n] (as well as the altar with all its equipment), 2 an offering was made by the princes of Israel, who were heads of ancestral houses; the same princes of the tribes who supervised the census. 3 The offering they brought before the Lord consisted of six baggage wagons and twelve oxen, that is, a wagon for every two princes, and an ox for every prince. These they presented as their offering before the Dwelling.

4 The Lord then said to Moses, 5 "Accept their offering, that these things may be put to use in the service of the Meeting Tent. Assign them to the Levites, to each group in proportion to its duties."
6 So Moses accepted the wagons and oxen, and assigned them to the Levites. 7 He gave two wagons and four oxen to the Gersonites[o] in proportion to their duties, 8 and four wagons and eight oxen to the Merarites in proportion to their duties, under the supervision of Ithamar, son of Aaron the priest. 9 He gave none to the Caathites, because they had to carry on their shoulders the sacred objects which were their charge.[p]

10 For the dedication of the altar also,
the princes brought offerings before the altar on the day it was anointed.[q] 11 But the Lord said to Moses, "Let one prince a day present his offering for the dedication of the altar."

12 *The one who presented his offering on the first day was Nahasson, son of Amminadab, prince of the tribe of Juda.
13 His offering consisted of one silver plate
weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels,
both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 14 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 15 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 16 one goat for a sin offering; 17 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Nahasson, son of Amminadab.

18 On the second day Nathanael, son of Suar, prince of Issachar, made his offering. 19 He presented as his offering one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty
shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy
shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed
with oil for a cereal offering; 20 one gold
cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 21 one young bull, one ram, and
one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 22 one
goat for a sin offering; 23 and two oxen,
five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Nathanael, son of Suar.

24 On the third day it was the turn of Eliab, son of Helon, prince of the Zabu-lonites. 25 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty
shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy
shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed
with oil for a cereal offering; 26 one gold
cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 27 one young bull, one ram, and
one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 28 one
goat for a sin offering; 29 and two oxen,
five rams, five goats, and five yearling
lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Eliab, son of Helon.

30 On the fourth day it was the turn of Elisur, son of Sedeur, prince of the Rubenites. 31 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty
shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy
shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed
with oil for a cereal offering; 32 one gold
cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 33 one young bull, one ram, and
one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 34 one
goat for a sin offering; 35 and two oxen,
five rams, five goats, and five yearling

lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Elisur, son of Sedeur.

36 On the fifth day it was the turn of Salamiel, son of Surisaddai, prince of the Simeonites. 37 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 38 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 39 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 40 one goat for a sin offering; 41 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Salamiel, son of Surisaddai.

42 On the sixth day it was the turn of Eliasaph, son of Raguel, prince of the Gadites. 43 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 44 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 45 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 46 one goat for a sin offering; 47 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Eliasaph, son of Raguel.

48 On the seventh day it was the turn of Elisama, son of Ammiud, prince of the Ephraimites. 49 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 50 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 51 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 52 one goat for a sin offering; 53 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Elisama, son of Ammiud.

54 On the eighth day it was the turn of Gamaliel, son of Phadasur, prince of the Manasseites. 55 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 56 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 57 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 58 one goat for a sin offering; 59 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Gamaliel, son of Phadasur.

60 On the ninth day it was the turn of Abidan, son of Gedeoni, prince of the Benjaminites. 61 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 62 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 63 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 64 one goat for a sin offering; 65 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Abidan, son of Gedeoni.

66 On the tenth day it was the turn of Ahiezer, son of Ammisaddai, prince of the Danites. 67 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 68 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 69 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 70 one goat for a sin offering; 71 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Ahiezer, son of Ammisaddai.

72 On the eleventh day it was the turn of Phagiel, son of Ochran, prince of the Aserites. 73 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; 74 one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; 75 one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; 76 one goat for a sin offering; 77 and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Phagiel, son of Ochran.

78 On the twelfth day it was the turn of Ahira, son of Enan, prince of the Nephthalites. 79 His offering consisted of one silver plate weighing a hundred and thirty shekels according to the sanctuary standard and one silver basin weighing seventy shekels, both filled with fine flour mixed with oil for a cereal offering; [80] one gold cup of ten shekels' weight filled with incense; [81] one young bull, one ram, and one yearling lamb for a holocaust; [82] one goat for a sin offering; [83] and two oxen, five rams, five goats, and five yearling lambs for a peace offering. This was the offering of Ahira, son of Enan.

[84] These were the offerings for the dedication of the altar, given by the princes of Israel on the occasion of its anointing: twelve silver plates, twelve silver basins, and twelve gold cups. [85] Each silver plate weighed a hundred and thirty shekels, and each silver basin seventy, so that all the silver of these vessels amounted to two thousand four hundred shekels, according to the sanctuary standard. [86] The twelve gold cups that were filled with incense weighed ten shekels apiece, according to the sanctuary standard, so that all the gold of the cups amounted to one hundred and twenty shekels. [87] The animals for the holocausts were, in all, twelve young bulls, twelve rams, and twelve yearling lambs, with their cereal offerings; those for the sin offerings were twelve goats. [88] The animals for the peace offerings were, in all, twenty-four oxen, sixty rams, sixty goats, and sixty yearling lambs. These, then, were the offerings for the dedication of the altar after it was anointed.

The Voice. [89] When Moses entered the Meeting Tent to speak with him, he heard the voice addressing him from above the propitiatory[r] on the Ark of the Commandments, from between the two cherubim; and it spoke to him. . . .

CHAPTER 8.

The Lamps Set Up. [1] The Lord spoke to Moses, and said, [2] "Give Aaron this command: When you set up the seven lamps,[s] have them throw their light toward the front of the lampstand." [3] Aaron did so, setting up the lamps to face toward the front of the lampstand, just as the Lord had commanded Moses. [4] The lampstand was made of beaten gold[t] in both its shaft and its branches, according to the pattern which the Lord had shown Moses.

Purification of the Levites. [5] The Lord said to Moses: [6] "Take the Levites from among the Israelites and purify them.* [7] This is what you shall do to them to purify them. Sprinkle them with the water of remission;* then have them shave their whole bodies and wash their clothes, and so purify themselves. [8] They shall take a young bull, along with its cereal offering of fine flour mixed with oil; you shall take another young bull for a sin offering. [9] Then have the Levites come forward in front of the Meeting Tent, where you shall assemble also the whole community of the Israelites. [10] While the Levites are present before the Lord, the Israelites shall lay their hands upon them. [11] Let Aaron then offer the Levites before the Lord as a wave offering from the Israelites, thus devoting them to the service of the Lord. [12] The Levites in turn shall lay their hands on the heads of the bullocks, which shall then be immolated, the one as a sin offering and the other as a holocaust to the Lord, in atonement for the Levites. [13] Thus, then, shall you have the Levites stand before Aaron and his sons, to be offered as a wave offering to the Lord; [14] and thus shall you set aside the Levites from the rest of the Israelites, that they may be mine.[u]

[15] "Only then shall the Levites enter upon their service in the Meeting Tent. You shall purify them and offer them as a wave offering; [16] because they, among the Israelites, are strictly dedicated to me; I have taken them for myself in place of every first-born that opens the womb among the Israelites.[v] [17] Indeed, all the first-born among the Israelites, both of man and of beast, belong to me; I consecrated them to myself on the day I slew all the first-born in the land of Egypt.[w] [18] But in place of all the first-born Israelites I have taken the Levites; [19] and I have given these dedicated Israelites to Aaron and his sons[x] to discharge the duties of the Israelites in the Meeting Tent and to make atonement for them, so that no plague may strike among the Israelites should they come near the sanctuary."

8, 6: Purify them: in the language of the Pentateuch only the priests were "consecrated," that is, made sacred or set aside for the Lord, in an elaborate ceremony described in Ex 29; Lv 8. The Levites were merely "purified," that is, made ritually clean for their special work.

8, 7: Water of remission: literally, "water of sin," that is, for the remission of sin.

20 Thus, then, did Moses and Aaron and the whole community of the Israelites deal with the Levites, carrying out exactly the command which the Lord had given Moses concerning them. 21 When the Levites had cleansed themselves of sin* and washed their clothes, Aaron offered them as a wave offering before the Lord, and made atonement for them to purify them. 22 Only then did they enter upon their service in the Meeting Tent under the supervision of Aaron and his sons. The command which the Lord had given Moses concerning the Levites was carried out.

Age Limits for Levitical Service. 23 The Lord said to Moses: 24 "This is the rule for the Levites. Each from his twenty-fifth year onward shall perform the required service in the Meeting Tent.[y] 25
When he is fifty years old, he shall retire
from the required service and work no longer. 26 His service with his fellow Levites shall consist in sharing their responsibilities in the Meeting Tent, but he shall not do the work. This, then, is how you are to regulate the duties of the Levites."

CHAPTER 9.

Second Passover. 1 In the first month of the year following their departure from the land of Egypt, the Lord said to Moses in the desert of Sinai, 2 "Tell the Israelites to celebrate the Passover at the prescribed time. 3 The evening twilight of the fourteenth day of this month[z] is the prescribed time when you shall celebrate it, observing all its rules and regulations."
4 Moses, therefore, told the Israelites to celebrate the Passover. 5 And they did so, celebrating the Passover in the desert of Sinai during the evening twilight of the fourteenth day of the first month, just as the Lord had commanded Moses.

6 There were some, however, who were unclean because of a human corpse and so could not keep the Passover that day.
These men came up to Moses and Aaron that same day 7 and said, "Although we are unclean because of a corpse, why should we be deprived of presenting the Lord's offering at its proper time along with the other Israelites?" 8 Moses answered them, "Wait until I learn what the Lord will command in your regard."

9 The Lord then said to Moses: 10
"Speak to the Israelites and say: If any one of you or your descendants is unclean because of a corpse, or if he is absent on a journey, he may still keep the Lord's Passover. 11 But he shall keep it in the second month,[a] during the evening twilight of the fourteenth day of that month, eating it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs, 12 and not leaving any of it over till morning, nor breaking any of its bones,[b] but observing all the rules of the Passover. 13 However, anyone who is clean and not away on a journey, who yet fails to keep the Passover, shall be cut off from his people, because he did not present the Lord's offering at the prescribed time. That man shall bear the consequences of his sin.

14 "If an alien* who lives among you wishes to keep the Lord's Passover, he too shall observe the rules and regulations for the Passover. You shall have the same law for the resident alien as for the native of the land."[c]

The Fiery Cloud. 15 On the day when the Dwelling was erected, the cloud* covered the Dwelling, the Tent of the Commandments; but from evening until morning
it took on the appearance of fire over the Dwelling.[d] 16 It was always so: during the day the Dwelling was covered by the cloud, which at night had the appearance of fire. 17 Whenever the cloud rose from the Tent, the Israelites would break camp;
wherever the cloud came to rest, they would pitch camp.[e] 18 At the bidding of the Lord the Israelites moved on, and at his bidding they encamped.[f] As long as the cloud stayed over the Dwelling, they remained in camp.

19 Even when the cloud tarried many days over the Dwelling, the Israelites obeyed the Lord and would not move on;
20 yet sometimes the cloud was over the Dwelling only for a few days. It was at the bidding of the Lord that they stayed in camp, and it was at his bidding that they departed. 21 Sometimes the cloud remained there only from evening until morning; and when it rose in the morning, they would depart. Or if the cloud lifted during the day, or even at night, they would then set out. 22 Whether the cloud tarried over the Dwelling for two days or for a month or longer, the Israelites remained in camp and did not depart; but when it lifted, they moved on. 23 Thus, it was always at the bidding of the Lord that they encamped, and at his bidding that they set out; ever heeding the charge of the Lord, as he had bidden them through Moses.

CHAPTER 10.

The Silver Trumpets. 1 The Lord said to Moses: 2 "Make two trumpets of beaten silver, which you shall use in assembling the community and in breaking camp. 3 When both are blown, the whole community shall gather round you at the entrance of the Meeting Tent; 4 but when one of them is blown, only the princes, the chiefs of the troops of Israel, shall gather round you. 5 When you sound the first alarm, those encamped on the east side shall set out; 6 when you sound the second alarm, those encamped on the south side shall set out; when you sound the third alarm, those encamped on the west side shall set out; when you sound the fourth alarm, those encamped on the north side shall set out. Thus shall the alarm be sounded for them to depart. 7 But in calling forth an assembly you are to blow an ordinary blast, without sounding the alarm.

8 "It is the sons of Aaron, the priests, who shall blow the trumpets; and the use of them is prescribed by perpetual statute for you and your descendants. 9 g When in your own land you go to war against an enemy that is attacking you, you shall sound the alarm on the trumpets, and the Lord, your God, will remember you and save you from your foes. 10 On your days of celebration,* your festivals, and your new-moon feasts, you shall blow the trumpets over your holocausts and your peace offerings; h this will serve as a reminder of you before your God. I, the Lord, am your God."

II: FROM SINAI TO THE PLAINS OF MOAB

Departure from Sinai. 11 In the second year, on the twentieth day of the second month, the cloud rose from the Dwelling of the Commandments. 12 The Israelites moved on from the desert of Sinai by stages, until the cloud came to rest in the desert of Pharan.

13 The first time that they broke camp at the bidding of the Lord through Moses, 14 i the camp of the Judaites, under its own standard and arranged in companies, was the first to set out. Nahasson, son of Amminadab, was over their host, 15 and Nathanael, son of Suar, over the host of the tribe of Issachar, 16 and Eliab, son of Helon, over the host of the tribe of Zabulon. 17 Then, after the Dwelling was dismantled, the clans of Gerson and Merari set out, carrying the Dwelling. 18 The camp of the Rubenites, under its own standard and arranged in companies, was the next to set out, with Elisur, son of Sedeur, over their host, 19 and Salamiel, son of Surisaddai, over the host of the tribe of Simeon, 20 and Eliasaph, son of Raguel, over the host of the tribe of Gad. 21 The clan of Caath then set out, carrying the sacred objects for the Dwelling, which was to be erected before their arrival. 22 The camp of the Ephraimites next set out, under its own standard and arranged in companies, with Elisama, son of Ammiud, over their host, 23 and Gamaliel, son of Phadasur, over the host of the tribe of Manasse, 24 and Abidan, son of Gedeoni, over the host of the tribe of Benjamin. 25 Finally, as rear guard for all the camps, the camp of the Danites set out, under its own standard and arranged in companies, with Ahiezer, son of Ammisaddai, over their host, 26 and Phagiel, son of Ochran, over the host of the tribe of Aser, 27 and Ahira, son of Enan, over the host of the tribe of Nephthali. 28 This was the order of departure for the Israelites, company by company.

Hobab as Guide. As they were setting out. 29 Moses said to his brother-in-law Hobab, son of Raguel the Madianite, "We are setting out for the place which the Lord has promised to give us. Come with us, and we will be generous toward you, for the Lord has promised prosperity to Israel." 30 *But he answered, "No, I will not come. I am going instead to my own country and to my own kindred." 31 Moses said, "Please, do not leave us; you know where we can camp in the desert, and you will serve as eyes for us. 32 If you come with us, we will share with you the prosperity the Lord will bestow on us."

Into the Desert. 33 i They moved on from the mountain of the Lord,* a three days' journey, and the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord which was to seek out their resting place went the three days' journey with them. 34 And when they set out from camp, the cloud of the Lord was over them by day.

35 Whenever the ark set out, Moses would say, "Arise, O Lord, that your enemies may be scattered, and those who hate you may flee before you." 36 And when it came to rest, he would say, "Return, O Lord, you who ride upon the clouds, to the troops of Israel."

CHAPTER 11.

Discontent of the People. 1 Now the people complained in the hearing of the Lord; k and when he heard it his wrath flared up so that the fire of the Lord burned among them and consumed the outskirts of the camp. 2 But when the people cried out to Moses, he prayed to the Lord and the fire died out. 3 Hence that place was called Thabera,* because there the fire of the Lord burned among them.

4 The foreign elements among them were so greedy for meat that even the Israelites lamented again, l "Would that we had meat for food! 5 We remember the fish we used to eat without cost in Egypt, and the cucumbers, the melons, the leeks, the onions, and the garlic. 6 But now we are famished; we see nothing before us but this manna." m

7 n Manna was like coriander seed* and had the appearance of bdellium. 8 When they had gone about and gathered it up, the people would grind it between millstones or pound it in a mortar, then cook it in a pot and make it into loaves, which tasted like cakes made with oil. 9 At night, when the dew fell upon the camp, the manna also fell. o

10 When Moses heard the people, family after family, crying at the entrance of their tents, so that the Lord became very angry, he was grieved. 11 "Why do you treat your servant so badly?" Moses asked the Lord. "Why are you so displeased with me that you burden me with all this people? 12 Was it I who conceived all this people? or was it I who gave them birth, that you tell me to carry them at my bosom, like a foster father carrying an infant, to the land you have promised under oath to their fathers? 13 Where can I get meat to give to all this people? For they are crying to me, 'Give us meat for our food.' 14 I cannot carry all this people by myself, for they are too heavy for me. 15 If this is the way you will deal with me, then please do me the favor of killing me at once, so that I need no longer face this distress."

The Seventy Elders. 16 Then the Lord said to Moses, "Assemble for me seventy of the elders of Israel, men you know for true elders and authorities among the people, and bring them to the Meeting Tent. When they are in place beside you, 17 I will come down and speak with you there. I will also take some of the spirit that is on you and will bestow it on them, that they may share the burden of the people with you. You will then not have to bear it by yourself.

18 "To the people, however, you shall say: Sanctify yourselves for tomorrow, when you shall have meat to eat. For in the hearing of the Lord you have cried, 'Would that we had meat for food! Oh, how well off we were in Egypt!' Therefore the Lord will give you meat for food, 19 and you will eat it, not for one day, or two days, or five, or ten, or twenty days, 20 but for a whole month—until it comes out of your very nostrils and becomes loathsome to you. For you have spurned the Lord who is in your midst, and in his presence you have wailed, 'Why did we ever leave Egypt?' "

21 But Moses said, "The people around me include six hundred thousand soldiers; yet you say, 'I will give them meat to eat for a whole month.' 22 Can enough sheep and cattle be slaughtered for them? If all

The Spirit on the Elders. 24 So Moses went out and told the people what the Lord had said. Gathering seventy elders of the people, he had them stand around the tent. 25 The Lord then came down in the cloud and spoke to him. Taking some of the spirit that was on Moses, he bestowed it on the seventy elders; and as the spirit came to rest on them, they prophesied.*

26 Now two men, one named Eldad and the other Medad, were not in the gathering but had been left in the camp. They too had been on the list, but had not gone out to the tent; yet the spirit came to rest on them also, and they prophesied in the camp. 27 So, when a young man quickly told Moses, "Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp," 28 Josue, son of Nun, who from his youth had been Moses' aide, said, "Moses, my lord, stop them." 29 But Moses answered him, "Are you jealous for my sake? Would that all the people of the Lord were prophets! Would that the Lord might bestow his spirit on them all!" 30 Then Moses retired to the camp, along with the elders of Israel.

The Quail. 31 There arose a wind p sent by the Lord, that drove in quail from the sea and brought them down over the camp site at a height of two cubits from the ground* for the distance of a day's journey all around the camp. 32 q All that day, all night, and all the next day the people gathered in the quail. Even the one who got the least gathered ten homors of them. Then they spread them out* all around the camp. 33 But while the meat was still between their teeth, before it could be consumed, the Lord's wrath flared up against the people, and he struck them with a very great plague. 34 So that place was named Cibroth-Hatthaava,* because it was there that the greedy people were buried.

35 From Cibroth-Hatthaava the people set out for Haseroth.

CHAPTER 12.

Jealousy of Aaron and Mariam. While they were in Haseroth, 1 Mariam and Aaron spoke against Moses on the pretext of the marriage he had contracted with a Chusite woman.* 2 They complained, *"Is it through Moses alone that the Lord speaks? Does he not speak through us also?" And the Lord heard this. 3 r Now, Moses himself was by far the meekest man on the face of the earth. 4 So at once the Lord said to Moses and Aaron and Mariam, "Come out, you three, to the Meeting Tent." And the three of them went. 5 Then the Lord came down in the column of cloud, and standing at the entrance of the tent, called Aaron and Mariam. When both came forward, 6 he said, "Now listen to the words of the Lord:

Should there be a prophet among you, in visions will I reveal myself to him, in dreams will I speak to him; 7 not so with my servant Moses! Throughout my house he bears my trust: s 8 face to face I speak to him,t plainly and not in riddles. The presence of the Lord he beholds. Why, then, did you not fear to speak against my servant Moses?"

Mariam's Leprosy. 9 So angry was the Lord against them that when he departed, 10 and the cloud withdrew from the Tent, there was Mariam,u a snow-white leper!* When Aaron turned and saw her a leper, 11 "Ah, my Lord!" he said to Moses, "please do not charge us with the sin that we have foolishly committed! 12 Let 11, 25: They prophesied: in the sense, not of foretelling the future, but of speaking in enraptured enthusiasm. Such manifestations of mystic exaltation occurred in the early days of Hebrew prophecy (1 Kgs 10, 10ff; 19, 20ff) and in the first years of the Church (Acts 2, 10. 17. 44; 19, 6; 1 Cor 12-14).

11, 31: At a height of two cubits from the ground: exhausted by the storm, the quail could take but short, low flights, so that they were easily captured. To give food to the hungry people, God may have used the natural phenomenon of the annual migration of quail across the Sinai Peninsula. In the spring large flocks of these birds cross the Gulf of Aqabah flying toward the west; in the fall they fly back eastward from the Mediterranean. The sea mentioned here probably refers to the former body of water.

12, 1: Chusite woman: apparently Sepphora, the Madianitess, is meant; cf Ex 2, 21. Perhaps the term is used here merely in the sense of "despised foreigner."

12, 2: The real reason for Mariam's quarrel with her brother Moses was her jealousy of his superior position; his Chusite wife served only as an occasion for the dispute. Aaron merely followed his sister in her rebellion; hence she alone was punished.

her not thus be like the stillborn babe that comes forth from its mother's womb with its flesh half consumed." 13 Then Moses cried to the Lord, "Please, not this! Pray, heal her!" 14 But the Lord answered Moses, "Suppose her father had spit in her face, would she not hide in shame for seven days? Let her be confined outside the camp for seven days; only then may she be brought back." 15 So Mariam was confined outside the camp for seven days, and the people did not start out again until she was brought back.

16 After that the people set out from Haseroth and encamped in the desert of Pharan.

CHAPTER 13.

The Twelve Scouts. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Send men to reconnoiter the land of Chanaan, which I am giving the Israelites. You shall send one man from each ancestral tribe, all of them princes." 3 v So Moses dispatched them from the desert of Pharan, as the Lord had ordered. All of them were leaders among the Israelites; 4 by name they were: Sammua, son of Zacchur, of the tribe of Ruben; 5 Saphat, son of Huri, of the tribe of Simeon; 6 Caleb, son of Jephonne, of the tribe of Juda; 7 Igal [son of Joseph], of the tribe of Issachar; 10 Gaddiel, son of Sodi, of the tribe of Zabulon; 11 Gaddi, son of Susi, of the tribe of Manasse, for the Josephites, with 8 Osee, son of Nun, of the tribe of Ephraim; 9 Phalti, son of Raphu, of the tribe of Benjamin; 12 Ammiel, son of Gemalli, of the tribe of Dan; 13 Sathur, son of Michael, of the tribe of Aser; 14 Nahabi, son of Vaphsi, of the tribe of Nephthali; 15 Guel, son of Machi, of the tribe of Gad. 16 These are the names of the men whom Moses sent out to reconnoiter the land. But Osee, son of Nun, Moses called Josue.*

17 In sending them to reconnoiter the land of Chanaan, Moses said to them, "Go up here in the Negeb, up into the highlands, 18 and see what kind of land it is. Are the people living there strong or weak, few or many? 19 Is the country in which they live good or bad? Are the towns in which they dwell open or fortified? 20 Is the soil fertile or barren, wooded or clear? And do your best to get some of the fruit of the land." It was then the season for early grapes.

21 So they went up and reconnoitered the land from the desert of Sin* as far as Rohob, at the entrance to Hamath. 22 w Going up by way of the Negeb, they reached Hebron, where Ahiman, Sesai and Tholmai, descendants of the Enacim,* were living. [Hebron had been built seven years before Soan in Egypt.] 23 They also reached the Wadi Eschol,* where they cut down a branch with a single cluster of grapes on it, which two of them carried on a pole, as well as some pomegranates and figs. 24 It was because of the cluster the Israelites cut there that they called the place Wadi Eschol.x

Their Return. 25 After reconnoitering the land for forty days they returned, 26 met Moses and Aaron and the whole community of the Israelites in the desert of Pharan at Cades, made a report to them all, and showed them the fruit of the country.y 27 They told Moses: "We went into the land to which you sent us. It does indeed flow with milk and honey, and here is its fruit. 28 However, the people who are living in the land are fierce, and the towns are fortified and very strong.z Besides, we saw descendants of the Enacim there. 29 Amalecites live in the region of the Negeb; Hethites, Jebusites and Amorrites dwell in the highlands, and Chanaanites along the seacoast and the banks of the Jordan."

30 Caleb, however, to quiet the people toward Moses, said, "We ought to go up and seize the land, for we can certainly do so." 31 But the men who had gone up with him said, "We cannot attack these people; they are too strong for us." 32 So they spread discouraging reports among

13, 21: The desert of Sin: north of Pharan and southwest of the Dead Sea. It is quite distinct from "the desert of Sin" near the border of Egypt, mentioned in Ex 16, 1; 17; Nm 33, 11; the latter is farther to the west, and in Hebrew is spelled differently. Hamath: an independent state in central Syria. The valley which led into Hamath formed the northern limit of David's conquests (2 Kgs 8, 9ff) and the northern border of the ideal extent of Israel's possessions (Nm 34, 7ff; Ez 47, 15; 48, 1). Some commentators think that this verse is a later addition to the text; cf Dt 1, 24.

13, 22-28: Enacim: an aboriginal race in southern Palestine, largely absorbed by the Chanaanites before the Israelite invasion. Either because of their tall stature or because of the massive stone structures left by them the Israelites regarded them as giants.

the Israelites about the land they had scouted, saying, "The land that we explored is a country that consumes its inhabitants.[a] And all the people we saw there are huge men, 33 [b] veritable giants* [the Enacim were a race of giants]; we felt like mere grasshoppers, and so we must have seemed to them."

CHAPTER 14.

Threats of Revolt. 1 At this, the whole community broke out with loud cries, and even in the night the people wailed. 2 [c] All the Israelites grumbled against Moses and Aaron, the whole community saying to them, "Would that we had died in the land of Egypt, or that here in the desert we were dead! 3 Why is the Lord bringing us into this land only to have us fall by the sword? Our wives and little ones will be taken as booty. Would it not be better for us to return to Egypt?" 4 So they said to one another, "Let us appoint a leader and go back to Egypt."

5 But Moses and Aaron fell prostrate before the whole assembled community of the Israelites; 6 while Josue, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephonne, who had been in the party that scouted the land, tore their garments 7 and said to the whole community of the Israelites, [d] "The country which we went through and explored is a fine, rich land. 8 If the Lord is pleased with us, he will bring us in and give us that land, a land flowing with milk and honey. 9 [e] But do not rebel against the Lord! You need not be afraid of the people of that land; they are but food for us!* Their defense has left them, but the Lord is with us. Therefore, do not be afraid of them." In answer, the whole community threatened to stone them.

The Lord's Sentence. 10 But then the glory of the Lord appeared at the Meeting Tent to all the Israelites. 11 And the Lord said to Moses, "How long will this people spurn me? How long will they refuse to believe in me, despite all the signs I have performed among them? [f] 12 I will strike them with pestilence and wipe them out. Then I will make of you a nation greater and mightier than they." [g]

13 [h] But Moses said to the Lord: "Are the Egyptians to hear of this? For by your power you brought out this people from among them. 14 And are they to tell of it to the inhabitants of this land? It has been heard that you, O Lord, are in the midst of this people; you, Lord, who plainly reveal yourself! Your cloud stands over them, and you go before them by day in a column of cloud and by night in a column of fire.[i] 15 If now you slay this whole people, the nations who have heard such reports of you will say, 16 'The Lord was not able to bring this people into the land he swore to give them; that is why he slaughtered them in the desert.' [j] 17 Now then, let the power of my Lord be displayed in its greatness, 18 even as you have said, [k] 'The Lord is slow to anger and rich in kindness, forgiving wickedness and crime; yet not declaring the guilty guiltless, but punishing children to the third and fourth generation for their fathers' wickedness.' 19 Pardon, then, the wickedness of this people in keeping with your great kindness, even as you have forgiven them from Egypt until now." [l]

20 The Lord answered: "I pardon them as you have asked. 21 Yet, by my life and the Lord's glory that fills the whole earth, 22 of all the men who have seen my glory and the signs I worked in Egypt and in the desert,[m] and who nevertheless have put me to the test ten times already and have failed to heed my voice, 23 not one shall see the land which I promised on oath to their fathers. None of these who have spurned me shall see it. 24 But because my servant Caleb has a different spirit and follows me unreservedly,[n] I will bring him into the land where he has just been, and his descendants shall possess it. 25 But now since the Amalecites and Chanaanites are living in the valleys,* turn away tomorrow and set out in the desert on the Red Sea road."

26 The Lord also said to Moses and Aaron: 27 "How long will this wicked community grumble against me? [o] I have heard the grumblings of the Israelites against me. 28 Tell them: *By my life, says the Lord, I will do to you just what I have heard you say. 29 Here in the desert [p] shall your dead bodies fall. Of all your men of twenty years or more, registered in the census, who grumbled against me, 30 not one shall enter the land where I solemnly swore to settle you, except Caleb, son of Jephonne, and Josue, son of Nun. 31 Your little ones, however, who you said would be taken as booty, I will bring in, and they shall appreciate the land you spurned.[q] 32 But as for you, your bodies shall fall here in the desert, 33 here where your children must wander for forty years, suffering for your faithlessness, till the last of you lies dead in the desert.[r] 34 Forty days you spent in scouting the land; forty years shall you suffer for your crimes: one year for each day. Thus you will realize what it means to oppose me. 35 I, the Lord, have sworn to do this to all this wicked community that conspired against me: here in the desert they shall die to the last man."

36 And so it happened to the men whom Moses had sent to reconnoiter the land [s] and who on returning had set the whole community grumbling against him by spreading discouraging reports about the land; 37 these men who had given out the bad report about the land were struck down by the Lord and died. 38 Of all the men who had gone to reconnoiter the land, only Josue, son of Nun, and Caleb, son of Jephonne, survived.[t]

Unsuccessful Invasion. 39 When Moses repeated these words to all the Israelites, the people felt great remorse. 40 Early the next morning they started up into the foothills, saying, "Here we are, ready to go up to the place that the Lord spoke of: [u] for we were indeed doing wrong." 41 But Moses said, "Why are you again disobeying the Lord's orders? This cannot succeed. 42 Do not go up, because the Lord is not in your midst; if you go, you will be beaten down before your enemies.[v] 43 For there the Amalecites and Chanaanites face you, and you will fall by the sword. You have turned back from following the Lord; therefore the Lord will not be with you."

44 Yet they dared to go up into the foothills,[w] even though neither the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord nor Moses left the camp. 45 And the Amalecites and Chanaanites who dwelt in that hill country came down and defeated them, beating them back as far as Horma.*

CHAPTER 15.

Secondary Offerings. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 *"Give the Israelites these instructions: When you have entered the land that I will give you for your homesteads, 3 if you make to the Lord a sweet-smelling oblation from the herd or from the flock, in holocaust, in fulfillment of a vow, or as a freewill offering, or for one of your festivals, 4 whoever does so shall also present to the Lord a cereal offering consisting of a tenth of an epha of fine flour mixed with a fourth of a hin of oil, 5 as well as a libation of a fourth of a hin of wine, with each lamb sacrificed in holocaust or otherwise. 6 With each sacrifice of a ram you shall present a cereal offering of two tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with a third of a hin of oil, 7 and a libation of a third of a hin of wine, thus making a sweet-smelling offering to the Lord. 8 When you sacrifice an ox as a holocaust, or in fulfillment of a vow, or as a peace offering to the Lord, 9 with it you shall present a cereal offering of three tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with half a hin of oil, 10 and a libation of half a hin of wine, as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 11 The same is to be done for each ox, ram, lamb or goat. 12 Whatever the number you offer, do the same for each of them.

13 "All the native-born shall make these offerings in the same way, whenever they present a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 14 Likewise, in any future generation, any alien residing with you permanently or for a time, who presents a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord, shall

15, 2-16: These laws on sacrifice are complementary to those of Lv 1-3. Since the food of the Israelites consisted not only of meat but also of bread, oil and wine, so, besides the animal oblations, they offered flour, wine and oil in sacrifice to the Lord.

do as you do. 15 There is but one rule for you and for the resident alien, a perpetual rule for all your descendants. Before the Lord you and the alien are alike, 16 with the same law and the same application of it for the alien residing among you as for yourselves."

17 The Lord said to Moses, 18 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you enter the land into which I will bring you 19 and begin to eat of the food of that land, you shall offer the Lord a contribution 20 consisting of a cake of your first batch of dough.* You shall offer it just as you offer a contribution from the threshing floor.[x] 21 Throughout your generations you shall give a contribution to the Lord from your first batch of dough.

Sin Offerings. 22 *"When through inadvertence you fail to carry out any of these commandments which the Lord gives to Moses,[y] 23 and through Moses to you, from the time the Lord first issues a commandment down through your generations: 24 if the community itself unwittingly becomes guilty of the fault of inadvertence, the whole community shall offer the holocaust of one young bull as a sweet-smelling oblation pleasing to the Lord, along with its prescribed cereal offering and libation, as well as one he-goat as a sin offering. 25 [z] Then the priest shall make atonement for the whole Israelite community; thus they will be forgiven the inadvertence for which they have brought their holocaust as an oblation to the Lord. 26 Not only the whole Israelite community, but also the aliens residing among you, shall be forgiven, since the fault of inadvertence affects all the people.

27 "However, if it is an individual who sins inadvertently,[a] he shall bring a yearling she-goat as a sin offering, 28 and the priest shall make atonement before the Lord for him who sinned inadvertently; when atonement has been made for him, he will be forgiven. 29 You shall have but one law for him who sins inadvertently, whether he be a native Israelite or an alien residing with you.

30 "But anyone who sins defiantly,[b] whether he be a native or an alien, insults the Lord, and shall be cut off from among his people. 31 [c] Since he has despised the word of the Lord and has broken his commandment, he must be cut off. He has only himself to blame."

The Sabbath-breaker. 32 While the Israelites were in the desert, a man was discovered gathering wood on the Sabbath day. 33 Those who caught him at it brought him to Moses and Aaron and the whole assembly. 34 But they kept him in custody, for there was no clear decision* as to what should be done with him.[d] 35 Then the Lord said to Moses, "This man shall be put to death; let the whole community stone him outside the camp." 36 So the whole community led him outside the camp and stoned him to death, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

Tassels on the Cloak. 37 The Lord said to Moses, 38 "Speak to the Israelites and tell them that they and their descendants must put tassels* on the corners of their garments, fastening each corner tassel with a violet cord.[e] 39 When you use these tassels, let the sight of them remind you to keep all the commandments of the Lord, without going wantonly astray after the desires of your hearts and eyes. 40 Thus you will remember to keep all my commandments and be holy to your God. 41 I, the Lord, am your God who, as God, brought you out of Egypt that I, the Lord, may be your God." Rebellion of Core. 1 Core, son of Isaar, son of Caath, son of Levi,* [and Dathan

15, 22ff: Although no moral guilt is incurred by an inadvertent violation of God's commandments, the sanctity of the Law can require some reparation even for such violations.

15, 34: No clear decision: they already knew that a willful violation of the Sabbath was a capital offense, but they did not yet know how the death penalty was to be inflicted.

15, 38: Tassels: at the time of Christ these tassels were worn by all pious Jews, including our Lord (Mt 9, 20f; Mk 6, 56); the Pharisees wore very large ones in ostentation of their zeal for the Law (Mt 23, 5).

16, 1ff: The evidence seems to show that there were two distinct rebellions: one of Core and his band (Nm 27, 3) and the other of Dathan and Abiram (Dt 11, 6); cf Ps 105 (106). The present account combines both events into one narrative; but even here it is rather easy to separate the two, once certain proper names (vv 1. 6. 24. 32. 35) have been identified as glosses. The rebellion of the Rubenites, Dathan and Abiram, was of a political nature, against Moses alone as the civil leader; these rebels were punished by being swallowed alive in an earthquake. The rebellion of Core was of a religious nature, against the religious leadership of both Moses and Aaron; about two hundred and fifty malcontents joined Core's band; they were punished by fire. The parts of the present section which refer to the rebellion of Dathan and Abiram are vv 12-15 and vv 25-34 of chapter 16; the rest of chapter 16 and all of chapter 17 concern the rebellion of Core.

and Abiram, sons of Eliab, son of Phallu, son of Ruben] took 2 two hundred and fifty Israelties who were leaders in the community, members of the council and men of note. They stood before Moses, 3 and held an assembly against Moses and Aaron, to whom they said,[g] "Enough from you! The whole community, all of them, are holy; the Lord is in their midst. Why then should you set yourselves over the Lord's congregation?"

4 When Moses heard this, he fell prostrate. 5 Then he said to Core and to all his band, "May the Lord make known tomorrow morning who belongs to him and who is the holy one and whom he will have draw near to him! Whom he chooses, he will have draw near him. 6 Do this: take your censers [Core and all his band] 7 and put fire in them and place incense in them before the Lord tomorrow. He whom the Lord then chooses is the holy one. Enough from you Levites!"

8 Moses also said to Core, "Listen to me, you Levites! 9 [h] Is it too little for you that the God of Israel has singled you out from the community of Israel, to have you draw near him for the service of the Lord's Dwelling and to stand before the community to minister for them? 10 He has allowed you and your kinsmen, the descendants of Levi, to approach him, and yet you now seek the priesthood too. 11 It is therefore against the Lord that you and all your band are conspiring. For what has Aaron done that you should grumble against him?"

Rebellion of Dathan and Abiram. 12 Moses summoned Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab, but they answered, "We will not go.* 13 Are you not satisfied with having led us here away from a land flowing with milk and honey, to make us perish in the desert, that you must now lord it over us? 14 Far from bringing us to a land flowing with milk and honey, or giving us fields and vineyards for our inheritance, will you also gouge out our eyes? * No, we will not go."

15 Then Moses became very angry and said to the Lord, "Pay no heed to their offering. I have never taken a single ass from them, nor have I wronged any one of them." [i]

Core. 16 Moses said to Core, "You and all your band shall appear before the Lord tomorrow – you and they and Aaron too. 17 Then each of your two hundred and fifty followers shall take his own censer, put incense in it, and offer it to the Lord; and you and Aaron, each with his own censer, shall do the same." 18 So they all took their censers, and laying incense on the fire they had put in them, they took their stand by the entrance of the Meeting Tent along with Moses and Aaron. 19 Then, when Core had assembled all his band against them at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, the glory of the Lord appeared to the entire community, 20 and the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, 21 "Stand apart from this band, that I may consume them at once." 22 But they fell prostrate and cried out, "O God, God of the spirits of all mankind, will one man's sin make you angry with the whole community?" 23 The Lord answered Moses, 24 "Speak to the community and tell them: Withdraw from the space around the Dwelling" [of Core, Dathan and Abiram].

Punishment of Dathan and Abiram. 25 Moses, followed by the elders of Israel, arose and went to Dathan and Abiram.* 26 Then he warned the community, "Keep away from the tents of these wicked men and do not touch anything that is theirs: otherwise you too will be swept away because of all their sins." 27 When Dathan and Abiram had come out and were standing at the entrances of their tents with their wives and sons and little ones, 28 Moses said, "This is how you shall know that it was the Lord who sent me to do all I have done, and that it was not I who planned it: 29 if these men die an ordinary death, merely suffering the fate common to all mankind, then it was not the Lord who sent me. 30 But if the Lord does something entirely new, and the ground opens its mouth and swallows them alive down into the nether world, with all belonging to them, then you will know that these men have defied the Lord." 31 No sooner had he finished saying all this than the ground beneath them split open, 32 and the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them and their families [and all of Core's men] and all their possessions.j 33 They went down alive to the nether world with all belonging to them; the earth closed over them, and they perished from the community. 34 But all the Israelites near them fled at their shrieks, saying, "The earth might swallow us too!"

Punishment of Core. 35 So they withdrew from the space around the Dwelling [of Core,* Dathan and Abiram]. And fire from the Lord came forth which consumed the two hundred and fifty men who were offering the incense.

CHAPTER 17.

1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Tell Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, to remove the censers from the embers; and scatter the fire some distance away, 3 * for these sinners have consecrated the censers at the cost of their lives. Have them hammered into plates to cover the altar, because in being presented before the Lord they have become sacred. In this way they shall serve as a sign to the Israelites." 4 So Eleazar the priest had the bronze censers of those burned during the offering hammered into a covering for the altar, 5 in keeping with the orders which the Lord had given him through Moses. This cover was to be a reminder to the Israelites that no layman, no one who was not a descendant of Aaron, should approach the altar to offer incense before the Lord, lest he meet the fate of Core and his band.

6 The next day the whole Israelite community grumbled against Moses and Aaron, saying, "It is you who have slain the Lord's people." 7 But while the community was deliberating against them, Moses and Aaron turned toward the Meeting Tent, and the cloud now covered it and the glory of the Lord appeared. 8 Then Moses and Aaron came to the front of the Meeting Tent, 9 and the Lord said to them, 10 "Depart from this community, that I may consume them at once." But they fell prostrate.

11 Then Moses said to Aaron, "Take your censer, put fire from the altar in it, lay incense on it, and bring it quickly to the community to make atonement for them; for wrath has come forth from the Lord and the blow is falling." k 12 Obeying the orders of Moses, Aaron took his censer and ran in among the community, where the blow was already falling on the people. Then, as he offered the incense and made atonement for the people, 13 standing there between the living and the dead, the scourge was checked. 14 Yet fourteen thousand seven hundred died from the scourge, in addition to those who died because of Core. 15 When the scourge had been checked, Aaron returned to Moses at the entrance of the Meeting Tent.

Aaron's Staff. 16 The Lord now said to Moses, 17 "Speak to the Israelites and get one staff * from them for each ancestral house, twelve staffs in all, one from each of their tribal princes. Mark each man's name on his staff; 18 and mark Aaron's name on Levi's staff,* for the head of Levi's ancestral house shall also have a staff. 19 Then lay them down in the Meeting Tent, in front of the Commandments, where I meet you. 20 There the staff of the man of my choice shall sprout. Thus will I suppress from my presence the Israelites' grumbling against you."

21 So Moses spoke to the Israelites, and their princes gave him staffs, twelve in all, one from each tribal prince; and Aaron's staff was with them. 22 Then Moses laid the staffs down before the Lord in the Tent of the Commandments. 23 The next day, when Moses entered the Tent, Aaron's staff, representing the house of Levi, had sprouted and put forth not only shoots, but blossoms as well, and even bore ripe almonds! 24 Moses thereupon brought out all the staffs from the Lord's presence to the Israelites. After each prince identified his own staff and 16, 35: This verse, continues v 24; the first sentence is transposed from v 27; cf Nm 17, 5; 26, 10.

17, 3: Whatever was brought into intimate contact with something sacred shared in its sacredness. See note on Nm 19, 20.

17, 17: The staff was not merely an article of practical use, but also a symbol of authority; cf Gn 49, 10; Nm 24, 17; Jer 48, 17. Hence, the staff of a leader of a tribe was considered the emblem of his tribe; in fact, certain Hebrew words for "staff" also mean "tribe." Perhaps for this reason, to avoid confusion, the author here uses the term "ancestral house" instead of the ordinary word for "tribe."

17, 18: Levi's staff: it is not clear whether this is considered as one of the twelve mentioned in the preceding verse, or as a thirteenth staff. Sometimes Levi is reckoned as one of the twelve tribes (e.g., Dt 27, 12f), but more often the number twelve is arrived at by counting the two sub-tribes of Joseph, i.e., Ephraim and Manasse, as distinct tribes. In this passage also it seems probable that the tribe of Levi is considered apart from the other twelve.

took it, 25 the Lord said to Moses, "Put back Aaron's staff in front of the Commandments, to be kept there as a warning to the rebellious, so that their grumbling may cease before me; if it does not, they will die." 26 And Moses did as the Lord had commanded him.

Charge of the Sacred Things. 27 *Then the Israelites cried out to Moses, "We are perishing; we are lost, we are all lost! 28 Every time anyone approaches the Dwelling of the Lord, he dies! Are we to perish to the last man?"

CHAPTER 18.

1 The Lord said to Aaron, * "You and your sons as well as the other members of your ancestral house shall be responsible for the sanctuary; but the responsibility of the priesthood shall rest on you and your sons alone. 2 Bring with you also your other kinsmen of the tribe of Levi, your ancestral tribe, as your associates * and assistants, while you and your sons are in front of the Tent of the Commandments. 3 They shall look after your persons and the whole Tent; however, they shall not come near the sacred vessels or the altar, lest both they and you die. 4 As your associates they shall have charge of all the work connected with the Meeting Tent. But no layman * shall come near you. 5 You shall have charge of the sanctuary and of the altar, that wrath may not fall again upon the Israelites.

6 "Remember, it is I who have taken your kinsmen, the Levites, from the body of the Israelites; they are a gift to you,[l] dedicated to the Lord for the service of the Meeting Tent. 7 [m] But only you and your sons are to have charge of performing the priestly functions in whatever concerns the altar and the room within the veil.* I give you the priesthood as a gift. Any layman who draws near shall be put to death."

The Priests' Share of the Sacrifices. 8 The Lord said to Aaron, * "I myself have given you charge of the contributions made to me in the various sacred offerings of the Israelites; [n] by perpetual ordinance I have assigned them to you and to your sons as your priestly share. 9 You shall have the right to share in the oblations that are most sacred, in whatever they offer me as cereal offerings or sin offerings or guilt offerings; these shares shall accrue to you and to your sons. 10 In eating them you shall treat them as most sacred; every male among you may partake of them. As sacred, they belong to you.

11 "You shall also have what is removed from the gift in every wave offering * of the Israelites; by perpetual ordinance I have assigned it to you and to your sons and daughters.[o] All in your family who are clean may partake of it. 12 I have also assigned to you all the best [p] of the new oil and of the new wine and grain that they give to the Lord as their first fruits; 13 and likewise, of whatever grows on their land, the first products that they bring in to the Lord shall be yours; all of your family who are clean may partake of them. 14 Whatever is doomed * in Israel shall be yours. 15 Every living thing that opens the womb, whether of man or of beast, such as are to be offered to the Lord, shall be yours; [q] but you must let the first-born of man, as well as of unclean animals, be redeemed. 16 The ransom for a boy is to be paid when he is a month old; it is fixed at five silver shekels according to the sanctuary standard, twenty geras to the shekel. 17 But the first-born of cattle, sheep or goats shall not be redeemed; they are sacred. Their blood you must splash on the altar and their fat you must burn as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 18 [r] Their meat, however, shall be yours, just as the breast and the right leg of the wave offering be-

18, 1ff: This law, which kept unqualified persons from contact with sacred things, is the answer to the Israelites' cry in Nm 17, 28. It is followed by other laws concerning priests and Levites.

18, 2: Associates: in Hebrew this word alludes to the popular etymology of the name "Levi." Cf Gn 29, 34.

18, 4: Layman: here, "one who is not a Levite"; in v 7, "one who is not a priest."

18, 7: Veil: the outer veil, or "curtain," is probably meant.

18, 8ff: Two classes of offerings are here distinguished: the most sacred offering, which only the male members of the priestly families could eat (vv 8ff), and the other offerings, which even the women of the priestly families could eat (vv 11-19).

long to you. 19 By perpetual ordinance I have assigned to you and to your sons and daughters all the contributions from the sacred gifts which the Israelites make to the Lord; this is an inviolable covenant* to last forever before the Lord, for you and your descendants." 20 s Then the Lord said to Aaron, * "You shall not have any heritage in the land of the Israelites nor hold any portion among them; I will be your portion and your heritage among them.

Tithes Due the Levites. 21 "To the Levites, however, I hereby assign all tithes in Israel as their heritage in recompense for the service they perform in the Meeting Tent.t 22 The Israelites may no longer approach the Meeting Tent; else they will incur guilt deserving death. 23 Only the Levites are to perform the service of the Meeting Tent, and they alone shall be held responsible; this is a perpetual ordinance for all your generations. The Levites, therefore, shall not have any heritage among the Israelites, 24 for I have assigned to them as their heritage the tithes which the Israelites give as a contribution to the Lord. That is why I have ordered that they are not to have any heritage among the Israelites."

Tithes Paid by the Levites. 25 The Lord said to Moses, 26 "Give the Levites these instructions: When you receive from the Israelites the tithes I have assigned you from them as your heritage, you are to make a contribution from them to the Lord, a tithe of the tithes; 27 and your contribution will be credited to you as if it were grain from the threshing floor or new wine from the press. 28 Thus you too shall make a contribution from all the tithes you receive from the Israelites, handing over to Aaron the priest the part to be contributed to the Lord. 29 From all the gifts that you receive, and from the best parts, you are to consecrate to the Lord your own full contribution.

30 "Tell them also: Once you have made your contribution from the best part, the rest of the tithes will be credited to you Levites as if it were produce of the threshing floor or of the wine press. 31 Your families, as well as you, may eat them anywhere, since they are your recompense for service at the Meeting Tent. 32 You will incur no guilt so long as you make a contribution of the best part. Do not profane the sacred gifts of the Israelites and so bring death on yourselves."

CHAPTER 19.

Ashes of the Red Heifer. 1 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron: 2 "This is the regulation which the law of the Lord prescribes. Tell the Israelites to procure for you a red heifer that is free from every blemish and defect and on which no yoke has ever been laid. 3 This is to be given to Eleazar the priest, to be led outside the camp * and slaughtered in his presence. 4 Eleazar the priest shall take some of its blood on his finger and sprinkle it seven times toward the front of the Meeting Tent.* 5 Then the heifer shall be burned in his sight, with its hide and flesh, its blood and offal; 6 and the priest shall take some cedar wood, hyssop and scarlet yarn and throw them into the fire in which the heifer is being burned. 7 The priest shall then wash his garments and bathe his body in water. He remains unclean until the evening, and only afterward may he return to the camp. 8 Likewise, he who burned the heifer shall wash his garments, bathe his body in water, and be unclean until evening. 9 Finally, a man who is clean shall gather up the ashes of the heifer and deposit them in a clean place outside the camp. There they are to be kept for preparing lustral water for the Israelite community. The heifer is a sin offering. 10 He who has gathered up the ashes of the heifer shall also wash his garments and be unclean until evening. This is a perpetual ordinance, both for the Israelites and for the aliens residing among them.

s Dt 10, 9; 18, 1f; Jos 13, 33; Ez 44, 28.—t Heb 7, 5.

18, 19: An inviolable covenant: literally, "a covenant of salt." Cf 2 Par 13, 5. The reference may perhaps be to the preservative power of salt (cf Mt 5, 13); but more likely the phrase refers to the custom of partaking of the same salt in common to render a contract unbreakable. See note on Lv 2, 13.

18, 20: The priests and Levites were forbidden to own hereditary land such as the other Israelites possessed; therefore in the allotment of the land they were not to receive any portion of it. Certain cities, however, were assigned to them for their residence; cf Nm 35, 1-8.

19, 3: Outside the camp: several Fathers of the Church saw in this a prefiguring of the sacrificial death of Christ outside the walls of Jerusalem; cf Jn 19, 20; Heb 13, 12; in the purifying water, into which the ashes of the red heifer were put, they saw a type of the water of Baptism.

19, 4: Toward the front of the Meeting Tent: since the tabernacle faced the east (Ex 26, 15-30), the killing of the heifer took place east of the camp; in later times it was done on the Mount of Olives, east of the Temple.

Use of the Ashes. 11 "Whoever touches the dead body of any human being shall be unclean for seven days; 12 he shall purify himself with the water on the third and on the seventh day, and then he will be clean again. But if he fails to purify himself on the third and on the seventh day, he will not become clean. 13 [u] Everyone who fails to purify himself after touching the body of any deceased person, defiles the Dwelling of the Lord and shall be cut off from Israel. Since the lustral water has not been splashed over him, he remains unclean; his uncleanness still clings to him.

14 "This is the law: When a man dies in a tent, everyone who enters the tent, as well as everyone already in it, shall be unclean for seven days; 15 likewise, every vessel that is open, or with its lid unfastened, shall be unclean. 16 Moreover, everyone who in the open country touches a dead person, whether he was slain by the sword or died naturally, or who touches a human bone or a grave, shall be unclean for seven days. 17 * For anyone who is thus unclean, ashes from the sin offering shall be put in a vessel, and spring water shall be poured on them. 18 Then a man who is clean shall take some hyssop, dip it in this water, and sprinkle it on the tent and on all the vessels and persons that were in it, or on him who touched a bone, a slain person or other dead body, or a grave. 19 The clean man shall sprinkle the unclean on the third and on the seventh day; thus purified on the seventh day, he shall wash his garments and bathe his body in water, and in the evening he will be clean again. 20 *Any unclean man who fails to have himself purified shall be cut off from the community, because he defiles the sanctuary of the Lord. As long as the lustral water has not been splashed over him, he remains unclean. 21 This shall be a perpetual ordinance for you.

"One who sprinkles the lustral water shall wash his garments, and anyone who comes in contact with this water shall be unclean until evening. 22 Moreover, whatever the unclean person touches becomes unclean itself, and anyone who touches it becomes unclean until evening."

CHAPTER 20.

Death of Mariam. 1 The whole Israelite community arrived in the desert of Sin in the first month,* and the people settled at Cades. It was here that Mariam died, and here that she was buried.

Water Famine at Cades. 2 As the community had no water, they held a council against Moses and Aaron. 3 The people contended with Moses, exclaiming, "Would that we too had perished with our kinsmen in the Lord's presence! 4 Why have you brought the Lord's community into this desert where we and our livestock are dying? 5 Why did you lead us out of Egypt, only to bring us to this wretched place which has neither grain nor figs nor vines nor pomegranates? Here there is not even water to drink!" 6 But Moses and Aaron went away from the assembly to the entrance of the Meeting Tent, where they fell prostrate.

Sin of Moses and Aaron. Then the glory of the Lord appeared to them, 7 and the Lord said to Moses, 8 "Take the staff and assemble the community, you and your brother Aaron, and in their presence order the rock to yield its waters. From the rock you shall bring forth water for the community and their livestock to drink." 9 So Moses took the staff from its place before the Lord, as he was ordered. 10 He and Aaron assembled the community in front of the rock, where he said to them, [v] "Listen to me, you rebels! Are we to bring water for you out of this rock?" 11 [w] Then, raising his hand, Moses struck the rock twice* with his staff, and water gushed out in abundance for the community and their livestock to drink. 12 * But the Lord said to Moses 19, 17ff: "If . . . the sprinkled ashes of a heifer sanctify the unclean unto the cleansing of the flesh, how much more will the blood of Christ . . . cleanse your conscience from dead works?" (Heb 9, 13f).

19, 20: Ritual uncleanness is, as it were, contagious, so also sacredness; see note on Nm 17, 3.

20, 1: The first month: we would expect the mention also of the day and of the year (after the exodus) when this took place; cf similar dates in Nm 1, 1; 10, 11; 33, 38; Dt 1, 3. Here the full date seems to have been lost. Probably the Israelites arrived in Cades in the third year after the exodus. Cf Dt 1, 46. The desert of Sin: a barren region with a few good oases, southwest of the Dead Sea. See note on Nm 13, 21.

20, 11: Twice: perhaps because he had not sufficient faith to work the miracle with the first blow. Cf v 12.

20, 12f: The sin of Moses and Aaron consisted in doubting God's mercy toward the ever-rebellious people. In showing forth my sanctity: God's sacred power and glory: an allusion to the name of the place, Cades, which means "sanctified, sacred." Meriba means "contention." Cf Ex 17, 7.

and Aaron, "Because you were not faithful to me in showing forth my sanctity before the Israelites, you shall not lead this community into the land I will give them."

13 These are the waters of Meriba,[x] where the Israelites contended against the Lord, and where he revealed his sanctity among them.

Edom's Refusal. 14 From Cades Moses sent men to the king of Edom with the message: "Your brother Israel * has this to say: You know of all the hardships that have befallen us, 15 how our fathers went down to Egypt, where we stayed a long time, how the Egyptians maltreated us and our fathers, 16 and how, when we cried to the Lord,[y] he heard our cry and sent an angel who led us out of Egypt. Now here we are at the town of Cades at the edge of your territory. 17 Kindly let us pass through your country. We will not cross any fields or vineyards, nor drink any well water, but we will go straight along the royal road * without turning to the right or to the left, until we have passed through your territory."

18 But Edom answered him, "You shall not pass through here; if you do, I will advance against you with the sword." 19 The Israelites insisted, "We want only to go up along the highway. If we or our livestock drink any of your water, we will pay for it. Surely there is no harm in merely letting us march through." 20 But Edom still said, "No, you shall not pass through," [z] and advanced against them with a large and heavily armed force. 21 Therefore, since Edom refused to let them pass through their territory, Israel detoured around them.

Death of Aaron. 22 [a] Setting out from Cades, the whole Israelite community came to Mount Hor.* 23 There at Mount Hor, on the border of the land of Edom, the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, 24 "Aaron is about to be taken to his people; he shall not enter the land I am giving to the Israelites, because you both rebelled against my commandment at the waters of Meriba. 25 Take Aaron and his son Eleazar and bring them upon Mount Hor.[b] 26 Then strip Aaron of his garments and put them on his son Eleazar; for there Aaron shall be taken in death."

27 Moses did as the Lord commanded. When they had climbed Mount Hor in view of the whole community, 28 Moses stripped Aaron of his garments and put them on his son Eleazar. Then Aaron died there on top of the mountain.[c] When Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain, 29 all the community understood that Aaron had passed away; and for thirty days the whole house of Israel mourned him.

CHAPTER 21.

Victory over Arad. 1 When the Chanaanite king of Arad,* who lived in the Negeb, [d] heard that the Israelites were coming along the way of Atharim, he engaged them in battle and took some of them captive. 2 Israel then made this vow to the Lord: "If you deliver this people into my hand, I will doom their cities." [e] 3 Later, when the Lord heeded Israel's prayer and delivered up the Chanaanites,[f] they doomed them and their cities. Hence that place was named Horma.*

The Bronze Serpent. 4 From Mount Hor they set out on the Red Sea road, to bypass the land of Edom. But with their patience worn out by the journey, 5 the people complained [g] against God and Moses, "Why have you brought us up from Egypt to die in this desert, where there is no food or water? We are disgusted with this wretched food!" *

6 In punishment the Lord sent among the people saraph* serpents, which bit [h]

20, 17: The royal road: an important highway, running north and south along the plateau east of the Dead Sea. In ancient times it was much used by caravans and armies; later it was improved by the Romans, and large stretches of it are still clearly recognizable.

20, 22: Mount Hor: not definitively identified, but probably to be sought in the vicinity of Cades. According to Dt 10, 6, Aaron died at Moser (cf "Moseroth" in Nm 33, 30f), which is apparently the name of the region in which Mount Hor is situated.

21, 1-3: The account of this episode seems to be a later insertion here, for Nm 21, 4, belongs logically immediately after Nm 20, 29. Perhaps this is the same event as that mentioned in Jgs 1, 16f.

21, 3: Horma: related to the Hebrew word herem, meaning "doomed." See notes on Nm 14, 45; 18, 14.

the people so that many of them died.
7 Then the people came to Moses and said, "We have sinned in complaining against the Lord and you. Pray the Lord to take the serpents from us." So Moses prayed for the people, 8 and the Lord said to Moses, "Make a saraph and mount it on a pole, and if anyone who has been bitten looks at it, he will recover." * 9 Moses accordingly made a bronze serpent * and mounted it on a pole, and whenever anyone who had been bitten by a serpent looked at the bronze serpent,
he recovered.[i]

Journey around Moab. 10 The Israelites moved on and encamped in Oboth.[j] 11 Setting out from Oboth, they encamped in Ijeabarim * in the desert fronting Moab
on the east. 12 Setting out from there,
they encamped in the Wadi Zared. 13 Setting out from there, they encamped on the other side of the Arnon, in the desert that extends from the territory of the Amorrites; for the Arnon forms Moab's boundary with the Amorrites. 14 Hence it is said in the "Book of the Wars of the Lord"*: "Vaheb in Supha and the wadies, 15 Arnon and the wadi gorges that reach back toward the site of Ar and slant to the border of Moab."

16 From there they went to Beer, *
where there was the well of which the Lord said to Moses, "Bring the people together, and I will give them water." 17
Then it was that Israel sang this song:
"Spring up, O well! – so sing to it – 18
the well that the princes sank, that the nobles of the people dug, with their scepters and their staffs."

From Beer they went to Matthana, 19
from Matthana to Nahaliel, from Nahaliel to Bamoth, 20 from Bamoth to the cleft in the plateau of Moab at the head-land of Phasga that overlooks Jesimon.*

Victory over Sehon. 21 Now Israel sent men to Sehon, king of the Amorrites, 22 with the message, "Let us pass through your country. We will not turn aside into any field or vineyard, nor will we drink
any well water, but we will go straight along the royal road until we have passed through your territory." 23 Sehon,[k] however, would not let Israel pass through his territory, but mustered all his forces and advanced into the desert against Israel. When he reached Jahas, he engaged Israel in battle. 24 But Israel defeated him
at the point of the sword, and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the Jaboc and as far as the country of the Ammonites, whose boundary was at Jazer.
25 l Israel seized all the towns here and settled in these towns of the Amorrites,
in Hesebon and all its dependencies. 26
Now, Hesebon was the capital of Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who had fought against the former king of Moab and had seized all his land from Jazer to the Ar-
non. 27 That is why the poets say: "Come to Hesebon, let it be rebuilt, let Sehon's capital be firmly constructed. 28 For fire went forth from Hesebon and a blaze from the city of Sehon; it consumed the cities of Moab and swallowed up the high places of the Arnon. 29 Woe to you, O Moab! You are ruined, O people of Chamos! * He let his sons become fugitives and his daughters be taken captive by the Amorrite king Sehon. 30 Their plowland is ruined from Hesebon to Di-bon; Ar is laid waste; fires blaze as far as Medaba."

31 When Israel had settled in the land of the Amorrites, 32 Moses sent spies to Jazer; Israel then captured it with its dependencies and dispossessed the Amorrites who were there.

Victory over Og. 33 m Then they turned and went up along the road to Basan.
But Og, king of Basan, advanced against them with all his people to give battle at Edrai. 34 The Lord, however, said to Moses, "Do not be afraid of him; for into your hand I will deliver him with all his people and his land. Do to him as you did to Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon." n 35 So they struck him down with his sons and all his people, until not a survivor was left to him, and they took possession of his land.

CHAPTER 22.

1 Then the Israelites moved on and encamped in the plains of Moab * on the other side of the Jericho stretch of the Jordan.

III. On The Plains of Moab

Balaam Summoned. 2 Now Balac son of Sepphor, saw all that Israel did to the Amorrites. 3 Indeed, Moab feared the Israelites greatly because of their numbers, and detested them. 4 So Moab said to the elders of Madian, "Soon this horde will devour all the country around us as an ox devours the grass of the field." And Balac, Sepphor's son, who was king of Moab at that time, 5 sent messengers to Balaam, son of Beor, at Phathur on the Euphrates, in the land of the Amauites, summoning him with these words, "A people has come here from Egypt who now cover the face of the earth and are settling down opposite us! 6 Please come and curse this people for us; * they are stronger than we are. We may then be able to defeat them and drive them out of the country. For I know that whoever you bless is blessed and whoever you curse is cursed." 7 Then the elders of Moab and of Madian left with the divination fee in hand and went to Balaam. When they had given him Balac's message, 8 he said to them in reply, "Stay here overnight, and I will give you whatever answer the Lord gives me." So the princes of Moab lodged with Balaam.

n Ps 135 (136), 17ff.—o Nm 24, 13.

22, 1: The plains of Moab: the lowlands to the northeast of the Dead Sea, between the Jordan and the foothills below Mount Nebo. Here the Israelites remained until they crossed the Jordan, as told in Jos 1-4; Jericho lay to the west of the Jordan.

22, 6: Curse this people for us: Balac believed that if Balaam forecast an evil omen for Israel, this evil would come to pass, as if by magic. Balaam was a soothsayer or foreteller; cf Jos 13, 22.

22, 22: The anger of God flared up: not merely because Balaam was going to Balac, for he had God's permission for the journey (v 20), but because he was tempted by avarice to curse Israel against God's express command. "They have followed the way of Balaam, the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of wrongdoing" (2 Pt 2, 15); "and have rushed on thoughtlessly into the error of Balaam for the sake of gain" (Jude 11).

9 Then God came to Balaam and said, "Who are these men visiting you?" 10 Balaam answered God, "Balac, son of Sepphor, king of Moab, sent me the message: 11 'This people that came here from Egypt now cover the face of the earth. Please come and lay a curse on them for us; we may then be able to give them battle and drive them out.'" 12 But God said to Balaam, "Do not go with them and do not curse this people, for they are blessed." 13 The next morning Balaam arose and told the princes of Balac, "Go back to your own country, for the Lord has refused to let me go with you." 14 So the princes of Moab went back to Balac with the report, "Balaam refused to come with us."

Second Appeal to Balaam. 15 Balac again sent princes, who were more numerous and more distinguished than the others. 16 On coming to Balaam they told him, "This is what Balac, son of Sepphor, has to say: Please do not refuse to come to me. 17 I will reward you very handsomely and will do anything you ask of me. Please come and lay a curse on this people for me." 18 o But Balaam replied to Balac's officials, "Even if Balac gave me his house full of silver and gold, I could not do anything, small or great, contrary to the command of the Lord, my God. 19 But, you too shall stay here overnight, till I learn what else the Lord may tell me."

20 That night God came to Balaam and said to him, "If these men have come to summon you, you may go with them; yet only on the condition that you do exactly as I tell you." 21 So the next morning when Balaam arose, he saddled his ass, and went off with the princes of Moab.

The Talking Ass. 22 But now the anger of God flared up * at him for going, and the angel of the Lord stationed himself on the road to hinder him as he was riding along on his ass, accompanied by two of his servants. 23 When the ass saw the angel of the Lord standing on the road with sword drawn, she turned off the road and went into the field, and Balaam had to beat her to bring her back on the road. 24 Then the angel of the Lord took his stand in a narrow lane between vineyards with a stone wall on each side. 25 When the ass saw the angel of the Lord there, she shrank against the wall; and since she squeezed Balaam's leg against it, he beat her again. 26 The angel of the Lord then went ahead, and stopped next in a passage so narrow that there was no room to move either to the right or to the left. 27 When the ass saw the angel of the Lord there, she cowered under Balaam. So, in anger, he again beat the ass with his stick.

28 p But now the Lord opened the mouth of the ass, and she asked Balaam, "What have I done to you that you should beat me these three times?" 29 "You have acted so willfully against me," said Balaam to the ass, "that if I but had a sword at hand, I would kill you here and now." 30 But the ass said to Balaam, "Am I not your own beast, and have you not always ridden upon me until now? Have I been in the habit of treating you this way before?" "No," replied Balaam.

31 Then the Lord removed the veil from Balaam's eyes, so that he too saw the angel of the Lord standing on the road with sword drawn; and he fell on his knees and bowed to the ground. 32 But the angel of the Lord said to him, "Why have you beaten your ass these three times? It is I who have come armed to hinder you because this rash journey of yours is directly opposed to me. 33 When the ass saw me, she turned away from me these three times. If she had not turned away from me, I would have killed you; her I would have spared." 34 Then Balaam said to the angel of the Lord, "I have sinned. Yet I did not know that you stood against me to oppose my journey. Since it has displeased you, I will go back home." 35 But the angel of the Lord said to Balaam, "Go with the men; but you may say only what I tell you." So Balaam went on with the princes of Balac.

36 When Balac heard that Balaam was coming, he went out to meet him at the boundary city Ir-Moab on the Arnon at the end of the Moabite territory. 37 And he said to Balaam, "I sent an urgent summons to you! Why did you not come to me? Did you think I could not reward you?" 38 Balaam answered him, "Well, I have come to you after all. But what power have I to say anything? I can speak only what God puts in my mouth." 39 Then Balaam went with Balac, and they came to Cariath-Husoth. 40 Here Balac slaughtered oxen and sheep, and sent portions to Balaam and to the princes who were with him.

The First Oracle. 41 The next morning Balac took Balaam up on Bamoth-Baal, and from there he saw some of the clans.

CHAPTER 23.

1 Then Balaam said to Balac, "Build me seven altars, and prepare seven bullocks and seven rams for me here." 2 So he did as Balaam had ordered, offering a bullock and a ram on each altar. 4 And Balac said to him, "I have erected the seven altars, and have offered a bullock and a ram on each." 3 Balaam then said to him, "Stand here by your holocaust while I go over there. Perhaps the Lord will meet me, and then I will tell you whatever he lets me see." He went out on the barren height, and God met him. 5 When he had put an utterance in Balaam's mouth, the Lord said to him, "Go back to Balac, and speak accordingly." 6 So he went back to Balac, who was still standing by his holocaust together with all the princes of Moab. 7 Then Balaam gave voice to his oracle:

From Aram* has Balac brought me here, Moab's king, from the Eastern Mountains: q "Come and lay a curse for me on Jacob, come and denounce Israel." 8 How can I curse whom God has not cursed? How denounce whom the Lord has not denounced? 9 For from the top of the crags I see him, from the heights I behold him. Here is a people that lives apart* and does not reckon itself among the nations. 10 Who has ever counted the dust of Jacob, or numbered Israel's wind-borne particles?* May I die the death of the just, may my descendants be as many as theirs!

11 "What have you done to me?" cried Balac to Balaam. "It was to curse my foes that I brought you here; instead, you have even blessed them." 12 Balaam replied, "Is it not what the Lord puts in my mouth that I must repeat with care?"

The Second Oracle. 13 Then Balac said to him, "Please come with me to another place* from which you can see only some and not all of them, and from there curse them for me." 14 So he brought him to the lookout field on the top of Phasga, where he built seven altars and offered a bullock and a ram on each of them. 15 Balaam then said to Balac, "Stand here by your holocaust, while I seek a meeting over there." 16 Then the Lord met Balaam, and having put an utterance in his mouth, he said to him, "Go back to Balac, and speak accordingly." 17 So he went back to Balac, who was still standing by his holocaust together with the princes of Moab. When Balac asked him, "What did the Lord say?" 18 Balaam gave voice to his oracle:

Be aroused, O Balac, and hearken; give ear to my testimony, O son of Sepphor!
19 God is not man that he should speak falsely, nor human, that he should change his mind. Is he one to speak and not act, to decree and not fulfill? 20 It is a blessing I have been given to pronounce; a blessing which I cannot restrain. 21 Misfortune is not observed in Jacob, nor misery* seen in Israel. The Lord, his God, is with him; with him is the triumph of his King. 22 It is God who brought him out of Egypt,[r] a wild bull of towering might.*
23 No, there is no sorcery against Jacob, nor omen against Israel. It shall yet be said of Jacob, and of Israel, "Behold what God has wrought!" 24 [s] Here is a people that springs up like a lioness, and stalks forth like a lion; it rests not till it has devoured its prey and has drunk the blood of the slain.

25 "Even though you cannot curse them," said Balac to Balaam, "at least do not bless them." 26 But Balaam answered Balac, "Did I not warn you that I must do all that the Lord tells me?"

The Third Oracle. 27 Then Balac said to Balaam, "Come, let me bring you to another place; perhaps God will approve of your cursing them for me from there." 28 So he took Balaam to the top of Phogor, that overlooks Jesimon. 29 Balaam then said to him, "Here build me seven altars; and here prepare for me seven bullocks and seven rams." 30 And Balac did as Balaam had ordered, offering a bullock and a ram on each altar.

CHAPTER 24.

1 Balaam, however, perceiving that the Lord was pleased to bless Israel, did not go aside as before to seek omens, but turned his gaze toward the desert. 2 When he raised his eyes and saw Israel encamped, tribe by tribe, the spirit of God came upon him, 3 and he gave voice to his oracle:

The utterance of Balaam, son of Beor,
the utterance of the man whose eye is true,
4 the utterance of one who hears what God says,
and knows what the Most High knows,
of one who sees what the Almighty sees,
enraptured, and with eyes unveiled:
5 How goodly are your tents, O Jacob;
your encampments, O Israel!
6 They are like gardens beside a stream,
like the cedars planted by the Lord.
7 His wells shall yield free-flowing waters,
he shall have the sea within reach;
his king shall rise higher than . . . .
and his royalty shall be exalted.
8 It is God who brought him out of Egypt, a wild bull of towering might.[t]
He shall devour the nations like grass,
their bones he shall strip bare.
9 He lies crouching like a lion,[u]
or like a lioness; who shall arouse him?
Blessed is he who blesses you,
and cursed is he who curses you!

10 Balac beat his palms* together in a blaze of anger at Balaam and said to him, "It was to curse my foes that I summoned you here; yet three times now you have even blessed them instead![v] 11 Be off at once, then, to your home. I promised to reward you richly, but the Lord has withheld the reward from you!" 12 Balaam replied to Balac, "Did I not warn the very messengers whom you sent to me, 13 'Even if Balac gave me his house full of silver and gold, I could not of my own accord do anything, good or evil, contrary to the command of the Lord'? Whatever the Lord says I must repeat.[w]

23, 13: To another place: Balac thought that if Balaam would view Israel from a different site, he could forecast a different kind of omen.

23, 21: Misfortune . . . misery: Balaam admits that he is unable to predict any evils for Israel.

23, 22: A wild bull of towering might: the reference is to Israel, rather than to God.

24, 10: Balac beat his palms: a sign of disclaiming any responsibility for paying the promised reward.

The Fourth Oracle. 14 "But now that I am about to go to my own people, let me first warn you what this people will do to your people in the days to come." 15 Then Balaam gave voice to his oracle:

The utterance of Balaam, son of Beor,
the utterance of the man whose eye is true, 16 the utterance of one who hears what God says, and knows what the Most High knows, of one who sees what the Almighty sees, enraptured and with eyes unveiled. 17 I see him, though not now; I behold him, though not near: A star shall advance from Jacob, and a staff* shall rise from Israel, that shall smite the brows of Moab,[x] and the skulls of all the Suthites, 18 till Edom is dispossessed, and no fugitive is left in Seir. Israel shall do valiantly, 19 and Jacob shall overcome his foes.

20 Upon seeing Amalec, Balaam gave voice to his oracle: First* of the peoples was Amalec, but his end is to perish forever.[y]

21 Upon seeing the Cinites,* he gave voice to his oracle: Your abode is enduring, O smith, and your nest is set on a cliff; 22 yet destined for burning—even as I watch—are your inhabitants.

23 Upon seeing . . . . he gave voice to his oracle: *Alas, who shall survive of Ismael, 24 to deliver his people from the hands of the Chittim? When they have conquered Assur and conquered Heber, he too shall perish forever.

25 Then Balaam set out on his journey home; and Balac also went his way.

CHAPTER 25.

Worship of Baal-Phogor. 1 While Israel was living at Sattim,* the people degraded themselves by having illicit relations with the Moabite women.[z] 2 These then invited the people to the sacrifices of their god, and the people ate of the sacrifices[a] and worshipped their god. 3 When Israel thus submitted to the rites of Baal-Phogor,[b] the Lord's anger flared up against Israel, 4 and he said to Moses, [c] "Gather all the leaders of the people, and hold a public execution* of the guilty ones before the Lord, that his blazing wrath may be turned away from Israel." 5 So Moses told the Israelite judges, "Each of you shall kill those of his men who have submitted to the rites of Baal-Phogor."

Zeal of Phinees. 6 Yet a certain Israelite came and brought in a Madianite woman* to his family in the view of Moses and of the whole Israelite community, while they were weeping at the entrance of the Meeting Tent. 7 [d] When Phinees, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, saw this, he left the assembly, and taking a lance in hand, 8 followed the Israelite into his retreat where he pierced the pair of them, the Israelite and the woman. Thus the slaughter of Israelites was checked; 9 but only after twenty-four thousand had died.

10 Then the Lord said to Moses, 11 "Phinees, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, has turned my anger from the Israelites by his zeal for my honor* among them; that is why I did not put an end to the Israelites for the offense to my honor. 12 [e] Announce, therefore, that I hereby give him my pledge of friendship, 13 which shall be for him and for his descendants after him the pledge of an everlasting priesthood, because he was zealous on behalf of his God and thus made amends for the Israelites."

24, 17: A star . . . a staff: many of the Fathers have understood this as a Messianic prophecy, although it is not referred to anywhere in the New Testament; in this sense the star is Christ Himself, just as He is the staff from Israel; cf Is 11, 1. But it is doubtful whether this passage is to be connected with the "star of the Magi" in Mt 2, 1-12. The Suthites: mentioned in other documents of this period as a tribe on the border of Palestine.

24, 20: First: literally "the beginning." Amalec was an aboriginal people in Palestine and therefore considered as of great antiquity. There is a deliberate contrast here between the words first and end.

24, 21: The Cinites lived in high strongholds in the mountains of southern Palestine and the Sinai Peninsula, and were skilled in working the various metals found in their territory. Their name is connected, at least by popular etymology with the Hebrew word for "smith"; of similar sound is the Hebrew word for "nest"—hence the play on words in the present passage.

24, 23f: The translation of this short oracle is based on a reconstructed text and is rather uncertain. Ismael: the survival of Ismael is indicated in Gn 17, 20; 21, 13. 18.

25, 1: Sattim: literally "acacias." The full name, Abel-Sattim, designated the "grove of acacia trees" at the foot of the mountains in the northeastern corner of the plains of Moab. Illicit relations: perhaps as part of the licentious worship of Baal-Phogor.

25, 4: Hold a public execution: the same phrase occurs in 2 Kgs 21, 6-14, where the context shows that at least a part of the penalty consisted in being denied honorable burial. In both passages St. Jerome understood the phrase to mean, "hang them on gibbets."

25, 6: Madianite woman: at this time the Madianites were leagued with the Moabites in opposing Israel; cf Nm 22, 4. 7. Balaam had induced both the Madianites (Nm 31, 16) and the Moabites (Ap 2, 14) to lure the Israelites to the obscene rites of Baal-Phogor. They were weeping: on account of the plague that had struck them; cf v 8.

25, 11: For my honor: by taking vengeance on those who had made Baal-Phogor a rival of the Lord.

14 *The Israelite slain with the Madianite woman was Zamri, son of Salu, prince of an ancestral house of the Simeonites. 15 The slain Madianite woman was Chozbi, daughter of Sur, who was head of a clan, an ancestral house, in Madian.

Vengeance on the Madianites. 16 *The Lord then said to Moses, 17 f "Treat the Madianites as enemies and crush them, 18 for they have been your enemies by their wily dealings with you as regards Phogor and as regards their kinswoman Chozbi, the daughter of a Madianite prince, who was killed at the time of the slaughter because of Phogor."

CHAPTER 26.

The Second Census. 1 After the slaughter the Lord said to Moses and Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, 2 "Take a census, by ancestral houses, throughout the community of the Israelites of all those of twenty years or more who are fit for military service in Israel." g 3 So on the plains of Moab along the Jericho stretch of the Jordan, Moses and the priest Eleazar registered 4 those of twenty years or more, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

The Israelites who came out of the land of Egypt were as follows:

5 h Of Ruben, the first-born of Israel, the Rubenites by clans were: through Henoch the clan of the Henochites, through Phallu the clan of the Phalluites, 6 through Hesron the clan of the Hesronites, through Charmi the clan of the Charmites. 7 These were the clans of the Rubenites, of whom forty-three thousand seven hundred and thirty men were registered.

8 From Phallu descended Eliab, 9 and the descendants of Eliab were Dathan and Abiram i—the same Dathan and Abiram, councilors of the community, who revolted against Moses and Aaron [like Core's band when it rebelled against the Lord]. 10 The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them as a warning [Core too and the band that died when the fire consumed two hundred and fifty men. 11 The descendants of Core, however, did not die out].

12 The Simeonites by clans were: through Namuel* the clan of the Namuelites, through Jamin the clan of the Jaminites, through Jachin the clan of the Jachinites, 13 through Sohar the clan of the Soharites, through Saul the clan of the Saulites. 14 These were the clans of the Simeonites, of whom twenty-two thousand two hundred men were registered.

19 The sons of Juda who died in the land of Chanaan were Her and Onan. j 20 The Judaites by clans were: through Sela the clan of the Selaites, through Phares the clan of the Pharesites, through Zara the clan of the Zaraites. 21 The Pharesites were: through Hesron the clan of the Hesronites, through Hamul the clan of the Hamulites. 22 These were the clans of Juda, of whom seventy-six thousand five hundred men were registered.

23 The Issacharites by clans were: through Thola the clan of the Tholaites, through Phua the clan of the Phuaites, 24 through Jasub the clan of the Jasubites, through Semron the clan of the Semronites. 25 These were the clans of Issachar, of whom sixty-four thousand three hundred men were registered.

26 The Zabulonites by clans were: through Sared the clan of the Saredites, through Elon the clan of the Elonites, through Jahelel the clan of the Jahelelites. 27 These were the clans of the Zabulonites, of whom sixty thousand five hundred men were registered.

28 The sons of Joseph were Manasse and Ephraim. 29 The Manasseites by clans were: through Machir the clan of the Machirites, through Galaad, a descendant of Machir, the clan of the Galaadites. 30 The Galaadites were: through Abiezer the clan of the Abiezerites, through Helec the clan of the Helecites, 31 through Es-

35 The Ephraimites by clans were: through Suthala the clan of the Suthalaites, through Becher the clan of the Becherites, through Thahan the clan of the Thahanites. 36 The Suthalaites were: through Heran the clan of the Heranites. 37 These were the clans of the Ephraimites, of whom thirty-two thousand five hundred men were registered.

These were the descendants of Joseph by clans.

38 The Benjaminites by clans were: through Bala the clan of the Balaites, through Asbel the clan of the Asbelites, through Ahiram the clan of the Ahiramites, 39 through Supham the clan of the Suphamites, through Hupham the clan of the Huphamites. 40 The descandants of Bala were Arad and Naaman: through Arad the clan of the Aradites, through Naaman the clan of the Naamanites. 41 These were the Benjaminites by clans, of whom forty-five thousand six hundred men were registered.

42 The Danites by clans were: through Suham the clan of the Suhamites. These were the clans of Dan, 43 of whom sixty-four thousand four hundred men were registered.

44 The Aserites by clans were: through Jemna the clan of the Jemnaites, through Jesui the clan of the Jesuites, through Baria the clan of the Bariaites, 45 through Heber the clan of the Heberites, through Melchiel the clan of the Melchielites. 46 The name of Aser's daughter was Sara. 47 These were the clans of Aser, of whom fifty-three thousand four hundred men were registered.

48 The Nephthalites by clans were: through Jahesel the clan of the Jaheselites, through Guni the clan of the Gunites, 49 through Jeser the clan of the Jeserites, through Sellum the clan of the Sellumites. 50 These were the clans of Nephthali, of whom forty-five thousand four hundred men were registered.

51 These six hundred and one thousand, seven hundred and thirty were the Israelites who were registered.

Allotment of the Land. 52 *The Lord said to Moses, 53 l "Among these groups the land shall be divided as their heritage in keeping with the number of individuals in each group. 54 m To a large group you shall assign a large heritage, to a small group a small heritage, each group receiving its heritage in proportion to the number of men registered in it. 55 But the land shall be divided by lot, as the heritage of the various ancestral tribes. 56 As the lot falls shall each group, large or small, be assigned its heritage."

Census of the Levites. 57 The Levites registered by clans were: through Gerson the clan of the Gersonites, through Caath the clan of the Caathites, through Merari the clan of the Merarites. 58 These also were clans of Levi: the clan of the Lebnites, the clan of the Hebronites, the clan of the Moholites, the clan of the Musites, the clan of the Coreites.

Among the descendants of Caath was Amram, 59 whose wife was named Jochabed. She also was of the tribe of Levi, born to the tribe in Egypt. To Amram she bore Aaron and Moses and their sister Mariam. 60 To Aaron were born Nadab and Abiu, Eleazar and Ithamar. 61 But Nadab and Abiu died when they offered profane fire before the Lord.

62 The total number of male Levites one month or more of age, who were registered, was twenty-three thousand.n They were not registered with the other Israelites, however, for no heritage was given them among the Israelites.

63 These, then, were the men registered by Moses and the priest Eleazar in the census of the Israelites taken on the plains of Moab along the Jericho stretch of the Jordan. 64 Among them there was not a man of those who had been registered by Moses and the priest Aaron in the census of the Israelites taken in the desert of Sinai. 65 o For the Lord had told them

26, 52-56: The division of Chanaan among the various tribes and clans and families was determined partly by the size of each group and partly by lot. Perhaps the lots determined the respective locality of each tribal land and the section reserved for each clan, while the relative size of the allotted locality and section depended on the numerical strength of each group. The Hebrews considered the outcome of the drawing of lots as an expression of God's will; cf Acts 1, 23-26.

that they would surely die in the desert, and not one of them was left except Caleb, son of Jephonne, and Josue, son of Nun.

CHAPTER 27.

Salphahad's Daughters. 1 Salphahad, son of Hepher, son of Galaad, son of Machir, son of Manasse, son of Joseph, had daughters named Mahala, Noa, Hegla, Melcha and Thersa.[p] They came forward, 2 and standing in the presence of Moses, the priest Eleazar, the princes, and the whole community at the entrance of the Meeting Tent, said: 3 "Our father died in the desert. Although he did not join those who banded together against the Lord* [in Core's band], he died for his own sin without leaving any sons. 4 But why should our father's name be withdrawn from his clan merely because he had no son? Let us, therefore, have property among our father's kinsmen."

Laws concerning Heiresses. 5 *When Moses laid their case before the Lord, 6 the Lord said to him, 7 "The plea of Salphahad's daughters is just; you shall give them hereditary property among their father's kinsmen, letting their father's heritage pass on to them. 8 Therefore, tell the Israelites: If a man dies without leaving a son, you shall let his heritage pass on to his daughter; 9 if he has no daughter, you shall give his heritage to his brothers; 10 if he has no brothers, you shall give his heritage to his father's brothers; 11 if his father had no brothers, you shall give his heritage to his nearest relative in his clan, who shall then take possession of it." This is the legal norm for the Israelites, as the Lord commanded Moses.[q]

Josue to Succeed Moses. 12 The Lord said to Moses, "Go up here into the Abarim Mountains* and view the land that I am giving to the Israelites.[r] 13 When you have viewed it, you too shall be taken to your people, as was your brother Aaron,[s] 14 because in the rebellion of the community in the desert of Sin you both rebelled against my order to manifest my sanctity to them by means of the water."[t] [This is the water of Meribath-Cades in the desert of Sin.]

15 Then Moses said to the Lord, 16 "May the Lord, the God of the spirits of all mankind,* set over the community 17 a man who shall act as their leader in all things, to guide them in all their actions; that the Lord's community may not be like sheep without a shepherd." 18 And the Lord replied to Moses, "Take Josue, son of Nun,[u] a man of spirit,* and lay your hand upon him. 19 Have him stand in the presence of the priest Eleazar and of the whole community, and commission him before their eyes. 20 Invest him with some of your own dignity, that the whole Israelite community may obey him. 21 He shall present himself to the priest Eleazar, to have him seek out for him the decisions of the Urim* in the Lord's presence; and as he directs, Josue, all the Israelites with him, and the community as a whole shall perform all their actions."

22 Moses did as the Lord had commanded him. Taking Josue and having him stand in the presence of the priest Eleazar and of the whole community, 23 he laid his hands on him and gave him his commission, as the Lord had directed through Moses.

CHAPTER 28.

General Sacrifices. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Give the Israelites this commandment: At the times I have appointed, you shall be careful to present to me the food offerings that are offered to me as sweet-smelling oblations.

Each Morning and Evening. 3 v "You shall tell them therefore: This is the obla-

27, 12: The Abarim Mountains: the range on the eastern side of the Dead Sea.

27, 16: The God of the spirits of all mankind: the sense is either that God knows the character and abilities of all men and therefore knows best whom to appoint (cf Acts 1, 24), or, more probably, that God is Master of life and death and therefore can call Moses from this world whenever He wishes; cf the same phrase in Nm 16, 22, where "spirit" evidently means "the life principle."

27, 18: A man of spirit: literally, "a man in whom there is spirit": one who has the qualities of a good leader — courage, prudence, and strength of will. Cf Gn 41, 38; Dt 34, 9.

27, 21: The Urim: certain sacred objects which the Hebrew priests employed to ascertain the divine will, probably by obtaining a positive or negative answer to a given question. The full expression was "the Urim and Thummim"; cf Ex 28, 30; Lv 8, 8; Dt 33, 8; Esd 2, 63; Neh 7, 65. Josue was ordinarily not to receive direct revelations from God as Moses had received them.

tion which you shall offer to the Lord: two unblemished yearling lambs each day as the established holocaust,* 4 offering one lamb in the morning and the other during the evening twilight, 5 each with a cereal offering of one tenth of an epha of fine flour mixed with a fourth of a hin of oil of crushed olives.* 6 This is the established holocaust that was offered at Mount Sinai as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 7 And as the libation for the first lamb, you shall pour out to the Lord in the sanctuary* a fourth of a hin of wine. 8 The other lamb, to be offered during the evening twilight, you shall offer with the same cereal offering and the same libation as in the morning, as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.

On the Sabbath. 9 "On the Sabbath day you shall offer two unblemished yearling lambs, with their cereal offering, two tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil, and with their libations. 10 Each Sabbath there shall be the Sabbath holocaust in addition to the established holocaust and its libation.

At the New Moon Feast. 11 "On the first of each month* you shall offer as a holocaust to the Lord two bullocks, one ram, and seven unblemished yearling lambs, 12 with three tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil as the cereal offering for each bullock, two tenths of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil as the cereal offering for the ram, 13 and one tenth of an epha of fine flour mixed with oil as the cereal offering for each lamb, that the holocaust may be a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 14 Their libations shall be half a hin of wine for each bullock, a third of a hin for the ram, and a fourth of a hin for each lamb. This is the new-moon holocaust for every new moon of the year. 15 Moreover, one goat shall be sacrificed as a sin offering to the Lord. These are to be offered in addition to the established holocaust and its libation.

At the Passover. 16 "On the fourteenth day* of the first month falls the Passover of the Lord,[w] 17 and the fifteenth day of this month is the pilgrimage feast. For seven days unleavened bread is to be eaten. 18 On the first of these days you shall hold a sacred assembly, and do no sort of work.[x] 19 As an oblation you shall offer a holocaust to the Lord, which shall consist of two bullocks, one ram, and seven yearling lambs that you are sure are unblemished, 20 with their cereal offerings of fine flour mixed with oil, offering three tenths of an epha for each bullock, two tenths for the ram, 21 and one tenth for each of the seven lambs; 22 and offer one goat as a sin offering in atonement for yourselves. 23 These offerings you shall make in addition to the established morning holocaust: 24 you shall make exactly the same offerings each day for seven days as food offerings, in addition to the established holocaust with its libation, for a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord. 25 On the seventh day you shall hold a sacred assembly, and do no sort of work.[y]

At Pentecost. 26 "On the day of first fruits,* on your feast of Weeks,[z] when you present to the Lord the new cereal offering, you shall hold a sacred assembly, and do no sort of work. 27 You shall offer as a sweet-smelling holocaust to the Lord two bullocks, one ram, and seven yearling lambs that you are sure are unblemished, 28 with their cereal offerings of fine flour mixed with oil; offering three tenths of an epha for each bullock, two tenths for the ram, 29 and one tenth for each of the seven lambs. 30 Moreover, one goat shall be offered as a sin offering in atonement for yourselves. 31 You shall make these offerings, together with their libations, in addition to the established holocaust with its cereal offering.

28, 5: Oil of crushed olives: this oil, made in a mortar, was purer and more expensive than oil extracted in the olive press.

28, 7: In the sanctuary: according to Sir 50, 15, it was at the base of the altar.

28, 26: The day of first fruits: a unique term for this feast, which is usually called "the feast of Weeks"; it was celebrated as a thanksgiving for the wheat harvest seven weeks after the barley harvest (Passover). In the time of Christ it was commonly known by the Greek word "Pentecost," that is, "fiftieth" (day after the Passover); see note on Lv 23, 16.

it shall be a day on which you sound the trumpet.[a] 2 You shall offer as a sweet-smelling holocaust to the Lord one bullock, one ram, and seven unblemished yearling lambs, 3 with their cereal offerings of fine flour mixed with oil; offering three tenths of an epha for the bullock,
two tenths for the ram, 4 and one tenth for each of the seven lambs. 5 Moreover,
one goat shall be offered as a sin offering in atonement for yourselves. 6 These are to be offered in addition to the ordinary new moon holocaust with its cereal offering, and in addition to the established holocaust with its cereal offering, together with the libations prescribed for them, as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord.

On the Day of Atonement. 7 "On the tenth day of this seventh month* you shall hold a sacred assembly, and mortify yourselves, and do no sort of work.[b] 8
You shall offer as a sweet-smelling holocaust to the Lord one bullock, one ram, and seven yearling lambs that you are sure are unblemished, 9 with their cereal offerings of fine flour mixed with oil; offering three tenths of an epha for the bullock, two tenths for the ram, 10 and one tenth for each of the seven lambs. 11 Moreover, one goat shall be sacrificed as a sin offering. These are to be offered in addition to the atonement sin offering,*
the established holocaust with its cereal offering, and their libations.

On the Feast of Booths.* 12 "On the fifteenth day of the seventh month you shall hold a sacred assembly,[c] and do no sort of work; then, for seven days following,
you shall celebrate a pilgrimage feast to the Lord. 13 You shall offer as a sweet-smelling holocaust to the Lord thirteen bullocks,* two rams, and fourteen yearling lambs that are unblemished, 14 with their cereal offerings of fine flour mixed with oil; offering three tenths of an epha
for each of the thirteen bullocks, two tenths for each of the two rams, 15 and one tenth for each of the fourteen lambs.
16 Moreover, one goat shall be sacrificed as a sin offering. These are to be offered in addition to the established holocaust
with its cereal offering and libation.

17 "On the second day you shall offer twelve bullocks, two rams, and fourteen unblemished yearling lambs, 18 with their
cereal offerings and libations as prescribed
for the bullocks, rams and lambs in proportion to their number, 19 as well as one
goat for a sin offering, besides the established holocaust with its cereal offering
and libation.

20 "On the third day you shall offer eleven bullocks, two rams, and fourteen unblemished yearling lambs, 21 with their
cereal offerings and libations as prescribed
for the bullocks, rams and lambs in proportion to their number, 22 as well as one
goat for a sin offering, besides the established holocaust with its cereal offering
and libation.

23 "On the fourth day you shall offer
ten bullocks, two rams, and fourteen unblemished yearling lambs, 24 with their
cereal offerings and libations as prescribed
for the bullocks, rams and lambs in proportion to their number, 25 as well as one
goat for a sin offering, besides the established holocaust with its cereal offering
and libation.

26 "On the fifth day you shall offer nine bullocks, two rams, and fourteen unblem-offerings and libations as prescribed for the bullocks, rams and lambs in proportion to their number, 28 as well as one goat

for a sin offering, besides the established holocaust with its cereal offering and li-

29 "On the sixth day you shall offer eight bullocks, two rams, and fourteen unblemished yearling lambs, 30 with their
cereal offerings and libations as prescribed
for the bullocks, rams and lambs in proportion to their number, 31 as well as one
goat for a sin offering, besides the estab-

[35] "On the eighth day[e] you shall hold a solemn meeting,* and do no sort of work. [36] You shall offer up in holocaust as a sweet-smelling oblation to the Lord one bullock, one ram, and seven unblemished yearling lambs, [37] with their cereal offerings and libations as prescribed for the bullocks, rams and lambs in proportion to their number, [38] as well as one goat for a sin offering, besides the established holocaust with its cereal offering and libation.

[39] "These are the offerings you shall make to the Lord on your festivals, besides whatever holocausts, cereal offerings, libations, and peace offerings you present as your votive or freewill offerings."

CHAPTER 30.

[1] Moses then gave the Israelites these instructions, just as the Lord had ordered him.

Validity and Annulment of Vows. [2] Moses said to the heads of the Israelite tribes, "This is what the Lord has commanded: [3] When a man makes a vow to the Lord or binds himself under oath to a pledge* of abstinence, he shall not violate his word, but must fulfill exactly the promise he has uttered.[f]

[4] "When a woman, while still a maiden in her father's house, makes a vow to the Lord, or binds herself to a pledge, [5] if her father learns of her vow or the pledge to which she bound herself and says nothing to her about it, then any vow or any pledge she has made remains valid. [6] But if on the day he learns of it her father expresses to her his disapproval, then any vow or any pledge she has made becomes null and void; and the Lord releases her from it, since her father has expressed to her his disapproval.

[7] "If she marries while under a vow or under a rash pledge to which she bound herself, [8] and her husband learns of it, yet says nothing to her that day about it, then the vow or pledge she had made remains valid. [9] But if on the day he learns of it her husband expresses to her his disapproval, he thereby annuls the vow she had made or the rash pledge to which she had bound herself, and the Lord releases her from it. [10] The vow of a widow or of a divorced woman, or any pledge to which such a woman binds herself, is valid.

[11] "If it is in her husband's house* that she makes a vow or binds herself under oath to a pledge, [12] and her husband learns of it yet says nothing to express to her his disapproval, then any vow or any pledge she has made remains valid. [13] But if on the day he learns of them her husband annuls them, then whatever she has expressly promised in her vow or in her pledge becomes null and void; since her husband has annulled them, the Lord releases her from them.

[14] "Any vow or any pledge that she makes under oath to mortify herself, her husband can either allow to remain valid or render null and void. [15] But if her husband, day after day, says nothing at all to her about them, he thereby allows as valid any vow or any pledge she has made; he has allowed them to remain valid, because on the day he learned of them he said nothing to her about them. [16] If, however, he countermands them* some time after he first learned of them, he is responsible for her guilt."

[17] These are the statutes which the Lord prescribed through Moses concerning the relationship between a husband and his wife, as well as between a father and his daughter while she is still a maiden in her father's house.

CHAPTER 31.

Extermination of the Madianites. [1] The Lord said to Moses,* [2] "Avenge the Israelites on the Madianites, and then you shall be taken to your people." [3] So Moses

e Lv 23, 36; Jn 7, 37.—f Dt 23, 22; Eccl 5, 3f.

29, 35: A solemn meeting: the Hebrew word is the technical term for the closing celebration of the three major feasts of the Passover, Pentecost and Booths, or of other special feasts that lasted for a week. Cf Lv 23, 36; Dt 16, 8; 2 Par 7, 9; Neh 8, 18.

30, 3: A vow . . . a pledge: here the former signifies the doing of some positive good deed, in particular the offering of some sacrifice; the latter signifies the abstaining from some otherwise licit action or pleasure; cf v 14.

30, 11: In her husband's house: after her marriage. This contrasts with the case given in vv 7ff.

30, 16: He countermands them: he prevents their fulfillment. Since he has first allowed the vows to remain valid, he can no longer annul them.

31, 1ff: The narrative of Israel's relations with Madian, which was interrupted after Nm 25, 18, is now resumed.

told the people, "Select men from your midst and arm them for war, to attack the Madianites and execute the Lord's vengeance on them. 4 From each of the tribes of Israel you shall send a band of one thousand men to war." 5 From the clans of Israel, therefore, a thousand men of each tribe were levied, so that there were twelve thousand men armed for war. 6 Moses sent them out on the campaign, a thousand from each tribe, with Phinees, son of Eleazar, the priest for the campaign, who had with him the sacred vessels and the trumpets for sounding the alarm. 7 They waged war against the Madianites, as the Lord had commanded Moses, and killed every male among them. 8 Besides those slain in battle, they killed the five Madianite kings:* Evi, Recem, Sur, Hur and Rebe; and they also executed Balaam, son of Beor, with the sword. 9 But the Israelites kept the women of the Madianites with their little ones as captives, and all their herds and flocks and wealth as spoil, 10 while they set on fire all the towns where they had settled and all their encampments. 11 Then they took all the booty, with the people and beasts they had captured, and brought the captives, together with the spoils and booty, 12 to Moses and the priest Eleazar and to the Israelite community at their camp on the plains of Moab, along the Jericho stretch of the Jordan.

Treatment of the Captives. 13 When Moses and the priest Eleazar, with all the princes of the community, went outside the camp to meet them, 14 Moses became angry with the officers of the army, the clan and company commanders, who were returning from combat. 15 "So you have spared all the women!" he exclaimed. 16 "Why, they are the very ones who on Balaam's advice prompted the unfaithfulness of the Israelites toward the Lord in the Phogor affair,[g] which began the slaughter of the Lord's community. 17 *Slay, therefore, every male child and every woman who has had intercourse with a man. 18 But you may spare and keep for yourselves all girls who had no intercourse with a man.

Purification after Combat. 19 "Moreover, you shall stay outside the camp for seven days, and those of you who have slain anyone or touched anyone slain in battle shall purify yourselves on the third and on the seventh day. This applies both to you and to your captives. 20 You shall also purify every article of cloth, leather, goats' hair, or wood."

21 Eleazar the priest told the soldiers who had returned from combat: "This is what the law, as prescribed by the Lord to Moses, ordains: 22 Whatever can stand fire, such as gold, silver, bronze, iron, tin and lead, 23 you shall put into the fire, that it may become clean; however, it must also be purified with lustral water.* But whatever cannot stand fire you shall put into the water. 24 On the seventh day you shall wash your clothes, and then you will again be clean. After that you may enter the camp."

Division of the Booty. 25 The Lord said to Moses: 26 "With the help of the priest Eleazar and of the heads of the ancestral houses, count up all the human captives and the beasts that have been taken; 27 then divide them evenly,* giving half to those who took active part in the war by going out to combat, and half to the rest of the community. 28 You shall levy a tax for the Lord on the warriors who went out to combat: one out of every five hundred persons, oxen, asses and sheep 29 in their half of the spoil you shall turn over to the priest Eleazar as a contribution to the Lord. 30 From the Israelites' half you shall take one out of every fifty persons, and the same from the different beasts, oxen, asses and sheep, and give them to the Levites, who have charge of the Lord's Dwelling." 31 So Moses and the priest Eleazar did this, as the Lord had commanded Moses.

Amount of Booty. 32 This booty, what was left of the loot which the soldiers had taken, amounted to six hundred and seventy-five thousand sheep, 33 seventy-two thousand oxen, 34 sixty-one thousand

31, 8: The five Madianite kings: they are called "Madianite princes, Sehon's vassals" in Jos 13, 21.

31, 17: There are later references to Madian in Jgs 6-8; 3 Kgs 11, 18; Is 60, 6. The present raid was only against those Madianites who were dwelling at this time near the encampment of the Israelites.

31, 23: Lustral water: water mixed with the ashes of the red heifer as prescribed in Nm 19, 9.

31, 27: Divide them evenly: for a similar division of the booty into two equal parts, between those who engaged in the fray and those who stayed with the baggage, cf 1 Kgs 30, 24. But note that here the tax on the booty of the noncombatants is ten times as much as that on the soldier's booty.

asses, 35 and thirty-two thousand girls who were still virgins.

36 The half that fell to those who had gone out to combat was: three hundred and thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep, 37 of which six hundred and seventy-five fell as tax to the Lord; 38 thirty-six thousand oxen, of which seventy-two fell as tax to the Lord; 39 thirty thousand five hundred asses, of which sixty-one fell as tax to the Lord; 40 and sixteen thousand persons, of whom thirty-two fell as tax to the Lord. 41 The taxes contributed to the Lord, Moses gave to the priest Eleazar, as the Lord had commanded him.

42 The half for the other Israelites, which fell to the community when Moses had taken it from the soldiers, was: 43 three hundred and thirty-seven thousand five hundred sheep, 44 thirty-six thousand oxen, 45 thirty thousand five hundred asses, 46 and sixteen thousand persons. 47 From this, the Israelites' share, Moses, as the Lord had ordered, took one out of every fifty, both of persons and of beasts, and gave them to the Levites, who had charge of the Lord's Dwelling.

Gifts of the Officers. 48 Then the officers who had been clan and company commanders of the army came up to Moses 49 and said to him, "Your servants have counted up the soldiers under our command, and not one is missing. 50 *So, to make atonement for ourselves before the Lord, each of us will bring as an offering to the Lord some gold article he has picked up, such as an anklet, a bracelet, a ring, an earring, or a necklace." 51 Moses and the priest Eleazar accepted this gold from them, all of it in well-wrought articles. 52 The gold that they gave as a contribution to the Lord amounted in all to sixteen thousand seven hundred and fifty shekels. This was from the clan and company commanders; 53 what the common soldiers had looted each one kept for himself. 54 Moses, then, and the priest Eleazar accepted the gold from the clan and company commanders, and put it in the Meeting Tent as a memorial for the Israelites before the Lord.

CHAPTER 32.

Request of Gad and Ruben. 1 Now the Rubenites and Gadites had a very large number of livestock. Noticing that the land of Jazer and of Galaad* was grazing country, 2 they came to Moses and the priest Eleazar and to the princes of the community and said, 3 *"The region of Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nemra, Hesebon, Eleale, Sabama, Nebo and Baal-Maon, 4 which the Lord has laid low before the community of Israel, is grazing country. Now, since your servants have livestock," 5 they continued, "if we find favor with you, let this land be given to your servants as their property. Do not make us cross the Jordan."

Moses' Rebuke. 6 But Moses answered the Gadites and Rubenites: "Are your kinsmen, then, to engage in war, while you remain here? 7 Why do you wish to discourage the Israelites from crossing to the land the Lord has given them? 8 That is just what your fathers did when I sent them from Cadesbarne to reconnoiter the land.[b] 9 They went up to the Wadi Eschol and reconnoitered the land, then so discouraged the Israelites that they would not enter the land the Lord had given them. 10 i At that time the wrath of the Lord flared up, and he swore, 11 'Because they have not followed me unreservedly, none of these men of twenty years or more who have come up from Egypt shall ever see this country I promised under oath to Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, 12 j except the Cenezite* Caleb, son of Jephonne, and Josue, son of Nun, who have followed the Lord unreservedly.' 13 So in his anger with the Israelites the Lord made them wander in the desert forty years, until the whole generation that had done evil in the sight of the Lord had died out. 14 And now here you are, a brood of sinners, rising up in your fathers' place to add still more to the 31, 50: The precise nature and use of some of these articles of gold is uncertain.

32, 1: Galaad: the name of the western part of the plateau east of the Jordan, sometimes signifying the whole region from the Yarmuk to the Jordan, sometimes only the northern part of this region, and sometimes, as here, only its southern part. Jazer lay to the east of southern Galaad.

32, 3: The places named in this verse, as well as the additional ones given in vv 34-38, were all in the former kingdom of Sehon, that is, in the region between the Jaboc and the Arnon. Cf Nm 21, 23f; Jos 13, 19-21. 24-27.

32, 12: Cenezite: a member of the clan of Cenez, which, according to Gn 36, 11. 15. 42, was Edomitic; hence, although Caleb belonged to the tribe of Juda (Nm 13, 6; 34, 19), he must have had Edomite blood in his veins; cf also Jos 14, 6. 14.

Lord's blazing wrath against the Israelites. 15 If you turn away from following him, he will make them stay still longer in the desert, and so you will bring about the ruin of this whole nation."

Counter Proposal. 16 But they were insistent with him: "We wish only to build sheepfolds here for our flocks, and towns for our families; 17 but we ourselves will march as troops in the van of the Israelites,[k] until we have led them to their destination. Meanwhile our families can remain here in the fortified towns, safe from attack by the natives. 18 We will not return to our homes until every one of the Israelites has taken possession of his heritage, 19[l] and will not claim any heritage with them once we cross the Jordan, so long as we receive a heritage for ourselves on this eastern side of the Jordan."

Agreement Reached. 20 *Moses said to them in reply: "If you keep your word to march as troops in the Lord's vanguard 21 and to cross the Jordan in full force before the Lord until he has driven his enemies out of his way 22 and the land is subdued before him, then you may return here, quit of every obligation to the Lord and to Israel, and this region shall be your possession before the Lord.[m] 23 But if you do not do this, you will sin against the Lord, and you can be sure that you will not escape the consequences of your sin. 24 Build the towns, then, for your families, and the folds for your flocks, but also fulfill your express promise."

25 The Gadites and Rubenites answered Moses, "Your servants will do as you command, my lord. 26[n] While our wives and children, our herds and other livestock remain in the towns of Galaad, 27 all your servants will go across as armed troops to battle before the Lord, just as your lordship says."

28 Moses, therefore, gave this order in their regard to the priest Eleazar, to Josue, son of Nun, and to the heads of the ancestral tribes of the Israelites: 29 "If all the Gadites and Rubenites cross the Jordan with you as combat troops before the Lord, you shall give them Galaad as their property when the land has been subdued before you. 30 But if they will not go across with you as combat troops before the Lord, you shall bring their wives and children and livestock across before you into Chanaan, and they shall have their property with you in the land of Chanaan."

31 To this the Gadites and Rubenites replied, "We will do what the Lord has commanded us, your servants. 32 We ourselves will go across into the land of Chanaan as troops before the Lord, but we will retain our hereditary property on this side of the Jordan." 33 So Moses gave them [*the Gadites and Rubenites, as well as half the tribe of Manasse, son of Joseph, the kingdom of Sehon, king of the Amorrites, and the kingdom of Og, king of Basan,] the land with its towns and the districts that surrounded them.[o]

34 The Gadites rebuilt the fortified towns of Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, 35 Atar-oth-sophan, Jazer, Jegbaa, 36 Beth-Nemra and Beth-Haran, and they built sheepfolds. 37 The Rubenites rebuilt Hesebon, Eleale, Cariathaim, 38 *Nebo, Baal-Maon [names to be changed!], and Sabama. These towns, which they rebuilt, they called by their old names.

Other Conquests. 39 The descendants of Machir, son of Manasse, invaded Galaad and captured it, driving out the Amorrites who were there. 40 [Moses gave Galaad to Machir,[p] son of Manasse, and he settled there.] 41 Jair,[q] a Manasseite clan, campaigned against the tent villages, captured them and called them Havoth-Jair. 42 Nobe also campaigned against Canath, captured it with its dependencies and called it Nobe after his own name.

Stages on the Journey. 1 The following are the stages by which the Israelites journeyed up by companies from the land of Egypt under the guidance of Moses 32, 20ff: Since the Ark of the Lord was borne into battle with the Israelite army, the vanguard was said to march before the Lord.

32, 33: The preceding is concerned solely with the two tribes of Gad and Ruben and with the land of the former kingdom of Sehon; hence it seems probable that the sudden reference here to the half-tribe of Manasse and to their territory in Basan, the former kingdom of Og, is a later addition to the text.

32, 38: The phrase in brackets is a gloss, warning the reader either to change the order of the preceding names, or, more probably, to read some other word, such as bosheth, "shame," for Baal. They called by their old names: literally, "they called by their names" (see Textual Notes); however, some understand the current Hebrew text to mean, "they called by new names."

and Aaron.* 2 By the Lord's command Moses recorded the starting places of the various stages. The starting places of the successive stages were:

3 *They set out from Rameses in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the first month. On the Passover morrow the Israelites went forth in triumph, in view of all Egypt, 4 while the Egyptians buried their first-born all of whom the Lord had struck down; on their gods, too, the Lord executed judgments.[r]

From Egypt to Sinai. 5 Setting out from Rameses, the Israelites camped at Soc-choth. 6 Setting out from Socchoth, they camped at Etham near the edge of the desert. 7 Setting out from Etham, they turned back to Phi-hahiroth, which is opposite Baal-Saphon, and they camped opposite Magdol.[s] 8 Setting out from Phihahiroth, they crossed over through the sea into the desert,[t] and after a three days' journey in the desert of Etham, they camped at Mara. 9 Setting out from Mara, they came to Elim, where there were twelve springs of water and seventy palm trees, and they camped there.[u] 10 Setting out from Elim, they camped beside the Red Sea. 11 Setting out from the Red Sea, they camped in the desert of Sin. 12 Setting out from the desert of Sin, they camped at Dephca. 13 Setting out from Dephca, they camped at Alus. 14 Setting out from Alus, they camped at Raphidim,
where there was no water for the people to drink.[v] 15 Setting out from Raphidim,
they camped in the desert of Sinai.[w]

From Sinai to Cades. 16 Setting out from the desert of Sinai, they camped at Ci-broth-Hatthaava. 17 Setting out from Ci-broth-Hatthaava, they camped at Haseroth.[x] 18 Setting out from Haseroth, they camped at Rethma. 19 Setting out from Rethma, they camped at Remmon-Phares.

camped at Lebna. 21 Setting out from Lebna, they camped at Ressa. 22 Setting out from Ressa, they camped at Ceelatha.
23 Setting out from Ceelatha, they camped at Mount Sepher. 24 Setting out from Mount Sepher, they camped at Harada.
25 Setting out from Harada, they camped
at Maceloth. 26 Setting out from Mace-loth, they camped at Thahath. 27 Setting out from Thahath, they camped at Thare.
28 Setting out from Thare, they camped
at Methca. 29 Setting out from Methca, they camped at Hesmona. 30 *Setting out from Hesmona, –

From Mount Hor to Asiongaber. They camped at Moseroth. 31 Setting out from Moseroth, they camped at Bene-Jaacan.
32 Setting out from Bene-Jaacan, they camped at Mount Gadgad. 33 Setting out from Mount Gadgad, they camped at Jetabatha. 34 Setting out from Jetabatha, they camped at Hebrona. 35 Setting out from Hebrona, they camped at Asiongaber. 36 Setting out from Asiongaber, –

From Cades to Mount Hor. They camped
in the desert of Sin, at Cades.[y] 37 Setting out from Cades, they camped at Mount Hor on the border of the land of Edom.
38 [Aaron ascended Mount Hor[z] at the Lord's command, and there he died in the fortieth year from the departure of the Israelites from the land of Egypt, on the first day of the fifth month. 39 Aaron was a hundred and twenty-three years old when he died on Mount Hor. 40 *Now,

33, 1ff: This list of camping sites was drawn up by Moses, as v 2 expressly states. However, in its present form it probably includes some glosses. Moreover, a comparison with the more detailed accounts of the journey as given elsewhere shows that this list is not complete. It records just forty camping sites, counting the starting place, Rameses, and the terminus, the plains of Moab. This number, which corresponds exactly to the forty years of wandering in the desert, is probably a schematic device. Besides, it seems that in its present form the order of some of these names has been disturbed. Several names listed here are not recorded elsewhere.

33, 3f: These two verses were probably borrowed from some ancient song celebrating the exodus from Egypt.

33, 30-36: Moseroth is mentioned in Dt 10, 6 (in the form of "Moser"), as the place where Aaron died. It must therefore have been close to Mount Hor; cf Nm 20, 22ff. It seems very probable that the section Nm 36b-41a stood originally immediately after v 30a.

33, 40: The verse begins the same account of the victory over Arad as is given in Nm 21, 1ff, where it also follows the account of Aaron's death.

33, 41b-49: It seems that this section stood originally immediately after v 36a.

from Helmon-Deblathaim, they camped in the Abarim Mountains opposite Nebo. 48 Setting out from the Abarim Mountains, they camped on the plains of Moab along the Jericho stretch of the Jordan. 49 Their camp along the Jordan on the plains of Moab extended from Beth-Jesimoth to Abel-Sattim.

Conquest and Division of Chanaan. 50 The Lord spoke to Moses on the plains of Moab beside the Jericho stretch of the Jordan and said to him: 51 "Tell the Israelites: When you go across the Jordan into the land of Chanaan, 52 drive out all the inhabitants of the land before you; destroy all their stone figures and molten images, and demolish all their high places.[a]

53 "You shall take possession of the land and settle in it, for I have given you the land as your property. 54 You shall apportion the land among yourselves by lot, clan by clan, assigning a large heritage to a large group and a small heritage to a small group.[b] Wherever anyone's lot falls, there shall his property be within the heritage of his ancestral tribe.

55 "But if you do not drive out the inhabitants of the land before you, those whom you allow to remain will become as barbs in your eyes and thorns in your sides, and they will harass you in the country where you live,[c] 56 and I will treat you as I had intended to treat them."

CHAPTER 34.

The Boundaries. 1 The Lord said to Moses, 2 "Give the Israelites this order: When you enter the land of Chanaan, this is the territory that shall fall to you as your heritage — the land of Chanaan with its boundaries:

3 "Your southern boundary shall be at the desert of Sin along the border of Edom; [d] on the east it shall begin at the end of the Salt Sea, 4 and turning south of the Acrabbim Pass, it shall cross Sin, and extend south of Cadesbarne to Hasar-Addar; thence it shall cross to Asemon,[e] 5 and turning from Asemon to the Wadi of Egypt, shall terminate at the Sea.[f]

6 "For your western boundary you shall have the Great Sea* with its coast; this shall be your western boundary.

7 "The following shall be your boundary on the north: from the Great Sea you shall draw a line to Mount Hor,* 8 and shall continue it from Mount Hor to the entrance to Hamath, with the boundary extending through Sedada. 9 Thence the boundary shall reach to Zephrona and terminate at Hasar-Enan. This shall be your northern boundary.

10 "For your eastern boundary you shall draw a line from Hasar-Enan to Sepham. 11 From Sepham the boundary shall go down to Ar-Baal, east of Ain, and descending further, shall strike the ridge on the east side of the Sea of Chenereth; 12 thence the boundary shall continue along the Jordan and terminate with the Salt Sea.

"This is the land that shall be yours, with the boundaries that surround it."

13 Moses also gave this order to the Israelites: "This is the land, to be apportioned among you by lot, which the Lord has commanded to be given to the nine and one half tribes. 14 For all the ancestral houses of the tribe of Ruben, and the ancestral houses of the tribe of Gad, as well as half of the tribe of Manasse, have already received their heritage; 15 these two and one half tribes have received their heritage on the eastern side of the Jericho stretch of the Jordan, toward the sunrise."

Supervisors of the Allotment. 16 The Lord said to Moses, 17 "These are the names of the men who shall apportion the land among you: Eleazar the priest, and Josue, son of Nun, 18 [g] and one prince from each of the tribes whom you shall designate for this task. 19 These shall be as follows: from the tribe of Juda: Caleb, son of Jephonne; 20 from the tribe of Simeon: Samuel, son of Ammiud; 21 from the tribe of Benjamin: Elidad, son of Chaslon; 22 from the tribe of Dan: Bocci, son of Jogli; 23 from the tribe of Manasse: Hanniel, son of Ephod; 24 and from the tribe of Ephraim: Camuel, son of Sephtan, for the descendants of Joseph; 25 from the tribe of Zabulon: Elisaphan, son of Pharnach; 26 from the tribe of Issachar: Phaltiel, son of Ozan; 27 from the tribe of Aser: Ahiud, son of Salomi; 28 from the tribe of Nephthali: Phedael, son of Ammiud."

29 These are they whom the Lord commanded to assign the Israelites their heritage in the land of Chanaan.

CHAPTER 35.

Cities for the Levites. 1 The Lord gave these instructions to Moses on the plains of Moab beside the Jericho stretch of the Jordan: 2 b "Tell the Israelites that out of their hereditary property they shall give the Levites cities for homes, as well as pasture lands around the cities. 3 The cities shall serve them to dwell in, and the pasture lands shall serve their herds and flocks and other animals. 4 The pasture lands of the cities to be assigned the Levites shall extend a thousand cubits from the city walls in each direction. 5 Thus you shall measure out two thousand cubits outside the city along each side—east, south, west and north—with the city lying in the center. This shall serve them as the pasture lands of their cities.

6 i "Now these are the cities you shall give to the Levites: the six cities of asylum which you must establish as places where a homicide can take refuge, and in addition forty-two other cities—7 a total of forty-eight cities with their pasture lands to be assigned the Levites. 8 *In assigning the cities from the property of the Israelites, take more from a larger group and fewer from a smaller one, so that each group will cede cities to the Levites in proportion to its own heritage."

Cities of Asylum. 9 The Lord said to Moses, 10 "Tell the Israelites: When you go across the Jordan into the land of Chanaan, 11 select for yourselves cities j to serve as cities of asylum, where a homicide who has killed someone unintentionally may take refuge. 12 These cities shall serve you as places of asylum from the avenger of blood,* so that a homicide shall not be put to death unless he is first tried before the community. 13 Six cities of asylum shall you assign: 14 three beyond the Jordan, and three in the land of Chanaan. 15 These six cities of asylum shall serve not only the Israelites but all the resident or transient aliens among them, so that anyone who has killed another unintentionally may take refuge there.

Murder and Manslaughter. 16 *"If a man strikes another with an iron instrument and causes his death, he is a murderer and shall be put to death.k 17 If a man strikes another with a death-dealing stone in his hand and causes his death, he is a murderer and shall be put to death. 18 If a man strikes another with a death-dealing club in his hand and causes his death, he is a murderer and shall be put to death. 19 The avenger of blood may execute the murderer, putting him to death on sight.

20 "If a man pushes another out of hatred, or after lying in wait for him throws something at him, and causes his death,l 21 or if he strikes another out of enmity and causes his death, he shall be put to death as a murderer. The avenger of blood may execute the murderer on sight.

22 m "However, if a man pushes another accidentally and not out of enmity, or if without lying in wait for him he throws some object at him, 23 or without seeing him throws a death-dealing stone which strikes him and causes his death, although he was not his enemy nor seeking to harm him: 24 then the community, deciding the case between the slayer and the avenger of blood in accordance with these norms, 25 shall free the homicide from the avenger of blood and shall remand him to the city of asylum where he took refuge; n and he shall stay there until the death of the high priest who has been anointed with sacred oil. 26 If the homicide of his own accord leaves the bounds of the city of asylum where he has taken refuge, 27 and the avenger of blood finds him beyond these bounds and kills him, the avenger incurs no blood-guilt; 28 the homicide was bound to stay in his city of asylum until the death of the high priest. Only after the death of the high priest may the homicide return to his own district.

29 "These shall be norms for you and all your descendants, wherever you live, for rendering judgment.

35, 8: This provision was hardly observed in the actual assignment of the Levitical cities as narrated in Jos 21.

35, 12: The avenger of blood: one of the close relatives of the slain (2 Kgs 14, 7) who, as executor of public justice, had the right and duty to take the life of the murderer; cf Dt 19, 6. 12; Jos 20, 3. 5. 9.

35, 16-25: Here, as also in Dt 19, 1-13, there is a casuistic development of the original law as stated in Ex 21, 12ff.

Witnesses. 30 "Whenever someone kills another, the evidence of witnesses is required for the execution of the murderer.[o] The evidence of a single witness is not sufficient for putting a person to death.

No Indemnity. 31 "You shall not accept indemnity in place of the life of a murderer who deserves the death penalty; he must be put to death. 32 Nor shall you accept indemnity to allow a refugee to leave his city of asylum and again dwell elsewhere in the land before the death of the high priest. 33 You shall not desecrate the land where you live. Since bloodshed desecrates the land, the land can have no atonement for the blood shed on it except through the blood of him who shed it. 34 Do not defile the land in which you live and in the midst of which I dwell;[p] for I am the Lord who dwells in the midst of the Israelites."

CHAPTER 36.

Property of Heiresses. 1 The heads of the ancestral houses in the clan of descendants of Galaad, son of Machir, son of Manasse—one of the Josephite clans—came up and laid this plea before Moses and the priest Eleazar and before the princes who were the heads of the ancestral houses of the other Israelites. 2 They said: "The Lord commanded you, my lord, to apportion the land by lot among the Israelites;[q] and you, my lord, were also commanded by the Lord to give the heritage of our kinsman Salphahad to his daughters. 3 But if they marry into one of the other Israelite tribes, their heritage will be withdrawn from our ancestral heritage and will be added to that of the tribe into which they marry; thus the heritage that fell to us by lot will be diminished. 4 When the Israelites celebrate the jubilee year,* the heritage of these women will be permanently added to that of the tribe into which they marry and will be withdrawn from that of our ancestral tribe."

5 *So Moses gave this regulation to the Israelites according to the instructions of the Lord: "The tribe of the Josephites are right in what they say. 6 This is what the Lord commands with regard to the daughters of Salphahad: They may marry anyone they please, provided they marry into a clan of their ancestral tribe, 7 so that no heritage of the Israelites will pass from one tribe to another, but all the Israelites will retain their own ancestral heritage. 8 Therefore, every daughter who inherits property in any of the Israelite tribes shall marry someone belonging to a clan of her own ancestral tribe, in order that all the Israelites may remain in possession of their own ancestral heritage. 9 Thus, no heritage can pass from one tribe to another, but all the Israelite tribes will retain their own ancestral heritage."

10 The daughters of Salphahad obeyed the command which the Lord had given to Moses. 11 Mahala, Thersa, Hegla, Melcha and Noa, Salphahad's daughters, married relatives on their father's side 12 within the clans of the descendants of Manasse, son of Joseph; hence their heritage remained in the tribe of their father's clan.

Conclusion. 13 These are the commandments and decisions which the Lord prescribed for the Israelites through Moses, on the plains of Moab beside the Jericho stretch of the Jordan.

THE BOOK OF DEUTERONOMY

The fifth and last book of the Pentateuch is called Deuteronomy, meaning "second law." In reality, what it contains is not a new law but a partial repetition, completion and explanation of the law given on Mount Sinai. The historical portions of the book are also a résumé of what is related elsewhere in the Pentateuch.

The chief characteristic of this book is its vigorous oratorical style. In a series of eloquent discourses Moses exhorts, corrects and threatens his people, appealing to their past glory, their historic mission, and the promise of future triumph. His aim is to enforce among the Israelites the Lord's claim to their obedience, loyalty and love.

The events contained in the Book of Deuteronomy took place in the plains of Moab (Dt 1, 5) between the end of the wanderings in the desert (Dt 1, 3) and the crossing of the Jordan River (Jos 4, 19), a period of no more than forty days.

The Book of Deuteronomy may be considered the testament of Moses, the great leader and legislator, to his people on the eve of his death.

The Savior quoted passages of Deuteronomy in overcoming the threefold temptation of Satan in the desert (Mt 4; Dt 6, 13. 16; 8, 3; 10, 20), and in explaining to the lawyer the first and greatest commandment (Mt 22, 35-39; Dt 6, 4).

The book is divided as follows: I. Historical Review and Exhortation (Dt 1, 1—4, 43). II. God and His Covenant (Dt 4, 44—11, 32). III. Exposition of the Law (Dt 12, 1—26, 19). IV. Final Words of Moses (Dt 27, 1—34, 12).

I: HISTORICAL REVIEW AND EXHORTATION

CHAPTER 1.

Introduction. 1 These are the words which Moses spoke to all Israel beyond the Jordan, [*in the desert, in the Araba, opposite Supha, between Pharan and Thophel, Laban, Haseroth and Dizahab; 2 it is a journey of eleven days from Horeb to Cadesbarne by way of the highlands of Seir].

3 In the fortieth year, on the first day of the eleventh month, Moses spoke to the Israelites all the commands that the Lord had given him in their regard. 4 After he had defeated Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon,[a] and Og, king of Basan, who lived in Astharoth and in Edrai, 5 Moses began to explain the law in the land of Moab beyond the Jordan, as follows:

Departure from Horeb. 6 "The Lord, our God, said to us at Horeb, 'You have stayed long enough at this mountain. 7 *Leave here and go to the hill country of the Amorrites and to all the surrounding regions,[b] the land of the Chanaanites in the Araba, the mountains, the foothills, the Negeb and the seacoast; to Lebanon, and as far as the Great River [the Euphrates]. 8 I have given that land over to you.[c] Go now and occupy the land I swore to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, I would give to them and to their descendants.'

Appointment of Elders. 9 "At that time I said to you, 'Alone, I am unable to carry you.* 10 The Lord, your God, has so multiplied you that you are now as numerous as the stars in the sky.[d] 11 May the Lord, the God of your fathers, increase you a thousand times over, and bless you as he promised! 12 But how can I alone bear the crushing burden that you are, along with your bickering? 13 [e] Choose wise, intelligent and experienced men from each of your tribes, that I may appoint them as your leaders.' 14 You answered me, 'We agree to do as you have proposed.' 15 So I took outstanding men of your tribes, wise and experienced, and made them your leaders as officials over thousands, over hundreds, over fifties and over tens, and other tribal officers. 16 I charged your judges at that time, 'Listen to complaints among your kinsmen, and administer true justice to both parties even if one of them is an alien.[f] 17 In rendering judgment, do not consider who a person is; give ear to the lowly and to the great alike, fearing no man, for judgment is God's. Refer to me any case that is too hard for you and I will hear it.' 18 Thereupon I gave you all the commands you were to fulfill.

The Twelve Scouts. 19 "Then, in obedience to the command of the Lord, our God, we set out from Horeb and journeyed through the whole desert, vast and fearful as you have seen,[g] in the direction of the hill country of the Amorrites. We had reached Cadesbarne 20 when I said to you, 'You have come to the hill country of the Amorrites, which the Lord, our God, is giving us. 21 The Lord, your God, has given this land over to you. Go up and occupy it, as the Lord, the God of your fathers, commands you. Do not fear or lose heart.' 22 h Then all of you came up to me and said, 'Let us send men ahead to reconnoiter the land for us and report to us on the road we must follow and the cities we must take.' 23 Agreeing with the proposal, I chose twelve men from your number, one from each tribe. 24 They set out into the hill country as far as the Wadi Eschol, and explored it. 25 Then, taking along some of the fruit of the land, they brought it down to us and reported, 'The land which the Lord, our God, gives us is good.'

Threats of Revolt. 26 "But you refused to go up,i and after defying the command of the Lord, your God, 27 you set to murmuring in your tents,* 'Out of hatred for us the Lord has brought us up out of the land of Egypt,j to deliver us into the hands of the Amorrites and destroy us. 28 What shall we meet with up there? Our kinsmen have made us fainthearted by reporting that the people are stronger and taller than we, and their cities are large and fortified to the sky; besides, they saw the Enacim there.' k

29 "But I said to you, 'Have no dread or fear of them. 30 The Lord, your God, who goes before you, will himself fight for you, just as he took your part before your very eyes in Egypt, 31 as well as in the desert, where you saw how the Lord, your God, carried you, as a man carries his child, all along your journey until you arrived at this place.' 32 Despite this, you would not trust the Lord, your God, 33 who journeys before you to find you a resting place—by day in the cloud, and by night in the fire, to show the way you must go.l 34 When the Lord heard your words, he was angry; 35 and he swore, 'Not one man of this evil generation shall look upon the good land I swore to give to your fathers,m 36 except Caleb,* son of Jephonne; he shall see it. For to him and to his sons I will give the land he trod upon, because he has followed the Lord unreservedly.'

37 "The Lord was angered against me also on your account, and said 'Not even you shall enter there,n 38 but your aide Josue,o son of Nun, shall enter. Encourage him, for he is to give Israel its heritage. 39 Your little ones, who you said would become booty, and your children, who as yet do not know good from bad—they shall enter; to them I will give it, and they shall occupy it.p 40 But as for yourselves: turn about and proceed into the desert on the Red Sea road.'

Unsuccessful Invasion. 41 q "In reply you said to me, 'We have sinned against the Lord. We will go up ourselves and fight, just as the Lord, our God, commanded us.' And each of you girded on his weapons, making light of going up into the hill country. 42 But the Lord said to me, 'Warn them: Do not go up and fight, lest you be beaten down before your enemies, for I will not be in your midst.' 43 I gave you this warning but you would not listen. In defiance of the Lord's command you arrogantly marched off into the hill country. 44 Then the Amorrites living there came out against you and, like bees, chased you, cutting you down in Seir as far as Horma. 45 On your return you wept before the Lord, but he did not listen to your cry or give ear to you. 46 That is why you had to stay as long as you did at Cades.

CHAPTER 2.

Northward along Edom. 1 "When we did turn and proceed into the desert on the Red Sea road,r as the Lord had commanded me, we circled around the highlands of Seir for a long time. 2 Finally the Lord said to me, 3 'You have wandered round these highlands long enough; turn and go north. 4 Give this order to the people: You are now about to pass through the territory of your kinsmen, the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir. Though they are afraid of you, be very careful 5 not to come in conflict with them, for I will not give you so much as a foot of their land, since I have already given Esau possession of the highlands of Seir. 6 You shall purchase from them with silver the food you eat and the well water you drink. 7 The Lord, your God, has blessed you in all your undertakings; he has been concerned about your journey through this vast desert. It is now forty years that he has been with you, and you have never been in want.'[s]

Along Moab. 8 "Then we left behind us the Araba route, Elath, Asiongaber, and Seir, where our kinsmen, the descendants of Esau, live; and we went on toward the desert of Moab.[t] 9 And the Lord said to me, 'Do not show hostility to the Moabites or engage them in battle, for I will not give you possession of any of their land, since I have given Ar to the descendants of Lot as their own.[u] 10 (Formerly the Emim lived there, a people strong and numerous and tall like the Enacim;[v] 11 like them they were considered Raphaim. It was the Moabites who called them Emim. 12 In Seir, however, the former inhabitants were the Horrites;[w] the descendants of Esau dispossessed them, clearing them out of the way and taking their place, just as the Israelites have done in the land of their heritage which the Lord has given them.) 13 Get ready, then, to cross the Wadi Zared.'[x] So we crossed it. 14 Thirty-eight years had elapsed between our departure from Cadesbarne and that crossing; in the meantime the whole generation of soldiers had perished from the camp, as the Lord had sworn they should.[y] 15 For it was the Lord's hand that was against them, till he wiped them out of the camp completely.

Along Ammon. 16 "When at length death had put an end to all the soldiers among the people, 17 the Lord said to me, 18 'You are now about to leave Ar and the territory of Moab behind. 19 As you come opposite the Ammonites,[z] do not show hostility or come in conflict with them, for I will not give you possession of any land of the Ammonites, since I have given it to the descendants of Lot as their own. 20 [This also was considered a country of the Raphaim from its former inhabitants, whom the Ammonites called Zomzommim, 21 a people strong and numerous and tall like the Enacim. But these, too, the Lord cleared out of the way for the Ammonites, who ousted them and took their place. 22 He had done the same for the descendants of Esau, who dwell in Seir, by clearing the Horrites out of their way, so that the descendants of Esau have taken their place down to the present. 23 So also the Caphthorim,* migrating from Caphthor, cleared away the Avvim, who once dwelt in villages as far as Gaza, and took their place.]

Defeat of Sehon. 24 "'Advance now across the Wadi Arnon.[a] I now deliver into your hands Sehon, the Amorrite king of Hesebon, and his land. Begin the occupation; engage him in battle. 25 This day I will begin to put a fear and dread of you into every nation under the heavens, so that at the mention of your name they will quake and tremble before you.'

26 "So I sent messengers from the desert of Cedemoth to Sehon, king of Hesebon, with this offer of peace: 27 'Let me pass through your country by the highway; I will go along it without turning aside to the right or to the left. 28 For the food I eat which you will supply, and for the water you give me to drink, you shall be paid in silver. Only let me march through, 29 as the descendants of Esau who dwell in Seir[b] and the Moabites who dwell in Ar have done, until I cross the Jordan into the land which the Lord, our God, is about to give us.' 30 But Sehon, king of Hesebon, refused to let us pass through his land, because the Lord, your God, made him stubborn in mind and obstinate in heart that he might deliver him up to you, as indeed he has now done.

31 "Then the Lord said to me, 'Now that I have already begun to hand over to you Sehon and his land, begin the actual occupation.' 32 So Sehon and all his people advanced against us to join battle at Jahas; 33 but since the Lord, our God, had delivered him to us, we defeated him and his sons and all his people.[c] 34 At that time we seized all his cities and doomed* them all, with their men, women and children; we left no survivor.[d] 35 Our only booty was the livestock and the loot of the captured cities. 36 From Aroer on the edge of the Wadi Arnon and from the city in the wadi itself, as far as Galaad,[e] no city was too well fortified for us to whom the Lord had delivered them up. 37 However, in obedience to the command of the Lord, our God, you did not encroach upon any of the Ammonite land, neither the region bordering on the Wadi Jaboc, nor the cities of the highlands.f

CHAPTER 3.

Defeat of Og. 1 "Then we turned and proceeded toward Basan. But Og, king of Basan,g advanced against us with all his people to give battle at Edrai. 2 The Lord, however, said to me, h 'Do not be afraid of him, for I have delivered him into your hand with all his people and his land. Do to him as you did to Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon.' 3 And thus the Lord, our God, delivered into our hands Og, king of Basan, with all his people. We defeated him so completely that we left him no survivor. 4 At that time we captured all his cities, none of them eluding our grasp, the whole region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Basan: sixty cities in all, 5 to say nothing of the great number of unwalled towns. All the cities were fortified with high walls and gates and bars. 6 i As we had done to Sehon, king of Hesebon, so also here we doomed all the cities, with their men, women and children; 7 but all the livestock and the loot of each city we took as booty for ourselves.

8 "And so at that time we took from the two kings of the Amorrites beyond the Jordan the territory from the Wadi Arnon to Mount Hermon 9 [which is called Sarion by the Sidonians and Sanir by the Amorrites], 10 comprising all the cities of the plateau and all Galaad and all the cities of the kingdom of Og in Basan including Salecha and Edrai. 11 [Og, king of Basan, was the last remaining survivor of the Raphaim. He had a bed of iron,* nine regular cubits long and four wide, which is still preserved in Rabba of the Ammonites.]

Allotment of the Conquered Lands. 12 j "When we occupied the land at that time, I gave Ruben and Gad the territory from Aroer, on the edge of the Wadi Arnon, halfway up into the highlands of Galaad, with the cities therein. 13 The rest of Galaad and all of Basan, the kingdom of Og, the whole Argob region, I gave to the half-tribe of Manasse. [All this region of Basan was once called a land of the Raphaim. 14 Jair, a Manasseite clan,k took all the region of Argob as far as the border of the Gessurites and Maachathites, and called it after his own name Basan Havoth-Jair, the name it bears today.] 15 To Machir I gave Galaad, 16 and to Ruben and Gad the territory from Galaad to the Wadi Arnon—including the wadi bed and its banks—and to the Wadi Jaboc, which is the border of the Ammonites, 17 as well as the Araba with the Jordan and its eastern banks from Chenereth to the Salt Sea of the Araba, under the slopes of Phasga.l

18 "At that time I charged them* as follows: 'The Lord, your God, has given you this land as your own. But all you troops equipped for battle must cross over in the vanguard of your brother Israelites.m 19 Only your wives and children, as well as your livestock, of which I know you have a large number, shall remain behind in the towns I have given you,n 20 until the Lord has settled your kinsmen as well, and they too possess the land which the Lord, your God, will give them on the other side of the Jordan.o Then you may all return to the possessions I have given you.'

21 "It was then that I instructed Josue, 'Your eyes have seen all that the Lord, your God, has done to both these kings; so, too, will the Lord do to all the kingdoms which you will encounter over there. 22 Fear them not, for the Lord, your God, will fight for you.'

Refusal to Moses. 23 "And it was then that I besought the Lord, 24 'O Lord God, you have begun to show to your servant your greatness and might. For what God in heaven or on earth can perform deeds as mighty as yours? 25 Ah, let me cross over and see this good land beyond the Jordan, this fine hill country, and the Lebanon!' 26 But the Lord was angry with me on your account and would not hear me.p 'Enough!' the Lord said to me. 'Speak to me no more of this. 27 Go up to the top of Phasga and look out to the west, and to the north, and to the south,

CHAPTER 4.

Advantages of Fidelity. [1] "Now, Israel, hear the statutes and decrees which I am teaching you to observe, that you may live, and may enter in and take possession of the land which the Lord, the God of your fathers, is giving you. [2] In your observance of the commandments of the Lord, your God,[s] which I enjoin upon you, you shall not add to what I command you nor subtract from it. [3] You have seen with your own eyes what the Lord did at Baal-Phogor:[t] the Lord, your God, destroyed from your midst everyone that followed the Baal of Phogor; [4] but you, who clung to the Lord, your God, are all alive today. [5] Therefore, I teach you the statutes and decrees as the Lord, my God, has commanded me, that you may observe them in the land you are entering to occupy. [6] Observe them carefully, for thus will you give evidence of your wisdom and intelligence to the nations, who will hear of all these statutes and say, 'This great nation is truly a wise and intelligent people.' [7][u] For what great nation is there that has gods so close to it as the Lord, our God, is to us whenever we call upon him? [8] Or what great nation has statutes and decrees that are as just as this whole Law which I am setting before you today?

Revelation at Horeb. [9] "However, take care and be earnestly on your guard not to forget the things which your own eyes have seen, nor let them slip from your memory as long as you live, but teach them to your children[v] and to your children's children: [10] *There was the day on which you stood before the Lord, your God, at Horeb, and he said to me, [w]'Assemble the people for me; I will have them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me as long as they live in the land and may so teach their children.' [11] You came near and stood at the foot of the mountain,[x] which blazed to the very sky with fire and was enveloped in a dense black cloud. [12] Then the Lord spoke to you from the midst of the fire.[y] You heard the sound of the words, but saw no form; there was only a voice. [13] He proclaimed to you his covenant, which he commanded you to keep: the Ten Commandments, which he wrote on two tablets of stone. [14] The Lord charged me at that time to teach you the statutes and decrees which you are to observe over in the land you will occupy.

Danger of Idolatry. [15] "You saw no form at all on the day the Lord spoke to you at Horeb from the midst of the fire.[z] Be strictly on your guard, therefore, [16] not to degrade yourselves by fashioning an idol to represent any figure, whether it be the form of a man or of a woman,[a] [17] of any animal on the earth or of any bird that flies in the sky, [18] of anything that crawls on the ground or of any fish in the waters under the earth. [19] And when you look up to the heavens and behold the sun or the moon or any star among the heavenly hosts, do not be led astray into adoring them and serving them.[b] These the Lord, your God, has let fall to the lot of all other nations under the heavens; [20] but you he has taken and led out of that iron foundry,* Egypt, that you might be his very own people, as you are today.[c] [21] Since the Lord was angered against me on your account[d] and swore that I should not cross the Jordan nor enter the good land which he is giving you as a heritage, [22] I myself shall die in this country without crossing the Jordan; but you will cross over and take possession of that good land.[e] [23] Take heed, therefore, lest, forgetting the covenant which the Lord, your God, has made with you, you fashion for yourselves against his command an idol in any form whatsoever.[f] [24] For the Lord, your God, is a consuming fire, a jealous God.

4, 10: Beginning here and continuing on for several verses (at least to the end of v 14) is the "reminiscence," the account of the things that the Israelites should recall and teach their children.

4, 20: Egypt is called an iron foundry, or furnace for smelting iron, because God allowed the Israelites to be afflicted there for the sake of their spiritual purification; the same expression for Egypt occurs also in 3 Kgs 8, 51; Jer 11, 4; compare the expression, "the furnace of affliction," in Is 48, 10.

God's Fidelity. 25 "When you have children and grandchildren, and have grown old* in the land, should you then degrade yourselves by fashioning an idol in any form and by this evil done in his sight provoke the Lord, your God, 26 I call heaven and earth this day to witness against you, that you shall all quickly perish from the land which you will occupy when you cross the Jordan. You shall not live in it for any length of time but shall be promptly wiped out. 27 The Lord will scatter you among the nations, and there shall remain but a handful of you among the nations to which the Lord will lead you.g 28 There you shall serve gods fashioned by the hands of man out of wood and stone, gods which can neither see nor hear, neither eat nor smell.h 29 Yet there too you shall seek the Lord, your God; and you shall indeed find him when you search after him with your whole heart and your whole soul.i 30 In your distress, when all these things shall have come upon you, you shall finally return to the Lord, your God, and heed his voice. 31 Since the Lord, your God, is a merciful God, he will not abandon and destroy you, nor forget the covenant which under oath he made with your fathers.j

Proofs of God's Love. 32 "Ask now of the days of old, before your time, ever since God created man upon the earth; ask from one end of the sky to the other: Did anything so great ever happen before? Was it ever heard of? 33 Did a people ever hear the voice of God speaking from the midst of fire, as you did, and live?k 34 Or did any god venture to go and take a nation for himself from the midst of another nation, by testings,* by signs and wonders,l by war, with his strong hand and outstretched arm, and by great terrors, all of which the Lord, your God, did for you in Egypt before your very eyes? 35 All this you were allowed to see that you might know the Lord is God and there is no other. 36 Out of the heavens he let you hear his voice to discipline you; on earth he let you see his great fire, and you heard him speaking out of the fire. 37 For love of your fathers he chose their descendants and personally led you out of Egypt by his great power, 38 driving out of your way nations greater and mightier than you, so as to bring you in and to make their land your heritage, as it is today. 39 This is why you must now know, and fix in your heart, that the Lord is God in the heavens above and on earth below, and that there is no other.m 40 You must keep his statutes and commandments which I enjoin on you today, that you and your children after you may prosper, and that you may have long life on the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you forever." n

Cities of Refuge. 41 o Then Moses set apart three cities in the region east of the Jordan, 42 that a homicide might take refuge there if he unwittingly killed his neighbor to whom he had previously borne no malice, and that he might save his life by fleeing to one of these cities: 43 Bosor in the desert, in the region of the plateau, for the Rubenites; Ramoth in Galaad for the Gadites; and Golan in Basan for the Manasseites.

II: GOD AND HIS COVENANT

Introduction. 44 This is the law which Moses set before the Israelites. 45 These are the ordinances, statutes and decrees which he proclaimed to them when they had come out of Egypt 46 and were beyond the Jordan in the ravine opposite Beth-Phogor, in the land of Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who dwelt in Hesebon and whom Moses and the Israelites defeated after coming out of Egypt. 47 They occupied his land and the land of Og, king of Basan, as well—the land of these two kings of the Amorrites in the region east of the Jordan: 48 from Aroer on the edge of the Wadi Arnon to Mount Sion* (that is, Hermon) 49 and all the Araba east of the Jordan, as far as the Araba Sea under the slopes of Phasga.p

CHAPTER 5.

a covenant with us at Horeb; [q] 3 not with our fathers did he make this covenant,
but with us, all of us who are alive here
this day. 4 The Lord spoke with you face to face on the mountain from the midst of the fire. 5 [r] Since you were afraid of the fire and would not go up the mountain, I stood between the Lord and you at that time, to announce to you these words of the Lord:

The Decalogue. 6 [s] 'I, the Lord, am your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, [t] that place of slavery. 7 [u] You shall not have other gods besides me. 8 You shall not carve idols for yourselves [v] in the shape of anything in the sky above or on the earth below or in the waters beneath the earth; 9 *you shall not bow down before them or worship them. For I, the Lord, your God, am a jealous God, [w] inflicting punishments for their fathers' wickedness on the children of those who hate me, down to the third and fourth generation 10 but bestowing mercy, down to the thousandth generation, [x] on the children of those who love me and keep my commandments.

11 'You shall not take the name of the Lord, your God, in vain. [y] For the Lord
will not leave unpunished him who takes
his name in vain.

12 'Take care to keep holy the Sabbath day as the Lord, your God, commanded
you. 13 Six days you may labor and do all your work; 14 but the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord, your God. [z] No work may be done then, whether by you, or your son or daughter, or your male or female slave, or your ox or ass or any of your beasts, or the alien who lives with you. Your male and female slave should rest as you do. 15 For remember that you too were once slaves in Egypt, [a] and the Lord, your God, brought you from there with his strong hand and outstretched arm. That is why the Lord, your God, has commanded you to observe the Sabbath day.

16 [b] 'Honor your father and your mother, as the Lord, your God, has commanded you, that you may have a long life and prosperity in the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you.

17 [c] 'You shall not kill.

18 'You shall not commit adultery.

19 'You shall not steal.

20 'You shall not bear dishonest witness against your neighbor.

21 'You shall not covet your neighbor's wife.

'You shall not desire your neighbor's house or field, nor his male or female slave, nor his ox or ass, nor anything that belongs to him.'

Moses as Mediator. 22 "These words, and nothing more, the Lord spoke with a loud voice to your entire assembly on the mountain from the midst of the fire and the dense cloud. He wrote them upon two tablets of stone and gave them to me. 23
But when you heard the voice from the midst of the darkness, while the mountain was ablaze with fire, you came to me in the person of all your tribal heads and elders, 24 and said, 'The Lord, our God, has indeed let us see his glory and his majesty! We have heard his voice from the midst of the fire [d] and have found out today that a man can still live after God has spoken with him. 25 But why should we die now? Surely this great fire will consume us. If we hear the voice of the Lord, our God, any more, we shall die. [e] 26 For what mortal has heard, as we have,
the voice of the living God speaking from the midst of fire, and survived? 27 Go closer, you, and hear all that the Lord, our God, will say, and then tell us what the Lord, our God, tells you; we will listen and obey.' [f]

28 "The Lord heard your words as you were speaking to me and said to me, 'I have heard the words these people have spoken to you, which are all well said. [g] 29 Would that they might always be of such a mind, to fear me and to keep all my commandments! Then they and their descendants would prosper forever. 30 Go, tell them to return to their tents. 31 Then you wait here near me and I will give you all the commandments, the statutes and decrees you must teach them, that they may observe them in the land which I am giving them to possess.'

5, 9f: God does not punish us for another's sins, but because of the solidarity of human society, the good or evil deeds of one generation may make their effects felt even in later generations. Yet note how God's mercy allows the good effects of virtue to last much longer than the bad effects of vice: a thousand generations compared to three or four.

32 "Be careful, therefore, to do as the Lord, your God, has commanded you, not turning aside to the right or to the left, 33 but following exactly the way prescribed for you by the Lord, your God, that you may live and prosper, and may have long life in the land which you are to occupy.[b]

CHAPTER 6.

1 "These then are the commandments,
the statutes and decrees[i] which the Lord,
your God, has ordered that you be taught to observe in the land into which you are crossing for conquest, 2 so that you and your son and your grandson may fear the Lord, your God, and keep, throughout the days of your lives, all his statutes and commandments[j] which I enjoin on you,
and thus have long life. 3 Hear then,
Israel, and be careful to observe them,
that you may grow and prosper the more,
in keeping with the promise of the Lord,
the God of your fathers, to give you a land flowing with milk and honey.

The Great Commandment. 4 "Hear, O Israel! The Lord is our God, the Lord alone![k] 5 Therefore, you shall love the Lord, your God, with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength.[l] 6 Take to heart these words which I enjoin on you today. 7 Drill them into your children.[m] Speak of them at home and abroad, whether you are busy or at rest. 8 Bind them at your wrist as a sign and let them be as a pendant on your forehead.[n] 9 Write them on the door-posts of your houses and on your gates.[o]

Fidelity in Prosperity. 10 "When the Lord, your God, brings you into the land
which he swore to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, that he would give you,
a land with fine, large cities that you did not build,[p] 11 with houses full of goods of all sorts that you did not garner, with cisterns that you did not dig, with vineyards and olive groves that you did not plant; and when, therefore, you eat your fill, 12 [q] take care not to forget the Lord,
who brought you out of the land of Egypt,
that place of slavery. 13 [r] The Lord, your God, shall you fear; him shall you serve,*
and by his name shall you swear. 14 You shall not follow other gods, such as those of the surrounding nations, 15 lest the wrath of the Lord, your God, flare up against you and he destroy you from the face of the land;[s] for the Lord, your God,
who is in your midst, is a jealous God.

16 [t] "You shall not put the Lord, your God, to the test, as you did at Massa. 17
But keep the commandments of the Lord,
your God, and the ordinances and statutes he has enjoined on you. 18 Do what is right and good in the sight of the Lord,
that you may, according to his word,
prosper, and may enter in and possess the good land which the Lord promised on oath to your fathers, 19 thrusting all your enemies out of your way.[u]

Instruction to Children. 20 "Later on,
when your son asks you what these ordinances, statutes and decrees mean[v] which the Lord, our God, has enjoined on you, 21 you shall say to your son, 'We were once slaves of Pharao in Egypt, but the Lord brought us out of Egypt with his strong hand[w] 22 and wrought before our eyes signs and wonders, great and dire, against Egypt and against Pharao and his whole house. 23 He brought us from there to lead us into the land he promised on oath to our fathers, and to give it to us.
24 Therefore, the Lord commanded us to observe all these statutes in fear of the Lord, our God, that we may always have as prosperous and happy a life as we have today; 25 and our justice before the Lord,
our God, is to consist in carefully observing all these commandments he has enjoined on us.'

6, 4f: This passage contains the basic principle of the whole Mosaic Law, the keynote of the Book of Deuteronomy: since the Lord alone is God, we must love Him with an undivided heart. Christ cited these words as "the greatest and the first commandment," embracing in itself the whole law of God (Mt 22, 37f and parallels).

6, 8: Bind them . . . as a sign: these injunctions were probably meant merely in a figurative sense; cf Ex 13, 9. 16. However, the later Jews understood them literally, and tied on their wrists and foreheads "phylacteries," boxes containing strips of parchment on which the words were inscribed; cf Mt 23, 5.

6, 13: Him shall you serve: here, to "serve" God means especially to "worship" Him; in this sense it is quoted by our Lord (Mt 4, 10) as an argument against worshiping the devil.

ites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites:[x] seven nations more numerous and powerful than you—2 and when the Lord, your God, delivers them up to you and you defeat them, you shall doom them. Make no covenant with them[y] and show them no mercy. 3 You shall not intermarry with them, neither giving your daughters to their sons nor taking their daughters for your sons.[z] 4 For they would turn yours sons from following me to serving other gods, and then the wrath of the Lord would flare up against you and quickly destroy you.

5 "But this is how you must deal with them: [a] Tear down their altars, smash their sacred pillars, chop down their sacred poles,* and destroy their idols by fire. 6 For you are a people sacred to the Lord, your God; he has chosen you from all the nations on the face of the earth to be a people peculiarly his own.[b] 7 It was not because you are the largest of all nations that the Lord set his heart on you and chose you, for you are really the smallest of all nations. 8 It was because the Lord loved you and because of his fidelity to the oath he had sworn to your fathers, that he brought you out with his strong hand from the place of slavery, and ransomed you from the hand of Pharao, king of Egypt. 9 [c] Understand, then, that the Lord, your God, is God indeed, the faithful God who keeps his merciful covenant down to the thousandth generation toward those who love him and keep his commandments, 10 but who repays with destruction the person who hates him; he does not dally with such a one, but makes him personally pay for it. 11 You shall therefore carefully observe the commandments, the statutes and the decrees which I enjoin on you today.

Blessings of Obedience. 12 [d] "As your reward for heeding these decrees and observing them carefully, the Lord, your God, will keep with you the merciful covenant which he promised on oath to your fathers. 13 He will love and bless and multiply you; he will bless the fruit of your womb and the produce of your soil, your grain and wine and oil, the issue of your herds and the young of your flocks, in the land which he swore to your fathers he would give you.[e] 14 You will be blessed above all peoples; no man or woman among you shall be childless nor shall your livestock be barren. 15 The Lord will remove all sickness from you; he will not afflict you with any of the malignant diseases that you know from Egypt, but will leave them with all your enemies.

16 "You shall consume all the nations which the Lord, your God, will deliver up to you. You are not to look on them with pity, lest you be ensnared into serving their gods. 17 Perhaps you will say to yourselves, [f] 'These nations are greater than we. How can we dispossess them?' 18 But do not be afraid of them. Rather, call to mind what the Lord, your God, did to Pharao and to all Egypt: 19 the great testings which your own eyes have seen, the signs and wonders, his strong hand and outstretched arm with which the Lord, your God, brought you out.[g] The same also will he do to all the nations of whom you are now afraid. 20 Moreover, the Lord, your God, will send hornets among them, until the survivors who have hidden from you are destroyed.[h] 21 Therefore, do not be terrified by them, for the Lord, your God, who is in your midst, is a great and awesome God. 22 He will dislodge these nations before you little by little. You cannot exterminate them all at once, lest the wild beasts become too numerous for you.[i] 23 The Lord, your God, will deliver them up to you and will rout them utterly until they are annihilated.[j] 24 He will deliver their kings into your hand, that you may make their names perish from under the heavens. No man will be able to stand up against you,[k] till you have put an end to them. 25 The images of their gods you shall destroy by fire. Do not covet the silver or gold on them, nor take it for yourselves, lest you be ensnared by it; for it is an abomination to the Lord, your God. 26 You shall not bring any abominable thing into your house, lest you be doomed with it: loathe and abhor it utterly as a thing that is doomed.

CHAPTER 8.

God's Care. 1 "Be careful to observe all the commandments l I enjoin on you today, that you may live and increase, and may enter in and possess the land which the Lord promised on oath to your fathers. 2 Remember how for forty years now the Lord, your God, has directed all your journeying in the desert,m so as to test you by affliction and find out whether or not it was your intention to keep his commandments. 3 He therefore let you be afflicted with hunger, and then fed you with manna,n a food unknown to you and your fathers, in order to show you that not by bread alone* does man live, but by every word that comes forth from the mouth of the Lord. 4 The clothing did not fall from you in tatters, nor did your feet swell these forty years.o 5 So you must realize that the Lord, your God, disciplines you even as a man disciplines his son.

Danger of Prosperity. 6 "Therefore, keep the commandments of the Lord, your God, by walking in his ways and fearing him. 7 For the Lord, your God, is bringing you into a good country,p a land with streams of water, with springs and fountains welling up in the hills and valleys, 8 a land of wheat and barley, of vines and fig trees and pomegranates, of olive trees and of honey, 9 a land where you can eat bread without stint and where you will lack nothing, a land whose stones contain iron and in whose hills you can mine copper. 10 But when you have eaten your fill, you must bless the Lord, your God, for the good country he has given you. 11 Be careful not to forget the Lord, your God, by neglecting his commandments and decrees and statutes which I enjoin on you today: 12 lest, when you have eaten your fill, and have built fine houses and lived in them, 13 and have increased your herds and flocks, your silver and gold, and all your property, 14 you then become haughty of heart and unmindful of the Lord, your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, that place of slavery; 15 who guided you through the vast and terrible desert with its saraph serpents and scorpions, its parched and waterless ground; who brought forth water for you from the flinty rock q 16 and fed you in the desert with manna, a food unknown to your fathers, that he might afflict you and test you, but also make you prosperous in the end. 17 Otherwise, you might say to yourselves, r 'It is my own power and the strength of my own hand that has obtained for me this wealth.' 18 Remember then, it is the Lord, your God, who gives you the power to acquire wealth, by fulfilling, as he has now done, the covenant which he swore to your fathers. 19 But if you forget the Lord, your God, and follow other gods, serving and worshiping them,s I forewarn you this day that you will perish utterly. 20 Like the nations which the Lord destroys before you, so shall you too perish for not heeding the voice of the Lord, your God.

CHAPTER 9.

Unmerited Success. 1 "Hear, O Israel! You are now about to cross the Jordan to enter in and dispossess nations greater and stronger than yourselves, having large cities fortified to the sky,t 2 the Enacim, a people great and tall.u You know of them and have heard it said of them, 'Who can stand up against the Enacim?' 3 Understand, then, today that it is the Lord, your God, who will cross over before you as a consuming fire; he it is who will reduce them to nothing and subdue them before you, so that you can drive them out and destroy them quickly, as the Lord promised you.v 4 After the Lord, your God, has thrust them out of your way, do not say to yourselves, 'It is because of my merits that the Lord has brought me in to possess this land'; w for it is really because of the wickedness of these nations that the Lord is driving them out before you. 5 No, it is not because of your merits or the integrity of your heart that you are going in to take possession of their land; but the Lord, your God, is driving these nations out before you on account of their wickedness and in order to keep the promise which he made on oath to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. 6 Understand this, therefore: it is not because of your merits that the Lord, your God, is giving you this good land to possess, for you are a stiff-necked people.

The Golden Calf. 7 "Bear in mind and do not forget how you angered the Lord, your God, in the desert. From the day you left the land of Egypt until you arrived in this place, you have been rebellious toward the Lord.[x] 8 At Horeb you so provoked the Lord that he was angry enough to destroy you,[y] 9 when I had gone up the mountain to receive the stone tablets of the covenant which the Lord made with you.[z] Meanwhile I stayed on the mountain forty days and forty nights without eating or drinking, 10 till the Lord gave me the two tablets of stone inscribed, by God's own finger,[a] with a copy of all the words that the Lord spoke to you on the mountain from the midst of the fire on the day of the assembly. 11 Then, at the end of the forty days and forty nights, when the Lord had given me the two stone tablets of the covenant, 12 he said to me, [b] 'Go down from here now, quickly, for your people whom you have brought out of Egypt have become depraved; they have already turned aside from the way I pointed out to them and have made for themselves a molten idol. 13 I have seen now how stiff-necked this people is,' the Lord said to me. 14 'Let me be, that I may destroy them and blot out their name from under the heavens. I will then make of you a nation mightier and greater than they.'

15 "When I had come down again from the blazing, fiery mountain, with the two tablets of the covenant in both my hands,[c] 16 I saw how you had sinned against the Lord, your God: you had already turned aside from the way which the Lord had pointed out to you by making for yourselves a molten calf! 17 Raising the two tablets with both hands I threw them from me and broke them before your eyes.[d] 18 Then, as before, I lay prostrate before the Lord for forty days and forty nights without eating or drinking, because of all the sin you had committed in the sight of the Lord and the evil you had done to provoke him.[e] 19 For I dreaded the fierce anger of the Lord against you: his wrath would destroy you.[f] Yet once again the Lord listened to me. 20 With Aaron, too, the Lord was deeply angry, and would have killed him had I not prayed for him also at that time. 21 Then, taking the calf, the sinful object you had made, and fusing it with fire, I ground it down to powder as fine as dust, which I threw into the wadi that went down the mountainside.[g]

22 "At Thabera, at Massa, and at Cibroth-Hatthaava likewise, you provoked the Lord to anger.[h] 23 And when he sent you up from Cadesbarne to take possession of the land he was giving you, you rebelled against this command of the Lord, your God, and would not trust or obey him.[i] 24 Ever since I have known you, you have been rebels against the Lord.

25 "Those forty days, then, and forty nights, I lay prostrate before the Lord, because he had threatened to destroy you. 26 This was my prayer to him: O Lord God, destroy not your people, the heritage which your majesty has ransomed and brought out of Egypt with your strong hand. 27 Remember your servants, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Look not upon the stubbornness of this people nor upon their wickedness and sin, 28 lest the people from whose land you have brought us say, 'The Lord was not able to bring them into the land he promised them'; or 'Out of hatred for them, he brought them out to slay them in the desert.' [j] 29 They are, after all, your people and your heritage, whom you have brought out by your great power and with your outstretched arm.[k]

CHAPTER 10.

1 "At that time the Lord said to me, 'Cut two tablets of stone like the former;[l] then come up the mountain to me. Also make an ark of wood. 2 I will write upon the tablets the commandments that were on the former tablets that you broke, and you shall place them in the ark.' 3 So I made an ark of acacia wood, and cut two tablets of stone like the former, and went up the mountain carrying the two tablets.[m] 4 [n] The Lord then wrote on them, as he had written before, the Ten Commandments which he spoke to you on the

6 [The Israelites set out from Beroth Bene-Jaacan[p] for Moser, where Aaron died and was buried, his son Eleazar succeeding him in the priestly office. 7 From there they set out for Gadgad, and from Gadgad for Jetabatha,[q] a region where there is water in the wadies.]

8 "At that time the Lord set apart the tribe of Levi to carry the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord,[r] to be in attendance before the Lord and minister to him, and to give blessings in his name, as they have done to this day. 9 For this reason, Levi has no share in the heritage with his brothers;[s] the Lord himself is his heritage, as the Lord, your God, has told him.

10 "After I had spent these other forty days and forty nights on the mountain, and the Lord had once again heard me and decided not to destroy you, 11 he said to me, 'Go now and set out at the head of your people,[t] that they may enter in and occupy the land which I swore to their fathers I would give them.'

The Lord's Majesty. 12 "And now, Israel, what does the Lord, your God, ask of you but to fear the Lord, your God, and follow his ways exactly, to love and serve the Lord, your God, with all your heart and all your soul,[u] 13 to keep the commandments and statutes of the Lord which I enjoin on you today for your own good? 14 Think! The heavens, even the highest heavens,* belong to the Lord, your God, as well as the earth and everything on it.[v] 15 Yet in his love for your fathers the Lord was so attached to them as to choose you, their descendants, in preference to all other peoples, as indeed he has now done.[w] 16 Circumcise your hearts,* therefore, and be no longer stiff-necked. 17 For the Lord, your God, is the God of gods, the Lord of lords, the great God, mighty and awesome, who has no favorites, accepts no bribes;[x] 18 who executes justice for the orphan and the widow, and befriends the alien, feeding and clothing him. 19 So you too must befriend the alien, for you were once aliens yourselves in the land of Egypt.[y] 20 The Lord, your God, shall you fear, and him shall you serve; hold fast to him and swear by his name.[z] 21 He is your glory, he, your God, who has done for you those great and terrible things which your own eyes have seen. 22 Your ancestors went down to Egypt seventy strong,[a] and now the Lord, your God, has made you as numerous as the stars of the sky.

CHAPTER 11.

The Wonders of the Lord. 1 "Love the Lord, your God, therefore, and always heed his charge: his statutes, decrees and commandments. 2 It is not your children, who have not known it from experience, but you yourselves who must now understand the discipline of the Lord, your God; his majesty, his strong hand and outstretched arm; 3 the signs and deeds he wrought among the Egyptians, on Pharao, king of Egypt, and on all his land;[b] 4 what he did to the Egyptian army and to their horses and chariots, engulfing them in the water of the Red Sea as they pursued you,[c] and bringing ruin upon them even to this day; 5 what he did for you in the desert until you arrived in this place; 6 and what he did to the Rubenites Dathan and Abiram, sons of Eliab, when the ground opened its mouth and swallowed them up out of the midst of Israel, with their families and tents and every living thing that belonged to them.[d] 7 With your own eyes you have seen all these great deeds that the Lord has done. 8 Keep all the commandments, then, which I enjoin on you today, that you may be strong enough to enter in and take possession of the land into which you are crossing, 9 and that you may have long life on the land which the Lord swore to your fathers he would give to them and their descendants, a land flowing with milk and honey.

10, 16: Circumcise your hearts: cf Dt 30, 6; Jer 4, 4; Rom 2, 29. The "uncircumcised heart" (Lv 26, 41; Jer 9, 25; Ez 44, 7. 9) is closed and unreceptive to divine grace and guidance, just as "uncircumcised ears" (Jer 6, 10) are closed to sound, and "uncircumcised lips" (Ex 6, 12. 30) do not open well in speech.

The Gift of Rain. 10 "For the land which you are to enter and occupy is not like the land of Egypt from which you have come, where you would sow your seed and then water it by hand, as in a vegetable garden. 11 e No, the land into which you are crossing for conquest is a land of hills and valleys that drinks in rain from the heavens, 12 a land which the Lord, your God, looks after; his eyes are upon it continually from the beginning of the year to the end. 13 *If, then, you truly heed my commandments which I enjoin on you today, loving and serving the Lord, your God, with all your heart and all your soul,f 14 I will give the seasonal rain to your land, the early rain* and the late rain, that you may have your grain, wine and oil to gather in; 15 and I will bring forth grass in your fields for your animals.g Thus you may eat your fill. 16 But be careful lest your heart be so lured away that you serve other gods and worship them.h 17 For then the wrath of the Lord will flare up against you and he will close up the heavens, so that no rain will fall, and the soil will not yield its crops, and you will soon perish from the good land he is giving you.

Reward of Fidelity. 18 i "Therefore, take these words of mine into your heart and soul. Bind them at your wrist as a sign, and let them be a pendant on your forehead. 19 Teach them to your children, speaking of them at home and abroad, whether you are busy or at rest. 20 And write them on the doorposts of your houses and on your gates, 21 so that, as long as the heavens are above the earth, you and your children may live on in the land which the Lord swore to your fathers he would give them.

22 "For if you are careful to observe all these commandments I enjoin on you, loving the Lord, your God, and following his ways exactly, and holding fast to him, 23 the Lord will drive all these nations out of your way,j and you will dispossess nations greater and mightier than yourselves. 24 k Every place where you set foot shall be yours: from the desert and from Lebanon, from the Euphrates River to the Western Sea,* shall be your territory. 25 None shall stand up against you; the Lord, your God, will spread the fear and dread of you through any land where you set foot, as he promised you.l

A Blessing and a Curse. 26 m "I set before you here, this day, a blessing and a curse: 27 a blessing for obeying the commandments of the Lord, your God, which I enjoin on you today; 28 a curse if you do not obey the commandments of the Lord, your God, but turn aside from the way I ordain for you today, to follow other gods, whom you have not known. 29 When the Lord, your God, brings you into the land which you are to enter and occupy, then you shall pronounce the blessing on Mount Garizim,n the curse* on Mount Ebal. 30 [Are they not beyond the Jordan, on the other side of the western road in the country of the Chanaanites who live in the Araba, opposite Galgal, beside the terebinth of More?] 31 For you are about to cross the Jordan to enter and occupy the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you. When, therefore, you take possession of it and settle there, 32 be careful to observe all the statutes and decrees that I set before you today.

III: EXPOSITION OF THE LAW

CHAPTER 12.

One Sanctuary. 1 "These are the statutes and decrees which you must be careful to observe in the land which the Lord, the God of your fathers, has given you to occupy, as long as you live on its soil. 2 Destroy without fail every place on the high mountains, on the hills, and under every leafy tree where the nations you are to dispossess worship their gods.o 3 Tear down their altars, smash their sacred pillars, destroy by fire their sacred poles, and shatter the idols of their gods, that you may stamp out the remembrance of them in any such place.

4 "That is not how you are to worship

the Lord, your God. 5 Instead, [p] you shall resort to the place which the Lord, your God, chooses out of all your tribes and designates as his dwelling 6 and there you shall bring your holocausts and sacrifices, your tithes and personal contributions, your votive and freewill offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and flocks. 7 There, too, before the Lord, your God, you and your families shall eat and make merry over all your undertakings, because the Lord, your God, has blessed you. 8 You shall not do as we are now doing; here, everyone does what seems right to himself, 9 since you have not yet reached your resting place, the heritage which the Lord, your God, will give you. 10 But after you have crossed the Jordan and dwell in the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you as a heritage, when he has given you rest from all your enemies round about and you live there in security, 11 then to the place which the Lord, your God, chooses as the dwelling place for his name you shall bring all the offerings I command you: your holocausts and sacrifices, your tithes and personal contributions, and every special offering you have vowed to the Lord. 12 You shall make merry before the Lord, your God, with your sons and daughters, your male and female slaves, as well as with the Levite who belongs to your community but has no share of his own in your heritage. 13 Take care not to offer up your holocausts in any place you fancy; 14 but offer them up in the place which the Lord chooses from among your tribes; there you shall make whatever offerings I enjoin upon you.

Profane and Sacred Meals. 15 "However, in any of your communities you may slaughter and eat to your heart's desire as much meat as the Lord, your God, has blessed you with; and the unclean as well as the clean may eat it, as they do the gazelle or the deer. 16 Only, you shall not partake of the blood, but must pour it out on the ground like water.[q] 17 Moreover, you shall not, in your own communities, partake of your tithe of grain or wine or oil, of the first-born of your herd or flock, of any offering you have vowed, of your freewill offerings, or of your personal contributions. 18 These you must eat before the Lord, your God, in the place he chooses, along with your son and daughter, your male and female slave, and the Levite who belongs to your community; and there, before the Lord, you shall make merry over all your undertakings. 19 Take care, also, that you do not neglect the Levite as long as you live in the land.[r]

20 "After the Lord, your God, has enlarged your territory, as he promised you,[s] when you wish meat for food,* you may eat it at will, to your heart's desire; 21 and if the place which the Lord, your God, chooses for the abode of his name is too far, you may slaughter in the manner I have told you any of your herd or flock that the Lord has given you, and eat it to your heart's desire in your own community. 22 You may eat it as you would the gazelle or the deer: the unclean and the clean eating it alike. 23 But make sure that you do not partake of the blood; for blood is life, and you shall not consume this seat of life with the flesh. 24 Do not partake of the blood, therefore, but pour it out on the ground like water. 25 Abstain from it, that you and your children after you may prosper for doing what is right in the sight of the Lord. 26 However, any sacred gifts or votive offerings that you may have, you shall bring with you to the place which the Lord chooses, 27 and there you must offer both the flesh and the blood of your holocausts on the altar of the Lord, your God; of your other sacrifices the blood indeed must be poured out against the altar of the Lord, your God,[t] but their flesh may be eaten. 28 Be careful to heed all these commandments I enjoin on you, that you and your descendants may always prosper for doing what is good and right in the sight of the Lord, your God.

Pagan Rites. 29 "When the Lord, your God, removes the nations from your way as you advance to dispossess them, be on your guard! Otherwise, once they have been wiped out before you and you have replaced them and are settled in their land, 30 you will be lured into following them. CHAPTER 13.

Penalties for Idolatry. 1 "Every command that I enjoin on you, you shall be careful to observe, neither adding to it nor subtracting from it.

2 "If there arises among you a prophet or a dreamer* who promises you a sign or wonder, 3 urging you to follow other gods, whom you have not known, and to serve them: even though the sign or wonder he has foretold you comes to pass, 4 pay no attention to the words of that prophet or that dreamer; for the Lord, your God, is testing you to learn whether you really love him with all your heart and with all your soul. 5 The Lord, your God, shall you follow, and him shall you fear; his commandment shall you observe, and his voice shall you heed, serving him and holding fast to him alone. 6[v] But that prophet or that dreamer shall be put to death, because, in order to lead you astray from the way which the Lord, your God, has directed you to take, he has preached apostasy from the Lord, your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt and ransomed you from that place of slavery. Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst.

7 "If your own full brother, or your son or daughter, or your beloved wife, or your intimate friend, entices you secretly to serve other gods, whom you and your fathers have not known, 8 gods of any other nation, near at hand or far away, from one end of the earth to the other: 9 do not yield to him or listen to him, nor look with pity upon him, to spare or shield him, 10 but kill him. Your hand shall be the first raised to slay him; the rest of the people shall join in with you. 11 You shall stone him to death, because he sought to lead you astray from the Lord, your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, that place of slavery. 12 And all Israel, hearing of it, shall fear and never again do such evil as this in your midst.

13 "If, in any of the cities which the Lord, your God, gives you to dwell in, you hear it said 14 that certain scoundrels have sprung up among you and have led astray the inhabitants of their city to serve other gods whom you have not known, 15 you must inquire carefully into the matter and investigate it thoroughly. If you find that it is true and an established fact that this abomination has been committed in your midst, 16[w] you shall put the inhabitants of that city to the sword, dooming the city and all life that is in it, even its cattle, to the sword. 17 Having heaped up all its spoils in the middle of its square, you shall burn the city with all its spoils as a whole burnt offering to the Lord, your God. Let it be a heap of ruins forever, never to be rebuilt. 18 You shall not retain anything that is doomed, that the blazing wrath of the Lord may die down and he may show you mercy and in his mercy for you may multiply you as he promised your fathers on oath; 19 because you have heeded the voice of the Lord, your God, keeping all his commandments which I enjoin on you today, doing what is right in his sight.

CHAPTER 14.

Pagan Mourning Rites. 1 "You are children of the Lord, your God. You shall not gash yourselves nor shave the hair above your foreheads for the dead.[x] 2 For you are a people sacred to the Lord, your God, who has chosen you from all the nations on the face of the earth to be a people peculiarly his own.[y]

Clean and Unclean Animals. 3 "You shall not eat any abominable thing.[z] 4 [a] These are the animals you may eat: the ox, the sheep, the goat, 5 the red deer, the gazelle, the roe deer, the ibex, the addax, the oryx,* and the mountain sheep. 6 Any animal that has hoofs you may eat, provided it is cloven-footed and chews the cud. 7 But you shall not eat any of the following that only chew the cud or only have cloven hoofs: the camel, the hare and the rock badger, which indeed chew the cud, but do not have hoofs and are therefore unclean for you; [8] and the pig, which indeed has hoofs and is cloven-footed, but does not chew the cud and is therefore unclean for you. Their flesh you shall not eat, and their dead bodies you shall not touch.[b]

[9] "Of the various creatures that live in the water, whatever has both fins and scales you may eat, [10] but all those that lack either fins or scales you shall not eat; they are unclean for you.

[11] "You may eat all clean birds. [12] But you shall not eat any of the following: the eagle, the vulture, the osprey, [13] the various kites and falcons, [14] all the various species of crows, [15] the ostrich, the nightjar, the gull, the various species of hawks, [16] the owl, the screech owl, the ibis, [17] the desert owl, the buzzard, the cormorant, [18] the stork, the various species of herons, the hoopoe, and the bat. [19] *All winged insects, too, are unclean for you and shall not be eaten. [20] But you may eat any clean winged creatures.

[21] "You must not eat any animal that has died of itself, for you are a people sacred to the Lord, your God.[c] But you may give it to an alien who belongs to your community, and he may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreigner.

"You shall not boil a kid in its mother's milk.*

Tithes. [22] "Each year you shall tithe all the produce that grows in the field you have sown;[d] [23] then in the place which the Lord, your God, chooses as the dwelling place of his name[e] you shall eat in his presence your tithe of the grain, wine and oil, as well as the firstlings of your herd and flock, that you may learn always to fear the Lord, your God. [24] If, however, the journey is too much for you and you are not able to bring your tithe, because the place which the Lord, your God, chooses for the abode of his name is too far for you, considering how the Lord has blessed you,* [25] you may exchange the tithe for money and, with the purse of money in hand, go to the place which the Lord, your God, chooses. [26] You may then exchange the money for whatever you desire, oxen or sheep, wine or strong drink, or anything else you would enjoy, and there before the Lord, your God, you shall partake of it and make merry with your family. [27] But do not neglect the Levite who belongs to your community, for he has no share in the heritage with you.[f]

[28] "At the end of every third year you shall bring out all the tithes of your produce for that year and deposit them in community stores, [29] that the Levite who has no share in the heritage with you, and also the alien, the orphan and the widow who belong to your community, may come and eat their fill;[g] so that the Lord, your God, may bless you in all that you undertake.

CHAPTER 15.

Debts and the Poor. [1] "At the end of every seven-year period* you shall have a relaxation of debts,[h] [2] which shall be observed as follows. Every creditor shall relax his claim on what he has loaned his neighbor; he must not press his neighbor, his kinsman, because a relaxation in honor of the Lord has been proclaimed. [3] You may press a foreigner, but you shall relax the claim on your kinsman for what is yours.[i] [4] Nay, more! since the Lord, your God, will bless you abundantly in the land he will give you to occupy as your heritage, there should be no one of you in need. [5] If you but heed the voice of the Lord, your God, and carefully observe all these commandments which I enjoin on you today, [6] you will lend to many nations, and borrow from none;[j] you will rule over many nations, and none will rule over you, since the Lord, your God, will bless you as he promised. [7] If one of your kinsmen in any community is in need in the land which the

Cf Ex 23, 11 where the same Hebrew root is used of a field that is "let lie fallow" in the sabbatical year.

Lord, your God, is giving you, you shall not harden your heart nor close your hand to him in his need. 8 Instead, you shall open your hand to him and freely lend him enough to meet his need.[k] 9 Be on your guard lest, entertaining the mean thought that the seventh year, the year of relaxation, is near, you grudge help to your needy kinsman and give him nothing; else he will cry to the Lord against you and you will be held guilty. 10 When you give to him, give freely and not with ill will; for the Lord, your God, will bless you for this in all your works and undertakings. 11 The needy will never be lacking* in the land; that is why I command you to open your hand to your poor and needy kinsman in your country.[l]

Hebrew Slaves. 12 "If your kinsman, a Hebrew man or woman, sells himself to you, he is to serve you for six years, but in the seventh year you shall dismiss him from your service, a free man.[m] 13 When you do so, you shall not send him away empty-handed, 14 but shall weight him down with gifts from your flock and threshing floor and wine press, in proportion to the blessing the Lord, your God, has bestowed on you. 15 For remember that you too were once slaves in the land of Egypt, and the Lord, your God, ransomed you. That is why I am giving you this command today.[n] 16 If, however, he tells you that he does not wish to leave you, because he is devoted to you and your household, since he fares well with you, 17 you shall take an awl and thrust it through his ear* into the door, and he shall then be your slave forever.[o] Your female slave, also, you shall treat in the same way. 18 You must not be reluctant to let your slave go free, since the service he has given you for six years was worth twice a hired man's salary; then also the Lord, your God, will bless you in everything you do.

Firstlings. 19 [p] "You shall consecrate to the Lord, your God, all the male firstlings of your herd and of your flock. You shall not work the firstlings of your cattle, nor shear the firstlings of your flock. 20 Year after year you and your family shall eat them before the Lord, your God, in the place he chooses.[q] 21 If, however, a firstling is lame or blind or has any other serious defect, you shall not sacrifice it to the Lord, your God, 22 but in your own communities you may eat it, the unclean and the clean eating it alike, as you would a gazelle or a deer. 23 Only, you shall not partake of its blood, which must be poured out on the ground like water.[r]

CHAPTER 16.

Feast of the Passover. 1 "Observe the month of Abib* by keeping the Passover of the Lord, your God,[s] since it was in the month of Abib that he brought you by night out of Egypt. 2 You shall offer the Passover sacrifice from your flock or your herd to the Lord, your God, in the place which he chooses as the dwelling place of his name. 3 [t] You shall not eat leavened bread with it. For seven days you shall eat with it only unleavened bread, the bread of affliction, that you may remember as long as you live the day of your departure from the land of Egypt; for in frightened haste you left the land of Egypt. 4 Nothing leavened may be found in all your territory for seven days, and none of the meat which you sacrificed on the evening of the first day shall be kept overnight for the next day.

5 "You may not sacrifice the Passover in any of the communities which the Lord, your God, gives you; 6 only at the place which he chooses as the dwelling place of his name, and in the evening at sunset, on the anniversary of your departure from Egypt, shall you sacrifice the Passover. 7 You shall cook and eat it at the place the Lord, your God, chooses; then in the morning you may return to your tents. 8 For six days you shall eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh there shall be a solemn meeting in honor of the Lord, your God; on that day you shall not do any sort of work.

Feast of Weeks. 9 [u] "You shall count off seven weeks, computing them from the day when the sickle is first put to the standing grain. 10 You shall then keep the feast of Weeks* in honor of the Lord, your God, and the measure of your own freewill offering shall be in proportion to the blessing the Lord, your God, has bestowed on you. 11 In the place which the Lord, your God, chooses as the dwelling place of his name,[v] you shall make merry in his presence together with your son and daughter, your male and female slave, and the Levite who belongs to your community, as well as the alien, the orphan and the widow among you. 12 Remember that you too were once slaves in Egypt, and carry out these statutes carefully.

Feast of Booths. 13 [w] "You shall celebrate the feast of Booths for seven days, when you have gathered in the produce from your threshing floor and wine press.* 14 You shall make merry at your feast,[x] together with your son and daughter, your male and female slave, and also the Levite, the alien, the orphan and the widow who belong to your community. 15 For seven days you shall celebrate this pilgrim feast in honor of the Lord, your God, in the place which he chooses; since the Lord, your God, has blessed you in all your crops and in all your undertakings, you shall do naught but make merry.

16 "Three times a year,[y] then, every male among you shall appear before the Lord, your God, in the place which he chooses: at the feast of Unleavened Bread, at the feast of Weeks, and at the feast of Booths. No one shall appear before the Lord empty-handed, 17 but each of you with as much as he can give, in proportion to the blessings which the Lord, your God, has bestowed on you.

Judges. 18 "You shall appoint judges and officials throughout your tribes to administer true justice for the people in all the communities which the Lord, your God, is giving you. 19 You shall not distort justice; you must be impartial.[z] You shall not take a bribe; for a bribe blinds the eyes even of the wise and twists the words even of the just. 20 Justice and justice alone shall be your aim, that you may have life and may possess the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you.

Pagan Worship. 21 "You shall not plant a sacred pole of any kind of wood beside the altar of the Lord, your God, which you will build;[a] 22 nor shall you erect a sacred pillar, such as the Lord, your God, detests.

CHAPTER 17.

1 "You shall not sacrifice to the Lord, your God, from the herd or from the flock an animal with any serious defect;[b] that would be an abomination to the Lord, your God.

2 [c] "If there is found among you, in any one of the communities which the Lord, your God, gives you, a man or a woman who does evil in the sight of the Lord, your God, and transgresses his covenant, 3 by serving other gods, or by worshiping the sun or the moon or any of the host of the sky, against my command;[d] 4 and if, on being informed of it, you find by careful investigation that it is true and an established fact that this abomination has been committed in Israel: 5 you shall bring the man (or woman) who has done the evil deed out to your city gates* and stone him to death. 6 The testimony of two or three witnesses is required for putting a person to death;[e] no one shall be put to death on the testimony of only one witness. 7 At the execution, the witnesses are to be the first to raise their hands against him; afterward all the people are to join in.[f] Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst.

Judges. 8 "If in your own community there is a case at issue which proves too complicated for you to decide, in a matter of bloodshed or of civil rights or of personal injury, you shall then go up to the place which the Lord, your God, chooses, 9 to the Levitical priests or to the judge who is in office at that time. They shall study the case and then hand down to you their decision.[g] 10 According to this decision that they give you in the place which the Lord chooses, you shall act, being careful to do exactly as they direct. 11 You shall carry out the directions they give you and the verdict they pronounce for you, without turning aside to the right or to the left from the decision they hand down to you. 12 Any man who has the insolence to refuse to listen to the priest* who officiates there in the ministry of the Lord, your God, or to the judge, shall die. Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst. 13 And all the people, on hearing of it, shall fear, and never again be so insolent.

The King. 14 "When you have come into the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you, and have occupied it and settled in it, should you then decide to have a king over you like all the surrounding nations,[h] 15 you shall set that man over you as your king whom the Lord, your God, chooses.[i] He whom you set over you as king must be your kinsman; a foreigner, who is no kin of yours, you may not set over you. 16 But he shall not have a great number of horses;* nor shall he make his people go back again to Egypt to acquire them, against the Lord's warning that you must never go back that way again.[j] 17 Neither shall he have a great number of wives, lest his heart be estranged,[k] nor shall he accumulate a vast amount of silver and gold. 18 When he is enthroned in his kingdom, he shall have a copy of this law made from the scroll that is in the custody of the Levitical priests.[l] 19 He shall keep it with him and read it all the days of his life that he may learn to fear the Lord, his God, and to heed and fulfill all the words of this law and these statutes. 20 Let him not become estranged from his countrymen through pride, nor turn aside to the right or to the left from these commandments. Then he and his descendants will enjoy a long reign in Israel.

CHAPTER 18.

Priests. 1 "The whole priestly tribe of Levi shall have no share in the heritage with Israel; they shall live on the oblations of the Lord and the portions due to him.[m] 2 Levi shall have no heritage among his brothers; the Lord himself is his heritage, as he has told him. 3 The priests shall have a right to the following things from the people: from those who are offering a sacrifice, whether the victim is from the herd or from the flock, the priest shall receive the shoulder, the jowls and the stomach. 4 You shall also give him the first fruits of your grain and wine and oil,[n] as well as the first fruits of the shearing of your flock; 5 for the Lord, your God, has chosen him and his sons out of all your tribes to be always in attendance to minister in the name of the Lord.

6 "When a Levite goes from one of your communities anywhere in Israel in which he ordinarily resides, to visit, as his heart may desire, the place which the Lord chooses, 7 he may minister there in the name of the Lord, his God, like all his fellow Levites who are in attendance there before the Lord. 8 He shall then receive the same portions to eat as the rest, along with his monetary offerings and heirlooms.

Prophets. 9 "When you come into the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you, you shall not learn to imitate the abominations of the peoples there.[o] 10 Let there not be found among you anyone who immolates his son or daughter[p] in the fire,* nor a fortuneteller, soothsayer, charmer, diviner, 11 or caster of spells, nor one who consults ghosts and spirits or seeks oracles from the dead. 12 Anyone who does such things is an abomination to the Lord, and because of such abominations the Lord, your God, is driving these nations out of your way.[q] 13 You, however, must be altogether sincere toward the Lord, your God. 14 Though these nations whom you are to dispossess listen to their soothsayers and fortune-

17, 12: The priest: the high priest; the judge: a layman. The former presided over the court in cases which directly concerned religion, the latter in cases of a more secular nature; cf 2 Par 19, 8-11.

17, 16: Horses: chariotry for war. The Lord's warning: the same warning is also referred to in Dt 28, 68, although it is not mentioned explicitly elsewhere in the Pentateuch. We know from other sources that Egypt used to export war horses to Palestine. The danger envisioned here is that some king might make Israel a vassal of Egypt for the sake of such military aid.

18, 10: Immolates his son or daughter in the fire: to Moloch. See note on Lv 18, 21. Such human sacrifices are classed here with other pagan superstitions because they were believed to possess magical powers for averting a calamity; cf 4 Kgs 3, 27. Three other forms of superstition are listed here: augury (by a fortuneteller, a soothsayer or a diviner); black magic (by a charmer . . . or caster of spells); and necromacy (by one who consults ghosts and spirits or seeks oracles from the dead).

tellers, the Lord, your God, will not permit you to do so.

15 "A prophet like me* will the Lord, your God, raise up for you from among your own kinsmen; to him you shall listen.[r] 16 This is exactly what you requested of the Lord, your God, at Horeb on the day of the assembly, when you said, 'Let us not again hear the voice of the Lord, our God, nor see this great fire any more, lest we die.'[s] 17 And the Lord said to me, 'This was well said. 18 I will raise up for them a prophet like you from among their kinsmen, and will put my words into his mouth; he shall tell them all that I command him. 19 If any man will not listen to my words which he speaks in my name, I myself will make him answer for it.[t] 20 But if a prophet presumes to speak in my name[u] an oracle that I have not commanded him to speak, or speaks in the name of other gods, he shall die.'

21 "If you say to yourselves, 'How can we recognize an oracle which the Lord has spoken?', 22 know that, even though a prophet speaks in the name of the Lord, if his oracle is not fulfilled or verified, it is an oracle which the Lord did not speak. The prophet has spoken it presumptuously, and you shall have no fear of him.

CHAPTER 19.

Cities of Refuge. 1 "When the Lord, your God, removes the nations whose land he is giving you, and you have taken their place and are settled in their cities and houses, 2[v] you shall set apart three cities* in the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you to occupy. 3 You shall thereby divide into three regions the land which the Lord, your God, will give you as a heritage, and so arrange the routes that every homicide will be able to find a refuge.

4 "It is in the following case that a homicide may take refuge in such a place to save his life: when someone unwittingly kills his neighbor to whom he had previously borne no malice.[w] 5 For example, if he goes with his neighbor to a forest to cut wood, and as he swings his ax to fell a tree, its head flies off the handle and hits his neighbor a mortal blow, he may take refuge in one of these cities to save his life. 6 Should the distance be too great, the avenger of blood* may in the heat of his anger pursue the homicide and overtake him and strike him dead, even though he does not merit death since he had previously borne the slain man no malice. 7 That is why I order you to set apart three cities.

8[x] "But if the Lord, your God, enlarges your territory, as he swore to your fathers, and gives you all the land he promised your fathers he would give 9 in the event that you carefully observe all these commandments which I enjoin on you today, loving the Lord, your God, and ever walking in his ways: then add three cities to these three. 10 Thus, in the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you as a heritage, innocent blood will not be shed and you will not become guilty of bloodshed.

11[y] "However, if someone lies in wait for his neighbor out of hatred for him, and rising up against him, strikes him mortally, and then takes refuge in one of these cities, 12 the elders of his own city shall send for him and have him taken from there, and shall hand him over to be slain by the avenger of blood. 13 Do not look on him with pity, but purge from Israel the stain of shedding innocent blood, that you may prosper.

Removal of Landmarks. 14 "You shall not move your neighbor's landmarks erected by your forefathers in the heritage you receive in the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you to occupy.[z]

False Witnesses. 15 "One witness alone shall not take the stand against a man in regard to any crime or any offense of which he may be guilty; a judicial fact shall be established only on the testimony

18, 15: A prophet like me: from the context (opposition to the pagan soothsayers) it seems that Moses is referring in general to all the true prophets who were to succeed him. But since Christ is the Great Prophet in whom the prophetic office finds its fulfillment and completion, this passage was understood in a special Messianic sense both by the Jews (Jn 6, 14; 7, 40) and by the Apostles (Acts 3, 22; 7, 37).

19, 2: Set apart three cities: the Israelites were to have at least six cities of refuge, three in the land east of the Jordan and three in the land of Chanaan west of the Jordan (Nm 35, 9-34); but since the three cities east of the Jordan had now been appointed (Dt 4, 41-43), reference is made here only to the three west of the Jordan. The execution of this command is narrated in Jos 20.

of two or three witnesses.[a]

16 "If an unjust witness takes the stand against a man to accuse him of a defection from the law, 17 the two parties in the dispute shall appear before the Lord in the presence of the priests or judges in office at that time; [b] 18 and if after a thorough investigation the judges find that the witness is a false witness and has accused his kinsman falsely, 19 you shall do to him as he planned to do to his kinsman.[c] Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst. 20 The rest, on hearing of it, shall fear, and never again do a thing so evil among you. 21 Do not look on such a man with pity. Life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, and foot for foot! [d]

CHAPTER 20.

Courage in War. 1 "When you go out to war against your enemies and you see horses and chariots and an army greater than your own, do not be afraid of them, for the Lord, your God, who brought you up from the land of Egypt, will be with you.

2 "When you are about to go into battle,
the priest shall come forward and say to the soldiers: 3 'Hear, O Israel! Today you are going into battle against your enemies. Be not weakhearted or afraid; be neither alarmed nor frightened by them.
4 For it is the Lord, your God, who goes with you to fight for you against your enemies and give you victory.' [e]

5 "Then the officials shall say to the soldiers, [f] 'Is there anyone who has built a new house and not yet had the housewarming? Let him return home, lest he die in battle and another dedicate it. 6 Is there anyone who has planted a vineyard and never yet enjoyed its fruits? Let him return home, lest he die in battle and another enjoy its fruits in his stead. 7 Is there anyone who has betrothed a woman and not yet taken her as his wife? Let him return home, lest he die in battle and another take her to wife.' [g] 8 In fine, the officials shall say to the soldiers, 'Is there anyone who is afraid and weakhearted? [h] Let him return home, lest he make his fellows as fainthearted as himself.'

9 "When the officials have finished speaking to the soldiers, military officers
shall be appointed over the army.

Cities of the Enemy. 10 "When you march up to attack a city, first offer it terms of peace. 11 If it agrees to your terms of peace and opens its gates to you,
all the people to be found in it shall serve you in forced labor. 12 But if it refuses to make peace with you and instead offers you battle, lay siege to it, 13 and when the Lord, your God, delivers it into your hand, put every male in it to the sword; 14 but the women and children and livestock and all else in it that is worth plundering you may take as your booty, and you may use this plunder of your enemies which the Lord, your God, has given you.[i]

15 "That is how you shall deal with any city at a considerable distance from you, which does not belong to the peoples of this land. 16 But in the cities of those nations which the Lord, your God, is giving you as your heritage, you shall not leave a single soul alive. 17 You must doom them all—the Hethites, Amorrites, Cha-naanites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jeb-usites [j] — as the Lord, your God, has commanded you, 18 lest they teach you to make any such abominable offerings as they make to their gods, and you thus sin against the Lord, your God.

Trees of a Besieged City. 19 "When you are at war with a city and have to lay siege to it for a long time before you capture it, you shall not destroy its trees by putting an ax to them. You may eat their fruit, but you must not cut down the trees. After all, are the trees of the field men, that they should be included in your siege? 20 However, those trees which you know are not fruit trees you may destroy,
cutting them down to build siegeworks
with which to reduce the city that is resisting you.

CHAPTER 21.

Expiation of Untraced Murder. 1 "If the corpse of a slain man* is found lying in the open on the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you to occupy, and it is not known who killed him, 2 your eld-

21, 1-9: This paragraph is best read immediately after Dt 19, 21. The slain man may not necessarily have been murdered; he may have been killed by a wild beast. But the blood of the slain cries out to God from the soil where it was shed; cf Gn 4, 10. Therefore a religious ceremony of propitiation is here prescribed in order to avert God's anger on the community.

ers and judges shall go out and measure the distances to the cities that are in the neighborhood of the corpse. [3] When it is established which city is nearest the corpse, the elders of that city shall take a heifer that has never been put to work as a draft animal under a yoke, [4] and bringing it down to a wadi with an ever-flowing stream at a place that has not been plowed or sown, they shall cut the heifer's throat there in the wadi.* [5] The priests, the descendants of Levi, shall also be present, for the Lord, your God, has chosen them to minister to him and to give blessings in his name, and every case of dispute or violence must be settled by their decision.[k] [6] Then all the elders of that city nearest the corpse shall wash their hands* over the heifer whose throat was cut in the wadi, [7] and shall declare, 'Our hands did not shed this blood,* and our eyes did not see the deed. [8] Absolve, O Lord, your people Israel, whom you have ransomed, and let not the guilt of shedding innocent blood remain in the midst of your people Israel.' Thus they shall be absolved from the guilt of bloodshed, [9] and you shall purge from your midst the guilt of innocent blood, that you may prosper for doing what is right in the sight of the Lord.

Marriage with a Female Captive. [10] "When you go out to war against your enemies and the Lord, your God, delivers them into your hand, so that you take captives, [11] if you see a comely woman among the captives and become so enamored of her that you wish to have her as wife, [12] you may take her home to your house. But before she may live there, she must shave her head * and pare her nails [13] and lay aside her captive's garb. After she has mourned her father and mother for a full month, you may have relations with her, and you shall be her husband and she shall be your wife. [14] However, if later on you lose your liking for her, you shall give her her freedom, if she wishes it; but you shall not sell her or enslave her, since she was married to you under compulsion.

Rights of the First-born. [15] "If a man with two wives loves one and dislikes the other; and if both bear him sons, but the first-born is of her whom he dislikes: [16] when he comes to bequeath his property to his sons he may not consider as his first-born the son of the wife he loves, in preference to his true first-born, the son of the wife whom he dislikes. [17] On the contrary, he shall recognize as his first-born the son of her whom he dislikes, giving him a double share of whatever he happens to own, since he is the first fruits of his manhood, and to him belong the rights of the first-born.

The Incorrigible Son. [18] "If a man has a stubborn and unruly son who will not listen to his father or mother, and will not obey them even though they chastise him, [19] his father and mother shall have him apprehended and brought out to the elders at the gate* of his home city, [20] where they shall say to those city elders, 'This son of ours is a stubborn and unruly fellow who will not listen to us; he is a glutton and a drunkard.' [21] Then all his fellow citizens shall stone him to death. Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst, and all Israel, on hearing of it, shall fear.

Corpse of a Criminal. [22] "If a man guilty of a capital offense is put to death and his corpse hung on a tree,* [23] it shall not remain on the tree overnight. [l] You shall bury it the same day; otherwise, since God's curse rests on him who hangs on a tree,* you will defile the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you as an inheritance.

Care for Lost Animals. [1] "You shall not see your kinsman's ox or sheep driven k Dt 19, 17.—l Gal 3, 13.

21, 4: They shall cut the heifer's throat there in the wadi: its blood is to be carried away by the stream, signifying thereby the removal of the human blood from the soil. This is not a sacrifice but a symbolic action; the priests are present merely as official witnesses.

21, 6: Wash their hands: a symbolic gesture in protestation of one's own innocence when human blood is unjustly shed; cf Mt 27, 24.

21, 7: This blood: the blood of the slain man as symbolized by the heifer's blood.

21, 12f: Shave her head, etc.: these symbolic actions are meant to signify the purification of the woman from her pagan defilement or perhaps the end of her period of mourning for her previous husband.

21, 19: The gate: in the city walls. This open space served as the forum for the administration of justice. Cf Dt 22, 15; 25, 7; Ru 4, 1f. 11; Is 29, 21; Am 5, 10. 12. 15.

21, 22: Hung on a tree: some understand, "impaled on a stake." In any case the hanging or impaling was not the means used to execute the criminal; he was first put to death by the ordinary means, stoning, and his corpse was then exposed on high as a salutary warning for others. Cf Jos 8, 29; 10, 26; 1 Kgs 31, 10; 2 Kgs 21, 9.

21, 23: God's curse rests on him who hangs on a tree: St. Paul quotes these words in Gal 3, 13, where he applies them to the crucified Savior, who "redeemed us from the curse of the Law, becoming a curse for us."

astray without showing concern about it; see to it that it is returned to your kinsman.[m] 2 If this kinsman does not live near you, or you do not know who he may be, take it to your own place and keep it with you until he claims it; then give it back to him. 3 You shall do the same with his ass, or his garment, or anything else which your kinsman loses and you happen to find; you may not be unconcerned about them. 4 You shall not see your kinsman's ass or ox foundering on the road without showing concern about it; see to it that you help him lift it up.

Various Precepts. 5 "A woman shall not wear an article proper to a man, nor shall a man put on a woman's dress; for anyone who does such things is an abomination to the Lord, your God.

6 "If, while walking along, you chance upon a bird's nest with young birds or eggs in it, in any tree or on the ground, and the mother bird is sitting on them, you shall not take away the mother bird along with her brood; 7 you shall let her go, although you may take her brood away. It is thus that you shall have prosperity and a long life.

8 "When you build a new house, put a parapet around the roof; otherwise, if someone falls off, you will bring bloodguilt upon your house.

9 [n] "You shall not sow your vineyard with two different kinds of seed; if you do, its produce shall become forfeit,* both the crop you have sown and the yield of the vineyard. 10 You shall not plow with an ox and an ass harnessed together. 11 You shall not wear cloth of two different kinds of thread, wool and linen, woven together.

12 "You shall put twisted cords* on the four corners of the cloak that you wrap around you.[o]

Crimes against Marriage. 13 "If a man, after marrying a woman and having relations with her, comes to dislike her, 14 and makes monstrous charges against her and defames her by saying, 'I married this woman, but when I first had relations with her I did not find her a virgin,' 15 the father and mother of the girl shall take the evidence of her virginity* and bring it to the elders at the city gate. 16 There the father of the girl shall say to the elders, 'I gave my daughter to this man in marriage, but he has come to dislike her, 17 and now brings monstrous charges against her, saying: I did not find your daughter a virgin. But here is the evidence of my daughter's virginity!" And they shall spread out the cloth before the elders of the city. 18 Then these city elders shall take the man and chastise him,* 19 besides fining him one hundred silver shekels, which they shall give to the girl's father, because the man defamed a virgin in Israel. Moreover, she shall remain his wife, and he may not divorce her as long as he lives.

20 "But if this charge is true, and evidence of the girl's virginity is not found, 21 they shall bring the girl to the entrance of her father's house and there her townsmen shall stone her to death, because she committed a crime against Israel by her unchasteness in her father's house. Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst.

22 "If a man is discovered having relations with a woman who is married to another, both the man and the woman with whom he has had relations shall die.[p] Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst.

23 "If within the city a man comes upon a maiden who is betrothed,* and has relations with her, 24 you shall bring them both out to the gate of the city and there stone them to death: the girl because she did not cry out for help though she was in the city, and the man because he violated his neighbor's wife. Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst.

25 "If, however, it is in the open fields that a man comes upon such a betrothed maiden, seizes her and has relations with her, the man alone shall die. 26 You shall do nothing to the maiden, since she is not guilty of a capital offense. This case is like that of a man who rises up against his neighbor and murders him: 27 it was in the open fields that he came upon her, and though the betrothed maiden may have cried out for help, there was no one to come to her aid.

28 q "If a man comes upon a maiden that is not betrothed, takes her and has relations with her, and their deed is discovered, 29 the man who had relations with her shall pay the girl's father fifty silver shekels and take her as his wife, because he has deflowered her. Moreover, he may not divorce her as long as he lives.

CHAPTER 23.

1 "A man shall not marry his father's wife,* nor shall he dishonor his father's bed.

Membership in the Community. 2 "No one whose testicles have been crushed or whose penis has been cut off, may be admitted into the community of the Lord. 3 No child of an incestuous union may be admitted into the community of the Lord, nor any descendant of his even to the tenth generation. 4 r No Ammonite or Moabite may ever be admitted into the community of the Lord, nor any descendants of theirs even to the tenth generation, 5 s because they would not succor you with food and water on your journey after you left Egypt, and because Moab hired Balaam, son of Beor, from Phathur in Aram-Naharaim, to curse you; 6 though the Lord, your God, would not listen to Balaam and turned his curse into a blessing for you, because he loves you. 7 Never promote their peace and prosperity as long as you live. 8 t But do not abhor the Edomite, since he is your brother, nor the Egyptian, since you were an alien in his country. 9 Children born to them may in the third generation be admitted into the community of the Lord.

Cleanliness in Camp. 10 "When you are in camp during an expedition against your enemies, you shall keep yourselves from everything offensive. 11 If one of you becomes unclean because of a nocturnal emission, he shall go outside the camp, and not return until, 12 toward evening, he has bathed in water; then, when the sun has set, he may come back into the camp. 13 Outside the camp you shall have a place set aside to be used as a latrine. 14 You shall also keep a trowel in your equipment and with it, when you go outside to ease nature, you shall first dig a hole and afterward cover up your excrement. 15 Since the Lord, your God, journeys along within your camp to defend you and to put your enemies at your mercy, your camp must be holy; otherwise, if he sees anything indecent in your midst, he will leave your company.

Various Precepts. 16 "You shall not hand over to his master a slave who has taken refuge from him with you. 17 Let him live with you wherever he chooses, in any one of your communities* that pleases him. Do not molest him.

18 *"There shall be no temple harlot among the Israelite women, nor a temple prostitute among the Israelite men.u 19 You shall not offer a harlot's fee or a dog's price as any kind of votive offering in the house of the Lord, your God; both these things are an abomination to the Lord, your God.

20 "You shall not demand interest from your countrymen on a loan of money or of food or of anything else on which interest is usually demanded.v 21 You may demand interest from a foreigner, but not from your countryman, so that the Lord, your God, may bless you in all your undertakings on the land you are to enter and occupy.

22 "When you make a vow to the Lord, your God, you shall not delay in fulfilling it; otherwise you will be held guilty, for the Lord, your God, is strict in requiring it of you. 23 Should you refrain from making a vow, you will not be held guilty. 24 But you must keep your solemn word and fulfill the votive offering you have freely promised to the Lord.

23, 17: In any one of your communities: from this it would seem that the slave in question is a fugitive from a foreign country.

23, 18f: The pagans believed that they could enter into special relationship with their gods and goddesses by having sexual relations with the pagan priests and priestesses who prostituted themselves for this purpose. The money paid for this was considered a sort of votive offering made to the pagan sanctuary. Such abominations were naturally forbidden in Israel. A dog's price: the money paid the pagan priest for his indecent service.

CHAPTER 24.

Marriage Laws. 1 "When a man,* after marrying a woman and having relations with her, is later displeased with her because he finds in her something indecent,* and therefore he writes out a bill of divorce and hands it to her, thus dismissing her from his house: 2 if on leaving his house she goes and becomes the wife of another man, 3 and the second husband, too, comes to dislike her and dismisses her from his house by handing her a written bill of divorce; 4 or if this second man who has married her, dies; then her former husband, who dismissed her, may not again take her as his wife after she has become defiled. That would be an abomination before the Lord, and you shall not bring such guilt upon the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you as a heritage.

5 w "When a man is newly wed, he need not go out on a military expedition, nor shall any public duty be imposed on him. He shall be exempt for one year for the sake of his family, to bring joy to the wife he has married.

Justice, Equity and Charity. 6 *"No one shall take a hand mill or even its upper stone as a pledge for debt, for he would be taking the debtor's sustenance as a pledge.

7 "If any man is caught kidnaping a fellow Israelite in order to enslave him and sell him, the kidnaper shall be put to death.x Thus shall you purge the evil from your midst.

8 y "In an attack of leprosy you shall be careful to observe exactly and to carry out all the directions of the Levitical priests. Take care to act in accordance with the instructions I have given them. 9 z Remember what the Lord, your God, did to Mariam on the journey after you left Egypt.

10 *"When you make a loan of any kind to your neighbor, you shall not enter his house to receive a pledge from him, 11 but shall wait outside until the man to whom you are making the loan brings his pledge outside to you. 12 If he is a poor man, you shall not sleep in the mantle he gives as a pledge, 13 but shall return it to him at sunset that he himself may sleep in it.a Then he will bless you, and it will be a good deed of yours before the Lord, your God.

14 "You shall not defraud a poor and needy hired servant, whether he be one of your own countrymen or one of the aliens who live in your communities. 15 You shall pay him each day's wages before sundown on the day itself, since he is poor and looks forward to them.b Otherwise he will cry to the Lord against you, and you will be held guilty.

16 "Fathers shall not be put to death for their children, nor children for their fathers; only for his own guilt shall a man be put to death.c

17 "You shall not violate the rights of the alien or of the orphan, nor take the clothing of a widow as a pledge.d 18 For, remember, you were once slaves in Egypt, and the Lord, your God, ransomed you from there; that is why I command you to observe this rule.

19 e "When you reap the harvest in your field and overlook a sheaf there, you shall not go back to get it; let it be for the alien, the orphan or the widow, that the Lord, your God, may bless you in all your undertakings. 20 When you knock down the fruit of your olive trees, you shall not go over the branches a second time; let what remains be for the alien, the orphan and the widow. 21 When you pick your grapes, you shall not go over the vineyard a second time; let what remains be for the alien, the orphan, and the widow. 22 For remember that you were once

24, 1-4: This law is directly concerned only with forbidding divorced couples to remarry each other, and indirectly with checking hasty divorces, by demanding sufficient cause and certain legal formalities. Divorce itself is taken for granted and tolerated as an existing custom whose evils this law seeks to lessen. Cf Dt 22, 19. 29; Mal 2, 14ff. Christ gave the authentic interpretation of this law: "Moses, by reason of the hardness of your heart, permitted you to put away your wives; but it was not so from the beginning" (Mt 19, 8f).

24, 1: Something indecent: a rather indefinite phrase, meaning perhaps "immodest conduct." At the time of Christ the rabbis differed in opinion concerning the sufficient grounds for divorce; cf Mt 19, 3.

24, 6: Since the Israelites ground their grain into flour only in sufficient quantity for their current need, to deprive a debtor of his hand mill was virtually equivalent to condemning him to starve to death.

24, 10f: The debtor had the right to select the pledge that the creditor demanded as a guarantee for his loan.

slaves in Egypt; that is why I command you to observe this rule.

CHAPTER 25.

1 "When men have a dispute and bring it to court, and a decision is handed down to them acquitting the innocent party and condemning the guilty party, 2 if the latter deserves stripes, the judge shall have him lie down and in his presence receive the number of stripes his guilt deserves. 3 Forty stripes* may be given him, but no more;[f] lest, if he were beaten with more stripes than these, your kinsman should be looked upon as disgraced because of the severity of the beating.

4 *"You shall not muzzle an ox when it is treading out grain.[g]

Levirate Marriage. 5 "When brothers live together* and one of them dies without a son, the widow of the deceased shall not marry anyone outside the family; but her husband's brother shall go to her and perform the duty of a brother-in-law by marrying her.[h] 6[i] The first-born son she bears shall continue the line of the deceased brother, that his name may not be blotted out from Israel. 7 If, however, a man does not care to marry his brother's wife, she shall go up to the elders at the gate and declare, 'My brother-in-law does not intend to perform his duty toward me and refuses to perpetuate his brother's name in Israel.' 8 Thereupon the elders of his city shall summon him and admonish him. If he persists in saying, 'I am not willing to marry her,' 9 *his sister-in-law, in the presence of the elders, shall go up to him and strip his sandal from his foot and spit in his face, saying publicly, 'This is how one should be treated who will not build up his brother's family!' 10 And his lineage shall be spoken of in Israel as 'the family of the man stripped of his sandal.'

Various Precepts. 11 "When two men are fighting and the wife of one intervenes to save her husband from the blows of his opponent, if she stretches out her hand and seizes the latter by his private parts, 12 you shall chop off her hand without pity.

13 "You shall not keep two differing weights in your bag, one large and the other small;[j] 14 nor shall you keep two different measures in your house, one large and the other small. 15 But use a true and just weight, and a true and just measure, that you may have a long life on the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you. 16 Everyone who is dishonest in any of these matters is an abomination to the Lord, your God.

17 *"Bear in mind what Amalec did to you on the journey after you left Egypt,[k] 18 how without fear of any god he harassed you along the way, weak and weary as you were, and cut off at the rear all those who lagged behind. 19 Therefore, when the Lord, your God, gives you rest from all your enemies round about in the land which he is giving you to occupy as your heritage, you shall blot out the memory of Amalec from under the heavens.[l] Do not forget!

CHAPTER 26.

Thanksgiving for the Harvest. 1 "When you have come into the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you as a heritage, and have occupied it and settled in it, 2 you shall take some first fruits[m] of the various products of the soil which you harvest from the land which the Lord, your God, gives you, and putting them in a basket, you shall go to the place which the Lord, your God, chooses for the dwelling place of his name. 3 There you shall go to the priest in office at that time and say to him, 'Today I acknowledge to the Lord, my God, that I have

25, 4: St. Paul argues from this verse that a laborer has the right to live on the fruits of his labor; cf 1 Cor 9, 9; 1 Tm 5, 18.

25, 5: When brothers live together: when relatives of the same clan, though married, hold their property in common. It was only in this case that the present law was to be observed, since one of its purposes was to keep the property of the deceased within the same clan. Such a marriage of a widow with her brother-in-law is known as a "levirate" marriage from the Latin word levir, meaning "a husband's brother."

25, 9f: The penalty decreed for a man who refuses to comply with this law of family loyalty is public disgrace (the widow is to spit in his face) and the curse of poverty; sandals were proverbially a man's cheapest possession (cf 1 Kgs 12, 3; Am 2, 6; 8, 6), and therefore "a man without sandals" was the poorest of the poor. Some commentators, however, connect this symbolic act with the ceremony mentioned in Ru 4, 7f.

25, 17-19: This attack on Israel by Amalec is not mentioned elsewhere in the Old Testament, although it probably was connected with the battle mentioned in Ex 17, 8. The extermination of Amalec was carried out by Saul; cf 1 Kgs 15.

indeed come into the land which he swore to our fathers he would give us.' 4 The priest shall then receive the basket from you and shall set it in front of the altar of the Lord, your God. 5 Then you shall declare before the Lord, your God, 'My father was a wandering Aramean* who went down to Egypt with a small household and lived there as an alien.[n] But there he became a nation great, strong and numerous. 6 [o] When the Egyptians maltreated and oppressed us, imposing hard labor upon us, 7 we cried to the Lord, the God of our fathers, and he heard our cry and saw our affliction, our toil and our oppression. 8 He brought us out of Egypt with his strong hand and outstretched arm, with terrifying power, with signs and wonders;[p] 9 and bringing us into this country, he gave us this land flowing with milk and honey.[q] 10 Therefore, I have now brought you the first fruits of the products of the soil which you, O Lord, have given me.' And having set them before the Lord, your God, you shall bow down in his presence. 11 Then you and your family, together with the Levite and the aliens who live among you, shall make merry over all these good things which the Lord, your God, has given you.[r]

Prayer with the Tithes. 12 "When you have finished setting aside all the tithes of your produce in the third year,[s] the year of the tithes, and you have given them to the Levite,* the alien, the orphan and the widow, that they may eat their fill in your own community, 13 you shall declare before the Lord, your God, 'I have purged my house of the sacred portion and I have given to the Levite,* the alien, the orphan and the widow, just as you have commanded me. In this I have not broken or forgotten any of your commandments: 14 *I have not eaten any of the tithe as a mourner; I have not brought any of it out as one unclean; I have not offered any of it to the dead. I have thus hearkened to the voice of the Lord, my God, doing just as you have commanded me. 15 Look down, then, from heaven, your holy abode, and bless your people Israel and the soil you have given us in the land flowing with milk and honey which you promised on oath to our fathers.'

The Covenant. 16 "This day the Lord, your God, commands you to observe these statutes and decrees. Be careful, then, to observe them with all your heart and with all your soul. 17 Today you are making this agreement with the Lord: he is to be your God and you are to walk in his ways and observe his statutes, commandments and decrees, and to hearken to his voice.[t] 18 And today the Lord is making this agreement with you: you are to be a people peculiarly his own,[u] as he promised you; and provided you keep all his commandments, 19 he will then raise you high in praise and renown and glory above all other nations he has made, and you will be a people sacred to the Lord, your God, as he promised."

IV: FINAL WORDS OF MOSES

CHAPTER 27.

Ceremonies. 1 Then Moses, with the elders of Israel, gave the people this order: "Keep all these commandments which I enjoin on you today. 2 On the day you cross the Jordan into the land which the Lord, your God, is giving you, set up some large stones and coat them with plaster. 3 Also write on them,[v] at the time you cross, all the words of this law, that you may thus enter into the land flowing with milk and honey, which the Lord, your God, and the God of your fathers, is giving you as he promised you. 4 When, moreover, you have crossed the Jordan, besides setting up on Mount Ebal these stones concerning which I command you today, and coating them with plaster, 5 you shall also build to the Lord, your God, an altar made of stones that no iron tool has touched.[w] 6 You shall make this altar of the Lord, your God, with undressed stones, and shall offer on it holocausts to the Lord, your God. 7 You shall also sacrifice peace offerings and eat them there, making merry before the Lord, your God. 8 On the stones* you

9 Moses, with the Levitical priests, then said to all Israel: "Be silent, O Israel, and listen! This day you have become the people of the Lord, your God.[x] 10 You shall therefore hearken to the voice of the Lord, your God, and keep his commandments and statutes which I enjoin on you today."

11 That same day Moses gave the people this order: 12 "When you cross the Jordan, Simeon, Levi, Juda, Issachar, Joseph and Benjamin shall stand on Mount Garizim[y] to pronounce blessings over the people, 13 while Ruben, Gad, Aser, Zabulon, Dan and Nephthali shall stand on Mount Ebal to pronounce curses.

The Twelve Curses. 14 "The Levites shall proclaim aloud to all the men of Israel: 15 'Cursed be the man who makes a carved or molten idol[z]—an abomination to the Lord, the product of a craftsman's hands—and sets it up in secret!' And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'*

16 'Cursed be he who dishonors his father or his mother!'[a] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

17 'Cursed be he who moves his neighbor's landmarks!'[b] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

18 'Cursed be he who misleads a blind man on his way!'[c] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

19 'Cursed be he who violates the rights of the alien, the orphan or the widow!'[d] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

20 'Cursed be he who has relations with his father's wife, for he dishonors his father's bed!'[e] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

21 'Cursed be he who has relations with any animal!'[f] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

23 'Cursed be he who has relations with his mother-in-law!'[h] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

24 'Cursed be he who slays his neighbor in secret!'[i] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

25 'Cursed be he who accepts payment for slaying an innocent man!' And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

26 'Cursed be he who fails to fulfill any of the provisions of this law!'[j] And all the people shall answer, 'Amen!'

CHAPTER 28.*

Blessings for Obedience. 1 "Thus, then,[k] shall it be: [l] if you continue to heed the voice of the Lord, your God, and are careful to observe all his commandments which I enjoin on you today, the Lord, your God, will raise you high above all the nations of the earth.[m] 2 When you hearken to the voice of the Lord, your God, all these blessings will come upon you and overwhelm you:

3 "May you be blessed in the city, and blessed in the country! 4 Blessed be the fruit of your womb,[n] the produce of your soil and the offspring of your livestock, the issue of your herds and the young of your flocks! 5 Blessed be your grain bin and your kneading bowl! 6 May you be blessed in your coming in, and blessed in your going out!*

Victory and Prosperity. 7 "The Lord will beat down before you the enemies that rise up against you; though they come out against you from but one direction, they will flee before you in seven.* 8 The Lord will affirm his blessing upon you, on your barns and on all your undertakings, blessing you in the land that the Lord, your God, gives you. 9 Provided that you keep the commandments of the Lord, your God, and walk in his ways, he will establish you as a people sacred to himself, as he swore to you; [o] 10 so that, when all the nations of the earth see you bearing the name of the Lord,* they will stand in awe of you.[p] 11 The Lord will increase in more than goodly measure the fruit of your womb, the offspring of your livestock, and the produce of your soil, in the land which he swore to your fathers he would give you. 12 The Lord will open up for you his rich treasure house of the heavens, to give your land rain in due season, blessing all your undertakings, so that you will lend to many nations and borrow from none.[q] 13 The Lord will make you the head, not the tail,* and you will always mount higher and not decline, as long as you obey the commandments of the Lord, your God, which I order you today to observe carefully; 14 not turning aside to the right or to the left from any of the commandments which I now give you, in order to follow other gods and serve them.

Curses for Disobedience. 15 "But if you do not hearken to the voice of the Lord, your God,[r] and are not careful to observe all his commandments which I enjoin on you today, all these curses shall come upon you and overwhelm you:

16 "May you be cursed in the city, and cursed in the country! 17 Cursed be your grain bin and your kneading bowl! 18 Cursed be the fruit of your womb, the produce of your soil and the offspring of your livestock, the issue of your herds and the young of your flocks! 19 May you be cursed in your coming in, and cursed in your going out!

Sickness and Defeat. 20 "The Lord will put a curse on you, defeat and frustration in every enterprise you undertake, until you are speedily destroyed and perish for the evil you have done in forsaking me. 21 The Lord will bring a pestilence upon you that will persist until he has exterminated you from the land you are entering to occupy. 22 The Lord will strike you with wasting and fever, with scorching, fiery drought, with blight and searing wind, that will plague you until you perish. 23 The sky over your heads will be like bronze and the earth under your feet like iron.[s] 24 For rain the Lord will give your land powdery dust, which will come down upon you from the sky until you are destroyed. 25 The Lord will let you be beaten down before your enemies; though you advance against them from one direction, you will flee before them in seven, so that you will become a terrifying example to all the kingdoms of the earth.[t] 26 Your carcasses will become food for all the birds of the air and for the beasts of the field, with no one to frighten them off. 27 The Lord will strike you with Egyptian boils[u] and with tumors, eczema and the itch, until you cannot be cured. 28 And the Lord will strike you with madness, blindness and panic, 29 so that even at midday you will grope like a blind man in the dark, unable to find your way.

Despoilment. "You will be oppressed and robbed continually, with no one to come to your aid. 30 Though you betroth a wife, another man will have her. Though you build a house, you will not live in it. Though you plant a vineyard, you will not enjoy its fruits. 31 Your ox will be slaughtered before your eyes, and you will not eat of its flesh. Your ass will be stolen in your presence, but you will not recover it. Your flocks will be given to your enemies, with no one to come to your aid. 32 Your sons and daughters will be given to a foreign nation while you look on and grieve for them in constant helplessness. 33 A people whom you do not know will consume the fruit of your soil and of all your labor, and you will be oppressed and crushed at all times without surcease, 34 until you are driven mad by what your eyes must look upon. 35 *The Lord will strike you with malignant boils of which you cannot be cured, on your knees and legs, and from the soles of your feet to the crown of your head.

Exile. 36 v "The Lord will bring you, and your king whom you have set over you, to a nation which you and your fathers have not known, and there you will serve strange gods of wood and stone, 37 and will call forth amazement, reproach and barbed scorn from all the nations to which the Lord will lead you.

Fruitless Labors. 38 "Though you spend much seed on your field, you will harvest but little, for the locusts will devour the crop.[w] 39 Though you plant and cultivate vineyards, you will not drink or store up the wine, for the grubs will eat the vines clean.[x] 40 Though you have olive trees

He will become the head, you the tail.

45 "All these curses will come upon you, pursuing you and overwhelming you, until you are destroyed, because you would not hearken to the voice of the Lord, your God, nor keep the commandments and statutes he gave you. 46 They will light on you and your descendants as a sign and a wonder* for all time. 47 Since you would not serve the Lord, your God, with joy and gratitude for abundance of every kind, 48 therefore in hunger and thirst, in nakedness and utter poverty, you will serve the enemies whom the Lord will send against you. He will put an iron yoke on your neck, until he destroys you.

Invasion and Siege. 49 [a] "The Lord will raise up against you a nation from afar, from the end of the earth, that swoops down like an eagle, a nation whose tongue you do not understand, 50 a nation of stern visage, that shows neither respect for the aged nor pity for the young. 51 They will consume the offspring of your livestock and the produce of your soil, until you are destroyed; they will leave you no grain or wine or oil, no issue of your herds or young of your flocks, until they have brought about your ruin. 52 They will besiege you in each of your communities, until the great, unscalable walls you trust in come tumbling down all over your land. They will so besiege you in every community throughout the land which the Lord, your God, has given you, 53 that in the distress of the siege to which your enemy subjects you, you will eat the fruit of your womb, the flesh of your own sons and daughters [b] whom the Lord, your God, has given you. 54 The most refined and fastidious man among you will begrudge his brother and his beloved wife and his surviving children 55 any share in the flesh of his children that he himself is using for food when nothing else is left him in the straits of the siege to which your enemy will subject you in all your communities. 56 The most refined and delicate woman among you, so delicate and refined that she would not venture to set the sole of her foot on the ground, will begrudge her beloved husband and her son and daughter 57 the afterbirth that issues from her womb and the infant she brings forth when she secretly uses them for food for want of anything else, in the straits of the siege to which your enemy will subject you in your communities.

Plagues. 58 "If you are not careful to observe every word of the Law which is written in this book, and to revere the glorious and awesome name of the Lord, your God, 59 he will smite you and your descendants with severe and constant blows, malignant and lasting maladies. 60 He will again afflict you with all the diseases of Egypt* which you dread, and they will persist among you.[c] 61 Should there be any kind of sickness or calamity not mentioned in this Book of the Law, that too the Lord will bring upon you until you are destroyed. 62 Of you who were numerous as the stars in the sky,[d] only a few will be left, because you would not hearken to the voice of the Lord, your God.

Exile. 63 "Just as the Lord once took delight in making you grow and prosper, [e] so will he now take delight in ruining and destroying you, and you will be plucked out of the land you are now entering to occupy. 64 The Lord will scatter you among all the nations from one end of the earth to the other,[f] and there you will serve strange gods of wood and stone, such as you and your fathers have not known. 65 Among these nations you will find no repose, not a foot of ground to stand upon, for there the Lord will give you an anguished heart and wasted eyes* and a dismayed spirit. 66 You will live in constant suspense and stand in dread both day and night, never sure of your existence. 67 In the morning you will say, 'Would that it were evening!' and in the evening you will say, 'Would that it were morning!' for the dread that your heart must feel and the sight that your eyes must see. 68 The Lord will send you back in galleys* to Egypt, to the region I told you that you were never to see again;[g] and there you will offer yourselves for sale to your enemies as male and female slaves, but there will be no buyer."

69 These are the words of the covenant which the Lord ordered Moses to make with the Israelites in the land of Moab, in addition to the covenant which he made with them at Horeb.

CHAPTER 29.

Past Favors Recalled. 1 Moses summoned all Israel and said to them, "You have seen all that the Lord did in the land of Egypt before your very eyes to Pharao and all his servants and to all his land; 2 the great testings your own eyes have seen, and those great signs and wonders.[h] 3 But not even at the present day has the Lord yet given you a mind to understand, or eyes to see, or ears to hear.* 4 'I led you for forty years in the desert.[i] Your clothes did not fall from you in tatters nor your sandals from your feet; 5 bread was not your food, nor wine or beer your drink. Thus you should know that I, the Lord, am your God.' 6 [j] When we came to this place, Sehon, king of Hesebon, and Og, king of Basan, came out to engage us in battle, but we defeated them 7 and took over their land, which we then gave as a heritage to the Rubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasse.[k] 8 Keep the terms of this covenant, therefore, and fulfill them, that you may succeed in whatever you do.

All Israel Bound to the Covenant. 9 "You are all now standing before the Lord, your God—your chiefs and judges, your elders and officials, and all of the men of Israel, 10 together with your wives and children and the aliens who live in your camp, down to those who hew wood and draw water for you—11 that you may enter into the covenant of the Lord, your God, which he concluded with you today under this sanction of a curse;* 12 so that he may now establish you as his people and he may be your God, as he promised you and as he swore to your fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. 13 But it is not with you alone that I am making this covenant, under this sanction of a curse; 14 it is just as much with those who are not here among us* today as it is with those of us who are now here present before the Lord, our God.

Warning against Idolatry. 15 "You know in what surroundings we lived in the land of Egypt and what we passed by in the nations we traversed, 16 and you saw the loathsome idols of wood and stone, of gold and silver, that they possess. 17 Let there be, then, no man or woman, no clan or tribe among you, who would now turn away their hearts from the Lord, our God, to go and serve these pagan gods! Let there be no root that would bear such poison and wormwood among you! 18 If any such person, upon hearing the words of this curse, should beguile himself into thinking that he can safely persist in his stubbornness of heart, as though to sweep away both the watered soil and the parched ground,* 19 the Lord will never consent to pardon him. Instead, the Lord's wrath and jealousy will flare up against that man, and every curse mentioned in this book will alight on him. The Lord will blot out his name from under the heavens 20 and will single him out from all the tribes of Israel for doom, in keeping with all the curses of the covenant inscribed in this Book of the Law.

Punishment for Infidelity. 21 "Future generations, your own descendants who will rise up after you, as well as the foreigners who will come here from far-off lands, when they see the calamities of this land and the ills with which the Lord has smitten it—22 all its soil being nothing but sulphur and salt, a burnt-out waste, unsown and unfruitful, without a blade of grass, destroyed like Sodom and Gomorra,[l] Adama and Seboim, which the Lord overthrew in his furious wrath—[23] they and all the nations will ask, 'Why has the Lord dealt thus with this land? Why this fierce outburst of wrath?'[m] [24] And the answer will be, 'Because they forsook the covenant which the Lord, the God of their fathers, had made with them when he brought them out of the land of Egypt, [25] and they went and served other gods and adored them, gods whom they did not know and whom he had not let fall to their lot: [26] that is why the Lord was angry with this land and brought on it all the imprecations listed in this book; [27] in his furious wrath and tremendous anger the Lord uprooted them from their soil and cast them out into a strange land,[n] where they are today.' [28] [Both what is still hidden* and what has already been revealed concern us and our descendants forever, that we may carry out all the words of this Law.]

CHAPTER 30.

Mercy for the Repentant. [1] "When all these things which I have set before you, the blessings and the curses, are fulfilled in you,[o] and from among whatever nations the Lord, your God, may have dispersed you, you ponder them in your heart: [2] then, provided that you and your children return to the Lord, your God, and heed his voice with all your heart and all your soul,[p] just as I now command you, [3] the Lord, your God, will change your lot; and taking pity on you, he will again gather you from all the nations wherein he has scattered you. [4] Though you may have been driven to the farthest corner of the world, even from there will the Lord, your God, gather you; even from there will he bring you back. [5] The Lord, your God, will then bring you into the land which your fathers once occupied, that you too may occupy it, and he will make you more prosperous and numerous than your fathers. [6] The Lord, your God, will circumcise your hearts* and the hearts of your descendants,[q] that you may love the Lord, your God, with all your heart and all your soul, and so may live. [7] But all those curses the Lord, your God, will assign to your enemies and the foes who persecuted you. [8] You, however, must again heed the Lord's voice and carry out all his commandments which I now enjoin on you. [9] Then the Lord, your God, will increase in more than goodly measure the returns from all your labors, the fruit of your womb, the offspring of your livestock, and the produce of your soil;[r] for the Lord, your God, will again take delight in your prosperity, even as he took delight in your fathers', [10] if only you heed the voice of the Lord, your God, and keep his commandments and statutes that are written in this Book of the Law, when you return to the Lord, your God, with all your heart and all your soul.

God's Command Clear. [11] "For this command which I enjoin on you today is not too mysterious and remote for you. [12] It is not up in the sky, that you should say, 'Who will go up in the sky to get it for us and tell us of it, that we may carry it out?' [13] Nor is it across the sea, that you should say, 'Who will cross the sea to get it for us and tell us of it, that we may carry it out?' [14] No, it is something very near to you, already in your mouths and in your hearts; you have only to carry it out.

The Choice before Israel. [15] "Here, then, I have today set before you life and prosperity, death and doom. [16] If you obey the commandments of the Lord, your God, which I enjoin on you today, loving him, and walking in his ways, and keeping his commandments, statutes and decrees, you will live and grow numerous, and the Lord, your God, will bless you in the land you are entering to occupy. [17] If, however, you turn away your hearts and will not listen, but are led astray and adore and serve other gods, [18] I tell you now that you will certainly perish; you will not have a long life on the land which you are crossing the Jordan to enter and occupy. 19 I call heaven and earth today to witness against you: [s] I have set before you life and death, the blessing and the curse.[t] Choose life, then, that you and your descendants may live, 20 by loving the Lord, your God, heeding his voice, and holding fast to him. For that will mean life for you, a long life for you to live on the land which the Lord swore he would give to your fathers Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

CHAPTER 31.

The Lord's Leadership. 1 When Moses had finished speaking these words to all Israel, 2 he said to them, "I am now one hundred and twenty years old [u] and am no longer able to move about freely; besides, the Lord has told me that I shall not cross this Jordan. 3 It is the Lord, your God, who will cross before you; he will destroy these nations before you, that you may supplant them.[v] [It is Josue who will cross before you, as the Lord promised.] 4 [w] The Lord will deal with them just as he dealt with Sehon and Og, the kings of the Amorrites whom he destroyed, and with their country. 5 When, therefore, the Lord delivers them up to you, you must deal with them exactly as I have ordered you.[x] 6 Be brave and steadfast; have no fear or dread of them, for it is the Lord, your God, who marches with you; he will never fail you or forsake you." [y]

Encouragement of Josue. 7 Then Moses summoned Josue and in the presence of all Israel said to him, [z] "Be brave and steadfast, for you must bring this people into the land which the Lord swore to their fathers he would give them; you must put them in possession of their heritage. 8 It is the Lord who marches before you; he will be with you and will never fail you or forsake you. So do not fear or be dismayed."

The Reading of the Law. 9 When Moses had written down this law, he entrusted it to the Levitical priests who carry the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, and to all the elders of Israel, 10 giving them this order: "On the feast of Booths,[a] at the prescribed time in the year of relaxation* which comes at the end of every seven-year period, 11 when all Israel goes to appear before the Lord, your God, in the place which he chooses, you shall read this law* aloud in the presence of all Israel. 12 Assemble the people—men, women and children, as well as the aliens who live in your communities—that they may hear it and learn it, and so fear the Lord, your God, and carefully observe all the words of this law. 13 Their children also, who do not know it yet, must hear it and learn it, that they too may fear the Lord, your God, as long as you live on the land which you will cross the Jordan to occupy."

Commission of Josue. 14 The Lord said to Moses, "The time is now approaching for you to die. Summon Josue, and present yourselves at the Meeting Tent that I may give him his commission." So Moses and Josue went and presented themselves at the Meeting Tent.* 15 And the Lord appeared at the Tent in a column of cloud, which stood still at the entrance of the Tent.

A Command to Moses. 16 The Lord said to Moses, "Soon you will be at rest with your fathers, and then this people will take to rendering wanton worship to the strange gods among whom they will live in the land they are about to enter.[b] They will forsake me and break the covenant which I have made with them. 17 At that time my anger will flare up against them; I will forsake them and hide my face from them, so that they will become a prey to be devoured, and many evils and troubles will befall them. At that time they will indeed say, 'Is it not because our God is not among us that these evils have befallen us?' 18 Yet I will be hiding my face from them at that time only because of all the evil they have done in turning to other gods. 19 Write out this song,[c] then, for yourselves. Teach it to the Israelites and have them recite it, so that this song may be a witness for me against the Israelites. 20 For when I have brought them into the land flowing with milk and honey which I promised on oath to their fathers, and they have eaten their fill and grown fat, if they turn to other gods and serve them, despising me and breaking my covenant; 21 then, when many evils and troubles befall them, this song, which their descendants will not have forgotten to recite, will bear witness against them. For I know what they are inclined to do even at the present time, before I have brought them into the land which I promised on oath to their fathers." 22 So Moses wrote this song that same day, and he taught it to the Israelites.

Commission of Josue. 23 Then the Lord commissioned Josue, son of Nun, and said to him, "Be brave and steadfast, for it is you who must bring the Israelites into the land which I promised them on oath.[d] I myself will be with you."

The Law Placed in the Ark. 24 When Moses had finished writing out on a scroll the words of the law in their entirety, 25 he gave the Levites[e] who carry the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord this order: 26 "Take this scroll of the law and put it beside the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, your God, that there it may be a witness against you. 27 For I already know how rebellious and stiff-necked you will be. Why, even now, while I am alive among you, you have been rebels against the Lord! How much more, then, after I am dead! 28 f Therefore, assemble all your tribal elders and your officials before me, that I may speak these words for them to hear, and so may call heaven and earth to witness against them. 29 g For I know that after my death you are sure to become corrupt and to turn aside from the way along which I directed you, so that evil will befall you in some future age because you have done evil in the Lord's sight, and provoked him by your deeds."

The Song of Moses. 30 Then Moses recited the words of this song from beginning to end, for the whole assembly of Israel to hear:

CHAPTER 32.

A

1 Give ear,* O heavens, while I speak;
let the earth hearken to the words of my mouth!
2 May my instructions soak in like the rain,
and my discourse permeate like the dew,
like a downpour upon the grass,
like a shower upon the crops:
3 For I will sing the Lord's renown.
Oh, proclaim the greatness of our God!
4 The Rock[b]—how faultless are his deeds,
how right all his ways!
A faithful God, without deceit,
how just and upright he is!
5 Yet basely has he been treated by his degenerate children,
a perverse and crooked race![i] 6 Is the Lord to be thus repaid by you,
O stupid and foolish people?
Is he not your father who created you?
Has he not made you and established you?[j]
7 Think back on the days of old,
reflect on the years of age upon age.[k]
Ask your father and he will inform you,
ask your elders and they will tell you:
8 l When the Most High assigned the nations their heritage,
when he parceled out the descendants of Adam,
he set up the boundaries of the peoples after the number of the sons of God;* 9 while the Lord's own portion was Jacob,
his hereditary share was Israel.[m]
10 He found them in a wilderness, a wasteland of howling desert.
He shielded them and cared for them,
guarding them as the apple of his eye.[n]
11 As an eagle incites its nestlings forth by hovering over its brood, so he spread his wings to receive them and bore them up on his pinions.[o] 12 The Lord alone was their leader,
no strange god was with him.
13 He had them ride triumphant over summits of the land*
and live off the products of its fields, giving them honey to suck from its rocks
and olive oil from its hard, stony ground; 14 butter from its cows and milk from its sheep,
with the fat of its lambs and rams;
its Basan* bulls and its goats,

32, 1-43: In the style of the great prophets, the speaker is often God himself. The whole song is a poetic sermon, having for its theme God's benefits to Israel (vv 1-14) and Israel's ingratitude and idolatry in turning to the gods of the pagans, which sins will be punished by the pagans themselves (vv 15-29); in turn, the foolish pride of the pagans will be punished, and the Lord's honor will be vindicated (vv 30-43).

32, 8: The sons of God: the angels; cf Jb 1, 6; 2, 1; 38, 7; Ps 88 (89), 7f. Here the various nations are porrtayed as having their respective guardian angels. Cf Dn 10, 20f; 12, 1.

15 So Jacob ate his fill, the darling* grew fat and frisky; you became fat and gross and gorged.[p] They spurned the God who made them and scorned their saving Rock. 16 They provoked him with strange gods and angered him with abominable idols.[q]

17 They offered sacrifice to demons, to "no-gods," to gods whom they had not known before, to newcomers just arrived, of whom their fathers had never stood in awe. 18 You were unmindful of the Rock that begot you, you forgot the God who gave you birth.[r]

19 When the Lord saw this, he was filled with loathing and anger toward his sons and daughters. 20 "I will hide my face from them," he said, "and see what will then become of them. What a fickle race they are, sons with no loyalty in them![s]

21 "Since they have provoked me with their 'no-god' and angered me with their vain idols, I will provoke them with a 'no-people'; with a foolish nation I will anger them.[t]

22 [u] "For by my wrath a fire is enkindled that shall rage to the depths of the nether world, consuming the earth with its yield, and licking with flames the roots of the mountains. 23 I will spend on them woe upon woe and exhaust all my arrows against them:

24 "Emaciating hunger and consuming fever and bitter pestilence, and the teeth of wild beasts I will send among them, with the venom of reptiles gliding in the dust.

25 "Snatched away by the sword in the street and by sheer terror at home shall be the youth and the maiden alike, the nursing babe as well as the hoary old man.[v]

26 "I would have said, 'I will make an end of them and blot out their name from men's memories,' 27 had I not feared the insolence of their enemies, feared that these foes would mistakenly boast, 'Our own hand won the victory; the Lord had nothing to do with it.' "

28 *For they are a people devoid of reason, having no understanding. 29 If they had insight they would realize what happened, they would understand their success and say,

C

30 "How could one man rout a thousand, or two men put ten thousand to flight, unless it was because their Rock sold them and the Lord delivered them up?"

31 Indeed, their "rock" is not like our Rock, and our foes are under condemnation.

32 They are a branch of Sodom's vinestock, from the vineyards of Gomorra. Poisonous are their grapes and bitter their clusters. 33 Their wine is the venom of dragons and the cruel poison of cobras.

34 "Is not this preserved in my treasury, sealed up in my storehouse, 35 against the day of vengeance and requital, against the time they lose their footing?" Close at hand is the day of their disaster, and their doom is rushing upon them!

36 Surely, the Lord shall do justice for his people; on his servants he shall have pity.[w] When he sees their strength failing, and their protected and unprotected* alike disappearing,

37 He will say, "Where are their gods whom they relied on as their 'rock'? 38 Let those who ate the fat of your sacrifices and drank the wine of your libations rise up now and help you! Let them be your protection![x]

39 "Learn then that I, I alone, am God, and there is no god besides me.[y] It is I who bring both death and life, I who inflict wounds and heal them, and from my hand there is no rescue.

40 "To the heavens I raise my hand and swear: As surely as I live forever, 41 I will sharpen my flashing sword, and my hand shall lay hold of my quiver.

"With vengeance I will repay my foes and requite those who hate me. 42 I will make my arrows drunk with blood, and my sword shall gorge itself with flesh—

43 Exult with him, you heavens, glorify him, all you angels of God; for he avenges the blood of his servants and purges his people's land.

44 So Moses, together with Josue, son of Nun, went and recited all the words of this song for the people to hear.

Final Appeal. 45 When Moses had finished speaking all these words to all Israel, 46 he said, [z] "Take to heart all the warning which I have now given you and which you must impress on your children, that you may carry out carefully every word of this law. 47 For this is no trivial matter for you; rather, it means your very life, since it is by this means that you are to enjoy a long life on the land which you will cross the Jordan to occupy."

Moses to View Chanaan. 48 On that very day the Lord said to Moses, 49 "Go up on Mount Nebo, here in the Abarim Mountains [it is in the land of Moab facing Jericho], and view the land of Chanaan, which I am giving to the Israelites as their possession.[a] 50 Then you shall die on the mountain you have climbed, and shall be taken to your people, just as your brother Aaron died on Mount Hor and there was taken to his people; [b] 51 because both of you broke faith with me among the Israelites at the waters of Meribath-Cades in the desert of Sin by failing to manifest my sanctity among the Israelites.[c] 52 You may indeed view the land at a distance, but you shall not enter that land which I am giving to the Israelites." 33, 2-5. 26-29: These verses seem to form an independent hymn describing, in the form of a theophany, the conquest of Chanaan. The first section of this hymn (vv 2-5) serves here as an introduction to the various "blessings"; the second section (vv 26-29), as their conclusion.

33, 3: His holy ones were in his hand: the Israelites were protected by the Lord.

33, 5. 26: The darling: see note on Dt 32, 15.

33, 6: In keeping with the other blessings, probably this verse was once introduced by the phrase, "Of Ruben he said." It is to be noted that there is no blessing here for Simeon.

33, 7: Bring him to his people: this probably refers to the isolated position of the tribe of Juda during the conquest of the Promised Land (cf Jgs 1, 17-19); according to some commentators the reference is to the divided kingdom.

33, 8: Thummim . . . Urim: see note on Ex 28, 30.

33, 9: The reference is probably to the Levites' slaughter of their brethren after the affair of the golden calf in the desert; cf Ex 32, 27-29.

CHAPTER 33.

Blessing upon the Tribes. 1 This is the blessing which Moses, the man of God, pronounced upon the Israelites before he died.

2 He said: "The Lord came from Sinai and dawned on his people from Seir; [e] he shone forth from Mount Pharan and advanced from Meribath-Cades, while at his right hand a fire blazed forth and his wrath devastated the nations. 3 But all his holy ones were in his hand; they followed at his feet and he bore them up on his pinions. 4 A law he gave to us; [f] he made the community of Jacob his domain, 5 and he became king of his darling,* when the chiefs of the people assembled and the tribes of Israel came together.

6 *"May Ruben live and not die out, but let his men be few." [g]

7 [h] The following is for Juda. He said: "The Lord hears the cry of Juda; you will bring him to his people.* His own hands defend his cause and you will be his help against his foes."

8 [i] Of Levi he said: "To Levi belong your Thummim, to the man of your favor your Urim; * for you put him to the test at Massa and you contended with him at the waters of Meriba. 9 *He said of his father, 'I regard him not'; his brothers he would not acknowledge, and his own children he refused to recognize. Thus the Levites keep your words, and your covenant they uphold. 10 They promulgate your decisions to Jacob and your law to Israel. They bring the smoke of sacrifice to your nostrils, and burnt offerings to your altar.[j] 11 Bless, O Lord, his possessions and accept the ministry of his hands. Break the backs of his adversaries and of his foes, that they may not rise."

12 Of Benjamin he said: "Benjamin is the beloved of the Lord, who shelters him all the day, while he abides securely at his breast." [k]

13 Of Joseph he said: [l] "Blessed by the Lord is his land with the best of the skies above and of the abyss crouching beneath; 14 with the best of the produce of the year, and the choicest sheaves of the months; 15 with the finest gifts of the age-old mountains and the best from the timeless hills; 16 with the best of the earth and its fullness, and the favor of him who dwells in the bush.* These shall come upon the head of Joseph and upon the brow of the prince among his brothers, 17 the majestic bull, his father's first-born, whose horns are those of the wild ox with which to gore the nations, even those at the ends of the earth." [These are the myriads of Ephraim and these the thousands of Manasse.]

18 Of Zabulon he said: "Rejoice, O Zabulon, in your pursuits, and you, Issachar, in your tents![m] 19 You who invite the tribes to the mountains where feasts are duly held, because you suck up the abundance of the seas* and the hidden treasures of the sand."

20 Of Gad he said: [n] "Blessed be he who has made Gad so vast! He lies there like a lion that has seized the arm and head of the prey. 21 He saw that the best should be his [o] when the princely portion* was assigned, while the heads of the people were gathered. He carried out the justice of the Lord and his decrees respecting Israel."

22 Of Dan he said: [p] "Dan is a lion's whelp, that springs forth from Basan!"*

23 Of Nephthali he said: [q] "Nephthali is enriched with favors and filled with the blessings of the Lord; the lake* and south of it are his possession!"

24 Of Aser he said: [r] "More blessed than the other sons be Aser!* May he be the favorite among his brothers, as the oil of his olive trees runs over his feet! 25 May your bolts be of iron and bronze; may your strength endure through all your days!

26 "There is no god like the God of the darling, who rides the heavens in his power, and rides the skies in his majesty; 27 he spread out the primeval tent; he extended the ancient canopy. He drove the enemy out of your way and the Amorrite he destroyed. 28 Israel has dwelt securely, and the fountain of Jacob has been undisturbed in a land of grain and wine, where the heavens drip with dew.[s] 29 How fortunate you are, O Israel! Where else is a nation victorious in the Lord?[t] The Lord is your saving shield, and his sword is your glory. Your enemies fawn upon you, as you stride upon their heights."

CHAPTER 34.

Death and Burial of Moses. 1 Then Moses went up from the plains of Moab to Mount Nebo,[u] the headland of Phasga which faces Jericho, and the Lord showed him all the land—Galaad, and as far as Dan, 2 all Nephthali, the land of Ephraim and Manasse, all the land of Juda as far as the Western Sea, 3 the Negeb, the circuit of the Jordan with the lowlands at Jericho, city of palms, and as far as Segor.
4 The Lord then said to him, "This is the land[v] which I swore to Abraham, Isaac and Jacob that I would give to their descendants. I have let you feast your eyes upon it, but you shall not cross over." 5 So there, in the land of Moab, Moses, the servant of the Lord, died[w] as the Lord had said; 6 and he was buried in the ravine opposite Beth-Phogor in the land of Moab, but to this day no one knows the place of his burial. 7 Moses was one hundred and twenty years old[x] when he died, yet his eyes were undimmed and his vigor unabated. 8 For thirty days the Israelites wept for Moses in the plains of Moab, till they had completed the period of grief and mourning for Moses.

9 Now Josue, son of Nun,[y] was filled with the spirit of wisdom, since Moses had laid his hands upon him; and so the Israelites gave him their obedience, thus carrying out the Lord's command to Moses.

10 [z] Since then no prophet has arisen in Israel like Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face. 11 [a] He had no equal in all the signs and wonders the Lord sent him to perform in the land of Egypt against

THE BOOK OF JOSUE

The Book of Josue derives its name from the successor of Moses, with whose deeds it is principally concerned. It contains the record of the conquest, division and occupation of Chanaan by the Israelites under his leadership.

The purpose of the book is to demonstrate God's fidelity in giving to the Israelites the land He had promised them for an inheritance (Gn 15, 18ff; Jos 1, 2ff; 21, 41ff; 23, 14ff). Without divine intervention this people could never have conquered the powerful nations dwelling in Chanaan, a fact which accounts for the many miracles found in the narrative. The severity of the divine decree ordering the extermination of the inhabitants of the cities which the Israelites were to possess, was justified as a punishment for the crimes of these pagans and was directed to preserving the chosen people against the moral and religious corruption which prevailed in Chanaan (Dt 7, 1-6; 20, 16-18; Jos 8, 24ff; 10, 28-39).

The actual author of the book in its present form remains unknown. Many indications point to a date of composition prior to King David's reign; and some of the detailed descriptions, which seem to have been composed by an eyewitness, may even be the work of Josue himself.

Jewish and Christian tradition alike accept the historical accuracy and inspired character of the Book of Josue.

The entire history of the conquest of the Promised Land is a prophecy of the spiritual conquest of the world through the Church under the leadership of Jesus the Messias.

The Book of Josue may be divided as follows: I. Conquest of Chanaan (Jos 1, 1—12, 24). II. Division of the Land (Jos 13, 1—21, 45). III. Return of the Transjordan Tribes and Josue's Farewell (Jos 22, 1—24, 33).

I: CONQUEST OF CHANAAN

CHAPTER 1.

Divine Promise of Assistance. [1] After Moses, the servant of the Lord, had died, the Lord said to Moses' aide Josue, son of Nun: [2] "My servant Moses is dead. So prepare to cross the Jordan here, with all the people, into the land I will give the Israelites. [3] As I promised Moses, I will deliver to you every place where you set foot. [4] *Your domain is to be all the land of the Hethites, from the desert and from Lebanon east to the great river Euphrates and west to the Great Sea.[a] [5] No one can withstand you while you live. I will be with you as I was with Moses: [b] I will not leave you nor forsake you. [6] Be firm and steadfast, so that you may give this people possession of the land which I swore to their fathers I would give them. [7] Above all, be firm and steadfast, taking care to observe the entire Law which my servant Moses enjoined on you. Do not swerve from it either to the right or to the left, that you may succeed wherever you go. [8] Keep this Book of the Law on your lips. Recite it by day and by night, that you may observe carefully all that is written in it; then you will successfully attain your goal. [9] I command you: be firm and steadfast! Do not fear nor be dismayed, for the Lord, your God, is with you wherever you go." [c]

[10] So Josue commanded the officers of the people: [11] "Go through the camp and instruct the people, 'Prepare your provisions, for three days from now you shall

The Transjordan Tribes. 12 Josue reminded the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse: 13 "Remember what Moses, the servant of the Lord, commanded you when he said, 'The Lord, your God, will permit you to settle in this land.' 14 Your wives, your children, and your livestock shall remain in the land Moses gave you here beyond the Jordan.[e] But all the warriors among you must cross over armed ahead of your kinsmen and you must help them 15 until the Lord has settled your kinsmen, and they like you possess the land which the Lord, your God, is giving them. Afterward you may return and occupy your own land, which Moses, the servant of the Lord, has given you east of the Jordan." [f] 16 "We will do all you have commanded us," they answered Josue, "and we will go wherever you send us. 17 We will obey you as completely as we obeyed Moses. But may the Lord, your God, be with you as he was with Moses. 18 If anyone rebels against your orders and does not obey every command you give him, he shall be put to death. But be firm and steadfast."

CHAPTER 2.

Spies Saved by Rahab. 1 Then Josue, son of Nun, secretly sent out two spies from Sattim, saying, "Go, reconnoiter the land and Jericho." When the two reached Jericho, they went into the house of a harlot* named Rahab,[g] where they lodged. 2 But a report was brought to the king of Jericho that some Israelites had come there that night to spy out the land. 3 So the king of Jericho sent Rahab the order, "Put out the visitors who have entered your house, for they have come to spy out the entire land." 4 The woman[h] had taken the two men and hidden them, so she said, "True, the men you speak of came to me, but I did not know where they came from. 5 At dark, when it was time for the gate to be shut, they left, and I do not know where they went. You will have to pursue them immediately to overtake them." 6 Now, she had led them to the roof, and hidden them among her stalks of flax spread out* there. 7 But the pursuers set out along the way of the fords of the Jordan, and once they had left, the gate was shut.

8 Before the spies fell asleep, Rahab* came to them on the roof 9 and said: "I know that the Lord has given you the land, that a dread of you has come upon us, and that all the inhabitants of the land are overcome with fear of you.[i] 10 For we have heard how the Lord dried up the waters of the Red Sea before you when you came out of Egypt,[j] and how you dealt with Sehon and Og, the two kings of the Amorrites beyond the Jordan, whom you doomed to destruction. 11 At these reports, we are disheartened; everyone is discouraged because of you, since the Lord, your God, is God in heaven above and on earth below.[k] 12 Now then, swear to me by the Lord that, since I am showing kindness to you, you in turn will show kindness to my family; [l] and give me an unmistakable token 13 that you are to spare my father and mother, brothers and sisters, and all their kin, and save us from death." 14 "We pledge our lives for yours," the men answered her. "If you do not betray this errand of ours, we will be faithful in showing kindness to you when the Lord gives us the land."

15 Then she let them down through the window with a rope; for she lived in a house built into the city wall.* 16 "Go up into the hill country," she suggested to them, "that your pursuers may not find you. Hide there for three days, until they return; then you may proceed on your way." 17 The men answered her, "This is how we will fulfill the oath you made us take: 18 When we come into the land, tie this scarlet cord in the window through which you are letting us down; and gather your father and mother, your brothers and all your family into your house. 19 Should any of them pass outside the doors of your house, he will be responsible for his own death, and we shall be guiltless. But we shall be responsible if anyone in the house with you is harmed. 20 If, however, you betray this errand of ours, we shall be quit of the oath you have made us take." 21 "Let it be as you say," she replied, and bade them farewell. When they were gone, she tied the scarlet cord in the window.

The upper story of Rahab's house was evidently higher than the city wall. It was through the window of such a house that St. Paul escaped from Damascus; cf Acts 9, 25; 2 Cor 11, 33.

22 They went up into the hills, where they stayed three days until their pursuers, who had sought them all along the road without finding them, returned. 23 Then the two came back down from the hills, crossed the Jordan to Josue, son of Nun, and reported all that had befallen them. 25 They assured Josue, "The Lord has delivered all this land into our power; indeed, all the inhabitants of the land are overcome with fear of us."

CHAPTER 3.

Preparations for Crossing the Jordan. 1 Early the next morning, Josue [m] moved with all the Israelites from Sattim to the Jordan, where they lodged before crossing over. 2 Three days later the officers went through the camp 3 and issued these instructions to the people: "When you see the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord, your God, which the Levitical priests will carry, you must also break camp and follow it, 4 that you may know the way to take, for you have not gone over this road before. But let there be a space of two thousand cubits between you and the Ark. Do not come nearer to it." 5 Josue also said to the people, "Sanctify yourselves, for tomorrow the Lord will perform wonders among you." 6 And he directed the priests to take up the Ark of the Covenant and go on ahead of the people; and they did so.

7 Then the Lord said to Josue, "Today I will begin to exalt you in the sight of all Israel, that they may know I am with you, as I was with Moses.[n] 8 Now command the priests carrying the Ark of the Covenant to come to a halt in the Jordan when they reach the edge of the waters."

9 So Josue said to the Israelites, "Come here and listen to the words of the Lord, your God." 10 He continued: "This is how you will know that there is a living God in your midst, who at your approach will dispossess the Chanaanites, Hethites, Hevites, Pherezites, Gergesites, Amorrites and Jebusites.[o] 11 The Ark of the Covenant of the Lord of the whole earth will precede you into the Jordan. 12 [Now choose twelve men,[p] one from each of the tribes of Israel.] 13 When the soles of the feet of the priests carrying the Ark of the Lord, the Lord of the whole earth, touch the water of the Jordan, it will cease to flow; for the water flowing down from upstream will halt in a solid bank."

The Crossing Begun. 14 The people struck their tents to cross the Jordan, with the priests carrying the Ark of the Covenant ahead of them. 15 No sooner had these priestly bearers of the Ark waded into the waters at the edge of the Jordan,[q] which overflows all its banks during the entire season of the harvest,* 16 than the waters flowing from upstream halted, backing up in a solid mass[r] for a very great distance indeed, from Adama, a city in the direction of Sarthan; while those flowing downstream toward the Salt Sea of the Araba disappeared entirely.* Thus the people crossed over opposite Jericho. 17 While all Israel crossed over on dry ground, the priests carrying the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord remained motionless on dry ground in the bed of the Jordan[s] until the whole nation had completed the passage.

CHAPTER 4.

Memorial Stones. 1 After the entire nation had crossed the Jordan, 2 the Lord said to Josue, "Choose twelve men[t] from the people, one from each tribe, 3 and instruct them to take up twelve stones from this spot in the bed of the Jordan where the priests have been standing motionless.[u] Carry them over with you, and place

The crossing took place "on the tenth day of the first month" of the Hebrew year, which began with the first new moon after the spring equinox; cf Jos 4, 19. At this time of the year the Jordan would be swollen from the winter rains and the melting snow of Mount Hermon.

3, 16: The sudden damming of the river could have been caused by a landslide, as has happened on other occasions. The miraculous character of this event would not thereby be removed because God who foretold it (Jos 3, 13), also caused it to take place at precisely the right moment (Jos 3, 15), whether or not He used natural forces to accomplish His will.

them where you are to stay tonight."

4 Summoning the twelve men whom he had selected from among the Israelites, one from each tribe, 5 Josue said to them: "Go to the bed of the Jordan in front of the Ark of the Lord, your God; lift to your shoulders one stone apiece, so that they will equal in number the tribes of the Israelites. 6 In the future, these are to be a sign among you. When your children ask you what these stones mean to you, 7 you shall answer them, 'The waters of the Jordan ceased to flow before the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord when it crossed the Jordan.'[v] Thus these stones are to serve as a perpetual memorial to the Israelites." 8 The twelve Israelites did as Josue had commanded: they took up as many stones from the bed of the Jordan as there were tribes of the Israelites, and carried them along to the camp site, where they placed them. 9 According to the Lord's direction, Josue also had twelve stones set up in the bed of the Jordan on the spot where the priests stood who were carrying the Ark of the Covenant. They are there to this day.

10 *The priests carrying the Ark remained in the bed of the Jordan until everything had been done that the Lord had commanded Josue to tell the people. The people crossed over quickly, 11 and when all had reached the other side, the Ark of the Lord, borne by the priests, also crossed to its place in front of them. 12 The Rubenites, Gadites, and half-tribe of Manasse, armed, marched in the vanguard of the Israelites, as Moses had ordered.[w] 13 About forty thousand troops equipped for battle passed over before the Lord to the plains of Jericho.

14 That day the Lord exalted Josue in the sight of all Israel,[x] and thenceforth during his whole life they respected him as they had respected Moses.

15 Then the Lord said to Josue, 16 "Command the priests carrying the Ark of the Commandments to come up from the Jordan."[y] 17 Josue did so, 18 and when the priests carrying the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord had come up from the bed of the Jordan, as the soles of their feet regained the dry ground, the waters of the Jordan resumed their course and as before overflowed all its banks.

19 The people came up from the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, and camped in Galgal on the eastern limits of Jericho. 20 At Galgal Josue set up the twelve stones which had been taken from the Jordan, 21 saying to the Israelites, "In the future, when the children among you ask their fathers what these stones mean, 22 you shall inform them, 'Israel crossed the Jordan here on dry ground.' 23 For the Lord, your God, dried up the waters of the Jordan in front of you until you crossed over, just as the Lord, your God, had done at the Red Sea, which he dried up in front of us until we crossed over;[z] 24 in order that all the peoples of the earth may learn that the hand of the Lord is mighty, and that you may fear the Lord, your God, forever."

CHAPTER 5.

Rites at Galgal. 1 When all the kings of the Amorrites to the west of the Jordan and all the kings of the Chanaanites by the sea heard that the Lord had dried up the waters of the Jordan before the Israelites until they crossed over, they were disheartened and lost courage at their approach.

2 On this occasion the Lord said to Josue, "Make flint knives and circumcise the Israelite nation for the second time." 3 So Josue made flint knives and circumcised the Israelites at Gabaath-haaraloth,* 4 under these circumstances: Of all the people who came out of Egypt, every man of military age had died in the desert[a] during the journey after they left Egypt. 5 Though all the men who came out were circumcised, none of those born in the desert during the journey after the departure from Egypt were circumcised. 6 Now the Israelites had wandered forty years in the desert,[b] until all the warriors among the people that came forth from Egypt died off because they had not obeyed the command of the Lord. For the Lord swore that he would not let them see the land flowing with milk and honey which he had promised their fathers he would give us. 7 [c] It was the children whom he raised up in their stead whom Josue circumcised, for these were yet with foreskins, not having been circumcised on the journey. 8 When the rite had been performed, the whole nation remained in camp where they were, until they recovered. 9 Then the Lord said to Josue, "Today I have removed the reproach of Egypt from you." [d] Therefore the place is called Galgal* to the present day.

10 [e] While the Israelites were encamped at Galgal on the plains of Jericho, they celebrated the Passover on the evening of the fourteenth of the month.* 11 On the day after the Passover they ate of the produce of the land in the form of unleavened cakes and parched grain. On that same day 12 after the Passover on which they ate of the produce of the land, the manna ceased. No longer was there manna for the Israelites, who that year ate of the yield of the land of Chanaan.[f]

Siege at Jericho. 13 *While Josue was near Jericho, he raised his eyes and saw one who stood facing him, drawn sword in hand.[g] Josue went up to him and asked, "Are you one of us or of our enemies?" 14 He replied, "Neither. I am the captain of the host of the Lord and I have just arrived." Then Josue fell prostrate to the ground in worship, and said to him, "What has my lord to say to his servant?" 15 The captain of the host of the Lord replied to Josue, "Remove your sandals from your feet, for the place on which you are standing is holy." [h] And Josue obeyed.

CHAPTER 6.

1 Now Jericho was in a state of siege because of the presence of the Israelites, so that no one left or entered. 2 And to Josue the Lord said, "I have delivered Jericho and its king into your power. 3 Have all the soldiers circle the city, marching once around it. Do this for six days, 4 [i] with seven priests carrying rams' horns ahead of the Ark. On the seventh day march around the city seven times, and have the priests blow the horns. 5 When they give a long blast on the ram's horn and you hear that signal, all the people shall shout aloud. The wall of the city will collapse, and they will be able to make a frontal attack."

6 Summoning the priests, Josue, son of Nun, then ordered them to take up the Ark of the Covenant with seven of the priests carrying rams' horns in front of the Ark of the Lord. 7 And he ordered the people to proceed in a circle around the city, with the picked troops marching ahead of the Ark of the Lord. 8 At this order they proceeded, with the seven priests who carried the rams' horns before the Lord blowing their horns, and the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord following them. 9 In front of the priests with the horns marched the picked troops; the rear guard followed the Ark, and the blowing of horns was kept up continually as they marched. 10 But the people had been commanded by Josue not to shout or make any noise or outcry until he gave the word: only then were they to shout. 11 So he had the Ark of the Lord circle the city, going once around it, after which they returned to camp for the night.

12 Early the next morning, Josue had the priests take up the Ark of the Lord. 13 The seven priests bearing the rams' horns marched in front of the Ark of the Lord, blowing their horns. Ahead of these marched the picked troops, while the rear guard followed the Ark of the Lord, and the blowing of horns was kept up continually. 14 On this second day they again marched around the city once before returning to camp; and for six days in all they did the same.

15 On the seventh day, beginning at daybreak, they marched around the city seven times in the same manner; on that day only did they march around the city seven times. 16 The seventh time around, the priests blew the horns and Josue said to the people, "Now shout, for the Lord

5, 10: The month: the first month of the year, later called Nisan; see note on Jos 3, 15. The crossing of the Jordan occurred, therefore, about the same time of the year as did the equally miraculous crossing of the Red Sea; cf Ex 12-14.

5, 13—6, 26: The account of the siege of Jericho embraces: (1) the command of the Lord, through His angel, to Josue (Jos 5, 13—6, 5); (2) Josue's instructions to the Israelites, with a brief summary of how these orders were carried out (Jos 6, 6-11); (3) a description of the action on each of the first six days (Jos 6, 12-14); (4) the events on the seventh day (Jos 6, 15-26).

has given you the city [17] i and everything in it. It is under the Lord's ban. Only the harlot Rahab and all who are in the house with her are to be spared, because she hid the messengers we sent. [18] k But be careful not to take, in your greed, anything that is under the ban;* else you will bring upon the camp of Israel this ban and the misery of it. [19] All silver and gold, and the articles of bronze or iron, are sacred to the Lord. They shall be put in the treasury of the Lord."

The Fall of Jericho. [20] As the horns blew, the people began to shout. When they heard the signal horn, they raised a tremendous shout. The wall collapsed,* and the people stormed the city in a frontal attack and took it.l [21] They observed the ban by putting to the sword all living creatures m in the city: men and women, young and old, as well as oxen, sheep and asses.

[22] Josue directed the two men who had spied out the land, "Go into the harlot's house and bring out the woman with all her kin, as you swore to her you would do."n [23] The spies entered and brought out Rahab, with her father, mother, brothers, and all her kin.o Her entire family they led forth and placed them outside the camp of Israel. [24] The city itself they burned with all that was in it,p except the silver, gold, and articles of bronze and iron, which were placed in the treasury of the house of the Lord. [25] *Because Rahab the harlot had hidden the messengers whom Josue had sent to reconnoiter Jericho, Josue spared her with her family and all her kin, who continue in the midst of Israel to this day.

[26] On that occasion Josue imposed the oath: Cursed before the Lord be the man who attempts to rebuild this city, Jericho. He shall lose his first-born* when he lays its foundation, and he shall lose his youngest son when he sets up its gates.q [27] Now, though the Lord was with Josue so that his fame spread throughout the land, the Israelites violated the ban.r

CHAPTER 7.

[1] Achan, son of Charmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zara of the tribe of Juda, took goods that were under the ban,s and the anger of the Lord flared up against the Israelites.

Defeat at Hai. [2] Josue next sent men from Jericho to Hai, which is near Bethel on its eastern side, with instructions to go up and reconnoiter the land. When they had explored Hai, [3] they returned to Josue and advised, "Do not send all the people up; if only about two or three thousand go up, they can overcome Hai. The enemy there are few; you need not call for an effort from all the people." [4] About three thousand of the people made the attack, but they were defeated by those at Hai, [5] who killed some thirty-six of them. They pressed them back across the clearing in front of the city gate till they broke ranks, and defeated them finally on the descent, so that the confidence of the people melted away like water.

[6] Josue, together with the elders of Israel, rent his garments and lay prostrate before the Ark of the Lord until evening; and they threw dust on their heads. [7] "Alas, O Lord God," Josue prayed, "why did you ever allow this people to pass over the Jordan, delivering us into the power of the Amorrites, that they might destroy us? Would that we had been content to dwell on the other side of the Jordan. [8] Pray, Lord, what can I say, now that Israel has turned its back to its enemies? [9] When the Chanaanites and the other inhabitants of the land hear of it, they will close in around us and efface our name from the earth. What will you do for your great name?"

[10] The Lord replied to Josue: "Stand up. Why are you lying prostrate? [11] t Israel has sinned: they have violated the covenant which I enjoined on them. They have stealthily taken goods subject to the ban, and have deceitfully put them in their baggage. [12] If the Israelites cannot stand up to their enemies, but must turn

You cannot stand up to your enemies until you remove from among you whoever has incurred the ban. 14 In the morning you must present yourselves by tribes. The tribe which the Lord designates shall come forward by clans; the clan which the Lord designates shall come forward by families; the family which the Lord designates shall come forward one by one. 15 He who is designated as having incurred the ban shall be destroyed by fire, with all that is his, because he has violated the covenant of the Lord and has committed a shameful crime in Israel."

Achan's Guilt and Punishment 16 Early the next morning Josue had Israel come forward by tribes, and the tribe of Juda was designated.* 17 Then he had the clans of Juda come forward, and the clan of Zara was designated. He had the clan of Zara[w] come forward by families, and Zabdi was designated. 18 Finally he had that family come forward one by one, and Achan, son of Charmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zara of the tribe of Juda, was designated. 19 Josue said to Achan, "My son, give to the Lord, the God of Israel, glory and honor by telling me what you have done; do not hide it from me." 20 Achan answered Josue, "I have indeed sinned against the Lord, the God of Israel. This is what I have done: 21 Among the spoils, I saw a beautiful Babylonian mantle, two hundred shekels of silver, and a bar of gold fifty shekels in weight; in my greed I took them. They are now hidden in the ground inside my tent, with the silver underneath." 22 The messengers whom Josue sent hastened to the tent and found them hidden there, with the silver underneath. 23 They took them from the tent, brought them to Josue and all the Israelites, and spread them out before the Lord.

24 Then Josue and all Israel took Achan, son of Zara, with the silver, the mantle, and the bar of gold, and with his sons and daughters, his ox, his ass and his sheep, his tent, and all his possessions, and led them off to the Valley of Achor. 25 Josue said, "The Lord bring upon you today the misery with which you have afflicted us!"[x] And all Israel stoned him to death 26 and piled a great heap of stones over him, which remains to the present day.[y] Then the anger of the Lord relented. That is why the place is called the Valley of Achor* to this day.

CHAPTER 8.

Capture of Hai. 1 The Lord then said to Josue, "Do not be afraid or dismayed. Take all the army with you and prepare to attack Hai.[z] I have delivered the king of Hai into your power, with his people, city, and land. 2 Do to Hai and its king what you did to Jericho and its king; except that you may take its spoil and livestock as booty.[a] Set an ambush behind the city." 3 So Josue and all the soldiers prepared to attack Hai. Picking out thirty thousand warriors,* Josue sent them off by night 4 with these orders: "See that you ambush the city from the rear, at no great distance; then all of you be on the watch. 5 The rest of the people and I will come up to the city, and when they make a sortie against us as they did the last time, we will flee from them. 6 They will keep coming out after us until we have drawn them away from the city, for they will think we are fleeing from them as we did the last time. When this occurs, 7 rise from ambush and take possession of the city, which the Lord, your God, will deliver into your power. 8 When you have taken the city, set it afire in obedience to the Lord's command. 9 These are my orders to you." Then Josue sent them away. They went to the place of ambush, taking up their position to the west of Hai, toward Bethel. Josue, however, spent that night in the plain.

10 Early the next morning Josue mustered the army and went up to Hai at its head, with the elders of Israel. 11 When all the troops he led were drawn up in position before the city, they pitched camp north of Hai, on the other side of the ravine. 12 [He took about five thousand men and set them in ambush between Bethel and Hai, west of the city.] 13 Thus the people took up their stations, with the main body north of the city and the ambush west of it, and Josue waited overnight among his troops. 14 The king of Hai saw this, and he and all his army came out very early in the morning to engage Israel in battle at the descent toward the Araba, not knowing that there was an ambush behind the city. 15 Josue and the main body of the Israelites fled in seeming defeat toward the desert, 16 till the last of the soldiers in the city had been called out to pursue them. 17 Since they were drawn away from the city, with every man engaged in this pursuit of Josue and the Israelites, not a soldier remained in Hai [or Bethel], and the city was open and unprotected.

7, 26: Achor: "misery, affliction." The reference is to the saying of Josue in v 25, with an allusion also to the similar-sounding name of Achan.

8, 3: Thirty thousand warriors: this figure of the Hebrew text, which seems extremely high, may be due to a copyist's error; some manuscripts of the Septuagint have "three thousand," which is the number of the whole army in the first, unsuccessful attack (Jos 7, 4); the variant reading in v 12 mentions "five thousand."

18 Then the Lord directed Josue, "Stretch out the javelin in your hand toward Hai, for I will deliver it into your power." Josue stretched out the javelin in his hand toward the city, 19 and as soon as he did so, the men in ambush rose from their post, rushed in, captured the city, and immediately set it on fire. 20 By the time the men of Hai looked back, the smoke from the city was already sky-high. Escape in any direction was impossible, because the Israelites retreating toward the desert now turned on their pursuers; 21 for when Josue and the main body of Israelites saw that the city had been taken from ambush and was going up in smoke, they struck back at the men of Hai. 22 Since those in the city came out to intercept them, the men of Hai were hemmed in by Israelites on either side, who cut them down without any fugitives or survivors [b] 23 except the king, whom they took alive and brought to Josue.

24 All the inhabitants of Hai who had pursued the Israelites into the desert were slain by the sword there in the open, down to the last man. 25 Then all Israel returned and put to the sword those inside the city. There fell that day a total of twelve thousand men and women, the entire population of Hai. 26 [c] Josue kept the javelin in his hand stretched out until he had fulfilled the doom on all the inhabitants of Hai. 27 However, the Israelites took for themselves as booty the livestock and the spoil of that city, according to the command of the Lord issued to Josue. 28 Then Josue destroyed the place by fire, reducing it to an everlasting mound of ruins, as it remains today.[d] 29 He had the king of Hai hanged on a tree until evening; [e] then at sunset Josue ordered the body removed from the tree and cast at the entrance of the city gate, where a great heap of stones was piled up over it, which remains to the present day.

Altar on Mount Ebal 30 *Later Josue built an altar to the Lord, the God of Israel, on Mount Ebal, 31 of unhewn stones on which no iron tool had been used,[f] in keeping with the command to the Israelites of Moses, the servant of the Lord, as recorded in the Book of the Law. On this altar they offered holocausts and peace offerings to the Lord. 32 There, in the presence of the Israelites, Josue inscribed upon the stones a copy of the law written by Moses.[g] 33 And all Israel, stranger and native alike, with their elders, officers and judges, stood on either side of the Ark facing the Levitical priests who were carrying the Ark of the Covenant of the Lord.[h] Half of them were facing Mount Garizim and half Mount Ebal, thus carrying out the instructions of Moses, the servant of the Lord, for the blessing of the people of Israel on this first occasion. 34 [i] Then were read aloud all the words of the law, the blessings and the curses, exactly as written in the Book of the Law. 35 [j] Every single word that Moses had commanded, Josue read aloud to the entire community, including the women and children, and the strangers who had accompanied Israel.

CHAPTER 9.

Confederacy against Israel. 1 When the news reached the kings west of the Jordan, in the mountain regions and in the foothills, and all along the coast of the Great Sea as far as Lebanon: Hethites, Amorrites, Chanaanites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites,[k] 2 they all formed an alliance to launch a common attack against Josue and Israel.

The Gabaonite Deception. 3 On learning what Josue had done to Jericho and Hai, the inhabitants of Gabaon [l] 4 put into effect a device of their own. They chose provisions for a journey, making use of old sacks for their asses, and old wine-skins, torn and mended. 5 They wore old,
patched sandals and shabby garments;
and all the bread they took was dry and crumbly. 6 Thus they journeyed to Josue in the camp at Galgal, where they said to him and to the men of Israel, "We have come from a distant land to propose that you make an alliance with us." [m] 7 But the men of Israel replied to the Hevites,*
"You may be living in land that is ours.
How, then, can we make an alliance with you?" 8 But they answered Josue, "We are your servants." Then Josue asked them, "Who are you? Where do you come from?" 9 They answered him, "Your servants have come from a far-off land, because of the fame of the Lord, your God.
For we have heard reports of all that he did in Egypt [n] 10 and all that he did to the two kings of the Amorrites beyond the Jordan,[o] Sehon, king of Hesebon, and Og,
king of Basan, who lived in Astharoth.
11 So our elders and all the inhabitants of our country said to us, 'Take along provisions for the journey and go to meet them. Say to them: We are your servants;
we propose that you make an alliance with us.' 12 This bread of ours was still warm when we brought it from home as provisions the day we left to come to you, but now it is dry and crumbled. 13 Here are our wineskins, which were new when we filled them, but now they are torn.
Look at our garments and sandals, which are worn out from the very long journey." 14 Then the Israelite princes partook of their provisions, without seeking the advice of the Lord.[p] 15 So Josue made an alliance with them and entered into an agreement to spare them,[q] which the princes of the community sealed with an oath.

Gabaonites Made Vassals. 16 Three days after the agreement was entered into, the Israelites learned that these people were from nearby, and would be living in Israel. 17 The third day on the road, the Israelites came to their cities of Gabaon, Caphira, Beroth and Cariathjarim, 18 but did not attack them, because the princes of the community had sworn to them by the Lord, the God of Israel. When the entire community grumbled against the princes, 19 these all remonstrated with the people, "We have sworn to them by the Lord, the God of Israel, and so we cannot harm them. 20 Let us therefore spare their lives and so deal with them that we shall not be punished for the oath we have sworn to them." 21 Thus the princes recommended that they be let live, as hewers of wood and drawers of water* for the entire community; and the community did as the princes advised them.

22 Josue summoned the Gabaonites and said to them, "Why did you lie to us and say that you lived at a great distance from us, when you will be living in our very midst? 23 For this are you accursed; every one of you shall always be a slave [hewers of wood and drawers of water] for the house of my God." 24 They answered Josue, "Your servants were fully informed of how the Lord, your God, commanded his servant Moses that you be given the entire land and that all its inhabitants be destroyed before you. Since, therefore, at your advance, we were in great fear for our lives, we acted as we did.[r] 25 And now that we are in your power, do with us what you think fit and right." 26 *Josue
did what he had decided: while he saved
them from being killed by the Israelites, 27 at the same time he made them, as they still are, hewers of wood and drawers of water for the community and for the altar of the Lord, in the place of the Lord's choice.[s]

CHAPTER 10.

The Siege of Gabaon. 1 Now Adonise-dec, king of Jerusalem, heard that, in the capture and destruction of Hai, Josue had done to that city and its king as he had done to Jericho and its king.[t] He heard also that the inhabitants of Gabaon had made their peace with Israel, remaining among them, [2] and that there was great fear abroad, because Gabaon was large enough for a royal city, larger even than the city of Hai, and all its men were brave. [3] So Adonisedec, king of Jerusalem, sent for Oham, king of Hebron, Pharam, king of Jerimoth, Japhia, king of Lachis, and Dabir, king of Eglon, [4] to come to his aid for an attack on Gabaon, since it had concluded peace with Josue and the Israelites.[u] [5] The five Amorrite kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jerimoth, Lachis and Eglon,* united all their forces and marched against Gabaon, where they took up siege positions. [6] Thereupon, the men of Gabaon sent an appeal to Josue in his camp at Galgal: "Do not abandon your servants. Come up here quickly and save us. Help us, because all the Amorrite kings of the mountain country have joined forces against us."[v]

Josue's Victory. [7] So Josue marched up from Galgal with his picked troops and the rest of his soldiers. [8] Meanwhile the Lord said to Josue, "Do not fear them, for I have delivered them into your power. Not one of them will be able to withstand you." [9] And when Josue made his surprise attack upon them after an all-night march from Galgal, [10] the Lord threw them into disorder before him. The Israelites inflicted a great slaughter on them at Gabaon and pursued them down the Beth-Horon slope, harassing them as far as Azeca and Maceda.

[11] While they fled before Israel along the descent from Beth-Horon, the Lord hurled great stones from the sky* above them all the way to Azeca, killing many.[w] More died from these hailstones than the Israelites slew with the sword. [12] On this day, when the Lord delivered up the Amorrites to the Israelites, Josue prayed to the Lord, and said in the presence of Israel: Stand still, O sun, at Gabaon, O moon, in the valley of Aialon! [13] And the sun stood still, and the moon stayed, while the nation took vengeance on its foes.[x] Is this not recorded* in the Book of Jashar? The sun halted in the middle of the sky; not for a whole day did it resume its swift course. [14] Never before or since was there a day like this, when the Lord obeyed the voice of a man; for the Lord fought for Israel. [15] [Then Josue and all Israel returned to the camp at Galgal.]

Execution of Amorrite Kings. [16] Meanwhile the five kings who had fled, hid in a cave at Maceda. [17] When Josue was told that the five kings had been discovered hiding in a cave at Maceda, [18] he said, "Roll large stones to the mouth of the cave and post men over it to guard them. [19] But do not remain there yourselves. Pursue your enemies, and harry them in the rear. Do not allow them to escape to their cities, for the Lord, your God, has delivered them into your power."

[20] Once Josue and the Israelites had finally inflicted the last blows in this very great slaughter, and the survivors had escaped from them into the fortified cities, [21] all the army returned safely to Josue and the camp at Maceda, no man uttering a sound against the Israelites. [22] Then Josue said, "Open the mouth of the cave and bring out those five kings to me." [23] Obediently, they brought out to him from the cave the five kings, of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jerimoth, Lachis and Eglon. [24] When they had done so, Josue summoned all the men of Israel and said to the commanders of the soldiers who had marched with him, "Come forward and put your feet on the necks of these kings." They came forward and put their feet upon their necks. [25] Then Josue said to them, "Do not be afraid or dismayed, be firm and steadfast. This is what the Lord will do to all the enemies against whom you fight." [26] [y] Thereupon Josue struck and killed them, and hanged them on five trees, where they remained hanging until evening. [27] At sunset they were removed from the trees at the command of Josue and cast into the cave where they had hidden; over the mouth of the cave large stones were placed, which remain until this very day.

10, 11: Great stones from the sky: the hailstones mentioned in the next sentence.

10, 13: Is this not recorded: the reference is to the preceding, poetic passage. Evidently the Book of Jashar, like the Book of the Wars of the Lord (Nm 21, 14), recounted in epic style the exploits of Israel's early heroes. The sun halted: though it is widely supposed that this passage describes in popular language and according to external appearances a miraculous lengthening of the day, it is equally probable that Josue's prayer was rather for an abrupt obscuration of the sun, which would impede his enemies in their flight homeward and also prevent them from rallying their forces; this request would have been answered by the hailstorm (cf Sir 46, 5) and by a darkness relieved only twenty-four hours later, well into the next day.

Conquest of Southern Chanaan. 28 z Maceda, too, Josue captured and put to the sword at that time. He fulfilled the doom on the city, on its king, and on every person in it, leaving no survivors. Thus he did to the king of Maceda what he had done to the king of Jericho. 29 Josue then passed on with all Israel from Maceda to Lebna, which he attacked. Lebna also, 30 with its king, the Lord delivered into the power of Israel. He put it to the sword with every person there, leaving no survivors. Thus he did to its king what he had done to the king of Jericho. 31 Josue next passed on with all Israel from Lebna to Lachis, where they set up a camp during the attack. 32 The Lord delivered Lachis into the power of Israel, so that on the second day Josue captured it and put it to the sword with every person in it, just as he had done to Lebna. 33 At that time Horam, king of Gazer, came up to help Lachis, but Josue defeated him and his people, leaving him no survivors. 34 From Lachis, Josue passed on with all Israel to Eglon; encamping near it, they attacked it 35 and captured it the same day, putting it to the sword. He fulfilled the doom that day on every person in it, just as he had done at Lachis. 36 From Eglon, Josue went up with all Israel to Hebron, which they attacked 37 and captured. They put it to the sword with its king, all its towns, and every person there, leaving no survivors, just as Josue had done to Eglon. He fulfilled the doom on it and on every person there. 38 Then Josue and all Israel turned back to Dabir and attacked it, 39 capturing it with its king and all its towns. They put them to the sword and fulfilled the doom on every person there, leaving no survivors. Thus was done to Dabir and its king what had been done to Hebron, as well as to Lebna and its king.

40 a Josue conquered the entire country; the mountain regions, the Negeb, the foothills, and the mountain slopes, with all their kings. He left no survivors, but fulfilled the doom on all who lived there, just as the Lord, the God of Israel, had commanded. 41 Josue conquered from Cadesbarne to Gaza, and all the land of Gosen* to Gabaon. 42 All these kings and their lands Josue captured in a single campaign, for the Lord, the God of Israel, fought for Israel. 43 Thereupon Josue with all Israel returned to the camp at Galgal.

CHAPTER 11.

Northern Confederacy. 1 When Jabin, king of Hasor,* learned of this, he sent a message to Jobab, king of Madon, to the king of Semron, to the king of Achsaph, 2 and to the northern kings in the mountain regions and in the Araba near Cheneroth, in the foothills, and in Naphath-Dor to the west.b 3 These were Chanaanites to the east and west, Amorrites, Hethites, Pherezites and Jebusites in the mountain regions, and Hevites at the foot of Hermon in the land of Maspha. 4 They came out with all their troops, an army numerous as the sands on the seashore, and with a multitude of horses and chariots. 5 All these kings joined forces and marched to the waters of Merom,* where they encamped together to fight against Israel.

6 The Lord said to Josue, "Do not fear them, for by this time tomorrow I will stretch them slain before Israel. You must hamstring their horses and burn their chariots." 7 Josue with his whole army came upon them at the waters of Merom in a surprise attack. 8 The Lord delivered them into the power of the Israelites, who defeated them and pursued them to Greater Sidon, to Masrephothmaim,c and eastward to the valley of Maspha. They struck them all down, leaving no survivors. 9 Josue did to them as the Lord had commanded: he hamstrung their horses and burned their chariots.

Conquest of Northern Chanaan. 10 At that time Josue, turning back, captured Hasor and slew its king with the sword; for Hasor formerly was the chief of all those kingdoms. 11 He also fulfilled the doom by putting every person there to the sword, till none was left alive. Hasor itself he burned. 12 Josue thus captured all those kings with their cities and put them to the sword, fulfilling the doom on them, as Moses, the servant of the Lord, had commanded.[d] 13 However, Israel did not destroy by fire any of the cities built on raised sites, except Hasor, which Josue burned. 14 The Israelites took all the spoil and livestock of these cities as their booty; but the people they put to the sword, until they had exterminated the last of them, leaving none alive. 15 As the Lord had commanded his servant Moses, so Moses commanded Josue, and Josue acted accordingly.[e] He left nothing undone that the Lord had commanded Moses should be done.

Survey of the Conquest. 16 So Josue captured all this land: the mountain regions, the entire Negeb, all the land of Gosen, the foothills, the Araba, as well as the mountain regions and foothills of Israel,[f] 17 from Mount Halac that rises toward Seir[g] as far as Baal-Gad in the Lebanon valley at the foot of Mount Hermon. All their kings he captured and put to death. 18 Josue waged war against all these kings for a long time. 19 With the exception of the Hevites who lived in Gabaon, no city made peace with the Israelites; all were taken in battle.[h] 20 For it was the design of the Lord to encourage them to wage war against Israel, that they might be doomed to destruction and thus receive no mercy, but be exterminated, as the Lord had commanded Moses.[i]

21 At that time Josue penetrated the mountain regions and exterminated the Enacim in Hebron,[j] Dabir, Anab, the entire mountain region of Juda, and the entire mountain region of Israel. Josue fulfilled the doom on them and on their cities, 22 so that no Enacim were left in the land of the Israelites. However, some survived in Gaza, in Geth, and in Azotus. 23 [k] Thus Josue captured the whole country, just as the Lord had foretold to Moses. Josue gave it to Israel as their heritage, apportioning it among the tribes. And the land enjoyed peace.

CHAPTER 12.*

Lists of Conquered Kings. 1 The kings of the land east of the Jordan, from the River Arnon to Mount Hermon, including all the eastern section of the Araba, whom the Israelites conquered and whose lands they occupied, were: 2 [l] First, Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who lived in Hesebon. His domain extended from Aroer, which is on the bank of the Wadi Arnon, to include the wadi itself, and the land northward through half of Galaad to the Wadi Jaboc, 3 as well as the Araba from the eastern side of the Sea of Cheneroth, as far south as the eastern side of the Salt Sea of the Araba in the direction of Beth-jesimoth,[m] to a point under the slopes of Phasga. 4 Secondly, Og, king of Basan, a survivor of the Raphaim, who lived at Astharoth and Edrai.[n] 5 He ruled over Mount Hermon, Salecha, and all Basan as far as the boundary of the Gessurites and Maachathites, and over half of Galaad as far as the territory of Sehon, king of Hesebon. 6 After Moses, the servant of the Lord, and the Israelites conquered them, he assigned their land to the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse, as their property.[o]

7 This is a list of the kings whom Josue and the Israelites conquered west of the Jordan and whose land, from Baal-Gad in the Lebanon valley to Mount Halac which rises toward Seir, Josue apportioned to the tribes of Israel. 8 It included the mountain regions and foothills, the Araba, the slopes, the desert, and the Negeb, belonging to the Hethites, Amorrites, Chanaanites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites. 9 They were the kings of Jericho,[p] Hai (which is near Bethel), 10 Jerusalem, Hebron, 11 Jerimoth, Lachis,[q] 12 Eglon, Gazer,[r] 13 Dabir, Gader,[s] 14 Horma, Arad, 15 Lebna, Adullam,[t] 16

11, 21ff: Most of the land assigned to the tribe of Juda was not conquered by it till the early period of the Judges. See note on Jgs 1, 1-36.

11, 23: The land enjoyed peace: of a limited and temporary nature. Many of the individual tribes had still to fight against the remaining Chanaanites; cf Jos 15, 13-17; 17, 12f. This verse forms the conclusion to the first part of the book. Cf note on Jos 12, 1-24 below.

12, 1-24: This chapter, inserted between the two principal parts of the book (chapters 1-11 and 13-21), resembles the lists of conquered cities which are inscribed on monuments of the Egyptian and Assyrian monarchs. Perhaps it was copied here from some such public Israelite record.

Maceda, Bethel,[u] 17 Thapphua, Hepher,[v] 18 Aphec, Saron,[w] 19 Madon, Hasor,[x] 20 Semron, Achsaph,[y] 21 Thaanach, Mageddo,[z] 22 Cades, Jecnaam (at Carmel),[a] 23 and Dor (in Naphath-Dor), the foreign king at Galgal,[b] 24 and the king of Thersa: thirty-one kings in all.

II: DIVISION OF THE LAND

CHAPTER 13.

Division of Land Commanded. 1 When Josue was old and advanced in years, the Lord said to him: [c] "Though now you are old and advanced in years, a very large part of the land still remains to be conquered. 2 This additional land includes all Gessur* and all the districts of the Philistines 3 (from the stream adjoining Egypt to the boundary of Accaron in the north is reckoned Chanaanite territory, though held by the five lords of the Philistines in Gaza, Azotus, Ascalon, Geth and Accaron), also where the Avvites are in the south; [d] 4 all the land of the Chanaanites from Ara of the Sidonians to Aphec, and the boundaries of the Amorrites; 5 and the Giblite territory; and all the Lebanon on the east, from Baal-Gad at the foot of Mount Hermon to the entrance to Hamath. 6 At the advance of the Israelites I will drive out all the Sidonian inhabitants of the mountain regions between Lebanon and Masrephothmaim; [e] at least include these areas in the division of the Israelite heritage, just as I have commanded you. 7 Now, therefore, apportion among the nine tribes and the half-tribes of Manasse the land which is to be their heritage."

The Eastern Tribes. 8 [f] Now the other half of the tribe of Manasse, as well as the Rubenites and Gadites, had received their heritage which Moses, the servant of the Lord, had given them east of the Jordan: 9 from Aroer on the bank of the Wadi Arnon and the city in the wadi itself, through the tableland of Medaba and Dibon, 10 with the rest of the cities of Sehon, king of the Amorrites, who reigned in Hesebon, to the boundary of the Ammonites; 11 also Galaad and the territory of the Gessurites and Maachathites, all Mount Hermon, and all Basan as far as Salecha, 12 the entire kingdom in Basan of Og, a survivor of the Raphaim, who reigned at Astharoth and Edrai. Though Moses conquered and occupied these territories, 13 the Israelites did not dislodge the Gessurites and Maachathites, so that Gessur and Maacha survive in the midst of Israel to this day. 14 [g] However, to the tribe of Levi Moses assigned no heritage since, as the Lord had promised them, the Lord, the God of Israel, is their heritage.

Ruben. 15 [h] What Moses gave to the Rubenite clans: [i] 16 Their territory reached from Aroer, on the bank of the Wadi Arnon, and the city in the wadi itself, through the tableland about Medaba, 17 to include Hesebon and all its towns which are on the tableland, Dibon, Bamoth-Baal, Beth-Baal-maon, 18 Jahas, Cedemoth, Mephaath, 19 Cariathaim, Sabama, Sarath-sahar on the knoll within the valley, 20 Beth-Phogor, the slopes of Phasga, Beth-jesimoth, 21 and the other cities of the tableland and, generally, of the kingdom of Sehon. This Amorrite king, who reigned in Hesebon, Moses had killed, with his vassals, the princes of Madian, who were settled in the land: Evi, Recem, Sur, Hur and Rebe; [j] 22 and among their slain followers the Israelites put to the sword also the soothsayer Balaam, son of Beor.[k] 23 The boundary of the Rubenites was the bank of the Jordan. These cities and their villages were the heritage of the clans of the Rubenites.

Gad. 24 [l] What Moses gave to the Gadite clans: 25 Their territory included Jazer, all the cities of Galaad, and half the land of the Ammonites as far as Aroer, toward Rabba (that is, 26 from Hesebon to Ramoth-Maspha and Betonim, and from Mahanaim to the boundary of Lodebar); 27 and in the Jordan valley: Beth-haram, Beth-nemra, Socchoth, Saphon, the other part of the kingdom of Sehon, king of Hesebon, with the bank of the Jordan to the southeastern tip of the Sea of Chineroth. 28 These cities and their villages were the heritage of the clans of the Gadites.

Manasse. 29 [m] What Moses gave to the clans of the half-tribe of Manasse: 30 Their territory included Mahanaim, all of

Basan, the entire kingdom of Og, king of Basan, and all the villages of Jair, which are sixty cities in Basan.[n] 31 Half of Galaad, with Astharoth and Edrai, once the royal cities of Og in Basan, fell to the descendants of Machir, son of Manasse, for half the clans descended from Machir.

32 These are the portions which Moses gave when he was in the plains of Moab, beyond the Jordan east of Jericho. 33 However, Moses gave no heritage to the tribe of Levi, since the Lord himself, the God of Israel, is their heritage, as he promised.[o]

CHAPTER 14.

The Western Tribes. 1 Here follow the portions which the Israelites received in the land of Chanaan.[p] Eleazar the priest, Josue, son of Nun, and the heads of families in the tribes of the Israelites determined 2 their heritage by lot, in accordance with the instructions the Lord had given through Moses concerning the remaining nine and a half tribes.[q] 3 For to two and a half tribes Moses had already given a heritage beyond the Jordan; and though the Levites were given no heritage among the tribes,[r] 4 the descendants of Joseph formed two tribes, Manasse and Ephraim. The Levites themselves received no share of the land except cities to live in, with their pasture lands for the cattle and flocks.[s]

5 Thus, in apportioning the land, did the Israelites carry out the instructions of the Lord to Moses.

Caleb's Portion. 6[t] When the Judaites came up to Josue in Galgal, the Cenezite Caleb, son of Jephonne, said to him: "You know what the Lord said to the man of God, Moses, about you and me in Cadesbarne. 7[u] I was forty years old when the servant of the Lord, Moses, sent me from Cadesbarne to reconnoiter the land; and I brought back to him a conscientious report. 8[v] My fellow scouts who went up with me discouraged the people, but I was completely loyal to the Lord, my God. 9 On that occasion Moses swore this oath, 'The land where you have set foot shall become your heritage and that of your descendants forever, because you have been completely loyal to the Lord, my God.' 10 Now, as he promised, the Lord has preserved me while Israel was journeying through the desert, for the forty-five years since the Lord spoke thus to Moses; and although I am now eighty-five years old,[w] 11 I am still as strong today as I was the day Moses sent me forth, with no less vigor whether for war or for ordinary tasks.[x] 12 Give me, therefore, this mountain region which the Lord promised me that day, as you yourself heard. True, the Enacim are there, with large fortified cities, but if the Lord is with me I shall be able to drive them out, as the Lord promised."[y] 13 Josue blessed Caleb, son of Jephonne, and gave him Hebron as his heritage.[z] 14 Therefore Hebron remains the heritage of the Cenezite Caleb, son of Jephonne, to the present day, because he was completely loyal to the Lord, the God of Israel. 15 Hebron was formerly called Cariath-Arbe, for Arbe, the greatest among the Enacim.[a] And the land enjoyed peace.

CHAPTER 15.

Boundaries of Juda. 1 The lot for the clans of the Judaite tribe fell in the extreme south toward the boundary of Edom, the desert of Sin in the Negeb.[b] 2 [c] The boundary there ran from the bay that forms the southern end of the Salt Sea, 3 southward below the pass of Acrabbim, across through Sin, up to a point south of Cadesbarne, across to Hesron, and up to Addar; from there, looping around Carcaa, 4 it crossed to Asemon and then joined the Wadi of Egypt before coming out at the sea. [This is your southern boundary.] 5 The eastern boundary was the Salt Sea as far as the mouth of the Jordan.

6[d] The northern boundary climbed from the bay where the Jordan meets the sea, up to Beth-Hagla, and ran north of Beth-Arba, up to Eben-Boenben-Ruben. 7 Thence it climbed to Dabir, north of the vale of Achor,[e] in the direction of the Galgal that faces the pass of Adommim, on the south side of the wadi; from there it crossed to the waters of En-Sames and emerged at En-Rogel. 8 Climbing again to the valley of Ben-Hennom* on the southern flank of the Jebusites [that is, Jerusalem], the boundary rose to the top of the mountain at the northern end of the valley of Raphaim,[f] which bounds the valley of Hennom on the west. [9] From the top of the mountain it ran to the fountain of waters of Nephthoa,[g] extended to the cities of Mount Ephron, and continued to Baala, or Cariath-jarim. [10] From Baala the boundary curved westward to Mount Seir and passed north of the ridge of Mount Jarim (that is, Chesalon); thence it descended to Beth-Sames, and ran across to Thamna. [11] It then extended along the northern flank of Accaron, continued through Sechrona, and across to Mount Baala, thence to include Jebneel, before it came out at the sea. [12] The western boundary was the Great Sea and its coast. This was the complete boundary of the clans of the Judaites.

Conquest by Caleb. [13] [h] As the Lord had commanded, Josue gave Caleb, son of Jephonne,[i] a portion among the Judaites, namely, Cariath-Arbe (Arbe was the father of Enac), that is, Hebron. [14] [i] And Caleb drove out from there the three Enacim, the descendants of Enac: Sesai, Ahiman and Tholmai. [15] *From there he marched up against the inhabitants of Dabir,[k] which was formerly called Cariath-sepher. [16] Caleb said, "I will give my daughter Achsa in marriage to the one who attacks Cariath-sepher and captures it." [17] Othoniel, son of Caleb's brother Cenez, captured it, and so Caleb gave him his daughter Achsa in marriage. [18] On the day of her marriage to Othoniel, she induced him to ask her father for some land. Then, as she alighted from the ass, Caleb asked her, "What is troubling you?" [19] She answered, "Give me an additional gift! Since you have assigned to me land in the Negeb, give me also pools of water." So he gave her the upper and the lower pools.

Cities of Juda. [20] *This is the heritage of the clans of the tribe of Judaites: [21] The cities of the tribe of the Judaites in the extreme southern district toward Edom were: Cabseel, Eder, Jagur, [22] Cina, Dimona, Adada, [23] Cades, Hasor and Jethnan; [24] Ziph, Telem, Baaloth, [25] Hasor-haddattha, and Carioth-Hesron (that is, Hasor); [26] Amam, Sama, Molada, [27] Hasar-gadda, Hassemon, Beth-Phelet, [28] Hasar-sual, Bersabee and Baziothia; [29] Baala, Iim, Esem, [30] Eltholad, Chesil, Horma, [31] Siceleg,[l] Medemena, Sensenna, [32] Lebaoth, Selhim and Ain Remmon; a total of twenty-nine cities with their villages.

[33] In the foothills:* Esthaol, Saraa, Asna, [34] Zanoe, En-gannim, Thapphua, Enaim, [35] Jerimoth, Adullam, Socho, Azeca, [36] Saaraim, Adithaim, Gadera and Gaderothaim; fourteen cities and their villages. [37] Sanan, Hadassa, Magdal-Gad, [38] Delean, Maspha, Jecthel, [39] Lachis, Bascath, Eglon, [40] Chebbon, Lehemas, Chethlis, [41] Gaderoth, Beth-Dagon, Naama and Maceda; sixteen cities and their villages. [42] Lebna, Ether, Asan, [43] Jephtha, Asna, Nesib, [44] Ceila, Achzib and Maresa; nine cities and their villages. [45] Accaron and its towns and villages; [46] from Accaron to the sea, all the towns that lie alongside Azotus, and their villages; [47] Azotus and its towns and villages; Gaza and its towns and villages, as far as the Wadi of Egypt and the coast of the Great Sea.

[48] In the mountain regions: Samir, Jether, Socchoth, [49] Danna, Cariath-senna (that is, Dabir), [50] Anab, Esthemo, Anim, [51] Gosen, Holon and Gilo; eleven cities and their villages. [52] Arab, Ruma, Esaan, [53] Janum, Beth-Thapphua, Aphec, [54] Humta, Cariath-Arbe (that is, Hebron), and Sior; nine cities and their villages. [55] Maon, Carmel, Ziph, Jetta, [56] Jezrael, Jecdaam, Zanoe, [57] Accain, Gabaa and Thamna; ten cities and their villages. [58] Halhul, Beth-Sur, Gedor, Mareth, Beth-Anoth and Elthecon; six cities and their villages. [59] Thecue, Ephratha (that is, Bethlehem), Phogor, Etam, Culom, Tatam, Sores, Karim, Gallim, Bether and

For similar lists of the cities of Juda; cf Jos 19, 2-7; 1 Par 4, 28-32; 2 Esd 11, 25-30. This list has suffered in transmission, so that the totals given in vv 32 and 36 are not exact, and some of the names are probably misspelled; many of the cities cannot be identified.

Sachacha, 62 Nebsan, Irhamelah and En-gaddi; six cities and their villages. 63 [But the Jebusites who lived in Jerusalem the Judaites could not drive out; so the Jebu-sites dwell in Jerusalem beside the Judaites to the present day.[n]]

CHAPTER 16.

The Joseph Tribes. 1 The lot that fell to the Josephites* extended from the Jordan at Jericho to the waters of Jericho east of the desert; then the boundary went up from Jericho to the heights at Bethel.*
2 Leaving Bethel for Luz, it crossed the ridge to the border of the Archites at Ataroth, 3 and descended westward to the border of the Jephletites, to that of Lower Beth-Horon, and to Gazer, ending thence at the sea.[o]

Ephraim. 4 Within the heritage of Man-asse and Ephraim, sons of Joseph, 5 the dividing line* for the heritage of the clans of the Ephraimites ran from east of Ataroth-addar to Upper Beth-Horon[p] 6 and thence to the sea. From Machmethath[q] on the north, their boundary curved eastward around Thaanath-Silo, and continued east of it to Janoe; 7 from there it descended to Ataroth and Naara, and skirting Jericho, it ended at the Jordan.
8 From Thapphua[r] the boundary ran westward to the Wadi Cana and ended at the sea. This was the heritage of the clans of the Ephraimites, 9 including the villages that belonged to each city set aside for the Ephraimites within the territory of the Manasseites.[s] 10 But they did not drive out the Chanaanites living in Gazer,[t] who live on within Ephraim to the present day, though they have been impressed as laborers.

CHAPTER 17.

Manasse. 1 Now as for the lot that fell to the tribe of Manasse[u] as the first-born of Joseph: since his eldest son, Machir, the father of Galaad, was a warrior, who had already obtained Galaad and Basan, 2 [v] the allotment was now made to the other descendants of Manasse, the clans of Abiezer, Helec, Esriel, Sichem, Hepher and Semida, the other male children of Manasse, son of Joseph.

3 Furthermore, Salphahad, son of Hepher,[w] son of Galaad, son of Machir, son of Manasse, had had no sons, but only daughters, whose names were Mahala, Noa, Hegla, Melcha, and Thersa. 4 These presented themselves to Eleazar the priest,
to Josue, son of Nun, and to the princes, saying, "The Lord commanded Moses to give us a heritage among our kinsmen."
So in obedience to the command of the Lord a heritage was given to each of them among their father's kinsmen.[x] 5 Thus ten shares fell to Manasse apart from the land of Galaad and Basan beyond the Jordan,[y] 6 since these female descendants of Ma-nasse received each a portion among his sons. The land of Galaad fell to the rest of the Manasseites.

7 Manasse bordered on Aser.* From Machmethath near Sichem, another boundary ran southward to include the natives of En-Thapphua, 8 because the district of Thapphua belonged to Ma-nasse, although Thapphua itself was an Ephraimite city on the border of Manasse.
9 This same boundary continued down to the Wadi Cana.[z] The cities that belonged to Ephraim from among the cities in Manasse were those to the south of that wadi; thus the territory of Manasse ran north of the wadi and ended at the sea.
10 The land on the south belonged to Ephraim and that on the north to Ma-nasse; with the sea as their common boundary, they reached Aser on the north and Issachar on the east.

11 [a] Moreover, in Issachar and in Aser Manasse was awarded Beth-San[b] and its towns, Jeblaam and its towns, Dor and its towns and the natives there, Endor and 16, 1–17, 18: The boundaries and cities of Juda, the most important tribe, having been given, the land of the next most important group, the two Josephite tribes of Ephraim and Manasse, is now described, though it was separated from Juda by the territories of Benjamin (Jos 18, 11-20) and Dn (Jos 19, 40-48).

16, 1-3: This line formed the southern boundary of Ephraim and the northern boundaries of Benjamin and of Dan.

16, 5: The dividing line: separating Ephraim from Manasse. Ephraim's northern border (v 5) is given in an east-to-west direction; its eastern border (v 6f) in a north-to-south direction.

17, 7: Manasse bordered on Aser: only at the extreme northwestern section of Manasse's territory. The boundary given in the following sentences (vv 7-10) is a more detailed description of the one already mentioned in Jos 16, 5ff, as separating Manasse from Ephraim.

its towns and natives, Thaanach and its towns and natives, and Mageddo and its towns and natives [the third is Naphath-Dor.] 12 Since the Manasseites could not conquer these cities, the Chanaanites persisted in this region. 13 When the Israelites grew stronger they impressed the Chanaanites as laborers, but they did not drive them out.

Protest of Joseph Tribes. 14 The descendants of Joseph said to Josue, "Why have you given us only one lot and one share as our heritage? [c] Our people are too many, because of the extent to which the Lord has blessed us." 15 Josue answered them, "If you are too many, go up to the forest and clear out a place for yourselves there in the land of the Pherezites and Raphaim, since the mountain regions of Ephraim are so narrow." 16 For the Josephites said, "Our mountain regions are not enough for us; on the other hand, the Chanaanites living in the valley region all have iron chariots, in particular those in Beth-San and its towns, and those in the valley of Jezrael." [d] 17 Josue therefore said to Ephraim and Manasse, the house of Joseph, "You are a numerous people and very strong. You shall have not merely one share, 18 for the mountain region which is now forest shall be yours when you clear it. Its adjacent land shall also be yours if, despite their strength and iron chariots, you drive out the Chanaanites."

CHAPTER 18.

1 After they had subdued the land, the whole community of the Israelites assembled at Silo, where they set up the Meeting Tent.[e]

The Seven Remaining Portions. 2 Seven tribes among the Israelites had not yet received their heritage. 3 Josue therefore said to the Israelites, "How much longer will you put off taking steps to possess the land which the Lord, the God of your fathers, has given you? 4 Choose three men from each of your tribes; I will commission them to begin a survey of the land, which they shall describe for purposes of inheritance. 5 [f] When they return to me, you shall divide it into seven parts. Juda is to retain its territory in the south, and the house of Joseph its territory in the north. 6 You shall bring here to me the description of the land in seven sections. I will then cast lots for you here before the Lord, our God. 7 For the Levites have no share among you,[g] because the priesthood of the Lord is their heritage; while Gad, Ruben, and the half-tribe of Manasse have already received the heritage east of the Jordan which Moses, the servant of the Lord, gave them."

8 When those who were to map out the land were ready for the journey, Josue instructed them to survey the land, prepare a description of it, and return to him; then he would cast lots for them there before the Lord in Silo. 9 So they went through the land, listed its cities in writing in seven sections, and returned to Josue in the camp at Silo. 10 Josue then divided up the land for the Israelites into their separate shares, casting lots for them before the Lord in Silo.

Benjamin. 11 One lot fell to the clans of the tribe of Benjaminites. The territory allotted them lay between the descendants of Juda and those of Joseph. 12 Their northern boundary* began at the Jordan and went over the northern flank of Jericho,[h] up westward into the mountains, till it reached the desert of Beth-Aven. 13 From there it crossed over to the southern flank of Luza (that is, Bethel). Then it ran down to Ataroth-addar, on the mountaintop south of Lower Beth-Horon.[i] 14 For the western border, the boundary line swung south from the mountaintop opposite Beth-Horon till it reached Cariath-Baal (that is, Cariath-jarim), which city belonged to the Judaites. This was the western boundary. 15 The southern boundary began at the limits of Cariath-jarim and projected to the spring at Nephthoa. 16 It went down to the edge of the mountain on the north of the valley of Raphaim, where it faces the valley of Ben-Hennom; and continuing down the valley of Hennom along the southern flank of the Jebusites, reached En-Rogel.[j] 17 Inclining to the north, it extended to En-Sames, and thence to Galiloth, opposite the pass of Adommim. Then it dropped to Eben-Boen-ben-Ruben, [18] across the northern flank of the Araba overlook, down into the Araba.[k] [19] From there the boundary continued across the northern flank of Beth-Hagla and extended to the northern tip of the Salt Sea, at the southern end of the Jordan. This was the southern boundary. [20] The Jordan bounded it on the east. This was how the heritage of the clans of the Benjaminites was bounded on all sides.

Their southern boundary (vv 15-19) corresponded to part of the northern boundary of Juda (Jos 15, 6-9).

[21] Now the cities belonging to the clans of the tribe of the Benjaminites were: Jericho, Beth-Hagla, Emec-Casis, [22] Beth-Araba, Samaraim, Bethel, [23] Avvim, Phara, Ophera, [24] Chephar-Ammoni, Ophni and Gaba; twelve cities and their villages. [25] Also Gabaon, Rama, Beroth, [26] Maspha, Chephira, Mosa, [27] Recem, Jerphael, Tharala, [28] Sela, Eleph, the Jebusite city (that is, Jerusalem), Gabaath and Cariath; fourteen cities and their villages. This was the heritage of the clans of Benjaminites.

CHAPTER 19.

Simeon. [1] The second lot fell to Simeon. The heritage of the clans of the tribe of Simeonites lay within that of the Judaites. [2] l For their heritage they received Bersabee, Sama, Molada, [3] Hasar-sual, Balaa, Asem, [4] Eltholad, Bethul, Horma, [5] Siceleg, Bethmar-chaboth, Hasar-Susa, [6] Beth-Lebaoth and Sarohen; thirteen cities and their villages. [7] Also Ain, Remmon, Ether and Asan; four cities and their villages, [8] besides all the villages around these cities as far as Baalath-Beer (that is, Ramoth-negeb). This was the heritage of the clans of the tribe of the Simeonites. [9] This heritage of the Simeonites was within the confines of the Judaites; for since the portion of the latter was too large for them, the Simeonites obtained their heritage within it.

Zabulon. [10] *The third lot fell to the clans of the Zabulonites. The limit of their heritage was at Sarid. [11] Their boundary went up west . . . and through Marala, reaching Debbaseth and the wadi that is near Jecnaam. [12] From Sarid eastward it ran to the district of Chaseleth-Thabor, on to Dabereth, and up to Japhia. [13] From there it continued eastward to Geth-hepher and to Eth-Casin, extended to Remmon, and turned to Noa. [14] Skirting north of Hannathon, the boundary ended at the valley of Jephthael. [15] Thus, with Cateth, Naalol, Semeron, Jedala and Bethlehem, there were twelve cities and their villages [16] to comprise the heritage of the clans of the Zabulonites.

Issachar. [17] *The fourth lot fell to Issachar. The territory of the clans of the Issacharites [18] included Jesrael, Chasaloth, Sunem, [19] Hapharaim, Seon, Anaharath, [20] Rabboth, Cesion, Abes, [21] Ramoth, Engannim and Beth-Phasses. [22] The boundary reached Thabor, Sehesima and Beth-Sames, ending at the Jordan. These sixteen cities and their villages [23] were the heritage of the clans of the Issacharites.

Aser. [24] *The fifth lot fell to the clans of the tribe of the Aserites. [25] Their territory included Halcath, Chale, Beten, Achsaph, [26] Elmelech, Amaad and Messal, and reached Carmel on the west, and Sihor-Labanath. [27] In the other direction, it ran eastward of Beth-Dagon, reached Zabulon and the valley of Jephthael; then north of Beth-Emec and Neiel, it extended to Cabul, [28] Masal, Abdon, Rohob,[m] Hammon and Cana, near Greater Sidon. [29] Then the boundary turned back to Rama and to the fortress city of Tyre; thence it cut back to Hosa and ended at the sea. Thus, with Mahaleb, Achzib, [30] Amma, Aphec and Rohob, there were twenty-two cities and their villages [31] to comprise the heritage of the clans of the tribe of the Aserites.

Nephthali. [32] *The sixth lot fell to the k Jos 15, 6.—l 1 Par 4, 28-33.—m Jgs 1, 31.

19, 10-16: Zabulon's territory was in the central section of the Plain of Esdraelon and of southern Galilee; it was bounded on the south by Manasse, on the southeast by Issachar, on the northeast and north by Nephthali, and on the west by Aser. The site of the later city of Nazareth was within its borders. Bethlehem of Zabulon was, of course, distinct from the city of the same name in Juda. Twelve cities: apparently seven of the names are missing from v 15, unless some of the places mentioned in vv 12-14 are to be included in the number.

19, 17-23: Issachar's land was on the eastern watershed of the Plain of Esdraelon, but also included the southeastern end of the Galilean mountains. It was surrounded by Manasse on the south and east, by Nephthali on the north, and by Zabulon on the west. Jesrael (v 18) dominated the plain to which it gave its name, the later form of which was Esdraelon.

19, 24-31: Aser inherited the western slope of the Galilean hills as far as the sea, with Manasse to the south, Zabulon and Nephthali to the east, and Phoenicia to the north.

19, 32-39: Nephthali received eastern Galilee; Aser was to the west and Zabulon and Issachar were to the south, while the upper Jordan and Mount Hermon formed the eastern border. Part of the tribe of Dan later on occupied the northern extremity of Nephthali's lands, at the sources of the Jordan (v 47).

Nephthalites. The boundary of the clans of the Nephthalites [33] extended from Heleph, from the oak at Saananim to Lecum, including Adami-Neceb and Jebneel, and ended at the Jordan. [34] In the opposite direction, westerly, it ran through Aznoth-Thabor and from there extended to Hucoc; it touched Zabulon on the south, Aser on the west, and the Jordan on the east. [35] The fortified cities were Seddim, Ser, Hamath, Reccath, Chenereth, [36] Adama, Rama, Hasor, [37] Cedes, Edrai, En-Hasor, [38] Jeron, Magdal-El, Horem, Beth-Anath and Beth-Sames;[n] nineteen cities and their villages, [39] to comprise the heritage of the clans of the tribe of the Nephthalites.

Dan. [40] The seventh lot fell to the clans of the tribe of Danites. [41] Their heritage was the territory of Saraa, Esthaol, Ir-Sames, [42] Saalebim, Aialon, Jethla,[o] [43] Elon, Thamna, Acron, [44] Eltheco, Gebbethon, Baalath, [45] Jud, Bene-Barac, Geth-Remmon, [46] Me-Jarcon and Reccon, with the coast at Joppe. [47] [p] But the territory of the Danites was too small for them; so the Danites marched up and attacked Lesem, which they captured and put to the sword. Once they had taken possession of Lesem, they renamed the settlement after their ancestor Dan. [48] These cities and their villages were the heritage of the clans of the tribe of the Danites.

Josue's City. [49] When the last of them had received the portions of the land they were to inherit, the Israelites assigned a heritage in their midst to Josue, son of Nun. [50] In obedience to the command of the Lord, they gave him the city which he requested, Thamnath-Sare[q] in the mountain region of Ephraim. He rebuilt the city and made it his home.

[51] These are the final portions into which Eleazar the priest, Josue, son of Nun, and the heads of families in the tribes of the Israelites divided the land by lot in the presence of the Lord, at the door of the Meeting Tent in Silo.

CHAPTER 20.

Cities of Asylum. [1] The Lord said to Josue:* [2] "Tell the Israelites to designate the cities of which I spoke to them through Moses,[r] [3] to which one guilty of accidental and unintended homicide may flee for asylum from the avenger of blood. [4] [s] To one of these cities the killer shall flee, and standing at the entrance of the city gate, he shall plead his case before the elders, who must receive him and assign him a place in which to live among them. [5] Though the avenger of blood pursues him, they are not to deliver up the homicide who slew his fellow man unintentionally and not out of previous hatred. [6] Once he has stood judgment before the community, he shall live on in that city till the death of the high priest who is in office at the time. Then the killer may go back home to his own city from which he fled." [t]

List of Cities. [7] So they set apart Cedes in Galilee in the mountain region of Nephthali, Sichem in the mountain region of Ephraim, and Cariath-Arbe (that is, Hebron) in the mountain region of Juda.[u] [8] And beyond the Jordan east of Jericho they designated Bosor on the open tableland in the tribe of Ruben, Ramoth in Galaad in the tribe of Gad, and Golan in Basan in the tribe of Manasse.[v] [9] These were the designated cities[w] to which any Israelite or stranger living among them who had killed a person accidentally might flee to escape death at the hand of the avenger of blood, until he could appear before the community.

CHAPTER 21.

Levitical Cities. [1] The heads of the Levite families* came up to Eleazar the priest, to Josue, son of Nun, and to the heads of families of the other tribes of the Israelites[x] [2] at Silo in the land of Chanaan, and said to them, "The Lord commanded, through Moses, that cities be given us to dwell in, with pasture lands for our livestock." [y] [3] Out of their own heritage, in obedience to this command of the Lord, the Israelites gave the Levites the following cities with their pasture lands.

21, 1: The order to establish special cities for the Levites is given in Nm 35, 1-8. The forty-eight cities listed here were hardly the exclusive possession of the Levites; at least the more important of them, such as Hebron, Sichem and Ramoth in Galaad, were certainly peopled for the most part by the tribe in whose territory they were situated. But in all these cities the Levites had special property rights which they did not possess in other cities; cf Lv 25, 32ff.

[4] When the first lot among the Levites fell to the clans of the Caathites, the descendants of Aaron the priest obtained thirteen cities by lot from the tribes of Juda, Simeon and Benjamin. [5] The rest of the Caathites obtained ten cities by lot from the clans of the tribe of Ephraim, from the tribe of Dan, and from the half-tribe of Manasse. [6] The Gersonites obtained thirteen cities by lot from the clans of the tribe of Issachar, from the tribe of Aser, from the tribe of Nephthali, and from the half-tribe of Manasse. [7] The clans of the Merarites obtained twelve cities from the tribes of Ruben, Gad and Zabulon. [8] These cities with their pasture lands the Israelites allotted to the Levites in obedience to the Lord's command through Moses.[z]

Cities of the Priests. [9] [a] From the tribes of the Judaites and Simeonites they designated the following cities, [10] and assigned them to the descendants of Aaron in the Caathite clan of the Levites, since the first lot fell to them: [11] first, Cariath-Arbe (Arbe was the father of Enac), that is, Hebron, in the mountain region of Juda, with the adjacent pasture lands, [12] although the open country and villages belonging to the city had been given to Caleb, son of Jephonne,[b] as his property. [13] Thus to the descendants of Aaron the priest were given the city of asylum for homicides at Hebron, with its pasture lands; also, Lobna with its pasture lands, [14] Jether with its pasture lands, Esthemo with its pasture lands, [15] Holon with its pasture lands, Dabir with its pasture lands, [16] Asan with its pasture lands, Jetta with its pasture lands, and Beth-Sames with its pasture lands: nine cities from the two tribes mentioned. [17] From the tribe of Benjamin they obtained the four cities of Gabaon with its pasture lands, Gaba with its pasture lands, [18] Anathoth [c] with its pasture lands, and Almon with its pasture lands. [19] These cities which with their pasture lands belonged to the priestly descendants of Aaron were thirteen in all.

Cities of the Other Caathites. [20] [d] The rest of the Caathite clans among the Levites obtained by lot, from the tribe of Ephraim, four cities. [21] They were assigned, with its pasture lands, the city of asylum for homicides at Sichem in the mountain region of Ephraim; also Gazer with its pasture lands, [22] Cibsaim with its pasture lands, and Beth-Horon with its pasture lands. [23] From the tribe of Dan they obtained the four cities of Eltheco with its pasture lands, Gebbethon with its pasture lands, [24] Aialon with its pasture lands, and Geth-Remmon with its pasture lands; [25] and from the half-tribe of Manasse the two cities of Thaanach with its pasture lands and Jeblaam with its pasture lands. [26] These cities which with their pasture lands belonged to the rest of the Caathite clans were ten in all.

Cities of the Gersonites. [27] [e] The Gersonite clan of the Levites received from the half-tribe of Manasse two cities: the city of asylum for homicides at Golan, with its pasture lands; and also Beth-Astharoth with its pasture lands. [28] From the tribe of Issachar they obtained the four cities of Cesion with its pasture lands, Dabereth with its pasture lands, [29] Jerimoth with its pasture lands, and Engannim with its pasture lands; [30] from the tribe of Aser, the four cities of Messal with its pasture lands, Abdon with its pasture lands, [31] Halcath with its pasture lands, and Rohob with its pasture lands; and from the tribe of Nephthali, three cities: [32] the city of asylum for homicides at Cedes in Galilee, with its pasture lands; also Emath with its pasture lands, and Reccath with its pasture lands. [33] These cities which with their pasture lands belonged to the Gersonite clans were thirteen in all.

Cities of the Merarites. [34] [f] The Merarite clans, the last of the Levites, received from the tribe of Zabulon the four cities of Jecnaam with its pasture lands, Cartha with its pasture lands, [35] Remmon with its pasture lands, and Naalol with its pasture lands; [36] also, across the Jordan, from the tribe of Ruben, four cities: the city of asylum for homicides at Bosor with its pasture lands, Jahas with its pasture lands, [37] Cedemoth with its pasture lands, and Mephaath with its pasture lands; [38] and from the tribe of Gad a total of four cities: the city of asylum for homicides at Ramoth in Galaad with its pasture lands, also Mahanaim with its pasture lands, [39] Hesebon with its pasture lands, and Jazer with its pasture lands. [40] The cities which were allotted to the Merarite clans, the last of the Levites, were therefore twelve in all.

[41] Thus the total number of cities [g] within the territory of the Israelites which, with their pasture lands, belonged to the Levites, was forty-eight. [42] With each and every one of these cities went the pasture lands round about it.

[43] And so the Lord gave Israel all the land he had sworn to their fathers he would give them.[h] Once they had conquered and occupied it, [44] the Lord gave them peace on every side, just as he had promised their fathers. Not one of their enemies could withstand them; the Lord brought all their enemies under their power. [45] Not a single promise [i] that the Lord made to the house of Israel was broken; every one was fulfilled.

III: RETURN OF THE TRANSJORDAN TRIBES AND JOSUE'S FAREWELL

CHAPTER 22.

The Eastern Tribes Dismissed. [1] At that time Josue summoned the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse [2] and said to them: [j] "You have done all that Moses, the servant of the Lord, commanded you, and have obeyed every command I gave you. [3] For many years now you have not once abandoned your kinsmen, but have faithfully carried out the commands of the Lord, your God. [4] Since, therefore, the Lord, your God, has settled your kinsmen as he promised them, you may now return to your tents beyond the Jordan; to your own land, which Moses, the servant of the Lord, gave you.[k] [5] But be very careful to observe the precept and Law which Moses, the servant of the Lord, enjoined upon you: love the Lord, your God; [l] follow him faithfully; keep his commandments; remain loyal to him; and serve him with your whole heart and soul." [6] Josue then blessed them and sent them away to their own tents.

[7] (For, to half the tribe of Manasse Moses had assigned land in Basan; [m] and to the other half Josue had given a portion along with their kinsmen west of the Jordan.) What Josue said to them when he sent them off to their tents with his blessing was, [8] "Now that you are returning to your own tents with great wealth, with very numerous livestock, with silver, gold, bronze and iron, and with a very large supply of clothing, divide these spoils of your enemies with your kinsmen there." [n] [9] So the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse left the other Israelites at Silo in the land of Chanaan and returned to the land of Galaad, their own property, which they had received according to the Lord's command through Moses.[o]

The Altar beside the Jordan. [10] When the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse came to the region of the Jordan in the land of Chanaan, they built there at the Jordan a conspicuously large altar. [11] The other Israelites heard the report [p] that the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse had built an altar in the region of the Jordan facing the land of Chanaan,* across from them, [12] and therefore they assembled their whole community at Silo to declare war on them.*

Accusation of the Western Tribes. [13] First, however, they sent to the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse in the land of Galaad an embassy consisting of Phinees, son of Eleazar the priest,[q] [14] and ten princes, one from every tribe of Israel, each one being both prince and military leader of his ancestral house. [15] When these came to the Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse in the land of Galaad, they said to them: [16] [r] "The whole community of the Lord sends this message: What act of treachery is this you have committed against the 22, 11: In the region of the Jordan facing the land of Chanaan: on the eastern side of the Jordan valley. The river itself formed the boundary between these eastern tribes and the rest of the tribes who lived in what was formerly Chanaan—though the term Chanaan could also be used of both sides of the Jordan valley (cf v 10). The Transjordan tribes naturally built their altar in their own territory.

22, 12: To declare war on them: the western Israelites considered this altar, which seemed to violate the customary unity of the sanctuary (cf Lv 17, 1-9; Dt 12, 4-14), as a sign of secession and dangerous to national unity. The motives for the war were political as well as religious.

God of Israel? You have seceded from the Lord this day, and rebelled against him by building an altar of your own! 17 For the sin of Phogor, a plague came upon the community of the Lord.[s] 18 We are still not free of that; must you now add to it? You are rebelling against the Lord today and by tomorrow he will be angry with the whole community of Israel! 19 If you consider the land you now possess unclean,* cross over to the land the Lord possesses, where the Dwelling of the Lord stands,[t] and share that with us. But do not rebel against the Lord, nor involve us in rebellion, by building an altar of your own in addition to the altar of the Lord, our God. 20 When Achan, son of Zara,[u] violated the ban, did not wrath fall upon the entire community of Israel? Though he was but a single man, he did not perish alone* for his guilt!"

Reply of the Eastern Tribes. 21 The Rubenites, the Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manasse replied to the military leaders of the Israelites: "The Lord is the God of gods. 22 The Lord, the God of gods,* knows and Israel shall know. If now we have acted out of rebellion or treachery against the Lord, our God, 23 and if we have built an altar of our own to secede from the Lord, or to offer holocausts, grain offerings or peace offerings upon it, the Lord himself will exact the penalty. 24 We did it rather out of our anxious concern lest in the future your children should say to our children: 'What have you to do with the Lord, the God of Israel? 25 For the Lord has placed the Jordan as a boundary between you and us. You descendants of Ruben and Gad have no share in the Lord.' Thus your children would prevent ours from reverring the Lord. 26 So we decided to guard our interests by building this altar of our own: not for holocausts or for sacrifices, 27 [v] but as evidence for you on behalf of ourselves and our descendants, that we have the right to worship the Lord in his presence with our holocausts, sacrifices, and peace offerings. Now in the future your children cannot say to our children, 'You have no share in the Lord.' 28 Our thought was, that if in the future they should speak thus to us or to our descendants, we could answer: 'Look at the model of the altar of the Lord which our fathers made, not for holocausts or for sacrifices, but to witness* between you and us.' 29 Far be it from us to rebel against the Lord or to secede now from the Lord by building an altar for holocaust, grain offering, or sacrifice in addition to the altar of the Lord, our God, which stands before his Dwelling."

30 When Phinees the priest and the princes of the community, the military leaders of the Israelites, heard what the Rubenites, the Gadites and the Manasseites had to say, they were satisfied. 31 Phinees, son of Eleazar the priest, said to the Rubenites, the Gadites and the Manasseites, "Now we know that the Lord is with us. Since you have not committed this act of treachery against the Lord, you have kept the Israelites free from punishment by the Lord."

32 Phinees, son of Eleazar the priest, and the princes returned from the Rubenites and the Gadites in the land of Galaad to the Israelites in the land of Chanaan, and reported the matter to them. 33 The report satisfied the Israelites, who blessed God and decided against declaring war on the Rubenites and Gadites or ravaging the land they occupied.

34 The Rubenites and the Gadites gave the altar its name* as a witness among them that the Lord is God.

CHAPTER 23.

Josue's Final Plea. 1 Many years later, after the Lord had given the Israelites rest from all their enemies round about them, and when Josue was old and advanced in years,[w] 2 he summoned all Israel (including their elders, leaders, judges and officers) and said to them: "I am old and advanced in years. 3 You

22, 19: Unclean: not sanctified by the Dwelling of the Lord.

22, 20: Achan . . . did not perish alone: his guilt caused the failure of the first attack on Hai (Jos 7, 4-23); this fact is adduced as an argument for the solidarity and responsibility of all the Israelites.

22, 22: The Lord, the God of gods: the Hebrew, which cannot be adequately rendered in English here, adds to the divine name Yahweh ("the Lord") two synonymous words for "God," elohim and el. The repetition of these three sacred words adds force to the protestations of fidelity and innocence.

have seen all that the Lord, your God, has done for you against all these nations; for it has been the Lord, your God, himself who fought for you. 4 [x] Bear in mind that I have apportioned among your tribes as their heritage the nations that survive [as well as those I destroyed] between the Jordan and the Great Sea in the west. 5 The Lord, your God, will drive them out and dislodge them at your approach, so that you will take possession of their land as the Lord, your God, promised you. 6 Therefore strive hard to observe and carry out all that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, not straying from it in any way,[y] 7 or mingling with these nations while they survive among you. You must not invoke their gods, or swear by them, or serve them, or worship them,[z] 8 but you must remain loyal to the Lord, your God, as you have been to this day. 9 At your approach the Lord has driven out large and strong nations, and to this day no one has withstood you. 10 One of you puts to flight a thousand, because it is the Lord, your God, himself who fights for you,[a] as he promised you. 11 Take great care, however, to love the Lord, your God. 12 For if you ever abandon him and ally yourselves with the remnant of these nations while they survive among you, by intermarrying and intermingling with them,[b] 13 know for certain that the Lord, your God, will no longer drive these nations out of your way. Instead they will be a snare and a trap for you, a scourge for your sides and thorns for your eyes, until you perish from this good land which the Lord, your God, has given you.

14 "Today, as you see, I am going the way of all men.* So now acknowledge with your whole heart and soul that not one of all the promises the Lord, your God, made to you has remained unfulfilled. Every promise has been fulfilled for you, with not one single exception. 15 [c] But just as every promise the Lord, your God, made to you has been fulfilled for you, so will he fulfill every threat,* even so far as to exterminate you from this good land which the Lord, your God, has given you. 16 If you transgress the covenant of the Lord, your God, which he enjoined on you, serve other gods and worship them, the anger of the Lord will flare up against you and you will quickly perish from the good land which he has given you."

CHAPTER 24.

Reminder of the Divine Goodness. 1 Josue gathered together all the tribes of Israel at Sichem, summoning their elders, their leaders, their judges and their officers. When they stood in ranks before God, 2 Josue addressed all the people: "Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: In times past your fathers, down to Thare,[d] father of Abraham and Nahor, dwelt beyond the River* and served other gods. 3 But I brought your father Abraham from the region beyond the River and led him through the entire land of Chanaan.[e] I made his descendants numerous, and gave him Isaac. 4 To Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau.[f] To Esau I assigned the mountain region of Seir in which to settle, while Jacob and his children went down to Egypt.

5 "Then I sent Moses and Aaron, and smote Egypt with the prodigies which I wrought in her midst.[g] 6 Afterward I led you out of Egypt, and when you reached the sea, the Egyptians pursued your fathers to the Red Sea with chariots and horsemen.[h] 7 Because they cried out to the Lord,[i] he put darkness between your people and the Egyptians, upon whom he brought the sea so that it engulfed them. After you witnessed what I did to Egypt, and dwelt a long time in the desert, 8 [j] I brought you into the land of the Amorrites who lived east of the Jordan. They fought against you, but I delivered them into your power. You took possession of their land, and I destroyed them [the two kings of the Amorrites] before you. 9 [k] Then Balac, son of Sepphor, king of Moab, prepared to war against Israel. He summoned Balaam, son of Beor, to curse you; 10 [l] but I would not listen to Balaam. On the contrary, he had to bless you and I saved you from him. 11 Once you crossed the Jordan [m] and came to Jericho, the men of Jericho fought against you, but I delivered them also into your power. 12 And I sent the hornets* ahead of you which drove them [the Amorrites, Pherezites, Chanaanites, Hethites, Gergesites, Hevites and Jebusites] out of your way; it was not your sword or your bow.[n]

13 "I gave you a land which you had not tilled and cities which you had not built, to dwell in; you have eaten of vineyards and olive groves which you did not plant.[o]

14 [p] "Now, therefore, fear the Lord and serve him completely and sincerely. Cast out the gods your fathers served beyond the River and in Egypt, and serve the Lord. 15 [q] If it does not please you to serve the Lord, decide today whom you will serve, the gods your fathers served* beyond the River or the gods of the Amorrites in whose country you are dwelling. As for me and my household, we will serve the Lord."

Renewal of the Covenant. 16 But the people answered, "Far be it from us to forsake the Lord for the service of other gods. 17 For it was the Lord, our God, who brought us and our fathers up out of the land of Egypt, out of a state of slavery. He performed those great miracles before our very eyes and protected us along our entire journey and among all the peoples through whom we passed. 18 At our approach the Lord drove out [all the peoples, including] the Amorrites who dwelt in the land. Therefore we also will serve the Lord, for he is our God."

19 Josue in turn said to the people, "You may not be able* to serve the Lord, for he is a holy God; he is a jealous God [r] who will not forgive your transgressions or your sins. 20 If, after the good he has done for you, you forsake the Lord and serve strange gods, he will do evil to you and destroy you."

21 But the people answered Josue, "We will still serve the Lord." 22 Josue therefore said to the people, "You are your own witnesses that you have chosen to serve the Lord." They replied, "We are, indeed!" 23 "Now, therefore, put away the strange gods that are among you and turn your hearts to the Lord, the God of Israel." 24 Then the people promised Josue, "We will serve the Lord, our God, and obey his voice."

25 So Josue made a covenant with the people that day and made statutes and ordinances for them at Sichem, 26 which he recorded in the Book of the Law of God. Then he took a large stone and set it up there under the oak that was in the sanctuary of the Lord.[s] 27 And Josue said to all the people, "This stone shall be our witness,[t] for it has heard all the words which the Lord spoke to us. It shall be a witness against you, should you wish to deny your God." 28 Then Josue dismissed the people, each to his own heritage.[u]

Death of Josue. 29 [v] After these events Josue, son of Nun, servant of the Lord, died at the age of a hundred and ten. 30 He was buried within the limits of his heritage at Thamnath-Sare [w] in the mountain region of Ephraim north of Mount Gaas. 31 Israel served the Lord during the entire lifetime of Josue and that of the elders who outlived Josue and knew all that the Lord had done for Israel. 32 [x] The bones of Joseph,* which the Israelites had brought up from Egypt, were buried in Sichem in the plot of ground Jacob had bought from the sons of Hemor, father of Sichem, for a hundred pieces of money. This was a heritage of the descendants of Joseph. 33 When Eleazar, son of Aaron, also died, he was buried on the hill which had been given to his son Phinees [y] in the mountain region of Ephraim.

THE BOOK OF JUDGES

The Book of Judges derives its title from the twelve heroes of Israel whose deeds it records. They were not magistrates, but military leaders sent by God to aid and to relieve His people in time of external danger. They exercised their activities in the interval of time between the death of Josue and the institution of the monarchy in Israel. Six of them—Othoniel, Aod, Barac, Gedeon, Jephte and Samson — are treated in some detail and have accordingly been styled the Major Judges. The other six, of whose activities this book preserves but a summary record, are called the Minor Judges. There were two other judges, whose judgeships are described in 1 Samuel — Heli and Samuel, who seem to have ruled the entire nation of Israel just before the institution of the monarchy. The twelve judges of the present book, however, very probably exercised their authority, sometimes simultaneously, over one or another tribe of Israel, never over the entire nation.

The purpose of the book is to show that the fortunes of Israel depended upon the obedience or disobedience of the people to God's Law. Whenever they rebelled against Him, they were oppressd by pagan nations; when they repented, He raised up judges to deliver them (cf Jgs 2, 10-23).

The accounts of various events, whether written shortly after their occurrence or orally transmitted, were later skillfully unified according to the moral purpose of the redactor sometime during the Israelite monarchy.

The book is divided as follows: I. Palestine after the Death of Josue (Jgs 1, 1—3, 6). II. Stories of the Judges (Jgs 3, 7—16, 31). III. The Tribes of Dan and Benjamin in the Days of the Judges (Jgs 17, 1—21, 25).

I: PALESTINE AFTER THE DEATH OF JOSUE

CHAPTER 1.

Pagan Survivors in Palestine. 1 After the death of Josue* the Israelites consulted the Lord, asking, "Who shall be first among us to attack the Chanaanites and to do battle with them?" [a] 2 The Lord answered, "Juda shall attack: I have delivered the land into his power." 3 Juda then said to his brother Simeon, "Come up with me into the territory allotted to me, and let us engage the Chanaanites in battle. I will likewise accompany you into the territory allotted to you." So Simeon went with him.

4 When the forces of Juda attacked, the Lord delivered the Chanaanites and Pherezites into their power, and they slew ten thousand of them in Bezec. 5 It was in Bezec that they came upon Adonibezec and fought against him. When they defeated the Chanaanites and Pherezites, 6 Adonibezec fled. They set out in pursuit, and when they caught him, cut off his thumbs and his big toes. 7 At this Adonibezec said, "Seventy kings, with their thumbs and big toes cut off, used to pick up scraps under my table. As I have done, so has God repaid me." He was brought to Jerusalem, and there he died. 8 [The Judaites fought against Jerusalem and captured it, putting it to the sword; then they destroyed the city by fire.]

9 [b] Afterward the Judaites went down to fight against the Chanaanites who lived in the mountain region, in the Negeb, and in the foothills. 10 [c] Juda also marched against the Chanaanites who dwelt in Hebron, which was formerly called Cariath-Arbe, and defeated Sesai, Ahiman and Tholmai.[d] 11 From there they marched against the inhabitants of Dabir, which was formerly called Cariath-sepher. 12 And Caleb said, "I will give my daughter Achsa in marriage to the one who attacks Cariath-sepher and captures it." 13 [e] Othoniel, son of Caleb's younger brother Cenez, captured it; so Caleb gave him his daughter Achsa in marriage. 14 On the day of her marriage to Othoniel she induced him to ask her father for some land. Then, as she alighted from the ass, Caleb asked her "What is troubling you?"

1, 1-36: This chapter summarizes events most of which occurred shortly after the death of Josue. Perhaps because they were planned and inaugurated by him, they are also attributed to him in the last half of the preceding book (Jos 14—22).

15 "Give me an additional gift," she answered. "Since you have assigned land in the Negeb to me, give me also pools of water." So Caleb gave her the upper and the lower pool. 16 *The descendants of the Cinite, Moses' father-in-law, came up with the Judaites from the city of palms to the desert at Arad [which is in the Negeb]. But they later left and settled among the Amalecites.[f]

17 [g] Juda then went with his brother Simeon, and they defeated the Chanaanites who dwelt in Sephath. After having doomed the city to destruction, they renamed it Horma. 18 [h] Juda, however, did not occupy Gaza with its territory, Ascalon with its territory, or Accaron with its territory. 19 [i] Since the Lord was with Juda, he gained possession of the mountain region. Yet he could not dislodge those who lived on the plain, because they had iron chariots. 20 As Moses had commanded, Hebron was given to Caleb, who then drove from it the three sons of Enac.[j]

21 *The Benjaminites did not dislodge the Jebusites who dwelt in Jerusalem, with the result that the Jebusites live in Jerusalem beside the Benjaminites to the present day.[k]

22 The house of Joseph, too, marched up against Bethel, and the Lord was with them. 23 The house of Joseph had a reconnaissance made of Bethel, which formerly was called Luza.[l] 24 The scouts saw a man coming out of the city and said to him, "Show us a way into the city, and we will spare you." 25 He showed them a way into the city, which they then put to the sword; but they let the man and his whole clan go free. 26 He then went to the land of the Hethites, where he built a city and called it Luza, as it is still called.

27 Manasse did not take possession of Beth-San with its towns or of Thaanach with its towns. Neither did he dislodge the inhabitants of Dor and its towns, those of Jeblaam and its towns, or those of Mageddo and its towns.[m] The Chanaanites kept their hold in this district. 28 When the Israelites grew stronger, they impressed the Chanaanites as laborers, but did not drive them out. 29 Similarly, the Ephraimites did not drive out the Chanaanites living in Gezer, and so the Chanaanites live in Gezer in their midst.[n]

30 Zabulon did not dislodge the inhabitants of Cetron or those of Naalol; the Chanaanites live among them, but have become forced laborers.

31 [o] Nor did Aser drive out the inhabitants of Accho or those of Sidon, or take possession of Mahaleb, Achzib, Helba, Aphec or Rohob. 32 The Aserites live among the Chanaanite natives of the land, whom they have not dislodged.

33 [p] Nephthali did not drive out the inhabitants of Beth-Sames or those of Beth-Anath, and so they live among the Chanaanite natives of the land. However, the inhabitants of Beth-Sames and Beth-Anath have become forced laborers for them.

34 The Amorrites hemmed in the Danites in the mountain region, not permitting them to go down into the plain.[q] 35 The Amorrites had a firm hold in Har-Hares, Aialon and Saalebim, but as the house of Joseph gained the upper hand, they were impressed as laborers.

36 The territory of the Amorrites extended from the Acrabbim pass to Sela and beyond.

CHAPTER 2.

Infidelities of the Israelites. 1 An angel of the Lord went up from Galgal to Bochim and said, "It was I who brought you up from Egypt and led you into the land which I promised on oath to your fathers. I said that I would never break my covenant with you, 2 [r] but that you were not to make a pact with the inhabitants of this land, and you were to pull down their altars. Yet you have not obeyed me.[s] What did you mean by this? 3 For now I tell you, I will not clear them out of your way; they shall oppose you and their gods shall become a snare for you." [t]

4 When the angel of the Lord had made these threats to all the Israelites, the people wept aloud; 5 and so that place came to be called Bochim.* They offered sacrifice there to the Lord.

6 [u] When Josue dismissed the people,

each Israelite went to take possession of his own hereditary land. 7 The people served the Lord during the entire lifetime of Josue, and of those elders who outlived Josue and who had seen all the great work which the Lord had done for Israel. 8 Josue, son of Nun, the servant of the Lord, was a hundred and ten years old when he died; 9 and they buried him within the borders of his heritage at Thamnath-Sare in the mountain region of Ephraim north of Mount Gaas.v

10 But once the rest of that generation were gathered to their fathers, and a later generation arose that did not know the Lord, or what he had done for Israel, 11 the Israelites offended the Lord by serving the Baals.* 12 Abandoning the Lord, the God of their fathers, who had led them out of the land of Egypt, they followed the other gods of the various nations around them, and by their worship of these gods provoked the Lord.

13 Because they had thus abandoned him and served Baal and the Astharthes,* 14 the anger of the Lord flared up against Israel, and he delivered them over to plunderers who despoiled them. He allowed them to fall into the power of their enemies round about whom they were no longer able to withstand.w 15 Whatever they undertook, the Lord turned into disaster for them, as in his warning he had sworn he would do, till they were in great distress.x 16 Even when the Lord raised up judges to deliver them from the power of their despoilers, 17 they did not listen to their judges, but abandoned themselves to the worship of other gods. They were quick to stray from the way their fathers had taken, and did not follow their example of obedience to the commandments of the Lord. 18 Whenever the Lord raised up judges for them, he would be with the judge and save them from the power of their enemies as long as the judge lived; it was thus the Lord took pity on their distressful cries of affliction under their oppressors. 19 But when the judge died, they would relapse and do worse than their fathers, following other gods in service and worship, relinquishing none of their evil practices or stubborn conduct.y

20 z In his anger toward Israel the Lord said, "Inasmuch as this nation has violated my covenant which I enjoined on their fathers, and has disobeyed me, 21 I for my part will not clear away for them any more of the nations which Josue left when he died." 22 Through these nations the Israelites were to be made to prove whether or not they would keep to the way of the Lord and continue in it as their fathers had done; 23 therefore the Lord allowed them to remain instead of expelling them immediately, or delivering them into the power of Israel.

CHAPTER 3.

1 The following are the nations which the Lord allowed to remain, so that through them he might try all those Israelites who had no experience of the battles with Chanaan [just to instruct, by training them in battle, 2 those generations only of the Israelites who would not have had that previous experience]: 3 a the five lords of the Philistines;* and all the Chanaanites, the Sidonians, and the Hevites who dwell in the mountain region of Lebanon between Baal-Hermon and the entrance to Hamath. 4 These served to put Israel to the test, to determine whether they would obey the commandments the Lord had enjoined on their fathers through Moses. 5 Besides, the Israelites were living among the Chanaanites, Hethites, Amorrites, Pherezites, Hevites and Jebusites. 6 In fact, they took their daughters in marriage, and gave their own daughters to their sons in marriage, and served their gods.

II: STORIES OF THE JUDGES

Othoniel. 7 b Because the Israelites had offended the Lord by forgetting the Lord, their God, and serving the Baals and the Asheras,* 8 the anger of the Lord flared up against them, and he allowed them to fall into the power of Chusan-Rasathaim, king of Aram Naharaim, whom they served for eight years. 9 But when the Israelites cried out to the Lord, he raised up for them a savior, Othoniel, son of Caleb's younger brother Cenez, who rescued them. 10 The spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he judged Israel.[c] When he went out to war, the Lord delivered Chusan-Rasathaim, king of Aram, into his power, so that he made him subject. 11 The land then was at rest for forty years,[d] until Othoniel, son of Cenez, died.

Aod. 12 Again the Israelites offended the Lord, who because of this offense strengthened Eglon, king of Moab, against Israel. 13 In alliance with the Ammonites and Amalecites, he attacked and defeated Israel, taking possession of the city of palms. 14 The Israelites then served Eglon, king of Moab, for eighteen years.

15 But when the Israelites cried out to the Lord, he raised up for them a savior, the Benjaminite Aod, son of Gera, who was left-handed. It was by him that the Israelites sent their tribute to Eglon, king of Moab. 16 Aod made himself a two-edged dagger a foot long, and wore it under his clothes over his right thigh. 17 He presented the tribute to Eglon, king of Moab, who was very fat, 18 and after the presentation went off with the tribute bearers. 19 He returned, however, from where the idols are, near Galgal, and said, "I have a private message for you, O king." And the king said, "Silence!" Then when all his attendants had left his presence, 20 and Aod went in to him where he sat alone in his cool upper room, Aod said, "I have a message from God for you." So the king rose from his chair, 21 and then Aod with his left hand drew the dagger from his right thigh, and thrust it into Eglon's belly. 22 The hilt also went in after the blade, and the fat closed over the blade because he did not withdraw the dagger from his body.

23 Then Aod went out into the hall, shutting the doors of the upper room on him and locking them. 24 When Aod had left and the servants came, they saw that the doors of the upper room were locked, and thought, "He must be easing himself in the cool chamber." 25 They waited until they finally grew suspicious. Since he did not open the doors of the upper room, they took the key and opened them. There on the floor, dead, lay their lord!

26 During their delay Aod made good his escape and, passing the idols, took refuge in Seira. 27 On his arrival he sounded the horn in the mountain region of Ephraim, and the Israelites went down from the mountains with him as their leader. 28 "Follow me," he said to them, "for the Lord has delivered your enemies the Moabites into your power." So they followed him down and seized the fords of the Jordan leading to Moab, permitting no one to cross.[e] 29 On that occasion they slew about ten thousand Moabites, all of them strong and valiant men. Not a man escaped. 30 Thus was Moab brought under the power of Israel at that time; and the land had rest for eighty years.

Samgar. 31 After him there was Samgar, son of Anath, who slew six hundred Philistines with an oxgoad. He, too, rescued Israel.

CHAPTER 4.

Debora and Barac. 1 After Aod's death, however, the Israelites again offended the Lord. 2 So the Lord allowed them to fall into the power of the Chanaanite king, Jabin, who reigned in Hasor.[f] The general of his army was Sisara, who dwelt in Haroseth-Goim. 3 But the Israelites cried out to the Lord; for with his nine hundred iron chariots he sorely oppressed the Israelites for twenty years.

4 At this time the prophetess Debora, wife of Laphidoth, was judging Israel. 5 She used to sit under Debora's palm tree, situated between Rama and Bethel in the mountain region of Ephraim, and there the Israelites came up to her for judgment. 6 She sent and summoned Barac, son of Abinoem,[g] from Cedes of Nephthali. "This is what the Lord, the God of Israel, commands," she said to him: "go, march on Mount Thabor, and take with you ten thousand Nephthalites and Zabulonites. 7 I will lead Sisara, the general of Jabin's army, out to you at the Wadi Cison,[h] together with his chariots and troops, and will deliver them into your power." 8 But Barac answered her, "If you come with me, I will go; if you do not come with me, I will not go." 9 "I will certainly go with you," she replied, "but you shall not gain the glory of the expedition on which you are setting out, for the Lord will have Sisara fall into the power of a woman." So Debora joined Barac and journeyed with him to Cedes.

10 Barac summoned Zabulon and Nephthali[i] to Cedes, and ten thousand men followed him. Debora also went up with him. 11 *Now the Cinite Heber had detached himself from his own people, the descendants of Hobab, Moses' brother-in-law,[j] and had pitched his tent by the terebinth of Saananim, which was near Cedes.

12 It was reported to Sisara that Barac, son of Abinoem, had gone up to Mount Thabor. 13 So Sisara assembled from Haroseth-Goim at the Wadi Cison all nine hundred of his iron chariots and all his forces. 14 Debora then said to Barac, "Be off, for this is the day on which the Lord has delivered Sisara into your power. The Lord marches before you." So Barac went down Mount Thabor, followed by his ten thousand men. 15 And the Lord put Sisara[k] and all his chariots and all his forces to rout before Barac. Sisara himself dismounted from his chariot and fled on foot. 16 Barac, however, pursued the chariots and the army as far as Haroseth-Goim. The entire army of Sisara fell beneath the sword, not even one man surviving.

17 *Sisara, in the meantime, had fled on foot to the tent of Jahel, wife of the Cinite Heber, since Jabin, king of Hasor, and the family of the Cinite Heber were at peace with one another. 18 Jahel went out to meet Sisara and said to him, "Come in, my lord, come in with me; do not be afraid." So he went into her tent, and she covered him with a rug. 19 He said to her, "Please give me a little water to drink. I am thirsty." But she opened a jug of milk for him to drink, and then covered him over.[l] 20 "Stand at the entrance of the tent," he said to her. "If anyone comes and asks, 'Is there someone here?' say, 'No!' " 21 Instead Jahel, wife of Heber, got a tent peg and took a mallet in her hand. While Sisara was sound asleep, she stealthily approached him and drove the peg through his temple down into the ground, so that he perished in death.[m] 22 Then when Barac came in pursuit of Sisara, Jahel went out to meet him and said to him, "Come, I will show you the man you seek." So he went in with her, and there lay Sisara dead, with the tent peg through his temple.

23 Thus on that day God humbled the Chanaanite king, Jabin, before the Israelites; 24 their power weighed ever heavier upon him, till at length they destroyed the Chanaanite king, Jabin.

CHAPTER 5.

Canticle of Debora. 1 On that day Debora [and Barac, son of Abinoem,] sang this song:

2 *Of chiefs who took the lead in Israel, of noble deeds by the people who bless the Lord,

3 Hear, O kings! Give ear, O princes!
I to the Lord will sing my song, my hymn to the Lord, the God of Israel.

4 O Lord, when you went out from Seir,
when you marched from the land of Edom,
the earth quaked and the heavens were shaken,
while the clouds sent down showers.
5 [n] Mountains trembled in the presence of the Lord:
[This is Sinai]
in the presence of the Lord, the God of Israel.[o]

6 In the days of Samgar, son of Anath,[p] in the days of slavery caravans ceased;
those who traveled the roads went by roundabout paths.
7 Gone was freedom beyond the walls, gone indeed from Israel.

When I, Debora, rose, when I rose, a mother in Israel,
8 new gods* were their choice;
then the war was at their gates.
Not a shield could be seen, nor a lance,
among forty thousand in Israel!

9 My heart is with the leaders of Israel,
nobles of the people who bless the Lord;
10 they who ride on white asses, seated on

4, 17-22: It is to be noted that the sacred author merely records the fact of the murder of Sisara. We must not construe this as approval of Jahel's action.

5, 2-31: This canticle is an excellent example of early Hebrew poetry, even though some of its verses are now obscure.

saddlecloths as they go their way; [11] sing of them to the strains of the harpers at the wells, where men recount the just deeds of the Lord, his just deeds that brought freedom to Israel.

[12] Awake, awake, Debora! awake, awake, strike up a song. Strength! arise, Barac, make despoilers your spoil, son of Abinoem. [13] Then down came the fugitives with the mighty, the people of the Lord came down for me as warriors.

[14] *From Ephraim, princes were in the valley; behind you was Benjamin, among your troops. From Machir came down commanders, and from Zabulon wielders of the marshal's staff. [15] With Debora were the princes of Issachar; Barac, too, was in the valley, his course unchecked.[q]

Among the clans of Ruben great were the searchings of heart. [16] Why do you stay beside your hearths listening to the lowing of the herds? Among the clans of Ruben great were the searchings of heart!

[17] Galaad, beyond the Jordan, rests; why does Dan spend his time in ships? Aser, who dwells along the shore, is resting in his coves. [18] Zabulon is the people defying death; Nephthali, too, on the open heights![r]

[19] The kings came and fought; then they fought, those kings of Chanaan, at Thaanach by the waters of Mageddo; no silver booty did they take,[s] [20] *From the the heavens the stars, too, fought; from their courses they fought against Sisara.[t]

[21] The Wadi Cison[u] swept them away; a wadi . . ., the Cison. [22] Then the hoofs of the horses pounded, with the dashing, dashing of his steeds.

[23] "Curse Meroz,"* says the Lord, "hurl a curse at its inhabitants! For they came not to my help, as warriors to the help of the Lord."

[24] Blessed among women be Jahel, blessed among tent-dwelling women.[v] [25] He asked for water, she gave him milk; in a princely bowl she offered curds.[w] [26] With her left hand she reached for the peg, with her right, for the workman's mallet.

She hammered Sisara, crushed his head; she smashed, stove in his temple. [27] At her feet he sank down, fell, lay still; down at her feet he sank and fell; where he sank down, there he fell, slain.

[28] From the window peered down and wailed the mother of Sisara, from the lattice: "Why is his chariot so long in coming? why are the hoofbeats of his chariots delayed?" [29] The wisest of her princesses answers her, and she, too, keeps answering herself:

[30] "They must be dividing the spoil they took: there must be a damsel or two for each man, spoils of dyed cloth as Sisara's spoil, an ornate shawl or two for me in the spoil."

[31] May all your enemies perish thus, O Lord! but your friends be as the sun rising in its might![x]

And the land was at rest for forty years.

CHAPTER 6.

The Call of Gedeon. [1] The Israelites offended the Lord, who therefore delivered them into the power of Madian for seven years, [2] so that Madian held Israel subject. For fear of Madian the Israelites established the fire signals on the mountains, the caves for refuge, and the strongholds. [3] And it used to be that when the Israelites had completed their sowing, Madian, Amalec and the Cedemites would come up,[y] [4] encamp opposite them, and destroy the produce of the land as far as the outskirts of Gaza, leaving no sustenance in Israel, nor sheep, oxen or asses. [5] For they would come up with their livestock, and their tents would become as numerous as locusts; and neither they nor their camels could be numbered, when they came into the land to lay it waste. [6] Thus was Israel reduced to misery by Madian, and so the Israelites cried out to the Lord.

[7] When Israel cried out to the Lord because of Madian, [8] [z] he sent a prophet to the Israelites who said to them, "The Lord, the God of Israel, says: I led you up from Egypt; I brought you out of the place of slavery. 9 I rescued you from the power of Egypt and of all your other oppressors. I drove them out before you and gave you their land. 10 And I said to you: I, the Lord, am your God; you shall not venerate the gods of the Amorrites in whose land you are dwelling. But you did not obey me."

The tribes of Ruben, Gad (Galaad), Dan, and Aser are chided for their lack of co-operation. The more distant tribes of Juda and Simeon are not mentioned.

5, 20f: It would seem that nature aided the Hebrews in some way. Perhaps the torrential rains swelled the waters of Cison, which then overwhelmed the Chanaanites.

11 Then the angel of the Lord came and sat under the terebinth in Ephra that belonged to Joas the Abiezerite. While his son Gedeon was beating out wheat in the wine press to save it from the Madianites, 12 the angel of the Lord appeared to him and said, "The Lord is with you, O champion!" 13 "My lord," Gedeon said to him, "if the Lord is with us, why has all this happened to us? Where are his wondrous deeds of which our fathers told us when they said, 'Did not the Lord bring us up from Egypt?' For now the Lord has abandoned us and has delivered us into the power of Madian." 14 The Lord turned to him and said, "Go with the strength you have and save Israel from the power of Madian. It is I who send you." 15 But he answered him, "Please, my lord, how can I save Israel? My family is the meanest in Manasse, and I am the most insignificant in my father's house." 16 "I shall be with you," the Lord said to him, "and you will cut down Madian to the last man." 17 He answered him, "If I find favor with you, give me a sign that you are speaking with me. 18 Do not depart from here, I pray you, until I come back to you and bring out my offering and set it before you." He answered, "I will await your return."

19 So Gedeon went off and prepared a kid and an epha of flour in the form of unleavened cakes. Putting the meat in a basket and the broth in a pot, he brought them out to him under the terebinth and presented them. 20 The angel of God said to him, "Take the meat and unleavened cakes and lay them on this rock; then pour out the broth." [a] When he had done so, 21 the angel of the Lord stretched out the tip of the staff he held, and touched the meat and unleavened cakes. Thereupon a fire came up from the rock which consumed the meat and unleavened cakes, and the angel of the Lord disappeared from sight. 22 [b] Gedeon, now aware that it had been the angel of the Lord, said, "Alas, Lord God, that I have seen the angel of the Lord face to face!" 23 The Lord answered him, "Be calm, do not fear. You shall not die." 24 So Gedeon built there an altar to the Lord and called it Yahweh-Salom.* To this day it is still in Ephra of the Abiezerites.

25 That same night the Lord said to him, "Take the seven-year-old spare bullock and destroy your father's altar to Baal and cut down the sacred pole* that is by it. 26 You shall build, instead, the proper kind of altar to the Lord, your God, on top of this stronghold. Then take the spare bullock and offer it as a holocaust on the wood from the sacred pole you have cut down." 27 So Gedeon took ten of his servants and did as the Lord had commanded him. But through fear of his family and of the townspeople, he would not do it by day, but did it at night. 28 Early the next morning the townspeople found that the altar of Baal had been destroyed, the sacred pole near it cut down, and the spare bullock offered on the altar that was built. 29 They asked one another, "Who did this?" Their inquiry led them to the conclusion that Gedeon, son of Joas, had done it. 30 So the townspeople said to Joas, "Bring out your son that he may die, for he has destroyed the altar of Baal and has cut down the sacred pole that was near it." 31 But Joas replied to all who were standing around him, "Do you intend to act in Baal's stead, or be his champion? If anyone acts for him, he shall be put to death by morning. If he whose altar has been destroyed is a god, let him act for himself!" 32 So on that day Gedeon was called Jerobbaal,* because of the words, "Let Baal take action against him, since he destroyed his altar." [c]

33 Then all Madian and Amalec and the Cedemites mustered and crossed over into the valley of Jezrael, where they encamped. 34 The spirit of the Lord enveloped Gedeon; he blew the horn that summoned Abiezer to follow him. 35 He sent messengers, too, throughout Manasse, which also obeyed his summons; through Aser, Zabulon and Nephthali, likewise, he sent messengers and these tribes advanced to meet the others. 36 Gedeon said to God, "If indeed you are going to save Israel through me, as you promised, 37 I am putting this woolen fleece on the threshing floor. If dew comes on the fleece alone, while all the ground is dry, I shall know that you will save Israel through me, as you promised." 38 That is what took place. Early the next morning he wrung the dew from the fleece, squeezing out of it a bowlful of water. 39 Gedeon then said to God, "Do not be angry with me if I speak once more. Let me make just one more test with the fleece. Let the fleece alone be dry, but let there be dew on all the ground." 40 That night God did so; the fleece alone was dry, but there was dew on all the ground.

CHAPTER 7.

Defeat of Madian. 1 Early the next morning Jerobbaal[d] (that is, Gedeon) encamped by En-Harad with all his soldiers. The Camp of Madian was in the valley north of Gabaath-Hammore. 2 The Lord said to Gedeon, "You have too many soldiers with you for me to deliver Madian into their power, lest Israel vaunt itself against me and say, 'My own power brought me the victory.' 3 Now proclaim to all the soldiers, 'If anyone is afraid or fearful, let him leave.'"[e] When Gedeon put them to this test on the mountain, twenty-two thousand of the soldiers left, but ten thousand remained. 4 The Lord said to Gedeon, "There are still too many soldiers. Lead them down to the water and I will test them for you there. If I tell you that a certain man is to go with you, he must go with you. But no one is to go if I tell you he must not." 5 *When Gedeon led the soldiers down to the water, the Lord said to him, "You shall set to one side everyone who laps up the water as a dog does with its tongue; to the other, everyone who kneels down to drink." 6 Those who lapped up the water raised to their mouths by hand numbered three hundred, but all the rest of the soldiers knelt down to drink the water. 7 The Lord said to Gedeon, "By means of the three hundred who lapped up the water I will save you and will deliver Madian into your power. So let all the other soldiers go home." 8 Their horns, and such supplies as the soldiers had with them, were taken up, and Gedeon ordered the rest of the Israelites to their tents, but kept the three hundred men. Now the camp of Madian was beneath him in the valley.

9 That night the Lord said to Gedeon, "Go, descend on the camp, for I have delivered it up to you. 10 If you are afraid to attack, go down to the camp with your aide Phara. 11 When you hear what they are saying, you will have the courage to descend on the camp." So he went down with his aide Phara to the outposts of the camp. 12 The Madianites, Amalecites, and all the Cedemites lay in the valley, as numerous as locusts. Nor could their camels be counted, for these were as many as the sands on the seashore. 13 *When Gedeon arrived, one man was telling another about a dream. "I had a dream," he said, "that a round loaf of barley bread was rolling into the camp of Madian. It came to our tent and struck it, and as it fell it turned the tent upside down." 14 "This can only be the sword of the Israelite Gedeon, son of Joas," the other replied. "God has delivered Madian and all the camp into his power." 15 When Gedeon heard the description and explanation of the dream, he prostrated himself. Then returning to the camp of Israel, he said, "Arise, for the Lord has delivered the camp of Madian into your power."

16 He divided the three hundred men into three companies, and provided them all with horns and with empty jars and torches inside the jars. 17 "Watch me and follow my lead," he told them. "I shall go to the edge of the camp, and as I do, you must do also. 18 When I and those with me blow horns, you too must blow horns all around the camp and cry out, 'For the Lord and for Gedeon!'" 19 So Gedeon and the hundred men who were with him came to the edge of the camp at the beginning of the middle watch,* just after the posting of the guards. They blew the horns and broke the jars they were holding. 20 All three companies blew horns and broke their jars. They held the torches in their left hands, and in their right the horns they were blowing, and cried out, "A sword for the Lord and Gedeon!" 21 They all remained standing in place around the camp, while the whole camp fell to running and shouting and fleeing. 22 But the three hundred men kept blowing the horns, and throughout the camp the Lord set the sword of one against another.f The army fled as far as Beth-Setta in the direction of Sarera, as far as the border of Abel-Mehula near Tebbath.

23 The Israelites were called to arms from Nephthali, from Aser, and from all Manasse, and they pursued Madian. 24 Gedeon also sent messengers throughout the mountain region of Ephraim to say, "Go down to confront Madian, and seize the water courses against them as far as Beth-Bera, as well as the Jordan." So all the Ephraimites were called to arms, and they seized the water courses as far as Beth-Bera, and the Jordan as well. 25 g They captured the two princes of Madian, Oreb and Zeb, killing Oreb at the rock of Oreb and Zeb at the wine press of Zeb. Then they pursued Madian and carried the heads of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon beyond the Jordan.

CHAPTER 8.

1 But the Ephraimites said to him, "What have you done to us, not calling us when you went to fight against Madian?" And they quarreled bitterly with him. 2 "What have I accomplished now in comparison with you?" he answered them. "Is not the gleaning of Ephraim better than the vintage of Abiezer?h 3 Into your power God delivered the princes of Madian, Oreb and Zeb. What have I been able to do in comparison with you?" When he said this, their anger against him subsided.

4 When Gedeon reached the Jordan and crossed it with his three hundred men, they were exhausted and famished. 5 So he said to the men of Socchoth, "Will you give my followers some loaves of bread? They are exhausted, and I am pursuing Zebee and Salmana, kings of Madian." 6 But the princes of Socchoth replied, "Are the hands of Zebee and Salmana already in your possession, that we should give food to your army?"* 7 Gedeon said, "Very well; when the Lord has delivered Zebee and Salmana into my power, I will grind your flesh in with the thorns and briers of the desert." 8 He went up from there to Phanuel and made the same request of them, but the men of Phanuel answered him as had the men of Socchoth. 9 So to the men of Phanuel, too, he said, "When I return in triumph, I will demolish this tower."

10 Now Zebee and Salmana were in Carcor with their force of about fifteen thousand men; these were all who were left of the whole Cedemite army, a hundred and twenty thousand swordsmen having fallen. 11 Gedeon went up by the route of the nomads east of Nobe and Jegbaa, and attacked the camp when it felt secure. 12 Zebee and Salmana fled. He pursued them and took the two kings of Madian, Zebee and Salmana, captive, throwing the entire army into panic.

13 Then Gedeon, son of Joas, returned from battle by the pass of Hares. 14 He captured a young man of Socchoth, who upon being questioned listed for him the seventy-seven princes and elders of Socchoth. 15 So he went to the men of Socchoth and said, "Here are Zebee and Salmana, with whom you taunted me, 'Are the hands of Zebee and Salmana already in your possession, that we should give food to your weary followers?'" 16 He took the elders of the city, and thorns and briers of the desert, and ground these men of Socchoth into them. 17 He also demolished the tower of Phanuel and slew the men of the city.

18 Then he said to Zebee and Salmana, "Where now are the men you killed at Thabor?" "They all resembled you," they replied. "They appeared to be princes." 19 "They were my brothers, my mother's sons," he said. "As the Lord lives, if you had spared their lives, I should not kill you." 20 Then he said to his first-born, f Ps 82 (83), 10; Is 9, 4.—g Jgs 8, 3; Ps 82 (83), 12; Is 10, 26.—h Jgs 6, 34.

7, 19: At the beginning of the middle watch: about two hours before midnight. The ancient Hebrews divided the night into three watches of about four hours each. At the beginning of a watch the sentinels were changed.

8, 6: Are the hands . . . in your possession . . . ? : i.e., can you already boast of victory? The hands as well as the heads of slain enemies were cut off and counted as trophies; cf 2 Kgs 4, 8; 4 Kgs 10, 7f; and the Ugaritic Anath Epic, V AB, II 10ff.

Jether, "Go, kill them." Since Jether was still a boy, he was afraid and did not draw his sword. 21 Zebee and Salmana said, "Come, kill us yourself, for a man's strength is like the man." So Gedeon stepped forward and killed Zebee and Salmana. He also took the crescents that were on the necks of their camels.

22 The Israelites then said to Gedeon, "Rule over us—you, your son, and your son's son—for you rescued us from the power of Madian." 23 But Gedeon answered them, "I will not rule over you, nor shall my son rule over you. The Lord must rule over you."

24 Gedeon went on to say, "I should like to make a request of you. Will each of you give me a ring from his booty?" (For being Ismaelites,* the enemy had gold rings.) 25 "We will gladly give them," they replied, and spread out a cloak into which everyone threw a ring from his booty. 26 The gold rings that he requested weighed seventeen hundred gold shekels, in addition to the crescents and pendants, the purple garments worn by the kings of Madian, and the trappings that were on the necks of their camels. 27 Gedeon made an ephod out of the gold and placed it in his city Ephra. However, all Israel paid idolatrous homage to it there, and it caused the ruin of Gedeon and his family.

28 Thus was Madian brought into subjection by the Israelites; no longer did they hold their heads high. And the land had rest for forty years, during the lifetime of Gedeon.

Gedeon's Son Abimelech. 29 Then Jerobbaal, son of Joas, went back home to stay. 30 i Now Gedeon had seventy sons, his direct descendants, for he had many wives. 31 His concubine* who lived in Sichem also bore him a son, whom he named Abimelech. 32 At a good old age Gedeon, son of Joas, died and was buried in the tomb of his father Joas in Ephra of the Abiezerites. 33 But after Gedeon was dead, the Israelites again abandoned themselves to the Baals, making Baal-Berith* their god 34 and forgetting the Lord, their God, who had delivered them from the power of their enemies all around them. 35 Nor were they grateful to the family of Jerobbaal [Gedeon] for all the good he had done for Israel.

CHAPTER 9.

1 Abimelech, son of Jerobbaal, went to his mother's kinsmen in Sichem, j and said to them and to the whole clan to which his mother's family belonged, 2 "Put this question to all the citizens of Sichem: 'Which is better for you: that seventy men, or all Jerobbaal's sons, rule over you, or that one man rule over you?' You must remember that I am your own flesh and bone." 3 When his mother's kin repeated these words to them on his behalf, all the citizens of Sichem sympathized with Abimelech, thinking, "He is our kinsman." 4 They also gave him seventy silver shekels from the temple of Baal-Berith, with which Abimelech hired shiftless men and ruffians as his followers. 5 He then went to his ancestral house in Ephra, and slew his brothers, the seventy sons of Jerobbaal, on one stone. Only the youngest son of Jerobbaal, Joatham, escaped, for he was hidden. 6 Then all the citizens of Sichem and all Beth-Mello came together and proceeded to make Abimelech king by the terebinth of the military post in Sichem.

7 When this was reported to him, Joatham went to the top of Mount Garizim, and standing there, cried out to them in a loud voice: "Hear me, citizens of Sichem, that God may then hear you! 8 Once the trees went to anoint a king over themselves. So they said to the olive tree, 'Reign over us.' k 9 But the olive tree answered them, 'Must I give up my rich oil, whereby men and gods are honored,* and go to wave over the trees?' 10 Then the trees said to the fig tree, 'Come; you reign over us!' 11 But the fig tree answered them, 'Must I give up my sweetness and my good fruit, and go to wave over the trees?' 12 Then the trees said to the vine, 'Come you, and reign over us.' 13 But the vine answered them, 'Must I give up my wine that cheers gods* and men, and go trees said to the buckthorn, 'Come; you reign over us!' 15 But the buckthorn replied to the trees, 'If you wish to anoint me king over you in good faith, come and take refuge in my shadow. Otherwise, let fire come from the buckthorn and devour the cedars of Lebanon.'

16 *"Now then, if you have acted in good faith and honorably in appointing Abimelech your king, if you have dealt
well with Jerobbaal and with his family, and if you have treated him as he deserved—17 for my father fought for you at the risk of his life when he saved you from the power of Madian; 18 but you have risen against his family this day and have killed his seventy sons upon one stone, and have made Abimelech, the son of his handmaid,[l] king over the citizens of Sichem, because he is your kinsman—19 if, then, you have acted in good faith and with honor toward Jerobbaal and his family this day, rejoice in Abimelech and may he in turn rejoice in you. 20 But if not, let fire come forth from Abimelech to devour the citizens of Sichem and Beth-Mello, and let fire come forth from the citizens and from Beth-Mello to devour Abimelech." 21 Then Joatham went in flight to Beer, where he remained for fear of his brother Abimelech.

22 When Abimelech had ruled Israel for three years, 23 God put bad feelings between Abimelech and the citizens of Sichem, who rebelled against Abimelech.
24 This was to repay the violence done to the seventy sons of Jerobbaal and to avenge their blood upon their brother Abimelech, who killed them, and upon the citizens of Sichem, who encouraged him to kill his brothers. 25 The citizens of Sichem then set men in ambush for him
on the mountaintops, and these robbed
all who passed them on the road. But it was reported to Abimelech.

26 Now Gaal, son of Obed, came over to Sichem with his kinsmen. The citizens of Sichem put their trust in him, 27 and went out into the fields, harvested their grapes and trod them out. Then they held a festival and went to the temple of their god, where they ate and drank and cursed Abimelech. 28 Gaal, son of Obed, said,
"Who is Abimelech? And why should we of Sichem serve him? Were not the son of Jerobbaal and his lieutenant Zebul
once subject to the men of Hamor, father of Sichem?[m] Why should we serve him?
29 Would that this people were entrusted to my command! I would depose Abime-lech. I would say to Abimelech, 'Get a larger army and come out!' "

30 At the news of what Gaal, son of Obed, had said, Zebul, the ruler of the city, was angry 31 and sent messengers to Abimelech in Aruma with the information: "Gaal, son of Obed, and his kinsmen have come to Sichem and are stirring up the city against you. 32 Now rouse yourself; set an ambush tonight in the fields, you and the men who are with you.
33 Promptly at sunrise tomorrow morning, make a raid on the city. When he and his followers come out against you, deal with him as best you can."

34 During the night Abimelech advanced with all his soldiers and set up an ambush for Sichem in four companies.
35 Gaal, son of Obed, went out and stood at the entrance of the city gate. When Abimelech and his soldiers rose from their place of ambush, 36 Gaal saw them and said to Zebul, "There are men coming down from the hilltops!" But Zebul answered him, "You see the shadow of the hills as men." 37 But Gaal went on to say, "Men are coming down from the region of Tabbur-Haares, and one company is coming by way of Elon-Meonenim." 38 Zebul said to him, "Where now is the boast you uttered, 'Who is Abimelech that we should serve him?' Are these not the men for whom you expressed contempt?
Go out now and fight with them." 39 So Gaal went out at the head of the citizens of Sichem and fought against Abimelech.
40 But Abimelech routed him, and he fled before him; and many fell slain right up to the entrance of the gate. 41 Abimelech returned to Aruma, but Zebul drove Gaal and his kinsmen from Sichem, which they had occupied.

42 The next day, when the people were taking the field, it was reported to Abime-lech, 43 who divided the men he had into three companies, and set up an ambush in the fields. He watched till he saw the people leave the city, and then rose against them for the attack. 44 Abimelech and the company with him dashed in and stood by the entrance of the city gate, while the other two companies rushed upon all who were in the field and attacked them. 45 That entire day Abimelech fought against the city, and captured it. He then killed its inhabitants and demolished the city, sowing the site with salt.*

46 When they heard of this, all the citizens of Magdal-Sichem went into the crypt of the temple of El-Berith. 47 It was reported to Abimelech that all the citizens of Magdal-Sichem were gathered together. 48 So he went up Mount Selmon with all his soldiers, took his ax in his hand, and cut down some brushwood. This he lifted to his shoulder, then said to the men with him, "Hurry! Do just as you have seen me do." 49 So all the men likewise cut down brushwood, and following Abimelech, placed it against the crypt. Then they set the crypt on fire over their heads, so that every one of the citizens of Magdal-Sichem, about a thousand men and women, perished.

50 Abimelech proceeded to Thebes, which he invested and captured. 51 Now there was a strong tower in the middle of the city, and all the men and women, in a word all the citizens of the city, fled there, shutting themselves in and going up to the roof of the tower. 52 Abimelech came up to the tower and fought against it, advancing to the very entrance of the tower to set it on fire. 53 But a certain woman cast the upper part of a millstone down on Abimelech's head, and it fractured his skull.[n] 54 He immediately called his armor-bearer and said to him, "Draw your sword and dispatch me, lest they say of me that a woman killed me."[o] So his attendant ran him through and he died. 55 When the Israelites saw that Abimelech was dead, they all left for their homes.

56 Thus did God requite the evil Abimelech had done to his father in killing his seventy brothers. 57 God also brought all their wickedness home to the Sichemites, for the curse of Joatham, son of Jerobbaal, overtook them.

CHAPTER 10.

Thola. 1 After Abimelech there rose to save Israel the Issacharite Thola, son of Dodo, a resident of Samir in the mountain region of Ephraim. 2 When he had judged Israel twenty-three years, he died and was buried in Samir.

Jair. 3 Jair the Galaadite came after him and judged Israel twenty-two years. 4 He had thirty sons who rode on thirty saddle-asses* and possessed thirty cities in the land of Galaad; these are called Havoth-Jair to the present day.[p] 5 Jair died and was buried in Camon.

Oppression by the Ammonites. 6 The Israelites again offended the Lord, serving the Baals and Astharthes, the gods of Aram, the gods of Sidon, the gods of Moab, the gods of the Ammonites, and the gods of the Philistines. Since they had abandoned the Lord and would not serve him, 7 the Lord became angry with Israel and allowed them to fall into the power of [the Philistines and] the Ammonites. 8 For eighteen years they afflicted and oppressed the Israelites in Basan, and all the Israelites in the Amorrite land beyond the Jordan in Galaad. 9 The Ammonites also crossed the Jordan to fight against Juda, Benjamin, and the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was in great distress.

10 Then the Israelites cried out to the Lord, "We have sinned against you; we have forsaken our God and have served the Baals." 11[q] The Lord answered the Israelites: "Did not the Egyptians, the Amorrites,[r] the Ammonites, the Philistines, 12 the Sidonians, the Amalecites, and the Madianites oppress you?[s] Yet when you cried out to me, and I saved you from their grasp, 13 you still forsook me and worshiped other gods. Therefore I will save you no more. 14 Go and cry out to the gods you have chosen; let them save you now that you are in distress." 15 But the Israelites said to the Lord, "We have sinned. Do to us whatever you please. Only save us this day." 16 And they cast out the foreign gods from their midst, and served the Lord, so that he grieved over the misery of Israel.

17 The Ammonites had gathered for war and encamped in Galaad, while the Israelites assembled and encamped in Maspha.[t] 18 And among the people the princes of Galaad said to one another, "The one who begins the war against the Ammonites shall be leader of all the inhabitants of Galaad."[u]

CHAPTER 11.

Jephte. 1 There was a chieftain, the Galaadite Jephte, born to Galaad of a harlot. 2 Galaad's wife had also borne him sons, and on growing up the sons of the wife had driven Jephte away, saying to him, "You shall inherit nothing in our family, for you are son of another woman." 3 So Jephte had fled from his brothers and had taken up residence in the land of Tob. A rabble had joined company with him, and went out with him on raids.

4 Some time later, the Ammonites warred on Israel. 5 When this occurred the elders of Galaad went to bring Jephte from the land of Tob. 6 "Come," they said to Jephte, "be our commander that we may be able to fight the Ammonites." 7 "Are you not the ones who hated me and drove me from my father's house?" Jephte replied to the elders of Galaad. "Why do you come to me now, when you are in distress?" 8 The elders of Galaad said to Jephte, "In any case, we have now come back to you; if you go with us to fight against the Ammonites, you shall be the leader of all of us who dwell in Galaad." 9 Jephte answered the elders of Galaad, "If you bring me back to fight against the Ammonites and the Lord delivers them up to me, I shall be your leader." 10 The elders of Galaad said to Jephte, "The Lord is witness between us that we will do as you say."

11 So Jephte went with the elders of Galaad, and the people made him their leader and commander.[v] In Maspha, Jephte settled all his affairs before the Lord. 12 Then he sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites to say, "What have you against me that you come to fight with me in my land?" 13 He answered the messengers of Jephte, "Israel took away my land from the Arnon to the Jaboc and the Jordan when they came up from Egypt.[w] Now restore the same peaceably."

14 Again Jephte sent messengers to the king of the Ammonites, 15 saying to him, "This is what Jephte says: Israel did not take the land of Moab or the land of the Ammonites.[x] 16 For when they came up from Egypt, Israel went through the desert to the Red Sea and came to Cades. 17 Israel then sent messengers to the king of Edom saying, 'Let me pass through your land.' But the king of Edom did not give consent. They also sent to the king of Moab, but he too was unwilling. So Israel remained in Cades.[y] 18 Then they went through the desert, and by-passing the land of Edom and the land of Moab, went east of the land of Moab and encamped across the Arnon.[z] Thus they did not go through the territory of Moab, for the Arnon is the boundary of Moab. 19 [a] Then Israel sent messengers to Sehon, king of the Amorrites, king of Hesebon. Israel said to him, 'Let me pass through your land to my own place.' 20 But Sehon refused to let Israel pass through his territory. On the contrary, he gathered all his soldiers, who encamped at Jasa and fought Israel. 21 But the Lord, the God of Israel, delivered Sehon and all his men into the power of Israel, who defeated them and occupied all the land of the Amorrites dwelling in that region, 22 the whole territory from the Arnon to the Jaboc, from the desert to the Jordan. 23 If now the Lord, the God of Israel, has cleared the Amorrites out of the way of his people, are you to dislodge Israel? 24 Should you not possess that which your god Chamos* gave you to possess, and should we not possess all that the Lord, our God, has cleared out for us? [b] 25 Again, are you any better than Balac, son of Sepphor, king of Moab? Did he ever quarrel with Israel, or did he war against

The error is probably due to an ancient copyist. Jephte argues from the viewpoint of his adversaries, the Ammonites, that they were entitled to all the land they had conquered with the aid of their god. It does not necessarily follow that Jephte himself believed in the actual existence of this pagan god.

them [c] 26 when Israel occupied Hesebon
and its villages, Aroer and its villages, and all the cities on the banks of the Arnon? [d] Three hundred years have passed; why did you not recover them during that time? 27 I have not sinned against you, but you wrong me by warring against me. Let the Lord, who is judge, decide this day between the Israelites and the Ammonites!" 28 But the king of the Ammonites paid no heed to the message Jephte sent him.

Jephte's Vow. 29 The spirit of the Lord came upon Jephte. He passed through Galaad and Manasse, and through Mas-pha-Galaad as well, and from there he went on to the Ammonites. 30 *Jephte made a vow to the Lord. "If you deliver the Ammonites into my power," he said, 31 "whoever comes out of the doors of my house to meet me when I return in triumph from the Ammonites shall belong to the Lord. I shall offer him up as a holocaust."

32 Jephte then went on to the Ammon-ites to fight against them, and the Lord delivered them into his power, 33 so that he inflicted a severe defeat on them, from Aroer to the approach to Mennith (twenty cities in all) and as far as Abelcheramim. Thus were the Ammonites brought into subjection by the Israelites. 34
When Jephte returned to his house in Maspha, it was his daughter who came forth, playing the tambourines and dancing. She was an only child: he had neither son nor daughter besides her. 35 When he saw her, he rent his garments and said, "Alas, daughter, you have struck me down and brought calamity upon me. For I have made a vow to the Lord and I cannot retract." [e] 36 "Father," she replied,
"you have made a vow to the Lord. Do with me as you have vowed, because the Lord has wrought vengeance for you on your enemies the Ammonites." 37 Then she said to her father, "Let me have this favor. Spare me for two months, that I may go off down the mountains to mourn
my virginity* with my companions." 38
"Go," he replied, and sent her away for two months. So she departed with her companions and mourned her virginity on the mountains. 39 At the end of the two months she returned to her father, who did to her as he had vowed. She had not been intimate with man. It then became a custom in Israel 40 for Israelite women to go yearly to mourn the daughter of Jephte the Galaadite for four days of the year.

CHAPTER 12.

The Shibboleth Incident. 1 The men of Ephraim gathered together and crossed over to Saphon. They said to Jephte,
"Why do you go on to fight with the Ammonites without calling us to go with you? We will burn your house over you." [f] 2 Jephte answered them, "My soldiers and I were engaged in a critical contest with the Ammonites. I summoned you, but you did not rescue me from their power.
3 When I saw that you would not effect a rescue, I took my life in my own hand and went on to the Ammonites, and the Lord delivered them into my power. Why, then, do you come up against me this day to fight with me?"

4 Then Jephte called together all the men of Galaad and fought against Eph-raim, whom they defeated; for the Ephraimites had said, "You of Galaad are Ephraimite fugitives in territory belonging to Ephraim and Manasse." 5 The Galaadites took the fords of the Jordan toward Ephraim. When any of the fleeing Ephraimites said, "Let me pass," the men of Galaad would say to him, "Are you an Ephraimite?" If he answered,
"No!" 6 they would ask him to say "Shib-boleth."* If he said "Sibboleth," not being able to give the proper pronunciation, they would seize him and kill him at the fords of the Jordan. Thus forty-two thousand Ephraimites fell at that time.

7 After having judged Israel for six years, Jephte the Galaadite died and was buried in his city in Galaad.

Abesan. 8 After him Abesan of Bethlehem judged Israel. 9 He had thirty sons.

c Nm 22, 2; Jos 24, 9; Mi 6, 5.—d Nm 21, 25; Dt 2, 36.—e Nm 30, 3.—f Jgs 8, 1.

11, 30-40: The text clearly implies that Jephte vowed a human sacrifice, according to the custom of his pagan neighbors; cf 4 Kgs 3, 27. The inspired author merely records the fact; he does not approve of the action.

11, 37: Mourn my virginity: to bear children was woman's greatest pride; to be childless was regarded as a great misfortune. Hence Jephte's daughter asks permission to mourn the fact that she will be put to death before she can bear children.

12, 6: Shibboleth: "an ear of grain." The word was arbitrarily chosen merely for the purpose of revealing the tribal affinity of the speaker, since the Ephraimites pronounced the sibilant in the word with a sound somewhat different from that used by the men of Galaad.

He also had thirty daughters married outside the family, and he brought in as wives for his sons thirty young women from outside the family. After having judged Israel for seven years, 10 Abesan died and was buried in Bethlehem.

Elon. 11 After him the Zabulonite Elon judged Israel. When he had judged Israel for ten years, 12 the Zabulonite Elon died and was buried in Elon in the land of Zabulon.

Abdon. 13 After him the Pharathonite Abdon, son of Hillel, judged Israel. 14 He had forty sons and thirty grandsons who rode on seventy saddle-asses. After having judged Israel for eight years, 15 the Pharathonite Abdon, son of Hillel, died and was buried in Pharathon in the land of Ephraim on the mountain of the Amalecites.

CHAPTER 13.

The Birth of Samson. 1 The Israelites again offended the Lord, who therefore delivered them into the power of the Philistines for forty years.[g]

2 There was a certain man from Saraa, of the clan of the Danites, whose name was Manoe. His wife was barren and had borne no children. 3 An angel of the Lord appeared to the woman and said to her, "Though you are barren and have had no children, yet you will conceive and bear a son.[h] 4 Now, then, be careful to take no wine or strong drink and to eat nothing unclean. 5 As for the son you will conceive and bear, no razor shall touch his head,[i] for this boy is to be consecrated* to God from the womb. It is he who will begin the deliverance of Israel from the power of the Philistines."

6 The woman went and told her husband, "A man of God came to me; he had the appearance of an angel of God, terrible indeed. I did not ask him where he came from, nor did he tell me his name. 7 But he said to me, 'You will be with child and will bear a son. So take neither wine nor strong drink, and eat nothing unclean. For the boy shall be consecrated to God from the womb, until the day of his death.' " 8 Manoe then prayed to the Lord. "O Lord, I beseech you," he said, "may the man of God whom you sent, return to us to teach us what to do for the boy who will be born."

9 God heard the prayer of Manoe, and the angel of God came again to the woman as she was sitting in the field. Since her husband Manoe was not with her, 10 the woman ran in haste and told her husband. "The man who came to me the other day has appeared to me," she said to him; 11 so Manoe got up and followed his wife. When he reached the man, he said to him, "Are you the one who spoke to my wife?" "Yes," he answered. 12 Then Manoe asked, "Now, when that which you say comes true, what are we expected to do for the boy?" 13 The angel of the Lord answered Manoe, "Your wife is to abstain from all the things of which I spoke to her. 14 She must not eat anything that comes from the vine, nor take wine or strong drink, nor eat anything unclean. Let her observe all that I have commanded her." 15 Then Manoe said to the angel of the Lord, "Can we persuade you to stay, while we prepare a kid for you?" 16 But the angel of the Lord answered Manoe, "Although you press me, I will not partake of your food. But if you will, you may offer a holocaust to the Lord." Not knowing that it was the angel of the Lord, 17 Manoe said to him, "What is your name, that we may honor you when your words come true?" 18 The angel of the Lord answered him, j "Why do you ask my name, which is mysterious?"* 19 k Then Manoe took the kid with a cereal offering and offered it on the rock to the Lord, whose works are mysteries. While Manoe and his wife were looking on, 20 as the flame rose to the sky from the altar, the angel of the Lord ascended in the flame of the altar. When Manoe and his wife saw this, they fell prostrate to the ground; 21 but the angel of the Lord was seen no more by Manoe and his wife. Then Manoe, realizing that it was the angel of the Lord, 22 said to his wife, "We will certainly die, for we have seen God." l 23 But his wife pointed out to him, "If the Lord had meant to 24 The woman bore a son and named him Samson.[m] The boy grew up and the Lord blessed him; 25 the spirit of the Lord first stirred him in Mahane-Dan, which is between Saraa and Esthaol.

CHAPTER 14.

Marriage of Samson. 1 Samson went down to Thamna and saw there one of the Philistine women.* 2 On his return he told his father and mother, "There is a Philistine woman I saw in Thamna whom I wish you to get as a wife for me." 3 His father and mother said to him, "Can you find no wife among your kinsfolk or among all our people, that you must go and take a wife from the uncircumcised Philistines?" But Samson answered his father, "Get her for me, for she pleases me." 4 [n] Now his father and mother did not know that this had been brought about by the Lord, who was providing an opportunity against the Philistines; for at that time they had dominion over Israel.

5 *So Samson went down to Thamna with his father and mother. When they had come to the vineyards of Thamna, a young lion came roaring to meet him. 6 But the spirit of the Lord came upon Samson, and although he had no weapons, he tore the lion in pieces as one tears a kid. 7 However, on the journey to speak for the woman, he did not mention to his father or mother what he had done. 8 Later, when he returned to marry the woman who pleased him, he stepped aside to look at the remains of the lion and found a swarm of bees and honey in the lion's carcass. 9 So he scooped the honey out into his palms and ate it as he went along. When he came to his father and mother, he gave them some to eat, without telling them that he had scooped the honey from the lion's carcass.

10 His father also went down to the woman, and Samson gave a banquet there, since it was customary for the young men to do this. 11 When they met him, they brought thirty men to be his companions.* 12 Samson said to them, "Let me propose a riddle to you. If within the seven days of the feast you solve it for me successfully, I will give you thirty linen tunics and thirty sets of garments. 13 But if you cannot answer it for me, you must give me thirty tunics and thirty sets of garments." "Propose your riddle," they responded; "we will listen to it." 14 So he said to them, "Out of the eater came forth food, and out of the strong came forth sweetness." 15 After three days' failure to answer the riddle, they said on the fourth day to Samson's wife, "Coax your husband to answer the riddle for us, or we will burn you and your family. Did you invite us here to reduce us to poverty?" 16 At Samson's side, his wife wept and said, "You must hate me; you do not love me, for you have proposed a riddle to my countrymen, but have not told me the answer." He said to her, "If I have not told it even to my father or my mother, must I tell it to you?" 17 But she wept beside him during the seven days the feast lasted. On the seventh day, since she importuned him, he told her the answer, and she explained the riddle to her countrymen.

18 On the seventh day, before the sun set, the men of the city said to him, "What is sweeter than honey, and what is stronger than a lion?" He replied to them, "If you had not plowed with my heifer, you would not have solved my riddle."

19 The spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he went down to Ascalon, where he killed thirty of their men and despoiled them; he gave their garments to those who had answered the riddle. Then he went off to his own family in anger, and 20 Samson's wife was married to the one who had been best man at his wedding.[o]

CHAPTER 15.

Samson Defeats the Philistines. [1] After some time, in the season of the wheat harvest, Samson visited his wife, bringing a kid. But when he said, "Let me be with my wife in private," her father would not let him enter, [2] saying, "I thought it certain you wished to repudiate her; so I gave her to your best man. Her younger sister is more beautiful than she; you may have her instead." [3] Samson said to them, "This time the Philistines cannot blame me if I harm them." [4] So Samson left and caught three hundred foxes. Turning them tail to tail, he tied between each pair of tails one of the torches he had at hand. [5] He then kindled the torches and set the foxes loose in the standing grain of the Philistines, thus burning both the shocks and the standing grain, and the vineyards and olive orchards as well.

[6] [p] When the Philistines asked who had done this, they were told, "Samson, the son-in-law of the Thamnaite, because his wife was taken and given to his best man." So the Philistines went up and destroyed her and her family by fire. [7] Samson said to them, "If this is how you act, I will not stop until I have taken revenge on you." [8] And with repeated blows, he inflicted a great slaughter on them. Then he went down and remained in a cavern of the cliff of Etam.

[9] The Philistines went up and, from a camp in Juda, deployed against Lehi. [10] When the men of Juda asked, "Why have you come up against us?" they answered, "To take Samson prisoner; to do to him as he has done to us." [11] Three thousand men of Juda went down to the cavern in the cliff of Etam and said to Samson, "Do you not know that the Philistines are our rulers? Why, then, have you done this to us?" He answered them, "As they have done to me, so have I done to them." [12] They said to him, "We have come to take you prisoner, to deliver you over to the Philistines." Samson said to them, "Swear to me that you will not kill me yourselves." [13] "No," they replied, "we will certainly not kill you but will only bind you and deliver you over to them." [q] So they bound him with two new ropes and brought him up from the cliff. [14] When he reached Lehi, and the Philistines came shouting to meet him, the spirit of the Lord came upon him: the ropes around his arms became as flax that is consumed by fire and his bonds melted away from his hands. [15] Near him was the fresh jawbone of an ass; he reached out, grasped it, and with it killed a thousand men. [16] Then Samson said, "With the jawbone of an ass I have piled them in a heap; with the jawbone of an ass I have slain a thousand men."

[17] As he finished speaking he threw the jawbone from him; and so that place was named Ramath-Lehi.* [18] Being very thirsty, he cried to the Lord and said, "You have granted this great victory by the hand of your servant. Must I now die of thirst or fall into the hands of the uncircumcised?" [19] Then God split the cavity in Lehi, and water issued from it, which Samson drank till his spirit returned and he revived. Hence that spring in Lehi is called En-Haccore* to this day.

[20] Samson judged Israel for twenty years in the days of the Philistines.[r]

CHAPTER 16.

[1] Once Samson went to Gaza, where he saw a harlot and visited her. [2] Informed that Samson had come there, the men of Gaza surrounded him with an ambush at the city gate all night long. And all the night they waited, saying, "Tomorrow morning we will kill him." [3] Samson rested there until midnight. Then he rose, seized the doors of the city gate and the two gateposts, and tore them loose, bar and all. He hoisted them on his shoulders and carried them to the top of the ridge opposite Hebron.

Samson and Dalila. [4] After that he fell in love with a woman in the Wadi Sorec whose name was Dalila. [5] The lords of the Philistines came to her and said, "Beguile him and find out the secret of his great strength, and how we may overcome and bind him so as to keep him helpless. We will each give you eleven hundred shekels of silver."

[6] So Dalila said to Samson, "Tell me the secret of your great strength and how you may be bound so as to be kept helpless." 7 "If they bind me with seven fresh bowstrings which have not dried," Samson answered her, "I shall be as weak as any other man." 8 So the lords of the Philistines brought her seven fresh bowstrings which had not dried, and she bound him with them. 9 She had men lying in wait in the chamber and so she said to him, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" But he snapped the strings as a thread of tow is severed by a whiff of flame;[s] and the secret of his strength remained unknown.

10 Dalila said to Samson, "You have mocked me and told me lies. 11 Now tell me how you may be bound." "If they bind me tight with new ropes, with which no work has been done," he answered her, "I shall be as weak as any other man."[t] 12 So Dalila took new ropes and bound him with them. Then she said to him, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" For there were men lying in wait in the chamber. But he snapped them off his arms like thread.

13 Dalila said to Samson again, "Up to now you have mocked me and told me lies. Tell me how you may be bound." He said to her, "If you weave my seven locks of hair into the web and fasten them with the pin, I shall be as weak as any other man." 14 So while he slept, Dalila wove his seven locks of hair into the web, and fastened them in with the pin. Then she said, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!" Awakening from his sleep, he pulled out both the weaver's pin and the web.

15 Then she said to him, "How can you say that you love me when you do not confide in me? Three times already you have mocked me, and not told me the secret of your great strength!" 16 She importuned him continually and vexed him with her complaints till he was deathly weary of them. 17 So he took her completely into his confidence and told her, "No razor has touched my head,[u] for I have been consecrated to God from my mother's womb. If I am shaved, my strength will leave me, and I shall be as weak as any other man!" 18 When Dalila saw that he had taken her completely into his confidence, she summoned the lords of the Philistines, saying, "Come up this time, for he has opened his heart to me." So the lords of the Philistines came and brought up the money with them. 19 She had him sleep on her lap, and called for a man who shaved off his seven locks of hair. Then she began to mistreat him, for his strength had left him. 20 When she said, "The Philistines are upon you, Samson!", and he woke from his sleep, he thought he could make good his escape as he had done time and again, for he did not realize that the Lord had left him. 21 But the Philistines seized him and gouged out his eyes. Then they brought him down to Gaza and bound him with bronze fetters, and he was put to grinding in the prison. 22 But the hair of his head began to grow as soon as it was shaved off.

The Death of Samson. 23 [v] The lords of the Philistines assembled to offer a great sacrifice to their god Dagon* and to make merry. They said, "Our god has delivered into our power Samson our enemy." 24 When their spirits were high, they said, "Call Samson that he may amuse us." So they called Samson from the prison, and he played the buffoon before them. 25 When the people saw him, they praised their god. For they said, "Our god has delivered into our power our enemy, the ravager of our land, the one who has multiplied our slain."

Then they stationed him between the columns. 26 Samson said to the attendant who was holding his hand, "Put me where I may touch the columns that support the temple and may rest against them." 27 The temple was full of men and women: all the lords of the Philistines were there, and from the roof about three thousand men and women looked on as Samson provided amusement. 28 Samson cried out to the Lord and said, "O Lord God, remember me! Strengthen me, O God, this last time that for my two eyes I may avenge myself once and for all on the Philistines." 29 Samson grasped the two middle columns on which the temple rested and braced himself against them, one at his right hand, the other at his left. 30 And Samson said, "Let me die with the Philistines!" He pushed hard, and the temple fell upon the lords and all the people who were in it. Those he killed at his death were more than those he had killed during his lifetime.

31 All his family and kinsmen went down and bore him up for burial in the grave of his father Manoe between Saraa and Esthaol. He had judged Israel for twenty years.[w]

III: THE TRIBES OF DAN AND BENJAMIN IN THE DAYS OF THE JUDGES

CHAPTER 17.

Micha and the Levite. 1 There was a man in the mountain region of Ephraim whose name was Micha. 2 He said to his mother, "The eleven hundred shekels of silver over which you pronounced a curse in my hearing when they were taken from you, are in my possession. It was I who took them; so now I will restore them to you." 3 When he restored the eleven hundred shekels of silver to his mother, she took two hundred of them and gave them to the silversmith, who made of them a carved idol* overlaid with silver.[x] Then his mother said, "May the Lord bless my son! 4 I have consecrated the silver to the Lord as my gift in favor of my son, by making a carved idol overlaid with silver." It remained in the house of Micha. 5 Thus the layman Micha had a sanctuary. He also made an ephod and household idols,[y] and consecrated one of his sons, who became his priest. 6 In those days there was no king in Israel; everyone did what he thought best.[z]

7 There was a young Levite who had resided within the tribe of Juda at Bethlehem of Juda. 8 From that city he set out to find another place of residence. On his journey he came to the house of Micha in the mountain region of Ephraim. 9 Micha said to him, "Where do you come from?" He answered him, "I am a Levite from Bethlehem in Juda, and am on my way to find some other place of residence." 10 "Stay with me," Micha said to him. "Be father and priest to me,[a] and I will give you ten silver shekels a year, a set of garments, and your food." 11 So the young Levite decided to stay with the man, to whom he became as one of his own sons. 12 *Micha consecrated the young Levite, who became his priest, remaining in his house. 13 Therefore Micha said, "Now I know that the Lord will prosper me, since the Levite has become my priest."

CHAPTER 18.

Migration of the Danites. 1 At that time there was no king in Israel.[b] Moreover the tribe of Danites were in search of a district to dwell in, for up to that time they had received no heritage among the tribes of Israel.*

2 So the Danites sent from their clan a detail of five valiant men of Saraa and Esthaol, to reconnoiter the land and scout it. With their instructions to go and scout the land, they traveled as far as the house of Micha in the mountain region of Ephraim, where they passed the night. 3 Near the house of Micha, they recognized the voice* of the young Levite[c] and turned in that direction. "Who brought you here and what are you doing here?" they asked him. "What is your interest here?" 4 "This is how Micha treats me," he replied to them. "He pays me a salary and I am his priest."[d] 5 They said to him, "Consult God, that we may know whether the undertaking we are engaged in will succeed." 6 The priest said to them, "Go and prosper: the Lord is favorable to the undertaking you are engaged in."

7 So the five men went on and came to Lais. They saw that the people dwelling there lived securely after the manner of the Sidonians, quiet and trusting, with no lack of any natural resources. They were distant from the Sidonians and had no contact with other people. 8 When the five returned to their kinsmen in Saraa and Esthaol and were asked for a report, 9 they replied, "Come, let us attack them, for we have seen the land and it is very good. Are you going to hesitate? Do not be slothful about beginning your expedition to possess the land. 10 Those against whom you go are a trusting people, and the land is ample. God has indeed given it into your power: a place where no natural resource is lacking."

11 So six hundred men of the clan of the Danites, fully armed with weapons of war, set out from where they were in Saraa and Esthaol, 12 and encamped in Juda, up near Cariath-jarim; hence to this day the place, which lies west of Cariath-jarim, is called Mahane-Dan.[e]

13 From there they went on to the mountain region of Ephraim and came to the house of Micha. 14 The five men who had gone to reconnoiter the land of Lais said to their kinsmen, "Do you know that in these houses there are an ephod, household idols, and a carved idol overlaid with silver?[f] Now decide what you must do!" 15 So turning in that direction, they went to the house of the young Levite at the home of Micha and greeted him. 16 The six hundred men girt with weapons of war, who were Danites, stood by the entrance of the gate, and the priest stood there also. 17 Meanwhile the five men who had gone to reconnoiter the land went up and entered the house of Micha. 18 When they had gone in and taken the ephod, the household idols, and the carved idol overlaid with silver, the priest said to them, "What are you doing?" 19 They said to him, "Be still: put your hand over your mouth. Come with us and be our father and priest.[g] Is it better for you to be priest for the family of one man or to be priest for a tribe and a clan in Israel?" 20 The priest, agreeing, took the ephod, household idols, and carved idol and went off in the midst of the band. 21 As they turned to depart, they placed their little ones, their livestock, and their goods at the head of the column.

22 The Danites had already gone some distance, when those in the houses near that of Micha took up arms and overtook them. 23 They called to the Danites, who turned about and said to Micha, "What do you want, that you have taken up arms?" 24 "You have taken my god, which I made, and have gone off with my priest as well," he answered. "What is left for me? How, then, can you ask me what I want?" 25 The Danites said to him, "Let us hear no further sound from you, lest fierce men fall upon you and you and your family lose your lives." 26 The Danites then went on their way, and Micha, seeing that they were stronger than he, returned home.

27 Having taken what Micha had made, and the priest he had had, they attacked Lais, a quiet and trusting people; they put them to the sword and destroyed their city by fire. 28 No one came to their aid, since the city was far from Sidon and they had no contact with other people. The Danites then rebuilt the city, which was in the valley that belongs to Beth-Rohob, and lived there. 29 They named it Dan after their ancestor Dan, son of Israel. However, the name of the city was formerly Lais. 30 The Danites set up the carved idol for themselves, and Jonathan, son of Gersam, son of Moses, and his descendants were priests for the tribe of the Danites until the time of the captivity of the land.* 31 They maintained the carved idol Micha had made as long as the house of God was in Silo.

CHAPTER 19.

The Levite from Ephraim. 1 At that time, when there was no king in Israel,[h] there was a Levite residing in remote parts of the mountain region of Ephraim who had taken for himself a concubine from Bethlehem of Juda. 2 His concubine was unfaithful to him and left him for her father's house in Bethlehem of Juda, where she stayed for some four months. 3 Her husband then set out with his servant and a pair of asses, and went after her to forgive her and take her back. She brought him into her father's house, and on seeing him, the girl's father joyfully made him welcome. 4 He was detained by the girl's father, and so he spent three days with this father-in-law of his, eating and drinking and passing the night there. 5 *On the fourth day they rose early in the morning and he prepared to go. But the girl's father said to his son-in-law, "Fortify yourself with a little food; you can go later on." 6 So they stayed and the two men ate and drank together.

Then the girl's father said to the husband,
"Why not decide to spend the night here and enjoy yourself?" 7 The man still made a move to go, but when his father-in-law pressed him he went back and spent the night there.

8 On the fifth morning he rose early to depart, but the girl's father said, "Fortify yourself and tarry until the afternoon." When he and his father-in-law had eaten, 9 and the husband was ready to go with his concubine and servant, the girl's father said to him, "It is already growing dusk. Stay for the night. See, the day is coming to an end. Spend the night here and enjoy yourself. Early tomorrow you can start your journey home." 10 The man, however, refused to stay another night; he and his concubine set out with a pair of saddled asses, and traveled till they came opposite Jebus, which is Jerusalem. 11 Since they were near Jebus with the day far gone, the servant said to his master, "Come, let us turn off to this city of the Jebusites and spend the night in it." 12 But his master said to him, "We will not turn off to a city of foreigners, who are not Israelites, but will go on to Gabaa.[i] 13 Come," he said to his servant,
"let us make for some other place, either Gabaa or Rama,[j] to spend the night." 14
So they continued on their way till the sun set on them when they were abreast of Gabaa of Benjamin.

15 *There they turned off to enter Ga-baa for the night.[k] The man waited in the public square of the city he had entered,
but no one offered them the shelter of his home for the night. 16 In the evening,
however, an old man came from his work in the field; he was from the mountain region of Ephraim, though he lived among the Benjaminite townspeople of Gabaa. 17 When he noticed the traveler in the public square of the city, the old man asked where he was going, and whence he had come. 18 He said to him, "We are traveling from Bethlehem of Juda far up into the mountain region of Ephraim, where I belong. I have been to Bethlehem of Juda and am now going back home;
but no one has offered us the shelter of his house. 19 We have straw and fodder for our asses, and bread and wine for the woman and myself and for our servant;
there is nothing else we need." 20 "You are welcome," the old man said to him,
"but let me provide for all your needs,
and do not spend the night in the public square." 21 So he led them to his house and provided fodder for the asses. Then they washed their feet, and ate and drank.[l]

The Outrage at Gabaa. 22 [m] While they were enjoying themselves, the men of the city, who were corrupt,* surrounded the house and beat on the door. They said to the old man whose house it was, "Bring out your guest, that we may abuse him." 23 The owner of the house went out to them and said, "No, my brothers; do not be so wicked. Since this man is my guest, do not commit this crime. 24 Rather let me bring out my maiden daughter or his concubine. Ravish them, or do whatever you want with them; but against the man
you must not commit this wanton crime." 25 When the men would not listen to his host, the husband seized his concubine and thrust her outside to them. They had relations with her and abused her all night until the following dawn, when they let her go. 26 Then at daybreak the woman came and collapsed at the entrance of the house in which her husband was a guest,
where she lay until the morning. 27 When her husband rose that day and opened the door of the house to start out again on his journey, there lay the woman, his concubine, at the entrance of the house with her hands on the threshold. 28 He said to her, "Come, let us go"; but there was no answer. So the man placed her on an ass and started out again for home.

29 *On reaching home, he took a knife to the body of his concubine, cut her into twelve pieces, and sent them throughout the territory of Israel. 30 [n] Everyone who saw this said, "Nothing like this has been done or seen from the day the Israelites came up from the land of Egypt to this day. Take note of it, and state what you propose to do."

CHAPTER 20.

Assembly of Israelites. 1 So all the Israelites came out as one man: from Dan to Bersabee,* and from the land of Galaad, the community was gathered to the Lord at Maspha. 2 The leaders of all the people and all the tribesmen of Israel, four hundred thousand foot soldiers who were swordsmen, presented themselves in the assembly of the people of God. 3 Meanwhile, the Benjaminites heard that the Israelites had gone up to Maspha. The Israelites asked to be told how the crime had taken place, 4 and the Levite, the husband of the murdered woman, testified: "My concubine and I went into Gabaa of Benjamin [o] for the night. 5 [p] But the citizens of Gabaa rose up against me by night and surrounded the house in which I was. Me they attempted to kill, and my concubine they abused so that she died. 6 [q] So I took my concubine and cut her up and sent her through every part of the territory of Israel, because of the monstrous crime they had committed in Israel. 7 *Now that you are all here, O Israelites, state what you propose to do." [r] 8 All the people rose as one man to say, "None of us is to leave for his tent or return to his home. 9 Now as for Gabaa, this is what we will do: We will proceed against it by lot, 10 taking from all the tribes of Israel ten men for every hundred, a hundred for every thousand, a thousand for every ten thousand, and procuring supplies for the soldiers who will go to deal fully and suitably with Gabaa of Benjamin for the crime it committed in Israel."

11 When, therefore, all the men of Israel without exception were leagued together against the city, 12 the tribes of Israel sent men throughout the tribe of Benjamin to say, "What is this evil which has occurred among you? 13 Now give up these corrupt men of Gabaa, that we may put them to death and thus purge the evil from Israel." But the Benjaminites refused to accede to the demand of their brothers, the Israelites. 14 Instead, the Benjaminites assembled from their other cities to Gabaa, to do battle with the Israelites. 15 The number of the Benjaminite swordsmen from the other cities on that occasion was twenty-six thousand, in addition to the inhabitants of Gabaa. 16 Included in this total were seven hundred picked men who were left-handed, every one of them able to sling a stone at a hair without missing. 17 Meanwhile the other Israelites who, without Benjamin, mustered four hundred thousand swordsmen ready for battle, 18 moved on to Bethel and consulted God. When the Israelites asked who should go first in the attack on the Benjaminites,[s] the Lord said, "Juda shall go first." 19 The next day the Israelites advanced on Gabaa with their forces.

War with Benjamin. 20 On the day the Israelites drew up in battle array at Gabaa for the combat with Benjamin, 21 the Benjaminites came out of the city and felled twenty-two thousand men of Israel. 23 Then the Israelites went up and wept before the Lord until evening. "Shall I again engage my brother Benjamin in battle?" they asked the Lord; and the Lord answered that they should. 22 But though the Israelite soldiers took courage and again drew up for combat in the same place as on the previous day, 24 when they met the Benjaminites for the second time, 25 once again the Benjaminites who came out of Gabaa against them felled eighteen thousand Israelites, all of them swordsmen. 26 So the entire Israelite army went up to Bethel, where they wept and remained fasting before the Lord until evening of that day, besides offering holocausts and peace offerings before the Lord. 27 [t] When the Israelites consulted the Lord (for the Ark of the Covenant of God was there in those days, 28 and Phinees, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, was ministering to him in those days), and asked, "Shall I go out again to battle with 20, 1: From Dan to Bersabee: from north to south. The land of Galaad: all the territory east of the Jordan.

20, 7: The Israelites were asked to decide at once what action to take concerning this crime; cf 2 Kgs 16, 20. The Levite undoubtedly addressed the tribal heads who would speak in behalf of the multitude.

20, 12: Before the crime at Gabaa was punished, the Benjaminites were invited to join their brethren, the Israelites, in punishing the crime. Since they failed to respond, special messengers were sent asking them to deliver up the guilty ones. They replied by gathering their forces for combat.

20, 18: Juda shall go first: the same response as in Jgs 1, 1f, but without the assurance of immediate success. Only after the Israelites were punished at the hands of the Benjaminites for their own grossness, and had performed penance, did they succeed in punishing the latter for their part in the crime of rape and murder, by gaining the victory over them.

Benjamin, my brother, or shall I desist?" the Lord said, "Attack! for tomorrow I will deliver him into your power." [29] [u] So Israel set men in ambush around Gabaa.*

[30] The Israelites went up against the Benjaminites for the third time and formed their line of battle at Gabaa as on other occasions. [31] The Benjaminites went out to meet them, and in the beginning they killed off about thirty of the Israelite soldiers in the open field, just as on the other occasions. [32] Therefore the Benjaminites thought, "We are defeating them as before"; not realizing that disaster was about to overtake them. The Israelites, however, had planned the flight so as to draw them away from the city onto the highways. They were drawn away from the city onto the highways, of which the one led to Bethel, the other to Gabaon. [33] And then all the men of Israel rose from their places. They reformed their ranks at Baal-Thamar, and the Israelites in ambush rushed from their place west of Gabaa, [34] ten thousand picked men from all Israel, and advanced against the city itself. In a fierce battle, [35] the Lord defeated Benjamin before Israel; and on that day the Israelites killed twenty-five thousand one hundred men of Benjamin, all of them swordsmen.

[36] To the Benjaminites it had looked as though the enemy were defeated, for the men of Israel gave ground to Benjamin, trusting in the ambush they had set at Gabaa. [37] But then the men in ambush made a sudden dash into Gabaa, overran it, and put the whole city to the sword. [38] Now, the other Israelites had agreed with the men in ambush on a smoke signal they were to send up from the city. [39] And though the men of Benjamin had begun by killing off some thirty of the men of Israel, under the impression that they were defeating them as surely as in the earlier fighting, the Israelites wheeled about to resist [40] as the smoke of the signal column began to rise up from the city. It was when Benjamin looked back and saw the whole city in flames against the sky [41] that the men of Israel wheeled about. Therefore the men of Benjamin were thrown into confusion, for they realized the disaster that had overtaken them. [42] They retreated before the men of Israel in the direction of the desert, with the fight being pressed against them. In their very midst, meanwhile, those who had been in the city were spreading destruction. [43] The men of Benjamin had been surrounded, and were now pursued to a point east of Geba, [44] while eighteen thousand of them fell, warriors to a man. [45] The rest turned and fled through the desert to the rock Rimmon.[v] But on the highways the Israelites picked off five thousand men among them, and chasing them up to Gadaam, killed another two thousand of them there. [46] Those of Benjamin who fell on that day were in all twenty-five thousand swordsmen, warriors to a man. [47] But six hundred others who turned and fled through the desert reached the rock Rimmon, where they remained for four months.

[48] The men of Israel withdrew through the territory of the Benjaminites, putting to the sword the inhabitants of the cities, the livestock, and all they chanced upon. Moreover they destroyed by fire all the cities they came upon.

CHAPTER 21.

Wives for the Survivors. [1] Now the men of Israel* had sworn at Maspha that none of them would give his daughter in marriage to anyone from Benjamin. [2] So the people went to Bethel and remained there before God until evening, raising their voices in bitter lament.[w] [3] They said, "Lord, God of Israel, why has it come to pass in Israel that today one tribe of Israel should be lacking?" [4] Early the next day the people built an altar there and offered holocausts and peace offerings. [5] Then the Israelites asked, "Are there any among all the tribes of Israel who did not come up to the Lord for the assembly?" For they had taken a solemn oath that anyone who did not go up to the Lord at Maspha should be put to death without fail.[x]

[6] *The Israelites were disconsolate over their brother Benjamin and said, "Today

21, 1-3: The anger of the Israelites led them to destroy their brethren, the Benjaminites. Having realized their goal, however, they were soon filled with dismay, and sought to restore the tribe they had all but exterminated.

one of the tribes of Israel has been cut off. 7 What can we do about wives for the survivors, since we have sworn by the Lord not to give them any of our daughters in marriage?" 8 And when they asked whether anyone among the tribes of Israel had not come up to the Lord in Maspha, they found that none of the men of Jabes-Galaad had come to the encampment for the assembly. 9 A roll call of the army established that none of the inhabitants of that city were present. 10 The community, therefore, sent twelve thousand warriors with orders to go to Jabes-Galaad and put those who lived there to the sword, including the women and children. 11 They were told to include under the ban* all males and every woman who was not still a virgin.[y] 12 Finding among the inhabitants of Jabes-Galaad four hundred young virgins, who had had no relations with men, they brought them to the camp at Silo in the land of Chanaan. 13 [z] Then the whole community sent a message to the Benjaminites at the rock Rimmon, offering them peace. 14 When Benjamin returned at that time, they gave them as wives the women of Jabes-Galaad whom they had spared; but these proved to be not enough for them.

15 The people were still disconsolate over Benjamin because the Lord had made a breach* among the tribes of Israel. 16 And the elders of the community said, "What shall we do for wives for the survivors? For every woman in Benjamin has been put to death." 17 They said, "Those of Benjamin who survive must have heirs, else one of the Israelite tribes will be wiped out. 18 *Yet we cannot give them any of our daughters in marriage, because the Israelites have sworn, 'Cursed be he who gives a woman to Benjamin!'" 19 Then they thought of the yearly feast of the Lord at Silo, north of Bethel, east of the highway that goes up from Bethel to Sichem, and south of Lebona. 20 And they instructed the Benjaminites, "Go and lie in wait in the vineyards. 21 When you see the girls of Silo come out to do their dancing, leave the vineyards and each of you seize one of the girls of Silo for a wife, and go to the land of Benjamin. 23 When their fathers or their brothers come to complain to us, we shall say to them, 'Release them to us as a kindness, since we did not take a woman apiece in the war. Had you yourselves given them these wives, you would now be guilty.'"

23 The Benjaminites did this; they carried off a wife for each of them from their raid on the dancers, and went back to their own territory, where they rebuilt and occupied the cities. 24 Also at that time the Israelites dispersed; each of them left for his own heritage in his own clan and tribe.

25 *In those days there was no king in Israel; everyone did what he thought best.[a]

THE BOOK OF RUTH

The Book of Ruth is named after the Moabite woman who was joined to the Israelite people by her marriage with the influential Booz of Bethlehem.

The book contains a beautiful example of filial piety, pleasing to the Hebrews especially because of its connection with King David, and useful both to Hebrews and to Gentiles. Its aim is to demonstrate the divine reward for such piety even when practiced by a stranger. Ruth's piety (Ru 2, 11), her spirit of self-sacrifice, and her moral integrity were favored by God with the gift of faith and an illustrious marriage whereby she became the ancestress of David and of Christ. In this, the universality of the Messianic salvation is foreshadowed.

In the Greek and Latin canons the Book of Ruth is placed just after Judges, to which it is closely related because of the time of its action, and just before Samuel, for which it is an excellent introduction, since it traces the ancestry of the Davidic dynasty. One might characterize the literary form of this book as dramatic, since about two-thirds of it is in dialogue. Yet there is every indication that, as tradition has always held, it contains true history.

There is no certainty about the author of the book. It was written long after the events had passed (Ru 4, 7), which took place "in the time of the judges" (Ru 1, 1).

CHAPTER 1.

Noemi in Moab. 1 Once in the time of the judges* there was a famine in the land; so a man from Bethlehem of Juda departed with his wife and two sons to reside on the plateau of Moab. 2 The man was named Elimelech, his wife Noemi, and his sons Mahalon and Chelion; they were Ephrathites from Bethlehem of Juda. Some time after their arrival on the Moabite plateau, 3 Elimelech, the husband of Noemi, died, and she was left with her two sons, 4 who married Moabite women, one named Orpha, the other Ruth. When they had lived there about ten years, 5 both Mahalon and Chelion died also, and the woman was left with neither her two sons nor her husband. 6 She then made ready to go back from the plateau of Moab because word reached her there that the Lord had visited his people and given them food.

7 She and her two daughters-in-law left the place where they had been living. Then as they were on the road back to the land of Juda, 8 Noemi said to her two daughters-in-law, "Go back, each of you, to your mother's house!* May the Lord be kind to you as you were to the departed and to me! 9 May the Lord grant each of you a husband and a home in which you will find rest." She kissed them good-by, but they wept with loud sobs, 10 and told her they would return with her to her people. 11 "Go back, my daughters!" said Noemi. "Why should you come with me? Have I other sons in my womb who may become your husbands?* 12 Go back, my daughters! Go, for I am too old to marry again. And even if I could offer any hopes, or if tonight I had a husband or had borne sons, 13 would you then wait and deprive yourselves of husbands until those sons grew up? No, my daughters! my lot is too bitter for you, because the Lord has extended his hand against me." 14 Again they sobbed aloud and wept; and Orpha kissed her mother-in-law good-by, but Ruth stayed with her.

15 "See now!" she said, "your sister-in-law has gone back to her people and her god. Go back after your sister-in-law!" 16 *But Ruth said, "Do not ask me to abandon or forsake you! for wherever you go I will go, wherever you lodge I will lodge, your people shall be my people, and your God my God. 17 Wherever you die I will die, and there be buried. May the Lord do so and so to me, and more besides, if aught but death separates me from you!" 18 Noemi then ceased to urge her, for she saw she was determined to go with her.

The Return to Bethlehem. 19 So they went on together till they reached Bethlehem. On their arrival there, the whole city was astir over them, and the women asked, "Can this be Noemi?" 20 a But she said to them, "Do not call me Noemi.* Call me Mara, for the Almighty has made it very bitter for me. 21 I went away with an abundance, but the Lord has brought me back destitute. Why should you call me Noemi, since the Lord has pronounced against me and the Almighty has brought evil upon me?"* 22 Thus it was that Noemi returned with the Moabite daughter-in-law, Ruth, who accompanied her back from the plateau of Moab. They arrived in Bethlehem at the beginning of the barley harvest.*

CHAPTER 2.

The Meeting. 1 Noemi had a prominent kinsman named Booz,[b] of the clan of her husband Elimelech. 2 Ruth the Moabite said to Noemi, "Let me go and glean ears of grain* in the field of anyone who will allow me that favor." [c] Noemi said to her, "Go, my daughter," 3 and she went. The field she entered to glean after the harvesters happened to be the section belonging to Booz of the clan of Elimelech. 4 Booz himself came from Bethlehem and said to the harvesters, "The Lord be with you!"* and they replied, "The Lord bless you!" 5 Booz asked the overseer of his harvesters, "Whose girl is this?" 6 The overseer of the harvesters answered, "She is the Moabite girl who returned from the plateau of Moab with Noemi.[d] 7 She asked leave to gather the gleanings into sheaves after the harvesters; and ever since she came this morning she has remained here until now, with scarcely a moment's rest."

8 Booz said to Ruth, "Listen, my daughter! Do not go to glean in anyone else's field; you are not to leave here. Stay here with my women servants. 9 Watch to see which field is to be harvested, and follow them; I have commanded the young men to do you no harm. When you are thirsty, you may go and drink from the vessels the young men have filled." 10 Casting herself prostrate upon the ground, she said to him, "Why should I, a foreigner, be favored with your notice?" 11 [e] Booz answered her: "I have had a complete account of what you have done for your mother-in-law after your husband's death; you have left your father and your mother and the land of your birth, and have come to a people whom you did not know previously. 12 May the Lord reward what you have done! May you receive a full reward from the Lord, the God of Israel, under whose wings you have come for refuge." 13 She said, "May I prove worthy of your kindness, my lord: you have comforted me, your servant, with your consoling words; would indeed that I were a servant of yours!" 14 At mealtime Booz said to her, "Come here and have some food; dip your bread in the sauce." Then as she sat near the reapers, he handed her some roasted grain and she ate her fill and had some left over. 15 She rose to glean, and Booz instructed his servants to let her glean among the sheaves themselves without scolding her, 16 and even to let drop some handfuls and leave them for her to glean without being rebuked.

17 She gleaned in the field until evening, and when she beat out what she had gleaned it came to about an epha of barley, 18 which she took into the city and showed to her mother-in-law. Next she brought out and gave her what she had left over from lunch. 19 So her mother-in-law said to her, "Where did you glean today? Where did you go to work? May he who took notice of you be blessed!" Then she told her mother-in-law with whom she had worked. "The man at whose place I worked today is named Booz," she said. 20 [f] "May he be blessed by the Lord, who is ever merciful to the living and to the dead," Noemi exclaimed to her daughter-in-law; and she continued, "He is a relative of ours, one of our next of kin."* 21 "He even told me," added Ruth the Moabite, "that I should stay with his servants until they complete his entire harvest." 22 "You would do well, my dear," Noemi rejoined, "to go out with his servants; for in someone else's field you might be insulted." 23 So she stayed gleaning with the servants of

CHAPTER 3.

Ruth Again Presents Herself. When she was back with her mother-in-law,[g] 1 Noemi said to her, "My daughter, I must seek a home for you that will please you. 2 Now is not Booz, with whose servants you were, a relative of ours? This evening he will be winnowing barley at the threshing floor. 3 So bathe and anoint yourself; then put on your best attire and go down to the threshing floor. Do not make yourself known to the man before he has finished eating and drinking. 4 But when he lies down, take note of the place where he does so. Then go, uncover a place at his feet,* and lie down. He will tell you what to do." 5 "I will do whatever you advise," Ruth replied. 6 So she went down to the threshing floor and did just as her mother-in-law had instructed her.

7 Booz ate and drank to his heart's content. Then when he went and lay down at the edge of the sheaves, she stole up, uncovered a place at his feet, and lay down. 8 In the middle of the night, however, the man gave a start and turned around to find a woman lying at his feet. 9 He asked, "Who are you?" And she replied, "I am your servant Ruth. Spread the corner of your cloak over me,* for you are my next of kin." 10 He said, "May the Lord bless you, my daughter! You have been even more loyal now than before in not going after the young men, whether poor or rich.[h] 11 So be assured, daughter, I will do for you whatever you say; all my townspeople know you for a worthy woman. 12 [i] Now, though indeed I am closely related to you, you have another relative still closer.* 13 Stay as you are for tonight, and tomorrow, if he wishes to claim you, good! let him do so. But if he does not wish to claim you, as the Lord lives, I will claim you myself. Lie there until morning." [j] 14 So she lay at his feet until morning, but rose before men could recognize one another. Booz said, "Let it not be known that this woman came to the threshing floor." 15 Then he said to her, "Take off your cloak and hold it out." When she did so, he poured out six measures of barley, helped her lift the bundle,[k] and left for the city.

16 Ruth went home to her mother-in-law, who asked, "How have you fared, my daughter?" So she told her all the man had done for her, 17 and concluded, "He gave me these six measures of barley because he did not wish me to come back to my mother-in-law empty-handed!" 18 Noemi then said, "Wait here, my daughter, until you learn what happens, for the man will not rest, but will settle the matter today."

CHAPTER 4.

Booz Marries Ruth. 1 Booz went and took a seat at the gate;* and when he saw the closer relative [l] of whom he had spoken come along, he called to him by name, "Come and sit beside me!" And he did so. 2 Then Booz picked out ten of the elders* of the city and asked them to sit nearby. When they had done this, 3 he said to the near relative: "Noemi, who has come back from the Moabite plateau, is putting up for sale the piece of land that belonged to our kinsman Elimelech. 4 *So I thought I would inform you, bidding you before those here present, including the elders of my people, to put in your claim for it if you wish to acquire it as next of kin.[m] But if you do not wish to claim it, tell me so, that I may be guided accordingly, for no one has a prior claim to yours, and mine is next." He answered, "I will put in my claim."

5 *Booz continued, "Once you acquire the field from Noemi, you must take also

3, 4: Uncover a place at his feet, etc.: confident of the virtue of Ruth and Booz, Noemi advises this unusual expedient to her daughter-in-law for the purpose of introducing her claim.

3, 9: Spread the corner of your cloak over me: be my protector by marrying me according to the duty of a near kinsman; cf Dt 25, 5; Ez 16, 8.

4, 2: Ten of the elders: to serve as judges in legal matters as well as witnesses of the settlement of business affairs; cf Dt 25, 7-9.

4, 4: Poverty had obliged Noemi to sell the land of her deceased husband. The law permitted the nearest kinsman to redeem the land and thus preserve the family patrimony; cf Lv 25, 25.

4, 5f: The heir of Elimelech's field had died without children (Ru 1, 5). The nearest of kin could now redeem the land but he must also take Ruth, the widow of the late heir, to wife to perpetuate the family of the deceased; cf Dt 25, 5f. The first male child of such a marriage would be the legal son of Mahalon and grandson of Elimelech.

Ruth the Moabite,[n] the widow of the late heir, and raise up a family for the departed on his estate." [6] The near relative replied, "I cannot exercise my claim lest I depreciate my own estate. Put in a claim yourself in my stead, for I cannot exercise my claim." [7] Now it used to be the custom in Israel that, to make binding a contract of redemption or exchange, one party would take off his sandal* and give it to the other. This was the form of attestation in Israel. [8] So the near relative, in saying to Booz, "Acquire it for yourself," drew off his sandal. [9] Booz then said to the elders and to all the people, "You are witnesses today that I have acquired from Noemi all the holdings of Elimelech, Chelion and Mahalon. [10] I also take Ruth the Moabite, the widow of Mahalon, as my wife, in order to raise up a family for her late husband on his estate, so that the name of the departed may not perish among his kinsmen and fellow citizens. Do you witness this today?" [11] [o] All those at the gate, including the elders, said, "We do so. May the Lord make this wife come into your house like Rachel and Lia, who between them built up the house of Israel. May you do well in Ephratha and win fame in Bethlehem. [12] [p] With the offspring the Lord will give you from this girl, may your house become like the house of Phares, whom Thamar bore to Juda."*

[13] Booz took Ruth. When they came together as man and wife, the Lord enabled her to conceive and she bore a son. [14] Then the women said to Noemi, "Blessed is the Lord who has not failed to provide you today with an heir! May he become famous in Israel! He will be your comfort and the support of your old age, for his mother is the daughter-in-law who loves you. She is worth more to you than seven sons!" [16] Noemi took the child, placed him on her lap,* and became his nurse. [17] And the neighbor women gave him his name,[q] at the news that a grandson had been born to Noemi. They called him Obed. He was the father of Jesse, the father of David.*

[18] [r] These are the descendants of Phares: Phares was the father of Hesron,[s] [19] Hesron was the father of Ram, Ram was the father of Amminadab, [20] [t] Amminadab was the father of Nahasson, Nahasson was the father of Salmon, [21] Salmon was the father of Booz, Booz was the father of Obed, [22] [u] Obed was the father of Jesse, and Jesse became the father of David.

THE FIRST BOOK OF SAMUEL

OTHERWISE CALLED THE FIRST BOOK OF KINGS

This and the following Book are called by the Hebrews, "The Books of Samuel," because they contain the history of Samuel and the two kings, Saul and David, whom he anointed. They are more commonly named by the Church Fathers, "The First and Second Book of Kings."

I: HELI AND SAMUEL

1. Birth of Samuel—His Vocation

CHAPTER 1.

[1] There was a man of Ramathaimsophim, of mount Ephraim, and his name was Elcana, the son of Jeroham, the son of Eliu, the son of Thohu, the son of Suph, an Ephraimite.* [2] And he had two wives, the name of one was Anna, and the name of the other Phenenna. Phenenna had children, but Anna had no children. [3] And this man went up out of his city upon the appointed days, to adore and to offer sacrifice to the Lord of hosts in Silo. And the two sons of Heli, Ophni and Phinees, were there priests of the Lord. [4] Now the day

1, 1: An Ephraimite: he was of the tribe of Levi, but is called an Ephraimite from dwelling in mount Ephraim.

came, and Elcana offered sacrifice, and gave to Phenenna his wife, and to all her sons and daughters, portions; [5] but to Anna he gave one portion with sorrow, because he loved Anna. And the Lord had shut up her womb. [6] Her rival also afflicted her, and troubled her exceedingly, insomuch that she upbraided her, that the Lord had shut up her womb. [7] And thus she did every year, when the time returned that they went up to the temple of the Lord: and thus she provoked her, but Anna wept, and did not eat. [8] Then Elcana her husband said to her: Anna, why weepest thou? And why dost thou not eat? And why dost thou afflict thy heart? Am not I better to thee than ten children?

[9] So Anna arose after she had eaten and drunk in Silo. And Heli the priest sitting upon a stool before the door of the temple of the Lord, [10] as Anna had her heart full of grief, she prayed to the Lord, shedding many tears, [11] and she made a vow, saying: O Lord of hosts, if thou wilt look down on the affliction of thy servant, and wilt be mindful of me, and not forget thy handmaid, and wilt give to thy servant a man child, I will give him to the Lord all the days of his life, and no razor shall come upon his head. [12] And it came to pass, as she multiplied prayers before the Lord, that Heli observed her mouth. [13] Now Anna spoke in her heart, and only her lips moved, but her voice was not heard at all. Heli therefore thought her to be drunk, [14] and said to her: How long wilt thou be drunk? Digest a little the wine, of which thou hast taken too much. [15] Anna answering, said: Not so, my lord, for I am an exceeding unhappy woman, and have drunk neither wine nor any strong drink, but I have poured out my soul before the Lord. [16] Count not thy handmaid for one of the daughters of Belial, for out of the abundance of my sorrow and grief have I spoken till now. [17] Then Heli said to her: Go in peace; and the God of Israel grant thee thy petition, which thou hast asked of him. [18] And she said: Would to God thy handmaid may find grace in thy eyes. So the woman went on her way, and ate, and her countenance was no more changed. [19] And they rose in the morning, and worshiped before the Lord; and they returned, and came into their house at Ramatha.

And Elcana knew Anna his wife; and the Lord remembered her. [20] And it came to pass when the time was come about, Anna conceived and bore a son, [a] and called his name Samuel:* because she had asked him of the Lord. [21] And Elcana her husband went up, and all his house, to offer to the Lord the solemn sacrifice, and his vow. [22] But Anna went not up: for she said to her husband: I will not go till the child be weaned, and till I may carry him, that he may appear before the Lord, and may abide always there. [23] And Elcana her husband said to her: Do what seemeth good to thee, and stay till thou wean him: and I pray that the Lord may fulfill his word. So the woman stayed at home, and gave her son suck, till she weaned him.

[24] And after she had weaned him, she carried him with her, with three calves, and three bushels of flour, and a bottle of wine, and she brought him to the house of the Lord in Silo. Now the child was as yet very young. [25] And they immolated a calf, and offered the child to Heli. [26] And Anna said: I beseech thee, my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord; I am that woman who stood before thee here praying to the Lord. [27] For this child did I pray, and the Lord hath granted me my petition, which I asked of him. [28] Therefore I also have lent him to the Lord: all the days of his life, he shall be lent to the Lord. And they adored the Lord there. And Anna prayed, and said:

CHAPTER 2.

The Canticle of Anna. [1] My heart hath rejoiced in the Lord, and my horn* is exalted in my God: my mouth is enlarged over my enemies, because I have joyed in thy salvation.

[2] There is none holy as the Lord is; for there is no other besides thee, and there is none strong like our God. [3] Do not multiply to speak lofty things, boasting. Let old matters depart from your mouth; for the Lord is a God of all knowledge, and to him are thoughts prepared. [4] The bow of the mighty is overcome, and the weak are girt with strength.

[5] They that were full before have hired out themselves for bread: and the hungry are filled, so that the barren hath borne many; and she that had many children is weakened.

6 [b] The Lord killeth and maketh alive, he bringeth down to hell and bringeth back again. 7 The Lord maketh poor and maketh rich, he humbleth and he exalteth.

8 He raiseth up the needy from the dust, and lifteth up the poor from the dunghill, that he may sit with princes, and hold the throne of glory. For the poles of the earth are the Lord's, and upon them he hath set the world.

9 He will keep the feet of his saints, and the wicked shall be silent in darkness, because no man shall prevail by his own strength.

10 The adversaries of the Lord shall fear him: and upon them shall he thunder in the heavens. The Lord shall judge the ends of the earth, and he shall give empire to his king, and shall exalt the horn of his Christ.

11 And Elcana went to Ramatha, to his house: but the child ministered in the sight of the Lord before the face of Heli the priest.

12 Now the sons of Heli were children of Belial, not knowing the Lord, 13 nor the office of the priests to the people; but whosoever had offered a sacrifice, the servant of the priest came, while the flesh was in boiling with a fleshhook of three teeth in his hand, 14 and thrust it into the kettle, or into the caldron, or into the pot, or into the pan; and all that the fleshhook brought up, the priest took to himself. Thus did they to all Israel that came to Silo. 15 Also before they burnt the fat, the servant of the priest came, and said to the man that sacrificed: Give me flesh to boil for the priest, for I will not take of thee sodden flesh, but raw. 16 And he that sacrificed said to him: Let the fat first be burnt today according to the custom, and then take as much as thy soul desireth. But he answered and said to him: Not so; but thou shalt give it me now, or else I will take it by force. 17 Wherefore the sin of the young men was exceeding great before the Lord, because they withdrew men from the sacrifice of the Lord. 18 But Samuel ministered before the face of the Lord, being a child girded with a linen ephod. 19 And his mother made him a little coat, which she brought to him on the appointed days, when she went up with her husband to offer the solemn sacrifice. 20 And Heli blessed Elcana and his wife, and he said to him: The Lord give thee seed of this woman, for the loan thou hast lent to the Lord. And they went to their own home. 21 And the Lord visited Anna, and she conceived and bore three sons and two daughters: and the child Samuel became great before the Lord.

22 Now Heli was very old, and he heard all that his sons did to all Israel: and how they lay with the women that waited at the door of the tabernacle. 23 And he said to them: Why do ye these kinds of things, which I hear, very wicked things, from all the people? 24 Do not so, my sons, for it is no good report that I hear, that you make the people of the Lord to transgress. 25 If one man shall sin against another, God may be appeased in his behalf; but if a man shall sin against the Lord, who shall pray for him?* And they hearkened not to the voice of their father, because the Lord would slay them. 26 But the child Samuel advanced, and grew on, and pleased both the Lord and men.

27 And there came a man of God to Heli, and said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Did I not plainly appear to thy father's house, when they were in Egypt in the house of Pharao? 28 And I chose him out of all the tribes of Israel to be my priest, to go up to my altar, and burn incense to me, and to wear the ephod before me: and I gave to thy father's house of all the sacrifices of the children of Israel. 29 Why have you kicked away my victims and my gifts, which I commanded to be offered in the temple; and thou hast rather honored thy sons than me, to eat the firstfruits of every sacrifice of my people Israel? 30 Wherefore thus saith the Lord

b Dt 32, 39; Tb 13, 2; Wis 16, 13.

2, 25: Who shall pray for him: by these words, Heli would have his sons understand that by their abuse of sacred things, and of the very sacrifices which were appointed to appease the Lord, they deprived themselves of the ordinary means of reconciliation with God, which was by sacrifices. The more, because as they were the chief priests whose business it was to intercede for all others, they had no other to offer sacrifices and to make atonement for them. Because the Lord would slay them: because of their manifold sacrileges, he would not soften their hearts with his grace, but was determined to destroy them.

the God of Israel: [c] I said indeed that thy house, and the house of thy father should minister in my sight, forever. But now saith the Lord: Far be this from me; but whosoever shall glorify me, him will I glorify: but they that despise me, shall be despised. 31 Behold the days come, and I will cut off thy arm, and the arm of thy father's house, that there shall not be an old man in thy house. 32 And thou shalt see thy rival* in the temple, in all the prosperity of Israel, and there shall not be an old man in thy house forever. 33 However I will not altogether take away a man of thee from my altar; but that thy eyes may faint and thy soul be spent, and a great part of thy house shall die when they come to man's estate. 34 And this shall be a sign to thee, that shall come upon thy two sons, Ophni and Phinees: In one day they shall both of them die. 35 And I will raise me up a faithful priest, who shall do according to my heart and my soul, and I will build him a faithful house, and he shall walk all days before my anointed. 36 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall remain in thy house, shall come that he may be prayed for, and shall offer a piece of silver, and a roll of bread, and shall say: Put me, I beseech thee, to somewhat of the priestly office, that I may eat a morsel of bread.

CHAPTER 3.

God Calls Samuel Four Times. 1 Now the child Samuel ministered to the Lord before Heli, and the word of the Lord was precious in those days: there was no manifest vision. 2 And it came to pass one day when Heli lay in his place, and his eyes were grown dim, that he could not see, 3 before the lamp of God went out, Samuel slept in the temple of the Lord, where the ark of God was. 4 And the Lord called Samuel. And he answered: Here am I. 5 And he ran to Heli and said: Here am I, for thou didst call me. He said: I did not call; go back and sleep. And he went and slept.

6 And the Lord called Samuel again. And Samuel arose and went to Heli, and said: Here am I, for thou calledst me. He answered: I did not call thee, my son; return and sleep. 7 Now Samuel did not yet know the Lord, neither had the word of the Lord been revealed to him.

8 And the Lord called Samuel again the third time. And he arose up and went to Heli, 9 and said: Here am I, for thou didst call me. Then Heli understood that the Lord called the child, and he said to Samuel: Go, and sleep; and if he shall call thee any more, thou shalt say: Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth. So Samuel went and slept in his place.

10 And the Lord came and stood; and he called, as he had called the other times: Samuel, Samuel. And Samuel said: Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth. 11 And the Lord said to Samuel: Behold I do a thing in Israel, and whosoever shall hear it, both his ears shall tingle. 12 In that day I will raise up against Heli all the things I have spoken concerning his house; I will begin, and I will make an end. 13 For I have foretold unto him, that I will judge his house forever, for iniquity, because he knew that his sons did wickedly, and did not chastise them. 14 Therefore have I sworn to the house of Heli, that the iniquity of his house shall not be expiated with victims nor offerings forever.

15 And Samuel slept till morning, and opened the doors of the house of the Lord. And Samuel feared to tell the vision to Heli. 16 Then Heli called Samuel, and said: Samuel, my son. And he answered: Here am I. 17 And he asked him: What is the word that the Lord hath spoken to thee? I beseech thee hide it not from me. May God do so and so to thee, and add so and so, if thou hide from me one word of all that were said to thee. 18 So Samuel told him all the words, and did not hide them from him. And he answered: It is the Lord. Let him do what is good in his sight.

19 And Samuel grew, and the Lord was with him, and not one of his words fell to the ground. 20 And all Israel from Dan to Bersabee, knew that Samuel was a faithful prophet of the Lord. 21 And the Lord again appeared in Silo, for the Lord revealed himself to Samuel in Silo, according to the word of the Lord. And the word of Samuel came to pass to all Israel.

2, 32: Rival: a priest of another race. This was partly fulfilled, when Abiathar, of the race of Heli, was removed from the priesthood, and Sadoc, who was of another line, substituted. It was more fully accomplished in the New Testament, when the priesthood of Aaron gave place to that of Christ.

CHAPTER 4.

The Philistines Vanquish the Israelites. 1 And it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered themselves together to fight: and Israel went out to war against the Philistines, and camped by the Stone of help.* And the Philistines came to Aphec, 2 and put their army in array against Israel. And when they had joined battle, Israel turned their backs to the Philistines, and there were slain in that fight here and there in the fields about four thousand men. 3 And the people returned to the camp; and the ancients of Israel said: Why hath the Lord defeated us today before the Philistines? Let us fetch unto us the ark of the covenant of the Lord from Silo, and let it come in the midst of us, that it may save us from the hand of our enemies. 4 So the people sent to Silo, and they brought from thence the ark of the covenant of the Lord of hosts sitting upon the cherubims: and the two sons of Heli, Ophni and Phinees, were with the ark of the covenant of God.

5 And when the ark of the covenant of the Lord was come into the camp, all Israel shouted with a great shout, and the earth rang again. 6 And the Philistines heard the noise of the shout, and they said: What is this noise of a great shout in the camp of the Hebrews? And they understood that the ark of the Lord was come into the camp. 7 And the Philistines were afraid, saying: God is come into the camp. And sighing, they said: 8 Woe to us, for there was no such great joy yesterday and the day before. Woe to us. Who shall deliver us from the hand of these high gods? These are the gods that struck Egypt with all the plagues in the desert. 9 Take courage and behave like men, ye Philistines; lest you come to be servants to the Hebrews, as they have served you. Take courage and fight. 10 So the Philistines fought, and Israel was overthrown, and every man fled to his own dwelling: and there was an exceeding great slaughter; for there fell of Israel thirty thousand footmen. 11 And the ark of God was taken: and the two sons of Heli, Ophni and Phinees, were slain.

12 And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the army, and came to Silo the same day, with his clothes rent, and his head strewed with dust. 13 And when he was come, Heli sat upon a stool over against the way watching. For his heart was fearful for the ark of God. And when the man was come into the city, he told it: and all the city cried out. 14 And Heli heard the noise of the cry, and he said: What meaneth the noise of this uproar? But he made haste, and came, and told Heli. 15 Now Heli was ninety and eight years old, and his eyes were dim, and he could not see. 16 And he said to Heli: I am he that came from the battle, and have fled out of the field this day. And he said to him: What is there done, my son? 17 And he that brought the news answered, and said: Israel has fled before the Philistines, and there has been a great slaughter of the people; moreover, thy two sons, Ophni and Phinees, are dead; and the ark of God is taken. 18 And when he had named the ark* of God, he fell from his stool backwards by the door, and broke his neck, and died. For he was an old man, and far advanced in years; and he judged Israel forty years. 19 And his daughter-in-law, the wife of Phinees, was big with child, and near her time; and hearing the news that the ark of God was taken, and her father-in-law and her husband were dead, she bowed herself and fell in labor, for her pains came upon her on a sudden. 20 And when she was upon the point of death, they that stood about her said to her: Fear not, for thou hast borne a son. She answered them not, nor gave heed to them. 21 And she called the child Ichabod,* saying: The glory is gone from Israel, because the ark of God was taken, and for her father-in-law, and her husband; 22 and she said: The glory is departed from Israel, because the ark of God was taken.

CHAPTER 5.

The Ark Plagues the Philistines. 1 And the Philistines took the ark of God and 4, 1: Help: in Hebrew Ebenezer; from the help which the Lord was pleased afterwards to give to his people Israel in that place, through the prayers of Samuel.

4, 18: Named the ark, etc.: from these circumstances, there is reason to think that Heli died in a state of grace, and by his temporal punishments escaped the eternal.

4, 21: Ichabod: i.e., Where is the glory? or There is no glory. We see how much the Israelites lamented the loss of the ark, though it was only the symbol of God's presence among them. How much more ought Christians to lament the loss of God himself, when by sin they have driven him out of their souls?

carried it from the Stone of help into Azotus. 2 And the Philistines took the ark of God, and brought it into the temple of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. 3 And when the Azotians arose early the next day, behold Dagon lay upon his face on the ground before the ark of the Lord; and they took Dagon, and set him again in his place. 4 And the next day again, when they rose in the morning, they found Dagon lying upon his face on the earth before the ark of the Lord: and the head of Dagon, and both the palms of his hands were cut off upon the threshold; 5 and only the stump of Dagon remained in its place. For this cause neither the priests of Dagon, nor any that go into the temple, tread on the threshold of Dagon in Azotus unto this day.

6 And the hand of the Lord was heavy upon the Azotians, and he destroyed them, [d] and afflicted Azotus and the lands thereof with emerods. And in the villages and fields in the midst of that country, there came forth a multitude of mice, and there was the confusion of a great mortality in the city. 7 And the men of Azotus seeing this kind of plague, said: The ark of the God of Israel shall not stay with us, for his hand is heavy upon us, and upon Dagon our god. 8 And sending, they gathered together all the lords of the Philistines to them, and said: What shall we do with the ark of the God of Israel? And the Gethites answered: Let the ark of the God of Israel be carried about. And they carried the ark of the God of Israel about. 9 And while they were carrying it about, the hand of the Lord came upon every city with an exceeding great slaughter; and he smote the men of every city, both small and great, and they had emerods in their secret parts. And the Gethites consulted together, and made themselves seats of skins.

10 Therefore they sent the ark of God into Accaron. And when the ark of God was come into Accaron, the Accaronites cried out, saying: They have brought the ark of the God of Israel to us, to kill us and our people. 11 They sent therefore and gathered together all the lords of the Philistines, and they said: Send away the ark of the God of Israel, and let it return into its own place, and not kill us and our people. 12 For there was the fear of death in every city, and the hand of God was exceeding heavy. The men also that did not die, were afflicted with the emerods: and the cry of every city went up to heaven.

CHAPTER 6.

The Ark Returned to Israel. 1 Now the ark of God was in the land of the Philistines seven months. 2 And the Philistines called for the priests and the diviners, saying: What shall we do with the ark of the Lord? Tell us how we are to send it back to its place? And they said: 3 If you send back the ark of the God of Israel, send it not away empty, but render unto him what you owe for sin, and then you shall be healed: and you shall know why his hand departeth not from you. 4 They answered: What is it we ought to render unto him for sin? And they answered: 5 According to the number of the provinces of the Philistines you shall make five golden emerods, and five golden mice, for the same plague hath been upon you all and upon your lords. And you shall make the likeness of your emerods, and the likeness of the mice that have destroyed the land, and you shall give glory to the God of Israel: to see if he will take off his hand from you, and from your gods, and from your land. 6 Why do you harden your hearts, as Egypt and Pharao hardened their hearts? [e] Did not he, after he was struck, then let them go, and they departed? 7 Now therefore take and make a new cart: and two kine that have calved, on which there hath come no yoke, tie to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. 8 And you shall take the ark of the Lord, and lay it on the cart, and the vessels of gold, which you have paid him for sin, you shall put into a little box, at the side thereof: and send it away that it may go. 9 And you shall look: and if it go up by the way of his own coasts toward Bethsames, then he hath done us this great evil; but if not, we shall know that it is not his hand hath touched us, but it hath happened by chance.

10 They did therefore in this manner: and taking two kine that had suckling calves, they yoked them to the cart, and shut up their calves at home. 11 And they laid the ark of God upon the cart, and the little box that had in it the golden mice and the likeness of the emerods. 12 And the kine took the straight way that leadeth to Bethsames, and they went along the way, lowing as they went, and turned not aside neither to the right hand nor to the left: and the lords of the Philistines followed them as far as the borders of Bethsames.

13 Now the Bethsamites were reaping wheat in the valley: and lifting up their eyes they saw the ark, and rejoiced to see it. 14 And the cart came into the field of Josue a Bethsamite, and stood there. And there was a great stone, and they cut in pieces the wood of the cart, and laid the kine upon it, a holocaust to the Lord. 15 And the Levites took down the ark of God, and the little box that was at the side of it, wherein were the vessels of gold, and they put them upon the great stone. The men also of Bethsames offered holocausts and sacrificed victims that day to the Lord. 16 And the five princes of the Philistines saw, and they returned to Accaron the same day.

17 And these are the golden emerods, which the Philistines returned for sin to the Lord: For Azotus one, for Gaza one, for Ascalon one, for Geth one, for Accaron one. 18 And the golden mice according to the number of the cities of the Philistines of the five provinces, from the fenced city to the village that was without wall, and to the great Abel (the stone) whereon they set down the ark of the Lord, which was till that day in the field of Josue the Bethsamite.

19 But he slew of the men of Bethsames, because they had seen* the ark of the Lord: and he slew of the people seventy men, and fifty thousand of the common people. And the people lamented, because the Lord had smitten the people with a great slaughter. 20 And the men of Bethsames said: Who shall be able to stand before the Lord this holy God? And to whom shall he go up from us? 21 And they sent messengers to the inhabitants of Cariathiarim, saying: The Philistines have brought back the ark of the Lord. Come ye down and fetch it up to you.

CHAPTER 7.

The Ark at Cariathiarim. 1 And the men of Cariathiarim came and fetched up the ark of the Lord and carried it into the house of Abinadab in Gabaa:* and they sanctified Eleazar his son, to keep the ark of the Lord. 2 And it came to pass that from the day the ark of the Lord abode in Cariathiarim days were multiplied (for it was now the twentieth year), and all the house of Israel rested following the Lord. 3 And Samuel spoke to all the house of Israel, saying: f If you turn to the Lord with all your heart, put away the strange gods from among you, Baalim and Astaroth: and prepare your hearts unto the Lord, and serve him only, and he will deliver you out of the hand of the Philistines. 4 Then the children of Israel put away Baalim and Astaroth, and served the Lord only.

Samuel's Exhortation. 5 And Samuel said: Gather all Israel to Masphath, that I may pray to the Lord for you. 6 And they gathered together to Masphath: and they drew water, and poured it out before the Lord, and they fasted on that day, and they said there: We have sinned against the Lord. And Samuel judged the children of Israel in Masphath.

7 And the Philistines heard that the children of Israel were gathered together to Masphath, and the lords of the Philistines went up against Israel. And when the children of Israel heard this, they were afraid of the Philistines. 8 And they said to Samuel: Cease not to cry to the Lord our God for us, that he may save us out of the hand of the Philistines. 9 And Samuel took a sucking lamb, and offered it whole for a holocaust to the Lord: and Samuel cried to the Lord for Israel, and the Lord heard him. 10 And it came to pass, when Samuel was offering the holocaust, the Philistines began the battle against Israel; g but the Lord thundered with a great thunder on that day upon the Philistines, and terrified them, and they were overthrown before the face of Israel. 11 h And the men of Israel going out of Masphath pursued after the Philistines, and made slaughter of them till they came under Bethchar. 12 And Samuel took a stone and laid it between Masphath and Sen: and he called the place, the Stone of help. And he said: Thus far the Lord hath helped us.

13 And the Philistines were humbled, and they did not come any more into the borders of Israel. And the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel. 14 And the cities, which the Philistines had taken from Israel, were restored to Israel, from Accaron to Geth, and their borders: and he delivered Israel from the hand of the Philistines, and there was peace between Israel and the Amorrhites.

15 And Samuel judged Israel all the days of his life. 16 And he went every year about to Bethel and to Galgal and to Masphath, and he judged Israel in the aforesaid places. 17 And he returned to Ramatha, for there was his house, and there he judged Israel. He built also there an altar to the Lord.

II: SAUL, FIRST KING OF ISRAEL

1. The Election of Saul

CHAPTER 8.

Israel Desires a King. 1 And it came to pass when Samuel was old, that he appointed his sons to be judges over Israel. 2 Now the name of his firstborn son was Joel, and the name of the second was Abia, judges in Bersabee. 3 And his sons walked not in his ways; but they turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, and perverted judgment.

4 Then all the ancients of Israel being assembled, came to Samuel to Ramatha, 5 and they said to him: Behold thou art old, and thy sons walk not in thy ways. i Make us a king, to judge us, as all nations have.

6 And the word was displeasing in the eyes of Samuel, that they should say: Give us a king, to judge us. And Samuel prayed to the Lord. 7 And the Lord said to Samuel: Hearken to the voice of the people in all that they say to thee. For they have not rejected* thee, but me, that I should not reign over them. 8 According to all their works, they have done from the day that I brought them out of Egypt until this day: as they have forsaken me, and served strange gods, so do they also unto thee. 9 Now therefore hearken to their voice; but yet testify to them, and foretell them the right* of the king that shall reign over them.

10 Then Samuel told all the words of the Lord to the people that had desired a king of him, 11 and said: This will be the right of the king that shall reign over you: He will take your sons, and put them in his chariots, and will make them his horsemen, and his running footmen to run before his chariots; 12 and he will appoint of them to be his tribunes, and centurions, and to plough his fields, and to reap his corn, and to make him arms and chariots. 13 Your daughters also he will take to make him ointments, and to be his cooks, and bakers. 14 And he will take your fields, and your vineyards, and your best oliveyards, and give them to his servants. 15 Moreover he will take the tenth of your corn, and of the revenues of your vineyards, to give his eunuchs and servants. 16 Your servants also and handmaids, and your goodliest young men, and your asses he will take away, and put them to his work. 17 Your flocks also he will tithe, and you shall be his servants. 18 And you shall cry out in that day from the face of the king, whom you have chosen to yourselves: and the Lord will not hear you in that day, because you desired unto yourselves a king.

19 But the people would not hear the voice of Samuel, and they said: Nay: but there shall be a king over us. 20 And we also will be like all nations; and our king shall judge us, and go out before us, and fight our battles for us. 21 And Samuel heard all the words of the people, and rehearsed them in the ears of the Lord. 22 And the Lord said to Samuel: Hearken to their voice, and make them a king. And Samuel said to the men of Israel: Let every man go to his city.

CHAPTER 9.

Saul Encounters Samuel. 1 Now there was a man of Benjamin whose name was Cis, the son of Abiel, the son of Seror, the son of Bechorath, the son of Aphia, the son of a man of Jemini, valiant and strong. 2 And he had a son whose name was Saul, a choice and goodly man, and there was not among the children of Israel a goodlier person than he: from his shoulders and upward he appeared above all the people.

3 And the asses of Cis, Saul's father, were lost; and Cis said to his son Saul: Take one of the servants with thee, and arise, go, and seek the asses. And when they had passed through mount Ephraim, 4 and through the land of Salisa, and had not found them, they passed also through the land of Salim, and they were not there: and through the land of Jemini, and found them not. 5 And when they were come to the land of Suph, Saul said to the servant that was with him: Come, let us return, lest perhaps my father forget the asses, and be concerned for us. 6 And he said to him: Behold there is a man of God in this city, a famous man: all that he saith, cometh certainly to pass. Now therefore let us go thither, perhaps he may tell us of our way, for which we are come. 7 And Saul said to his servant: Behold we will go; but what shall we carry to the man of God? The bread is spent in our bags: and we have no present to make to the man of God, nor anything at all. 8 The servant answered Saul again, and said: Behold there is found in my hand the fourth part of a sicle of silver, let us give it to the man of God, that he may tell us our way. 9 (Now in time past, in Israel when a man went to consult God he spoke thus: Come, let us go to the seer.* For he that is now called a prophet, in time past was called a seer.) 10 And Saul said to his servant: Thy word is very good. Come, let us go. And they went into the city, where the man of God was.

11 And when they went up the ascent to the city, they found maids coming out to draw water, and they said to them: Is the seer here? 12 They answered and said to them: He is. Behold he is before you, make haste now, for he came today into the city, for there is a sacrifice* of the people today in the high place. 13 As soon as you come into the city, you shall immediately find him, before he go up to the high place to eat; for the people will not eat till he come, because he blesseth the victim, and afterwards they eat that are invited. Now therefore go up, for today you shall find him.

14 And they went up into the city. And when they were walking in the midst of the city, behold Samuel was coming out over against them, to go up to the high place. 15 j Now the Lord had revealed to the ear of Samuel the day before Saul came, saying: 16 Tomorrow about this same hour I will send thee a man of the land of Benjamin, and thou shalt anoint him to be ruler over my people Israel: and he shall save my people out of the hand of the Philistines, for I have looked down upon my people, because their cry is come to me. 17 And when Samuel saw Saul, the Lord said to him: Behold the man, of whom I spoke to thee, this man shall reign over my people.

18 And Saul came to Samuel in the midst of the gate and said: Tell me, I pray thee, where is the house of the seer? 19 And Samuel answered Saul, saying: I am the seer, go up before me to the high place, that you may eat with me today, and I will let thee go in the morning and tell thee all that is in thy heart. 20 And as for the asses, which were lost three days ago, be not solicitous, because they are found. And for whom shall be all the best things of Israel? Shall they not be for thee and for all thy father's house? 21 And Saul answering, said: Am not I a son of Jemini of the least tribe of Israel, and my kindred the last among all the families of the tribe of Benjamin? Why then hast thou spoken this word to me?

Saul Is Entertained. 22 Then Samuel, taking Saul and his servant, brought them into the parlor, and gave them a place at the head of them that were invited. For j Acts 13, 21.

9, 9: A seer: because of his seeing by divine light hidden things and things to come.

9, 12: A sacrifice: the law did not allow the offering of sacrifice in any other place but in the tabernacle or temple where the ark of the covenant was kept. Samuel, however, by divine dispensation, offered sacrifices in other places, because the house of God in Silo, having lost the ark, was now cast off; as a figure of the reprobation of the Jews, Ps 77 (78), 60. 67. In Cariathiarim where the ark was, there was neither tabernacle nor altar. The high place (excelsum): the excelsa or high places, so often mentioned in Scripture, were places of worship, in which were altars for sacrifice. These were sometimes employed in the service of the true God, as in the present case: but more frequently in the service of idols; and were called excelsa, which is commonly (though perhaps not so accurately) rendered high places, not because they were always upon hills, but because of the high altars, and pillars, and monuments, erected there, on which were set up the idols, or images of their deities.

there were about thirty men. 23 And Samuel said to the cook: Bring the portion, which I gave thee, and commanded thee to set it apart by thee. 24 And the cook took up the shoulder, and set it before Saul. And Samuel said: Behold what is left, set it before thee, and eat, because it was kept of purpose for thee, when I invited the people. And Saul ate with Samuel that day.

25 And they went down from the high place into the town, and he spoke with Saul upon the top of the house: and he prepared a bed for Saul on the top of the house, and he slept. 26 And when they were risen in the morning, and it began now to be light, Samuel called Saul on the top of the house, saying: Arise, that I may let thee go. And Saul arose; and they went out both of them, to wit, he and Samuel. 27 And as they were going down in the end of the city, Samuel said to Saul: Speak to the servant to go before us, and pass on; but stand thou still a while, that I may tell thee the word of the Lord.

CHAPTER 10.

Saul Is Anointed. 1 And [k] Samuel took a little vial of oil, and poured it upon his head, and kissed him, and said: Behold, the Lord hath anointed thee to be prince over his inheritance, and thou shalt deliver his people out of the hands of their enemies, that are round about them. And this shall be a sign unto thee, that God hath anointed thee to be prince. 2 When thou shall depart from me this day, thou shalt find two men by the sepulchre of Rachel in the borders of Benjamin to the south, and they shall say to thee: The asses are found which thou wentest to seek; and thy father thinking no more of the asses is concerned for you, and saith: What shall I do for my son? 3 And when thou shalt depart from thence, and go farther on, and shalt come to the oak of Thabor, there shall meet thee three men going up to God to Bethel,* one carrying three kids, and another three loaves of bread, and another carrying a bottle of wine. 4 And they will salute thee, and will give thee two loaves, and thou shalt take them at their hand. 5 After that thou shalt come to the hill of God,* where the garrison of the Philistines is. And when thou shalt be come there into the city, thou shalt meet a company of prophets coming down from the high place, with a psaltery and a timbrel, and a pipe, and a harp before them, and they shall be prophesying. 6 And the spirit of the Lord shall come upon thee, and thou shalt prophesy with them, and shalt be changed into another man. 7 When therefore these signs shall happen to thee, do whatsoever thy hand shall find, for the Lord is with thee. 8 And thou shalt go down before me to Galgal (for I will come down to thee), that thou mayest offer an oblation, and sacrifice victims of peace: seven days shalt thou wait, [l] till I come to thee, and I will show thee what thou art to do.

9 So when he had turned his back to go from Samuel, God gave unto him another heart, and all these things came to pass that day. 10 And they came to the foresaid hill, and behold a company of prophets met him. And the spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he prophesied in the midst of them. 11 And all that had known him yesterday and the day before, seeing that he was with the prophets, and prophesied, said to each other: What is this that hath happened to the son of Cis? Is Saul also among the prophets? 12 And one answered another, saying: And who is their father?* Therefore it became a proverb: [m] Is Saul also among the prophets? 13 And when he had made an end of prophesying, he came to the high place.

14 And Saul's uncle said to him, and to his servant: Whither went you? They answered: To seek the asses; and not finding them we went to Samuel. 15 And his uncle said to him: Tell me what Samuel said to thee. 16 And Saul said to his uncle: He told us that the asses were found. But of the matter of the kingdom of which Samuel had spoken to him, he told him not.

Saul Is Proclaimed King. 17 And Samuel called together the people to the Lord in Maspha; 18 and he said to the children of Israel: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: I brought up Israel out of Egypt, and delivered you from the hand of the Egyptians, and from the hand of all the kings who afflicted you. 19 But you this day have rejected your God, who only hath saved you out of all your evils and your tribulations; and you have said: n Nay, but set a king over us. Now therefore stand before the Lord by your tribes, and by your families.

20 And Samuel brought to him all the tribes of Israel, and the lot fell on the tribe of Benjamin. 21 And he brought the tribe of Benjamin and the kindreds thereof, and the lot fell upon the kindred of Metri, and it came to Saul the son of Cis. They sought him therefore and he was not found. 22 And after this they consulted the Lord whether he would come thither. And the Lord answered: Behold he is hidden at home. 23 And they ran and fetched him thence; and he stood in the midst of the people, and he was higher than any of the people from the shoulders and upward. 24 And Samuel said to all the people: Surely you see him whom the Lord hath chosen, that there is none like him among all the people. And all the people cried and said: God save the king.

25 And Samuel told the people the law of the kingdom, and wrote it in a book, and laid it up before the Lord; and Samuel sent away all the people, everyone to his own house. 26 Saul also departed to his own house in Gabaa: and there went with him a part of the army, whose hearts God had touched. 27 But the children of Belial said: Shall this fellow be able to save us? And they despised him, and brought him no presents, but he disssembled as though he heard not.

2. The Wars and Errors of Saul

CHAPTER 11.

Saul Defeats the Ammonites. 1 And it came to pass about a month after this that Naas the Ammonite came up, and began to fight against Jabes Galaad. And all the men of Jabes said to Naas: Make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee. 2 And Naas the Ammonite answered them: On this condition will I make a covenant with you, that I may pluck out all your right eyes, and make you a reproach in all Israel. 3 And the ancients of Jabes said to him: Allow us seven days, that we may send messengers to all the coasts of Israel; and if there be no one to defend us we will come out to thee. 4 The messengers therefore came to Gabaa of Saul; and they spoke these words in the hearing of the people: and all the people lifted up their voices and wept.

5 And behold Saul came, following oxen out of the field, and he said: What aileth the people that they weep? And they told him the words of the men of Jabes. 6 And the spirit of the Lord came upon Saul, when he had heard these words, and his anger was exceedingly kindled. 7 And taking both the oxen, he cut them in pieces, and sent them into all the coasts of Israel by messengers, saying: Whosoever shall not come forth, and follow Saul and Samuel, so shall it be done to his oxen. And the fear of the Lord fell upon the people, and they went out as one man. 8 And he numbered them in Bezech, and there were of the children of Israel three hundred thousand, and of the men of Juda thirty thousand. 9 And they said to the messengers that came: Thus shall you say to the men of Jabes Galaad: Tomorrow, when the sun shall be hot, you shall have relief. The messengers therefore came, and told the men of Jabes: and they were glad. 10 And they said: In the morning we will come out to you: and you shall do what you please with us. 11 And it came to pass, when the morrow was come that Saul put the people in three companies: and he came into the midst of the camp in the morning watch, and he slew the Ammonites until the day grew hot, and the rest were scattered, so that two of them were not left together.

12 And the people said to Samuel: o Who is he that said: Shall Saul reign over us? Bring the men and we will kill them. 13 And Saul said: No man shall be killed this day, because the Lord this day hath wrought salvation in Israel. 14 And Samuel said to the people: Come and let us go to Galgal, and let us renew the kingdom there. 15 And all the people went to Galgal, and there they made Saul king before the Lord in Galgal, and they sacrificed there victims of peace before the Lord. And there Saul and all the men of Israel rejoiced exceedingly.

n 1 Kgs 8, 19.—o 1 Kgs 10, 27.

CHAPTER 12.

Samuel Resigns His Judgeship. 1 And Samuel said to all Israel: Behold I have hearkened to your voice in all that you said to me, and have made a king over you. 2 And now the king goeth before you. But I am old and greyheaded, and my sons are with you. Having then conversed with you from my youth unto this day, behold here I am. 3 p Speak of me before the Lord, and before his anointed, whether I have taken any man's ox, or ass: if I have wronged any man, if I have oppressed any man, if I have taken a bribe at any man's hand: and I will despise it this day, and will restore it to you. 4 And they said: Thou hast not wronged us, nor oppressed us, nor taken aught at any man's hand.

5 And he said to them: The Lord is witness against you, and his anointed is witness this day, that you have not found anything in my hand. And they said: He is witness.

6 And Samuel said to the people: It is the Lord, who made Moses and Aaron, and brought our fathers out of the land of Egypt. 7 Now therefore stand up, that I may plead in judgment against you before the Lord, concerning all the kindness of the Lord, which he hath shown to you, and to your fathers: 8 q How Jacob went into Egypt, and your fathers cried to the Lord, and the Lord sent Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers out of Egypt, and made them dwell in this place. 9 And they forgot the Lord their God, r and he delivered them into the hands of Sisara, captain of the army of Hasor, and into the hands of the Philistines, and into the hand of the king of Moab, and they fought against them. 10 But afterwards they cried to the Lord, and said: We have sinned, because we have forsaken the Lord, and have served Baalim and Astaroth; but now deliver us from the hand of our enemies, and we will serve thee. 11 s And the Lord sent Jerobaal, and Badan, and Jephte, and Samuel, and delivered you from the hand of your enemies round about, and you dwelt securely. 12 But seeing that Naas king of the children of Ammon was come against you, you said to me: t Nay, but a king shall reign over us, whereas the Lord your God was your king. 13 Now therefore your king is here, whom you have chosen and desired: Behold the Lord hath given you a king. 14 If you will fear the Lord, and serve him, and hearken to his voice, and not provoke the mouth of the Lord, then shall both you, and the king who reigneth over you, be followers of the Lord your God. 15 But if you will not hearken to the voice of the Lord, but will rebel against his words, the hand of the Lord shall be upon you, and upon your fathers. 16 Now then stand, and see this great thing which the Lord will do in your sight. 17 Is it not wheat harvest* today? I will call upon the Lord, and he shall send thunder and rain; and you shall know and see that you yourselves have done a great evil in the sight of the Lord, in desiring a king over you.

18 And Samuel cried unto the Lord, and the Lord sent thunder and rain that day.

19 And all the people greatly feared the Lord and Samuel. And all the people said to Samuel: Pray for thy servants to the Lord thy God, that we may not die, for we have added to all our sins this evil, to ask for a king. 20 And Samuel said to the people: Fear not. You have done all this evil; but yet depart not from following the Lord, but serve the Lord with all your heart. 21 And turn not aside after vain things which shall never profit you, nor deliver you, because they are vain. 22 And the Lord will not forsake his people for his great name's sake, because the Lord hath sworn to make you his people. 23 And far from me be this sin against the Lord, that I should cease to pray for you, and I will teach you the good and right way. 24 Therefore fear the Lord, and serve him in truth and with your whole heart, for you have seen the great works which he hath done among you. 25 But if you will still do wickedly, both you and your king shall perish together.

CHAPTER 13.

War Between Saul and the Philistines. 1 Saul was a child of one year* when he began to reign, and he reigned two years over Israel. 2 And Saul chose him three thousand men of Israel: and two thousand were with Saul in Machmas, and in mount Bethel: and a thousand with Jonathan in Gabaa of Benjamin, and the rest of the people he sent back every man to their dwellings. 3 And Jonathan smote the garrison of the Philistines which was in Gabaa. And when the Philistines had heard of it, Saul sounded the trumpet over all the land, saying: Let the Hebrews hear. 4 And all Israel heard this report: Saul hath smitten the garrison of the Philistines. And Israel took courage against the Philistines. And the people were called together after Saul to Galgal.

5 The Philistines also were assembled to fight against Israel, thirty thousand chariots, and six thousand horsemen, and a multitude of people besides, like the sand on the seashore for number. And going up they camped in Machmas at the east of Bethaven. 6 And when the men of Israel saw that they were straitened (for the people were distressed), they hid themselves in caves, and in thickets, and in rocks, and in dens, and in pits. 7 And some of the Hebrews passed over the Jordan into the land of Gad and Galaad. And when Saul was yet in Galgal, all the people that followed him were greatly afraid. 8 And he waited seven days according to the appointment of Samuel, [u] and Samuel came not to Galgal, and the people slipped away from him. 9 Then Saul said: Bring me the holocaust, and the peace offerings. And he offered the holocaust. 10 And when he had made an end of offering the holocaust, behold Samuel came: and Saul went forth to meet him and salute him. 11 And Samuel said to him: What hast thou done? Saul answered: Because I saw that the people slipped from me, and thou wast not come according to the days appointed, and the Philistines were gathered together in Machmas, 12 I said: Now will the Philistines come down upon me to Galgal, and I have not appeased the face of the Lord. Forced by necessity, I offered the holocaust. 13 And Samuel said to Saul: Thou hast done foolishly, and hast not kept the commandments of the Lord thy God, which he commanded thee. And if thou hadst not done thus, the Lord would now have established thy kingdom over Israel forever. 14 But thy kingdom shall not continue. [v] The Lord hath sought him a man according to his own heart: and him hath the Lord commanded to be prince over his people, because thou hast not observed that which the Lord commanded.

15 And Samuel arose and went up from Galgal to Gabaa of Benjamin. And the rest of the people went up after Saul, to meet the people who fought against them, going from Galgal to Gabaa in the hill of Benjamin. And Saul numbered the people, that were found with him, about six hundred men.

16 And Saul and Jonathan his son, and the people that were present with them, were in Gabaa of Benjamin; but the Philistines encamped in Machmas. 17 And there went out of the camp of the Philistines three companies to plunder. One company went towards the way of Ephra to the land of Sual; 18 and another went by the way of Beth-horon, and the third turned to the way of the border, above the valley of Seboim towards the desert. 19 Now there was no smith to be found in all the land of Israel, for the Philistines had taken this precaution, lest the Hebrews should make them swords or spears. 20 So all Israel went down to the Philistines, to sharpen every man his ploughshare, and his spade, and his axe, and his rake. 21 So that their shares, and their spades, and their forks, and their axes were blunt, even to the goad, which was to be mended. 22 And when the day of battle was come, there was neither sword nor spear found in the hand of any of the people that were with Saul and Jonathan, except Saul and Jonathan his son. 23 And the army of the Philistines went out in order to advance further in Machmas.

CHAPTER 14.

Jonathan's Miraculous Victory. 1 Now it came to pass one day that Jonathan the son of Saul said to the young man that bore his armor: Come, and let us go over to the garrison of the Philistines which is on the other side of yonder place. But he told not this to his father. 2 And Saul abode in the uttermost part of Gabaa under the pomegranate tree, which was in Magron. And the people with him were about six hundred men. 3 And Achias the son of Achitob brother to Ichabod the son of Phinees, [w] the son of Heli the priest of the Lord in Silo, wore the ephod. And the people knew not whither Jonathan was gone. 4 Now there were between the ascents by which Jonathan sought to go over to the garrison of the Philistines, rocks standing up on both sides, and steep cliffs like teeth on the one side and on the other: the name of the one was Boses, and the name of the other was Sene: 5 one rock stood out towards the north over against Machmas, and the other to the south over against Gabaa. 6 And Jonathan said to the young man that bore his armor: Come, let us go over to the garrison of these uncircumcised, it may be the Lord will do for us, because it is easy for the Lord to save either by many, or by few. 7 And his armorbearer said to him: Do all that pleaseth thy mind; go whither thou wilt, and I will be with thee wheresoever thou hast a mind. 8 And Jonathan said: Behold we will go over to these men. And when we shall be seen by them, 9 if they shall speak thus to us: Stay till we come to you; let us stand still in our place, and not go up to them. 10 But if they shall say: Come up to us; let us go up, because the Lord hath delivered them into our hands. This shall be a sign unto us.*

11 So both of them discovered themselves to the garrison of the Philistines. And the Philistines said: Behold the Hebrews come forth out of the holes wherein they were hid. 12 And the men of the garrison spoke to Jonathan, and to his armorbearer, and said: Come up to us, and we will show you a thing. And Jonathan said to his armorbearer: Let us go up, follow me, [x] for the Lord hath delivered them into the hands of Israel. 13 And Jonathan went up creeping on his hands and feet, and his armorbearer after him. And some fell before Jonathan, others his armorbearer slew as he followed him. 14 And the first slaughter which Jonathan and his armorbearer made, was of about twenty men, within half an acre of land, which a yoke of oxen is wont to plough in a day. 15 And there was a miracle in the camp, through the fields: yea and all the people of their garrison, who had gone out to plunder, were amazed, and the earth trembled: and it happened as a miracle from God.

16 And the watchmen of Saul, who were in Gabaa of Benjamin looked, and behold a multitude overthrown, and fleeing this way and that. 17 And Saul said to the people that were with him: Look, and see who is gone from us. And when they had sought, it was found that Jonathan and his armorbearer were not there. 18 And Saul said to Achias: Bring the ark of the Lord. (For the ark of God was there that day with the children of Israel.) 19 And while Saul spoke to the priest, there arose a great uproar in the camp of the Philistines: and it increased by degrees, and was heard more clearly. And Saul said to the priest: Draw in thy hand. 20 Then Saul and all the people that were with him, shouted together, and they came to the place of the fight: and behold every man's sword was turned upon his neighbor, and there was a very great slaughter. 21 Moreover the Hebrews that had been with the Philistines yesterday and the day before, and went up with them into the camp, returned to be with the Israelites, who were with Saul and Jonathan. 22 And all the Israelites that had hid themselves in mount Ephraim, hearing that the Philistines fled, joined themselves with their countrymen in the fight. And there were with Saul about ten thousand men. 23 And the Lord saved Israel that day. And the fight went on as far as Bethaven.

Jonathan Violates Saul's Oath. 24 And the men of Israel were joined together that day; and Saul adjured the people, saying: Cursed be the man that shall eat food till evening, till I be revenged of my enemies. So none of the people tasted any food. 25 And all the common people came into a forest, in which there was honey upon the ground. 26 And when the people came into the forest, behold the honey dropped, but no man put his hand to his mouth. For the people feared the oath. 27 But Jonathan had not heard when his father adjured the people. And he put forth the end of the rod, which he had in his hand, and dipped it in a honeycomb. And he carried his hand to his mouth, and his eyes were enlightened. 28 And one of the people answering, said: Thy father hath bound the people with an oath, saying: Cursed be the man that shall eat any food this day. (And the people were faint.) 29 And Jonathan said: My father hath troubled the land. You have seen yourselves that my eyes are enlightened, because I tasted a little of this honey; 30 how much more if the people had eaten of the prey of their enemies, which they found? Had there not been a greater slaughter among the Philistines?

31 So they smote that day the Philistines from Machmas to Ailon. And the people were wearied exceedingly. 32 And falling upon the spoils, they took sheep, and oxen, and calves, and slew them on the ground. And the people ate them with the blood. 33 And they told Saul that the people had sinned against the Lord, eating with the blood. And he said: You have transgressed. Roll here to me now a great stone. 34 And Saul said: Disperse yourselves among the people, and tell them to bring me every man his ox and his ram, and slay them upon this stone, and eat, and you shall not sin against the Lord in eating with the blood. So all the people brought every man his ox with him till the night, and slew them there. 35 And Saul built an altar to the Lord: and he then first began to build an altar to the Lord.

36 And Saul said: Let us fall upon the Philistines by night, and destroy them till the morning light, and let us not leave a man of them. And the people said: Do all that seemeth good in thy eyes. And the priest said: Let us draw hither unto God. 37 And Saul consulted the Lord: Shall I pursue after the Philistines? Wilt thou deliver them into the hands of Israel? And he answered him not that day. 38 And Saul said: Bring hither all the corners of the people, and know, and see by whom this sin hath happened today. 39 As the Lord liveth who is the savior of Israel, if it was done by Jonathan my son, he shall surely die. In this none of the people gainsaid him. 40 And he said to all Israel: Be you on one side, and I with Jonathan my son will be on the other side. And the people answered Saul: Do what seemeth good in thy eyes.

The People Free Jonathan. 41 And Saul said to the Lord: O Lord God of Israel, give a sign, by which we may know, what the meaning is, that thou answerest not thy servant today. If this iniquity be in me, or in my son Jonathan, give a proof; or if this iniquity be in thy people, give holiness. And Jonathan and Saul were taken, and the people escaped. 42 And Saul said: Cast lots between me and Jonathan my son. And Jonathan was taken.* 43 And Saul said to Jonathan: Tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathan told him, and said: I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod, which was in my hand, and behold I must die. 44 And Saul said: May God do so and so to me, and add still more: for dying thou shalt die, O Jonathan. 45 And the people said to Saul: Shall Jonathan then die, who hath wrought this great salvation in Israel? This must not be. As the Lord liveth, there shall not one hair of his head fall to the ground, for he hath wrought with God this day. So the people delivered Jonathan, that he should not die. 46 And Saul went back, and did not pursue after the Philistines. And the Philistines went to their own places.

47 And Saul having his kingdom established over Israel, fought against all his enemies round about, against Moab, and against the children of Ammon, and Edom, and the kings of Soba, and the Philistines; and whithersoever he turned himself, he overcame. 48 And gathering together an army, he defeated Amalec, and delivered Israel from the hand of them that spoiled them.

49 And the sons of Saul were Jonathan, and Jessui, and Melchisua; and the names of his two daughters, the name of the firstborn was Merob, and the name of the younger Michol. 50 And the name of Saul's wife was Achinoam the daughter of Achimaas; and the name of the captain of his army was Abner, the son of Ner, the cousin german of Saul. 51 For Cis was the father of Saul, and Ner the father of Abner was son of Abiel.

52 And there was a great war against the Philistines all the days of Saul. For whomsoever Saul saw to be a valiant man, and fit for war, he took him to himself.

CHAPTER 15.

Saul Is Sent To Destroy Amalec. 1 And Samuel said to Saul: The Lord sent me to anoint thee king over his people Israel. Now therefore hearken thou unto the voice of the Lord. 2 Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I have reckoned up all that Amalec hath done to Israel: y how he opposed them in the way when they came up out of Egypt. 3 Now therefore go and smite Amalec, and utterly destroy all that he hath. Spare him not, nor covet anything that is his; but slay both man and woman, child* and suckling, ox and sheep, camel and ass.

4 So Saul commanded the people, and numbered them as lambs: two hundred thousand footmen, and ten thousand of the men of Juda. 5 And when Saul was come to the city of Amalec, he laid ambushes in the torrent. 6 And Saul said to the Cinite: Go, depart and get ye down from Amalec, lest I destroy thee with him. For thou hast shown kindness to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt. And the Cinite departed from the midst of Amalec.

7 And Saul smote Amalec from Hevila, until thou comest to Sur, which is over against Egypt. 8 And he took Agag the king of Amalec alive; but all the common people he slew with the edge of the sword. 9 And Saul and the people spared Agag and the best of the flocks of sheep and of the herds, and the garments and the rams, and all that was beautiful, and would not destroy them; but everything that was vile and good for nothing, that they destroyed.

10 And the word of the Lord came to Samuel, saying: 11 It repenteth me that I have made Saul king, for he hath forsaken me, and hath not executed my commandments. And Samuel was grieved, and he cried unto the Lord all night. 12 And when Samuel rose early to go to Saul in the morning, it was told Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel, and had erected for himself a triumphant arch, and returning had passed on, and gone down to Galgal. And Samuel came to Saul, and Saul was offering a holocaust to the Lord out of the choicest of the spoils which he had brought from Amalec. 13 And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saul said to him: Blessed be thou of the Lord, I have fulfilled the word of the Lord. 14 And Samuel said: What meaneth then this bleating of the flocks, which soundeth in my ears, and the lowing of the herds, which I hear? 15 And Saul said: They have brought them from Amalec: for the people spared the best of the sheep and of the herds that they might be sacrificed to the Lord thy God, but the rest we have slain.

16 And Samuel said to Saul: Suffer me, and I will tell thee what the Lord hath said to me this night. And he said to him: Speak. 17 And Samuel said: When thou wast a little one in thy own eyes, wast thou not made the head of the tribes of Israel? And the Lord anointed thee to be king over Israel. 18 And the Lord sent thee on the way, and said: Go, and kill the sinners of Amalec, and thou shalt fight against them until thou hast utterly destroyed them. 19 Why then didst thou not hearken to the voice of the Lord; but hast turned to the prey, and hast done evil in the eyes of the Lord? 20 And Saul said to Samuel: Yea, I have hearkened to the voice of the Lord, and have walked in the way by which the Lord sent me, and have brought Agag the king of Amalec, and Amalec I have slain. 21 But the people took of the spoils sheep and oxen, as the firstfruits of those things that were slain, to offer sacrifice to the Lord their God in Galgal.

Saul Is Cast Off. 22 And Samuel said: z Doth the Lord desire holocausts and victims, and not rather that the voice of the Lord should be obeyed? For obedience is better than sacrifices: and to hearken rather than to offer the fat of rams. 23 Because it is like the sin of witchcraft, to rebel; and like the crime of idolatry, to refuse to obey. Forasmuch therefore as thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, the Lord hath also rejected thee from being king.

24 And Saul said to Samuel: I have sinned because I have transgressed the commandment of the Lord and thy words, fearing the people, and obeying their voice. 25 But now bear, I beseech thee, my sin, and return with me, that I may adore the Lord. 26 And Samuel said to Saul: I will not return with thee, because thou hast rejected the word of the Lord, and the Lord hath rejected thee from being king over Israel. 27 And Samuel turned about to go away: but he laid hold upon the skirt of his mantle, and it rent. 28 And Samuel said to him: [a] The Lord hath rent the kingdom of Israel from thee this day, and hath given it to thy neighbor who is better than thee. 29 But the triumpher in Israel will not spare, and will not be moved to repentance, for he is not a man that he should repent. 30 Then he said: I have sinned; yet honor me now before the ancients of my people, and before Israel, and return with me, that I may adore the Lord thy God.

31 So Samuel turned again after Saul: and Saul adored the Lord. 32 And Samuel said: Bring hither to me Agag the king of Amalec. And Agag was presented to him, very fat and trembling. And Agag said: Doth bitter death separate in this manner? 33 And Samuel said: As thy sword hath made women childless, so shall thy mother be childless among women. And Samuel hewed him in pieces before the Lord in Galgal.

34 And Samuel departed to Ramatha, but Saul went up to his house in Gabaa. 35 And Samuel saw Saul no more till the day of his death.* Nevertheless, Samuel mourned for Saul, because the Lord repented that he had made him king over Israel.

III: SAUL AND DAVID

1. David is Anointed King

CHAPTER 16.

Samuel Anoints David. 1 And the Lord said to Samuel: How long wilt thou mourn for Saul, whom I have rejected from reigning over Israel? Fill thy horn with oil, and come, that I may send thee to Isai the Bethlehemite, for I have provided me a king among his sons. 2 And Samuel said: How shall I go? For Saul will hear of it, and he will kill me. And the Lord said: Thou shalt take with thee a calf of the herd, and thou shalt say: I am come to sacrifice to the Lord. 3 And thou shalt call Isai to the sacrifice, and I will show thee what thou art to do, and thou shalt anoint him whom I shall show to thee. 4 Then Samuel did as the Lord had said to him. And he came to Bethlehem, and the ancients of the city wondered, and meeting him, they said: Is thy coming hither peaceable? 5 And he said: It is peaceable. I am come to offer sacrifice to the Lord, be ye sanctified, and come with me to the sacrifice. And he sanctified Isai and his sons, and called them to the sacrifice.

6 And when they were come in, he saw Eliab, and said: Is the Lord's anointed before him? 7 And the Lord said to Samuel: Look not on his countenance, nor on the height of his stature, because I have rejected him, nor do I judge according to the look of man, for man seeth those things that appear, [b] but the Lord beholdeth the heart. 8 And Isai called Abinadab, and brought him before Samuel. And he said: Neither hath the Lord chosen this. 9 And Isai brought Samma, and he said of him: Neither hath the Lord chosen this. 10 Isai therefore brought his seven sons before Samuel, and Samuel said to Isai: The Lord hath not chosen anyone of these. 11 And Samuel said to Isai: Are here all thy sons? He answered: There remaineth yet a young one, who keepeth the sheep. And Samuel said to Isai: Send, and fetch him, for we will not sit down till he come hither. 12 He sent therefore and brought him. Now he was ruddy and beautiful to behold, and of a comely face. And the Lord said: Arise, and anoint him, for this is he. 13 Then Samuel took the horn of oil, [c] and anointed him in the midst of his brethren. And the spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. And Samuel rose up, and went to Ramatha.

spirit of the Lord departed from Saul, and an evil spirit from the Lord* troubled him. 15 And the servants of Saul said to him: Behold now an evil spirit from God troubleth thee. 16 Let our lord give orders, and thy servants who are before thee will seek out a man skillful in playing on the harp, that when the evil spirit from the Lord is upon thee, he may play with his hand, and thou mayest bear it more easily. 17 And Saul said to his servants: Provide me then some man that can play well, and bring him to me. 18 And one of the servants answering said: Behold I have seen a son of Isai the Bethlehemite, a skillful player, and one of great strength, and a man fit for war, and prudent in his words, and a comely person, and the Lord is with him. 19 Then Saul sent messengers to Isai, saying: Send me David thy son, who is in the pastures. 20 And Isai took an ass laden with bread, and a bottle of wine, and a kid of the flock, and sent them by the hand of David his son to Saul. 21 And David came to Saul, and stood before him; and he loved him exceedingly, and made him his armorbearer. 22 And Saul sent to Isai, saying: Let David stand before me, for he hath found favor in my sight. 23 So whensoever the evil spirit from the Lord was upon Saul, David took his harp, and played with his hand, and Saul was refreshed, and was better, for the evil spirit departed from him.*

CHAPTER 17.

David and Goliath. 1 Now the Philistines gathering together their troops to battle, assembled at Socho of Juda, and camped between Socho and Azeca in the borders of Dommim. 2 And Saul and the children of Israel being gathered together came to the valley of Terebinth, and they set the army in array to fight against the Philistines. 3 And the Philistines stood on a mountain on the one side, and Israel stood on a mountain on the other side, and there was a valley between them.

4 And there went out a man baseborn from the camp of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth, whose height was six cubits and a span. 5 And he had a helmet of brass upon his head, and he was clothed with a coat of mail with scales, and the weight of his coat of mail was five thousand sicles of brass. 6 And he had greaves of brass on his legs, and a buckler of brass covered his shoulders. 7 And the staff of his spear was like a weaver's beam, and the head of his spear weighed six hundred sicles of iron. And his armorbearer went before him. 8 And standing he cried out to the bands of Israel, and said to them: Why are you come out prepared to fight? Am not I a Philistine, and you the servants of Saul? Choose out a man of you, and let him come down and fight hand to hand. 9 If he be able to fight with me, and kill me, we will be servants to you; but if I prevail against him, and kill him, you shall be servants, and shall serve us. 10 And the Philistine said: I have defied the bands of Israel this day. Give me a man, and let him fight with me hand to hand. 11 And Saul and all the Israelites hearing these words of the Philistines were dismayed, and greatly afraid.

12 d Now David was the son of that Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda before mentioned, whose name was Isai, who had eight sons, and was an old man in the days of Saul, and of great age among men. 13 And his three eldest sons followed Saul to the battle. And the names of his three sons that went to the battle, were Eliab the firstborn, and the second Abinadab, and the third Samma. 14 But David was the youngest. So the three eldest having followed Saul, 15 David went, and returned from Saul, to feed his father's flock at Bethlehem.

16 Now the Philistine came out morning and evening, and presented himself forty days.

17 And Isai said to David his son: Take for thy brethren an ephi of frumenty, and these ten loaves, and run to the camp to thy brethren. 18 And carry these ten little cheeses to the tribune; and go see thy brethren, if they are well: and learn with whom they are placed. 19 But Saul, and they, and all the children of Israel were in the valley of Terebinth fighting against the Philistines.

David Departs. 20 David therefore arose in the morning, and gave the charge of the flock to the keeper, and went away loaded as Isai had commanded him. And he came to the place of Magala, and to the army, which was going out to fight, and shouted for the battle. 21 For Israel had put themselves in array, and the Philistines who stood against them were prepared. 22 And David leaving the vessels which he had brought, under the care of the keeper of the baggage, ran to the place of the battle and asked if all things went well with his brethren. 23 And as he talked with them, that baseborn man whose name was Goliath, the Philistine, of Geth, showed himself coming up from the camp of the Philistines. And he spoke according to the same words, and David heard them. 24 And all the Israelites when they saw the man, fled from his face, fearing him exceedingly. 25 And someone of Israel said: Have you seen this man that is come up, for he is come up to defy Israel? And the man that shall slay him, the king will enrich with great riches, and will give him his daughter, and will make his father's house free from tribute in Israel. 26 And David spoke to the men that stood by him, saying: What shall be given to the man that shall kill this Philistine, and shall take away the reproach from Israel? For who is this uncircumcised Philistine, that he should defy the armies of the living God? 27 And the people answered him the same words saying: These things shall be given to the man that shall slay him. 28 Now when Eliab his eldest brother heard this, when he was speaking with others, he was angry with David, and said: Why camest thou hither? And why didst thou leave those few sheep in the desert? I know thy pride, and the wickedness of thy heart, that thou art come down to see the battle. 29 And David said: What.have I done? Is there not cause to speak? 30 And he turned a little aside from him to another, and said the same word. And the people answered him as before.

31 And the words which David spoke were heard, and were rehearsed before Saul. 32 And when he was brought to him, he said to him: Let not any man's heart be dismayed in him. I thy servant will go, and will fight against the Philistine. 33 And Saul said to David: Thou art not able to withstand this Philistine, nor to fight against him, for thou art but a boy, but he is a warrior from his youth.

34 And David said to Saul: [e] Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion, or a bear, and took a ram out of the midst of the flock. 35 And I pursued after them, and struck them, and delivered it out of their mouth; and they rose up against me, and I caught them by the throat, and I strangled and killed them. 36 For I thy servant have killed both a lion and a bear; and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be also as one of them. I will go now, and take away the reproach of the people, for who is this uncircumcised Philistine, who hath dared to curse the army of the living God? 37 And David said: The Lord who delivered me out of the paw of the lion, and out of the paw of the bear, he will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine. And Saul said to David: Go, and the Lord be with thee.

38 And Saul clothed David with his garments, and put a helmet of brass upon his head, and armed him with a coat of mail. 39 And David having girded his sword upon his armor, began to try if he could walk in armor, for he was not accustomed to it. And David said to Saul: I cannot go thus, for I am not used to it. And he laid them off, 40 and he took his staff, which he had always in his hands, and chose him five smooth stones out of the brook, and put them into the shepherd's scrip, which he had with him, and he took a sling in his hand, and went forth against the Philistine.

41 And the Philistine came on, and drew near against David, and his armorbearer before him. 42 And when the Philistine looked and beheld David, he despised him. For he was a young man, ruddy and of a comely countenance. 43 And the Philistine said to David: Am I a dog, that thou comest to me with a staff? And the Philistine cursed David by his gods. 44 And he said to David: Come to me, and I will give thy flesh to the birds of the air, and to the beasts of the earth. 45 And David said to the Philistine: Thou comest to me with a sword, and with a spear, and with a shield; but I come to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, which thou hast defied [46] this day; and the Lord will deliver thee into my hand, and I will slay thee, and take away thy head from thee; and I will give the carcasses of the army of the Philistines this day to the birds of the air, and to the beasts of the earth, that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel. [47] And all this assembly shall know that the Lord saveth not with sword and spear, for it is his battle, and he will deliver you into our hands.

David Slays Goliath. [48] And when the Philistine arose and was coming, and drew near to meet David, David made haste, and ran to the fight to meet the Philistine. [49] And he put his hand into his scrip, and took a stone, and cast it with the sling, and fetching it about struck the Philistine in the forehead. And the stone was fixed in his forehead, and he fell on his face upon the earth. [50] f And David prevailed over the Philistine, with a sling and a stone, and he struck, and slew the Philistine. And as David had no sword in his hand, [51] he ran, and stood over the Philistine, and took his sword, and drew it out of the sheath, and slew him, and cut off his head. And the Philistines seeing that their champion was dead, fled away.

[52] And the men of Israel and Juda rising up shouted, and pursued after the Philistines till they came to the valley and to the gates of Accaron, and there fell many wounded of the Philistines in the way of Saraim, and as far as Geth, and as far as Accaron. [53] And the children of Israel returning, after they had pursued the Philistines, fell upon their camp. [54] And David taking the head of the Philistine brought it to Jerusalem, but his armor he put in his tent.

[55] Now at the time that Saul saw David going out against the Philistines, he said to Abner the captain of the army: Of what family is this young man descended, Abner? And Abner said: As thy soul liveth, O king, I know not. [56] And the king said: Inquire thou, whose son this man is. [57] And when David was returned, after the Philistine was slain, Abner took him, and brought him in before Saul, with the head of the Philistine in his hand. [58] And Saul said to him: Young man, of what family art thou? And David said: I am the son of thy servant Isai the Bethlehemite.

CHAPTER 18.

The Friendship of Jonathan and David. [1] And it came to pass, when he had made an end of speaking to Saul, the soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul. [2] And Saul took him that day, and would not let him return to his father's house. [3] And David and Jonathan made a covenant, for he loved him as his own soul. [4] And Jonathan stripped himself of the coat with which he was clothed, and gave it to David, and the rest of his garments, even to his sword, and to his bow, and to his girdle. [5] And David went out to whatsoever business Saul sent him, and he behaved himself prudently: and Saul set him over the soldiers, and he was acceptable in the eyes of all the people, and especially in the eyes of Saul's servants.

[6] Now when David returned, after he slew the Philistine, the women came out of all the cities of Israel, singing and dancing, to meet king Saul, with timbrels of joy and cornets. [7] And the women sung as they played, and they said: g Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands. [8] And Saul was exceeding angry, and this word was displeasing in his eyes, and he said: They have given David ten thousands, and to me they have given but a thousand; what can he have more but the kingdom? [9] And Saul did not look on David with a good eye from that day and forward.

[10] And the day after the evil spirit from God came upon Saul, and he prophesied in the midst of his house. And David played with his hand as at other times. And Saul held a spear in his hand, [11] and threw it, thinking to nail David to the wall, and David stepped aside out of his presence twice. [12] And Saul feared David, because the Lord was with him, and was departed from himself. [13] Therefore Saul removed him from him, and made him a captain over a thousand men, and he went out and came in before the people. [14] And David behaved wisely in all his ways, h and the Lord was with him. [15] And Saul saw that he was exceeding prudent, and began to beware of him. 16 But all Israel and Juda loved David, for he came in and went out before them.

Saul Plots against David. 17 And Saul said to David: Behold my elder daughter Merob, her will I give thee to wife; only be a valiant man, [i] and fight the battles of the Lord. Now Saul said within himself: Let not my hand be upon him, but let the hands of the Philistines be upon him. 18 And David said to Saul: Who am I, or what is my life, or my father's family in Israel, that I should be son-in-law of the king? 19 And it came to pass at the time when Merob the daughter of Saul should have been given to David, that she was given to Hadriel the Molathite to wife.

20 But Michol the other daughter of Saul loved David. And it was told Saul, and it pleased him. 21 And Saul said: I will give her to him, that she may be a stumbling-block to him, and that the hand of the Philistines may be upon him. And Saul said to David: In two things thou shalt be my son-in-law this day. 22 And Saul commanded his servants to speak to David privately, saying: Behold thou pleasest the king, and all his servants love thee. Now therefore be the king's son-in-law. 23 And the servants of Saul spoke all these words in the ears of David. And David said: Doth it seem to you a small matter to be the king's son-in-law? But I am a poor man, and of small ability. 24 And the servants of Saul told him, saying: Such words as these hath David spoken. 25 And Saul said: Speak thus to David: The king desireth not any dowry, but only a hundred foreskins of the Philistines, to be avenged of the king's enemies. Now Saul thought to deliver David into the hands of the Philistines. 26 And when his servants had told David the words that Saul had said, the word was pleasing in the eyes of David to be the king's son-in-law. 27 And after a few days David rose up, and went with the men that were under him, and he slew of the Philistines two hundred men, and brought their foreskins and numbered them out to the king, that he might be his son-in-law. Saul therefore gave him Michol his daughter to wife. 28 And Saul saw, and understood that the Lord was with David. And Michol the daughter of Saul loved him. 29 And Saul began to fear David more: and Saul became David's enemy continually. 30 And the princes of the Philistines went forth: and from the beginning of their going forth, David behaved himself more wisely than all the servants of Saul, and his name became very famous.

CHAPTER 19.

New Attempts on David's Life. 1 And Saul spoke to Jonathan his son and to all his servants, that they should kill David. But Jonathan the son of Saul loved David exceedingly. 2 And Jonathan told David, saying: Saul my father seeketh to kill thee; wherefore look to thyself, I beseech thee, in the morning, and thou shalt abide in a secret place and shalt be hid. 3 And I will go out and stand beside my father in the field where thou art; and I will speak of thee to my father, and whatsoever I shall see, I will tell thee. 4 And Jonathan spoke good things of David to Saul his father, and said to him: Sin not, O king, against thy servant, David, because he hath not sinned against thee, and his works are very good towards thee. 5 And he put his life in his hand, and slew the Philistine, and the Lord wrought great salvation for all Israel. Thou sawest it and didst rejoice. Why therefore wilt thou sin against innocent blood by killing David, who is without fault? 6 And when Saul heard this, he was appeased with the words of Jonathan, and swore: As the Lord liveth, he shall not be slain. 7 Then Jonathan called David and told him all these words: and Jonathan brought in David to Saul, and he was before him, as he had been yesterday and the day before.

8 And the war began again, and David went out and fought against the Philistines, and defeated them with a great slaughter, and they fled from his face. 9 And the evil spirit from the Lord came upon Saul, and he sat in his house, and held a spear in his hand: and David played with his hand. 10 And Saul endeavored to nail David to the wall with his spear. And David slipped away out of the presence of Saul. And the spear missed him, and was fastened in the wall, and David fled and escaped that night. 11 Saul therefore sent his guards to David's house to watch him, that he might be killed in the morning. And when Michol David's wife had told him this, saying: Unless thou save thyself this night, tomorrow thou wilt die, 12 she let him down through a window. And he went and fled away and escaped. 13 And Michol took an image and laid it on the bed, and put a goat's skin with the hair at the head of it, and covered it with clothes. 14 And Saul sent officers to seize David: and it was answered that he was sick. 15 And again Saul sent to see David, saying: Bring him to me in the bed, that he may be slain. 16 And when the messengers were come in, they found an image upon the bed, and a goat's skin at its head. 17 And Saul said to Michol: Why hast thou deceived me so, and let my enemy go and flee away? And Michol answered Saul: Because he said to me: Let me go, or else I will kill thee.

The Flight of David. 18 But David fled and escaped, and came to Samuel in Ramatha, and told him all that Saul had done to him. And he and Samuel went and dwelt in Najoth.* 19 And it was told Saul by some, saying: Behold David is in Najoth in Ramatha. 20 So Saul sent officers to take David: and when they saw a company of prophets prophesying* and Samuel presiding over them, the spirit of the Lord came also upon them, and they likewise began to prophesy. 21 And when this was told Saul, he sent other messengers; but they also prophesied. And again Saul sent messengers the third time: and they prophesied also. And Saul being exceedingly angry, 22 went also himself to Ramatha, and came as far as the great cistern, which is in Socho, and he asked, and said: In what place are Samuel and David? And it was told him: Behold they are in Najoth in Ramatha. 23 And he went to Najoth in Ramatha, and the spirit of the Lord came upon him also, and he went on, and prophesied till he came to Najoth in Ramatha. 24 And he stripped himself also of his garments, and prophesied with the rest before Samuel, and lay down naked all that day and night. This gave occasion to a proverb: i What! Is Saul too among the prophets?

19, 18: Najoth: it was probably a school of prophets in or near Ramatha under the direction of Samuel.

19, 20: Prophesying: i.e., singing praises to God by divine impulse. God was pleased on this occasion that both Saul's messengers and himself should experience the like impulse, that he might understand how vain are the designs of man against him whom God protects.

20, 5: Tomorrow is the new moon: the neomenia, or first day of the moon, kept as a festival according to the law. Therefore Saul feasted on that day, and expected the attendance of his family.

CHAPTER 20.

Covenant of Jonathan and David. 1 But David fled from Najoth, which is in Ramatha, and came and said to Jonathan: What have I done? What is my iniquity, and what is my sin against thy father, that he seeketh my life? 2 And he said to him: God forbid, thou shalt not die, for my father will do nothing great or little, without first telling me. Hath then my father hid this word only from me? No, this shall not be. 3 And he swore again to David. And David said: Thy father certainly knoweth that I have found grace in thy sight, and he will say: Let not Jonathan know this, lest he be grieved. But truly as the Lord liveth, and thy soul liveth, there is but one step (as I may say) between me and death.

4 And Jonathan said to David: Whatsoever thy soul shall say to me, I will do for thee. 5 And David said to Jonathan: Behold tomorrow is the new moon,* and I according to custom am wont to sit beside the king to eat. Let me go then that I may be hid in the field till the evening of the third day. 6 If thy father look and inquire for me, thou shalt answer him: David asked me that he might run to Bethlehem k his own city, because there are solemn sacrifices there for all his tribe. 7 If he shall say: It is well, thy servant shall have peace; but if he be angry, know that his malice is come to its height. 8 Deal mercifully then with thy servant, for thou hast brought me thy servant into a covenant of the Lord with thee. But if there be any iniquity in me, do thou kill me, and bring me not in to thy father. 9 And Jonathan said: Far be this from thee, for if I should certainly know that evil is determined by my father against thee, I could do no otherwise than tell thee. 10 And David answered Jonathan: Who shall bring me word, if thy father should answer thee harshly concerning me? 11 And Jonathan said to David: Come and let us go out into the field. And when they were both of them gone out into the field, 12 Jonathan said to David: O Lord God of Israel, if I shall discover my father's mind, tomorrow or the day after, and there be anything good for David, and I send not immediately to thee, and make it known to thee, [13] may the Lord do so and so to Jonathan and add still more. But if my father shall continue in malice against thee, I will discover it to thy ear, and will send thee away, that thou mayest go in peace, and the Lord be with thee, as he hath been with my father. [14] And if I live, thou shalt show me the kindness of the Lord; but if I die, [15] thou shalt not take away thy kindness from my house forever, when the Lord shall have rooted out the enemies of David, everyone of them from the earth, may he take away Jonathan* from his house, and may the Lord require it at the hands of David's enemies. [16] Jonathan therefore made a covenant with the house of David: and the Lord required it at the hands of David's enemies. [17] And Jonathan swore again to David, because he loved him, for he loved him as his own soul.

[18] And Jonathan said to him: Tomorrow is the new moon, and thou wilt be missed, [19] for thy seat will be empty till after tomorrow. So thou shalt go down quickly, and come to the place, where thou must be hid on the day when it is lawful to work, and thou shalt remain beside the stone, which is called Ezel. [20] And I will shoot three arrows near it, and will shoot as if I were exercising myself at a mark. [21] And I will send a boy, saying to him: Go and fetch me the arrows. [22] If I shall say to the boy: Behold the arrows are on this side of thee, take them up, come thou to me, because there is peace to thee, and there is no evil, as the Lord liveth. But if I shall speak thus to the boy: Behold the arrows are beyond thee, go in peace, for the Lord hath sent thee away. [23] And concerning the word which I and thou have spoken, the Lord be between thee and me forever.

David Hides in the Field. [24] So David was hid in the field, and the new moon came, and the king sat down to eat bread. [25] And when the king sat down upon his chair (according to custom) which was beside the wall, Jonathan arose, and Abner sat by Saul's side, and David's place appeared empty. [26] And Saul said nothing that day, for he thought it might have happened to him, that he was not clean, nor purified. [27] And when the second day after the new moon was come, David's place appeared empty again. And Saul said to Jonathan his son: Why cometh not the son of Isai to meat neither yesterday nor today? [28] And Jonathan answered Saul: He asked leave of me earnestly to go to Bethlehem, [29] and he said: Let me go, for there is a solemn sacrifice in the city, one of my brethren hath sent for me. And now if I have found favor in thy eyes, I will go quickly, and see my brethren. For this cause he came not to the king's table. [30] Then Saul being angry against Jonathan said to him: Thou son of a woman that is the ravisher of a man, do I not know that thou lovest the son of Isai to thy own confusion and to the confusion of thy shameless mother? [31] For as long as the son of Isai liveth upon earth, thou shalt not be established, nor thy kingdom. Therefore now presently send, and fetch him to me, for he is the son of death.* [32] And Jonathan answering Saul his father, said: Why shall he die: what hath he done? [33] And Saul caught up a spear to strike him. And Jonathan understood that it was determined by his father to kill David. [34] So Jonathan rose from the table in great anger, and did not eat bread on the second day after the new moon. For he was grieved for David, because his father had put him to confusion.

[35] And when the morning came, Jonathan went into the field, according to the appointment with David, and a little boy with him. [36] And he said to his boy: Go, and fetch me the arrows which I shoot. And when the boy ran, he shot another arrow beyond the boy. [37] The boy therefore came to the place of the arrow which Jonathan had shot; and Jonathan cried after the boy, and said: Behold the arrow is there further beyond thee. [38] And Jonathan cried again after the boy, saying: Make haste speedily, stand not. And Jonathan's boy gathered up the arrows, and brought them to his master, [39] and he knew not at all what was doing: for only Jonathan and David knew the matter. [40] Jonathan therefore gave his arms to the boy, and said to him: Go, and carry them into the city. [41] And when the boy was gone, David rose out of his place, which was towards the south, and falling on his face to the ground, adored thrice, and kissing one another, they wept together, but David more. 42 And Jonathan said to David: Go in peace, and let all stand that we have sworn both of us in the name of the Lord, saying: The Lord be between me and thee, and between my seed and thy seed forever. 43 And David arose, and departed, and Jonathan went into the city.

2. David's Flight

CHAPTER 21.

David at Nobe. 1 And David came to Nobe* to Achimelech the priest: and Achimelech was astonished at David's coming. And he said to him: Why art thou alone, and no man with thee? 2 And David said to Achimelech the priest: The king hath commanded me a business, and said: Let no man know the thing for which thou art sent by me, and what manner of commands I have given thee; and I have appointed my servants to such and such a place. 3 Now therefore if thou have anything at hand, though it were but five loaves, give me, or whatsoever thou canst find. 4 And the priest answered David, saying: I have no common bread at hand, but only holy bread, if the young men be clean,* especially from women? 5 And David answered the priest, and said to him: Truly, as to what concerneth women, we have refrained ourselves from yesterday and the day before, when we came out, and the vessels* of the young men were holy. Now this way is defiled, but it shall also be sanctified this day in the vessels. 6 l The priest therefore gave him hallowed bread; for there was no bread there, but only the loaves of proposition, which had been taken away from before the face of the Lord, that hot loaves might be set up. 7 Now a certain man of the servants of Saul was there that day, within the tabernacle of the Lord: and his name was Doeg, an Edomite, the chiefest of Saul's herdsmen.

8 And David said to Achimelech: Hast thou here at hand a spear, or a sword? For I brought not my own sword, nor my own weapons with me, for the king's business required haste. 9 And the priest said: Lo, here is the sword of Goliath the Philistine whom thou slewest in the valley of Terebinth, wrapped up in a cloth behind the ephod. If thou wilt take this, take it, for here is no other but this. And David said: There is none like that, give it me.

10 And David arose and fled that day from the face of Saul, and came to Achis the king of Geth. 11 And the servants of Achis, when they saw David, said to him: Is not this David the king of the land? Did they not sing to him in their dances, saying: m Saul hath slain his thousands, and David his ten thousands? 12 But David laid up these words in his heart, and was exceedingly afraid at the face of Achis the king of Geth. 13 And he changed his countenance before them, and slipped down between their hands; and he stumbled against the doors of the gate and his spittle ran down upon his beard. 14 And Achis said to his servants: You saw the man was mad. Why have you brought him to me? 15 Have we need of madmen, that you have brought in this fellow, to play the madman in my presence? Shall this fellow come into my house?

CHAPTER 22.

David Among the Moabites. 1 David therefore went from thence and fled to the cave of Odollam. And when his brethren and all his father's house had heard of it, they went down to him thither; 2 and all that were in distress and oppressed with debt and under affliction of mind gathered themselves unto him. And he became their prince, and there were with him about four hundred men.

3 And David departed from thence into Maspha of Moab, and he said to the king of Moab: Let my father and my mother tarry with you, I beseech thee, till I know what God will do for me. 4 And he left them under the eyes of the king of Moab, and they abode with him all the days that

1 Mt 12, 3f.—m 1 Kgs 18, 7; Sir 47, 7.

21, 1: Nobe: a city of the tribe of Benjamin, to which the tabernacle of the Lord had been translated from Silo.

21, 4: If the young men be clean, etc.: if this cleanness was required of them that were to eat that bread, which was but a figure of the bread of life, how clean ought Christians to be when they receive the Holy Eucharist. With good reason the Church of God admits none to be her ministers who consecrate and daily receive this most pure sacrament, but such as devote themselves to a life of perpetual purity.

21, 5: The vessels: i.e., the bodies, have been holy, i.e., have been kept from impurity. Is defiled: is liable to expose us to dangers of uncleanness. Be sanctified, etc., i.e., we shall take care to keep our vessels holy, i.e., to keep our bodies from everything that may defile us.

David was in the hold.* 5 And Gad the prophet said to David: Abide not in the hold, depart, and go into the land of Juda. And David departed, and came into the forest of Haret.

6 And Saul heard that David was seen, and the men that were with him. Now whilst Saul abode in Gabaa, and was in the wood, which is by Rama, having his spear in his hand, and all his servants were standing about him, 7 he said to his servants that stood about him: Hear me now, ye sons of Jemini: Will the son of Isai give everyone of you fields, and vineyards, and make you all tribunes, and centurions, 8 that all of you have conspired against me, and there is no one to inform me, especially when even my son hath entered into league with the son of Isai? There is not one of you that pitieth my case, nor that giveth me any information: because my son hath raised up my servant against me, plotting against me to this day.

9 And Doeg the Edomite who stood by, and was the chief among the servants of Saul, answering, said: I saw the son of Isai, in Nobe with Achimelech the son of Achitob the priest. 10 And he consulted the Lord for him, and gave him victuals, and gave him the sword of Goliath the Philistine.

11 Then the king sent to call for Achimelech the priest the son of Achitob, and all his father's house, the priests that were in Nobe, and they came all of them to the king. 12 And Saul said to Achimelech: Hear, thou son of Achitob. He answered: Here I am, my lord. 13 And Saul said to him: Why have you conspired against me, thou, and the son of Isai, and thou hast given him bread and a sword, and hast consulted the Lord for him, that he should rise up against me, continuing a traitor to this day. 14 And Achimelech answering the king, said: And who amongst all thy servants is so faithful as David, who is the king's son-in-law, and goeth forth at thy bidding, and is honorable in thy house? 15 Did I begin today to consult the Lord for him? Far be this from me. Let not the king suspect such a thing against his servant, or anyone in all my father's house, for thy servant knew nothing of this matter, either little or great. 16 And the king said: Dying thou shalt die, Achimelech, thou and all thy father's house. 17 And the king said to the messengers that stood about him: Turn, and kill the priests of the Lord, for their hand is with David, because they knew that he was fled, and they told it not to me. And the king's servants would not put forth their hands against the priests of the Lord. 18 And the king said to Doeg: Turn thou, and fall upon the priests. And Doeg the Edomite turned, and fell upon the priests and slew in that day eighty-five men that wore the linen ephod. 19 And Nobe the city of the priests he smote with the edge of his sword, both men and women, children, and sucklings, and ox and ass, and sheep with the edge of the sword.

20 But one of the sons of Achimelech the son of Achitob, whose name was Abiathar, escaped, and fled to David, 21 and told him that Saul had slain the priests of the Lord. 22 And David said to Abiathar: I knew that day when Doeg the Edomite was there, that without doubt he would tell Saul: I have been the occasion of the death of all the souls of thy father's house. 23 Abide thou with me, fear not, for he that seeketh my life, seeketh thy life also, and with me thou shalt be saved.

CHAPTER 23.

David Relieves Ceila. 1 And they told David, saying: Behold the Philistines fight against Ceila, and they rob the barns. 2 Therefore David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I go and smite these Philistines? And the Lord said to David: Go, and thou shalt smite the Philistines, and shalt save Ceila. 3 And the men that were with David, said to him: Behold we are in fear here in Judea, how much more if we go to Ceila against the bands of the Philistines? 4 Therefore David consulted the Lord again. And he answered and said to him: Arise, and go to Ceila: for I will deliver the Philistines into thy hand. 5 David, therefore, and his men went to Ceila, and fought against the Philistines, and brought away their cattle, and made a great slaughter of them: and David saved the inhabitants of Ceila.

6 Now at that time, when Abiathar the son of Achimelech fled to David to Ceila, 22, 4: The hold: the stronghold, or fortress of Maspha.

he came down having an ephod* with him. 7 And it was told Saul that David was come to Ceila. And Saul said: The Lord hath delivered him into my hands, and he is shut up, being come into a city, that hath gates and bars. 8 And Saul commanded all the people to go down to fight against Ceila, and to besiege David, and his men. 9 Now when David understood that Saul secretly prepared evil against him, he said to Abiathar the priest: Bring hither the ephod. 10 And David said: O Lord God of Israel, thy servant hath heard a report that Saul designeth to come to Ceila, to destroy the city for my sake. 11 Will the men of Ceila deliver me into his hands? And will Saul come down, as thy servant hath heard? O Lord God of Israel, tell thy servant. And the Lord said: He will come down. 12 And David said: Will the men of Ceila deliver me, and my men, into the hands of Saul? And the Lord said: They will deliver thee up.

13 Then David and his men, who were about six hundred, arose, and departing from Ceila, wandered up and down uncertain where they should stay. And it was told Saul that David was fled from Ceila, and had escaped: wherefore he forbore to go out.

David in the Desert of Ziph. 14 But David abode in the desert in strongholds, and he remained in a mountain of the desert of Ziph, in a woody hill. And Saul sought him always, but the Lord delivered him not into his hands.

15 And David saw that Saul was come out to seek his life. And David was in the desert of Ziph, in a wood. 16 And Jonathan the son of Saul arose, and went to David into the wood, and strengthened his hands in God. And he said to him: 17 Fear not, for the hand of my father Saul shall not find thee, and thou shalt reign over Israel, and I shall be next to thee, yea, and my father knoweth this. 18 And the two made a covenant before the Lord, and David abode in the wood; but Jonathan returned to his house.

19 n And the Ziphites went up to Saul in Gabaa, saying: Lo, doth not David lie hid with us in the strongholds of the wood, in mount Hachila, which is on the right hand of the desert? 20 Now therefore come down, as thy soul hath desired to come down, and it shall be our business to deliver him into the king's hands. 21 And Saul said: Blessed be ye of the Lord, for you have pitied my case. 22 Go therefore, I pray you, and use all diligence, and curiously inquire, and consider the place where his foot is, and who hath seen him there, for he thinketh of me, that I lie craftily in wait for him. 23 Consider and see all his lurking holes, wherein he is hid, and return to me with the certainty of the thing, that I may go with you. And if he should even go down into the earth to hide himself, I will search him out in all the thousands of Juda. 24 And they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. And David and his men were in the desert of Maon, in the plain at the right hand of Jesimon.

25 Then Saul and his men went, to seek him. And it was told David, and forthwith he went down to the rock, and abode in the wilderness of Maon. And when Saul had heard of it, he pursued after David in the wilderness of Maon. 26 And Saul went on this side of the mountain, and David and his men were on the other side of the mountain. And David despaired of being able to escape from the face of Saul. And Saul and his men encompassed David and his men round about to take them. 27 And a messenger came to Saul, saying: Make haste to come, for the Philistines have poured in themselves upon the land. 28 Wherefore Saul returned, leaving the pursuit of David, and went to meet the Philistines. For this cause they called that place, the Rock of Division.

CHAPTER 24.

Saul Seeks David in Engaddi. 1 Then David went up from thence, and dwelt in strongholds of Engaddi. 2 And when Saul was returned from following the Philistines, they told him, saying: Behold, David is in the desert of Engaddi. 3 Saul therefore took three thousand chosen men out of all Israel, and went out to seek after David and his men, even upon the most craggy rocks, which are accessible only to wild goats. 4 And he came to the sheepcotes, which were in his way. And there was a cave into which Saul went to ease nature. Now David and his men lay hid in the inner part of the cave. 5 And the servants of David said to him: Behold the day, of which the Lord said to thee: I will deliver thy enemy unto thee, that thou mayest do to him as it shall seem good in thy eyes. Then David arose, and secretly cut off the hem of Saul's robe. 6 After which David's heart struck him,* because he had cut off the hem of Saul's robe. 7 And he said to his men: The Lord be merciful unto me, that I may do no such thing to my master, the Lord's anointed, as to lay my hand upon him, because he is the Lord's anointed. 8 And David stopped his men with his words, and suffered them not to rise against Saul. But Saul rising up out of the cave, went on his way.

9 And David also rose up after him; and going out of the cave cried after Saul, saying: My lord the king. And Saul looked behind him: and David bowing himself down to the ground, worshiped, 10 and said to Saul: Why dost thou hear the words of men that say: David seeketh thy hurt? 11 Behold this day thy eyes have seen, that the Lord hath delivered thee into my hand in the cave, and I had a thought to kill thee,* but my eye hath spared thee. For I said: I will not put out my hand against my lord, because he is the Lord's anointed. 12 Moreover see and know, O my father, the hem of thy robe in my hand, that when I cut off the hem of thy robe, I would not put out my hand against thee. Reflect, and see, that there is no evil in my hand, nor iniquity, neither have I sinned against thee; but thou liest in wait for my life, to take it away. 13 The Lord judge between me and thee, and the Lord revenge me of thee;* but my hand shall not be upon thee. 14 As also it is said in the old proverb: From the wicked shall wickedness come forth. Therefore my hand shall not be upon thee. After whom dost thou come out, O king of Israel? 15 After whom dost thou pursue? After a dead dog? After a flea? 16 Be the Lord judge, and judge between me and thee, and see, and judge my cause, and deliver me out of thy hand.

17 And when David had made an end of speaking these words to Saul, Saul said: Is this thy voice, my son David? And Saul lifted up his voice, and wept. 18 And he said to David: Thou art more just than I; for thou hast done good to me, and I have rewarded thee with evil. 19 And thou hast shown this day what good things thou hast done to me: how the Lord delivered me into thy hand, and thou hast not killed me. 20 For who when he hath found his enemy, will let him go well away? But the Lord reward thee for this good turn, for what thou hast done to me this day. 21 And now as I know that thou shalt surely be king, and have the kingdom of Israel in thy hand, 22 swear to me by the Lord, that thou wilt not destroy my seed after me, nor take away my name from the house of my father. 23 And David swore to Saul. So Saul went home; and David and his men went up into safer places.

CHAPTER 25.

David, Nabal, and Abigail. 1 And Samuel died, o and all Israel was gathered together, and they mourned for him, and buried him in his house in Ramatha. And David rose and went down into the wilderness of Pharan.

2 Now there was a certain man in the wilderness of Maon, and his possessions were in Carmel, and the man was very great: and he had three thousand sheep, and a thousand goats: and it happened that he was shearing his sheep in Carmel. 3 Now the name of the man was Nabal, and the name of his wife was Abigail. And she was a prudent and very comely woman, but her husband was churlish, and very bad and ill-natured, and he was of the house of Caleb.

4 And when David heard in the wilderness that Nabal was shearing his sheep, 5 he sent ten young men, and said to them: Go up to Carmel, and go to Nabal, and salute him in my name with peace. 6 And you shall say: Peace be to my brethren, and to thee, and peace to thy house, and peace to all that thou hast. 7 I heard that thy shepherds that were with us in the 24, 6: Heart struck him: i.e., with remorse, fearing he had done amiss.

24, 11: A thought to kill thee: i.e., a suggestion to which I did not consent.

24, 13: Revenge me of thee or, as it is in the Hebrew, will revenge me: the meaning is, that he refers his whole cause to God, to judge and punish according to his justice; nevertheless, to preserve him from all personal hatred for Saul, or desire of gratifying his own passion, by seeking revenge. Far from rejoicing at Saul's death, he mourned most bitterly for him.

desert were shearing. We never molested them, neither was there aught missing to them of the flock at anytime, all the while they were with us in Carmel. 8 Ask thy servants, and they will tell thee. Now therefore let thy servants find favor in thy eyes, for we are come in a good day, whatsoever thy hand shall find give to thy servants, and to thy son David.

9 And when David's servants came, they spoke to Nabal all these words in David's name, and then held their peace. 10 But Nabal answering the servants of David, said: Who is David? And what is the son of Isai? Servants are multiplied nowadays who flee from their masters. 11 Shall I then take my bread, and my water, and the flesh of my cattle, which I have killed for my shearers, and give to men whom I know not whence they are? 12 So the servants of David went back their way, and returning came and told him all the words that he said. 13 Then David said to his young men: Let every man gird on his sword. And they girded on every man his sword. And David also girded on his sword: and there followed David about four hundred men, and two hundred remained with the baggage.

14 But one of the servants told Abigail the wife of Nabal, saying: Behold David sent messengers out of the wilderness to salute our master, and he rejected them. 15 These men were very good to us, and gave us no trouble; neither did we ever lose anything all the time that we conversed with them in the desert. 16 They were a wall unto us both by night and day, all the while we were with them keeping the sheep. 17 Wherefore consider, and think what thou hast to do, for evil is determined against thy husband, and against thy house, and he is a son of Belial, so that no man can speak to him.

18 Then Abigail made haste and took two hundred loaves, and two vessels of wine, and five sheep ready dressed, and five measures of parched corn, and a hundred clusters of raisins, and two hundred cakes of dry figs, and laid them upon asses. 19 And she said to her servants: Go before me. Behold I will follow after you; but she told not her husband Nabal. 20 And when she had gotten upon an ass, and was coming down to the foot of the mountain, David and his men came down over against her, and she met them. 21 And David said: Truly in vain have I kept all that belonged to this man in the wilderness, and nothing was lost of all that pertained unto him, and he hath returned me evil for good. 22 May God do so and so, and add more to the foes of David, if I leave* of all that belong to him till the morning, any that pisseth against the wall.

Abigail Appeases David. 23 And when Abigail saw David, she made haste and lighted off the ass, and fell before David, on her face, and adored upon the ground. 24 And she fell at his feet, and said: Upon me let this iniquity be, my lord. Let thy handmaid speak, I beseech thee, in thy ears, and hear the words of thy servant. 25 Let not my lord the king, I pray, regard this naughty man Nabal, for according to his name,* he is a fool, and folly is with him; but I thy handmaid did not see thy servants, my lord, whom thou sentest. 26 Now therefore, my lord, the Lord liveth, and thy soul liveth, who hath withholden thee from coming to blood, and hath saved thy hand to thee. And now let thy enemies be as Nabal, and all they that seek evil to my lord. 27 Wherefore receive this blessing, which thy handmaid hath brought to thee, my lord, and give it to the young men that follow thee, my lord. 28 Forgive the iniquity of thy handmaid, for the Lord will surely make for my lord a faithful house, p because thou, my lord, fightest the battles of the Lord: let not evil therefore be found in thee all the days of thy life. 29 For if a man at any time shall rise, and persecute thee, and seek thy life, the soul of my lord shall be kept, as in the bundle of the living, with the Lord thy God; but the souls of thy enemies shall be whirled, as with the violence and whirling of a sling. 30 And when the Lord shall have done to thee, my lord, all the good that he hath spoken concerning thee, and shall have made thee prince over Israel, 31 this shall not be an occasion of grief to thee, and a scruple of heart to my lord, that thou hast shed innocent blood, or hast revenged thyself. And when the Lord shall have done well by my lord, thou shalt remember thy handmaid.

32 And David said to Abigail: Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel, who sent thee this day to meet me, and blessed be thy speech, 33 and blessed be thou, who hast kept me today from coming to blood and revenging me with my own hand. 34 Otherwise as the Lord liveth the God of Israel, who hath withholden me from doing thee any evil: if thou hadst not quickly come to meet me, there had not been left to Nabal by the morning light any that pisseth against the wall. 35 And David received at her hand all that she had brought him, and said to her: Go in peace into thy house. Behold I have heard thy voice, and have honored thy face.

36 And Abigail came to Nabal; and behold he had a feast in his house, like the feast of a king, and Nabal's heart was merry, for he was very drunk, and she told him nothing less or more until morning. 37 But early in the morning when Nabal had digested his wine, his wife told him these words, and his heart died within him, and he became as a stone. 38 And after ten days had passed the Lord struck Nabal, and he died. 39 And when David had heard that Nabal was dead, he said: Blessed be the Lord,* who hath judged the cause of my reproach at the hand of Nabal, and hath kept his servant from evil, and the Lord hath returned the wickedness of Nabal upon his head. Then David sent and treated with Abigail, that he might take her to himself for a wife. 40 And David's servants came to Abigail to Carmel, and spoke to her, saying: David hath sent us to thee, to take thee to himself for a wife. 41 And she arose and bowed herself down with her face to the earth, and said: Behold, let thy servant be a handmaid, to wash the feet of the servants of my lord. 42 And Abigail arose, and made haste, and got upon an ass, and five damsels went with her, her waiting maids, and she followed the messengers of David, and became his wife.

43 Moreover David took also Achinoam of Jezrael: and they were both of them his wives. 44 But Saul gave Michol his daughter, David's wife, to Phalti, the son of Lais, who was of Gallim.

3. David among the Philistines

CHAPTER 26.

Saul in David's Power. 1 And the men of Ziph came to Saul in Gabaa, saying: [q] Behold David is hid in the hill of Hachila, which is over against the wilderness. 2 And Saul arose, and went down to the wilderness of Ziph, having with him three thousand chosen men of Israel, to seek David in the wilderness of Ziph. 3 And Saul encamped in Gabaa Hachila, which was over against the wilderness in the way. And David abode in the wilderness. And seeing that Saul was come after him into the wilderness, 4 he sent spies, and learned that he was most certainly come thither. 5 And David arose secretly, and came to the place where Saul was. And when he had beheld the place wherein Saul slept, and Abner the son of Ner, the captain of his army, and Saul sleeping in a tent, and the rest of the multitude round about him, 6 David spoke to Achimelech the Hethite, and Abisai the son of Sarvia the brother of Joab, saying: Who will go down with me to Saul into the camp? And Abisai said: I will go with thee.

7 So David and Abisai came to the people by night, and found Saul lying and sleeping in the tent, and his spear fixed in the ground at his head, and Abner and the people sleeping round about him. 8 And Abisai said to David: God hath shut up thy enemy this day into thy hands. Now then I will run him through with my spear even to the earth at once, and there shall be no need of a second time. 9 And David said to Abisai: Kill him not, for who shall put forth his hand against the Lord's anointed, and shall be guiltless? 10 And David said: As the Lord liveth, unless the Lord shall strike him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall go down to battle and perish; 11 the Lord be merciful unto me, that I extend not my hand upon the Lord's anointed. But now take the spear, which is at his head, and the cup of water, and let us go. 12 So David took the spear and the cup of water which was at Saul's head, and they went away. And no man saw it, or knew

q 1 Kgs 23, 19.

25, 39: Blessed be, etc.: David praises God on this occasion, not out of joy for the death of Nabal, but because God had taken his cause in hand, in punishing the injury done to him; whilst, by a merciful providence he kept him from revenging himself.

it, or awaked, but they were all asleep, for a deep sleep from the Lord was fallen upon them.

13 And when David was gone over to the other side, and stood on the top of the hill afar off, and a good space was between them, 14 David cried to the people, and to Abner the son of Ner, saying: Wilt thou not answer, Abner? And Abner answering, said: Who art thou that criest, and disturbest the king? 15 And David said to Abner: Art not thou a man? And who is like thee in Israel? Why then hast thou not kept thy lord the king? For there came one of the people in to kill the king thy lord. 16 This thing is not good, that thou hast done. As the Lord liveth, you are the sons of death, who have not kept your master, the Lord's anointed. And now where is the king's spear, and the cup of water, which was at his head?

Saul Acknowledges David's Innocence. 17 And Saul knew David's voice, and said: Is this thy voice, my son David? And David said: It is my voice, my lord the king. 18 And he said: Wherefore doth my lord persecute his servant? What have I done? Or what evil is there in my hand? 19 Now therefore hear, I pray thee, my lord the king, the words of thy servant: If the Lord stir thee up against me, let him accept of sacrifice; but if the sons of men, they are cursed in the sight of the Lord, who have cast me out this day, that I should not dwell in the inheritance of the Lord, saying: Go, serve strange gods. 20 And now let not my blood be shed upon the earth before the Lord, for the king of Israel is come out to seek a flea, as the partridge is hunted in the mountains.

21 And Saul said: I have sinned. Return, my son David, for I will no more do thee harm, because my life hath been precious in thy eyes this day. For it appeareth that I have done foolishly, and have been ignorant in very many things. 22 And David answering, said: Behold the king's spear. Let one of the king's servants come over and fetch it. 23 And the Lord will reward everyone according to his justice, and his faithfulness: for the Lord hath delivered thee this day into my hand, and I would not put forth my hand against the Lord's anointed. 24 And as thy life hath been much set by this day in my eyes, so let my life be much set by in the eyes of the Lord, and let him deliver me from all distress. 25 Then Saul said to David: Blessed art thou, my son David, and truly doing thou shalt do, and prevailing thou shalt prevail. And David went on his way, and Saul returned to his place.

CHAPTER 27.

David at Siceleg. 1 And [r] David said in his heart: I shall one day or other fall into the hands of Saul. Is it not better for me to flee, and to be saved in the land of the Philistines, that Saul may despair of me, and cease to seek me in all the lands of Israel? I will flee then out of his hands. 2 And David arose and went away, both he and the six hundred men that were with him, to Achis the son of Maoch, king of Geth. 3 And David dwelt with Achis at Geth, he and his men: every man with his household, and David with his two wives, Achinoam the Jezraelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal of Carmel. 4 And it was told Saul that David was fled to Geth, and he sought no more after him.

5 And David said to Achis: If I have found favor in thy sight, let a place be given me in one of the cities of this country, that I may dwell there, for why should thy servant dwell in the royal city with thee? 6 Then Achis gave him Siceleg that day, for which reason Siceleg belongeth to the kings of Juda unto this day. 7 And the time that David dwelt in the country of the Philistines, was four months.

8 And David and his men went up, and pillaged Gessuri,* and Gerzi, and the Amalecites: for these were of old the inhabitants of the countries, as men go to Sur, even to the land of Egypt. 9 And David wasted all the land, and left neither man nor woman alive; and took away the sheep and the oxen, and the asses, and the camels, and the apparel, and returned and came to Achis. 10 And Achis said to him: Whom hast thou gone against today? David answered: Against the south

r 1012 B.C.

27, 8: Pillaged Gessuri, etc.: these probably were enemies of the people of God; and some, if not all of them, were of the number of those whom God had ordered to be destroyed. of Juda, and against the south of Jerameel, and against the south of Ceni. 11 And David saved neither man nor woman, neither brought he any of them to Geth, saying: Lest they should speak against us. So did David, and such was his proceeding all the days that he dwelt in the country of the Philistines. 12 And Achis believed David, saying: He hath done much harm to his people Israel; therefore he shall be my servant forever.

CHAPTER 28.

Saul Invokes a Witch. 1 And it came to pass in those days, that the Philistines gathered together their armies to be prepared for war against Israel. And Achis said to David: Know thou now assuredly, that thou shalt go out with me to the war, thou and thy men. 2 And David said to Achis: Now thou shalt know what thy servant will do. And Achis said to David: And I will appoint thee to guard my life forever.

3 [s] Now Samuel was dead, and all Israel mourned for him, and buried him in Ramatha his city; and Saul had put away all the magicians and soothsayers out of the land.

4 And the Philistines were gathered together, and came and camped in Sunam: and Saul also gathered together all Israel, and came to Gelboe. 5 And Saul saw the army of the Philistines, and was afraid, and his heart was very much dismayed. 6 And he consulted the Lord, and he answered him not, neither by dreams, nor by priests, nor by prophets. 7 And Saul said to his servants: Seek me a woman that hath a [t] divining spirit, and I will go to her, and inquire by her. And his servants said to him: There is a woman that hath a divining spirit at Endor. 8 Then he disguised himself, and put on other clothes, and he went, and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night, and he said to her: Divine to me by thy divining spirit, and bring me up him whom I shall tell thee. 9 And the woman said to him: Behold thou knowest all that Saul hath done, and how he hath rooted out the magicians and soothsayers from the land. Why then dost thou lay a snare for my life, to cause me to be put to death? 10 And Saul swore unto her by the Lord, saying: As the Lord liveth, there shall no evil happen to thee for this thing. 11 And the woman said to him: Whom shall I bring up to thee? And he said: Bring me up Samuel.

12 And when the woman saw Samuel, she cried out with a loud voice, and said to Saul: Why hast thou deceived me? For thou art Saul. 13 And the king said to her: Fear not. What hast thou seen? And the woman said to Saul: I saw gods ascending from the earth. 14 And he said to her: What form is he of? And she said: An old man cometh up, and he is covered with a mantle. And Saul understood that it was Samuel,* and he bowed himself with his face to the ground, and adored.

15 And Samuel said to Saul: [u] Why hast thou disturbed my rest, that I should be brought up? And Saul said: I am in great distress: for the Philistines fight against me, and God is departed from me, and would not hear me, neither by the hand of prophets, nor by dreams. Therefore I have called thee, that thou mayest show me what I shall do. 16 And Samuel said: Why asketh thou me, seeing the Lord has departed from thee, and is gone over to thy rival? 17 For the Lord will do to thee as he spoke by me, and he will rend thy kingdom out of thy hand, and will give it to thy neighbor David, 18 because thou didst not obey the voice of the Lord, neither didst thou execute the wrath of his indignation upon Amalec. Therefore hath the Lord done to thee what thou sufferest this day. 19 And the Lord also will deliver Israel with thee into the hands of the Philistines. And tomorrow thou and thy sons shall be with me;* and the Lord will also deliver the army of Israel into the hands of the Philistines. 20 And forthwith Saul fell all along on the ground, for he was frightened with the words of Samuel, and there was no strength in him, for he had eaten no bread all that day.

21 And the woman came to Saul (for he was very much troubled) and said to him: Behold thy handmaid hath obeyed thy voice, and I have put my life in my 28, 14: Understood that it was Samuel: it is the more common opinion of Church Fathers and interpreters, that the soul of Samuel appeared, and not, as some have imagined an evil spirit in his shape. It was not the power of her magic that brought him thither, but God was pleased for the punishment of Saul, that Samuel himself should denounce to him the evils that were falling upon him. hand, and I hearkened unto the words which thou spokest to me. 22 Now therefore hear thou also the voice of thy handmaid, and let me set before thee a morsel of bread, that thou mayest eat and recover strength, and be able to go on thy journey. 23 But he refused, and said: I will not eat. But his servants and the woman forced him, and at length hearkening to their voice, he arose from the ground and sat upon the bed. 24 Now the woman had a fatted calf in the house, and she made haste and killed it: and taking meal kneaded it, and baked some unleavened bread, 25 and set it before Saul, and before his servants. And when they had eaten they rose up, and walked all that night.

CHAPTER 29.

David Abandoned by Philistines. 1 Now [v] all the troops of the Philistines were gathered together to Aphec. And Israel also camped by the fountain which is in Jezrahel. 2 And the lords of the Philistines marched with their hundreds and their thousands; but David and his men were in the rear with Achis. 3 And the princes of the Philistines said to Achis: What mean these Hebrews? And Achis said to the princes of the Philistines: Do you not know David, who was the servant of Saul the king of Israel, and hath been with me many days, or years, and I have found no fault in him since the day that he fled over to me until this day? 4 [w] But the princes of the Philistines were angry with him, and they said to him: Let this man return, and abide in his place, which thou hast appointed him, and let him not go down with us to battle, lest he be an adversary to us, when we shall begin to fight, for how can he otherwise appease his master but with our heads? 5 Is not this David to whom they sung in their dances, saying: Saul slew his thousands, and David his ten thousands?

6 Then Achis called David, and said to him: As the Lord liveth, thou art upright and good in my sight, and so is thy going out and thy coming in with me in the army. And I have not found any evil in thee since the day that thou camest to me unto this day, but thou pleasest not the lords. 7 Return therefore, and go in peace, and offend not the eyes of the princes of the Philistines. 8 And David said to Achis: But what have I done, and what hast thou found in me thy servant from the day that I have been in thy sight until this day, that I may not go and fight against the enemies of my lord the king? 9 And Achis answering said to David: I know that thou art good in my sight, [x] as an angel of God: but the princes of the Philistines have said: He shall not go up with us to the battle. 10 Therefore arise in the morning, thou and the servants of thy lord, who came with thee; and when you are up before day, and it shall begin to be light, go on your way. 11 So David and his men arose in the night, that they might set forward in the morning, and returned to the land of the Philistines: and the Philistines went up to Jezrahel.

CHAPTER 30.

David Pursues the Amalecites. 1 Now when David and his men were come to Siceleg on the third day, [y] the Amalecites had made an invasion on the south side upon Siceleg, and had smitten Siceleg, and burnt it with fire, 2 and had taken the women captives that were in it, both little and great: and they had not killed any person, but had carried them with them, and went on their way. 3 So when David and his men came to the city, and found it burnt with fire, and that their wives and their sons and their daughters were taken captives, 4 David and the people that were with him, lifted up their voices, and wept till they had no more tears. 5 For the two wives also of David were taken captives, Achinoam the Jezraelitess, and Abigail the wife of Nabal of Carmel.

6 And David was greatly afflicted, for the people had a mind to stone him, for the soul of every man was bitterly grieved for his sons, and daughters, but David took courage in the Lord his God. 7 And he said to Abiathar the priest the son of Achimelech: Bring me hither the ephod. And Abiathar brought the ephod to David. 8 And David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I pursue after these robbers, and shall I overtake them, or not? And the Lord said to him: Pursue after them, for thou shalt surely overtake them and recover the prey. 9 So David went, he and the six hundred men that were with him, and they came to the torrent Besor: and some being weary stayed there. 10 But David pursued, he and four hundred men: for two hundred stayed, who being weary could not go over the torrent Besor.

11 And they found an Egyptian in the field, and brought him to David: and they gave him bread to eat, and water to drink, 12 as also a piece of cake of figs, and two bunches of raisins. And when he had eaten them his spirits returned, and he was refreshed, for he had not eaten bread, nor drunk water three days and three nights. 13 And David said to him: To whom dost thou belong? Or whence dost thou come? And whither art thou going? He said: I am a young man of Egypt, the servant of an Amalecite, and my master left me, because I began to be sick three days ago. 14 For we made an invasion on the south side of Cerethi, and upon Juda, and upon the south of Caleb, and we burnt Siceleg with fire. 15 And David said to him: Canst thou bring me to this company? And he said: Swear to me by God, that thou wilt not kill me, nor deliver me into the hands of my master, and I will bring thee to this company. And David swore to him. 16 And when he had brought him, behold they were lying spread upon all the ground, eating and drinking, and as it were keeping a festival day for all the prey and the spoils which they had taken out of the land of the Philistines, and out of the land of Juda. 17 And David slew them from the evening unto the evening of the next day, and there escaped not a man of them, but four hundred young men, who had gotten upon camels, and fled. 18 So David recovered all that the Amalecites had taken, and he rescued his two wives. 19 And there was nothing missing small or great, neither of their sons nor their daughters, nor of the spoils, and whatsoever they had taken David recovered all. 20 And he took all the flocks and the herds, and made them go before him. And they said: This is the prey of David.

21 And David came to the two hundred men, who being weary had stayed, and were not able to follow David, and he had ordered them to abide at the torrent Besor. And they came out to meet David, and the people that were with him. And David coming to the people saluted them peaceably. 22 Then all the wicked and unjust men that had gone with David answering said: Because they came not with us, we will not give them anything of the prey which we have recovered; but let every man take his wife and his children, and be contented with them, and go his way. 23 But David said: You shall not do so, my brethren, with these things, which the Lord hath given us, who hath kept us, and hath delivered the robbers that invaded us into our hands. 24 And no man shall hearken to you in this matter. But equal shall be the portion of him that went down to battle and of him that abode at the baggage, and they shall divide alike. 25 And this hath been done from that day forward, and since was made a statute, and an ordinance, and as a law in Israel.

26 Then David came to Siceleg, and sent presents of the prey to the ancients of Juda his neighbors, saying: Receive a blessing of the prey of the enemies of the Lord: 27 to them that were in Bethel, and that were in Ramoth to the south, and to them that were in Jether, 28 and to them that were in Aroer and that were in Sephamoth, and that were in Esthamo, 29 and that were in Rachal, and that were in the cities of Jerameel, and that were in the cities of Ceni, 30 and that were in Arama, and that were in the lake Asan, and that were in Athach, 31 and that were in Hebron, and to the rest that were in those places, in which David had abode with his men.

CHAPTER 31.

Death of Saul and His Sons. 1 And [z] the Philistines fought against Israel, and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down slain in mount Gelboe. 2 [a] And the Philistines fell upon Saul, and upon his sons, and they slew Jonathan, and Abinadab and Melchisua the sons of Saul. 3 And the whole weight of the battle was turned upon Saul: and the archers overtook him, and he was grievously wounded by the archers. 4 [b] Then Saul said to his armorbearer: Draw thy sword, and kill me, lest these uncircumcised come, and slay me, and mock at me. And his armorbearer would not, for he was struck with exceeding great fear. Then Saul took his sword, and fell upon it. 5 And when his armorbearer saw this, to wit, that Saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword and died with him. 6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and his armorbearer, and all his men that same day together. 7 And the men of Israel, that were beyond the valley, and beyond the Jordan, seeing that the Israelites were fled, and that Saul was dead, and his sons, forsook their cities, and fled. And the Philistines came, and dwelt there.

8 And on the morrow the Philistines came to strip the slain, and they found Saul and his three sons lying in mount Gelboe. 9 And they cut off Saul's head, and stripped him of his armor, and sent into the land of the Philistines round about, to publish it in the temples of their idols, and among their people. 10 And they put his armor in the temple of Astaroth, but his body they hung on the wall of Bethsan.

11 c Now when the inhabitants of Jabes Galaad had heard all that the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 all the most valiant men arose, and walked all the night, and took the body of Saul, and the bodies of his sons, from the wall of Bethsan. And they came to Jabes Galaad, and burnt them there: 13 and they took their bones and buried them in the wood of Jabes: and fasted seven days.

THE SECOND BOOK OF SAMUEL

OTHERWISE CALLED THE SECOND BOOK OF KINGS

This Book relates the transactions from the death of Saul until the end of David's reign.

I: DAVID'S REIGN OVER JUDA

CHAPTER 1.

David Mourns for Saul and Jonathan. 1 Now a it came to pass, after Saul was dead, that David returned from the slaughter of the Amalecites, and abode two days in Siceleg. 2 And on the third day, there appeared a man who came out of Saul's camp, with his garments rent, and dust strewed on his head. And when he came to David, he fell upon his face, and adored. 3 And David said to him: From whence comest thou? And he said to him: I am fled out of the camp of Israel. 4 And David said unto him: What is the matter that is come to pass? Tell me. He said: The people are fled from the battle, and many of the people are fallen and dead: moreover Saul and Jonathan his son are slain. 5 And David said to the young man that told him: How knowest thou that Saul and Jonathan his son are dead? 6 And the young man that told him, said: I came by chance upon mount Gelboe, and Saul leaned upon his spear: and the chariots and horsemen drew near unto him, 7 and looking behind him, and seeing me, he called me. And I answered: Here am I. 8 And he said to me: Who art thou? And I said to him: I am an Amalecite. 9 And he said to me: Stand over me, and kill me, for anguish is come upon me, and as yet my whole life is in me. 10 So standing over him, I killed him,* for I knew that he could not live after the fall. And I took the diadem that was on his head, and the bracelet that was on his arm, and have brought them hither to thee, my lord.

11 Then David took hold of his garments and rent them, and likewise all the men that were with him. 12 And they mourned, and wept, and fasted until evening for Saul, and for Jonathan his son, and for the people of the Lord, and for the house of Israel, because they were fallen by the sword.

13 And David said to the young man that told him: Whence art thou? He answered: I am the son of a stranger of Amalec. 14 David said to him: b Why didst thou not fear to put out thy hand to kill the Lord's anointed? 15 And David calling one of his servants, said: Go near and fall upon him. And he struck him so that he died. 16 And David said to him: Thy blood be upon thy own head, for thy own mouth hath spoken against thee, saying: I have slain the Lord's anointed.

17 And David made this kind of lamentation over Saul, and over Jonathan his son. 18 (Also he commanded that they should teach the children of Juda the use of the bow, as it is written in the book of the just.) And he said: Consider, O Israel, for them that are dead, wounded on thy high places.

19 The illustrious of Israel are slain upon thy mountains: How are the valiant fallen?

20 Tell it not in Geth, publish it not in the streets of Ascalon, lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

21 Ye mountains of Gelboe, let neither dew, nor rain come upon you, neither be they fields of firstfruits, for there was cast away the shield of the valiant, the shield of Saul as though he had not been anointed with oil.

22 From the blood of the slain, from the fat of the valiant, the arrow of Jonathan never turned back, and the sword of Saul did not return empty.

23 Saul and Jonathan, lovely and comely in their life, even in death they were not divided: they were swifter than eagles, stronger than lions.

24 Ye daughters of Israel, weep over Saul, who clothed you with scarlet in delights, who gave ornaments of gold for your attire.

25 How are the valiant fallen in battle? Jonathan slain in the high places?

26 I grieve for thee, my brother Jonathan: exceeding beautiful, and amiable to me above the love of women. As the mother loveth her only son, so did I love thee.

27 How are the valiant fallen and the weapons of war perished?

1. David, King of Juda

CHAPTER 2.

David Anointed King of Juda. 1 And [c] after these things David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I go up into one of the cities of Juda? And the Lord said to him: Go up. And David said: Whither shall I go up? And he answered him: Into Hebron. 2 So David went up, and his two wives, Achinoam the Jezraelitess and Abigail the wife of Nabal of Carmel: 3 and the men also that were with him, David brought up every man with his household: and they abode in the towns of Hebron. 4 [d] And the men of Juda came, and anointed David there, to be king over the house of Juda.

And it was told David that the men of Jabes Galaad had buried Saul. 5 David therefore sent messengers to the men of Jabes Galaad, and said to them: Blessed be you to the Lord, who have shown this mercy to your master Saul, and have buried him. 6 And now the Lord surely will render you mercy and truth, and I also will requite you for this good turn, because you have done this thing. 7 Let your hands be strengthened, and be ye men of valor; for although your master Saul be dead, yet the house of Juda hath anointed me to be their king.

Abner Makes Isboseth King. 8 But Abner the son of Ner, general of Saul's army, took Isboseth the son of Saul, and led him about through the camp, 9 and made him king over Galaad, and over Gessuri, and over Jezrahel, and over Ephraim, and over Benjamin, and over all Israel. 10 Isboseth the son of Saul was forty years old when he began to reign over Israel, and he reigned two years;* and only the house of Juda followed David. 11 And the number of the days that David abode, reigning in Hebron over the house of Juda, was seven years and six months, 12 and Abner the son of Ner, and the servants of Isboseth the son of Saul, went out from the camp to Gabaon. 13 And Joab the son of Sarvia and the servants of David went out, and met them by the pool of Gabaon. And when they were come together, they sat down over against one another: the one on the one side of the pool, and the other on the other side. 14 And Abner said to Joab: Let the young men rise, and play before us. And Joab answered: Let them rise. 15 Then there arose and went over twelve in number of Benjamin, of the part of Isboseth the son of Saul, and twelve of the servants of David. 16 And everyone catching his fellow by the head, thrust his sword into the side of his adversary, and they fell down together. And the name of the place was called: The field of the valiant, in Gabaon. 17 And there was a very fierce battle that day: and Abner was put to flight, with the men of Israel, by the servants of David.

18 And there were the three sons of Sarvia there, Joab, and Abisai, and Asael. Now Asael was a most swift runner, like one of the roes that abide in the woods. 19 And Asael pursued after Abner, and turned not to the right hand nor to the left from following Abner. 20 And Abner looked behind him, and said: Art thou Asael? And he answered: I am. 21 And Abner said to him: Go to the right hand or to the left, and lay hold on one of the young men and take thee his spoils. But Asael would not leave off following him close. 22 And again Abner said to Asael: Go off, and do not follow me, lest I be obliged to stab thee to the ground, and I shall not be able to hold up my face to Joab thy brother. 23 But he refused to hearken to him, and would not turn aside; wherefore Abner struck him with his spear with a back stroke in the groin, and thrust him through, and he died upon the spot. And all that came to the place where Asael fell down and died stood still. 24 Now while Joab and Abisai pursued after Abner, the sun went down. And they came as far as the hill of the aqueduct, that lieth over against the valley by the way of the wilderness in Gabaon.

25 And the children of Benjamin gathered themselves together to Abner; and being joined in one body, they stood on the top of a hill. 26 And Abner cried out to Joab, and said: Shall thy sword rage unto utter destruction? Knowest thou not that it is dangerous to drive people to despair? How long dost thou defer to bid the people cease from pursuing after their brethren? 27 And Joab said: As the Lord liveth, if thou hadst spoke sooner, even in the morning the people should have retired from pursuing after their brethren. 28 Then Joab sounded the trumpet, and all the army stood still, and did not pursue after Israel any farther, nor fight any more.

29 And Abner and his men walked all that night through the plains: and they passed the Jordan, and having gone through all Beth horon came to the camp. 30 And Joab returning, after he had left Abner, assembled all the people. And there were wanting of David's servants nineteen men, beside Asael. 31 But the servants of David had killed of Benjamin, and of the men that were with Abner, three hundred and sixty, who all died. 32 And they took Asael, and buried him in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem, and Joab, and the men that were with him, marched all the night, and they came to Hebron at break of day.

CHAPTER 3.

Civil War. 1 Now there was a long war between the house of Saul* and the house of David: David prospering and growing always stronger and stronger, but the house of Saul decaying daily.

2 e And sons were born to David in Hebron: and his firstborn was Amnon of Achinoam the Jezraelitess; 3 and his second Cheleab of Abigail the wife of Nabal of Carmel; and the third Absalom the son of Maacha the daughter of Tholmai king of Gessur; 4 and the fourth Adonias, the son of Haggith; and the fifth Saphathia the son of Abital; 5 and the sixth Jethraam of Egla the wife of David: these were born to David in Hebron.

6 Now while there was war between the house of Saul and the house of David, Abner the son of Ner ruled the house of Saul. 7 And Saul had a concubine named Respha, the daughter of Aia. And Isboseth said to Abner: 8 Why didst thou go in to my father's concubine? And he was exceedingly angry for the words of Isboseth, and said: Am I a dog's head against Juda this day, who have shown mercy to the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and friends, and have not delivered thee into the hands of David, and hast thou sought this day against me to charge me with a matter concerning a woman? 9 So do God to Abner, and more also, unless as the Lord hath sworn to David, so I do to him, 10 that the kingdom be translated from the house of Saul, and the throne of David be set up over Israel, and over Juda from Dan to Bersabee. 11 And he could not answer him a word, because he feared him.

Abner's Pact with David. 12 Abner [f] therefore sent messengers to David for himself, saying: Whose is the land? And that they should say: Make a league with me, and my hand shall be with thee, and I will bring all Israel to thee. 13 And he said: Very well. I will make a league with thee; but one thing I require of thee, saying: Thou shalt not see my face before thou bring Michol the daughter of Saul; and so thou shalt come, and see me. 14 And David sent messengers to Isboseth the son of Saul, saying: [g] Restore my wife Michol, whom I espoused to me for a hundred foreskins of the Philistines. 15 And Isboseth sent, and took her from her husband Phaltiel, the son of Lais. 16 And her husband followed her, weeping as far as Bahurim: and Abner said to him: Go and return. And he returned.

17 Abner also spoke to the ancients of Israel, saying: Both yesterday and the day before you sought for David that he might reign over you. 18 Now then do it; because the Lord hath spoken to David, saying: By the hand of my servant David I will save my people Israel from the hands of the Philistines, and of all their enemies. 19 And Abner spoke also to Benjamin. And he went to speak to David in Hebron all that seemed good to Israel and to all Benjamin. 20 And he came to David in Hebron with twenty men. And David made a feast for Abner, and his men that came with him. 21 And Abner said to David: I will rise, that I may gather all Israel unto thee my lord the king, and may enter into a league with thee, and that thou mayest reign over all as thy soul desireth.

Now when David had brought Abner on his way, and he was gone in peace, 22 immediately David's servants and Joab came, after having slain the robbers, with an exceeding great booty. And Abner was not with David in Hebron, for he had now sent him away, and he was gone in peace. 23 And Joab and all the army that was with him, came afterwards. And it was told Joab that Abner the son of Ner came to the king, and he hath sent him away, and he is gone in peace. 24 And Joab went in to the king, and said: What hast thou done? Behold Abner came to thee. Why didst thou send him away, and he is gone and departed? 25 Knowest thou not Abner the son of Ner, that to this end he came to thee, that he might deceive thee, and to know thy going out and thy coming in, and to know all thou dost?

Joab Slays Abner. 26 Then Joab going out from David, sent messengers after Abner, and brought him back from the cistern of Sira, David knowing nothing of it. 27 And when [h] Abner was returned to Hebron, Joab took him aside to the middle of the gate, to speak to him treacherously. And he stabbed him there in the groin, and he died, in revenge of the blood of Asael his brother. 28 And when David heard of it, after the thing was now done, he said: I and my kingdom are innocent before the Lord forever of the blood of Abner the son of Ner; 29 and may it come upon the head of Joab, and upon all his father's house; and let there not fail from the house of Joab one that hath an issue of seed, or that is a leper, or that holdeth the distaff, or that falleth by the sword, or that wanteth bread. 30 So Joab and Abisai his brother slew Abner, because he had killed their brother Asael at Gabaon in the battle.

31 And David said to Joab, and to all the people that were with him: Rend your garments, and gird yourselves with sackcloths, and mourn before the funeral of Abner. And king David himself followed the bier. 32 And when they had buried Abner in Hebron, king David lifted up his voice, and wept at the grave of Abner; and all the people also wept.

33 And the king mourning and lamenting over Abner, said: Not as cowards are wont to die, hath Abner died. 34 Thy hands were not bound, nor thy feet laden with fetters; but as men fall before the children of iniquity, so didst thou fall. And all the people repeating it wept over him.

35 And when all the people came to take meat with David, while it was yet broad day, David swore, saying: So do God to me, and more also, if I taste bread or anything else before sunset. 36 And all the people heard, and they were pleased, and all that the king did seemed good in the sight of all the people. 37 And all the people and all Israel understood that day that it was not the king's doing, that Abner the son of Ner was slain. 38 The king also said to his servants: Do you not know that a prince and a great man is slain this day in Israel? 39 But I as yet am tender, though anointed king. And these men the sons of Sarvia are too hard for me. The Lord reward him that doth evil according to his wickedness.

CHAPTER 4.

Murder of Isboseth. 1 And i Isboseth the son of Saul heard that Abner was slain in Hebron: and his hands were weakened, and all Israel was troubled. 2 Now the son of Saul had two men captains of his bands: the name of the one was Baana, and the name of the other Rechab, the sons of Remmon a Berothite of the children of Benjamin, for Beroth also was reckoned in Benjamin. 3 And the Berothites fled into Gethaim, and were sojourners there until that time. 4 And Jonathan the son of Saul had a son that was lame of his feet, for he was five years old when the tidings came of Saul and Jonathan from Jezrael. And his nurse took him up and fled; and as she made haste to flee, he fell and became lame. And his name was Miphiboseth.

5 And the sons of Remmon the Berothite, Rechab and Baana, coming, went into the house of Isboseth in the heat of the day; and he was sleeping upon his bed at noon. And the doorkeeper of the house, who was cleansing wheat, was fallen asleep. 6 And they entered into the house secretly taking ears of corn, and Rechab and Baana his brother stabbed him in the groin, and fled away. 7 For when they came into the house, he was sleeping upon his bed in a parlor, and they struck him and killed him: and taking away his head they went off by the way of the wilderness, walking all night. 8 And they brought the head of Isboseth to David to Hebron. And they said to the king: Behold the head of Isboseth the son of Saul thy enemy who sought thy life; and the Lord hath revenged my lord the king this day of Saul and of his seed. 9 But David answered Rechab and Baana his brother, the sons of Remmon the Berothite, and said to them: As the Lord liveth, who hath delivered my soul out of all distress, 10 j the man that told me, and said: Saul is dead, who thought he brought good tidings, I apprehended, and slew him in Siceleg, who should have been rewarded for his news. 11 How much more now when wicked men have slain an innocent man in his own house upon his bed, shall I not require his blood at your hand, and take you away from the earth? 12 And David commanded his servants and they slew them: and cutting off their hands and feet, hanged them up over the pool in Hebron; but the head of Isboseth they took and buried in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

2. David, King of All Israel

CHAPTER 5.

David Anointed King. 1 Then k all the tribes of Israel came to David in Hebron, saying: l Behold we are thy bone and thy flesh. 2 Moreover yesterday also and the day before, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that did lead out and bring in Israel. And the Lord said to thee: Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be prince over Israel. 3 The ancients also of Israel came to the king to Hebron, and king David made a league with them in Hebron before the Lord: m and they anointed David to be king over Israel.

4 David was thirty years old when he began to reign, n and he reigned forty years. 5 In Hebron he reigned over Juda seven years and six months; and in Jerusalem he reigned three and thirty years over all Israel and Juda.

6 And the king and all the men that were with him went to Jerusalem to the Jebusites the inhabitants of the land. And they said to David: Thou shalt not come in hither unless thou take away the blind and the lame that say: David shall not come in hither.

7 But David took the castle of Sion: the same is the city of David. 8 For David had offered that day a reward to whosoever should strike the Jebusites and get up to the gutters of the tops of the houses, and take away the blind and the lame that hated the soul of David. Therefore it is said in the proverb: The blind and the lame shall not come into the temple. No temple at that time

9 o And David dwelt in the castle, and called it, The city of David: and built round about from Mello and inwards. 10 And he went on prospering and growing up, and the Lord God of hosts was with him.

11 p And Hiram the king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, and carpenters, and masons for walls: and they built a house for David. 12 And David knew that the Lord had confirmed him king over Israel, and that he had exalted his kingdom over his people Israel.

13 q And David took more concubines and wives of Jerusalem,* after he was come from Hebron: and there were born to David other sons also and daughters. 14 And these are the names of them that were born to him in Jerusalem: Samua, and Sobab, and Nathan, and Solomon, 15 and Jebahar, and Elisua, and Nepheg, 16 and Japhia, and Elisama, and Elioda, and Eliphaleth.

17 And the Philistines heard that they had anointed David to be king over Israel. And they all came to seek David. And when David heard of it, he went down to a stronghold. 18 r And the Philistines coming spread themselves in the valley of Raphaim. 19 And David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I go up to the Philistines? And wilt thou deliver them into my hand? And the Lord said to David: Go up, for I will surely deliver the Philistines into thy hand. 20 s And David came to Baal Pharasim, and defeated them there, and he said: The Lord hath divided my enemies before me, as waters are divided. t Therefore the name of the place was called Baal Pharasim. 21 And they left there their idols which David and his men took away.

22 And the Philistines came up again and spread themselves in the valley of Raphaim. 23 And David consulted the Lord: Shall I go up against the Philistines, and wilt thou deliver them into my hands? He answered: Go not up against them, but fetch a compass behind them, and thou shalt come upon them over against the pear trees. 24 And when thou shalt hear the sound of one going in the tops of the pear trees, then shalt thou join battle: for then will the Lord go out before thy face to strike the army of the Philistines. 25 And David did as the Lord had commanded him, and he smote the Philistines from Gabaa until thou come to Gezer.

CHAPTER 6.

The Ark in the House of Obededom.

1 And David again gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand. 2 u And David arose and went, with all the people that were with him of the men of Juda to fetch the ark of God, upon which the name of the Lord of hosts is invoked, who sitteth over it upon the cherubim. 3 And they laid the ark of God upon a new cart: and took it out of the house of Abinadab, who was in Gabaa.* And Oza and Ahio, the sons of Abinadab, drove the new cart. 4 v And when they had taken it out of the house of Abinadab, who was in Gabaa, Ahio having care of the ark of God went before the ark. 5 But David and all Israel played before the Lord on all manner of instruments made of wood, on harps and lutes and timbrels and cornets and cymbals.

6 And when they came to the floor of Nachon, Oza put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it, because the oxen kicked and made it lean aside. 7 And the indignation of the Lord was enkindled against Oza, and he struck him for his rashness. And he died there before the ark of God. 8 w And David was grieved because the Lord had struck Oza, and the name of that place was called: The striking of Oza, to this day. 9 And David was afraid of the Lord that day, saying: How shall the ark of the Lord come to me? 10 And he would not have the ark of the Lord brought in to himself into the city of David; but he caused it to be carried into the house of Obededom the Gethite. 11 And the ark of the Lord abode in the house of Obededom the Gethite three months. And the Lord blessed Obededom, and all his household.

The Ark Taken to Jerusalem. 12 x And it was told king David that the Lord had blessed Obededom, and all that he had, because of the ark of God. So David went, and brought away the ark of God out of the house of Obededom into the city of David with joy. And there were with David seven choirs,* and calves for victims. 13 y And when they that carried the ark of the Lord had gone six paces, he sacrificed an ox and a ram. 14 And David danced with all his might before the Lord. And David was girded with a linen ephod. 15 And David and all the house of Israel brought the ark of the covenant of the Lord with joyful shouting, and with sound of trumpet. 16 And when the ark of the Lord was come into the city of David, Michol the daughter of Saul, looking out through a window, saw king David leaping and dancing before the Lord: and she despised him in her heart.

17 And they brought the ark of the Lord, and set it in its place in the midst of the tabernacle, which David had pitched for it: and David offered holocausts and peace offerings before the Lord. 18 And when he had made an end of offering holocausts and peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord of hosts. 19 And he distributed to all the multitude of Israel, both men and women, to everyone a cake of bread, and a piece of roasted beef, and fine flour fried with oil: and all the people departed everyone to his house.

20 And David returned to bless his own house. And Michol the daughter of Saul coming out to meet David, said: How glorious was the king of Israel today, uncovering himself before the handmaids of his servants, and was naked, as if one of the buffoons should be naked. 21 And David said to Michol: Before the Lord, who chose me rather than thy father, and then all his house, and commanded me to be ruler over the people of the Lord in Israel, 22 I will both play and make myself meaner than I have done. And I will be little in my own eyes; and with the handmaids of whom thou spokest, I shall appear more glorious. 23 Therefore Michol the daughter of Saul had no child to the day of her death.

CHAPTER 7.

David Proposes to Build a Temple. 1 And it came to pass when the king sat in his house, and the Lord had given him rest on every side from all his enemies, 2 he said to Nathan the prophet: z Dost thou see that I dwell in a house of cedar, and the ark of God is lodged within skins? 3 And Nathan said to the king: Go, do all that is in thy heart, because the Lord is with thee.

4 But it came to pass that night, that the word of the Lord came to Nathan, saying: 5 Go, and say to my servant David: Thus saith the Lord: Shalt thou build me a house to dwell in? 6 Whereas I have not dwelt in a house from the day that I brought the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt even to this day, but have walked in a tabernacle, and in a tent. 7 In all the places that I have gone through with all the children of Israel, did ever I speak a word to anyone of the tribes of Israel whom I commanded to feed my people Israel, saying: Why have you not built me a house of cedar? 8 And now thus shalt thou speak to my servant David: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: a I took thee out of the pastures from following the sheep to be ruler over my people Israel. 9 And I have been with thee wheresoever thou hast walked, and have slain all thy enemies from before thy face; and I have made thee a great name, like unto the name of the great ones that are on the earth. 10 And I will appoint a place for my people Israel, and I will plant them, and they shall dwell therein, and shall be disturbed no more; neither shall the children of iniquity afflict them any more as they did before, 11 from the day that I appointed judges over my people Israel. And I will give thee rest from all thy enemies. And the Lord foretelleth to thee, that the Lord will make thee a house. 12 b And when thy days shall be fulfilled and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom.* 13 c He shall build a house to my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever. 14 d I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son: and if he commit any iniquity, I will correct him with the rod of men, and with the stripes of the children of men. 15 e But my mercy I will not take away from him, as I took it from Saul, whom I removed from before my face. 16 And thy house shall be faithful, and thy kingdom forever before thy face, f and thy throne shall be firm forever.

17 According to all these words and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak to David.

David's Prayer. 18 And David went in, and sat before the Lord, and said: Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus far? 19 But yet this hath seemed little in thy sight, O Lord God, unless thou didst also speak of the house of thy servant for a long time to come, for this is the law of Adam, O Lord God. 20 And what can David say more unto thee? For thou knowest thy servant, O Lord God: 21 for thy word's sake and according to thy own heart thou hast done all these great things, so that thou wouldst make it known to thy servant. 22 Therefore thou art magnified, O Lord God, because there is none like to thee, neither is there any God besides thee, in all the things that we have heard with our ears. 23 And what nation is there upon earth as thy people Israel, whom God went to redeem for a people to himself, and to make him a name, and to do for them great and terrible things upon the earth, before the face of thy people, whom thou redeemedst to thyself out of Egypt, from the nations and their gods? 24 For thou hast confirmed to thyself thy people Israel to be an everlasting people: and thou, O Lord God, art become their God. 25 And now, O Lord God, raise up forever the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant and concerning his house: and do as thou hast spoken, 26 that thy name may be magnified forever, and it may be said: The Lord of hosts is God over Israel; and the house of thy servant David shall be established before the Lord. 27 Because thou, O Lord of hosts, God of Israel, hast revealed to the ear of thy servant saying: I will build thee a house. Therefore hath thy servant found in his heart to pray this prayer to thee. 28 And now, O Lord God, thou art God, and thy words shall be true, for thou hast spoken to thy servant these good things. 29 And now begin, and bless the house of thy servant, that it may endure forever before thee, because thou, O Lord God, hast spoken it, and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed forever.

CHAPTER 8.

Wars and Victories of David. 1 And it came to pass after this that David defeated the Philistines, and brought them down, g and David took the bridle of tribute out of the hand of the Philistines.

2 And he defeated Moab, and measured them with a line, casting them down to the earth: and he measured with two lines, one to put to death, and one to save alive: and Moab was made to serve David under tribute.

3 David defeated also Adarezer the son of Rohob king of Soba, when he went to extend his dominion over the river h Euphrates. 4 And David took from him a thousand and seven hundred horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen, and houghed all the chariot horses: and only reserved of them one hundred chariots. 5 And the Syrians of Damascus came to succor Adarezer the king of Soba. And David slew of the Syrians two and twenty thousand men. 6 And David put garrisons in Syria of Damascus; and Syria served David under tribute; and the Lord preserved David in all his enterprises, whithersoever he went.

7 And David took the arms of gold which the servants of Adarezer wore, and brought them to Jerusalem. 8 And out of Bete, and out of Beroth, cities of Adarezer, king David took an exceeding great quantity of brass.

9 And Thou the king of Emath heard that David had defeated all the forces of Adarezer. 10 And Thou sent Joram his son to king David to salute him, and to congratulate with him, and to return him thanks, because he had fought against Adarezer, and had defeated him. For Thou was an enemy to Adarezer, and in his hand were vessels of gold, and vessels of silver, and vessels of brass. 11 And king David dedicated them to the Lord, together with the silver and gold that he had dedicated of all the nations, which he had subdued: 12 of Syria, and of Moab, and of the children of Ammon, and of the Philistines, and of Amalec, and of the spoils of Adarezer the son of Rohob king of Soba.

13 David also made himself a name, when he returned after taking Syria in the valley of the saltpits, killing eighteen thousand. 14 And he put guards in Edom, and placed there a garrison: and all Edom was made to serve David. And the Lord preserved David in all enterprises he went about.

15 And David reigned over all Israel: and David did judgment and justice to all his people. 16 And Joab the son of Sarvia was over the army; and Josaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder;* 17 and Sadoc the son of Achitob and Achimelech the son of Abiathar were the priests; and Saraias was the scribe;* 18 and Banaias the son of Joiada was over the Cerethi and Phelethi:* and the sons of David were the princes.

CHAPTER 9.

David's Kindness to Miphiboseth. 1 And David said: Is there anyone, think you, left of the house of Saul, that I may show kindness to him for Jonathan's sake? 2 Now there was of the house of Saul a servant named Siba: and when the king had called him to him, he said to him: Art thou Siba? And he answered: I am Siba thy servant. 3 And the king said: Is there anyone left of the house of Saul, that I may show the mercy of God unto him? And Siba said to the king: There is a son of Jonathan left, who is lame of his feet. 4 Where is he? said he. And Siba said to the king: Behold he is in the house of Machir the son of Ammiel in Lodabar. 5 Then king David sent, and brought him out of the house of Machir the son of Ammiel of Lodabar. 6 And when Miphiboseth the son of Jonathan the son of Saul was come to David, he fell on his face and worshiped. And David said: Miphiboseth? And he answered: Behold thy servant. 7 And David said to him: Fear not, for I will surely show thee mercy for Jonathan thy father's sake, and I will restore the lands of Saul thy father, and thou shalt eat bread at my table always. 8 He bowed down to him, and said: Who am I thy servant, that thou shouldst look upon such a dead dog as I am?

9 Then the king called Siba the servant of Saul, and said to him: All that belonged to Saul, and all his house, I have given to thy master's son. 10 Thou therefore and thy sons and thy servants shall till the land for him: and thou shalt bring in food for thy master's son, that he may be maintained: and Miphiboseth the son of thy master shall always eat bread at my table. And Siba had fifteen sons and twenty servants. 11 And Siba said to the king: As thou my lord the king hast commanded thy servant, so will thy servant do: and Miphiboseth shall eat at my table, as one of the sons of the king. 12 And Miphiboseth had a young son whose name was Micha: and all the kindred of the house of Siba served Miphiboseth. 13 But Miphiboseth dwelt in Jerusalem, because he ate always of the king's table, and he was lame of both feet.

CHAPTER 10.

Ammonites and Syrians Conquered. 1 And it came to pass after this that the king of the children of Ammon died, and Hanon his son reigned in his stead. 2 And David said: i I will show kindness to Hanon the son of Naas, as his father showed kindness to me. So David sent his servants to comfort him for the death of his father. But when the servants of David were come into the land of the children of Ammon, 3 the princes of the children of Ammon said to Hanon their lord: Thinkest thou that for the honor of thy father David hath sent comforters to thee, and hath not David rather sent his servants to thee to search and spy into the city, and overthrow it? 4 Wherefore Hanon took the servants of David, and shaved off the one half of their beards, and cut away half of their garments even to the buttocks, and sent them away. 5 When this was told David, he sent to meet them, for the men were sadly put to confusion, and David commanded them, saying: Stay at Jericho, till your beards be grown, and then return.

6 And the children of Ammon, seeing that they had done an injury to David, sent and hired the Syrians of Rohob, and the Syrians of Soba, twenty thousand footmen, and of the king of Maacha a thousand men, and of Istob twelve thousand men. 7 And when David heard this, he sent Joab and the whole army of warriors. 8 And the children of Ammon came out, and set their men in array at the entering in of the gate; but the Syrians of Soba, and of Rohob, and of Istob, and of Maacha were by themselves in the field. 9 Then Joab seeing that the battle was prepared against him, both before and behind, chose of all the choice men of Israel, and put them in array against the Syrians; 10 and the rest of the people he delivered to Abisai his brother, who set them in array against the children of Ammon. 11 And Joab said: If the Syrians are too strong for me, then thou shalt help me; but if the children of Ammon are too strong for thee, then I will help thee. 12 Be of good courage, and let us fight for our people, and for the city of our God, and the Lord will do what is good in his sight. 13 And Joab and the people that were with him, began to fight against the Syrians, and they immediately fled before him. 14 And the children of Ammon seeing that the Syrians were fled, they fled also before Abisai, and entered into the city; and Joab returned from the children of Ammon, and came to Jerusalem.

15 Then the Syrians seeing that they had fallen before Israel, gathered themselves together. 16 And Adarezer sent and fetched the Syrians that were beyond the river, and brought over their army; and Sobach, the captain of the host of Adarezer, was their general. 17 And when this was told David, he gathered all Israel together, and passed over the Jordan, and came to Helam; and the Syrians set themselves in array against David, and fought against him. 18 And the Syrians fled before Israel, and David slew of the Syrians the men of seven hundred chariots and forty thousand horsemen; and smote Sobach the captain of the army, who presently died. 19 And all the kings that were auxiliaries of Adarezer, seeing themselves overcome by Israel, were afraid and fled away, eight and fifty thousand men before Israel. And they made peace with Israel, and served them; and all the Syrians were afraid to help the children of Ammon any more.

II: DAVID, THE PENITENT KING

CHAPTER 11.

David Commits Adultery. 1 And i it came to pass at the return of the year, at the time when kings go forth to war, that David sent Joab and his servants with him, and all Israel, and they spoiled the children of Ammon, and besieged Rabba, but David remained in Jerusalem.

2 In the meantime it happened that David arose from his bed after noon, and walked upon the roof of the king's house; and he saw from the roof of his house a woman washing herself, over against him; and the woman was very beautiful. 3 And the king sent, and inquired who the woman was. And it was told him, that she was Bethsabee the daughter of Eliam, the wife of Urias the Hethite. 4 And David sent messengers, and took her, and she came in to him, and he slept with her: k and presently she was purified from her uncleanness, 5 and she returned to her house, having conceived. And she sent and told David, and said: I have conceived.

6 And David sent to Joab, saying: Send me Urias the Hethite. And Joab sent Urias to David. 7 And Urias came to David. And David asked how Joab did, and the people, and how the war was carried on. 8 And David said to Urias: Go into thy house, and wash thy feet. And Urias went out from the king's

house, and there went out after him a mess of meat from the king. 9 But Urias slept before the gate of the king's house, with the other servants of his lord, and went not down to his own house. 10 And it was told David by some that said: Urias went not to his house. And David said to Urias: Didst thou not come from thy journey? Why didst thou not go down to thy house? 11 And Urias said to David: The ark of God and Israel and Juda dwell in tents, and my lord Joab and the servants of my lord abide upon the face of the earth; and shall I go into my house, to eat and to drink, and to sleep with my wife? By thy welfare and by the welfare of thy soul I will not do this thing. 12 Then David said to Urias: Tarry here today, and tomorrow I will send thee away. Urias tarried in Jerusalem that day and the next. 13 And David called him to eat and to drink before him, and he made him drunk: and he went out in the evening, and slept on his couch with the servants of his lord, and went not down into his house.

Murder of Urias. 14 And when the morning was come, David wrote a letter to Joab, and sent it by the hand of Urias, 15 writing in the letter: Set ye Urias in the front of the battle, where the fight is strongest; and leave ye him, that he may be wounded and die. 16 Wherefore as Joab was besieging the city, he put Urias in the place where he knew the bravest men were. 17 And the men coming out of the city, fought against Joab, and there fell some of the people of the servants of David, and Urias the Hethite was killed also. 18 Then Joab sent and told David all things concerning the battle. 19 And he charged the messenger, saying: When thou hast told all the words of the battle to the king, 20 if thou see him to be angry, and he shall say: Why did you approach so near to the wall to fight? Knew you not that many darts are thrown from above off the wall? 21 Who killed Abimelech the son of Jerobaal? l Did not a woman cast a piece of a millstone upon him from the wall, and slew him in Thebes? Why did you go near the wall? Thou shalt say: Thy servant Urias the Hethite is also slain.

22 So the messenger departed, and came and told David all that Joab had commanded him. 23 And the messenger said to David: The men prevailed against us, and they came out to us into the field; and we vigorously charged and pursued them even to the gate of the city. 24 And the archers shot their arrows at thy servants from off the wall above; and some of the king's servants are slain, and thy servant Urias the Hethite is also dead. 25 And David said to the messenger: Thus shalt thou say to Joab: Let not this thing discourage thee, for various is the event of war, and sometimes one, sometimes another is consumed by the sword. Encourage thy warriors against the city, and exhort them that thou mayest overthrow it.

26 And the wife of Urias heard that Urias her husband was dead, and she mourned for him. 27 And the mourning being over, David sent and brought her into his house, and she became his wife, and she bore him a son. And this thing which David had done, was displeasing to the Lord.

CHAPTER 12.

Nathan and David. 1 And the Lord sent Nathan to David. And when he was come to him, he said to him: There were two men in one city, the one rich, and the other poor. 2 The rich man had exceeding many sheep and oxen. 3 But the poor man had nothing at all but one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up, and which had grown up in his house together with his children, eating of his bread, and drinking of his cup, and sleeping in his bosom; and it was unto him as a daughter. 4 And when a certain stranger was come to the rich man, he spared to take of his own sheep and oxen, to make a feast for that stranger, who was come to him, but took the poor man's ewe, and dressed it for the man that was come to him.

5 And David's anger being exceedingly kindled against that man, he said to Nathan: As the Lord liveth, the man that hath done this is a child of death. 6 m He shall restore the ewe fourfold, because he did this thing, and had no pity. 7 And Nathan said to David: Thou art the man. Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: I anointed thee king over Israel, and I delivered thee from the hand of Saul, [8] and gave thee thy master's house and thy master's wives into thy bosom, and gave thee the house of Israel and Juda; and if these things be little, I shall add far greater things unto thee. [9] Why therefore hast thou despised the word of the Lord, to do evil in my sight? Thou hast killed Urias the Hethite with the sword, and hast taken his wife to be thy wife, and hast slain him with the sword of the children of Ammon. [10] Therefore the sword shall never depart from thy house, because thou hast despised me, and hast taken the wife of Urias the Hethite to be thy wife. [11] Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will raise* up evil against thee out of thy own house, and I will take thy wives before thy eyes [n] and give them to thy neighbor, and he shall lie with thy wives in the sight of this sun. [12] For thou didst it secretly; but I will do this thing in the sight of all Israel, and in the sight of the sun.

David Is Forgiven. [13] And David said to Nathan: I have sinned against the Lord. And Nathan said to David: [o] The Lord also hath taken away thy sin; thou shalt not die. [14] Nevertheless, because thou hast given occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme, for this thing the child, that is born to thee, shall surely die. [15] And Nathan returned to his house. The Lord also struck the child which the wife of Urias had borne to David, and his life was despaired of. [16] And David besought the Lord for the child: and David kept a fast, and going in by himself lay upon the ground. [17] And the ancients of his house came to make him rise from the ground; but he would not, neither did he eat meat with them. [18] And it came to pass on the seventh day that the child died, and the servants of David feared to tell him that the child was dead. For they said: Behold when the child was yet alive, we spoke to him, and he would not hearken to our voice. How much more will he affiict himself if we tell him that the child is dead! [19] But when David saw his servants whispering, he understood that the child was dead; and he said to his servants: Is the child dead? They answered him: He is dead. [20] Then David arose from the ground, and washed and anointed himself. And when he had changed his apparel, he went into the house of the Lord and worshiped, and then he came into his house, and he called for bread, and ate. [21] And his servants said to him: What thing is this that thou hast done? Thou didst fast and weep for the child, while it was alive, but when the child was dead, thou didst rise up, and eat bread. [22] And he said: While the child was yet alive, I fasted and wept for him, for I said: Who knoweth whether the Lord may not give him to me, and the child may live? [23] But now that he is dead, why should I fast? Shall I be able to bring him back any more? I shall go to him rather, but he shall not return to me.

[24] And David comforted Bethsabee his wife, and went in unto her, and slept with her: and she bore a son, and he called his name Solomon, and the Lord loved him. [25] And he sent by the hand of Nathan the prophet, and called his name: Amiable to the Lord,* because the Lord loved him.

[26] [p] And Joab fought against Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and laid close siege to the royal city. [27] And Joab sent messengers to David, saying: I have fought against Rabbath, and the city of waters* is about to be taken. [28] Now therefore gather thou the rest of the people together, and besiege the city and take it, lest when the city shall be wasted by me, the victory be ascribed to my name. [29] Then David gathered all the people together, and went out against Rabbath; and after fighting, he took it. [30] And he took the crown of their king from his head, the weight of which was a talent of gold, set with most precious stones, and it was put upon David's head, and the spoils of the city which were very great he carried away. [31] And bringing forth the people thereof he sawed them, and drove over them chariots armed with iron; and divided them with knives, and made them pass through brick-kilns. So did he to all the cities of the children of Ammon. And David returned with all the army to Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 13.

Amnon Ravishes Thamar. 1 And it came to pass after this, that Amnon the son of David loved the sister of Absalom the son of David, who was very beautiful, and her name was Thamar. 2 And he was exceedingly fond of her, so that he fell sick for the love of her, for as she was a virgin, he thought it hard to do anything dishonestly with her. 3 Now Amnon had a friend, named Jonadab the son of Semmaa the brother of David, a very wise man.* 4 And he said to him: Why dost thou grow so lean from day to day, O son of the king? Why dost thou not tell me the reason of it? And Amnon said to him: I am in love with Thamar the sister of my brother Absalom. 5 And Jonadab said to him: Lie down upon thy bed, and feign thyself sick: and when thy father shall come to visit thee, say to him: Let my sister Thamar, I pray thee, come to me, to give me to eat, and to make me a mess, that I may eat it at her hand. 6 So Amnon lay down, and made as if he were sick. And when the king came to visit him, Amnon said to the king: I pray thee let my sister Thamar come, and make in my sight two little messes, that I may eat at her hand.

7 Then David sent home to Thamar, saying: Come to the house of thy brother Amnon, and make him a mess. 8 And Thamar came to the house of Amnon her brother, but he was laid down; and she took meal and tempered it, and dissolving it in his sight she made little messes. 9 And taking what she had boiled, she poured it out, and set it before him, but he would not eat. And Amnon said: Put out all persons from me. And when they had put all persons out, 10 Amnon said to Thamar: Bring the mess into the chamber, that I may eat at thy hand. And Thamar took the little messes which she had made, and brought them in to her brother Amnon in the chamber. 11 And when she had presented him the meat, he took hold of her, and said: Come lie with me, my sister. 12 She answered him: Do not so, my brother, do not force me, for no such thing must be done in Israel. Do not thou this folly. 13 For I shall not be able to bear my shame, and thou shalt be as one of the fools in Israel; but rather speak to the king, and he will not deny me to thee. 14 But he would not hearken to her prayers, but being stronger overpowered her and lay with her. 15 Then Amnon hated her with an exceeding great hatred, so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love with which he had loved her before. And Amnon said to her: Arise, and get thee gone. 16 She answered him: This evil which now thou dost against me in driving me away, is greater than that which thou didst before. And he would not hearken to her; 17 but calling the servants that ministered to him, he said: Thrust this woman out from me and shut the door after her. 18 And she was clothed with a long robe, for the king's daughters that were virgins, used such kind of garments. Then his servant thrust her out, and shut the door after her. 19 And she put ashes on her head, and rent her long robe and laid her hands upon her head, and went on crying. 20 And Absalom her brother said to her: Hath thy brother Amnon lain with thee? But now, sister, hold thy peace, he is thy brother; and afflict not thy heart for this thing. So Thamar remained pining away in the house of Absalom her brother. 21 And when king David heard of these things, he was exceedingly grieved; and he would not afflict the spirit of his son Amnon, for he loved him, because he was his firstborn. 22 But Absalom spoke not to Amnon neither good nor evil, for Absalom hated Amnon because he had ravished his sister Thamar.

23 And it came to pass after two years, that the sheep of Absalom were shorn in Baalhasor, which is near Ephraim; and Absalom invited all the king's sons: 24 and he came to the king, and said to him: Behold thy servant's sheep are shorn. Let the king, I pray, with his servants come to his servant. 25 And the king said to Absalom: Nay, my son, do not ask that we should all come, and be chargeable to thee. And when he pressed him, and he would not go, he blessed him. 26 And Absalom said: If thou wilt not come, at least let my brother Amnon, I beseech thee, come with us. And the king said to him: It is not necessary that he should go with thee. 27 But Absalom pressed him, so that he let Amnon and all the king's sons go with him. And Absalom made a feast as it were the feast of a king.

Absalom Kills Amnon. 28 And Absalom had commanded his servants, saying: Take notice when Amnon shall be drunk with wine, and when I shall say to you: Strike him, and kill him, fear not, for it is I that command you. Take courage, and be valiant men. 29 And the servants of Absalom did to Amnon as Absalom had commanded them. And all the king's sons arose and got up every man upon his mule, and fled.

30 And while they were yet in the way, a rumor came to David, saying: Absalom hath slain all the king's sons, and there is not one of them left. 31 Then the king rose up, and rent his garments, and fell upon the ground, and all his servants that stood about him rent their garments. 32 But Jonadab the son of Semmaa David's brother answering, said: Let not my lord the king think that all the king's sons are slain: Amnon only is dead, for he was appointed by the mouth of Absalom from the day that he ravished his sister Thamar. 33 Now therefore let not my lord the king take this thing into his heart, saying: All the king's sons are slain, for Amnon only is dead.

34 But Absalom fled away. And the young man that kept the watch, lifted up his eyes and looked, and behold there came much people by a byway on the side of the mountain. 35 And Jonadab said to the king: Behold the king's sons are come: as thy servant said, so it is. 36 And when he made an end of speaking, the king's sons also appeared; and coming in they lifted up their voice, and wept; and the king also and all his servants wept very much. 37 But Absalom fled, and went to Tholomai the son of Ammiud the king of Gessur. And David mourned for his son every day.

38 And Absalom, after he was fled and come into Gessur, was there three years. And king David ceased to pursue after Absalom, because he was comforted concerning the death of Amnon.

CHAPTER 14.

Absalom Recalled to Jerusalem. 1 And Joab the son of Sarvia, understanding that the king's heart was turned to Absalom, 2 sent to Thecua, and fetched from thence a wise woman, and said to her: Feign thyself to be a mourner, and put on mourning apparel, and be not anointed with oil, that thou mayest be as a woman that had a long time been mourning for one dead. 3 And thou shalt go in to the king, and shalt speak to him in this manner. And Joab put the words in her mouth.

4 And when the woman of Thecua was come in to the king, she fell before him upon the ground, and worshiped, and said: Save me, O king. 5 And the king said to her: What is the matter with thee? She answered: Alas, I am a widow woman, for my husband is dead. 6 And thy handmaid had two sons: and they quarreled with each other in the field, and there was none to part them: and the one struck the other, and slew him. 7 And behold the whole kindred rising against thy handmaid, saith: Deliver him that hath slain his brother, that we may kill him for the life of his brother, whom he slew, and that we may destroy the heir. And they seek to quench my spark which is left, and will leave my husband no name, nor remainder upon the earth. 8 And the king said to the woman: Go to thy house, and I will give charge concerning thee. 9 And the woman of Thecua said to the king: Upon me, my lord, be the iniquity, and upon the house of my father; but may the king and his throne be guiltless. 10 And the king said: If anyone shall say aught against thee, bring him to me, and he shall not touch thee any more. 11 And she said: Let the king remember the Lord his God, that the next of kin be not multiplied to take revenge, and that they may not kill my son. And he said: As the Lord liveth, there shall not one hair of thy son fall to the earth.

12 Then the woman said: Let thy handmaid speak one word to my lord the king. And he said: Speak. 13 And the woman said: Why hast thou thought such a thing against the people of God, and why hath the king spoken this word, to sin, and not bring home again his own exile? 14 We all die, and like waters that return no more, we fall down into the earth; [q] neither will God have a soul to perish, but recalleth, meaning that he that is cast off should not altogether perish. 15 Now therefore I am come, to speak this word to my lord the king before the people. And thy handmaid said: I will speak to the king, it may be the king will perform the request of his handmaid. 16 And the king hath hearkened to me to deliver his handmaid out of the hand of all that would destroy me and my son together out of the inheritance of God. 17 Then let thy handmaid say, that the word of my lord the king be made as a sacrifice. [r] For even as an angel of God, so is my lord the king, that he is neither moved with blessing nor cursing: wherefore the Lord thy God is also with thee.

18 And the king answering, said to the woman: Hide not from me the thing that I ask thee. And the woman said to him: Speak, my lord the king. 19 And the king said: Is not the hand of Joab with thee in all this? The woman answered and said: By the health of thy soul, my lord, O king, it is neither on the left hand, nor on the right, in all these things which my lord the king hath spoken: for thy servant Joab, he commanded me, and he put all these words into the mouth of thy handmaid. 20 That I should come about with this form of speech, thy servant Joab commanded this; but thou, my lord, O king, art wise, according to the wisdom of an angel of God, to understand all things upon earth.

21 And the king said to Joab: Behold I am appeased and have granted thy request. Go therefore and fetch back the boy Absalom. 22 And Joab falling down to the ground upon his face, adored, and blessed the king. And Joab said: This day thy servant hath understood that I have found grace in thy sight, my lord, O king, for thou hast fulfilled the request of thy servant. 23 Then Joab arose and went to Gessur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. 24 But the king said: Let him return into his house, and let him not see my face. So Absalom returned into his house, and saw not the king's face.

25 But in all Israel there was not a man so comely and so exceedingly beautiful as Absalom: from the sole of the foot to the crown of his head there was no blemish in him. 26 And when he polled his hair (now he was polled once a year, because his hair was burdensome to him) he weighed the hair of his head at two hundred sicles, according to the common weight. 27 And there were born to Absalom three sons, and one daughter, whose name was Thamar, and who was very beautiful.

28 And Absalom dwelt two years in Jerusalem, and saw not the king's face. 29 He sent therefore to Joab, to send him to the king, but he would not come to him. And when he had sent the second time, and he would not come to him, 30 he said to his servants: You know the field of Joab near my field, that hath a crop of barley: go now and set it on fire. So the servants of Absalom set the corn on fire. And Joab's servants coming with their garments rent, said: The servants of Absalom have set part of the field on fire. 31 Then Joab arose, and came to Absalom to his house, and said: Why have thy servants set my corn on fire? 32 And Absalom answered Joab: I sent to thee beseeching thee to come to me, that I might send thee to the king, to say to him: Wherefore am I come from Gessur? It had been better for me to be there. I beseech thee therefore that I may see the face of the king; and if he be mindful of my iniquity, let him kill me. 33 So Joab going in to the king, told him all; and Absalom was called for, and he went in to the king, and prostrated himself on the ground before him: and the king kissed Absalom.

CHAPTER 15.

Absalom Foments Rebellion. 1 Now after these things Absalom made himself chariots, and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. 2 And Absalom rising up early stood by the entrance of the gate, and when any man had business to come to the king's judgment, Absalom called him to him, and said: Of what city art thou? He answered, and said: Thy servant is of such a tribe of Israel. 3 And Absalom answered him: Thy words seem to me good and just. But there is no man appointed by the king to hear thee. And Absalom said: 4 O that they would make me judge over the land, that all that have business might come to me, that I might do them justice! 5 Moreover when any man came to him to salute him, he put forth his hand and took him, and kissed him. 6 And this he did to all Israel that came for judgment, to be heard by the king, and he enticed the hearts of the men of Israel.

7 And after forty years, Absalom said to king David: Let me go, and pay my vows which I have vowed to the Lord in Hebron. 8 For thy servant made a vow, when he was in Gessur of Syria, saying: If the Lord shall bring me again into Jerusalem, I will offer sacrifice to the Lord. 9 And king David said to him: Go in peace. And he arose, and went to Hebron.

10 And Absalom sent spies into all the tribes of Israel, saying: As soon as you shall hear the sound of the trumpet, say ye: Absalom reigneth in Hebron. 11 Now there went with Absalom two hundred men out of Jerusalem that were called, going with simplicity of heart, and knowing nothing of the design. 12 Absalom also sent for Achitophel the Gilonite, David's counsellor, from his city Gilo. And while he was offering sacrifices, there was a strong conspiracy, and the people running together increased with Absalom.

Flight of David. 13 And there came a messenger to David, saying: All Israel with their whole heart followeth Absalom. 14 And David said to his servants that were with him in Jerusalem: Arise and let us flee, for we shall not escape else from the face of Absalom. Make haste to go out, lest he come and overtake us, and bring ruin upon us, and smite the city with the edge of the sword. 15 And the king's servants said to him: Whatsoever our lord the king shall command, we thy servants will willingly execute. 16 And the king went forth, and all his household on foot. And the king left ten women his concubines* to keep the house. 17 And the king going forth and all Israel on foot, stood afar off from the house; 18 and all his servants walked by him, and the bands of the Cerethi and the Phelethi, and all the Gethites, valiant warriors, six hundred men who had followed him from Geth on foot, went before the king.

19 And the king said to Ethai the Gethite: Why comest thou with us? Return and dwell with the king, for thou art a stranger, and art come out of thy own place. 20 Yesterday thou camest, and today shalt thou be forced to go forth with us? But I shall go whither I am going. Return thou, and take back thy brethren with thee, and the Lord will show thee mercy and truth, because thou hast shown grace and fidelity. 21 And Ethai answered the king, saying: As the Lord liveth, and as my lord the king liveth, in what place soever thou shalt be, my lord, O king, either in death or in life, there will thy servant be. 22 And David said to Ethai: Come, and pass over. And Ethai the Gethite passed, and all the men that were with him, and the rest of the people.

23 And they all wept with a loud voice, and all the people passed over: the king also himself went over the brook Cedron, and all the people marched towards the way that looketh to the desert.

24 And Sadoc the priest also came, and all the Levites with him carrying the ark of the covenant of God, and they set down the ark of God. And Abiathar went up, till all the people that was come out of the city had done passing. 25 And the king said to Sadoc: Carry back the ark of God into the city. If I shall find grace in the sight of the Lord, he will bring me again, and he will show me it and his tabernacle. 26 But if he shall say to me: Thou pleasest me not; I am ready. Let him do that which is good before him. 27 And the king said to Sadoc the priest: O seer, return into the city in peace, and let Achimaas thy son, and Jonathan the son of Abiathar, your two sons, be with you. 28 Behold I will lie hid in the plains of the wilderness, till there come word from you to certify me. 29 So Sadoc and Abiathar carried back the ark of God into Jerusalem, and they tarried there.

30 But David went up by the ascent of mount Olivet, going up and weeping,* walking barefoot, and with his head covered, and all the people that were with them, went up with their heads covered weeping. 31 And it was told David that 15, 16: Concubines: i.e., wives of an inferior degree.

15, 30: Weeping, etc., David on this occasion wept for his sins, which he knew were the cause of all his sufferings.

Achitophel also was in the conspiracy with Absalom, and David said: Infatuate, O Lord, I beseech thee, the counsel of Achitophel. 32 And when David was come to the top of the mountain, where he was about to adore the Lord, behold Chusai the Arachite came to meet him with his garment rent and his head covered with earth. 33 And David said to him: If thou come with me, thou wilt be a burden to me; 34 but if thou return into the city, and wilt say to Absalom: I am thy servant, O king; as I have been thy father's servant, so I will be thy servant: thou shalt defeat the counsel of Achitophel. 35 And thou hast with thee Sadoc and Abiathar the priests: and what thing soever thou shalt hear out of the king's house, thou shalt tell it to Sadoc and Abiathar the priests. 36 And there are with them their two sons, Achimaas the son of Sadoc and Jonathan the son of Abiathar: and you shall send by them to me everything that you shall hear. 37 Then Chusai the friend of David went into the city, and Absalom came into Jerusalem.

CHAPTER 16.

Siba Betrays Miphiboseth. 1 And when David was a little past the top of the hill, behold Siba the servant of Miphiboseth came to meet him with two asses, laden with two hundred loaves of bread, and a hundred bunches of raisins, a hundred cakes of figs, and a vessel of wine. 2 And the king said to Siba: What mean these things? And Siba answered: The asses are for the king's household to sit on; and the loaves and the figs for thy servants to eat, and the wine to drink if any man be faint in the desert. 3 And the king said: Where is thy master's son? [s] And Siba answered the king: He remained in Jerusalem, saying: Today will the house of Israel restore me the kingdom of my father. 4 And the king said to Siba: I give thee all that belonged to Miphiboseth. And Siba said: I beseech thee let me find grace before thee, my lord, O king.

16, 10 and 11. Hath bid him curse: not that the Lord was the author of Semei's sins, which proceeded purely from his own malice, and the abuse of his free will. Permitting Semei's malicious disposition to break out on this occasion, God made use of him as His instrument to punish David for his sins.

5 And king David came as far as Bahurim; and behold there came out from thence a man of the kindred of the house of Saul named Semei, the son of Gera, and coming out [t] he cursed as he went on, 6 and he threw stones at David, and at all the servants of king David: and all the people and all the warriors walked on the right and on the left side of the king. 7 And thus said Semei when he cursed the king: Come out, come out, thou man of blood, and thou man of Belial. 8 The Lord hath repaid thee for all the blood of the house of Saul, because thou hast usurped the kingdom in his stead, and the Lord hath given the kingdom into the hand of Absalom thy son; and behold thy evils press upon thee, because thou art a man of blood. 9 And Abisai the son of Sarvia said to the king: Why should this dead dog curse my lord the king? I will go, and cut off his head. 10 And the king said: What have I to do with you, ye sons of Sarvia? Let him alone and let him curse, for the Lord hath bid him curse* David; and who is he that shall dare say, why hath he done so? 11 And the king said to Abisai, and to all his servants: Behold my son, who came forth from my bowels, seeketh my life. How much more now a son Jemini! Let him alone that he may curse as the Lord hath bidden him. 12 Perhaps the Lord may look upon my affliction, and the Lord may render me good for the cursing of this day. 13 And David and his men with him went by the way. And Semei by the hill's side went over against him, cursing, and casting stones at him, and scattering earth. 14 And the king and all the people with him came weary, and refreshed themselves there.

15 But Absalom and all his people came into Jerusalem, and Achitophel was with him. 16 And when Chusai the Arachite, David's friend, was come to Absalom, he said to him: God save thee, O king, God save thee, O king. 17 And Absalom said to him: Is this thy kindness to thy friend? Why wentest thou not with thy friend? 18 And Chusai answered Absalom: Nay, for I will be his, whom the Lord hath chosen, and all this people, and all Israel, and with him will I abide. 19 Besides this, whom shall I serve? Is it not the king's son? As I have served thy father, so will I serve thee also.

20 And Absalom said to Achitophel: Consult what we are to do. 21 And Achitophel said to Absalom: Go in to the concubines of thy father, whom he hath left to keep the house, that when all Israel shall hear that thou hast disgraced thy father, their hands may be strengthened* with thee. 22 u So they spread a tent for Absalom on the top of the house, and he went into his father's concubines before all Israel. 23 Now the counsel of Achitophel, which he gave in those days, was as if a man should consult God: so was all the counsel of Achitophel, both when he was with David, and when he was with Absalom.

CHAPTER 17.

Achitophel and Chusai. 1 And Achitophel said to Absalom: I will choose me twelve thousand men, and I will arise and pursue after David this night. 2 And coming upon him (for he is now weary and weak handed) I will defeat him. And when all the people is put to flight that is with him, I will kill the king who will be left alone. 3 And I will bring back all the people, as if they were but one man, for thou seekest but one man. And all the people shall be in peace. 4 And his saying pleased Absalom, and all the ancients of Israel. 5 But Absalom said: Call Chusai the Arachite, and let us hear what he also saith. 6 And when Chusai was come to Absalom, Absalom said to him: Achitophel hath spoken after this manner. Shall we do it or not? What counsel dost thou give? 7 And Chusai said to Absalom: The counsel that Achitophel hath given this time is not good. 8 And again Chusai said: Thou knowest thy father, and the men that are with him, that they are very valiant, and bitter in their mind, as a bear raging in the wood when her whelps are taken away. And thy father is a warrior, and will not lodge with the people. 9 Perhaps he now lieth hid in pits, or in some other place where he list. And when anyone shall fall at the first, everyone that heareth it shall say: There is a slaughter among the people that followed Absalom. 10 And the most valiant man, whose heart is as the heart of a lion, shall melt for fear; for all the people of Israel know thy father to be a valiant man, and that all who are with him are valiant. 11 But this seemeth to me to be good counsel: Let all Irsael be gathered to thee, from Dan to Bersabee, as the sand of the sea which cannot be numbered; and thou shalt be in the midst of them. 12 And we shall come upon him in what place soever he shall be found; and we shall cover him, as the dew falleth upon the ground, and we shall not leave of the men that are with him, not so much as one. 13 And if he shall enter into any city, all Israel shall cast ropes round about that city, and we will draw it into the river, so that there shall not be found so much as one small stone thereof. 14 And Absalom, and all the men of Israel said: The counsel of Chusai the Arachite is better than the counsel of Achitophel: and by the will of the Lord the profitable counsel of Achitophel was defeated, that the Lord might bring evil upon Absalom.

David Crosses the Jordan. 15 And Chusai said to Sadoc and Abiathar the priests: Thus and thus did Achitophel counsel Absalom and the ancients of Israel; and thus and thus did I counsel them. 16 Now therefore send quickly and tell David, saying: Tarry not this night in the plains of the wilderness, but without delay pass over, lest the king be swallowed up, and all the people that is with him.

17 And Jonathan and Achimaas stayed by the fountain Rogel: and there went a maid and told them: and they went forward to carry the message to king David, for they might not be seen, nor enter into the city. 18 But a certain boy saw them, and told Absalom. But they making haste went into the house of a certain man in Bahurim. who had a well in his court, and they went down into it. 19 And a woman took, and spread a covering over the mouth of the well, as it were to dry sodden barley; and so the thing was not known. 20 And when Absalom's servants were come into the house, they said to the woman: Where is Achimaas and Jonathan? And the woman answered them: They passed on in haste, after they had tasted a little water. But they that sought them, when they found them not, returned into Jerusalem. 21 And when they were gone, they came up out of the well, and going on told king David, and said: Arise, and pass quickly over the river, for this manner of counsel has Achitophel given against you. 22 So David arose, and all the people that were with him, and they passed over the Jordan, until it grew light, and not one of them was left that was not gone over the river.

23 But Achitophel seeing that his counsel was not followed, saddled his ass, and arose and went home to his house and to his city, and putting his house in order, hanged himself, and was buried in the sepulchre of his father.

24 But David came to the Camp, and Absalom passed over the Jordan, he and all the men of Israel with him. 25 Now Absalom appointed Amasa in Jacob's stead over the army. And Amasa was the son of a man who was called Jethra of Jezrael, who went in to Abigail the daughter of Naas, the sister of Sarvia who was the mother of Joab. 26 And Israel camped with Absalom in the land of Galaad.

27 And when David was come to the Camp, Sobi the son of Naas of Rabbath of the children of Ammon, and Machir the son of Ammihel of Lodabar, and Berzellai the Galaadite of Rogelim, 28 brought him beds, and tapestry, and earthen vessels, and wheat, and barley, and meal, and parched corn, and beans, and lentils, and fried pulse, 29 and honey, and butter, and sheep, and fat calves, and they gave to David and the people that were with him, to eat: for they suspected that the people were faint with hunger and thirst in the wilderness.

CHAPTER 18.

Joab Slays Absalom and David Mourns. 1 And David having reviewed his people, appointed over them captains of thousands and of hundreds, 2 and sent forth a third part of the people under the hand of Joab, and a third part under the hand of Abisai the son of Sarvia Joab's brother, and a third part under the hand of Ethai, who was of Geth. And the king said to the people: I also will go forth with you. 3 And the people answered: Thou shalt not go forth, for if we flee away, they will not much mind us; or if half of us should fall, they will not greatly care, for thou alone art accounted for ten thousand. It is better therefore that thou shouldst be in the city to succor us. 4 And the king said to them: What seemeth good to you, that will I do. And the king stood by the gate, and all the people went forth by their troops, by hundreds and by thousands. 5 And the king commanded Joab, and Abisai, and Ethai, saying: Save me the boy Absalom. And all the people heard the king giving charge to all the princes concerning Absalom.

6 So the people went out into the field against Israel, and the battle was fought in the forest of Ephraim. 7 And the people of Israel were defeated there by David's army, and a great slaughter was made that day of twenty thousand men. 8 And the battle there was scattered over the face of all the country, and there were many more of the people whom the forest consumed,* than whom the sword devoured that day.

9 And it happened that Absalom met the servants of David, riding on a mule; and as the mule went under a thick and large oak, his head stuck in the oak; and while he hung between the heaven and the earth, the mule on which he rode passed on. 10 And one saw this and told Joab, saying: I saw Absalom hanging upon an oak. 11 And Joab said to the man that told him: If thou sawest him, why didst thou not stab him to the ground, and I would have given thee ten sicles of silver, and a belt? 12 And he said to Joab: If thou wouldst have paid down in my hands a thousand pieces of silver, I would not lay my hands upon the king's son, for in our hearing the king charged thee, and Abisai, and Ethai, saying: Save me the boy Absalom. 13 Yea and if I should have acted boldly against my own life, this could not have been hid from the king, and wouldst thou have stood by me? 14 And Joab said: Not as thou wilt, but I will set upon him in thy sight. So he took three lances in his hand, and thrust them into the heart of Absalom; and whilst he yet panted for life, sticking on the oak, 15 ten young men, armorbearers of Joab, ran up, and striking him slew him.

18, 8: Consumed: i.e., by pits and precipices.

16 And Joab sounded the trumpet, and kept back the people from pursuing after Israel in their flight, being willing to spare the multitude. 17 And they took Absalom, and cast him into a great pit in the forest, and they laid an exceeding great heap of stones upon him; but all Israel fled to their own dwellings. 18 Now Absalom had reared up for himself, in his lifetime, a pillar, which is in the king's valley, for he said: I have no son,* and this shall be the monument of my name. And he called the pillar by his own name, and it is called the Hand of Absalom to this day.

19 And Achimaas the son of Sadoc said: I will run and tell the king, that the Lord hath done judgment for him from the hand of his enemies. 20 And Joab said to him: Thou shalt not be the messenger this day, but shalt bear tidings another day. This day I will not have thee bear tidings, because the king's son is dead. 21 And Joab said to Chusai: Go, and tell the king what thou hast seen. Chusai bowed down to Joab, and ran. 22 Then Achimaas the son of Sadoc said to Joab again: Why might not I also run after Chusai? And Joab said to him: Why wilt thou run, my son? Thou wilt not be the bearer of good tidings. 23 He answered: But what if I run? And he said to him: Run. Then Achimaas running by a nearer way passed Chusai.

David Mourns for Absalom. 24 And David sat between the two gates. And the watchman that was on the top of the gate upon the wall, lifting up his eyes, saw a man running alone. 25 And crying out he told the king, and the king said: If he be alone, there are good tidings in his mouth. And as he was coming apace, and drawing nearer, 26 the watchman saw another man running, and crying aloud from above, he said: I see another man running alone. And the king said: He also is a good messenger. 27 And the watchman said: The running of the foremost seemeth to me like the running of Achimaas the son of Sadoc. And the king said: He is a good man, and cometh with good news.

28 And Achimaas crying out, said to the king: God save thee, O king. And falling down before the king with his face to the ground, he said: Blessed be the Lord thy God, who hath shut up the men that have lifted up their hands against the lord my king. 29 And the king said: Is the young man Absalom safe? And Achimaas said: I saw a great tumult, O king, when thy servant Joab sent me thy servant. I know nothing else. 30 And the king said to him: Pass, and stand here. 31 And when he had passed, and stood still, Chusai appeared, and coming up he said: I bring good tidings, my lord, the king, for the Lord hath judged for thee this day from the hand of all that have risen up against thee. 32 And the king said to Chusai: Is the young man Absalom safe? And Chusai answering him, said: Let the enemies of my lord, the king, and all that rise against him unto evil, be as the young man is.

33 The king therefore being much moved, went up to the high chamber over the gate, and wept. And as he went he spoke in this manner: [v] My son Absalom, Absalom my son! Would to God* that I might die for thee, Absalom my son, my son Absalom!

CHAPTER 19.

David Returns to Jerusalem. 1 And it was told Joab that the king wept and mourned for his son. 2 And the victory that day was turned into mourning unto all the people, for the people heard that day: The king grieveth for his son. 3 And the people shunned the going into the city that day as a people would do that hath turned their backs, and fled away from the battle. 4 And the king covered his head, and cried with a loud voice: O my son Absalom, O Absalom my son, O my son!

5 Then Joab going into the house to the king, said: Thou hast shamed this day the faces of all thy servants that have saved thy life, and the lives of thy sons, and of thy daughters, and the lives of thy wives, and the lives of thy concubines. 6 Thou lovest them that hate thee, and

18, 18: No son: the sons mentioned above, ch 14, 27, were dead when this pillar was erected, unless we suppose he raised this pillar before they were born.

18, 33: Would to God: David lamented the death of Absalom, because of the wretched state in which he died. He would have been glad to save the life of Absalom even by dying for him. David was a figure of Christ weeping, praying and dying for his rebellious children, and even for them that crucified him.

thou hatest them that love thee. And thou hast shown this day that thou carest not for thy nobles, nor for thy servants. And I now plainly perceive that if Absalom had lived, and all we had been slain, then it would have pleased thee. 7 Now therefore arise, and go out, and speak to the satisfaction of thy servants, for I swear to thee by the Lord, that if thou wilt not go forth, there will not tarry with thee so much as one this night: and that will be worse to thee than all the evils that have befallen thee from thy youth until now. 8 Then the king arose and sat in the gate; and it was told to all the people that the king sat in the gate; and all the people came before the king, but Israel fled to their own dwellings.

9 And all the people were at strife in all the tribes of Israel, saying: The king delivered us out of the hand of our enemies, and he saved us out of the hand of the Philistines; and now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. 10 But Absalom, whom we anointed over us, is dead in the battle. How long are you silent, and bring not back the king?

11 And king David sent to Sadoc and Abiathar the priests, saying: Speak to the ancients of Juda, saying: Why are you the last to bring the king back to his house? (For the talk of all Israel was come to the king in his house.) 12 You are my brethren, you are my bone, and my flesh, why are you the last to bring back the king? 13 And say ye to Amasa: Art not thou my bone, and my flesh? So do God to me and add more, if thou be not the chief captain of the army before me always in the place of Joab. 14 And he inclined the heart of all the men of Juda, as it were of one man; and they sent to the king, saying: Return thou, and all thy servants. 15 And the king returned and came as far as the Jordan, and all Juda came as far as Galgal to meet the king, and to bring him over the Jordan.

David Pardons Semei and Miphiboseth. 16 w And Semei the son of Gera the son of Jemini of Bahurim, made haste and went down with the men of Juda to meet king David, 17 with a thousand men of Benjamin; and Siba the servant of the house of Saul, and his fifteen sons and twenty servants were with him. And going over the Jordan, 18 they passed the fords before the king, that they might help over the king's household, and do according to his commandment. And Semei the son of Gera falling down before the king, when he was come over the Jordan, 19 said to him: Impute not to me, my lord, the iniquity, nor remember the injuries of thy servant on the day that thou, my lord, the king, wentest out of Jerusalem, nor lay it up in thy heart, O king. 20 For I thy servant acknowledge my sin; and therefore I am come this day the first of all the house of Joseph, and am come down to meet my lord the king. 21 But Abisai the son of Sarvia answering said: Shall Semei for these words not be put to death, because he cursed the Lord's anointed? 22 And David said: What have I to do with you, ye sons of Sarvia? Why are you a satan this day to me? Shall there any man be killed this day in Israel? Do not I know that this day I am made king over Israel? 23 And the king said to Semei: Thou shalt not die. And he swore unto him.

24 And Miphiboseth the son of Saul came down to meet the king, and he had neither washed his feet, nor trimmed his beard; nor washed his garments from the day that the king went out, until the day of his return in peace. 25 And when he met the king at Jerusalem, the king said to him: Why camest thou not with me, Miphiboseth? 26 And he answering, said: My lord, O king, my servant despised me, for I thy servant spoke to him to saddle me an ass, that I might get on and go with the king, for I thy servant am lame. 27 x Moreover he hath also accused me thy servant to thee, my lord the king; but y thou my lord the king art as an angel of God, do what pleaseth thee. 28 For all of my father's house were no better than worthy of death before my lord the king; and thou hast set me thy servant among the guests of thy table. What just complaint therefore have I? Or what right to cry any more to the king? 29 Then the king said to him: Why speakest thou any more? What I have said is determined. Thou and Siba divide the possessions. 30 And Miphiboseth answered the king: Yea, let him take all, forasmuch as my lord the king is returned peaceably into his house.

31 Berzellai also the Galaadite coming down from Rogelim brought the king over the Jordan, being ready also to wait on him beyond the river. 32 [z] Now Berzellai the Galaadite was of a great age, that is to say, fourscore years old, and he provided the king with sustenance when he abode in the camp, for he was a man exceeding rich. 33 And the king said to Berzellai: Come with me that thou mayest rest secure with me in Jerusalem. 34 And Berzellai said to the king: How many are the days of the years of my life, that I should go up with the king to Jerusalem? 35 I am this day fourscore years old. Are my senses quick to discern sweet and bitter? Or can meat or drink delight thy servant? Or can I hear any more the voice of singing men and singing women? Why should thy servant be a burden to my lord, the king? 36 I thy servant will go on a little way from the Jordan with thee. I need not this recompense. 37 But I beseech thee let thy servant return, and die in my own city, and be buried by the sepulchre of my father, and of my mother. But there is thy servant Chamaam, let him go with thee, my lord the king, and do to him whatsoever seemeth good to thee. 38 Then the king said to him: Let Chamaam go over with me, and I will do for him whatsoever shall please thee, and all that thou shalt ask of me, thou shalt obtain. 39 And when all the people and the king had passed over the Jordan, the king kissed Berzellai, and blessed him, and returned to his own place.

Men of Israel and Juda Quarrel. 40 So the king went on to Galgal, and Chamaam with him. Now all the people of Juda had brought the king over, and only half of the people of Israel were there. 41 Therefore all the men of Israel running together to the king, said to him: Why have our brethren the men of Juda stolen thee away and have brought the king and his household over the Jordan, and all the men of David with him? 42 And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israel: Because the king is nearer to me. Why art thou angry for this matter? Have we eaten anything of the king's, or have any gifts been given us? 43 And the men of Israel answered the men of Juda, and said: I have ten parts in the king more than thou, and David belongeth to me more than to thee. Why hast thou done me a wrong, and why was it not told me first, that I might bring back my king? And the men of Juda answered more harshly than the men of Israel.

CHAPTER 20.

Rebellion of Seba. 1 And there happened to be there a man of Belial, whose name was Seba, the son of Bochri, a man of Jemini; and he sounded the trumpet, and said: We have no part in David, nor inheritance in the son of Isai. Return to thy dwellings, O Israel. 2 And all Israel departed from David, and followed Seba the son of Bochri; but the men of Juda stuck to their king from the Jordan unto Jerusalem.

3 And when the king was come into his house at Jerusalem, he took the ten women his concubines, whom he had left to keep the house, and put them in ward, allowing them provisions; and he went not in unto them, but they were shut up unto the day of their death living in widowhood.

4 And the king said to Amasa: Assemble to me all the men of Juda against the third day, and be thou here present. 5 So Amasa went to assemble the men of Juda, but he tarried beyond the set time which the king had appointed him. 6 And David said to Abisai: Now will Seba the son of Bochri do us more harm than did Absalom. Take thou therefore the servants of thy lord, and pursue after him, lest he find fenced cities, and escape us. 7 So Joab's men went out with him, and the Cerethi and the Phelethi, and all the valiant men went out of Jerusalem to pursue after Seba the son of Bochri.

8 And when they were at the great stone which is in Gabaon, Amasa coming met them. And Joab had on a close coat of equal length with his habit, and over it was girded with a sword hanging down to his flank in a scabbard, made in such manner as to come out with the least motion and strike. 9 And Joab said to Amasa: God save thee, my brother. [a] And he took Amasa by the chin with his right hand to kiss him. 10 But Amasa did not take notice of the sword, which Joab had,

and he struck him in the side, and shed out his bowels to the ground, and gave him not a second wound, and he died. And Joab and Abisai his brother pursued after Seba the son of Bochri. 11 In the meantime some men of Joab's company stopping at the dead body of Amasa, said: Behold he that would have been in Joab's stead the companion of David. 12 And Amasa imbrued with blood, lay in the midst of the way. A certain man saw this that all the people stood still to look upon him, so he removed Amasa out of the highway into the field, and covered him with a garment, that they who passed might not stop on his account. 13 And when he was removed out of the way, all the people went on following Joab to pursue after Seba the son of Bochri.

Abela Is Besieged. 14 Now he had passed through all the tribes of Israel unto Abela and Bethmaacha;* and all the chosen men were gathered together unto him. 15 And they came, and besieged him in Abela and in Bethmaacha, and they cast up works round the city, and the city was besieged; and all the people that were with Joab, labored to throw down the walls. 16 And a wise woman cried out from the city: Hear, hear, and say to Joab: Come near hither, and I will speak with thee. 17 And when he was come near to her, she said to him: Art thou Joab? And he answered: I am. And she spoke thus to him: Hear the words of thy handmaid. He answered: I do hear. 18 And she again said: A saying was used in the old proverb: They that inquire, let them inquire in Abela; and so they made an end. 19 Am not I she that answers truth in Israel? And thou seekest to destroy the city, and to overthrow a mother in Israel? Why wilt thou throw down the inheritance of the Lord? 20 And Joab answering said: God forbid, God forbid that I should. I do not throw down, nor destroy. 21 The matter is not so, but a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the son of Bochri by name, hath lifted up his hand against king David: deliver him only, and we will depart from the city. And the woman said to Joab: Behold his head shall be thrown to thee from the wall. 22 So she went to all the people, and spoke to them wisely; and they cut off the head of Seba the son of Bochri, and cast it out to Joab. And he sounded the trumpet, and they departed from the city, everyone to their home. And Joab returned to Jerusalem to the king.

23 b So Joab was over all the army of Israel; and Banaias the son of Joiada was over the Cerethites and Phelethites, 24 but Aduram over the tributes, and Josaphat the son of Ahilud was recorder. 25 And Siva was scribe, and Sadoc and Abiathar, priests. 26 And Ira the Jairite was the priest of David.

Epilogue

CHAPTER 21.

Three Years Famine for Sin of Saul. 1 And there was a famine in the days of David for three years successively. And David consulted the oracle of the Lord. And the Lord said: It is for Saul, and his bloody house, because he slew the Gabaonites. 2 Then the king, calling for the Gabaonites, said to them: (Now the Gabaonites were not of the children of Israel, but the remains of the Amorrhites; c and the children of Israel had sworn to them, and Saul sought to slay them out of zeal, as it were for the children of Israel and Juda.) 3 David therefore said to the Gabaonites: What shall I do for you? And what shall be the atonement for you, that you may bless the inheritance of the Lord? 4 And the Gabaonites said to him: We have no contest about silver and gold, but against Saul and against his house; neither do we desire that any man be slain of Israel. And the king said to them: What will you then that I should do for you? 5 And they said to the king: The man that crushed us and oppressed us unjustly, we must destroy in such manner that there be not so much as one left of his stock in all the lands of Israel. 6 Let seven men of his children be delivered unto us, that we may crucify them to the Lord in Gabaa of Saul, once the chosen of the Lord. And the king said: I will give them.

7 d And the king spared Miphiboseth the son of Jonathan the son of Saul, because of the oath of the Lord, that had been between David and Jonathan the son of Saul. 8 So the king took the two sons of Respha the daughter of Aia, whom she bore to Saul, Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the five sons of Michol* the daughter of Saul, whom she bore to Hadriel the son of Berzellai, that was of Molathi: 9 and gave them into the hands of the Gabaonites: and they crucified them on a hill before the Lord: and these seven died together in the first days of the harvest, when the barley began to be reaped.

10 And Respha the daughter of Aia took haircloth, and spread it under her upon the rock from the beginning of the harvest till water dropped upon them out of heaven, and suffered neither the birds to tear them by day, nor the beasts by night. 11 And it was told David what Respha the daughter of Aia, the concubine of Saul, had done. 12 And David went and took the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan his son from the men of Jabes Galaad, e who had stolen them from the street of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged them when they had slain Saul in Gelboe. 13 And he brought from thence the bones of Saul, and the bones of Jonathan his son, and they gathered up the bones of them that were crucified. 14 And they buried them with the bones of Saul and of Jonathan his son in the land of Benjamin, in the side, in the sepulchre of Cis his father; and they did all that the king had commanded, and God showed mercy again to the land after these things.

15 And the Philistines made war again against Israel, and David went down, and his servants with him, and fought against the Philistines. And David growing faint, 16 Jesbibenob, who was of the race of Arapha, f the iron of whose spear weighed three hundred ounces, being girded with a new sword, attempted to kill David. 17 And Abisai the son of Sarvia rescued him, and striking the Philistine killed him. Then David's men swore unto them, saying: Thou shalt go no more out with us to battle, lest thou put out the lamp of Israel.

18 g There was also a second battle in Gob against the Philistines. Then Sobochai of Husathi slew Saph of the race of Arapha of the family of the giants.

19 And there was a third battle in Gob against the Philistines, in which Adeodatus the son of the Forest* an embroiderer of Bethlehem slew Goliath the Gethite, the shaft of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

20 A fourth battle was in Geth, where there was a man of great stature, that had six fingers on each hand, and six toes on each foot, four and twenty in all, and he was of the race of Arapha. 21 And he reproached Israel; and Jonathan the son of Samaa the brother of David slew him. 22 These four were born of Arapha in Geth, and they fell by the hand of David, and of his servants.

CHAPTER 22.

David's Psalm of Thanksgiving. 1 And David spoke to the Lord the words of this canticle, in the day that the Lord delivered him out of the hand of all his enemies, and out of the hand of Saul. 2 And he said: h The Lord is my rock, and my strength, and my savior. 3 God is my strong one, in him will I trust: my shield, and the horn of my salvation. He lifteth me up, and is my refuge. My savior, thou wilt deliver me from iniquity. 4 i I will call on the Lord who is worthy to be praised; and I shall be saved from my enemies.

5 For the pangs of death have surrounded me. The floods of Belial have made me afraid. 6 The cords of hell compassed me. The snares of death prevented me. 7 In my distress I will call upon the Lord, and I will cry to my God; and he will hear my voice out of his temple, and my cry shall come to his ears.

8 The earth shook and trembled, the foundations of the mountains were moved and shaken, because he was angry with them. 9 A smoke went up from his nostrils, and a devouring fire out of his mouth: coals were kindled by it. 10 He bowed the heavens, and came down; and darkness was under his feet.

11 And he rode upon the cherubim, and flew: and slid upon the wings of the wind. 12 He made darkness a covering round about him, dropping waters out of the clouds of the heavens. 13 By the brightness before him, the coals of fire were kindled.

14 The Lord shall thunder from heaven; and the Most High shall give forth his voice. 15 He shot arrows, and scattered them: lightning, and consumed them. 16 And the overflowings of the sea appeared, and the foundations of the world were laid open at the rebuke of the Lord, at the blast of the spirit of his wrath.

17 He sent from on high, and took me, and drew me out of many waters. 18 He delivered me from my most mighty enemy, and from them that hated me, for they were too strong for me. 19 He prevented me in the day of my affliction, and the Lord became my stay. 20 And he brought me forth into a large place. He delivered me, because I pleased him.

21 The Lord will reward me according to my justice, and according to the cleanness of my hands he will render to me, 22 because I have kept the ways of the Lord, and have not wickedly departed from my God. 23 For all his judgments are in my sight, and his precepts I have not removed from me. 24 And I shall be perfect with him, and shall keep myself from my iniquity.

The Justice of the Lord. 25 And the Lord will recompense me according to my justice and according to the cleanness of my hands in the sight of his eyes. 26 With the holy one thou wilt be holy, and with the valiant, perfect. 27 With the elect thou wilt be elect, and with the perverse thou wilt be perverted. 28 And the poor people thou wilt save, and with thy eyes thou wilt humble the haughty.

29 For thou art my lamp, O Lord; and thou, O Lord, wilt enlighten my darkness. 30 For in thee, I will run girded; in my God I will leap over the wall. 31 God, his way is immaculate, the word of the Lord is tried by fire. He is the shield of all that trust in him.

32 Who is God but the Lord, and who is strong but our God? 33 God who hath girded me with strength, and made my way perfect: 34 i making my feet like the feet of harts, and setting me upon my high places: 35 he teacheth my hands to war, and maketh my arms like a bow of brass.

36 Thou hast given me the shield of my salvation, and thy mildness hath multiplied me. 37 Thou shalt enlarge my steps under me, and my ankles shall not fail. 38 I will pursue after my enemies, and crush them, and will not return again till I consume them. 39 I will consume them and break them in pieces, so that they shall not rise: they shall fall under my feet.

40 Thou hast girded me with strength to battle. Thou hast made them that resisted me to bow under me. 41 My enemies thou hast made to turn their back to me: them that hated me, and I shall destroy them. 42 They shall cry, and there shall be none to save, to the Lord, and he shall not hear them. 43 I shall beat them as small as the dust of the earth. I shall crush them and spread them abroad like the mire of the streets.

44 Thou wilt save me from the contradictions of my people. Thou wilt keep me to be the head of the Gentiles: the people which I know not, shall serve me, 45 the sons of the stranger will resist me. At the hearing of the ear they will obey me. 46 The strangers are melted away, and shall be straitened in their distresses.

47 The Lord liveth, and my God is blessed; and the strong God of my salvation shall be exalted. 48 God who giveth me revenge, and bringest down people under me, 49 who bringest me forth from my enemies, and liftest me up from them that resist me: k from the wicked man thou shalt deliver me. 50 l Therefore will I give thanks to thee, O Lord, among the Gentiles, and will sing to thy name, 51 giving great salvation to his king, and showing mercy to David his anointed, and to his seed forever.

CHAPTER 23.

Last Words of David. 1 Now these are David's last words. David the son of Isai said: The man to whom it was appointed concerning the Christ of the God of Jacob, m the excellent psalmist of Israel said: 2 The spirit of the Lord hath spoken by me, and his word by my tongue. 3 The God of Israel said to me, the

i Ps 143 (144), 1.—k Ps 17 (18), 49.—l Rom 15, 9.—m Acts 2, 30.

Strong One of Israel spoke, the ruler of men, the just ruler in the fear of God. 4 As the light* of the morning, when the sun riseth, shineth in the morning without clouds, and as the grass springeth out of the earth by rain.

5 Neither is my house* so great with God, that he should make with me an eternal covenant, firm in all things and assured. For he is all my salvation, and all my will; neither is there aught thereof that springeth not up.

6 But transgressors shall all of them be plucked up as thorns which are not taken away with hands. 7 And if a man will touch them, he must be armed with iron and with the staff of a lance; but they shall be set on fire and burnt to nothing.

8 n These are the names of the valiant men of David. *Jesbaham sitting in the chair was the wisest chief among the three, he was like the most tender little worm of the wood, who killed eight hundred men at one onset.

9 After him was Eleazar the son of Dodo the Ahohite, one of the three valiant men that were with David when they defied the Philistines, and they were there gathered together to battle. 10 And when the men of Israel were gone away, he stood and smote the Philistines till his hand was weary, and grew stiff with the sword; and the Lord wrought a great victory that day. And the people that were fled away, returned to take spoils of them that were slain.

11 And after him was Semma the son of Age of Arari. And the Philistines were gathered together in a troop, for there was a field full of lentils. And when the people were fled from the face of the Philistines, 12 he stood in the midst of the field, and defended it, and defeated the Philistines. And the Lord gave a great victory.

13 Moreover also before this the three who were princes o among the thirty, went down and came to David in the harvest time into the cave of Odollam. And the camp of the Philistines was in the valley of the giants. 14 And David was then in a hold; and there was a garrison of the Philistines then in Bethlehem. 15 And David longed, and said: O that some man would get me a drink of the water out of the cistern, that is in Bethlehem by the gate! 16 And the three valiant men broke through the camp of the Philistines, and drew water out of the cistern of Bethlehem, that was by the gate, and brought it to David; but he would not drink, but offered it to the Lord, 17 saying: The Lord be merciful to me, that I may not do this. Shall I drink the blood of these men that went, and the peril of their lives? Therefore he would not drink. These things did these three mighty men.

18 Abisai also the brother of Joab, the son of Sarvia, was chief among three: and he lifted up his spear against three hundred whom he slew, and he was renowned among the three, 19 and the noblest of the three, and was their chief, but to the three first he attained not.

20 And Banaias the son of Joiada a most valiant man, of great deeds, of Cabseel: he slew the two lions of Moab, and he sent down, and slew a lion in the midst of a pit, in the time of snow. 21 He also slew an Egyptian, a man worthy to be a sight, having a spear in his hand; but he went down to him with a rod, and forced the spear out of the hand of the Egyptian, and slew him with his own spear. 22 These things did Banaias the son of Joiada. 23 And he was renowned among the three valiant men, who were the most honorable among the thirty; but he attained not to the first three, and David made him of his privy council.

Other Valiant Men. 24 Asael the brother of Joab was one of the thirty, Elehanan the son of Dodo of Bethlehem, 25 Semma of Harodi, Elica of Harodi, 26 Heles of Phalti, Hira the son of Acces of Thecua, 27 Abiezer of Anathoth, Mobonnai of Husati, 28 Selmon the Ahohite, Maharai the Netophathite, 29 Heled the son of Baana, also a Netophathite, Ithai the son

23, 5: Neither is my house, etc.: David knew the everlasting covenant was not due to his house, but to God's bounty; who was his salvation, and his will, i.e., who always saved him and granted him what he asked, so that he and his house, through God's blessing, sprang up, and succeeded in all things.

23, 8: Jesbaham: the son of Hachamoni. For this was the name of this hero, as appears from 1 Par 2. Most tender, etc.: he appeared like one tender and weak, but was indeed most valiant and strong. It seems the Latin has here been given the interpretation of the Hebrew name of the hero to whom Jesbaham was like, instead of the name itself, which was Adino the Eznite, renowned of old for his valor.

of Ribai of Gabaath of the children of Benjamin, 30 Banaia the Pharathonite, Heddai of the torrent Gaas, 31 Abialbon the Arbathite, Azmaveth of Beromi, 32 Eliaba of Salaboni, the sons of Jassen, Jonathan, 33 Semma of Orori, Aliam the son of Sarar the Arorite, 34 Eliphelet the son of Aasbai the son of Machati, Eliam the son of Achitophel the Gelonite, 35 Hesrai of Carmel, Pharai of Arbi, 36 Igaal the son of Nathan of Soba, Bonni of Gadi, 37 Selec of Ammoni, Naharai the Berothite, armorbearer of Joab the son of Sarvia, 38 Ira the Jethrite, Gareb also a Jethrite, 39 Urias the Hethite, thirty and seven in all.

CHAPTER 24.

David Orders a Census of His People. 1 And the anger of the Lord [p] was again kindled against Israel, and stirred up* David among them, saying: Go, number Israel and Juda.

2 And the king said to Joab the general of his army: Go through all the tribes of Israel from Dan to Bersabee, and number ye the people that I may know the number of them. 3 And Joab said to the king: The Lord thy God increase thy people, and make them as many more as they are now, and again multiply them a hundredfold in the sight of my lord the king. But what meaneth my lord the king by this kind of thing? 4 But the king's words prevailed over the words of Joab, and of the captains of the army, and Joab and the captains of the soldiers went out from the presence of the king, to number the people of Israel.

5 And when they had passed the Jordan, they came to Aroer to the right side of the city, which is in the vale of Gad. 6 And by Jazer they passed into Galaad, and to the lower land of Hodsi, and they came into the woodlands of Dan. And going about by Sidon, 7 they passed near the walls of Tyre and all the land of the Hevite, and the Chanaanite, and they came to the south of Juda into Bersabee. 8 And having gone through the whole land, after nine months and twenty days, they came to Jerusalem. 9 And Joab gave up the sum of the number of the people to the king, and there were found of Israel eight hundred thousand valiant men that drew the sword; and of Juda five hundred thousand fighting men.

God Punishes Vanity of David. 10 [q] But David's heart struck him, after the people were numbered.* And David said to the Lord: I have sinned very much in what I have done; but I pray thee, O Lord, to take away the iniquity of thy servant, because I have done exceeding foolishly.

11 And David arose in the morning, and the word of the Lord came to Gad the prophet and the seer of David, saying: 12 Go, and say to David: Thus saith the Lord: I give thee thy choice of three things, choose one of them which thou wilt, that I may do it to thee. 13 And when Gad was come to David, he told him, saying: Either seven years of famine shall come to thee in thy land, or thou shalt flee three months before thy adversaries, and they shall pursue thee, or for three days there shall be a pestilence in thy land. Now therefore deliberate, and see what answer I shall return to him that sent me. 14 And David said to Gad: I am in a great strait; [r] but it is better that I should fall into the hands of the Lord (for his mercies are many) than into the hands of men.

15 And the Lord sent a pestilence upon Israel, from the morning unto the time appointed, and there died of the people from Dan to Bersabee seventy thousand men. 16 And when the angel of the Lord had stretched out his hand over Jerusalem to destroy it, the Lord had pity on the affliction, and said to the angel that slew the people: It is enough. Now hold thy hand. And the angel of the Lord was by the threshing floor of Areuna the Jebusite. 17 And David said to the Lord, when he saw the angel striking the people: It is I; I am he that have sinned, I have done wickedly. These that are the sheep, what have they done? Let thy hand, I beseech thee, be turned against me, and against my father's house.

18 And Gad came to David that day, and said: Go up, and build an altar to the Lord in the threshing floor of Are-una the Jebusite. 19 And David went up according to the word of Gad which the Lord had commanded him. 20 And Areuna looked and saw the king and his servants coming towards him, 21 and going out he worshiped the king, bowing with his face to the earth, and said: Wherefore is my lord the king come to his servant? And David said to him: To buy the threshing floor of thee, and build an altar to the Lord, that the plague, which rageth among the people, may cease. 22 And Areuna said to David: Let my lord the king take, and offer, as it seemeth good to him. Thou hast here oxen for a holocaust, and the wain, and the yokes of the oxen for wood. 23 And all these things Areuna as a king gave to the king. And Areuna said to the king: The Lord thy God receive thy vow. 24 And the king answered him, and said: Nay, but I will buy it of thee at a price, and I will not offer to the Lord my God holocausts free cost. So David bought the floor and the oxen for fifty sicles of silver. 25 And David built there an altar to the Lord, and offered holocausts and peace offerings. And the Lord became merciful to the land, and the plague was stayed from Israel.

THE THIRD BOOK OF KINGS

This and the following Book are called by the Church Fathers, "The Third and Fourth Book of Kings," but called by the Hebrews, the "First and Second." They contain the history of the kingdoms of Israel and Juda from the beginning of the reign of Solomon to the captivity.

I: SOLOMON'S UNDIVIDED KINGDOM

1. The Beginning of Solomon's Reign

CHAPTER 1.

Adonias Seeks The Throne. 1 Now king David was old, and advanced in years; and when he was covered with clothes, he was not warm. 2 His servants therefore said to him: Let us seek for our lord the king a young virgin, and let her stand before the king, and cherish him, and sleep in his bosom, and warm our lord the king. 3 So they sought a beautiful young woman in all the lands of Israel, and they found Abisag a Sunamitess, and brought her to the king. 4 And the damsel was exceeding beautiful and she slept with the king, and served him, but the king did not know her.

5 And Adonias the son of Haggith exalted himself, saying: I will be king. And he made himself chariots and horsemen, and fifty men to run before him. 6 [a] Neither did his father rebuke him at any time, saying: Why hast thou done this? And he also was very beautiful, the next in birth after Absalom. 7 And he conferred with Joab the son of Sarvia, and with Abiathar the priest, who furthered Adonias's side. But Sadoc the priest, and Banaias the son of Joiada, and Nathan the prophet, and Semei, and Rei, and the strength of David's army was not with Adonias. 9 And Adonias having slain rams and calves, and all fat cattle by the stone of Zoheleth, which was near the fountain Rogel, invited all his brethren the king's sons, and all the men of Juda, the king's servants; 10 but Nathan the prophet, and Banaias, and all the valiant men, and Solomon his brother, he invited not.

11 And Nathan said to Bethsabee the mother of Solomon: Hast thou not heard that Adonias the son of Haggith reigneth, and our lord David knoweth it not? 12 Now then come, take my counsel and save thy life, and the life of thy son Solomon. 13 Go, and get thee in to king David, and say to him: Didst not thou, my lord O king, swear to me thy handmaid, saying: Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne? Why then doth Adonias reign? 14 And while thou are yet speaking there with the king, I will come in after thee, and will fill up thy words.

15 So Bethsabee went in to the king into the chamber. Now the king was very old, and Abisag the Sunamitess ministered to him. 16 Bethsabee bowed herself, and worshiped the king. And the king said to her: What is thy will? 17 She answered and said: My lord, thou didst swear to thy handmaid by the Lord thy God, saying: Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit on my throne. 18 And behold now Adonias reigneth, and thou, my lord the king, knowest nothing of it. 19 He hath killed oxen, and all fat cattle, and many rams, and invited all the king's sons, and Abiathar the priest, and Joab the general of the army; but Solomon thy servant he invited not. 20 And now, my lord O king, the eyes of all Israel are upon thee, that thou shouldst tell them who shall sit on thy throne, my lord the king, after thee. 21 Otherwise it shall come to pass, when my lord the king sleepeth with his fathers, that I and my son Solomon shall be counted offenders.

Nathan Intervenes. 22 As she was yet speaking with the king, Nathan the prophet came. 23 And they told the king, saying: Nathan the prophet is here. And when he was come in before the king, and had worshiped, bowing down to the ground, 24 Nathan said: My lord O king, hast thou said: Let Adonias reign after me, and let him sit upon my throne? 25 Because he is gone down today, and hath killed oxen, and fatlings, and many rams, and invited all the king's sons, and the captains of the army, and Abiathar the priest: and they are eating and drinking before him, and saying: God save king Adonias. 26 But me thy servant, and Sadoc the priest, and Banaias the son of Joiada, and Solomon thy servant he hath not invited. 27 Is this word come out from my lord the king, and hast thou not told me thy servant who should sit on the throne of my lord the king after him? 28 And king David answered and said: Call to me Bethsabee. And when she was come in to the king, and stood before him, 29 the king swore and said: As the Lord liveth, who hath delivered my soul out of all distress, 30 even as I swore to thee by the Lord the God of Israel, saying: Solomon thy son shall reign after me, and he shall sit upon my throne in my stead, so will I do this day. 31 And Bethsabee bowing with her face to the earth worshiped the king, saying: May my lord David live forever.

32 King David also said: Call me Sadoc the priest, and Nathan the prophet, and Banaias the son of Joiada. And when they were come in before the king, 33 he said to them: Take with you the servants of your lord, and set my son Solomon upon my mule, and bring him to Gihon. 34 And let Sadoc the priest, and Nathan the prophet anoint him there king over Israel. And you shall sound the trumpet, and shall say: God save king Solomon. 35 And you shall come up after him, and he shall come, and shall sit upon my throne, and he shall reign in my stead: and I will appoint him to be ruler over Israel, and over Juda. 36 And Banaias the son of Joiada answered the king, saying: Amen: so says the Lord the God of my lord the king! 37 As the Lord hath been with my lord the king, so be he with Solomon, and make his throne higher than the throne of my lord king David.

Solomon Anointed King. 38 So Sadoc the priest and Nathan the prophet went down, and Banaias the son of Joiada, and the Cerethi and Phelethi; and they set Solomon upon the mule of king David, and brought him to Gihon. 39 And Sadoc the priest took a horn of oil out of the tabernacle, and anointed Solomon; and they sounded the trumpet, and all the people said: God save king Solomon. 40 And all the multitude went up after him, and the people played with pipes, and rejoiced with a great joy, and the earth rang with the noise of their cry.

41 And Adonias, and all that were invited by him, heard it, and now the feast was at an end. Joab also hearing the sound of the trumpet, said: What meaneth this noise of the city in an uproar? 42 While he yet spoke, Jonathan the son of Abiathar the priest came: and Adonias said to him: Come in, because thou art a valiant man, and bringest good news. 43 And Jonathan answered Adonias: Not so, for our lord king David hath appointed Solomon king; 44 and hath sent with him Sadoc the priest, and

Nathan the prophet, and Banaias the son of Joiada, and the Cerethi and Phelethi, and they have set him upon the king's mule. 45 And Sadoc the priest and Nathan the prophet have anointed him king in Gihon; and they are gone up from thence rejoicing, so that the city rang again: this is the noise that you have heard. 46 Moreover Solomon sitteth upon the throne of the kingdom. 47 And the king's servants going in have blessed our lord king David, saying: May God make the name of Solomon greater than thy name, and make his throne greater than thy throne. And the king adored in his bed; 48 and he said: Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel, who hath given this day one to sit on my throne, my eyes seeing it.

49 Then all the guests of Adonias were afraid, and they all arose and every man went his way. 50 And Adonias fearing Solomon, arose, and went, and took hold on the horn of the altar. 51 And they told Solomon, saying: Behold Adonias, fearing king Solomon, hath taken hold of the horn of the altar, saying: Let king Solomon swear to me this day, that he will not kill his servant with the sword. 52 And Solomon said: If he be a good man, there shall not so much as one hair of his head fall to the ground; but if evil be found in him, he shall die. 53 Then king Solomon sent, and brought him out from the altar; and going in he worshiped king Solomon; and Solomon said to him: Go to thy house.

CHAPTER 2.

David Instructs Solomon and Dies. 1 And [b] the days of David drew near that he should die, and he charged his son Solomon, saying: 2 I am going the way of all flesh: take thou courage, and show thyself a man. 3 And keep the charge of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and observe his ceremonies, and his precepts, and judgments, and testimonies, [c] as it is written in the law of Moses: that thou mayest understand all thou dost, and whithersoever thou shalt turn thyself; 4 that the Lord may confirm his words, which he hath spoken of me, saying: If thy children shall take heed to their ways, and shall walk before me in truth, with all their heart, and with all their soul, there shall not be taken away from thee a man on the throne of Israel. 5 Thou knowest also what Joab* the son of Sarvia hath done to me, what he did to the two captains of the army of Israel, [d] to Abner the son of Ner, and [e] to Amasa the son of Jether whom he slew, and shed the blood of war in peace, and put the blood of war on his girdle that was about his loins, and in his shoes that were on his feet. 6 Do therefore according to thy wisdom, and let not his hoary head go down to hell* in peace. 7 But show kindness to the sons of Berzellai the Galaadite, and let them eat at thy table, [f] for they met me when I fled from the face of Absalom thy brother. 8 [g] Thou hast also with thee Semei the son of Gera the son of Jemini of Bahurim, who cursed me with a grievous curse, when I went to the camp; but because he came down to meet me when I passed over the Jordan, and I swore to him by the Lord, saying: I will not kill thee with a sword, 9 do not thou hold him guiltless. But thou art a wise man, and knowest what to do with him, and thou shalt bring down his grey hairs with blood to hell.

10 [b] So David slept with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David. 11 [i] And the days that David reigned in Israel were forty years: in Hebron he reigned seven years, in Jerusalem thirty-three. 12 And Solomon sat upon the throne of his father David, and his kingdom was strengthened exceedingly.

13 And Adonias the son of Haggith came to Bethsabee the mother of Solomon. And she said to him: Is thy coming peaceable? He answered: Peaceable. 14 And he added: I have a word to speak with thee. She said to him: Speak. And he said: 15 Thou knowest that the kingdom was mine, and all Israel had preferred me to be their king; but the kingdom is transferred, and is become my brother's, for it was appointed him by the Lord. 16 Now therefore I ask one petition of thee: turn not away my face. And she said to him: Say on. 17 And he said: I pray thee speak to king Solomon (for he cannot deny thee anything) to give me Abisag the Sunamitess to wife. 18 And Bethsabee said: Well, I will speak for thee to the king.

2, 5: Joab: these instructions given by David to his son with relation to Joab and Semei, proceeded not from rancor of heart, but from zeal for justice, that crimes so public and heinous might not pass unpunished.

19 Then Bethsabee came to king Solomon, to speak to him for Adonias, and the king arose to meet her, and bowed to her, and sat down upon his throne; and a throne was set for the king's mother, and she sat on his right hand. 20 And she said to him: I desire one small petition of thee, do not put me to confusion. And the king said to her: My mother, ask, for I must not turn away thy face. 21 And she said: Let Abisag the Sunamitess be given to Adonias thy brother to wife. 22 And king Solomon answered, and said to his mother: Why dost thou ask Abisag the Sunamitess for Adonias? Ask for him also the kingdom, for he is my elder brother, and hath Abiathar the priest, and Joab the son of Sarvia.

23 Then king Solomon swore by the Lord, saying: So and so may God do to me, and add more, if Adonias hath not spoken this word against his own life. 24 And now as the Lord liveth, who hath established me, and placed me upon the throne of David my father, and who hath made me a house, as he promised, Adonias shall be put to death this day. 25 And king Solomon sent by the hand of Banaias the son of Joiada, who slew him, and he died.

26 And the king said also to Abiathar the priest: Go to Anathoth to thy lands, for indeed thou art worthy of death; but I will not at this time put thee to death, because thou didst carry the ark of the Lord God before David my father, and hast endured trouble in all the troubles my father endured. 27 So Solomon cast out Abiathar from being the priest of the Lord, [j] that the word of the Lord might be fulfilled, which he spoke concerning the house of Heli in Silo.

Joab and Semei Slain. 28 And the news came to Joab, because Joab had turned after Adonias, and had not turned after Solomon; and Joab fled into the tabernacle of the Lord and laid hold on the horn of the altar. 29 And it was told king Solomon that Joab was fled into the tabernacle of the Lord, and was by the altar. And Solomon sent Banaias the son of Joiada, saying: Go, kill him. 30 And Banaias came to the tabernacle of the Lord, and said to him: Thus saith the king: Come forth. And he said: I will not come forth, but here I will die. Banaias brought word back to the king, saying: Thus saith Joab, and thus he answered me. 31 And the king said to him: Do as he hath said: and kill him, and bury him, and thou shalt remove the innocent blood which hath been shed by Joab, from me, and from the house of my father. 32 And the Lord shall return his blood upon his own head, because he murdered two men, just and better than himself; and slew them with the sword, my father David not knowing it: [k] Abner the son of Ner, general of the army of Israel, and Amasa the son of Jether, general of the army of Juda. 33 And their blood shall return upon the head of Joab, and upon the head of his seed forever. But to David and his seed and his house, and to his throne, be peace forever from the Lord. 34 So Banaias the son of Joiada went up, and setting upon him slew him, and he was buried in his house in the desert. 35 And the king appointed Banaias the son of Joiada in his room over the army, and Sadoc the priest he put in the place of Abiathar.

36 The king also sent and called for Semei, and said to him: Build thee a house in Jerusalem, and dwell there; and go not out from thence any whither. 37 For on what day soever thou shalt go out, and shalt pass over the brook Cedron, know that thou shalt be put to death. Thy blood shall be upon thy own head. 38 And Semei said to the king: The saying is good; as my lord the king hath said, so will thy servant do. And Semei dwelt in Jerusalem many days. 39 And it came to pass after three years, that the servants of Semei ran away to Achis the son of Maacha the king of Geth; and it was told Semei that his servants were gone to Geth. 40 And Semei arose, and saddled his ass, and went to Achis to Geth to seek his servants, and he brought them out of Geth. 41 And it was told Solomon that Semei had gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come back. 42 And sending he called for him, and said to him: Did I not protest to thee by the Lord, and tell thee before: On what day soever thou shalt go out and walk abroad any whither, know that thou shalt die? And thou answeredst me: The word that I have heard is good. 43 Why then hast thou not kept the oath of the Lord, and the commandment that I laid upon thee? 44 And the king said to Semei: Thou knowest all the evil, of which thy heart is conscious, which thou didst to David my father; the Lord hath returned thy wickedness upon thy own head; 45 and king Solomon shall be blessed, and the throne of David shall be established before the Lord forever. 46 So the king commanded Banaias the son of Joiada; and he went out and struck him, and he died.

2. The Glorious Kingdom of Solomon

CHAPTER 3.

Solomon Marries Pharao's Daughter. 1 And l the kingdom was established m in the hand of Solomon, and he made affinity with Pharao the king of Egypt, for he took his daughter, and brought her into the city of David, n until he had made an end of building his own house, and the house of the Lord, and the wall of Jerusalem round about. 2 But yet the people sacrificed in the high places,* for there was no temple built to the name of the Lord until that day. 3 And Solomon loved the Lord, walking in the precepts of David his father, only he sacrified in the high places, and burnt incense.

4 He went therefore to Gabaon, to sacrifice there, for that was the great high place: a thousand victims for holocausts did Solomon offer upon that altar in Gabaon. 5 And the Lord appeared to Solomon in a dream by night, saying: Ask what thou wilt that I should give thee. 6 And Solomon said: Thou hast shown great mercy to thy servant David my father, even as he walked before thee in truth, and justice, and an upright heart with thee. And thou hast kept thy great mercy for him, and hast given him a son to sit on his throne, as it is this day. 7 And now, O Lord God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father. And I am but a child, and know not how to go out and come in. 8 And thy servant is in the midst of the people which thou hast chosen, an immense people, which cannot be numbered nor counted for multitude. 9 o Give therefore to thy servant an understanding heart, to judge thy people, and discern between good and evil. For who shall be able to judge this people, thy people which is so numerous?

10 And the word was pleasing to the Lord that Solomon had asked such a thing. 11 And the Lord said to Solomon: Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life or riches, nor the lives of thy enemies, but hast asked for thyself wisdom to discern judgment, 12 behold I have done for thee according to thy words, and have given thee a wise and understanding heart, insomuch that there hath been no one like thee before thee, nor shall arise after thee. 13 p Yea and the things also which thou didst not ask, I have given thee: to wit, riches and glory, so that no one hath been like thee among the kings in all days heretofore. 14 And if thou wilt walk in my ways, and keep my precepts and my commandments, as thy father walked, I will lengthen thy days.

15 And Solomon awaked, and perceived that it was a dream. And when he was come to Jerusalem, he stood before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and offered holocausts, and sacrificed victims of peace offerings, and made a great feast for all his servants.

Judgment of Solomon. 16 Then there came two women that were harlots, to the king, and stood before him; 17 and one of them said: I beseech thee, my lord, I and this woman dwelt in one house, and I was delivered of a child with her in the chamber. 18 And the third day, after that I was delivered, she also was delivered, and we were together, and no other person with us in the house,

1 972 B.C.—m 2 Par 1, 1.—n 2 Par 8, 11.—o 2 Par 1, 10. —p Wis 7, 11; Mt 6, 29.

3, 2: High places: i.e., altars where they worshiped the Lord, but not according to the ordinance of the law, which allowed of no other places for sacrifice but the temple of God. Among these high places, that of Gabaon was the principal one, because the tabernacle of the testimony was there. It had been removed from Silo to Nobe and from Nobe to Gabaon.

only we two. 19 And this woman's child died in the night, for in her sleep she overlaid him. 20 And rising in the dead time of the night, she took my child from my side, while I thy handmaid was asleep, and laid it in her bosom, and laid her dead child in my bosom. 21 And when I rose in the morning to give my child suck, behold it was dead, but considering him more diligently when it was clear day, I found that it was not mine which I bore. 22 And the other woman answered: It is not so as thou sayest, but thy child is dead, and mine is alive. On the contrary she said: Thou liest, for my child liveth, and thy child is dead. And in this manner they strove before the king.

23 Then said the king: The one saith: My child is alive, and thy child is dead. And the other answereth: Nay, but thy child is dead, and mine liveth. 24 The king therefore said: Bring me a sword. And when they had brought a sword before the king: 25 Divide, said he, the living child in two, and give half to the one, and half to the other. 26 But the woman whose child was alive, said to the king (for her bowels were moved upon her child): I beseech thee, my lord, give her the child alive, and do not kill it. But the other said: Let it be neither mine nor thine, but divide it. 27 The king answered, and said: Give the living child to this woman, and let it not be killed, for she is the mother thereof. 28 And all Israel heard the judgment which the king had judged, and they feared the king, seeing that the wisdom of God was in him to do judgment.

CHAPTER 4.

Solomon's Chief Officers. 1 And king Solomon reigned over all Israel. 2 And these were the princes which he had: Azarias the son of Sadoc the priest; 3 Elihoreph, and Ahia, the sons of Sisa, scribes; Josaphat the son of Ahilud, recorder; 4 Banaias the son of Joiada, over the army; and Sadoc and Abiathar,* priests; 5 Azarias the son of Nathan, over them that were about the king; Zabud, the son of Nathan the priest, the king's friend; 6 and Ahisar, governor of the house; and Adoniram the son of Abda, over the tribute.

Twelve Governors. 7 And Solomon had twelve governors over all Israel, who provided victuals for the king and for his household; for everyone provided necessaries, each man his month in the year. 8 And these are their names: Benhur, in mount Ephraim, 9 Bendecar, in Macces, and in Salebim, and in Bethsames, and in Elon and in Bethhanan. 10 Benhesed in Aruboth: his was Socho, and all the land of Epher. 11 Benabinadab, to whom belonged all Nephath-Dor: he had Tapheth the daughter of Solomon to wife. 12 Bana the son of Ahilud, who governed Thanac and Mageddo, and all Bethsan, which is by Sarthana beneath Jezrahel, from Bethsan unto Abelmehula over against Jecmaan. 13 Bengaber in Ramoth Galaad: he had the towns of Jair the son of Manasses in Galaad: he was chief in all the country of Argob, which is in Basan, threescore great cities with walls, and brazen bolts. 14 Ahinadab the son of Addo was chief in Manaim. 15 Achimaas in Nephtali: he also had Basemath the daughter of Solomon to wife. 16 Baana the son of Husi, in Aser and in Baloth. 17 Josaphat the son of Pharue, in Issachar. 18 Semei the son of Ela, in Benjamin. 19 Gaber the son of Uri, in the land of Galaad, in the land of Sehon the king of the Amorrhites and of Og the king of Basan, over all that were in that land.

20 Juda and Israel were innumerable, as the sand in the sea in multitude, eating and drinking, and rejoicing. 21 q And Solomon had under him all the kingdoms from the river* to the land of the Philistines, even to the border of Egypt: and they brought him presents, and served him all the days of his life. 22 And the provision of Solomon for each day was thirty measures of fine flour, and threescore measures of meal, 23 ten fat oxen and twenty out of the pastures, and a hundred rams, besides venison of harts, roes, and buffles, and fatted fowls. 24 For he had all the country which was beyond the river from Thaphsa to Gazan, and all the kings of those countries: and he had peace on every side round about. 25 And Juda and Israel dwelt without any fear, everyone under his vine, and under his fig tree, from Dan to Bersabee, all the days of Solomon. 26 r And Solomon had forty thousand stalls of chariot horses, and twelve thousand for the saddle. 27 And the foresaid governors of the king fed them; and they furnished the necessaries also for king Solomon's table, with great care in their time. 28 They brought barley also and straw for the horses, and beasts, to the place where the king was, according as it was appointed them. 29 And God gave to Solomon wisdom and understanding exceeding much, and largeness of heart as the sand that is on the seashore. 30 And the wisdom of Solomon surpassed the wisdom of all the Orientals, and of the Egyptians, 31 s and he was wiser than all men: wiser than Ethan the Ezrahite, and Heman, and Chalcol, and Dorda the sons of Machol, and he was renowned in all nations round about. 32 Solomon also spoke three thousand parables;* and his poems were a thousand and five. 33 And he treated about trees from the cedar that is in Libanus, unto the hyssop that cometh out of the wall; and he discoursed of beasts, and of fowls, and of creeping things, and of fishes. 34 And they came from all nations to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and from all the kings of the earth, who heard of his wisdom.

CHAPTER 5.

Preparations for the Construction of the Temple. 1 And Hiram king of Tyre sent his servants to Solomon, for he heard that they had anointed him king in the room of his father; for Hiram had always been David's friend. 2 And Solomon sent to Hiram, saying: 3 Thou knowest the will of David my father, and that he could not build a house to the name of the Lord his God, because of the wars that were round about him, until the Lord put them under the soles of his feet. 4 But now the Lord my God hath given me rest round about, and there is no adversary nor evil occurrence. 5 Wherefore I purpose to build a temple to the name of the Lord my God, as the Lord spoke to David my father, saying: 6 t Thy son, whom I will set upon the throne in thy place, he shall build a house to my name. 6 Give orders therefore that thy servants cut me down cedar trees out of Libanus, and let my servants be with thy servants; and I will give thee the hire of thy servants whatsoever thou wilt ask, for thou knowest how there is not among my people a man that has skill to hew wood like to the Sidonians.

7 Now when Hiram had heard the words of Solomon, he rejoiced exceedingly, and said: Blessed be the Lord God this day, who hath given to David a very wise son over this numerous people. 8 And Hiram sent to Solomon, saying: I have heard all thou hast desired of me, and I will do all thy desire concerning cedar trees, and fir trees. 9 My servants shall bring them down from Libanus to the sea, and I will put them together in floats in the sea, and convey them to the place, which thou shalt signify to me; and will land them there, and thou shalt receive them; and thou shalt allow me necessaries, to furnish food for my household.

10 So Hiram gave Solomon cedar trees, and fir trees, according to all his desire. 11 And Solomon allowed Hiram twenty thousand measures of wheat, for provision for his house, and twenty measures of the purest oil: thus gave Solomon to Hiram every year. 12 u And the Lord gave wisdom to Solomon, as he promised him; and there was peace between Hiram and Solomon, and they two made a league together.

13 And king Solomon chose workmen out of all Israel, and the levy was of thirty thousand men. 14 And he sent them to Libanus, ten thousand every month by turns, so that two months they were at home; and Adoniram was over this levy. 15 And Solomon had seventy thousand to carry burdens, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountain, 16 besides the overseers who were over every work, in number three thousand, and three hundred that ruled over the people and them that did the work. 17 And the king commanded that they should bring great stones, costly stones, for the foundation of the temple, and should square them. 18 And the masons of Solomon and the masons of Hiram hewed them; and the Giblians prepared timber and stones to build the house.

CHAPTER 6.

The Building of Solomon's Temple. 1 And [v] it came to pass [w] in the four hundred and eightieth year after the children of Israel came out of the land of Egypt, in the fourth year of the reign of Solomon over Israel, in the month Zio (the same is the second month), he began to build a house to the Lord.

2 And the house, which king Solomon built to the Lord, was threescore cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and thirty cubits in height. 3 And there was a porch before the temple of twenty cubits in length, according to the measure of the breadth of the temple: and it was ten cubits in breadth before the face of the temple. 4 And he made in the temple oblique windows. 5 And upon the wall* of the temple he built floors round about, in the walls of the house round about the temple and the oracle, and he made sides round about. 6 The floor that was underneath, was five cubits in breadth, and the middle floor was six cubits in breadth, and the third floor was seven cubits in breadth. And he put beams in the house round about on the outside, that they might not be fastened in the walls of the temple.

7 And the house, when it was in building, was built of stones hewed and made ready:* so that there was neither hammer nor axe nor any tool of iron heard in the house when it was in building.

8 The door for the middle side was on the right hand of the house, and by winding stairs they went up to the middle room, and from the middle to the third.

9 So he built the house, and finished it; and he covered the house with roofs of cedar.

10 And he built a floor over all the house five cubits in height, and he covered the house with timber of cedar.

11 And the word of the Lord came to Solomon, saying: 12 This house which thou buildest, if thou wilt walk in my statutes, and execute my judgments, and keep all my commandments, walking in them, I will fulfill my word to thee [x] which I spoke to David thy father. 13 [y] And I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel, and will not forsake my people Israel.

14 So Solomon built the house and finished it. 15 And he built the walls of the house on the inside with boards of cedar; from the floor of the house to the top of the walls, and to the roofs, he covered it with boards of cedar on the inside; and he covered the floor of the house with planks of fir. 16 And he built up twenty cubits with boards of cedar at the hinder part of the temple, from the floor to the top; and made the inner house of the oracle to be the Holy of Holies. 17 And the temple itself before the doors of the oracle was forty cubits long. 18 And all the house was covered within with cedar, having the turnings and the joints thereof artfully wrought and carvings projecting out: all was covered with boards of cedar; and no stone could be seen in the wall at all.

19 And he made the oracle in the midst of the house, in the inner part, to set there the ark of the covenant of the Lord. 20 Now the oracle was twenty cubits in length, and twenty cubits in breadth, and twenty cubits in height. And he covered and overlaid it with most pure gold. And the altar also he covered with cedar. 21 And the house before the oracle he overlaid with most pure gold, and fastened on the plates with nails of gold. 22 And there was nothing in the temple that was not covered with gold: the whole altar of the oracle he covered also with gold.

23 And he made in the oracle two cherubim of olive tree, of ten cubits in height. 24 One wing of the cherub was five cubits, and the other wing of the cherub was five cubits, that is, in all ten cubits, from the extremity of one wing to the extremity of the other wing. 25 The second cherub also was ten cubits; and the measure, and the work was the same in both the cherubim, 26 that is to say, one cherub was ten cubits high, and in like manner the other cherub. 27 And he set the cherubim in the midst of the inner temple: and the cherubim stretched forth their wings, and the wing of the one touched one wall, and the wing of the other cherub touched the other wall, and the other wings in the midst of the temple touched one another. 28 And he overlaid the cherubim with gold.

6, 5: Upon the wall: i.e., joining to the wall. He built floors round about: chambers or cells adjoining the temple, for the use of the temple and of the priests so contrived as to be between the inward and outward wall of the temple, in three stories, one above another. The oracle: the Holy of Holies where God gave his oracles.

Sculptures on the Walls. 29 And all the walls of the temple round about he carved with divers figures and carvings: and he made in them cherubim and palm trees, and divers representations, as it were standing out, and coming forth from the wall. 30 And the floor of the house he also overlaid with gold within and without.

31 And in the entrance of the oracle he made little doors of olive tree, and posts of five corners, 32 and two doors of olive tree; and he carved upon them figures of cherubim, and figures of palm trees, and carvings very much projecting; and he overlaid them with gold; and he covered both the cherubim and the palm trees and the other things with gold.

33 And he made in the entrance of the temple posts of olive tree foursquare; 34 and two doors of fir tree, one of each side: and each door was double, and so opened with folding leaves. 35 And he carved cherubim, and palm trees, and carved work standing very much out; and he overlaid all with golden plates in square work by rule.

36 And he built the inner court with three rows of polished stones and one row of beams of cedar.

37 In the fourth year was the house of the Lord founded in the month Zio; 38 and in the eleventh year in the month Bul (which is the eighth month) the house was finished in all the works thereof, and in all the appurtenances thereof; and he was seven years in building it.

CHAPTER 7.

Solomon's Palaces. 1 And Solomon built his own house in [z] thirteen years, and brought it to perfection.

2 He built also the house of the forest of Libanus, the length of it was a hundred cubits, and the breadth fifty cubits, and the height thirty cubits; and four galleries between pillars of cedar, for he had cut cedar trees into pillars. 3 And he covered the whole vault with boards of cedar, and it was held up with five and forty pillars. And one row had fifteen pillars, 4 set one against another, 5 and looking one upon another, with equal space between the pillars, and over the pillars were square beams in all things equal.

6 And he made a porch of pillars of fifty cubits in length, and thirty cubits in breadth: and another porch before the greater porch: and pillars, and chapiters upon the pillars.

7 He made also the porch of the throne, wherein is the seat of judgment, and covered it with cedar wood from the floor to the top.

8 And in the midst of the porch was a small house where he sat in judgment, of the like work. He made also a house for the daughter of Pharao ([a] whom Solomon had taken to wife), of the same work as this porch, 9 all of costly stones, which were sawed by a certain rule and measure both within and without, from the foundation to the top of the walls, and without unto the great court. 10 And the foundations were of costly stones, great stones of ten cubits or eight cubits: 11 and above there were costly stones of equal measure, hewed, and in like manner, planks of cedar. 12 And the greater court was made round with three rows of hewed stones, and one row of planks of cedar; moreover also in the inner court of the house of the Lord, and in the porch of the house.

13 And king Solomon sent and brought Hiram from Tyre, 14 the son of a widow woman of the tribe of Nephtali, whose father was a Tyrian, an artificer in brass, and full of wisdom, and understanding, and skill to work all work in brass. And when he was come to king Solomon, he wrought all his work.

15 And he cast two pillars in brass, each pillar was eighteen cubits high; [b] and a line of twelve cubits compassed both the pillars. 16 He made also two chapiters of z 3 Kgs 6, 38; 9, 10.—a 3 Kgs 3, 1.—b Jer 52, 21.

molten brass, to be set upon the tops of the pillars: the height of one chapiter was five cubits, and the height of the other chapiter was five cubits; [17] and a kind of network, and chain work wreathed together with wonderful art. Both the chapiters of the pillars were cast: seven rows of nets were on one chapiter, and seven nets on the other chapiter. [18] And he made the pillars, and two rows round about each network to cover the chapiters, that were upon the top, with pomegranates; and in like manner did he to the other chapiter. [19] And the chapiters that were upon the top of the pillars, were of lily work in the porch, of four cubits. [20] And again other chapiters in the top of the pillars above, according to the measure of the pillar over against the network: and of pomegranates there were two hundred in rows round about the other chapiter. [21] And he set up the two pillars in the porch of the temple. And when he had set up the pillar on the right hand, he called the name thereof Jachin.* In like manner he set up the second pillar, and called the name thereof Booz. [22] And upon the tops of the pillars he made lily work; so the work of the pillars was finished.

The Sea or Laver of Bronze. [23] c He made also a molten sea of ten cubits from brim to brim, round all about; the height of it was five cubits, and a line of thirty cubits compassed it round about. [24] And a graven work under the brim of it compassed it, for ten cubits going about the sea. There were two rows cast of chamfered sculptures. [25] And it stood upon twelve oxen, of which three looked towards the north, and three towards the west, and three towards the south, and three towards the east, and the sea was above upon them, and their hinder parts were all hid within. [26] And the laver was a hand-breadth thick. And the brim thereof was like the brim of a cup, or the leaf of a crisped lily: it contained two thousand bates.*

c 2 Par 4, 2.

7, 21: Jachin: i.e., firmly established. Booz: i.e., in its strength. By recording these names in Scripture, the spirit of God would have us understand the invincible firmness and strength of the pillars on which the true temple of God, which is the Church, is established.

7, 26: Two thousand bates. i.e., about ten thousand gallons. This was the quantity of water which was usually put into it, but it was capable, if brimful, of holding three thousand. See 2 Par 4, 5.

[27] And he made ten bases of brass, every base was four cubits in length, and four cubits in breadth, and three cubits high. [28] And the work itself of the bases was intergraven: and there were gravings between the joinings. [29] And between the little crowns and the ledges were lions, and oxen, and cherubim: and in the joinings likewise above: and under the lions and oxen, as it were bands of brass hanging down. [30] And every base had four wheels, and axletrees of brass; and at the four sides were undersetters under the laver molten, looking one against another. [31] The mouth also of the laver within, was in the top of the chapiter; and that which appeared without, was of one cubit all round, and together it was one cubit and a half; and in the corners of the pillars were divers engravings; and the spaces between the pillars were square, not round. [32] And the four wheels, which were at the four corners of the base were joined one to another under the base: the height of a wheel was a cubit and a half. [33] And they were such wheels as are used to be made in a chariot: and their axletrees, and spokes, and strakes, and naves, were all cast. [34] And the four undersetters that were at every corner of each base, were of the base itself cast and joined together. [35] And in the top of the base there was a round compass of half a cubit, so wrought that the laver might be set thereon, having its gravings, and divers sculptures of itself. [36] He engraved also in those plates, which were of brass, and in the corners, cherubim, and lions, and palm trees, in likeness of a man standing, so that they seemed not to be engraven, but added round about. [37] After this manner he made ten bases, of one casting and measure, and the like graving.

[38] He made also ten lavers of brass: one laver contained four bases, and was of four cubits: and upon every base, in all ten, he put as many lavers. [39] And he set the ten bases five on the right side of the temple, and five on the left; and the sea he put on the right side of the temple over against the east southward.

[40] And Hiram made caldrons, and shovels, and basins, and finished all the work of king Solomon in the temple of the Lord: 41 the two pillars and the two cords of the chapiters, upon the chapiters of the pillars; and the two networks, to cover the two cords, that were upon the top of the pillars. 42 And four hundred pomegranates for the two networks: two rows of pomegranates for each network, to cover the cords of the chapiters, which were upon the tops of the pillars. 43 And the ten bases, and the ten lavers on the bases. 44 And one sea, and twelve oxen under the sea, 45 and the caldrons, and the shovels, and the basins. All the vessels that Hiram made for king Solomon for the house of the Lord, were of fine brass. 46 In the plains of the Jordan did the king cast them in a clay ground, between Socoth and Sartham. 47 And Solomon placed all the vessels; but for exceeding great multitude the brass could not be weighed.

Golden Vessels. 48 And Solomon made all the vessels for the house of the Lord: the altar of gold, and the table of gold, upon which the loaves of proposition should be set; 49 and the golden candlesticks, five on the right hand, and five on the left, over against the oracle, of pure gold; and the flowers like lilies, and the lamps over them of gold; and golden snuffers, 50 and pots, and fleshhooks, and bowls, and mortars, and censers, of most pure gold; and the hinges for the doors of the inner house of the Holy of Holies, and for the doors of the house of the temple were of gold.

51 d And Solomon finished all the work that he made in the house of the Lord, and brought in the things that David his father had dedicated, the silver and the gold, and the vessels, and laid them up in the treasures of the house of the Lord.

CHAPTER 8.

The Dedication of the Temple. 1 Then all the ancients of Israel e with the princes of the tribes, and the heads of the families of the children of Israel were assembled to king Solomon in Jerusalem, that they might carry the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David, that is, out of Sion. 2 And all Israel assembled themselves to king Solomon on the festival day in the month of Ethanim, the same is the seventh month.

3 And all the ancients of Israel came, and the priests took up the ark, 4 and carried the ark of the Lord, and the tabernacle of the covenant, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, that were in the tabernacle: and the priests and the Levites carried them. 5 And king Solomon, and all the multitude of Israel that were assembled unto him, went with him before the ark, and they sacrificed sheep and oxen that could not be counted or numbered. 6 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord into its place, into the oracle of the temple, into the Holy of Holies under the wings of the cherubim. 7 For the cherubim spread forth their wings over the place of the ark, and covered the ark, and the staves thereof above. 8 And whereas the staves stood out, the ends of them were seen without in the sanctuary before the oracle, but were not seen farther out, and there they have been unto this day. 9 Now in the ark there was nothing else* f but the two tables of stone, which Moses put there at Horeb, when the Lord made a covenant with the children of Israel, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

10 And it came to pass, when the priests were come out of the sanctuary, that a cloud filled the house of the Lord, 11 and the priests could not stand to minister because of the cloud: for the glory of the Lord had filled the house of the Lord.

12 Then Solomon said: g The Lord said that he would dwell in a cloud. 13 Building I have built a house for thy dwelling, to be thy most firm throne forever. 14 And the king turned his face, and blessed all the assembly of Israel, for all the assembly of Israel stood. 15 And Solomon said: Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel, who spoke with his mouth to David my father, and with his own hands hath accomplished it, saying: 16 Since the day that I brought my people Israel out of Egypt, I chose no city out of all the tribes of Israel, for a house to be built, that my name might be there; but I chose David to be over my people Israel. 17 h And David my father would have built a house to the name of the Lord the God of Israel. 18 And the Lord said to David my father: Whereas thou hast thought in thy heart to build a house to my name, thou hast done well in having this same thing in thy mind. 19 Nevertheless thou shalt not build me a house, but thy son, that shall come forth out of thy loins, he shall build a house to my name. 20 The Lord hath performed his word which he spoke; and I stand in the room of David my father, and sit upon the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised; and have built a house to the name of the Lord the God of Israel. 21 And I have set there a place for the ark, wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which he made with our fathers, when they came out of the land of Egypt.

Prayer of Solomon. 22 And Solomon stood before the altar of the Lord in the sight of the assembly of Israel, and spread forth his hands towards heaven; 23 and said: Lord God of Israel, there is no God like thee in heaven above, or on earth beneath; who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants that have walked before thee with all their heart. 24 Who hast kept with thy servant David my father what thou hast promised him; with thy mouth thou didst speak, and with thy hands thou hast performed, as this day proveth. 25 Now therefore, O Lord God of Israel, keep with thy servant David my father what thou hast spoken to him, saying: i There shall not be taken away of thee a man in my sight, to sit on the throne of Israel; yet so that thy children take heed to their way, that they walk before me as thou hast walked in my sight. 26 And now, Lord God of Israel, let thy words be established, which thou hast spoken to thy servant David my father.

27 Is it then to be thought that God should indeed dwell upon earth? For if heaven and the heavens of heavens cannot contain thee, how much less this house which I have built? 28 But have regard to the prayer of thy servant, and to his supplications, O Lord my God. Hear the hymn and the prayer, which thy servant prayeth before thee this day, 29 that thy eyes may be open upon this house night and day, upon the house of which thou hast said: j My name shall be there, that thou mayest hearken to the prayer which thy servant prayeth in this place to thee. 30 That thou mayest hearken to the supplication of thy servant and of thy people Israel, whatsoever they shall pray for in this place, and hear them in the place of thy dwelling in heaven; and when thou hearest, show them mercy.

31 If any man trespass against his neighbor, and have an oath upon him, wherewith he is bound, and come because of the oath before thy altar to thy house, 32 then hear thou in heaven, and do and judge thy servants, condemning the wicked, and bringing his way upon his own head, and justifying the just, and rewarding him according to his justice.

33 If thy people Israel shall fly before their enemies (because they will sin against thee), and doing penance, and confessing to thy name, shall come, and pray, and make supplications to thee in this house; 34 then hear thou in heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them back to the land which thou gavest to their fathers.

35 If heaven shall be shut up, and there shall be no rain because of their sins, and they praying in this place shall do penance to thy name, and shall be converted from their sins, by occasion of their afflictions, 36 then hear thou them in heaven, and forgive the sins of thy servants, and of thy people Israel; and show them the good way wherein they should walk, and give rain upon thy land, which thou hast given to thy people in possession.

37 If a famine arise in the land, or a pestilence, or corrupt air, or blasting, or locust, or mildew, if their enemy afflict them besieging the gates, whatsoever plague, whatsoever infirmity, 38 whatsoever curse or imprecation shall happen to any man of thy people Israel; when a man shall know the wound of his own heart, and shall spread forth his hands in this house, 39 then hear thou in heaven, in the place of thy dwelling, and forgive, and do so as to give to everyone according to his ways, as thou shalt see his heart (for thou only knowest the heart of all the children of men), 40 that they may fear thee all the days that they live upon the face of the land, which thou hast given to our fathers.

41 Moreover also the stranger, who is not of thy people Israel, when he shall

i 2 Kgs 7, 12.—j Dt 12, 11.

come out of a far country for thy name's sake (for they shall hear everywhere of thy great name and thy mighty hand, 42 and thy stretched out arm), so when he shall come, and shall pray in this place, 43 then hear thou in heaven, in the firmament of thy dwelling place, and do all those things for which that stranger shall call upon thee: that all the people of the earth may learn to fear thy name, as do thy people Israel, and may prove that thy name is invoked upon this house which I have built.

44 If thy people go out to war against their enemies, by what way soever thou shalt send them, they shall pray to thee towards the way of the city, which thou hast chosen, and towards the house, which I have built to thy name. 45 And then hear thou in heaven their prayers, and their supplications, and do judgment for them.

46 But if they sin against thee (k for there is no man who sinneth not) and thou being angry deliver them up to their enemies, so that they be led away captives into the land of their enemies far or near; 47 then if they do penance in their heart in the place of captivity, and being converted make supplication to thee in their captivity, saying: We have sinned, we have done unjustly, we have committed wickedness, 48 and return to thee with all their heart, and all their soul, in the land of their enemies, to which they had been led captives, and pray to thee towards the way of their land, which thou gavest to their fathers, and of the city which thou hast chosen, and of the temple which I have built to thy name, 49 then hear thou in heaven, in the firmament of thy throne, their prayers and their supplications, and do judgment for them. 50 And forgive thy people that have sinned against thee, and all their iniquities by which they have transgressed against thee; and give them mercy before them that have made them captives, that they may have compassion on them. 51 For they are thy people, and thy inheritance, whom thou hast brought out of the land of Egypt, from the midst of the furnace of iron. 52 That thy eyes may be open to the supplication of thy servant, and of thy people Israel, to hear them in all things for which they shall call upon thee. 53 For thou hast separated them to thyself for an inheritance from among all the people of the earth, as thou hast spoken by Moses thy servant, when thou broughtest our fathers out of Egypt, O Lord God.

Solomon Blesses People. 54 And it came to pass, when Solomon had made an end of praying all this prayer and supplication to the Lord, that he rose from before the altar of the Lord, for he had fixed both knees on the ground, and had spread his hands towards heaven. 55 And he stood and blessed all the assembly of Israel with a loud voice, saying: 56 Blessed be the Lord, who hath given rest to his people Israel, according to all that he promised. There hath not failed so much as one word of all the good things that he promised by his servant Moses. 57 The Lord our God be with us, as he was with our fathers, and not leave us, nor cast us off; 58 but may he incline our hearts to himself, that we may walk in all his ways, and keep his commandments, and his ceremonies, and all his judgments which he commanded our fathers. 59 And let these my words, wherewith I have prayed before the Lord, be near unto the Lord our God day and night, that he may do judgment for his servant and for his people Israel day by day, 60 that all the people of the earth may know, that the Lord he is God, and there is no other besides him. 61 Let our hearts also be perfect with the Lord our God, that we may walk in his statutes, and keep his commandments, as at this day.

62 And the king, and all Israel with him, offered victims before the Lord. 63 And Solomon slew victims of peace offerings, which he sacrificed to the Lord, two and twenty thousand oxen and a hundred and twenty thousand sheep; so the king, and the children of Israel dedicated the temple of the Lord. 64 In that day the king sanctified the middle of the court that was before the house of the Lord, for there he offered the holocaust, and sacrifice, and fat of the peace offerings because the brazen altar that was before the Lord, was too little to receive the holocaust, and sacrifice, and fat of the peace offerings.

65 And Solomon made at the same time

k 2 Par 6, 36; Eccl 7, 20; I Jn 1, 8.

a solemn feast, and all Israel with him, a great multitude from the entrance of Emath to the river of Egypt, before the Lord our God, seven days and seven days, that is, fourteen days. 66 And on the eighth day he sent away the people; and they blessed the king, and went to their dwellings rejoicing, and glad in heart for all the good things that the Lord had done for David his servant, and for Israel his people.

CHAPTER 9.

The Lord Appears again to Solomon. 1 And it came to pass when Solomon had finished the building of the house of the Lord and the king's house, and all that he desired, and was pleased to do, 2 that the Lord appeared to him the second time, l as he had appeared to him in Gabaon. 3 And the Lord said to him: I have heard thy prayer and thy supplication, which thou hast made before me. I have sanctified this house, which thou hast built, to put my name there forever, and my eyes and my heart shall be there always. 4 And if thou wilt walk before me, as thy father walked, in simplicity of heart* and in uprightness, and wilt do all that I have commanded thee, and wilt keep my ordinances and my judgments, 5 m I will establish the throne of thy kingdom over Israel forever, as I promised David thy father, saying: There shall not fail a man of thy race upon the throne of Israel. 6 But if you and your children revolting shall turn away from following me, and will not keep my commandments and my ceremonies which I have set before you, but will go and worship strange gods and adore them, 7 I will take away Israel from the face of the land which I have given them; and the temple which I have sanctified to my name, I will cast out of my sight; and Israel shall be a proverb, and a byword among all people. 8 And this house shall be made an example of: everyone that shall pass by it, shall be astonished, and shall hiss, and say: n Why hath the Lord done thus to this land, and to this house? 9 And they shall answer: Because they forsook the Lord their God, who brought their fathers out of the land of Egypt, and followed strange gods, and adored them, and worshiped them. Therefore hath the Lord brought upon them all this evil.

10 o And when twenty years were ended after Solomon had built the two houses, that is, the house of the Lord and the house of the king 11 (Hiram the king of Tyre furnishing Solomon with cedar trees and fir trees, and gold according to all he had need of), then Solomon gave Hiram twenty cities in the land of Galilee. 12 And Hiram came out of Tyre, to see the towns which Solomon had given him, and they pleased him not, 13 and he said: Are these the cities which thou hast given me, brother? And he called them the land of Chabul,* unto this day. 14 And Hiram sent to king Solomon a hundred and twenty talents of gold.

15 This is the sum of the expenses, which king Solomon offered to build the house of the Lord, and his own house, and Mello, and the wall of Jerusalem, and Heser, and Mageddo, and Gazer. 16 Pharao the king of Egypt came up and took Gazer, and burnt it with fire; and slew the Chanaanite that dwelt in the city, and gave it for a dowry to his daughter, Solomon's wife. 17 So Solomon built Gazer, and Bethhoron the nether 18 and Baalath, and Palmira in the land of the wilderness. 19 And all the towns that belonged to himself, and were not walled, he fortified, the cities also of the chariots, and the cities of the horsemen, and whatsoever he had a mind to build in Jerusalem, and in Libanus, and in all the land of his dominion. 20 All the people that were left of the Amorrhites, and Hethites, and Pherezites, and Hevites, and Jebusites, that are not of the children of Israel: 21 their children, that were left in the land, to wit, such as the children of Israel had not been able to destroy, Solomon made tributary unto this day. 22 But of the children of Israel Solomon made not any to be bondmen, but they were men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and captains, and overseers of the chariots and horses. 23 And there were five hundred and fifty chief officers set over all the works of Solomon, and they had people under them, and had charge over the appointed works.

24 p And the daughter of Pharao came up out of the city of David to her house, which Solomon had built for her; then did he build Mello.

25 Solomon also offered three times every year holocausts and victims of peace offerings upon the altar which he had built to the Lord, and he burnt incense before the Lord; and the temple was finished.

26 And king Solomon made a fleet in Asiongaber, which is by Ailath on the shore of the Red Sea in the land of Edom. 27 And Hiram sent his servants in the fleet, sailors that had knowledge of the sea, with the servants of Solomon. 28 And they came to Ophir, and they brought from thence to king Solomon four hundred and twenty talents of gold.

CHAPTER 10.

Queen of Saba Visits Solomon. 1 And q the queen of Saba, having heard of the fame of Solomon in the name of the Lord, came to try him with hard questions. 2 And entering into Jerusalem with a great train, and riches, and camels that carried spices, and an immense quantity of gold, and precious stones, she came to king Solomon, and spoke to him all that she had in her heart. 3 And Solomon informed her of all the things she proposed to him: there was not any word the king was ignorant of, and which he could not answer her.

4 And when the queen of Saba saw all the wisdom of Solomon, and the house which he had built, 5 and the meat of his table, and the apartments of his servants, and the order of his ministers, and their apparel, and the cupbearers, and the holocausts, which he offered in the house of the Lord, she had no longer any spirit in her, 6 and she said to the king: The report is true, which I heard in my own country, 7 concerning thy words and concerning thy wisdom. And I did not believe them that told me, till I came myself, and saw with my own eyes, and have found that the half hath not been told me. Thy wisdom and thy works exceed the fame which I heard. 8 Blessed are thy men, and blessed are thy servants, who stand before thee always, and hear thy wisdom. 9 Blessed be the Lord thy God, whom thou hast pleased, and who hath set thee upon the throne of Israel, because the Lord hath loved Israel forever, and hath appointed thee king, to do judgment and justice. 10 r And she gave the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and of spices a very great store, and precious stones: there was brought no more such abundance of spices as these which the queen of Saba gave to king Solomon.

11 (s The navy also of Hiram, which brought gold from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plenty of thyine trees, and precious stones. 12 And the king made of the thyine trees the rails of the house of the Lord, and of the king's house, and citterns and harps for singers: there were no such thyine trees as these brought, nor seen unto this day.)

13 And king Solomon gave the queen of Saba all that she desired and asked of him, besides what he offered her of himself of his royal bounty. And she returned, and went to her own country with her servants.

Solomon's Riches and Glory. 14 And the weight of the gold that was brought to Solomon every year, was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold; 15 besides that which the men brought him that were over the tributes, and the merchants, and they that sold by retail, and all the kings of Arabia, and the governors of the country.

16 And Solomon made two hundred shields of the purest gold. He allowed six hundred sicles of gold for the plates of one shield. 17 And three hundred targets of fine gold: three hundred pounds of gold covered one target. And the king put them in the house of the forest of Libanus.

18 King Solomon also made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with the finest gold. 19 It had six steps; and the top of the throne was round behind; and there were two hands on either side holding the seat: and two lions stood, one at each hand. 20 And twelve little lions stood upon the six steps on the one side and on the other: there was no such work made in any kingdom.

p 2 Par 8, 11.—q 2 Par 9, 1; Mt 12, 42; Lk 11, 31.—r 2 Par 9, 9.—s 2 Par 9, 10.

21 Moreover all the vessels, out of which king Solomon drank, were of gold; and all the furniture of the house of the forest of Libanus was of most pure gold. There was no silver, nor was any account made of it in the days of Solomon, 22 for the king's navy, once in three years, went with the navy of Hiram by sea to Tharsis, and brought from thence gold, and silver, and elephants' teeth, and apes, and peacocks.

23 And king Solomon exceeded all the kings on the earth in riches and wisdom. 24 And all the earth desired to see Solomon's face, to hear his wisdom, which God had given in his heart. 25 And everyone brought him presents, vessels of silver and of gold, garments and armor, and spices, and horses and mules every year. 26 t And Solomon gathered together chariots and horsemen, and he had a thousand four hundred chariots, and twelve thousand horsemen: and he bestowed them in fenced cities, and with the king in Jerusalem. 27 And he made silver to be as plentiful in Jerusalem as stones; and cedars to be as common as sycamores which grow in the plains. 28 And horses were brought for Solomon out of Egypt and Coa, for the king's merchants brought them out of Coa, and bought them at a set price. 29 And a chariot of four horses came out of Egypt for six hundred sicles of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty. And after this manner did all the kings of the Hethites, and of Syria, sell horses.

3. The End of Solomon's Kingdom

CHAPTER 11.

Solomon Falls into Idolatry. 1 And king Solomon u loved many strange women besides the daughter of Pharao, and women of Moab, and of Ammon, and of Edom, and of Sidon, and of the Hethites: 2 of the nations concerning which the Lord said to the children of Israel: v You shall not go in unto them, neither shall any of them come in to yours, for they will most certainly turn away your heart to follow their gods. And to these was Solomon joined with a most ardent love. 3 And he had seven hundred wives as queens, and three hundred concubines: and the women turned away his heart. 4 And when he was now old, his heart was turned away by women to follow strange gods; and his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father. 5 But Solomon worshiped Astarthe the goddess of the Sidonians, and Moloch the idol of the Ammonites. 6 And Solomon did that which was not pleasing before the Lord, and did not fully follow the Lord, as David his father. 7 Then Solomon built a temple for Chamos the idol of Moab, on the hill that is over against Jerusalem, and for Moloch the idol of the children of Ammon. 8 And he did in this manner for all his wives that were strangers, who burnt incense, and offered sacrifice to their gods.

9 And the Lord was angry with Solomon, because his mind was turned away from the Lord the God of Israel, w who had appeared to him twice, 10 and had commanded him concerning this thing, that he should not follow strange gods; but he kept not the things which the Lord commanded him. 11 The Lord therefore said to Solomon: Because thou hast done this, and hast not kept my covenant, and my precepts, which I have commanded thee, I will divide and rend thy kingdom, and will give it to thy servant. 12 x Nevertheless in thy days I will not do it, for David thy father's sake; but I will rend it out of the hand of thy son. 13 Neither will I take away the whole kingdom, but I will give one tribe* to thy son for the sake of David my servant, and Jerusalem which I have chosen.

14 And the Lord raised up an adversary to Solomon, Adad the Edomite of the king's seed, in Edom. 15 y For when David was in Edom, and Joab the general of the army was gone up to bury them that were slain, and had killed every male in Edom 16 (for Joab remained there six months with all Israel, till he had slain every male in Edom), 17 then Adad fled, he and certain Edomites of his father's servants with him, to go into Egypt; and Adad was then a little boy. 18 And they arose out of Madian, and came into Pharan, and they took men with them from Pharan, and went into Egypt to Pharao the king of Egypt, who gave him a house, and appointed him victuals, and assigned him land. 19 And Adad found great favor before Pharao, insomuch that he gave him to wife the own sister of his wife Taphnes the queen. 20 And the sister of Taphnes bore him his son Genubath, and Taphnes brought him up in the house of Pharao; and Genubath dwelt with Pharao among his children. 21 And when Adad heard in Egypt that David slept with his fathers, and that Joab the general of the army was dead, he said to Pharao: Let me depart, that I may go to my own country. 22 And Pharao said to him: Why, what is wanting to thee with me, that thou seekest to go to thy own country? But he answered: Nothing: yet I beseech thee to let me go.

23 God also raised up against him an adversary, Razon the son of Eliada, [z] who had fled from his master Adarezer the king of Soba. 24 And he gathered men against him, and he became a captain of robbers when David slew them of Soba: and they went to Damascus, and dwelt there, and they made him king in Damascus. 25 And he was an adversary to Israel all the days of Solomon: and this is the evil of Adad, and his hatred against Israel, and he reigned in Syria.

26 [a] Jeroboam also the son of Nabat an Ephrathite of Sareda, a servant of Solomon, whose mother was named Sarva, a widow woman, lifted up his hand against the king. 27 And this is the cause of his rebellion against him, for Solomon built Mello, and filled up the breach of the city of David his father. 28 And Jeroboam was a valiant and mighty man: and Solomon seeing him a young man ingenious and industrious, made him chief over the tributes of all the house of Joseph. 29 [b] So it came to pass at that time that Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, and the prophet Ahias the Silonite, clad with a new garment, found him in the way: and they two were alone in the field. 30 And Ahias taking his new garment, wherewith he was clad, divided it into twelve parts, 31 and he said to Jeroboam: Take to thee ten pieces, for thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Behold I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give thee ten tribes. 32 But one tribe shall remain to him for the sake of my servant David, and Jerusalem the city, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, 33 because he hath forsaken me, and hath adored Astarthe the goddess of the Sidonians, and Chamos the god of Moab, and Moloch the god of the children of Ammon, and hath not walked in my ways, to do justice before me, and to keep my precepts, and judgments as did David his father. 34 Yet I will not take away all the kingdom out of his hand, but I will make him prince all the days of his life, for David my servant's sake, whom I chose who kept my commandments and my precepts. 35 But I will take away the kingdom out of his son's hand and will give thee ten tribes. 36 And to his son I will give one tribe, that there may remain a lamp for my servant David before me always in Jerusalem the city which I have chosen, that my name might be there. 37 And I will take thee, and thou shalt reign over all that thy soul desireth, and thou shalt be king over Israel. 38 If then thou wilt hearken to all that I shall command thee, and wilt walk in my ways, and do what is right before me, keeping my commandments and my precepts, as David my servant did, I will be with thee, and will build thee up a faithful house, as I built a house for David, and I will deliver Israel to thee. 39 And I will for this afflict the seed of David, but yet not forever. 40 Solomon therefore sought to kill Jeroboam, but he arose, and fled into Egypt to Sesac the king of Egypt, and was in Egypt till the death of Solomon.

Death of Solomon. 41 And the rest of the words of Solomon, and all that he did, and his wisdom: behold they are all written in the book of the words* of the days of Solomon.

42 And the days that Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel, were forty years. 43 And [c] Solomon slept* with his fathers, and was buried in the city of David his father, and Roboam his son reigned in his stead.

II: THE KINGDOMS OF JUDA AND ISRAEL

1. Roboam and Jeroboam

CHAPTER 12.

The Reign of Roboam. 1 And [d] Roboam went to Sichem, [e] for thither were all Israel come together to make him king. 2 But Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who was yet in Egypt, a fugitive from the face of king Solomon, hearing of his death, returned out of Egypt. 3 And they sent and called him, and Jeroboam came, and all the multitude of Israel, and they spoke to Roboam, saying: 4 Thy father laid a grievous yoke upon us. Now therefore do thou take off a little of the grievous service of thy father, and of his most heavy yoke, which he put upon us, and we will serve thee. 5 And he said to them: Go till the third day, and come to me again. And when the people was gone, 6 king Roboam took counsel with the old men, that stood before Solomon his father while he yet lived, and he said: What counsel do you give me, that I may answer this people? 7 They said to him: If thou wilt yield to this people today, and condescend to them, and grant their petition, and wilt speak gentle words to them, they will be thy servants always. 8 But he left the counsel of the old men, which they had given him, and consulted with the young men, that had been brought up with him, and stood before him. 9 And he said to them: What counsel do you give me, that I may answer this people, who have said to me: Make the yoke which thy father put upon us lighter? 10 And the young men that had been brought up with him, said: Thus shalt thou speak to this people, who have spoken to thee, saying: Thy father made our yoke heavy, do thou ease us. Thou shalt say to them: My little finger is thicker than the back of my father. 11 And now my father put a heavy yoke upon you, but I will add to your yoke; my father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions.

12 So Jeroboam and all the people came to Roboam the third day, as the king had appointed, saying: Come to me again the third day. 13 And the king answered the people roughly, leaving the counsel of the old men which they had given him, 14 and he spoke to them according to the counsel of the young men, saying: My father made your yoke heavy, but I will add to your yoke; my father beat you with whips, but I will beat you with scorpions. 15 And the king condescended not to the people, for the Lord was turned away from him, to make good his word, [f] which he had spoken in the hand of Ahias the Silonite to Jeroboam the son of Nabat.

16 Then the people seeing that the king would not hearken to them, answered him, saying: What portion have we in David? Or what inheritance in the son of Isai? Go home to thy dwellings, O Israel. Now, David, look to thy own house. So Israel departed to their dwellings.

17 But as for all the children of Israel that dwelt in the cities of Juda, Roboam reigned over them. 18 Then king Roboam sent Aduram, who was over the tribute; and all Israel stoned him, and he died. Wherefore king Roboam made haste to get him up into his chariot, and he fled to Jerusalem: 19 and Israel revolted from the house of David, unto this day.

20 And it came to pass when all Israel heard that Jeroboam was come again, that they gathered an assembly, and sent and called him, and made him king over all Israel, and there was none that followed the house of David but the tribe of Juda only.*

21 And Roboam came to Jerusalem, and gathered together all the house of Juda and the tribe of Benjamin, a hundred fourscore thousand chosen men for war, to fight against the house of Israel, and to bring the kingdom again under Roboam the son of Solomon. 22 [g] But the word of the Lord came to Semeias the man of God, saying: 23 Speak to Roboam the son of Solomon, the king of Juda, and to all the house of Juda, and Benjamin, and the rest of the people, saying: 24 Thus saith the Lord: You shall not go up nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel; let every man return to his house, for this thing is from me. They hearkened to the word of the Lord, and returned from their journey, as the Lord had commanded them.

12, 20: Juda only: Benjamin was a small tribe, and so intermixed with the tribe of Juda (the very city of Jerusalem being partly in Juda, partly in Benjamin), that they are here counted but as one tribe.

Jeroboam's Reign in Israel. 25 And Jeroboam built Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelt there, and going out from thence he built Phanuel.

26 And Jeroboam said in his heart: Now shall the kingdom return to the house of David, 27 if this people go up to offer sacrifices in the house of the Lord at Jerusalem; and the heart of this people will turn to their lord Roboam the king of Juda, and they will kill me, and return to him. 28 h And finding out a device he made two golden calves,* and said to them: Go ye up no more to Jerusalem. i Behold thy gods, O Israel, who brought thee out of the land of Egypt. 29 And he set the one in Bethel, and the other in Dan.* 30 And this thing became an occasion of sin, for the people went to adore the calf as far as Dan. 31 And he made temples in the high places, i and priests of the lowest of the people, who were not of the sons of Levi. 32 And he appointed a feast in the eighth month, on the fifteenth day of the month, after the manner of the feast that was celebrated in Juda. And going up to the altar, he did in like manner in Bethel, to sacrifice to the calves which he had made. And he placed in Bethel priests of the high places, which he had made.

33 And he went up to the altar, which he had built in Bethel, on the fifteenth day of the eighth month, which he had devised of his own heart; and he ordained a feast to the children of Israel, and went upon the altar to burn incense.

CHAPTER 13.

Birth of Josias Foretold. 1 And behold k there came a man of God out of Juda, by the word of the Lord to Bethel, when Jeroboam was standing upon the altar, and burning incense. 2 And he cried out against the altar in the word of the Lord, and said: O Altar, Altar, thus saith the Lord: l Behold a child shall be born to the house of David, Josias by name, and he shall immolate upon thee the priests of the high places, who now burn incense upon thee, and he shall burn men's bones upon thee. 3 And he gave a sign the same day, saying: This shall be the sign, that the Lord hath spoken: Behold the altar shall be rent, and the ashes that are upon it shall be poured out.

4 And when the king had heard the word of the man of God, which he had cried out against the altar in Bethel, he stretched forth his hand from the altar, saying: Lay hold on him. And his hand which he stretched forth against him withered: and he was not able to draw it back again to him. 5 The altar also was rent, and the ashes were poured out from the altar, according to the sign which the man of God had given before in the word of the Lord. 6 And the king said to the man of God: Entreat the face of the Lord thy God, and pray for me, that my hand may be restored to me. And the man of God besought the face of the Lord, and the king's hand was restored to him, and it became as it was before. 7 And the king said to the man of God: Come home with me to dine, and I will make thee presents. 8 And the man of God answered the king: If thou wouldst give me half thy house I will not go with thee, nor eat bread, nor drink water in this place; 9 for so it was enjoined me by the word of the Lord commanding me: Thou shalt not eat bread nor drink water, nor return by the same way that thou camest. 10 So he departed by another way, and returned not by the way that he came into Bethel.

11 Now a certain old prophet dwelt in Bethel, and his sons came to him and told him all the works that the man of God had done that day in Bethel; and they told their father the words which he had spoken to the king. 12 And their father said to them: What way went he? His sons showed him the way by which the man of God went, who came out of Juda. 13 And he said to his sons: Saddle me the ass. And when they had saddled him, he got up, 14 and went after the man of God, and found him sitting under a turpentine tree; and he said to him:

h Tb 1, 5.—i Ex 32, 8.—j 2 Par 11, 15.—k 932 B.C.—l 4 Kgs 23, 16.

12, 28: Golden calves: by making his gods in this form, he probably mimicked the Egyptians with whom he had sojourned. They worshiped Apis and their Osiris under the form of a bullock.

12, 29: Bethel and Dan: Bethel was a city of the tribe of Ephraim in the southern part of the dominions of Jeroboam, about six leagues from Jerusalem; Dan was in the extremity of his dominions to the north in the confines of Syria.

Art thou the man of God that camest from Juda? He answered: I am. 15 And he said to him: Come home with me, to eat bread. 16 But he said: I cannot return, nor go with thee, neither will I eat bread, nor drink water in this place, 17 because the Lord spoke to me in the word of the Lord, saying: Thou shalt not eat bread, and thou shalt not drink water there, nor return by the way thou wentest. 18 He said to him: I also am a prophet like unto thee, and an angel spoke to me* in the word of the Lord, saying: Bring him back with thee into thy house, that he may eat bread, and drink water. He deceived him, 19 and brought him back with him; so he ate bread and drank water in his house.

Chastisement for the Disobedience of the Prophet. 20 And as they sat at table, the word of the Lord came to the prophet that brought him back; 21 and he cried out to the man of God who came out of Juda, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Because thou hast not been obedient to the Lord, and hast not kept the commandment which the Lord thy God commanded thee, 22 and hast returned and eaten bread, and drunk water in the place wherein he commanded thee that thou shouldst not eat bread, nor drink water, thy dead body shall not be brought into the sepulchre of thy fathers.

23 And when he had eaten and drunk, he saddled his ass for the prophet, whom he had brought back. 24 And when he was gone, a lion found him in the way, and killed him,* and his body was cast in the way. And the ass stood by him, and the lion stood by the dead body. 25 And behold, men passing by saw the dead body cast in the way, and the lion standing by the body. And they came and told it in the city, wherein that old prophet dwelt. 26 And when that prophet, who had brought him back out of the way, heard of it, he said: It is the man of God, that was disobedient to the mouth of the Lord, and the Lord hath delivered him to the lion, and he hath torn him, and killed him according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke to him. 27 And he said to his sons: Saddle me an ass. And when they had saddled it, 28 and he was gone, he found the dead body cast in the way, and the ass and the lion standing by the carcass: the lion had not eaten of the dead body, nor hurt the ass. 29 And the prophet took up the body of the man of God, and laid it upon the ass, and going back brought it into the city of the old prophet, to mourn for him. 30 And he laid his dead body in his own sepulchre. And they mourned over him, saying: Alas! Alas! My brother! 31 And when they had mourned over him, he said to his sons: When I am dead, bury me in the sepulchre wherein the man of God is buried, lay my bones beside his bones. 32 For assuredly the word shall come to pass which he hath foretold in the word of the Lord against the altar that is in Bethel, and against all the temples of the high places, that are in the cities of Samaria.

33 After these words Jeroboam came not back from his wicked way; but on the contrary he made of the meanest of the people priests of the high places; whosoever would, he filled his hand, and he was made a priest of the high places. 34 And for this cause did the house of Jeroboam sin, and was cut off and destroyed from the face of the earth.

CHAPTER 14.

Ahias and the Son of Jeroboam. 1 At that time Abia, the son of Jeroboam fell sick. 2 And Jeroboam said to his wife: Arise, and change thy dress, that thou be not known to be the wife of Jeroboam, and go to Silo, where Ahias the prophet is, [m] who told me that I should reign over this people. 3 Take also with thee ten loaves, and cracknels, and a pot of honey, and go to him, for he will tell thee what shall become of this child. 4 Jeroboam's wife did as he told her; and rising up went to Silo, and came to the house of Ahias; but he could not see, for his eyes were dim by reason of his age.

5 And the Lord said to Ahias: Behold the wife of Jeroboam cometh in, to consult thee concerning her son that is sick. Thus and thus shalt thou speak to her.

m 3 Kgs 11, 31.

13, 18: An angel spoke to me, etc.: this old man of Bethel was indeed a prophet, but he sinned in thus deceiving the man of God; the more because he pretended a revelation for what he did.

13, 24: Killed him: thus the Lord often punishes his servants here, that he may spare them hereafter. Most commentators think that the sin of this prophet, considered with all its circumstances, was not mortal.

So when she was coming in, and made as if she were another woman, 6 Ahias heard the sound of her feet coming in at the door, and said: Come in, thou wife of Jeroboam. Why dost thou feign thyself to be another? But I am sent to thee with heavy tidings. 7 Go, and tell Jeroboam: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Forasmuch as I exalted thee from among the people, and made thee prince over my people Israel; 8 and rent the kingdom away from the house of David, and gave it to thee, and thou hast not been as my servant David, who kept my commandments, and followed me with all his heart, doing that which was well pleasing in my sight; 9 but hast done evil above all that were before thee, and hast made thee strange gods and molten gods to provoke me to anger, and hast cast me behind thy back; 10 therefore behold I will bring evils upon the house of Jeroboam, and n will cut off from Jeroboam him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in Israel. And I will sweep away the remnant of the house of Jeroboam, as dung is swept away till all be clean. 11 Them that shall die of Jeroboam in the city, the dogs shall eat; and them that shall die in the field, the birds of the air shall devour, for the Lord hath spoken it. 12 Arise thou therefore, and go to thy house; and when thy feet shall be entering into the city, the child shall die, 13 and all Israel shall mourn for him, and shall bury him, for he only of Jeroboam shall be laid in a sepulchre, because in his regard there is found a good word from the Lord the God of Israel, in the house of Jeroboam. 14 And the Lord hath appointed himself a king over Israel, who shall cut off the house of Jeroboam in this day, and in this time. 15 And the Lord God shall strike Israel as a reed is shaken in the water; and he shall root up Israel out of this good land, which he gave to their fathers, and shall scatter them beyond the river, because they have made to themselves groves to provoke the Lord. 16 And the Lord shall give up Israel for the sins of Jeroboam, who hath sinned, and made Israel to sin.

17 And the wife of Jeroboam arose, and departed, and came to Thersa. And when she was coming in to the threshold of the house, the child died. 18 And they buried him, and all Israel mourned for him according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of his servant Ahias the prophet.

The End of Jeroboam's Reign. 19 And the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, how he fought, and how he reigned, behold they are written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel.*

20 And the days that Jeroboam reigned were two and twenty years. And he slept with his fathers; and Nadab his son reigned in his stead.

21 o And Roboam the son of Solomon reigned in Juda: Roboam was one and forty years old when he began to reign: and he reigned seventeen years in Jerusalem, the city which the Lord chose out of all the tribes of Israel to put his name there. And his mother's name was Naama an Ammonitess. 22 And Juda did evil in the sight of the Lord, and provoked him above all that their fathers had done, in their sins which they committed. 23 For they also built them altars, and statues, and groves upon every high hill and under every green tree. 24 There were also the effeminate* in the land, and they did according to all the abominations of the people whom the Lord had destroyed before the face of the children of Israel.

25 p And in the fifth year of the reign of Roboam, Sesac king of Egypt came up against Jerusalem. 26 And he took away the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the king's treasures, and carried all off; as also the shields of gold which q Solomon had made. 27 And Roboam made shields of brass instead of them, and delivered them into the hand of the captains of the shieldbearers, and of them that kept watch before the gate of the king's house. 28 And when the king went into the house of the Lord, they whose office it was to go before him, carried them; and afterwards they brought them back to the armory of the shieldbearers.

29 Now the rest of the acts of Roboam, and all that he did, behold they are written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda. 30 And there was war between Roboam and Jeroboam always. 31 And Roboam slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David. And his mother's name was Naama an Ammonitess; and Abiam his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 15.

Reign of Abiam. 1 Now [r] in the eighteenth year of the reign of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, Abiam reigned over Juda. 2 He reigned three years in Jerusalem. [s] The name of his mother was Maacha* the daughter of Abessalom. 3 And he walked in all the sins of his father, which he had done before him. And his heart was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the heart of David his father. 4 But for David's sake the Lord his God gave him a lamp in Jerusalem, to set up his son after him, and to establish Jerusalem, 5 because David had done that which was right in the eyes of the Lord, and had not turned aside from anything that he commanded him, all the days of his life, [t] except the matter of Urias the Hethite. 6 But there was war between Roboam and Jeroboam all the time of his life.

7 And the rest of the words of Abiam, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? [u] And there was war between Abiam and Jeroboam. 8 And Abiam slept with his fathers, and they buried him in the city of David, [v] and Asa his son reigned in his stead.

Reign of Asa. 9 So in the [w] twentieth year of Jeroboam king of Israel, reigned Asa king of Judea, 10 and he reigned one and forty years in Jerusalem. His mother's* name was Maacha, the daughter of Abessalom.

15, 2: Maacha, etc.: she is called elsewhere Michaia, daughter of Uriel; but it was common in those days for the same person to have two names.

15, 10: His mother's, etc.: i.e., his grandmother; unless we suppose, which is not improbable, that the Maacha here named is different from the Maacha mentioned in v 2.

15, 14: The high places: some were set up, and dedicated to the worship of idols, or strange gods; and these Asa removed, 2 Par 14, 2; others were only altars of the true God, but were erected contrary to the law, which allowed of no sacrifices but in the temple. These were not removed by Asa. Perfect with the Lord: never forsook the worship of the Lord.

11 And Asa did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, as did David his father. 12 And he took away the effeminate out of the land, and he removed all the filth of the idols, which his fathers had made. 13 Moreover he also removed his mother Maacha from being the princess in the sacrifices of Priapus, and in the grove which she had consecrated to him. And he destroyed her den, and broke in pieces the filthy idol, and burnt it by the torrent Cedron; 14 but the high places* he did not take away. Nevertheless the heart of Asa was perfect with the Lord all his days. 15 And he brought in the things which his father had dedicated and he had vowed into the house of the Lord, silver and gold, and vessels.

16 And there was war between Asa and Baasa king of Israel all their days. 17 [x] And Baasa king of Israel went up against Juda, and built Rama, that no man might go out or come in, of the side of Asa king of Juda. 18 Then Asa took all the silver and gold that remained in the treasures of the house of the Lord, and in the treasures of the king's house, and delivered it into the hands of his servants and sent them to Benadad son of Tabremon the son of Hezion, king of Syria, who dwelt in Damascus, saying: 19 There is a league between me and thee, and between my father and thy father. Therefore I have sent thee presents of silver and gold; and I desire thee to come, and break thy league with Baasa king of Israel, that he may depart from me. 20 Benadad hearkening to king Asa, sent the captains of his army against the cities of Israel, and they smote Ahion, and Dan, and Abeldomum Maacha, and all Cenneroth, that is all the land of Nephtali. 21 And when Baasa had heard this, he left off building Rama, and returned into Thersa. 22 But king Asa sent word into all Juda, saying: Let no man be excused. And they took away the stones from Rama, and the timber thereof wherewith Baasa had been building, and with them king Asa built Gabaa of Benjamin, and Maspha.

23 But the rest of all the acts of Asa, and all his strength, and all that he did, and the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? But in the time of his old age he was diseased in his feet. 24 And he slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David his father. [y] And Josaphat his son reigned in his place.

Reign of Nadab and Baasa. 25 But Nadab the son of Jeroboam reigned over Israel the second year [z] of Asa king of Juda: and he reigned over Israel two years. 26 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the ways of his father, and in his sins, wherewith he made Israel to sin. 27 And Baasa the son of Ahias of the house of Issachar conspired against him, and slew him in Gebbethon, which is a city of the Philistines, for Nadab and all Israel besieged Gebbethon. 28 So Baasa slew him in the third year [a] of Asa king of Juda, and reigned in his place. 29 [b] And when he was king, he cut off all the house of Jeroboam: he left not so much as one soul of his seed, till he had utterly destroyed him, according to the word of the Lord, [c] which he had spoken in the hand of Ahias the Silonite, 30 because of the sin of Jeroboam, which he had sinned, and wherewith he had made Israel to sin, and for the offense, wherewith he provoked the Lord the God of Israel.

31 But the rest of the acts of Nadab, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 32 And there was war between Asa and Baasa the king of Israel all their days.

33 In the third year [d] of Asa king of Juda, Baasa the son of Ahias reigned over all Israel, in Thersa, four and twenty years. 34 And he did evil before the Lord, and walked in the ways of Jeroboam, and in his sins, wherewith he made Israel to sin.

CHAPTER 16.

Jehu Prophesies against Baasa. 1 Then the word of the Lord came to Jehu the son of Hanani against Baasa, saying: 2 Forasmuch as I have exalted thee out of the dust, and made thee prince over my people Israel, and thou hast walked in the way of Jeroboam, and hast made my people Israel to sin, to provoke me to anger with their sins: 3 behold, I will cut down the posterity of Baasa, and the posterity of his house, and I will make thy house as the house of Jeroboam the son of Nabat. 4 [e] Him that dieth of Baasa in the city, the dogs shall eat; and him that dieth of his in the country, the fowls of the air shall devour.

5 [f] But the rest of the acts of Baasa, and all that he did, and his battles, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 6 So Baasa slept with his fathers, and was buried in Thersa; and Ela his son reigned in his stead.

7 And when the word of the Lord came in the hand of Jehu the son of Hanani the prophet, against Baasa, and against his house, and against all the evil that he had done before the Lord, to provoke him to anger by the works of his hands, to become as the house of Jeroboam, for this cause he slew him, that is to say, Jehu the son of Hanani, the prophet.

Reign of Ela and Zambri. 8 In the [g] six and twentieth year of Asa king of Juda, Ela the son of Baasa reigned over Israel in Thersa two years. 9 And his servant Zambri, who was captain of half the horsemen, rebelled against him. Now Ela was drinking in Thersa, and drunk in the house of Arsa the governor of Thersa. 10 [h] And Zambri rushing in, struck him and slew him in the seven and twentieth year of Asa king of Juda, and he reigned in his stead. 11 And when he was king and sat upon his throne, he slew all the house of Baasa, and he left not one thereof to piss against a wall, and all his kinsfolks and friends. 12 And Zambri destroyed all the house of Baasa, according to the word of the Lord, that he had spoken to Baasa in the hand of Jehu the prophet, 13 for all the sins of Baasa, and the sins of Ela his son, who sinned, and made Israel to sin, provoking the Lord the God of Israel with their vanities.

14 But the rest of the acts of Ela, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

15 In the seven and twentieth year [i] of Asa king of Juda, Zambri reigned seven days in Thersa. Now the army was besieging Gebbethon, a city of the Philistines. 16 And when they heard that Zam-

bri had rebelled, and slain the king, all Israel made Amri their king, who was general over Israel in the camp that day. 17 And Amri went up, and all Israel with him from Gebbethon, and they besieged Thersa. 18 And Zambri seeing that the city was about to be taken, went into the palace and burnt himself with the king's house: and he died 19 in his sins, which he had sinned, doing evil before the Lord, and walking in the way of Jeroboam, and in his sin, wherewith he made Israel to sin.

20 But the rest of the acts of Zambri, and of his conspiracy and tyranny, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

21 Then were the people of Israel divided into two parts: one half of the people followed Thebni the son of Gineth, to make him king, and one half followed Amri. 22 But the people that were with Amri, prevailed over the people that followed Thebni the son of Gineth. And Thebni died, and Amri reigned.

Reign of Amri and Achab. 23 In the one and thirtieth year* i of Asa king of Juda, Amri reigned over Israel twelve years. In Thersa he reigned six years. 24 And he bought the hill of Samaria of Somer for two talents of silver: and he built upon it, and he called the city which he built Samaria, after the name of Somer the owner of the hill. 25 And Amri did evil in the sight of the Lord, and acted wickedly above all that were before him. 26 And he walked in all the way of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, and in his sins wherewith he made Israel to sin: to provoke the Lord the God of Israel to anger with their vanities.*

27 Now the rest of the acts of Amri, and the battles he fought, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 28 And k Amri slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, and Achab his son reigned in his stead.

29 Now Achab the son of Amri reigned over Israel in the eight and thirtieth year of Asa king of Juda. And Achab the son of Amri reigned over Israel in Samaria two and twenty years. 30 And Achab the son of Amri did evil in the sight of the Lord above all that were before him. 31 Nor was it enough for him to walk in the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat; but he also took to wife Jezabel daughter of Ethbaal king of the Sidonians. And he went, and served Baal, and adored him. 32 And he set up an altar for Baal in the temple of Baal, which he had built in Samaria. 33 And he planted a grove. And Achab did more to provoke the Lord the God of Israel, than all the kings of Israel that were before him.

34 In his days Hiel of Bethel built Jericho; in Abiram his firstborn he laid its foundations; and in his youngest son Segub he set up the gates thereof, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke in the hand of Josue the son of l Nun.

CHAPTER 17.

The Great Prophet Elias. 1 And m Elias the Thesbite of the inhabitants of Galaad said to Achab: As the Lord liveth the God of Israel, in whose sight I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to the words of my mouth.

2 And the word of the Lord came to him, saying: 3 Get thee hence, and go towards the east and hide thyself by the torrent of Carith, which is over against the Jordan, 4 and there thou shalt drink of the torrent; and I have commanded the ravens to feed thee there. 5 So he went, and did according to the word of the Lord: and going, he dwelt by the torrent Carith, which is over against the Jordan. 6 And the ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning, and bread and flesh in the evening, and he drank of the torrent.

7 But after some time the torrent was dried up, for it had not rained upon the earth. 8 Then the word of the Lord came to him, saying: 9 Arise, and go to Sarephta of the Sidonians,* and dwell there, for I have commanded a widow woman there to feed thee. 10 n He arose, and went to Sarephta. And when he was come to the gate of the city, he saw the widow woman gathering sticks, and he called her, and said to her: Give me a little water in a vessel, that I may drink. And when she was going to fetch it he called after her, saying: Bring me also, I beseech thee, a morsel of bread in thy hand. 12 And she answered: As the Lord thy God liveth, I have no bread, but only a handful of meal in a pot, and a little oil in a cruse. Behold I am gathering two sticks that I may go in and dress it for me and my son, that we may eat it, and die. 13 And Elias said to her: Fear not, but go, and do as thou hast said; but first make for me of the same meal a little hearth cake, and bring it to me; and after make for thyself and thy son. 14 For thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: The pot of meal shall not waste, nor the cruse of oil be diminished, until the day wherein the Lord will give rain upon the face of the earth. 15 She went and did according to the word of Elias; and he ate, and she, and her house; and from that day 16 the pot of meal wasted not, and the cruse of oil was not diminished, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke in the hand of Elias.

He Raises the Widow's Son to Life. 17 And it came to pass after this that the son of the woman, the mistress of the house, fell sick, and the sickness was very grievous, so that there was no breath left in him. 18 And she said to Elias: What have I to do with thee, thou man of God? Art thou come to me that my iniquities should be remembered, and that thou shouldst kill my son? 19 And Elias said to her: Give me thy son. And he took him out of her bosom, and carried him into the upper chamber where he abode, and laid him upon his own bed. 20 And he cried to the Lord, and said: O Lord my God, hast thou afflicted also the widow, with whom I am after a sort maintained, so as to kill her son? 21 And he stretched, and measured himself upon the child three times, and cried to the Lord, and said: O Lord my God, let the soul of this child, I beseech thee, return into his body. 22 And the Lord heard the voice of Elias: and the soul of the child returned into him, and he revived. 23 And Elias took the child, and brought him down from the upper chamber to the house below, and delivered him to his mother, and said to her: Behold thy son liveth. 24 And the woman said to Elias: Now, by this I know that thou art a man of God, and the word of the Lord in thy mouth is true.

CHAPTER 18.

Elias Comes before Achab. 1 After many days the word of the Lord came to Elias, in the third year, saying: Go and show thyself to Achab, that I may give rain upon the face of the earth. 2 And Elias went to show himself to Achab, and there was a grievous famine in Samaria.

3 And Achab called Abdias the governor of his house. Now Abdias feared the Lord very much, 4 for when Jezabel killed the prophets of the Lord, he took a hundred prophets and hid them by fifty and fifty in caves, and fed them with bread and water. 5 And Achab said to Abdias: Go into the land unto all fountains of waters, and into all valleys, to see if we can find grass, and save the horses and mules, that the beasts may not utterly perish. 6 And they divided the countries between them, that they might go round about them: Achab went one way, and Abdias another way by himself.

7 And as Abdias was in the way, Elias met him; and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said: Art thou my lord Elias? 8 And he answered: I am. Go, and tell thy master: Elias is here. 9 And he said: What have I sinned, that thou wouldst deliver me thy servant into the hands of Achab, that he should kill me? 10 As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee. And when all answered: He is not here; he took an oath of every kingdom and nation, because thou wast not found. 11 And now thou sayest to me: Go, and tell thy master: Elias is here. 12 And when I am gone from thee, the spirit of the Lord will carry thee into a place that I know not. And I shall go in and tell Achab, and he not finding thee, will kill me; but thy servant feareth the Lord from his infancy. 13 Hath it not been told thee, my lord, what I did when Jezabel killed the prophets of the Lord, how I hid a hundred men of the prophets of the Lord, by fifty and fifty in caves, and fed them with bread and water? 14 And now thou sayest: Go, and tell thy master: Elias is here, that he may kill me. 15 And Elias said: As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whose face I stand, this day I will show myself unto him.

16 Abdias therefore went to meet Achab, and told him; and Achab came to meet Elias. 17 And when he had seen him, he said: Art thou he that troublest Israel? 18 And he said: I have not troubled Israel, but thou and thy father's house, who have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and have followed Baalim. 19 Nevertheless send now, and gather unto me all Israel, unto mount Carmel, and the prophets of Baal four hundred and fifty, and the prophets of the groves four hundred, who eat at Jezabel's table.

20 Achab sent to all the children of Israel, and gathered together the prophets unto mount Carmel. 21 And Elias coming to all the people, said: How long do you halt between two sides? If the Lord be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him. And the people did not answer him a word. 22 And Elias said again to the people: I only remain a prophet of the Lord; but the prophets of Baal are four hundred and fifty men. 23 Let two bullocks be given us, and let them choose one bullock for themselves, and cut it in pieces and lay it upon wood, but put no fire under; and I will dress the other bullock, and lay it on wood, and put no fire under it. 24 Call ye on the names of your gods, and I will call on the name of my Lord; and the God that shall answer by fire, let him be God. And all the people answering said: A very good proposal.

25 Then Elias said to the prophets of Baal: Choose you one bullock and dress it first, because you are many; and call on the names of your gods, but put no fire under. 26 And they took the bullock which he gave them, and dressed it; and they called on the name of Baal from morning even till noon, saying: O Baal, hear us. But there was no voice, nor any that answered; and they leaped over the altar that they had made. 27 And when it was now noon, Elias jested at them, saying: Cry with a louder voice, for he is a god, and perhaps he is talking, or is in an inn, or on a journey, or perhaps he is asleep, and must be awaked. 28 So they cried with a loud voice, and cut themselves after their manner with knives and lancets, till they were all covered with blood.

Elias Repairs the Altar. 29 And after midday was past, and while they were prophesying, the time was come of offering sacrifice, and there was no voice heard, nor did anyone answer, nor regard them as they prayed. 30 Elias said to all the people: Come ye unto me. And the people coming near unto him, he repaired the altar of the Lord, that was broken down. 31 And he took twelve stones according to the number of the tribes of the sons of Jacob, to whom the word of the Lord came, saying: o Israel shall be thy name. 32 And he built with the stones an altar to the name of the Lord; and he made a trench for water, of the breadth of two furrows round about the altar. 33 And he laid the wood in order, and cut the bullock in pieces, and laid it upon the wood. 34 And he said: Fill four buckets with water, and pour it upon the burnt offering, and upon the wood. And again he said: Do the same the second time. And when they had done it the second time, he said: Do the same also the third time. And they did so the third time. 35 And the water ran round about the altar, and the trench was filled with water.

36 And when it was now time to offer the holocaust, Elias the prophet came near and said: O Lord God of Abraham, and Isaac, and Israel, show this day that thou art the God of Israel, and I thy servant, and that according to thy commandment, I have done all these things. 37 Hear me, O Lord, hear me, that this people may learn that thou art the Lord God, and that thou hast turned their heart again. 38 Then the fire of the Lord fell, and consumed the holocaust, and the wood, and the stones, and the dust, and licked up the water that was in the trench. 39 And when all the people saw this, they fell on their faces, and they said: The Lord he is God, the Lord he is God. 40 And Elias said to them: Take the prophets of Baal, and let not one of them escape. And when they had taken them, Elias brought them down to the torrent Cison, and killed them there.

41 And Elias said to Achab: Go up, eat, and drink, for there is a sound of abundance of rain. 42 Achab went up to eat and drink. And Elias went up to the top of Carmel, and casting himself down upon the earth put his face between his knees, 43 and he said to his servant: Go up, and look towards the sea. And he went up, and looked, and said: There is nothing. And again he said to him: Return seven times. 44 And at the seventh time, behold, a little cloud arose out of the sea like a man's foot. And he said: Go up and say to Achab: Prepare thy chariot and go down, lest the rain prevent thee. 45 And while he turned himself this way and that way, behold the heavens grew dark, with clouds, and wind, and there fell a great rain. And Achab getting up went away to Jezrahel. 46 And the hand of the Lord was upon Elias, and he girded up his loins and ran before Achab, till he came to Jezrahel.

CHAPTER 19.

Elias Pursued by Jesabel. 1 And Achab told Jezabel all that Elias had done, and how he had slain all the prophets with the sword. 2 And Jezabel sent a messenger to Elias, saying: Such and such things may the gods do to me, and add still more, if by this hour tomorrow I make not thy life as the life of one of them. 3 Then Elias was afraid, and rising up he went whithersoever he had a mind: and he came to Bersabee of Juda, and left his servant there, 4 and he went forward one day's journey into the desert. And when he was there, and sat under a juniper tree, he requested for his soul that he might die,* and said: It is enough for me, Lord. Take away my soul, for I am no better than my fathers. 5 And he cast himself down, and slept in the shadow of the juniper tree and behold an angel of the Lord touched him, and said to him: Arise and eat. 6 He looked, and behold there was at his head a hearth cake and a vessel of water; and he ate and drank, and he fell asleep again. 7 And the angel of the Lord came again the second time, and touched him, and said to him: Arise, eat, for thou hast yet a great way to go. 8 And he arose, and ate and drank, and walked in the strength of that food* forty days and forty nights, unto the mount of God, Horeb.

A Vision from God. 9 And when he was come thither, he abode in a cave, and behold the word of the Lord came unto him, and he said to him: What dost thou here, Elias? 10 And he answered: With zeal have I been zealous for the Lord God of hosts, for the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant. They have thrown down thy altars, they have slain thy prophets with the sword, and I alone am left,* and they seek my life to take it away. 11 And he said to him: Go forth, and stand upon the mount before the Lord; and behold the Lord passeth, and a great and strong wind before the Lord overthrowing the mountains, and breaking the rocks in pieces; the Lord is not in the wind, and after the wind an earthquake; the Lord is not in the earthquake. 12 And after the earthquake a fire; the Lord is not in the fire, and after the fire a whistling of a gentle air. 13 And when Elias heard it, he covered his face with his mantle, and coming forth stood at the entering in of the cave, and behold a voice unto him, saying: What dost thou here, Elias? And he answered: 14 With zeal have I been zealous for the Lord God of hosts, [p] because the children of Israel have forsaken thy covenant. They have destroyed thy altars, they have slain thy prophets with the sword, and I alone am left, and they seek my life to take it away. 15 And the Lord said to him: Go, and return on thy way through the desert to Damascus; and when thou art come thither, thou shalt anoint Hazael to be king over Syria. 16 [q] And thou shalt anoint Jehu the son of Namsi to 19, 4: That he might die: Elias requested to die, not out of impatience or pusillanimity, but out of zeal against sin; and that he might no longer be witness of the miseries of his people, and the war they were waging against God and his servants. See v 10.

19, 8: In the strength of that food: this bread with which Elias was fed in the wilderness was a figure of the bread of life which we receive in the Blessed Sacrament, by the strength of which we are to be supported in our journey through the wilderness of this world till we come to the true mountain of God, and his vision in a happy eternity.

19, 10: I alone am left: i.e., of the prophets in the kingdom of Israel, or of the ten tribes; for in the kingdom of Juda, religion was at that time in a very flourishing condition under the kings Asa and Josaphat. And even in Israel there remained several prophets, though not then known to Elias. See 3 Kgs 20, 13. 28. 35.

be king over Israel; and Eliseus the son of Saphat, of Abelmeula, thou shalt anoint to be prophet in thy room. 17 And it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall escape the sword of Hazael, shall be slain by Jehu; and whosoever shall escape the sword of Jehu, shall be slain by Eliseus.* 18 r And I will leave me seven thousand men in Israel, whose knees have not been bowed before Baal, and every mouth that hath not worshiped him kissing the hands.

19 And Elias departing from thence, found Eliseus the son of Saphat, ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen: and he was one of them that were ploughing with twelve yoke of oxen. And when Elias came up to him, he cast his mantle upon him. 20 And he forthwith left the oxen and ran after Elias, and said: Let me, I pray thee, kiss my father and my mother, and then I will follow thee. And he said to him: Go, and return back, for that which was my part, I have done to thee. 21 And returning back from him, he took a yoke of oxen, and killed them, and boiled the flesh with the plough of the oxen, and gave to the people, and they ate. And rising up he went away, and followed Elias, and ministered to him.

CHAPTER 20.

The Syrians Besiege Samaria. 1 And Benadad, king of Syria, gathered together all his host, and there were two and thirty kings with him, and horses and chariots: and going up, he fought against Samaria, and besieged it. 2 And, sending messengers to Achab king of Israel into the city, 3 he said: Thus saith Benadad: Thy silver, and thy gold is mine, and thy wives, and thy goodliest children are mine. 4 And the king of Israel answered: According to thy word, my lord O king, I am thine, and all that I have. 5 And the messengers came again, and said: Thus saith Benadad, who sent us unto thee: Thy silver, and thy gold, and thy wives, and thy children thou shalt deliver up to me. 6 Tomorrow therefore at this same hour I will send my servants to thee, and they shall search thy house, and the houses of thy servants: and all that pleaseth them, they shall put in their hands, and take away.

7 And the king of Israel called all the ancients of the land, and said: Mark, and see that he layeth snares for us. For he sent to me for my wives, and for my children, and for my silver and gold, and I said not nay. 8 And all the ancients, and all the people said to him: Hearken not to him, nor consent to him. 9 Wherefore he answered the messengers of Benadad: Tell my lord the king: All that thou didst send for to me thy servant at first, I will do, but this thing I cannot do. 10 And the messengers returning brought him word. And he sent again and said: Such and such things may the gods do to me, and more may they add, if the dust of Samaria shall suffice for handfuls for all the people that follow me. 11 And the king of Israel answering, said: Tell him. Let not the girded* boast himself as the ungirded. 12 And it came to pass, when Benadad heard this word, that he and the kings were drinking in pavilions, and he said to his servants: Beset the city. And they beset it.

13 And behold a prophet coming to Achab king of Israel, said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Hast thou seen all this exceeding great multitude, behold I will deliver them into thy hand this day, that thou mayest know that I am the Lord. 14 And Achab said: By whom? And he said to him: Thus saith the Lord: By the servants of the princes of the provinces. And he said: Who shall begin to fight? And he said: Thou. 15 So he mustered the servants of the princes of the provinces, and he found the number of two hundred and thirty-two; and he mustered after them the people, all the children of Israel, seven thousand. 16 And they went out at noon. But Benadad was drinking himself drunk in his pavilion, and the two and thirty kings with him, who were come to help him. 17 And the servants of the princes of the provinces went out first. And Benadad sent messengers who told him, saying: There are men come out of Samaria. 18 And he said: Whether they come for peace, take them alive; or whether they come to fight, take them alive. 19 So the servants of the princes of the provinces went out, and the rest of the army followed. 20 And every one slew the man that came against him; and the Syrians fled, and Israel pursued after them. And Benadad king of Syria fled away on horseback with his horsemen. 21 But the king of Israel going out overthrew the horses and chariots, and slew the Syrians with a great slaughter. 22 (And a prophet coming to the king of Israel, said to him: Go, and strengthen thyself, and know, and see what thou dost, for the next year the king of Syria will come up against thee.)

19, 17: Shall be slain by Eliseus: Eliseus did not kill any of the idolaters with the material sword; but he is here joined with Hazael and Jehu, the great instruments of God in punishing the idolatry of Israel because he foretold to the former his exaltation to the kingdom of Syria, and the vengeance he would execute against Israel, and anointed the latter by one of his disciples to be king of Israel with commission to extirpate the house of Achab.

23 But the servants of the king of Syria said to him: Their gods are gods of the hills, therefore they have overcome us; but it is better that we should fight against them in the plains, and we shall overcome them. 24 Do thou therefore this thing: Remove all the kings from thy army, and put captains in their stead; 25 and make up the number of soldiers that have been slain of thine, and horses according to the former horses, and chariots according to the chariots which thou hadst before, and we will fight against them in the plains, and thou shalt see that we shall overcome them. He believed their counsel and did so. 26 Wherefore at the return of the year, Benadad mustered the Syrians, and went up to Aphec, to fight against Israel. 27 And the children of Israel were mustered, and taking victuals went out on the other side, and camped over against them, like two little flocks of goats, but the Syrians filled the land.

Syrians Defeated. 28 (And a man of God coming, said to the king of Israel: Thus saith the Lord: Because the Syrians have said: The Lord is God of the hills, but is not God of the valleys: I will deliver all this great multitude into thy hand, and you shall know that I am the Lord.) 29 And both sides set their armies in array one against the other seven days, and on the seventh day the battle was fought: and the children of Israel slew of the Syrians a hundred thousand footmen in one day. 30 And they that remained fled to Aphec, into the city; and the wall fell upon seven and twenty thousand men, that were left. And Benadad fleeing went into the city, into a chamber that was within a chamber. 31 And his servants said to him: Behold, we have heard that the kings of the house of Israel are merciful; so let us put sackcloth on our loins, and ropes on our heads, and go out to the king of Israel; perhaps he will save our lives.

32 So they girded sackcloth on their loins, and put ropes on their heads, and came to the king of Israel, and said to him: Thy servant Benadad saith: I beseech thee let me have my life. And he said: If he be yet alive, he is my brother. 33 The men took this for a sign, and in haste caught the word out of his mouth, and said: Thy brother Benadad. And he said to them: Go, and bring him to me. Then Benadad came out to him, and he lifted him up into his chariot. 34 And he said to him: The cities which my father took from thy father, I will restore; and do thou make thee streets in Damascus, as my father made in Samaria, and having made a league I will depart from thee. So he made a league with him, and let him go.

35 Then a certain man of the sons of the prophets said to his companion in the word of the Lord: Strike me. But he would not strike. 36 Then he said to him: Because thou wouldst not hearken to the word of the Lord, behold thou shalt depart from me, and a lion shall slay thee. And when he was gone a little from him, a lion found him, and slew him. 37 Then he found another man, and said to him: Strike me. And he struck him, and wounded him. 38 So the prophet went, and met the king in the way, and disguised himself by sprinkling dust on his face and his eyes. 39 And as the king passed by, he cried to the king, and said: Thy servant went out to fight hand to hand; and when a certain man was run away, one brought him to me, and said: Keep this man; and if he shall slip away, thy life shall be for his life, or thou shalt pay a talent of silver. 40 And whilst I in a hurry turned this way and that, on a sudden he was not to be seen. And the king of Israel said to him: This is thy judgment, which thyself hast decreed. 41 But he forthwith wiped off the dust from his face, and the king of Israel knew him, that he was one of the prophets. 42 And he said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Because thou hast let go out of thy hand a man worthy of death, thy life shall be for his life, and thy people for his people. 43 And the king of Israel returned to his house slighting to hear, and raging came into Samaria.

CHAPTER 21.

The Vineyard of Naboth. 1 And after these things, Naboth the Jezrahelite, who was in Jezrahel, had at that time a vineyard near the palace of Achab king of Samaria. 2 And Achab spoke to Naboth, saying: Give me thy vineyard, that I may make me a garden of herbs, because it is near, and adjoining to my house, and I will give thee for it a better vineyard; or if thou think it more convenient for thee, I will give thee the worth of it in money. 3 Naboth answered him: The Lord be merciful to me, and not let me give thee the inheritance of my fathers. 4 And Achab came into his house angry and fretting, because of the word that Naboth the Jezrahelite had spoken to him, saying: I will not give thee the inheritance of my fathers. And casting himself upon his bed, he turned away his face to the wall, and would eat no bread.

5 And Jezabel his wife went in to him, and said to him: What is the matter that thy soul is so grieved? And why eatest thou no bread? 6 And he answered her: I spoke to Naboth the Jezrahelite, and said to him: Give me thy vineyard, and take money for it; or if it please thee, I will give thee a better vineyard for it. And he said: I will not give thee my vineyard. 7 Then Jezabel his wife said to him: Thou art of great authority indeed, and governest well the kingdom of Israel. Arise, and eat bread, and be of good cheer, I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth the Jezrahelite. 8 So she wrote letters in Achab's name, and sealed them with his ring; and sent them to the ancients, and the chief men that were in his city, and that dwelt with Naboth. 9 And this was the tenor of the letters: Proclaim a fast, and make Naboth sit among the chief of the people, 10 and suborn two men, sons of Belial, against him, and let them bear false witness: that he hath blasphemed God and the king. And then carry him out, and stone him, and so let him die.

11 And the men of his city, the ancients and nobles that dwelt with him in the city, did as Jezabel had commanded them, and as it was written in the letters which she had sent to them. 12 They proclaimed a fast, and made Naboth sit among the chief of the people. 13 And bringing two men, sons of the devil, they made them sit against him: and they, like men of the devil, bore witness against him before the people, saying: Naboth hath blasphemed God and the king. Wherefore they brought him forth without the city, and stoned him to death. 14 And they sent to Jezabel, saying: Naboth is stoned, and is dead. 15 And it came to pass, when Jezabel heard that Naboth was stoned and dead, that she said to Achab: Arise and take possession of the vineyard of Naboth the Jezrahelite, who would not agree with thee, and give it thee for money, for Naboth is not alive, but dead. 16 And when Achab heard this, to wit, that Naboth was dead, he arose, and went down to the vineyard of Naboth the Jezrahelite, to take possession of it.

Elias Denounces Achab. 17 And the word of the Lord came to Elias the Thesbite, saying: 18 Arise, and go down to meet Achab king of Israel, who is in Samaria. Behold he is going down to the vineyard of Naboth, to take possession of it, 19 and thou shalt speak to him, saying: Thus saith the Lord: Thou hast slain, moreover also thou hast taken possession. And after these words thou shalt add: Thus saith the Lord: s In this place, wherein the dogs have licked the blood of Naboth, they shall lick thy blood also. 20 And Achab said to Elias: Hast thou found me thy enemy? He said: I have found thee, because thou art sold, to do evil in the sight* of the Lord. 21 t Behold I will bring evil upon thee, and I will cut down thy posterity, and I will kill of Achab him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the last in Israel. 22 And I will make thy house like the [u] house of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, and like the house of [v] Baasa the son of Ahias, for what thou hast done to provoke me to anger, and for making Israel to sin. 23 [w] And of Jezabel also the Lord spoke, saying: The dogs shall eat Jezabel in the field of Jezrahel. 24 If Achab die in the city, the dogs shall eat him; but if he die in the field, the birds of the air shall eat him.

25 Now there was not such another as Achab, who was sold to do evil in the sight of the Lord, for his wife Jezabel set him on. 26 And he became abominable, insomuch that he followed the idols which the Amorrhites had made, whom the Lord destroyed before the face of the children of Israel.

27 And when Achab had heard these words, he rent his garments, and put haircloth upon his flesh, and fasted and slept in sackcloth, and walked with his head cast down. 28 And the word of the Lord came to Elias the Thesbite, saying: 29 Hast thou not seen Achab humbled before me? Therefore, because he hath humbled himself for my sake, I will not bring the evil in his days, [x] but in his son's days will I bring the evil upon his house.

CHAPTER 22.

Micheas, Achab, and Josaphat. 1 And [y] there passed three years without war between Syria and Israel. 2 And in the third year, Josaphat king of Juda came down to the king of Israel. 3 (And the king of Israel said to his servants: Know ye not that Ramoth Galaad is ours, and we neglect to take it out of the hand of the king of Syria?) 4 And he said to Josaphat: Wilt thou come with me to battle to Ramoth Galaad?

5 And Josaphat said to the king of Israel: As I am, so art thou. My people and thy people are one; and my horsemen, thy horsemen. And Josaphat said to the king of Israel: Inquire, I beseech thee, this day the word of the Lord. 6 Then the king of Israel assembled the prophets, about four hundred men, and he said to them: Shall I go to Ramoth Galaad to fight, or shall I forbear? They answered: Go up, and the Lord will deliver it into the hand of the king. 7 And Josaphat said: Is there not here some prophet of the Lord, that we may inquire by him? 8 And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: There is one man left, by whom we may inquire of the Lord, Micheas the son of Jemla; but I hate him, for he doth not prophesy good to me, but evil. And Josaphat said: Speak not so, O king. 9 Then the king of Israel called an eunuch, and said to him: Make haste, and bring hither Micheas the son of Jemla.

10 Then the king of Israel, and Josaphat king of Juda, sat each on his throne clothed with royal robes, in a court by the entrance of the gate of Samaria, and all the prophets prophesied before them. 11 And Sedecias the son of Chanaana made himself horns of iron, and said: Thus saith the Lord: With these shalt thou push Syria, till thou destroy it. 12 And all the prophets prophesied in like manner, saying: Go up to Ramoth Galaad, and prosper, for the Lord will deliver it into the king's hands.

13 And the messenger that went to call Micheas, spoke to him, saying: Behold the words of the prophets with one mouth declare good things to the king. Let thy words therefore be like to theirs, and speak that which is good. 14 But Micheas said to him: As the Lord liveth, whatsoever the Lord shall say to me, that will I speak.

15 So he came to the king, and the king said to him: Micheas, shall we go to Ramoth Galaad to battle, or shall we forbear? He answered him: Go up,* and prosper, and the Lord shall deliver it into the king's hands. 16 But the king said to him: I adjure thee again and again, that thou tell me nothing but that which is true in the name of the Lord. 17 And he said: I saw all Israel scattered upon the hills, like sheep that have no shepherd. [z] And the Lord said: These have no master. Let every man of them return to his house in peace. 18 (Then the king of Israel said to Josaphat: Did I not tell thee, that he prophesieth no good to me, but always evil?)

19 And he added and said: Hear thou

22, 15: Go up, etc.: this was spoken ironically, and by way of jesting at the flattering speeches of the false prophets. The king understood it so, because in the following verse he adjures Micheas to tell him the truth in the name of the Lord.

therefore the word of the Lord: I saw the Lord sitting on his throne, and all the army of heaven standing [a] by him on the right hand and on the left; [20] and the Lord said:* Who shall deceive Achab king of Israel, that he may go up, and fall at Ramoth Galaad? And one spoke words of this manner, and another otherwise. [21] And there came forth a spirit, and stood before the Lord, and said: I will deceive him. And the Lord said to him: By what means? [22] And he said: I will go forth and be a lying spirit in the mouth of all his prophets. And the Lord said: Thou shalt deceive him, and shalt prevail. [b] Go forth, and do so.* [23] Now therefore behold the Lord hath given a lying spirit in the mouth of all thy prophets that are here, and the Lord hath spoken evil against thee.

[24] And Sedecias the son of Chanaana came, and struck Micheas on the cheek, and said: Hath then the spirit of the Lord left me, and spoken to thee? [25] And Micheas said: Thou shalt see in the day when thou shalt go into a chamber* within a chamber to hide thyself. [26] And the king of Israel said: Take Micheas, and let him abide with Amon the governor of the city, and with Joas the son of Amelech, [27] and tell them: Thus saith the king: Put this man in prison, and feed him with bread of affliction and water of distress, till I return in peace. [28] And Micheas said: If thou return in peace, the Lord hath not spoken by me. And he said: Hear, all ye people.

Death of Achab. [29] So the king of Israel, and Josaphat king of Juda went up to Ramoth Galaad. [30] And the king of Israel said to Josaphat: Take armor, and go into the battle, and put on thy own garments. But the king of Israel changed his dress, and went into the battle. [31] And the king of Syria had commanded the two and thirty captains of the chariots, saying: You shall not fight against any, small or great, but against the king of Israel only. [32] So when the captains of the chariots saw Josaphat, they suspected that he was the king of Israel, and making a violent assault they fought against him; and Josaphat cried out. [33] And the captains of the chariots perceived that he was not the king of Israel, and they turned away from him. [34] And a certain man bent his bow, shooting at a venture, and chanced to strike the king of Israel between the lungs and the stomach. But he said to the driver of his chariot: Turn thy hand, and carry me out of the army, for I am grievously wounded. [35] And the battle was fought that day, and the king of Israel stood in his chariot against the Syrians, and he died in the evening; and the blood ran out of the wound into the midst of the chariot. [36] And the herald proclaimed through all the army before the sun set, saying: Let every man return to his own city, and to his own country.

[37] And the king died, [c] and was carried into Samaria; and they buried the king in Samaria. [38] [d] And they washed his chariot in the pool of Samaria, and the dogs licked up his blood, and they washed the reins, according to the word of the Lord which he had spoken.

[39] But the rest of the acts of Achab, and all that he did, and the house of ivory that he made, and all the cities that he built, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? [40] So Achab slept with his fathers, and Ochozias his son reigned in his stead.

[41] But Josaphat the son of Asa began to reign over Juda in the fourth year of [e] Achab king of Israel. [42] He was five and thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned five and twenty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Azuba the daughter of Salai. [43] And he walked in all the way of Asa his father, and he declined not from it; and he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. [44] Nevertheless he took not away* the high places, for as yet the people offered sacrifices and burnt incense in the high places. [45] And Josaphat had peace with the king of Israel.

22, 20: The Lord said, etc.: God needs no counsellor; nor do things occur in heaven in the manner here described: but this representation was made to the prophet to be delivered by him in a manner adapted to the common ways and notions of men.

22, 22: Go forth, and do so: not a command, but a permission, for God never orders us to lie; though he often permits the lying spirit to deceive those who do not love the truth. (2 Thes 2, 10). In this sense, it is said in the following verse, The Lord hath given a lying spirit in the mouth of all thy prophets.

22, 25: Go into a chamber, etc.: this happened when he heard the king was slain, and justly feared punishment for his false prophecy.

22, 44: He took not away, etc.: he left some of the high places; i.e., those in which they worshiped the true God: but took away all others. 2 Par 17, 6. Cf 3 Kgs 15, 14.

46 But the rest of the acts of Josaphat, and his works which he did, and his battles, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

47 And the remnant also of the effeminate, who remained in the days of Asa his father, he took out of the land. 48 And there was then no king appointed in Edom. 49 But king Josaphat made navies on the sea, to sail into Ophir for gold; but they could not go, f for the ships were broken in Asiongaber. 50 Then Ochozias the son of Achab said to Josaphat: Let my servants go with thy servants in the ships. And Josaphat would not.*

51 And g Josaphat slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David his father; and Joram his son reigned in his stead.

52 And Ochozias the son of Achab began to reign over Israel in Samaria, in the seventeenth year of h Josaphat king of Juda, and he reigned over Israel two years, 53 and he did evil in the sight of the Lord, and walked in the way of his father and his mother, and in the way of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin. 54 He served also Baal, and worshiped him, and provoked the Lord the God of Israel, according to all that his father had done.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF KINGS

I: THE KINGDOMS OF ISRAEL AND JUDA

CHAPTER 1.

The Reign of Ochozias. 1 And Moab rebelled against Israel, after the death of Achab. 2 And Ochozias fell through the lattices of his upper chamber which he had in Samaria, and was sick; and he sent messengers, saying to them: Go, consult Beelzebub, the god of Accaron, whether I shall recover of this my illness. 3 And an angel of the Lord spoke to Elias the Thesbite, saying: Arise, and go up to meet the messengers of the king of Samaria, and say to them: Is there not a God in Israel, that ye go to consult Beelzebub the god of Accaron? 4 Wherefore thus saith the Lord: From the bed on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die. And Elias went way.

Elias Foretells His Death. 5 And the messengers turned back to Ochozias. And he said to them: Why are you come back? 6 But they answered him: A man met us and said to us: Go, and return to the king, that sent you, and you shall say to him: Thus saith the Lord: Is it because there was no God in Israel that thou sendest to consult Beelzebub the god of Accaron? Therefore thou shalt not come down from the bed, on which thou art gone up, but thou shalt surely die. 7 And he said to them: What manner of man was he who met you, and spoke these words? 8 But they said: A hairy man with a girdle of leather about his loins. And he said: It is Elias the Thesbite.

9 And he sent to him a captain of fifty, and the fifty men that were under him. And he went up to him, and as he was sitting on the top of a hill, said to him: Man of God, the king hath commanded that thou come down. 10 And Elias answering, said to the captain of fifty: If I be a man of God, let fire* come down from heaven, and consume thee, and thy fifty. And there came down fire from heaven, and consumed him, and the fifty that were with him. 11 And again he sent to him another captain of fifty men, and his fifty with him. And he said to him: Man of God, thus saith the king: Make haste and come down. 12 Elias answering, said: If I be a man of God, let fire come down from heaven, and consume thee and thy fifty. And fire came down from heaven, and consumed him and his fifty. 13 Again he sent a third captain of fifty men, and the fifty that were with him. And when he was come, he fell upon his knees, before Elias, and besought him and said: Man of God, despise not my life, and the lives of thy servants that are with me. 14 Behold fire came down from heaven, and consumed the two first captains of fifty men, and the fifties that were with them; but now I beseech thee to spare my life.

22, 50: Would not: he had been reprehended before for admitting such a partner, and therefore would have no more to do with him.

1, 10: Let fire, etc.: Elias was inspired to call for fire from heaven upon these captains, who came to apprehend him; not from a desire to gratify private passion, but to punish the insult offered to religion, to confirm his mission, and to show how vain are the efforts of men against God, and His servants whom He protects.

The Angel Speaks to Elias. 15 And the angel of the Lord spoke to Elias, saying: Go down with him, fear not. He arose therefore, and went down with him to the king, 16 and said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Because thou hast sent messengers to consult Beelzebub the god of Accaron, as though there were not a God in Israel, of whom thou mightest inquire the word; therefore from the bed on which thou art gone up, thou shalt not come down, but thou shalt surely die.

17 So he died according to the word of the Lord which Elias spoke, and Joram his brother reigned in his stead, in the second year of Joram* the son of Josaphat king of Juda, because he had no son.

18 But the rest of the acts of Ochozias which he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

CHAPTER 2.

Elias Taken Up to Heaven. 1 And [a] it came to pass, when the Lord would take up Elias into heaven* by a whirlwind, that Elias and Eliseus were going from Galgal. 2 And Elias said to Eliseus: Stay thou here, because the Lord hath sent me as far as Bethel. And Eliseus said to him: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And when they were come down to Bethel, 3 the sons of the prophets,* that were at Bethel, came forth to Eliseus, and said to him: Dost thou know that this day the Lord will take away thy master from thee? And he answered: I also know it. Hold your peace. 4 And Elias said to Eliseus: Stay here because the Lord hath sent me to Jericho. And he said: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And when they were come to Jericho, 5 the sons of the prophets that were at Jericho, came to Eliseus, and said to him: Dost thou know that this day the Lord will take away thy master from thee? And he said: I also know it. Hold your peace.

6 And Elias said to him: Stay here, because the Lord hath sent me as far as the Jordan. And he said: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. And they two went on together, 7 and fifty men of the sons of the prophets followed them, and stood in sight at a distance; but they two stood by the Jordan. 8 And Elias took his mantle and folded it together, and struck the waters, and they were divided hither and thither, and they both passed over on dry ground.

9 And when they were gone over, Elias said to Eliseus: Ask what thou wilt have me to do for thee, before I be taken away from thee. And Eliseus said: I beseech thee that in me may be thy double spirit.* 10 And he answered: Thou hast asked a hard thing. Nevertheless if thou see me when I am taken from thee, thou shalt have what thou hast asked; but if thou see me not, thou shalt not have it.

Eliseus Separated from Elias. 11 And as they went on, walking and talking together, behold a fiery chariot and fiery horses parted them both asunder: [b] and Elias went up by a whirlwind into heaven. 12 And Eliseus saw him, and cried: My father, my father, the chariot of Israel, and the driver thereof. And he saw him no more. And he took hold of his own garments, and rent them in two pieces. 13 And he took up the mantle of Elias, that fell from him, and going back, he stood upon the bank of the Jordan. 14 And he struck the waters with the mantle of Elias, that had fallen from him, and they were not divided. And he said: Where is now the God of Elias? And he struck the waters, and they were divided, hither and thither, and Eliseus passed over.

15 And the sons of the prophets at Jericho, who were over against him, seeing it said: The spirit of Elias hath rested upon Eliseus. And coming to meet him, they worshiped him,* falling to the ground, 16 and they said to him: Behold, there are with thy servants fifty strong men that can go and seek thy master, lest perhaps the spirit of the Lord hath taken him up and cast him upon some mountain or into some valley. And he said: Do not send. 17 But they pressed him, till he consented, and said: Send. And they sent fifty men: and they sought three days but found him not. 18 And they came back to him, for he abode at Jericho, and he said to them: Did I not say to you: Do not send?

19 And the men of the city said to Eliseus: Behold the situation of this city is very good, as thou, my lord, seest; but the waters are very bad, and the ground barren. 20 And he said: Bring me a new vessel, and put salt into it. And when they had brought it, 21 he went out to the spring of the waters, and cast the salt into it, and said: Thus saith the Lord: I have healed these waters, and there shall be no more in them death or barrenness. 22 And the waters were healed unto this day, according to the word of Eliseus, which he spoke.

23 And he went up from thence to Bethel. And as he was going up by the way, little boys came out of the city and mocked him, saying: Go up, thou bald head; go up, thou bald head. 24 And looking back, he saw them, and cursed them* in the name of the Lord: and there came forth two bears out of the forest, and tore of them two and forty boys. 25 And from thence he went to mount Carmel, and from thence he returned to Samaria.

CHAPTER 3.

Reign of Joram in Israel. 1 And Joram the son of Achab reigned over Israel in Samaria in the eighteenth year of [c] Josaphat king of Juda. And he reigned twelve years. 2 And he did evil before the Lord, but not like his father and his mother, for he took away the statues of Baal, which his father had made. 3 Nevertheless he stuck to the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, nor did he depart from them.

4 Now Mesa, king of Moab, nourished many sheep, and he paid to the king of Israel a hundred thousand lambs, and a hundred thousand rams with their fleeces. 5 And when Achab was dead, he broke the league which he had made with the king of Israel. 6 And king Joram went out that day from Samaria, and mustered all Israel. 7 And he sent to Josaphat king of Juda, saying: The king of Moab is revolted from me, come with me against him to battle. And he answered: I will come up. He that is mine, is thine: my people, thy people: and my horses, thy horses. 8 And he said: Which way shall we go up? But he answered: By the desert of Edom.

9 So the king of Israel, and the king of Juda, and the king of Edom went, and they fetched a compass of seven days' journey, and there was no water for the army, and for the beasts that followed them. 10 And the king of Israel said: Alas, alas, alas, the Lord hath gathered us three kings together, to deliver us into the hands of Moab! 11 And Josaphat said: Is there not here a prophet of the Lord, that we may beseech the Lord by him? And one of the servants of the king of Israel answered: Here is Eliseus the son of Saphat, who poured water on the hands of Elias. 12 And Josaphat said: The word of the Lord is with him. And the king of Israel, and Josaphat king of Juda, and the king of Edom went down to him.

13 And Eliseus said to the king of Israel: What have I to do with thee? Go to the prophets of thy father, and thy mother. And the king of Israel said to him: Why hath the Lord gathered together these three kings, to deliver them into the hands of Moab? 14 And Eliseus said to him: As the Lord of hosts liveth, in whose sight I stand, if I did not reverence the face of Josaphat king of Juda, I would not have hearkened to thee, nor

2, 15: They worshiped him: i.e., with an inferior, yet religious veneration, not for any temporal, but spiritual excellency.

2, 24: Cursed them: this curse, followed by a visible judgment of God, was not the effect of passion, or of revenge, but of zeal for religion, which was insulted by these boys, in the person of the prophet; and of a divine inspiration. God punished in this manner the inhabitants of Bethel, (the chief seat of the calf worship) who had raised their children in prejudice against the true religion and its ministers.

looked on thee. 15 But now bring me hither a minstrel. And when the minstrel played, the hand of the Lord came upon him, and he said: 16 Thus saith the Lord: Make the channel of this torrent full of ditches. 17 For thus saith the Lord: You shall not see wind, nor rain; and yet this channel shall be filled with waters, and you shall drink, you and your families, and your beasts. 18 And this is a small thing in the sight of the Lord. Moreover, he will deliver also Moab into your hands. 19 And you shall destroy every fenced city, and every choice city, and shall cut down every fruitful tree, and shall stop up all the springs of waters, and every goodly field you shall cover with stones. 20 And it came to pass in the morning, when the sacrifices used to be offered, that behold, water came by the way of Edom, and the country was filled with water.

Moabites Defeated. 21 And all the Moabites hearing that the kings were come up to fight against them, gathered together all that were girded with a belt upon them, and stood on the borders. 22 And they rose early in the morning, and the sun being now up, and shining upon the waters, the Moabites saw the waters over against them red, like blood, 23 and they said: It is the blood of the sword. The kings have fought among themselves, and they have killed one another. Go now, Moab, to the spoils. 24 And they went into the camp of Israel, but Israel rising up defeated Moab, who fled before them. And they being conquerors, went and smote Moab. 25 And they destroyed the cities, and they filled every goodly field, every man casting his stone. And they stopped up all the springs of waters, and cut down all the trees that bore fruit, so that brick walls only remained.* And the city was beset by the slingers, and a great part thereof destroyed. 26 And when the king of Moab saw this, to wit, that the enemies had prevailed, he took with him seven hundred men that drew the sword, to break in upon the king of Edom; but they could not. 27 Then he took his eldest son that should have reigned in his stead, and offered him for a burnt offering upon the wall. And there was great indignation in Israel, and presently they departed from him, and returned into their own country.

3, 25: Brick walls only remained: it was the proper name of the capital city of the Moabites. In Hebrew, Kir-Haraseth.

CHAPTER 4.

Miracles of Eliseus. 1 Now a certain woman of the wives of the prophets cried to Eliseus, saying: Thy servant my husband is dead, and thou knowest that thy servant was one that feared God, and behold the creditor is come to take away my two sons to serve him. 2 And Eliseus said to her: What wilt thou have me to do for thee? Tell me, what hast thou in thy house? And she answered: I thy handmaid have nothing in my house but a little oil, to anoint me. 3 And he said to her: Go, borrow of all thy neighbors empty vessels not a few. 4 And go in, and shut thy door, when thou art within, and thy sons; and pour out thereof into all those vessels; and when they are full take them away. 5 So the woman went, and shut the door upon her, and upon her sons. They brought her the vessels, and she poured in. 6 And when the vessels were full, she said to her son: Bring me yet a vessel. And he answered: I have no more. And the oil stood. 7 And she came, and told the man of God. And he said: Go, sell the oil, and pay thy creditor; and thou and thy sons live off the rest.

8 And there was a day when Eliseus passed by Sunam. Now there was a great woman there, who detained him to eat bread; and as he passed often that way, he turned into her house to eat bread. 9 And she said to her husband: I perceive that this is a holy man of God, who often passeth by us. 10 Let us therefore make him a little chamber, and put a little bed in it for him, and a table, and a stool, and a candlestick, that when he cometh to us, he may abide there. 11 Now there was a certain day when he came and turned in to the chamber, and rested there. 12 And he said to Giezi his servant: Call this Sunamitess. And when he had called her, and she stood before him, 13 he said to his servant: Say to her: Behold thou hast diligently served us in all things, what wilt thou have me to do for thee? Hast thou any business, and wilt thou that I speak to the king, or to the general of the army? And she answered: I dwell in the midst of my own people. 14 And he said: What will she then that I do for her? And Giezi said: Do not ask, for she hath no son, and her husband is old. 15 Then he bid him call her. And when she was called, and stood before the door, 16 he said to her: At this time, and this same hour, if life accompany, thou shalt have a son in thy womb. But she answered: Do not, I beseech thee, my lord, thou man of God, do not lie to thy handmaid. 17 And the woman conceived, and brought forth a son in the time, and at the same hour that Eliseus had said.

18 And the child grew. And on a certain day, when he went out to his father to the reapers, 19 he said to his father: My head acheth, my head acheth. But he said to his servant: Take him, and carry him to his mother. 20 And when he had taken him, and brought him to his mother, she set him on her knees until noon, and then he died. 21 And she went up and laid him upon the bed of the man of God, and shut the door. And going out, 22 she called her husband, and said: Send with me, I beseech thee, one of thy servants, and an ass that I may run to the man of God, and come again. 23 And he said to her: Why dost thou go to him? Today is neither new moon nor sabbath. She answered: I will go. 24 And she saddled an ass, and commanded her servant: Drive, and make haste, make no stay in going. And do that which I bid thee.

The Sunamitess Implores Eliseus. 25 So she went forward, and came to the man of God to mount Carmel; and when the man of God saw her coming towards, he said to Giezi his servant: Behold that Sunamitess. 26 Go therefore to meet her, and say to her: Is all well with thee and with thy husband, and with thy son? And she answered: Well. 27 And when she came to the man of God to the mount, she caught hold on his feet, and Giezi came to remove her. And the man of God said: Let her alone, for her soul is in anguish, and the Lord hath hid it from me, and hath not told me.

28 And she said to him: Did I ask a son of my lord? Did I not say to thee: Do not deceive me? 29 Then he said to Giezi: Gird up thy loins, and take my staff in thy hand, and go. If any man meet thee, salute him not;* and if any man salute thee, answer him not; and lay my staff upon the face of the child. 30 But the mother of the child said: As the Lord liveth, and as thy soul liveth, I will not leave thee. He arose, therefore, and followed her. 31 But Giezi was gone before them, and laid the staff* upon the face of the child, and there was no voice nor sense. And he returned to meet him, and told him, saying: The child is not risen. 32 Eliseus therefore went into the house, and behold the child lay dead on his bed.

The Dead Child Is Raised to Life. 33 And going in he shut the door upon him, and upon the child, and prayed to the Lord. 34 And he went up, and lay upon the child; and he put his mouth upon his mouth, and his eyes upon his eyes, and his hands upon his hands; and he bowed himself upon him, and the child's flesh grew warm. 35 Then he returned and walked in the house, once to and fro; and he went up, and lay upon him, and the child gaped seven times, and opened his eyes. 36 And he called Giezi, and said to him: Call this Sunamitess. And she being called, went into him, and he said: Take up thy son. 37 She came and fell at his feet, and worshiped upon the ground, and took up her son, and went out.

38 And Eliseus returned to Galgal, and there was a famine in the land, and the sons of the prophets dwelt before him. And he said to one of his servants: Set on the great pot, and boil pottage for the sons of the prophets. 39 And one went out into the field to gather wild herbs, and he found something like a wild vine, and gathered of it wild gourds of the field,* and filled his mantle, and coming back he shred them into the pot of pottage, for he knew not what it was. 40 And they poured it out for their companions to eat.

4, 29: Salute him not: the one sent to raise to life the sinner spiritually dead, must not be diverted from his mission by the salutations or conventionalities of the world.

4, 31: St. Augustine interprets the miracle wrought by the prophet Eliseus, thus: The staff sent by his servant represents the rod of Moses, or the Old Law, which was insufficient to restore mankind to life then dead in sin. Christ himself needed to come, that by taking on human nature, he might restore us to life. In this Eliseus was a figure of Christ; for it was necessary that he should come himself to revive the dead child and restore him to his mother, who is here, in a mystical sense, a figure of the Church.

4, 39: Wild gourds of the field: Colocynthidas. They are extremely bitter, and poisonous if taken in a great quantity. Therefore they are called the gall of the earth.

And when they had tasted of the pottage, they cried out, saying: Death is in the pot, O man of God. And they could not eat thereof. 41 But he said: Bring some meal. And when they had brought it, he cast it into the pot, and said: Pour out for the people, that they may eat. And there was now no bitterness in the pot.

42 And a certain man came from Baalsalisa bringing to the man of God bread of the firstfruits, twenty loaves of barley, and new corn in his scrip. And he said: Give to the people, that they may eat. 43 And his servant answered him: How much is this, that I should set it before a hundred men? He said again: Give to the people, that they may eat, for thus saith the Lord: They shall eat, and there shall be left. 44 So he set it before them, and they ate, and there was left according to the word of the Lord.

CHAPTER 5.

Cure of Naaman, the Syrian. 1 Naaman, general of the army of the king of Syria, was a great man with his master, and honorable, for by him the Lord gave deliverance to Syria. And he was a valiant man and rich, but a leper. 2 Now there had gone out robbers from Syria, and had led away captive out of the land of Israel a little maid, and she waited upon Naaman's wife. 3 And she said to her mistress: I wish my master had been with the prophet that is in Samaria; he would certainly have healed him of the leprosy which he hath. 4 Then Naaman went in to his lord, and told him, saying: Thus and thus said the girl from the land of Israel. 5 And the king of Syria said to him: Go, and I will send a letter to the king of Israel. And he departed, and took with him ten talents of silver, and six thousand pieces of gold, and ten changes of raiment, 6 and brought the letter to the king of Israel, in these words: When thou shalt receive this letter, know that I have sent to thee Naaman my servant, that thou mayest heal him of his leprosy. 7 And when the king of Israel had read the letter, he rent his garments, and said: Am I God, to be able to kill and give life, that this man hath sent to me, to heal a man of his leprosy? Mark, and see how he seeketh occasions against me.

8 And when Eliseus the man of God had heard this, to wit, that the king of Israel had rent his garments, he sent to him, saying: Why hast thou rent thy garments? Let him come to me, and let him know that there is a prophet in Israel. 9 So Naaman came with his horses and chariots, and stood at the door of the house of Eliseus. 10 And Eliseus sent a messenger to him, saying: Go, and wash seven times in the Jordan, and thy flesh shall recover health, and thou shalt be clean. 11 Naaman was angry and went away, saying: I thought he would have come out to me, and standing would have invoked the name of the Lord his God, and touched with his hand the place of the leprosy, and healed me. 12 Are not the Abana and the Pharphar, rivers of Damascus, better than all the waters of Israel, that I may wash in them, and be made clean? So as he turned, and was going away with indignation, 13 his servants came to him, and said to him: Father, if the prophet had bid thee do some great thing, surely thou shouldst have done it. How much rather what he now hath said to thee: Wash, and thou shalt be clean? 14*d* Then he went down, and washed in the Jordan seven times according to the word of the man of God, and his flesh was restored, like the flesh of a little child, and he was made clean.

15 And returning to the man of God with all his train, he came, and stood before him, and said: In truth, I know there is no other God in all the earth, but only in Israel: I beseech thee therefore take a blessing* of thy servant. 16 But he answered: As the Lord liveth, before whom I stand, I will receive none. And when he pressed him, he still refused. 17 And Naaman said: As thou wilt; but I beseech thee, grant to me thy servant, to take from hence two mules' burden of earth, for thy servant will not henceforth offer holocaust, or victim, to other gods, but to the Lord. 18 But there is only this, for which thou shalt entreat the Lord for thy servant: when my master goeth into the temple of Remmon, to worship, and he leaneth upon my hand, if I bow down in the temple of Remmon, when he boweth down in the same place, that the Lord pardon me thy servant for this thing. 19 And he said to him: Go in peace.* So he departed from him in the springtime of the earth.

20 But Giezi the servant of the man of God said: My master hath spared Naaman this Syrian, in not receiving of him that which he brought. As the Lord liveth, I will run after him, and take something of him. 21 And Giezi followed after Naaman, and when he saw him running after him, he leapt down from his chariot to meet him, and said: Is all well? 22 And he said: Well. My master hath sent me to thee, saying: Just now there are come to me from mount Ephraim two young men of the sons of the prophets. Give them a talent of silver, and two changes of garments. 23 And Naaman said: It is better that thou take two talents. And he forced him, and bound two talents of silver in two bags, and two changes of garments, and laid them upon two of his servants, and they carried them before him. 24 And when he was come, and now it was the evening, he took them from their hands, and laid them up in the house, and sent the men away, and they departed. 25 But he went in, and stood before his master. And Eliseus said: Whence comest thou, Giezi? He answered: Thy servant went no whither. 26 But he said: Was not my heart present, when the man turned back from his chariot to meet thee? So now thou hast received money, and received garments, to buy oliveyards, and vineyards, and sheep, and oxen, and menservants, and maidservants. 27 But the leprosy of Naaman shall also stick to thee, and to thy seed forever. And he went out from him a leper as white as snow.

CHAPTER 6.

Other Miracles of Eliseus. 1 And the sons of the prophets said to Eliseus: Behold the place where we dwell with thee is too strait for us. 2 Let us go as far as the Jordan and take out of the wood every man a piece of timber, that we may build us there a place to dwell in. And he said: Go. 3 And one of them said: But come thou also with thy servants. He answered: I will come. 4 So he went with them. And when they were come to the Jordan they cut down wood. 5 And it happened, as one was felling some timber, that the head of the axe fell into the water, and he cried out, and said: Alas, alas, alas, my lord, for this same was borrowed. 6 And the man of God said: Where did it fall? And he showed him the place. Then he cut off a piece of wood, and cast it in thither: and the iron swam. 7 And he said: Take it up. And he put out his hand and took it.

8 And the king of Syria warred against Israel, and took counsel with his servants, saying: In such and such a place let us lay ambushes. 9 And the man of God sent to the king of Israel, saying: Beware that thou pass not to such a place, for the Syrians are there in ambush. 10 And the king of Israel sent to the place which the man of God had told him, and prevented him, and looked well to himself there not once nor twice. 11 And the heart of the king of Syria was troubled for this thing. And calling together his servants, he said: Why do you not tell me who it is that betrays me to the king of Israel? 12 And one of his servants said: No one, my lord O king, but Eliseus the prophet, that is in Israel, telleth the king of Israel all the words that thou speakest in thy privy chamber. 13 And he said to them: Go, and see where he is, that I may send, and take him. And they told him, saying: Behold he is in Dothan. 14 Therefore he sent thither horses and chariots, and the strength of an army; and they came by night, and beset the city. 15 And the servant of the man of God rising early, went out, and saw an army round about the city, and horses and chariots, and he told him, saying: Alas, alas, alas, my lord, what shall we do? 16 But he answered: Fear not, for there are more with us than with them. 17 And Eliseus prayed, and said: Lord, open his eyes, that he may see. And the Lord opened the eyes of the servant, and he saw: and behold the mountain was full of horses, and chariots of fire round about Eliseus.

18 And the enemies came down to him, but Eliseus prayed to the Lord, saying: Strike, I beseech thee, this people with blindness.* And the Lord struck them with blindness, according to the word of Eliseus. 19 And Eliseus said to them: This is not the way, neither is this the city. Follow me, and I will show you the man whom you seek. So he led them into Samaria. 20 And when they were come into Samaria, Eliseus said: Lord, open the eyes of these men, that they may see. And the Lord opened their eyes, and they saw themselves to be in the midst of Samaria. 21 And the king of Israel said to Eliseus, when he saw them: My father, shall I kill them? 22 And he said: Thou shalt not kill them, for thou didst not take them with thy sword, or thy bow, that thou mayest kill them; but set bread and water before them, that they may eat and drink, and go to their master. 23 And a great provision of meats was set before them, and they ate and drank, and he let them go, and they went away to their master, and the robbers of Syria came no more into the land of Israel.

5, 19: Go in peace: what the prophets here allowed was not an outward conformity to an idolatrous worship, but only a service which by his office he owed to his master, who on all public occasions leaned on him. His bowing down when his master bowed himself down was not in effect adoring the idols, but it was no more than doing a civil office to the king his master, whose leaning upon him obliged him to bow at the same time he bowed.

The Great Famine. 24 And it came to pass after these things, that Benadad king of Syria gathered together all his army, and went up, and besieged Samaria. 25 And there was a great famine in Samaria; and so long did the siege continue, till the head of an ass was sold for fourscore pieces of silver, and the fourth part of a cabe of pigeons' dung, for five pieces of silver. 26 And as the king of Israel was passing by the wall, a certain woman cried out to him, saying: Save me, my lord O king. 27 And he said: If the Lord doth not save thee, how can I save thee? Out of the barnfloor, or out of the winepress? And the king said to her: What aileth thee? And she answered: 28 This woman said to me: Give thy son, that we may eat him today, and we will eat my son tomorrow. 29 So we boiled my son, and ate him. And I said to her on the next day: Give thy son that we may eat him. And she hath hid her son. 30 When the king heard this, he rent his garments, and passed by upon the wall. And all the people saw the haircloth which he wore within next to his flesh.

31 And the king said: May God do so and so to me, and may he add more, if the head of Eliseus the son of Saphat shall stand on him this day. 32 But Eliseus sat in his house, and the ancients sat with him. So he sent a man before; and before that messenger came, he said to the ancients: Do you know that this son of a murderer hath sent to cut off my head? Look then, when the messenger shall come, shut the door, and suffer him not to come in, for behold the sound of his master's feet is behind him. 33 While he was yet speaking to them, the messenger appeared who was coming to him. And he said: Behold, so great an evil is from the Lord. What shall I look for more from the Lord?

Prophecy of Eliseus. 1 And Eliseus said: Hear ye the word of the Lord: Thus saith the Lord: Tomorrow about this time a bushel of fine flour shall be sold for a stater,* and two bushels of barley for a stater, in the gate of Samaria. 2 Then one of the lords, upon whose hand the king leaned, answering the man of God, said: If the Lord should make floodgates in heaven, can that possibly be which thou sayest? And he said: Thou shalt see it with thy eyes, but shalt not eat thereof.

3 Now there were four lepers at the entering in of the gate, and they said one to another: What mean we to stay here till we die? 4 If we will enter into the city, we shall die with the famine; and if we will remain here, we must also die. Come, therefore, and let us run over to the camp of the Syrians. If they spare us, we shall live, but if they kill us, we shall but die. 5 So they arose in the evening, to go to the Syrian camp. And when they were come to the first part of the camp of the Syrians, they found no man there. 6 For the Lord had made them hear, in the camp of Syria, the noise of chariots, and of horses, and of a very great army, and they said one to another: Behold the king of Israel hath hired against us the kings of the Hethites, and of the Egyptians, and they are come upon us. 7 Wherefore they arose, and fled away in the dark, and left their tents, and their horses and asses

6, 18: Blindness: the blindness here spoken of hindered them from seeing the objects that were really before them, and represented other different objects to their imagination; so that they no longer perceived the city of Dothan, nor were able to know the person of Eliseus; but were easily led by him, whom they took to be another man, to Samaria. So that he truly told them, this is not the way, neither is this the city, etc., because he spoke with relation to the way and to the city, which was represented to them.

in the camp, and fled, desiring to save their lives. 8 So when these lepers were come to the beginning of the camp, they went into one tent, and ate and drank. And they took from thence silver, and gold, and raiment, and went, and hid it. And they came again, and went into another tent, and carried from thence in like manner, and hid it. 9 Then they said one to another: We do not well, for this is a day of good tidings. If we hold our peace, and do not tell it till the morning, we shall be charged with a crime. Come, let us go and tell it in the king's court. 10 So they came to the gate of the city, and told them, saying: We went to the camp of the Syrians, and we found no man there, but horses, and asses tied, and the tents standing. 11 Then the guards of the gate went, and told it within the king's palace.

12 And he arose in the night and said to his servants: I tell you what the Syrians have done to us: They know that we suffer great famine, and therefore they are gone out of the camp, and lie hid in the fields, saying: When they come out of the city we shall take them alive, and then we may get into the city. 13 And one of his servants answered: Let us take the five horses that are remaining in the city (because there are no more in the whole multitude of Israel, for the rest are consumed), and let us send and see. 14 They brought therefore two horses, and the king sent into the camp of the Syrians, saying: Go, and see. 15 And they went after them as far as the Jordan. And behold all the way was full of garments, and vessels, which the Syrians had cast away in their fright, and the messengers returned and told the king.

16 And the people going out pillaged the camp of the Syrians: and a bushel of fine flour was sold for a stater, and two bushels of barley for a stater, according to the word of the Lord. 17 And the king appointed that lord on whose hand he leaned, to stand at the gate. And the people trod upon him in the entrance of the gate; and he died, as the man of God had said, when the king came down to him. 18 And it came to pass according to the word of the man of God, which he spoke to the king, when he said: Two bushels of barley shall be for a stater, and a bushel of fine flour for a stater, at this very time tomorrow in the gate of Samaria, 19 When that lord answered the man of God, and said: Although the Lord should make floodgates in heaven, could this come to pass which thou sayest? And he said to him: Thou shalt see with thy eyes, and shalt not eat thereof. 20 And so it fell out to him as it was foretold, and the people trod upon him in the gate, and he died.

CHAPTER 8.

The Sunamitess Returns. 1 And Eliseus spoke to the woman, [e] whose son he had restored to life, saying: Arise, and go thou and thy household, and sojourn wheresoever thou canst find, for the Lord hath called a famine, and it shall come upon the land seven years. 2 And she arose, and did according to the word of the man of God. And going with her household, she sojourned in the land of the Philistines many days.

3 And when the seven years were ended, the woman returned out of the land of the Philistines, and she went forth to speak to the king for her house, and for her lands. 4 And the king talked with Giezi, the servant of the man of God, saying: Tell me all the great things that Eliseus hath done. 5 And when he was telling the king how he had raised one dead to life, the woman appeared, whose son he had restored to life, crying to the king for her house, and her lands. And Giezi said: My lord O king, this is the woman, and this is her son, whom Eliseus raised to life. 6 And the king asked the woman, and she told him. And the king appointed her an eunuch, saying: Restore her all that is hers, and all the revenues of the lands, from the day that she left the land to this present.

7 Eliseus also came to Damascus, and Benadad king of Syria was sick; and they told him, saying: The man of God is come hither. 8 And the king said to Hazael: Take with thee presents, and go to meet the man of God, and consult the Lord by him, saying: Can I recover of this my illness? 9 And Hazael went to meet him, taking with him presents, and all the good things of Damascus, the burdens of forty camels. And when he stood before him, he said: Thy son Benadad the king of Syria hath sent me to thee, saying: Can I recover of this my illness? 10 And Eliseus said to him: Go tell him: Thou shalt recover;* but the Lord hath shown me that he shall surely die. 11 And he stood with him, and was troubled so far as to blush; and the man of God wept. 12 And Hazael said to him: Why doth my lord weep? And he said: Because I know the evil that thou wilt do to the children of Israel. f Their strong cities thou wilt burn with fire, and their young men thou wilt kill with the sword, and thou wilt dash their children, and rip up their pregnant women. 13 And Hazael said: But what am I thy servant a dog, that I should do this great thing? And Eliseus said: The Lord hath shown me that thou shalt be king of Syria. 14 And when he was departed from Eliseus, he came to his master, who said to him: What saith Eliseus to thee? And he answered: He told me: Thou shalt recover. 15 And on the next day he took a blanket, and poured water on it, and spread it upon his face; and he died, and Hazael reigned in his stead.

The Reign of Joram. 16 In the fifth year of Joram son of Achab king of Israel, and of Josaphat king of Juda, reigned Joram son of Josaphat* king of Juda. 17 g He was two and thirty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eight years in Jerusalem. 18 And he walked in the ways of the kings of Israel, as the house of Achab had walked, for the daughter of Achab was his wife, and he did that which was evil in the sight of the Lord. 19 h But the Lord would not destroy Juda, for David his servant's sake, as he had promised him, to give him a light, and to his children always.

Ochozias Succeeds Joram. 20 i In his days Edom revolted from being under Juda, and made for itself a king. 21 And Joram came to Seira, and all the chariots with him. And he arose in the night, and defeated the Edomites that had surrounded him, and the captains of the chariots, but the people fled into their tents. 22 So Edom revolted from being under Juda unto this day. Then Lobna also revolted at the same time.

23 But the rest of the acts of Joram, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 24 And Joram slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, and Ochozias his son reigned in his stead.

25 j In the twelfth year of Joram son of Achab king of Israel, reigned k Ochozias son of Joram king of Juda. 26 Ochozias was two and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned one year in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Athalia the daughter* of Amri king of Israel. 27 And he walked in the ways of the house of Achab. And he did evil before the Lord, as did the house of Achab, for he was the son-in-law of the house of Achab. 28 He went also with Joram son of Achab, to fight against Hazael king of Syria in Ramoth Galaad, and the Syrians wounded Joram. 29 And he went back to be healed in Jezrahel, because the Syrians had wounded him in Ramoth when he fought against Hazael king of Syria. And Ochozias the son of Joram king of Juda, went down to visit Joram the son of Achab in Jezrahel, because he was sick there.

CHAPTER 9.

Reign of Jehu, King of Israel. 1 And Eliseus the prophet called one of the sons of the prophets, and said to him: Gird up thy loins, and take this little bottle of oil in thy hand, and go to Ramoth Galaad. 2 l And when thou art come thither, thou shalt see Jehu the son of Josaphat the son of Namsi; and going in thou shalt make him rise up from amongst his brethren, and carry him into an inner chamber. 3 Then taking the little bottle of oil, thou shalt pour it on his head, and shalt say: Thus saith the Lord: I have anointed thee king over Israel. And thou shalt open the door and flee, and shalt not stay there.

4 So the young man, the servant of the prophet, went away to Ramoth Galaad, 5 and went in thither. And behold the 8, 10: Tell him: Thou shalt recover: the prophet thus signified that the king's disease was not mortal, and that he would recover if no violence were used. Or he might only express himself in this manner, by way of giving Hazael to understand that he knew both what he would say and do; that he would indeed tell the king he should recover; but would be himself the instrument of his death.

captains of the army were sitting, and he said: I have a word to thee, O prince. And Jehu said: Unto whom of us all? And he said: To thee, O prince. 6 And he arose, and went into the chamber, and he poured the oil upon his head, and said: Thus saith the Lord God of Israel: I have anointed thee king over Israel, the people of the Lord. 7 And thou shalt cut off the house of Achab thy master, and I will revenge the blood of my servants the prophets, and the blood of all the servants of the Lord at the hand of Jezabel. 8 m And I will destroy all the house of Achab, and I will cut off from Achab him that pisseth against the wall, and him that is shut up, and the meanest in Israel. 9 And I will make the house of Achab like n the house of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, and like the house of o Baasa the son of Ahias. 10 And the dogs shall eat Jezabel in the field of Jezrahel, and there shall be no one to bury her. And he opened the door and fled.

11 Then Jehu went forth to the servants of his lord, and they said to him: Are all things well? Why came this mad man to thee? And he said to them: You know the man, and what he said. 12 But they answered: It is false, but rather do thou tell us. And he said to them: Thus and thus did he speak to me, and he said: Thus saith the Lord: I have anointed thee king over Israel. 13 Then they made haste and taking every man his garment laid it under his feet, after the manner of a judgment seat, and they sounded the trumpet, and said: Jehu is king.

Jehu Is Healed at Jezrahel. 14 So Jehu the son of Josaphat the son of Namsi conspired against Joram. p Now Joram had besieged Ramoth Galaad, he and all Israel fighting with Hazael king of Syria. 15 And was returned to be healed in Jezrahel of his wounds, for the Syrians had wounded him, when he fought with Hazael king of Syria. And Jehu said: If it please you, let no man go forth or flee out of the city, lest he go, and tell in Jezrahel. 16 And he got up, and went into Jezrahel, for Joram was sick there, and Ochozias king of Juda was come down to visit Joram.

17 The watchmen therefore, that stood upon the tower of Jezrahel, saw the troop of Jehu coming, and said: I see a troop. And Joram said: Take a chariot, and send to meet them, and let him that goeth say: Is all well? 18 So there went one in a chariot to meet him, and said: Thus saith the king: Are all things peaceable? And Jehu said: What hast thou to do with peace? Go behind and follow me. And the watchman told, saying: The messenger came to them, but he returneth not. 19 And he sent a second chariot of horses, and he came to them, and said: Thus saith the king: Is there peace? And Jehu said: What hast thou to do with peace? Pass, and follow me. 20 And the watchman told, saying: He came even to them, but returneth not; and the driving is like the driving of Jehu the son of Namsi, for he drives furiously. 21 And Joram said: Make ready the chariot. And they made ready his chariot, and Joram king of Israel, and Ochozias king of Juda went out, each in his chariot, and they went out to meet Jehu, and met him in the field of Naboth the Jezrahelite. 22 And when Joram saw Jehu, he said: Is there peace, Jehu? And he answered: What peace, so long as the fornications of Jezabel thy mother, and her many sorceries are in their vigor? 23 And Joram turned his hand, and fleeing, said to Ochozias: There is treachery, Ochozias. 24 But Jehu bent his bow with his hand, and shot Joram between the shoulders; and the arrow went out through his heart, and immediately he fell in his chariot. 25 And Jehu said to Badacer his captain: Take him, and cast him into the field of Naboth the Jezrahelite, for I remember when I and thou sitting in a chariot followed Achab this man's father, that the Lord laid this burden upon him, saying: 26 q If I do not requite thee in this field, saith the Lord, for the blood of Naboth, and for the blood of his children, which I saw yesterday, saith the Lord. So now take him, and cast him into the field, according to the word of the Lord.

27 But Ochozias king of Juda seeing this, fled by the way of the garden house; and Jehu pursued him, and said: Strike him also in his chariot. And they struck him in the going up to Gaver, which is by Jeblaam. And he fled into Mageddo, and died there. 28 And his servants laid him upon his chariot, and carried him to Jerusalem. And they buried him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the city of David.

29 In the eleventh year of Joram the son of Achab, Ochozias reigned over Juda, 30 and Jehu came into Jezrahel. But Jezabel hearing of his coming in, painted her face with stibic stone, and adorned her head, and looked out of a window 31 at Jehu coming in at the gate, and said: [r] Can there be peace for Zambri, that hath killed his master? 32 And Jehu lifted up his face to the window, and said: Who is this? And two or three eunuchs bowed down to him. 33 And he said to them: Throw her down headlong. And they threw her down, and the wall was sprinkled with her blood, and the hoofs of the horses trod upon her. 34 And when he was come in to eat and to drink, he said: Go, and see after that cursed woman, and bury her, because she is a king's daughter. 35 And when they went to bury her, they found nothing but the skull, and the feet, and the extremities of her hands. 36 And coming back they told him. And Jehu said: [s] It is the word of the Lord, which he spoke by his servant Elias the Thesbite, saying: In the field of Jezrahel the dogs shall eat the flesh of Jezabel, 37 and the flesh of Jezabel shall be as dung upon the face of the earth in the field of Jezrahel, so that they who pass by shall say: Is this that same Jezabel?

CHAPTER 10.

The Justice of Jehu. 1 And Achab had seventy sons in Samaria. So Jehu wrote letters and sent to Samaria, to the chief men of the city, and to the ancients, and to them that brought up Achab's children, saying: 2 As soon as you receive these letters, ye that have your master's sons, and chariots, and horses, and fenced cities, and armor, 3 choose the best, and him that shall please you most of your master's sons, and set him on his father's throne, and fight for the house of your master. 4 But they were exceedingly afraid, and said: Behold two kings could not stand before him, and how shall we be able to resist? 5 Therefore the overseers of the house, and the rulers of the city, and the ancients, and the tutors sent to Jehu, saying: We are thy servants, whatsoever thou shalt command us we will do, neither will we make us a king. Do thou all that pleaseth thee. 6 And he wrote letters the second time to them, saying: If you be mine, and will obey me, take the heads of the sons of your master, and come to me to Jezrahel by tomorrow this time. Now the king's sons, being seventy men, were brought up with the chief men of the city.

7 And when the letters came to them, they took the king's sons, and slew seventy persons, and put their heads in baskets, and sent them to him to Jezrahel. 8 And a messenger came, and told him, saying: They have brought the heads of the king's sons. And he said: Lay ye them in two heaps by the entering in of the gate until the morning. 9 And when it was light, he went out, and standing said to all the people: You are just. If I conspired against my master, and slew him, who hath slain all these? 10 [t] See therefore now that there hath not fallen to the ground any of the words of the Lord, which the Lord spoke concerning the house of Achab, and the Lord hath done that which he spoke in the hand of his servant Elias. 11 So Jehu slew all that were left of the house of Achab in Jezrahel, and all his chief men, and his friends, and his priests, till there were no remains left of him.

12 And he arose, and went to Samaria. And when he was come to the shepherd's cabin in the way, 13 he met with the brethren of Ochozias king of Juda, and he said to them: Who are you? And they answered: We are the brethren of Ochozias, and are come down to salute the sons of the king, and the sons of the queen. 14 And he said: Take them alive. And they took them alive, and killed them at the pit by the cabin, two and forty men, and he left not any of them.

15 And when he was departed thence, he found Jonadab the son of Rechab coming to meet him, and he blessed him. And he said to him: Is thy heart right as my heart is with thy heart? And Jonadab said: It is. If it be, said he, give me thy hand. He gave him his hand. And he lifted him up to him into the chariot, 16 and he said to him: Come with me, and see my zeal for the Lord. So he made him ride in his chariot, 17 and

r 3 Kgs 16, 10.—s 3 Kgs 21, 23.—t 3 Kgs 21, 29.

brought him into Samaria. And he slew all that were left of Achab in Samaria, to a man, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke by Elias.

18 And Jehu gathered together all the people, and said to them: [u] Achab worshiped Baal a little, but I will worship him more.* 19 Now therefore call to me all the prophets of Baal, and all his servants, and all his priests. Let none be wanting, for I have a great sacrifice to offer to Baal. Whosoever shall be wanting shall not live. Now Jehu did this craftily, that he might destroy the worshipers of Baal. 20 And he said: Proclaim a festival for Baal. And he called, 21 and he sent into all the borders of Israel, and all the servants of Baal came. There was not one left that did not come. And they went into the temple of Baal: and the house of Baal was filled, from one end to the other. 22 And he said to them that were over the wardrobe: Bring forth garments for all the servants of Baal. And they brought them forth garments. 23 And Jehu and Jonadab the son of Rechab went to the temple of Baal, and said to the worshipers of Baal: Search, and see that there be not any with you of the servants of the Lord, but that there be the servants of Baal only.

24 And they went in to offer sacrifices and burnt offerings. But Jehu had prepared him fourscore men without, and said to them: If any of the men escape, whom I have brought into your hands, he that letteth him go shall answer life for life. 25 And it came to pass, when the burnt offering was ended, that Jehu commanded his soldiers and captains, saying: Go in, and kill them, let none escape. And the soldiers and captains slew them with the edge of the sword, and cast them out. And they went into the city of the temple of Baal, 26 and brought the statue out of Baal's temple, and burnt it, 27 and broke it in pieces. They destroyed also the temple of Baal, and made a jakes in its place unto this day.

28 So Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel; 29 but yet he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat who made Israel to sin, nor did he forsake the golden calves that were in Bethel and Dan. 30 And the Lord said to Jehu: Because thou hast diligently executed that which was right and pleasing in my eyes, and hast done to the house of Achab according to all that was in my heart, [v] thy children shall sit upon the throne of Israel to the fourth generation. 31 But Jehu took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord the God of Israel with all his heart, for he departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who had made Israel to sin.

32 In those days the Lord began to be weary of Israel; and Hazael ravaged them in all the coasts of Israel, 33 from the Jordan eastward, all the land of Galaad, and Gad, and Ruben, and Manasses, from Aroer, which is upon the torrent Arnon, and Galaad, and Basan.

Joachaz Succeeds Jehu. 34 But the rest of the acts of Jehu, and all that he did, and his strength, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 35 And Jehu slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria. And Joachaz his son reigned in his stead. 36 And the time that Jehu reigned over Israel, in Samaria, was eight and twenty years.

CHAPTER 11.

Athalia's Usurpation and Tyranny. 1 And [w] Athalia the mother of Ochozias seeing that her son was dead, arose, and slew all the royal seed. 2 But Josaba the daughter of king Joram, sister of Ochozias, took Joas the son of Ochozias, and stole him from among the king's sons that were slain, out of the bedchamber with his nurse, and hid him from the face of Athalia, so that he was not slain. 3 And he was with her six years hid in the house of the Lord. And Athalia reigned over the land.

4 [x] And in the seventh year Joiada sent, and taking the centurions and the soldiers, brought them in to him into the temple of the Lord, and made a covenant with them. And taking an oath of them in the house of the Lord, showed them the king's son, 5 and he commanded them, saying: This is the thing that you must do. 6 Let a third part of you go in on the sabbath, and keep the watch of the king's house; and let a third part be at the gate of Sur; and let a third part be at the gate behind the dwelling of the shieldbearers; and you all shall keep the watch of the house of Messa. 7 But let two parts of you, all that go forth on the sabbath, keep the watch of the house of the Lord about the king. 8 And you shall compass him round about, having weapons in your hands. And if any man shall enter the precinct of the temple, let him be slain. And you shall be with the king coming in and going out.

9 And the centurions did according to all things that Joiada the priest had commanded them. And taking everyone their men, that went in on the sabbath, with them that went out on the sabbath, came to Joiada the priest. 10 And he gave them the spears, and the arms of king David, which were in the house of the Lord. 11 And they stood having everyone their weapons in their hands, from the right side of the temple, unto the left side of the altar, and of the temple, about the king. 12 And he brought forth the king's son, and put the diadem upon him, and the testimony; and they made him king, and anointed him; and clapping their hands, they said: God save the king.

13 And Athalia heard the noise of the people running; and going in among the people in the temple of the Lord, 14 she saw the king standing upon a tribunal,* as the manner was, and the singers, and the trumpets near him, and all the people of the land rejoicing, and sounding the trumpets. And she rent her garments, and cried: A conspiracy, a conspiracy! 15 But Joiada commanded the centurions that were over the army, and said to them: Have her forth without the precinct of the temple, and whosoever shall follow her, let him be slain with the sword. For the priest had said: Let her not be slain in the temple of the Lord. 16 And they laid hands on her, and thrust her out by the way by which the horses go in, by the palace: and she was slain there.

17 And Joiada made a covenant between the Lord, and the king, and the people, that they should be the people of the Lord, and between the king and the people. 18 And all the people of the land went into the temple of Baal, and broke down his altars, and his images they broke in pieces thoroughly. They slew also Mathan the priest of Baal before the altar. And the priest set guards in the house of the Lord. 19 And he took the centurions, and the bands of the Cerethi and the Phelethi, and all the people of the land, and they brought the king from the house of the Lord. And they came by the way of the gate of the shieldbearers into the palace, and he sat on the throne of the kings. 20 And all the people of the land rejoiced, and the city was quiet; but Athalia was slain with the sword in the king's house. 21 Now Joas was seven years old, when he began to reign.

CHAPTER 12.

Reign of Joas In Juda. 1 In the y seventh year of Jehu, Joas began to reign. And he reigned forty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Sebia of Bersabee. 2 And Joas did that which was right before the Lord all the days that Joiada the priest taught him. 3 But yet he took not away the high places, for the people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places.

4 And Joas said to the priests: All the money of the sanctified* things, which is brought into the temple of the Lord by those that pass, which is offered for the price of a soul, and which of their own accord and of their own free heart they bring into the temple of the Lord, 5 let the priests take it according to their order, and repair the house, wheresoever they shall see anything that wanteth repairing. 6 Now till the three and twentieth year of king Joas, the priests did not make the repairs of the temple. 7 And king Joas called Joiada the high priest and the priests, saying to them: Why do you not repair the temple? Take you therefore money no more according to your order, but restore it for the repairing of the temple. 8 And the priests were forbidden to take any more money of the people, and to make the repairs of the house.

9 And Joiada the high priest took a chest and bored a hole in the top, and set it by the altar at the right hand of them that came into the house of the Lord, and the priests that kept the doors put therein all the money that was brought to the temple of the Lord. 10 And when they saw that there was very much money in the chest, the king's scribe and the high priest came up, and poured it out, and counted the money that was found in the house of the Lord. 11 And they gave it out by number and measure into the hands of them that were over the builders of the house of the Lord. And they laid it out to the carpenters, and the masons that wrought in the house of the Lord, 12 and made the repairs. And to them that cut stones, and to buy timber and stones to be hewed, that the repairs of the house of the Lord might be completely finished, and wheresoever there was need of expenses to uphold the house. 13 But there were not made of the same money for the temple of the Lord, bowls, or fleshhooks, or censers, or trumpets, or any vessel of gold and silver, of the money that was brought into the temple of the Lord. 14 For it was given to them that did the work, that the temple of the Lord might be repaired. 15 And they reckoned not with the men that received the money to distribute it to the workmen, but they bestowed it faithfully. 16 But the money for trespass, and the money for sins, they brought not into the temple of the Lord, because it was for the priests.

Hazael and the Death of Joas. 17 [z] Then Hazael king of Syria went up and fought against Geth, and took it and set his face to go up to Jerusalem. 18 Wherefore Joas king of Juda took all the sanctified things, which Josaphat, and Joram, and Ochozias his fathers the kings of Juda had dedicated to holy uses, and which he himself had offered; and all the silver that could be found in the treasures of the temple of the Lord, and in the king's palace; and sent it to Hazael king of Syria, and he went off from Jerusalem.

19 And the rest of the acts of Joas, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 20 And [a] his servants arose, and conspired among themselves, and slew Joas in the house of Mello in the descent of Sella. 21 For Josachar the son of Samaath, and Jozabad the son of Somer his servant struck him, and he died. And they buried him with his fathers in the city of David,* and Amasias his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 13.

Reign of Joachaz. 1 In the three and twentieth [b] year of Joas son of Ochozias king of Juda, Joachaz the son of Jehu reigned over Israel in Samaria, seventeen years. 2 And he did evil before the Lord, and followed the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, and he departed not from them. 3 And the wrath of the Lord was kindled against Israel, and he delivered them into the hand of Hazael the king of Syria, and into the hand of Benadad the son of Hazael, all days. 4 But Joachaz besought the face of the Lord, and the Lord heard him, for he saw the distress of Israel, because the king of Syria had oppressed them. 5 And the Lord gave Israel a savior, and they were delivered out of the hand of the king of Syria. And the children of Israel dwelt in their pavilions as yesterday and the day before. 6 But yet they departed not from the sins of Jeroboam, who made Israel to sin, but walked in them, and there still remained a grove* also in Samaria. 7 And Joachaz had no more left of the people than fifty horsemen, and ten chariots, and ten thousand footmen, for the king of Syria had slain them, and had brought them low as dust by threshing in the barnfloor.

8 But the rest of the acts of Joachaz, and all that he did, and his valor, are they not written in the books of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 9 And [c] Joachaz slept with his fathers, and they buried him in Samaria, and Joas his son reigned in his stead.

Joas, King of Israel. 10 In the seven and thirtieth year of [d] Joas king of Juda, Joas the son of Joachaz reigned over Israel in Samaria sixteen years. 11 And he did that which is evil in the sight of the Lord. He departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, but he walked in them.

12 But the rest of the acts of Joas, and all that he did, and his valor wherewith he fought against Amasias king of Juda, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 13 And Joas slept with his fathers, and Jeroboam sat upon his throne. But Joas was buried in Samaria with the kings of Israel.

14 Now Eliseus was sick of the illness whereof he died. And Joas king of Israel went down to him, and wept before him, and said: O my father, my father, the chariot of Israel and the guider thereof. 15 And Eliseus said to him: Bring a bow and arrows. And when he had brought him a bow and arrows, 16 he said to the king of Israel: Put thy hand upon the bow. And when he had put his hand, Eliseus put his hands over the king's hands, 17 and said: Open the window to the east. And when he had opened it, Eliseus said: Shoot an arrow. And he shot. And Eliseus said: The arrow of the Lord's deliverance, and the arrow of the deliverance from Syria; and thou shalt strike the Syrians in Aphec, till thou consume them. 18 And he said: Take the arrows. And when he had taken them, he said to him: Strike with an arrow upon the ground. And he struck three times and stood still. 19 And the man of God was angry with him, and said: If thou hadst smitten* five or six or seven times, thou hadst smitten Syria even to utter destruction, but now three times shalt thou smite it.

Death of Eliseus. 20 And Eliseus died, and they buried him. And the rovers from Moab came into the land the same year. 21 e And some that were burying a man, saw the rovers, and cast the body into the sepulchre of Eliseus. And when it had touched the bones of Eliseus, the man came to life, and stood upon his feet.

22 Now Hazael king of Syria afflicted Israel all the days of Joachaz. 23 And the Lord had mercy on them, and returned to them because of his covenant, which he had made with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob; and he would not destroy them, nor utterly cast them away, unto this present time. 24 And Hazael king of Syria died, and Benadad his son reigned in his stead. 25 Now Joas the son of Joachaz took the cities out of the hand of Benadad, the son of Hazael, which he had taken out of the hand of Joachaz his father by war: three times did Joas beat him, and he restored the cities to Israel.

13, 19: If thou hadst smitten, etc.: by this it appears that God revealed to the prophet that the king would overcome the Syrians as many times as he would then strike on the ground; but as he had not at the same time revealed to him how often the king would strike, the prophet was concerned to see that he struck only three times.

CHAPTER 14.

Reign of Amasias King of Juda. 1 In the second year f of Joas son of Joachaz, king of Israel, reigned Amasias son of Joas king of Juda. 2 g He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign: and nine and twenty years he reigned in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Joadan of Jerusalem. 3 And he did that which was right before the Lord, but yet not like David his father. He did according to all things that Joas his father did; 4 but this only, that he took not away the high places, for yet the people sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places. 5 And when he had possession of the kingdom, he put his servants to death that had slain the king his father; 6 but the children of the murderers he did not put to death, according to that which is written in the book of the law of Moses, wherein the Lord commanded, saying: h The fathers shall not be put to death for the children, neither shall the children be put to death for the fathers, but every man shall die for his own sins.

7 He slew of Edom in the valley of the Saltpits ten thousand men, and took the rock by war, and called the name thereof Jectehel, unto this day. 8 Then Amasias sent messengers to Joas son of Joachaz, son of Jehu king of Israel, saying: Come let us see one another.* 9 And Joas king of Israel sent again to Amasias king of Juda, saying: A thistle of Libanus sent to a cedar tree, which is in Libanus, saying: Give thy daughter to my son to wife. And the beasts of the forest, that are in Libanus, passed and trod down the thistle. 10 Thou hast beaten and prevailed over Edom, and thy heart hath lifted thee up. Be content with the glory, and sit at home. Why provokest thou evil, that thou shouldst fall, and Juda with thee? 11 But Amasias did not rest satisfied. So Joas king of Israel went up, and he and Amasias king of Juda saw one another in Bethsames a town in Juda. 12 And Juda was put to the worst before Israel, and they fled every man to their dwellings. 13 But Joas king of Israel took Amasias, king of Juda the son of Joas, the son of Ochozias, in Bethsames, and brought him into Jerusalem; and he broke down the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim to the gate of the corner, four hundred cubits. 14 And he took all the gold, and silver, and all the vessels, that were found in the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasures, and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

15 But the rest of the acts of Joas, which he did, and his valor, wherewith he fought against Amasias king of Juda, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 16 And Joas slept with his fathers, and was buried in Samaria, with the kings of Israel. And Jeroboam his son reigned in his stead.

17 And Amasias the son of Joas king of Juda lived, after the death of Joas son of Joachaz king of Israel, fifteen years.

18 And the rest of the acts of Amasias, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

19 Now they made a conspiracy against him in Jerusalem, and he fled to Lachis. i And they sent after him to Lachis, and killed him there. 20 And they brought him away upon horses, and he was buried in Jerusalem with his fathers in the city of David.

Azarias and Jeroboam, Kings of Juda. 21 j And all the people of Juda took Azarias, who was sixteen years old, and made him king instead of his father Amasias. 22 He built Elath, and restored it to Juda, after that the king slept with his fathers.

23 In the fifteenth year of Amasias k son of Joas king of Juda, reigned Jeroboam the son of Joas king of Israel in Samaria, one and forty years. 24 And he did that which was evil before the Lord. He departed not from all the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin. 25 He restored the borders of Israel from the entrance of Emath unto the sea of the wilderness, according to the word of the Lord the God of Israel, which he spoke by his servant l Jonas the son of Amathi, the prophet, who was of Geth, which is in Opher.* 26 For the Lord saw the affliction of Israel that it was exceeding bitter, and that they were consumed even to them that were shut up in prison, and the lowest persons, and that there was no one to help Israel. 27 And the Lord did not say that he would blot out the name of Israel from under heaven, but he saved them by the hand of Jeroboam the son of Joas.

28 But the rest of the acts of Jeroboam, and all that he did, and his valor wherewith he fought, and how he restored Damascus and Emath to Juda in Israel, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 29 And Jeroboam slept with his fathers the kings of Israel, and Zacharias his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 15.

Azarias, the King of Juda. 1 In the seven and twentieth year m of Jeroboam king of Israel reigned Azarias* son of Amasias, king of Juda. 2 He was sixteen years old, when he began to reign, and he reigned two and fifty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Jechelia of Jerusalem. 3 And he did that which was pleasing before the Lord, according to all that his father Amasias had done. 4 But the high places he did not destroy, for the people sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places. 5 n And the Lord struck the king, so that he was a leper* unto the day of his death, and he dwelt in a free house apart, but Joatham the king's son governed the palace, and judged the people of the land.

6 And the rest of the acts of Azarias, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 7 And Azarias o slept with his fathers. And they buried him with his ancestors in the city of David, and Joatham his son reigned in his stead.

eight and thirtieth year of Azarias king of Juda, reigned Zacharias son of Jeroboam over Israel in Samaria six months. 9 And he did that which is evil before the Lord, as his fathers had done. He departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin. 10 And Sellum the son of Jabes conspired against him, and struck him publicly and killed him, and reigned in his place.

11 Now the rest of the acts of Zacharias, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

12 q This was the word of the Lord which he spoke to Jehu, saying: Thy children to the fourth generation shall sit upon the throne of Israel. And so it came to pass.

Sellum, King of Israel. 13 Sellum the son of Jabes began to reign in the nine [r] and thirtieth year of Azarias king of Juda, and reigned one month in Samaria. 14 And Manahem the son of Gadi went up from Thersa, and he came into Samaria, and struck Sellum the son of Jabes in Samaria, and slew him, and reigned in his stead.

15 And the rest of the acts of Sellum, and his conspiracy, which he made, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

16 Then Manahem destroyed Thapsa and all that were in it and the borders thereof from Thersa, because they would not open to him. And he slew all the women thereof that were with child, and ripped them up.

Manahem, King of Israel. 17 In the nine and thirtieth year of Azarias king of Juda, reigned Manahem son of Gadi over Israel ten years in Samaria. 18 And he did that which was evil before the Lord. He departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin all his days. 19 And Phul king of the Assyrians came into the land, and Manahem gave Phul a thousand talents of silver, to aid him and to establish him in the kingdom. 20 And Manahem laid a tax upon Israel, on all that were mighty and rich, to give the king of the Assyrians, each man fifty sicles of silver. So the king of the Assyrians turned back, and did not stay in the land.

21 And the rest of the acts of Manahem, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel? 22 And Manahem slept with his fathers, and Phaceia his son reigned in his stead.

Phaceia, King of Israel. 23 In the fiftieth year of [s] Azarias king of Juda reigned Phaceia the son of Manahem over Israel in Samaria two years. 24 And he did that which was evil before the Lord. He departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin. 25 And Phacee the son of Romelia, his captain conspired against him, [t] and smote him in Samaria, in the tower of the king's house, near Argob, and near Arie, and with him fifty men of the sons of the Galaadites, and he slew him and reigned in his stead.

26 And the rest of the acts of Phaceia, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

Phacee, King of Israel. 27 In the two and fiftieth year of Azarias king of Juda reigned Phacee the son of Romelia over Israel in Samaria twenty years. 28 And he did that which was evil before the Lord. He departed not from the sins of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin. 29 In the days of Phacee king of Israel came Theglath-phalasar king of Assyria, and took Aion, and Abel Domum Maacha, and Janoe, and Cedes, and Asor, and Galaad, and Galilee, and all the land of Nephtali: and carried them captives into Assyria. 30 Now Osee son of Ela conspired, and formed a plot against Phacee, the son of Romelia, and struck him, and slew him; and reigned in his stead in the twentieth year of Joatham* the son of Ozias.

31 But the rest of the acts of Phacee [u] and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Israel?

Joatham, King of Juda. 32 v In the second year of Phacee the son of Romelia king of Israel reigned Joatham son of Ozias king of Juda. 33 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Jerusa, the daughter of Sadoc. 34 And he did that which was right before the Lord: according to all that his father Ozias had done, so did he. 35 But the high places he took not away. The people still sacrificed and burnt incense in the high places. He built the highest gate of the house of the Lord.

36 But the rest of the acts of Joatham, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 37 In those days the Lord began to send into [w] Juda, Rasin king of Syria, and Phacee the son of Romelia. 38 And Joatham slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David his father, and Achaz his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 16.

Achaz Profanes the Temple. 1 In the seventeenth year of Phacee the son of Romelia reigned Achaz the son of Joatham king of Juda. 2 [x] Achaz was twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned sixteen years [y] in Jerusalem. He did not that which was pleasing in the sight of the Lord his God, as David his father. 3 But he walked in the way of the kings of Israel. Moreover he consecrated also his son, making him pass through the fire according to the idols of the nations, which the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel. 4 He sacrificed also and burnt incense in the high places and on the hills, and under every green tree.

5 [z] Then Rasin king of Syria and Phacee son of Romelia king of Israel came up to Jerusalem to fight. And they besieged Achaz, but were not able to overcome him. 6 At that time Rasin king of Syria restored Aila to Syria, and drove the men of Juda out of Aila: and the Edomites came into Aila, and dwelt there unto this day. 7 And Achaz sent messengers to Theglathphalasar king of the Assyrians, saying: I am thy servant, and thy son. Come up, and save me out of the hand of the king of Syria, and out of the hand of the king of Israel, who are risen up together against me. 8 And when he had gathered together the silver and gold that could be found in the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasures, he sent it for a present to the king of the Assyrians. 9 And he agreed to his desire, for the king of the Assyrians went up against Damascus, and laid it waste. And he carried away the inhabitants thereof to Cyrene, but Rasin he slew.

10 And king Achaz went to Damascus to meet Theglathphalasar king of the Assyrians, and when he had seen the altar of Damascus, king Achaz sent to Urias the priest a pattern of it, and its likeness according to all the work thereof. 11 And Urias the priest built an altar, according to all that king Achaz had commanded from Damascus. So did Urias the priest, until king Achaz came from Damascus. 12 And when the king was come from Damascus, he saw the altar and worshiped it; and went up and offered holocausts, and his own sacrifice; 13 and offered libations and poured the blood of the peace offerings, which he had offered upon the altar. 14 But the altar of brass that was before the Lord, he removed from the face of the temple, and from the place of the altar, and from the place of the temple of the Lord; and he set it at the side of the altar towards the north. 15 And king Achaz commanded Urias the priest saying: Upon the great altar offer the morning holocaust, and the evening sacrifice, and the king's holocaust and his sacrifice, and the holocaust of the whole people of the land, and their sacrifices, and their libations, and all the blood of the holocaust, and all the blood of the victim thou shalt pour out upon it; but the altar of brass shall be ready at my pleasure. 16 So Urias the priest did according to all that king Achaz had commanded him. 17 And king Achaz took away the graven bases, and the laver that was upon them, and he took down the sea from the brazen oxen that held it up, and put it upon a pavement of stone. 18 The Musach* also for the sabbath, which he had built in the temple, and the king's entry from without he turned into the temple of the Lord, because of the king of the Assyrians.

19 Now the rest of the acts of Achaz, which he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 20 And Achaz slept with his fathers, and was buried with them in the city of David, [a] and Ezechias his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 17.

Israel in Captivity; Reign of Osee. 1 In the twelfth year of [b] Achaz king of Juda,* Osee the son of Ela reigned in Samaria over Israel nine years. 2 And he did evil before the Lord, but not as the kings of Israel that had been before him. 3 [c] Against him came up Salmanasar king of the Assyrians, and Osee became his servant, and paid him tribute. 4 And when the king of the Assyrians found that Osee endeavoring to rebel had sent messengers to Sua the king of Egypt, that he might not pay tribute to the king of the Assyrians, as he had done every year, he besieged him, bound him, and cast him into prison. 5 And he went through all the land: and going up to Samaria, he besieged it three years. 6 [d] And in the ninth year of Osee, the king of the Assyrians took Samaria, and carried Israel away to Assyria. And he placed them in Hala and Habor by the river of Gozan, in the cities of the Medes.

7 For so it was that the children of Israel had sinned against the Lord their God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, from under the hand of Pharao king of Egypt, and they worshiped strange gods. 8 And they walked according to the way of the nations which the Lord had destroyed in the sight of the children of Israel and of the kings of Israel, because they had done in like manner. 9 And the children of Israel offended the Lord their God with things that were not right; and built them high places in all their cities from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city. 10 And they made them statues and groves on every high hill, and under every shady tree. 11 And they burnt incense there upon altars after the manner of the nations which the Lord had removed from their face, and they did wicked things, provoking the Lord. 12 And they worshiped abominations, concerning which the Lord had commanded them that they should not do this thing.

13 And the Lord testified to them in Israel and in Juda by the hand of all the prophets and seers, saying: [e] Return from your wicked ways, and keep my precepts and ceremonies, according to all the law which I commanded your fathers, and as I have sent to you in the hand of my servants the prophets. 14 And they hearkened not, but hardened their necks like to the neck of their fathers, who would not obey the Lord their God. 15 And they rejected his ordinances and the covenant that he made with their fathers, and the testimonies which he testified against them; and they followed vanities, and acted vainly; and they followed the nations that were round about them, concerning which the Lord had commanded them that they should not do as they did. 16 And they forsook all the precepts of the Lord their God: and made to themselves two molten calves, and groves, and adored all the host of heaven, and they served Baal, 17 and consecrated their sons, and their daughters through fire, and they gave themselves to divinations, and soothsayings, and they delivered themselves up to do evil before the Lord, to provoke him. 18 And the Lord was very angry with Israel, and removed them from his sight, and there remained only the tribe of Juda. 19 But neither did Juda itself keep the commandments of the Lord their God, but they walked in the errors of Israel, which they had wrought. 20 And the Lord cast off all the seed of Israel, and afflicted them and delivered them into the hand of spoilers, till he cast them away from his face; 21 [f] even from that time, when Israel was rent from the house of David, and made Jeroboam son of Nabat their king, for Jeroboam separated Israel from the Lord, and made them commit a great sin. 22 And the children of Israel walked in all the sins of Jeroboam, which he had done, and they departed not from them, 23 [g] till the Lord removed Israel from his face, as he had spoken in the hand of all his servants the prophets. And Israel was carried away out of their land to Assyria, unto this day.

from Babylon, and from Cutha, and from Avah, and from Emath, and from Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel. And they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof. 25 And when they began to dwell there, they feared not the Lord; and the Lord sent lions among them, which killed them. 26 And it was told the king of the Assyrians, and it was said: The nations which thou hast removed, and made to dwell in the cities of Samaria, know not the ordinances of the God of the land; and the Lord hath sent lions among them; and behold they kill them, because they know not the manner of the God of the land. 27 And the king of the Assyrians commanded, saying: Carry thither one of the priests whom you brought from thence captive, and let him go, and dwell with them; and let him teach them the ordinances of the God of the land. 28 So one of the priests who had been carried away captive from Samaria, came and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they should worship the Lord.

29 And every nation made gods of their own, and put them in the temples of the high places, which the Samaritans had made, every nation in their cities where they dwelt. 30 For the men of Babylon made Sochothbenoth; and the Cuthites made Nergel; and the men of Emath made Asima. 31 And the Hevites made Nebahaz and Tharthac; and they that were of Sepharvaim burnt their children in fire, to Adramelech and Anamelech the gods of Sepharvaim. 32 And nevertheless they worshiped the Lord. And they made to themselves, of the lowest of the people, priests of the high places, and they placed them in the temples of the high places. 33 And when they worshiped the Lord, they served also their own gods according to the custom of the nations out of which they were brought to Samaria.

34 Unto this day they followed the old manner: they fear not the Lord, neither do they keep his ceremonies, and judgments, and law, and the commandment which the Lord commanded the children of Jacob, whom he surnamed Israel,[h] 35 with whom he made a covenant, and charged them, saying: You shall not fear strange gods, nor shall you adore them, nor worship them, nor sacrifice to them. 36 But the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arm, him shall you fear, and him shall you adore, and to him shall you sacrifice. 37 And the ceremonies, and judgments, and law, and the commandment which he wrote for you, you shall observe to do them always; and you shall not fear strange gods. 38 And the covenant that he made with you, you shall not forget; neither shall ye worship strange gods, 39 but fear the Lord your God, and he shall deliver you out of the hand of all your enemies. 40 But they did not hearken, but did according to their old custom. 41 So these nations feared the Lord, but nevertheless served also their idols: their children also and grandchildren, as their fathers did, so do they unto this day.

II: THE KINGDOM OF JUDA

CHAPTER 18.

Reign of Ezechias. 1 In the third year [i] of Osee the son of Ela king of Israel, reigned [j] Ezechias the son of Achaz king of Juda. 2 He was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned nine and twenty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Abi the daughter of Zacharias. 3 And he did that which was good before the Lord, according to all that David his father had done. 4 He destroyed the high places, and broke the statues in pieces, and cut down the groves, and broke the brazen serpent, [k] which Moses had made, for till that time the children of Israel burnt incense to it, and he called its name Nohestan.*

5 He trusted in the Lord the God of Israel, so that after him there was none like him among all the kings of Juda, nor any of them that were before him. 6 And he stuck to the Lord, and departed not from his steps, but kept his commandments, which the Lord commanded Moses. 7 Wherefore the Lord also was with him, and in all things to which he went forth, he behaved himself wisely. And

18, 4: And he called its name Nohestan: i.e., their brass; or a little brass. So he called it in contempt, because they had made an idol of it.

he rebelled against the king of the Assyrians, and served him not. 8 He smote the Philistines as far as Gaza, and all their borders, from the tower of the watchmen to the fenced city.

9 l In the fourth year of king Ezechias, which was the seventh year of Osee the son of Ela king of Israel, Salmanasar king of the Assyrians came up to Samaria, and besieged it, 10 and took it. For after three years, in the sixth year of Ezechias, that is, in the ninth year of Osee king of Israel, Samaria was taken,m 11 and the king of the Assyrians carried away Israel into Assyria, and placed them in Hala and in Habor by the rivers of Gozan in the cities of the Medes, 12 because they hearkened not to the voice of the Lord their God, but transgressed his covenant. All that Moses the servant of the Lord commanded, they would not hear nor do.

13 n In the fourteenth year of king Ezechias, Sennacherib king of the Assyrians came up against the fenced cities of Juda, and took them. 14 Then Ezechias king of Juda sent messengers to the king of the Assyrians to Lachis, saying: I have offended, depart from me; and all that thou shalt put upon me, I will bear. And the king of the Assyrians put a tax upon Ezechias king of Juda, of three hundred talents of silver, and thirty talents of gold. 15 And Ezechias gave all the silver that was found in the house of the Lord, and in the king's treasures. 16 At that time Ezechias broke the doors of the temple of the Lord, and the plates of gold which he had fastened on them, and gave them to the king of the Assyrians.

17 And the king of the Assyrians sent Tharthan and Rabsaris and Rabsaces from Lachis to king Ezechias with a strong army to Jerusalem. And they went up and came to Jerusalem, and they stood by the conduit of the upper pool, which is in the way of the fuller's field. 18 And they called for the king: and there went out to them Eliacim the son of Helcias who was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Joahe the son of Asaph the recorder.

The Messengers of Sennacherib. 19 And Rabsaces said to them: Speak to Ezechias: Thus saith the great king, the king of the Assyrians: What is this confidence, wherein thou trustest? 20 Perhaps thou hast taken counsel, to prepare thyself for battle. On whom dost thou trust, that thou darest to rebel? 21 Dost thou trust in Egypt a staff of a broken reed, upon which if a man lean, it will break and go into his hand, and pierce it? So is Pharao king of Egypt, to all that trust in him. 22 But if you say to me: We trust in the Lord our God: is it not he, whose high places and altars Ezechias hath taken away, and hath commanded Juda and Jerusalem: You shall worship before this altar in Jerusalem? 23 Now therefore come over to my master the king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses, and see whether you be able to have riders for them. 24 And how can you stand against one lord of the least of my master's servants? Dost thou trust in Egypt for chariots and for horsemen? 25 Is it without the will of the Lord that I am come up to this place to destroy it? The Lord said to me: Go up to this land and destroy it.

26 Then Eliacim the son of Helcias, and Sobna, and Joahe said to Rabsaces: We pray thee speak to us thy servants in Syriac, for we understand that tongue, and speak not to us in the Jews' language, in the hearing of the people that are upon the wall. 27 And Rabsaces answered them, saying: Hath my master sent me to thy master and to thee, to speak these words, and not rather to the men that sit upon the wall, that they may eat their own dung, and drink their urine with you?

28 Then Rabsaces stood, and cried out with a loud voice in the Jews' language, and said: Hear the words of the great king, the king of the Assyrians. 29 Thus saith the king: Let not Ezechias deceive you, for he shall not be able to deliver you out of my hand. 30 Neither let him make you trust in the Lord, saying: The Lord will surely deliver us, and this city shall not be given into the hand of the king of the Assyrians. 31 Do not hearken to Ezechias. For thus saith the king of the Assyrians: Do with me that which is for your advantage, and come out to me; and every man of you shall eat of his own vineyard, and of his own fig tree; and you shall drink water of your own cisterns, 32 till I come, and take you away to a land, like to your own land, a fruitful land, and plentiful in wine, a land of bread and vineyards, a land of olives, and oil and honey, and you shall live, and not die. Hearken not to Ezechias, who deceiveth you, saying: The Lord will deliver us. 33 Have any of the gods of the nations delivered their land from the hand of the king of Assyria? 34 [o] Where is the god of Emath, and of Arphad? Where is the god of Sepharvaim, of Ana, and of Ava? [p] Have they delivered Samaria out of my hand? 35 Who are they among all the gods of the nations, that have delivered their country out of my hand, that the Lord may deliver Jerusalem out of my hand?

36 But the people held their peace, and answered him not a word, for they had received commandment from the king that they should not answer him. 37 And Eliacim the son of Helcias, who was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and Joahe the son of Asaph the recorder, came to Ezechias, with their garments rent, and told him the words of Rabsaces.

CHAPTER 19.

Ezechias Is Assured of the Help of God. 1 And [q] when king Ezechias heard these words, he rent his garments, and covered himself with sackcloth, and went into the house of the Lord. 2 And he sent Eliacim, who was over the house, and Sobna the scribe, and the ancients of the priests covered with sackcloths, to Isaias the prophet the son of Amos, 3 and they said to him: Thus saith Ezechias: This day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy. The children are come to the birth, and the woman in travail hath not strength. 4 It may be the Lord thy God will hear all the words of Rabsaces, whom the king of the Assyrians his master hath sent to reproach the living God, and to reprove with words, which the Lord thy God hath heard; and do thou offer prayer for the remnants that are found.

5 So the servants of king Ezechias came to Isaias. 6 And Isaias said to them: Thus shall you say to your master: Thus saith the Lord: Be not afraid for the words which thou hast heard, with which the servants of the king of the Assyrians have blasphemed me. 7 Behold I will send a spirit upon him, and he shall hear a message, and shall return into his own country, and I will make him fall by the sword in his own country.

8 And Rabsaces returned, and found the king of the Assyrians besieging Lobna, for he had heard that he was departed from Lachis. 9 And when he heard of Tharaca king of Ethiopia, saying: Behold, he is come out to fight with thee; and was going against him, he sent messengers to Ezechias, saying: 10 Thus shall you say to Ezechias king of Juda: Let not thy God deceive thee, in whom thou trustest; and do not say: Jerusalem shall not be delivered into the hands of the king of the Assyrians. 11 Behold thou hast heard what the kings of the Assyrians have done to all countries, how they have laid them waste; and canst thou alone be delivered? 12 Have the gods of the nations delivered any of them, whom my fathers have destroyed, to wit, Gozan, and Haran, and Reseph, and the children of Eden that were in Thelassar? 13 Where is the king of Emath, and the king of Arphad, and the king of the city of Sepharvaim, of Ana and of Ava?

14 And when Ezechias had received the letter of the hand of the messengers, and had read it, he went up to the house of the Lord, and spread it before the Lord, 15 and he prayed in his sight, saying: O Lord God of Israel, who sitteth upon the cherubim, thou alone art the God of all the kings of the earth; thou madest heaven and earth; 16 incline thy ear, and hear; open, O Lord, thy eyes, and see and hear all the words of Sennacherib, who hath sent to upbraid unto us the living God. 17 Of a truth, O Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have destroyed nations, and the lands of them all. 18 And they have cast their gods into the fire, for they were not gods, but the works of men's hands of wood and stone, and they destroyed them. 19 Now therefore, O Lord our God, save us from his hand, that all the kingdoms of the earth may know that thou art the Lord the only God.

The Message of Isaias. 20 And Isaias the son of Amos sent to Ezechias, saying: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: I have heard the prayer thou hast made to me concerning Sennacherib king of the Assyrians.

21 This is the word that the Lord hath spoken of him: The virgin the daughter of Sion hath despised thee, and laughed thee to scorn. The daughter of Jerusalem hath wagged her head behind thy back.

22 Whom hast thou reproached, and whom hast thou blasphemed? Against whom hast thou exalted thy voice, and lifted up thy eyes on high? Against the holy one of Israel.

23 By the hand of thy servants thou hast reproached the Lord, and hast said: With the multitude of my chariots I have gone up to the height of the mountains, to the top of Libanus, and have cut down its tall cedars, and its choice fir trees. And I have entered into the furthest parts thereof, and the forest of its Carmel.*

24 I have cut down, and I have drunk strange waters, and have dried up with the soles of my feet all the shut up waters.

25 Hast thou not heard what I have done from the beginning? From the days of old I have formed it,* and now I have brought it to effect: that fenced cities of fighting men should be turned to heaps of ruin.

26 And the inhabitants of them were weak of hand, they trembled and were confounded, they became like the grass of the field, and the green herb on the tops of houses, which withered before it came to maturity.

27 Thy dwelling and thy going out, and thy coming in, and thy way I knew before, and thy rage against me.

28 Thou hast been mad against me, and thy pride hath come up to my ears. Therefore, I will put a ring in thy nose, and a bit between thy lips, and I will turn thee back by the way by which thou camest.

29 And to thee, O Ezechias, this shall be a sign: [r] Eat this year what thou shalt find; and in the second year, such things as spring of themselves; but in the third year sow and reap; plant vineyards, and eat the fruit of them. 30 And whatsoever shall be left of the house of Juda, shall take root downward, and bear fruit upward. 31 For out of Jerusalem shall go forth a remnant, and that which shall be saved out of mount Sion. The zeal of the Lord of hosts shall do this.

32 Wherefore thus saith the Lord concerning the king of the Assyrians: He shall not come into this city, nor shoot an arrow into it, nor come before it with shield, nor cast a trench about it. 33 By the way that he came, he shall return; and into this city he shall not come, saith the Lord. 34 And I will protect this city, and will save it for my own sake, and for David my servant's sake.

35 [s] And it came to pass that night, that an angel of the Lord came, and slew in the camp of the Assyrians a hundred and eighty-five thousand. And when he arose early in the morning, he saw all the bodies of the dead. 36 And Sennacherib king of the Assyrians departing went away, and he returned and abode in Ninive. 37 [t] And as he was worshiping in the temple of Nesroch his god, Adramelech and Sarasar his sons slew him with the sword, and they fled into the land of the Armenians, and Asarhaddon his son reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 20.

Ezechias Is Stricken but Prays and Obtains Longer Life. 1 In those days [u] Ezechias was sick unto death; and Isaias the son of Amos the prophet came and said to him: Thus saith the Lord God: Give charge concerning thy house, for thou shalt die, and not live. 2 And he turned his face to the wall, and prayed to the Lord, saying: 3 I beseech thee, O Lord, remember how I have walked before thee in truth, and with a perfect heart, and have done that which is pleasing before thee. And Ezechias wept with much weeping.

4 And before Isaias was gone out of the middle of the court, the word of the Lord came to him, saying: 5 Go back, and tell Ezechias the captain of my people: Thus saith the Lord the God of David thy father: I have heard thy pray-

19, 23: Carmel: a pleasant fruitful hill in the forest. These expressions are figurative, signifying under the names of mountains and forests, the kings and provinces whom the Assyrians had triumphed over.

19, 25: I have formed it, etc.: all the exploits in which you have taken pride, are no more than what I have decreed, and are not to be ascribed to your wisdom or strength, but to My will and ordinance, who have given you to take and destroy so many fenced cities, and to carry terror wherever you come. er, and I have seen thy tears, and behold I have healed thee; on the third day thou shalt go up to the temple of the Lord. 6 And I will add to thy days fifteen years; and I will deliver thee and this city out of the hand of the king of the Assyrians, and I will protect this city for my own sake, and for David my servant's sake. 7 And Isaias said: Bring me a lump of figs. And when they had brought it, and laid it upon his boil, he was healed. 8 And Ezechias had said to Isaias: What shall be the sign that the Lord will heal me, and that I shall go up to the temple of the Lord the third day? 9 And Isaias said to him: This shall be the sign from the Lord, that the Lord will do the word which he hath spoken: Wilt thou that the shadow go forward ten lines, or that it go back so many degrees? 10 And Ezechias said: It is an easy matter for the shadow to go forward ten lines; and I do not desire that this be done, but let it return back ten degrees. 11 And Isaias the prophet called upon the Lord, and he brought the shadow ten degrees backwards by the lines, by which it had already gone down in the dial of Achaz.

Babylonian Captivity Predicted. 12 v At that time Berodach Baladan, the son of Baladan, king of the Babylonians, sent letters and presents to Ezechias, for he had heard that Ezechias had been sick. 13 And Ezechias rejoiced at their coming, and he showed them the house of his aromatical spices, and the gold and the silver, and divers precious odors, and ointments, and the house of his vessels, and all that he had in his treasures. There was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominions that Ezechias showed them not. 14 And Isaias the prophet came to king Ezechias, and said to him: What said these men? Or from whence came they to thee? And Ezechias said to him: From a far country they came to me out of Babylon. 15 And he said: What did they see in thy house? Ezechias said: They saw all the things that are in my house; there is nothing among my treasures that I have not shown them. 16 And Isaias said to Ezechias: Hear the word of the Lord. 17 Behold the days shall come, that all that is in thy house, and that thy fathers have laid up in store unto this day, shall be carried into Babylon. Nothing shall be left, saith the Lord. 18 And of thy sons also that shall issue from thee, whom thou shalt beget, they shall take away, and they shall be eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon. 19 Ezechias said to Isaias: The word of the Lord, which thou hast spoken, is good; let peace and truth be in my days.

20 And the rest of the acts of Ezechias and all his might, and how he made a pool, and a conduit, and brought waters into the city, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 21 w And Ezechias slept with his fathers, and Manasses his son reigned in his stead.

1. The Wicked Kings

CHAPTER 21.

Reign of Manasses. 1 Manasses x was twelve years old when he began to reign, and he reigned five and fifty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Haphsiba. 2 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, according to the idols of the nations which the Lord destroyed from before the face of the children of Israel. 3 y And he turned, and built up the high places which Ezechias his father had destroyed; and he set up altars to Baal, and made groves, as Achab the king of Israel had done; and he adored all the host of heaven, and served them. 4 And he built altars in the house of the Lord, of which the Lord said: z In Jerusalem I will put my name. 5 And he built altars for all the host of heaven in the two courts of the temple of the Lord. 6 And he made his son pass through fire; and he used divination, and observed omens, and appointed pythons,* and multiplied soothsayers to do evil before the Lord, and to provoke him. 7 He set also an idol of the grove, which he made, in the temple of the Lord, a concerning which the Lord said to David, and to Solomon his son: In this temple, and in Jerusalem, which I have chosen out of all the tribes of Israel, I will put my name forever. 8 And I will no more make the feet of Israel to be moved out of the land, which I gave to their fathers, only if they will observe to do all that I have commanded them according to the law which my servant Moses commanded them. 9 But they hearkened not, but were seduced by Manasses to do evil more than the nations which the Lord destroyed before the children of Israel:

10 And the Lord spoke in the hand of his servants, the prophets, saying: 11 b Because Manasses king of Juda hath done these most wicked abominations, beyond all that the Amorrhites did before him, and hath made Juda also to sin with his filthy doings, 12 therefore thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Behold I will bring on evils upon Jerusalem and Juda, that whosoever shall hear of them, both his ears shall tingle. 13 And I will stretch over Jerusalem the line of Samaria, and the weight of the house of Achab; and I will efface Jerusalem, as tables are wont to be effaced; and I will erase and turn it, and draw the pencil often over the face thereof. 14 And I will leave the remnants of my inheritance, and will deliver them into the hands of their enemies. And they shall become a prey, and a spoil to all their enemies, 15 because they have done evil before me, and have continued to provoke me, from the day that their fathers came out of Egypt, even unto this day.

16 c Moreover, Manasses shed also very much innocent blood, till he filled Jerusalem up to the mouth, besides his sins, wherewith he made Juda to sin, to do evil before the Lord.

17 Now the rest of the acts of Manasses, and all that he did, and his sin which he sinned, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 18 And Manasses slept d with his fathers, and was buried in the garden of his own house, in the garden of Oza. And Amon his son reigned in his stead.

Reign of Amon. 19 Two and twenty years old was Amon when he began to reign, and he reigned two years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Messalemeth the daughter of Harus of Jeteba. 20 And he did evil in the sight of the Lord, as Manasses his father had done. 21 And he walked in all the way in which his father had walked; and he served the abominations which his father had served, and he adored them, 22 and forsook the Lord the God of his fathers, and walked not in the way of the Lord. 23 And his servants plotted against him, and slew the king in his own house. 24 But the people of the land slew all them that had conspired against king Amon, and made Josias his son their king in his stead.

25 But the rest of the acts of Amon which he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? 26 And they buried him in his sepulchre in the garden of Oza. And his son Josias reigned in his stead.

CHAPTER 22.

The Saintly King Josias. 1 Josias e was eight years old when he began to reign: he reigned one and thirty years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Idida, the daughter of Hadaia, of Besecath. 2 And he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of David his father: he turned not aside to the right hand, or to the left.

3 And in the eighteenth year of f king Josias, the king sent Saphan the son of Assia, the son of Messulam, the scribe of the temple of the Lord, saying to him: 4 Go to Helcias the high priest, that the money may be put together which is brought into the temple of the Lord, which the doorkeepers of the temple have gathered of the people, 5 and let it be given to the workmen by the overseers of the house of the Lord; and let them distribute it to those that work in the temple of the Lord, to repair the temple; 6 that is, to carpenters and masons, and to such as mend breaches; and that timber may be bought, and stones out of the quarries, to repair the temple of the Lord. 7 But let there be no reckoning made with them of the money which they receive, but let them have it in their power and in their trust.

8 And Helcias the high priest said to Saphan the scribe: g I have found the book of the law* in the house of the Lord; and Helcias gave the book to Saphan, and he read it. 9 And Saphan the scribe came to the king, and brought him word again concerning that which he had commanded, and said: Thy servants have gathered together the money that was found in the house of the Lord, and they have given it to be distributed to the workmen by the overseers of the works of the temple of the Lord. 10 And Saphan the scribe told the king, saying: Helcias the priest hath delivered to me a book. And when Saphan had read it before the king, 11 and the king had heard the words of the law of the Lord, he rent his garments. 12 And he commanded Helcias the priest, and Ahicam the son of Saphan, and Achobor the son of Micha, and Saphan the scribe, and Asaia the king's servant, saying: 13 Go and consult the Lord for me, and for the people, and for all Juda, concerning the words of this book which is found, for the great wrath of the Lord is kindled against us, because our fathers have not hearkened to the words of this book, to do all that is written for us.

14 So Helcias the priest, and Ahicam, and Achobor, and Saphan, and Asaia went to Holda the prophetess the wife of Sellum the son of Thecua, the son of Araas keeper of the wardrobe, who dwelt in Jerusalem in the Second,* and they spoke to her. 15 And she said to them: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Tell the man that sent you to me: 16 Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I will bring evils upon this place, and upon the inhabitants thereof, all the words of the law which the king of Juda hath read, 17 because they have forsaken me, and have sacrificed to strange gods, provoking me by all the works of their hands. Therefore my indignation shall be kindled against this place, and shall not be quenched. 18 But to the king of Juda, who sent you to consult the Lord, thus shall you say: Thus saith the Lord the God of Israel: Forasmuch as thou hast heard the words of the book, 19 and thy heart hath been moved to fear, and thou hast humbled thyself before the Lord, hearing the words against this place and the inhabitants thereof, to wit, that they should become a wonder and a curse, and thou hast rent thy garments, and wept before me, I also have heard thee, saith the Lord. 20 Therefore I will gather thee to thy fathers, and thou shalt be gathered to thy sepulchre in peace, that thy eyes may not see all the evils which I will bring upon this place.

CHAPTER 23.

The Zeal of Josias. 1 And [h] they brought the king word again what she had said. And he sent, and all the ancients of Juda and Jerusalem were assembled to him. 2 And the king went up to the temple of the Lord, and all the men of Juda, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem with him, the priests and the prophets, and all the people both little and great, and in the hearing of them all he read all the words of the book of the covenant which was found in the house of the Lord. 3 And the king stood upon the step,* and made a covenant with the Lord, to walk after the Lord, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies and his ceremonies, with all their heart, and with all their soul, and to perform the words of this covenant, which were written in that book; and the people agreed to the covenant.

The Temple Is Cleansed. 4 And the king commanded Helcias the high priest, and the priests of the second order, and the doorkeepers, [i] to cast out of the temple of the Lord all the vessels that had been made for Baal, and for the grove, and for all the host of heaven; and he burnt them without Jerusalem in the valley of Cedron, and he carried the ashes of them to Bethel. 5 And he destroyed the soothsayers, whom the kings of Juda had appointed to sacrifice in the high places in the cities of Juda, and round about Jerusalem; them also that burnt incense to Baal, and to the sun, and to the moon, and to the twelve signs, and to all the host of heaven. 6 And he caused the grove to be carried out from the house of the Lord without Jerusalem to the valley of Cedron, and he burnt it there, and reduced it to dust, and cast the dust upon the graves of the common people. 7 He destroyed also the pavilions of the effeminate which were in the house of the Lord, for which the women wove as it were little dwellings for the grove. 8 And he gathered together all the priests out of the cities of Juda; and he defiled the high places, where the priests offered sacrifice, from Gabaa to Bersabee; and he broke down the altars of the gates that were in the entering in of the gate of Josue governor of the city, which was on the left hand of the gate of the city. 9 However the priests of the high places came not up to the altar of the Lord in Jerusalem, but only ate of the unleavened bread among their brethren. 10 And he defiled Topheth, which is in the valley of the son of Ennom, that no man should consecrate there his son or his daughter through fire to Moloch. 11 And he took away the horses which the kings of Juda had given to the sun, at the entering in of the temple of the Lord, near the chamber of Nathanmelech the eunuch, who was in Pharurim; and he burnt the chariots of the sun with fire. 12 And the altars that were upon the top of the upper chamber of Achaz, which the kings of Juda had made, and the altars which Manasses had made in the two courts of the temple of the Lord, the king broke down; and he ran from thence, and cast the ashes of them into the torrent Cedron. 13 The high places also that were at Jerusalem on the right side of the Mount of Offence, i which Solomon king of Israel had built to Astaroth the idol of the Sidonians, and to Chamos the scandal of Moab, and to Melchom the abomination of the children of Ammon, the king defiled. 14 And he broke in pieces the statues, and cut down the groves; and he filled their places with the bones of dead men. 15 k Moreover, the altar also that was at Bethel, and the high place, which Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who made Israel to sin, had made: both the altar and the high place he broke down and burnt, and reduced to powder, and burnt the grove.

16 And as Josias turned himself, he saw there the sepulchres that were in the mount, and he sent and took the bones out of the sepulchres, and burnt them upon the altar, and defiled it according to the word of the Lord, which the man of God spoke, who had foretold these things. 17 l And he said: What is that monument which I see? And the men of that city answered: It is the sepulchre of the man of God, who came from Juda, and foretold these things which thou hast done upon the altar of Bethel. 18 And he said: Let him alone, let no man move his bones. So his bones were left untouched with the bones of the prophet that came out of Samaria. 19 Moreover, all the temples of the high places which were in the cities of Samaria, which the kings of Israel had made to provoke the Lord, Josias took away; and he did to them according to all the acts that he had done in Bethel. 20 And he slew all the priests of the high places who were there upon the altars; and he burnt men's bones upon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

The Phase Is Commanded. 21 m And he commanded all the people, saying: Keep the phase to the Lord your God, according as it is written in the book of this covenant. 22 Now there was no such a phase kept from the days of the judges, who judged Israel, nor in all the days of the kings of Israel, and of the kings of Juda, 23 as was this phase that was kept to the Lord in Jerusalem in the eighteenth year of king Josias. 24 Moreover, the diviners by spirits, and soothsayers, and the figures of idols, and the uncleannesses, and the abominations, that had been in the land of Juda and Jerusalem, Josias took away, that he might perform the words of the law, that were written in the book which Helcias the priest had found in the temple of the Lord.

25 There was no king before him like unto him, that returned to the Lord with all his heart, and with all his soul, and with all his strength, according to all the law of Moses; neither after him did there arise any like him. 26 But yet the Lord turned not away from the wrath of his great indignation, wherewith his anger was kindled against Juda, because of the provocations wherewith Manasses had provoked him. 27 n And the Lord said: I will remove Juda also from before my face, as I have removed Israel; and I will cast off this city Jerusalem, which I chose, and the house, of which I said: My name shall be there.

28 Now the rest of the acts of Josias, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda?

29 o In his days Pharao Nechao king of Egypt p went up against the king of Assyria to the river Euphrates; and king Josias went to meet him, and was slain at Mageddo, when he had seen him. 30 And his servants carried him dead from Mageddo, and they brought him to Jerusalem, and buried him in his own sepulchre. And the people of the land took Joachaz the son of Josias, and they anointed him, and made him king in his father's stead.

The Reign of Joachaz and Joakim. 31 [q] Joachaz was three and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremias of Lobna. 32 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that his fathers had done. 33 And Pharao Nechao bound him at Rebla, which is in the land of Emath, that he should not reign in Jerusalem. And he set a fine upon the land, of a hundred talents of silver, and a talent of gold. 34 And Pharao Nechao made Eliacim the son of Josias king in the room of Josias his father, and turned his name to Joakim. And he took Joachaz away and carried him into Egypt, and he died there. 35 And Joakim gave the silver and the gold to Pharao, after he had taxed the land for every man, to contribute according to the commandment of Pharao; and he exacted both the silver and the gold of the people of the land, of every man according to his ability, to give to Pharao Nechao.

36 [r] Joakim was five and twenty years old when he began to reign, [s] and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Zebida the daughter of Phadaia of Ruma. 37 And he did evil before the Lord according to all that his fathers had done.

CHAPTER 24.

Reign of Joakim, Joachin and Sedecias. 1 In his days Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came up, [t] and Joakim became his servant three years. Then again he rebelled against him. 2 And the Lord sent against him the rovers* of the Chaldees, and the rovers of Syria, and the rovers of Moab, and the rovers of the children of Ammon, and he sent them against Juda to destroy it, [u] according to the word of the Lord which he had spoken by his servants the prophets. 3 And this came by the word of the Lord against Juda, to remove them from before him for all the sins of Manasses which he did, 4 and for the innocent blood that he shed, filling Jerusalem with innocent blood. And, therefore, the Lord would not be appeased.

5 But the rest of the acts of Joakim, and all that he did, are they not written in the book of the words of the days of the kings of Juda? And Joakim slept with his fathers, 6 and Joachin his son reigned in his stead.

7 And the king of Egypt came not again any more out of his own country, for the king of Babylon had taken all that had belonged to the king of Egypt, from the river of Egypt unto the river Euphrates.

8 Joachin was eighteen years old when he began to reign, [v] and he reigned three months in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Nohesta the daughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. 9 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that his father had done.

10 [w] At that time the servants of Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came up against Jerusalem, and the city was surrounded with their forts. 11 And Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came to the city with his servants to assault it. 12 And Joachin king of Juda went out to the king of Babylon, he and his mother, and his servants, and his nobles, and his eunuchs. And the king of Babylon received him in the eighth year of his reign. 13 And he brought out from thence all the treasures of the house of the Lord, and the treasures of the king's house. And he cut in pieces all the vessels of gold which Solomon king of Israel had made in the temple of the Lord, according to the word of the Lord.[x] 14 And he carried away all Jerusalem, and all the princes, and all the valiant men of the army, to the number of ten thousand into captivity; and every artificer and smith; and none were left but the poor sort of the people of the land. 15 [y] And he carried away Joachin into Babylon, and the king's mother and the king's wives, and his eunuchs; and the judges of the land he carried into captivity from Jerusalem into Babylon. 16 And all the strong men, seven thousand, and the artificers, and the smiths a thousand, all that were valiant men and fit for war. And the king of Babylon led them captives into Babylon. 17 [z] And he appointed Matthanias his uncle in his stead, and called his name Sedecias.

18 Sedecias was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned eleven years in Jerusalem. The name of his mother was Amital, the daughter of Jeremias of Lobna. 19 And he did evil before the Lord, according to all that Joakim had done. 20 For the Lord was angry against Jerusalem and against Juda, till he cast them out from his face. And Sedecias revolted from the king of Babylon.

CHAPTER 25.

Jerusalem Besieged and Taken. 1 And [a] it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign, [b] in the tenth month, the tenth day of the month, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon came, he and all his army against Jerusalem. And they surrounded it, and raised works round about it. 2 And the city was shut up and besieged till the eleventh year of king Sedecias, 3 the ninth day of the month. And a famine prevailed in the city, and there was no bread for the people of the land. 4 And a breach was made into the city; and all the men of war fled in the night by the way of the gate that is between the two walls by the king's garden, (now the Chaldees besieged the city round about), and Sedecias fled by the way that leadeth to the plains of the wilderness. 5 And the army of the Chaldees pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho. And all the warriors that were with him were scattered, and left him: 6 so they took the king, and brought him to the king of Babylon to Reblatha, and he gave judgment upon him. 7 And he slew the sons of Sedecias before his face, and he put out his eyes, and bound him with chains, and brought him to Babylon.

8 In the fifth month, the seventh day of the month, that is, the nineteenth year of the king of Babylon, came Nabuzardan commander of the army, a servant of the king of Babylon, into Jerusalem. 9 [c] And he burnt the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and the houses of Jerusalem, and every house he burnt with fire. 10 And all the army of the Chaldees, which was with the commander of the troops, broke down the walls of Jerusalem round about. 11 And Nabuzardan the commander of the army carried away the rest of the people that remained in the city, and the fugitives that had gone over to the king of Babylon, and the remnant of the common people. 12 But of the poor of the land he left some dressers of vines and husbandmen.

13 [d] And the pillars of brass that were in the temple of the Lord, and the bases, and the sea of brass which was in the house of the Lord, the Chaldees broke in pieces, and carried all the brass of them to Babylon. 14 They took away also the pots of brass, and the mazers, and the forks, and the cups, and the mortars, and all the vessels of brass with which they ministered. 15 Moreover, also the censers, and the bowls, such as were of gold in gold, and such as were of silver in silver, the general of the army took away, 16 that is, two pillars, one sea, and the bases which Solomon had made in the temple of the Lord: the brass of all these vessels was without weight. 17 [e] One pillar was eighteen cubits high, and the chapiter of brass which was upon it was three cubits high; and the network, and the pomegranates that were upon the chapiter of the pillar, were all of brass; and the second pillar had the like adorning.

18 And the general of the army took Seraias the chief priest, and Sophonias the second priest, and three doorkeepers. 19 And out of the city one eunuch, who was captain over the men of war; and five men of them that had stood before the king, whom he found in the city, and Sopher the captain of the army, who exercised the young soldiers of the people of the land, and threescore men of the common people, who were found in the city. 20 These Nabuzardan the general of the army took away, and carried them to the king of Babylon to Reblatha. 21 And the king of Babylon smote them, and slew them at Reblatha in the land of Emath. So Juda was carried away out of their land.

22 But over the people that remained in the land of Juda, which Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon had left, he gave the government to Godolias the son of Ahicam the son of Saphan. 23 And when all the captains of the soldiers had heard this, they and the men that were with them, to wit, that the king of Babylon had made Godolias governor, they came to Godolias to Maspha, Ismael the son of Nathanias, and Johanan the son of Caree, and Saraia the son of Thanehumeth the Netophathite, and Jezonias the son of Maachathi, they and their men. 24 And Godolias swore to them and to their men, saying: Be not afraid to serve the Chaldees. Stay in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it shall be well with you. 25 But it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ismael the son of Nathanias, the son of Elisama of the seed royal came, and ten men with him; and they smote Godolias so that he died, and also the Jews and the Chaldees that were with him in Maspha. 26 And all the people both little and great, and the captains of the soldiers, rising up went to Egypt, fearing the Chaldees.

27 f And it came to pass in the seven and thirtieth year of the captivity of Joachin king of Juda, in the twelfth month the seven and twentieth day of the month, Evilmerodach king of Babylon, in the year that he began to reign, lifted up the head of Joachin king of Juda out of prison. 28 And he spoke kindly to him: and he set his throne above the throne of the kings that were with him in Babylon. 29 And he changed his garments which he had in prison, and he ate bread always before him, all the days of his life. 30 And he appointed him a continual allowance, which was also given him by the king day by day, all the days of his life.

THE FIRST BOOK OF PARALIPOMENON

These Books are called by the Greek interpreters "Paralipomenon," i.e., of things left out, or omitted, because they are a kind of a supplement of such things as were passed over in the Books of the Kings. The Hebrews call them DIBRE HAIJAMIM: "The words of the days" or "The Chronicles." They contain a summary of sacred history, from Adam to the Babylonian Exile in 536 B.C.

And the Agarites were delivered into their hands, and all that were with them, because they called upon God in the battle. And he heard them, because they had put their faith in him. 21 And they took all that they possessed, of camels, fifty thousand, and of sheep two hundred and fifty thousand, and of asses two thousand, and of men a hundred thousand souls. 22 And many fell down slain, for it was the battle of the Lord. And they dwelt in their stead till the captivity.

Other Groups of Inhabitants. 28 And some of their stock had the charge of the vessels for the ministry, for the vessels were both brought in and carried out by number. 29 Some of them also had the instruments of the sanctuary committed unto them, and the charge of the fine flour, and wine, and oil, and frankincense, and spices. 30 And the sons of the priests made the ointments of the spices. 31 And Mathathias a Levite, the firstborn of Sellum the Corite, was overseer of such things as were fried in the fryingpan. 32 And some of the sons of Caath their brethren, were over the loaves of proposition, to prepare always new for every sabbath.

33 These are the chief of the singing men of the families of the Levites, who dwelt in the chambers by the temple, that they might serve continually day and night in their ministry. 34 The heads of the Levites, princes in their families, abode in Jerusalem.

35 And i in Gabaon dwelt Jehiel the father of Gabaon, and the name of his wife was Maacha, 36 his firstborn son Abdon, and Sur, and Cis, and Baal, and Ner, and Nadab, 37 Gedor also, and Ahio, and Zacharias, and Macelloth. 38 And Macelloth begot Samaan: these dwelt over against their brethren in Jerusalem, with their brethren. 39 k Now Ner begot Cis, and Cis begot Saul, and Saul begot Jonathan and Melchisua, and Abinadab, and Esbaal. 40 And the son of Jonathan was Meribbaal, and Meribbaal begot Micha. 41 And the sons of Micha were Phithon, and Melech, and Tharaa, and Ahaz. 42 And Ahaz begot Jara, and Jara begot Alamath, and Azmoth, and Zamri. And Zamri begot Mosa. 43 And Mosa begot Banaa, whose son Raphaia begot Elasa, of whom was born Asel. 44 And Asel had six sons whose names are Ezricam, Bocru, Ismahel, Saria, Obdia, Hanan: these are the sons of Asel.

II: THE DAVIDIC KINGDOM

1. The Reign of David

CHAPTER 10.

Death of Saul and His Sons. 1 Now l the Philistines fought against Israel, and the men of Israel fled from before the Philistines, and fell down wounded in mount Gelboe. 2 m And the Philistines drew near pursuing after Saul and his sons, and they killed Jonathan, and Abinadab, and Melchisua, the sons of Saul. 3 And the battle grew hard against Saul, and the archers reached him, and wounded him with arrows. 4 And Saul said to his armorbearer: Draw thy sword, and kill me: lest these uncircumcised come, and mock me. But his armorbearer would not, for he was struck with fear; so Saul took his sword, and fell upon it. 5 And when his armorbearer saw it, to wit, that Saul was dead, he also fell upon his sword and died. 6 So Saul died, and his three sons, and all his house fell together. 7 And when the men of Israel, that dwelt in the plains, saw this, they fled. And Saul and his sons being dead, they forsook their cities, and were scattered up and down: and the Philistines came, and dwelt in them.

8 And the next day the Philistines taking away the spoils of them that were slain, found Saul and his sons lying on mount Gelboe. 9 And when they had stripped him, and cut off his head, and taken away his armor, they sent it into their land, to be carried about, and shown in the temples of the idols and to the people. 10 And his armor they dedicated in the temple of their god, and his head they fastened up in the temple of Dagon.

11 And when the men of Jabes Galaad had heard this, to wit, all that the Philistines had done to Saul, 12 all the valiant men of them arose, and took the bodies of Saul and of his sons, and brought them to Jabes, and buried their bones under the oak that was in Jabes, and they fasted seven days.

13 So Saul died for his iniquities, because he transgressed the n commandment of the Lord, which he had commanded, and kept it not; o and moreover, consulted also a witch, 14 and trusted not in the Lord. Therefore, he slew him, and transferred his kingdom to David the son of Isai.

CHAPTER 11.

David Is Made King. 1 Then p all Israel

gathered themselves to David in Hebron, saying: We are thy bone and thy flesh. 2 Yesterday also, and the day before when Saul was king, thou wast he that leddest out and broughtest in Israel, for the Lord thy God said to thee: Thou shalt feed my people Israel, and thou shalt be ruler over them. 3 So all the ancients of Israel came to the king to Hebron, and David made a covenant with them before the Lord; and they anointed him king over Israel, according to the word of the Lord which he spoke in the hand of Samuel.

4 And David and all Israel went to Jerusalem, [q] which is Jebus, where the Jebusites were the inhabitants of the land. 5 And the inhabitants of Jebus said to David: Thou shalt not come in here. But David took the castle of Sion, which is the city of David. 6 And he said: Whosoever shall first strike the Jebusites, shall be the head and chief captain. And Joab the son of Sarvia went up first, and was made the general. 7 And David dwelt in the castle, and therefore it was called the city of David. 8 And he built the city round about from Mello all round, and Joab built the rest of the city. 9 And David went on growing and increasing, and the Lord of hosts was with him.

The Valiant Men of David. 10 [r] These are the chief of the valiant men of David, who helped him to be made king over all Israel, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke to Israel.

11 And this is the number of the heroes of David: Jesbaam the son of Hachamoni the chief among the thirty: he lifted up his spear against three hundred wounded by him at one time. 12 And after him was Eleazar his uncle's son the Ahohite, who was one of the three mighties. 13 He was with David in Phesdomim, when the Philistines were gathered to that place to battle. And the field of that country was full of barley, and the people fled from before the Philistines. 14 But these men stood in the midst of the field, and defended it. And they slew the Philistines, and the Lord gave a great deliverance to his people.

15 [s] And three of the thirty captains went down to the rock, wherein David was, to the cave of Odollam, when the Philistines encamped in the valley of Raphaim. 16 [t] And David was in a hold, and the garrison of the Philistines in Bethlehem. 17 And David longed, and said: O that some man would give me water of the cistern of Bethlehem, which is in the gate. 18 And these three broke through the midst of the camp of the Philistines, and drew water out of the cistern of Bethlehem, which was in the gate, and brought it to David to drink; and he would not drink of it, but rather offered it to the Lord, 19 saying: God forbid that I should do this in the sight of my God, and should drink the blood of these men, for with the danger of their lives they have brought me the water. And, therefore, he would not drink. These things did the three most valiant.

20 And Abisai the brother of Joab, he was chief of three, and he lifted up his spear against three hundred whom he slew, and he was renowned among the three, 21 and illustrious among the second three, and their captain; but yet he attained not to the first three.

22 Banaias the son of Joiada, a most valiant man, of Cabseel, who had done many acts; he slew the two ariels* of Moab, and he went down, and killed a lion in the midst of a pit in the time of snow. 23 And he slew an Egyptian, whose stature was of five cubits, and who had a spear like a weaver's beam; and he went down to him with a staff, and plucked away the spear that he held in his hand, and slew him with his own spear. 24 These things did Banaias the son of Joiada, who was renowned among the three valiant ones, 25 and the first among the thirty, but yet to the three he attained not. And David made him of his council.

26 Moreover, the most valiant men of the army were Asahel brother of Joab, and Elchanan the son of his uncle of Bethlehem, 27 Sammoth an Arorite, Hellesa Phalonite, 28 Ira the son of Acces a Thecuite, Abiezer an Anathothite, 29 Sobbochai a Husathite, Ilai an Ahohite, 30 Maharai a Netophathite, Heled the son of Baana a Netophathite, 31 Ethai the son of Ribai of Gabaath of the sons of Benjamin, Banaia a Pharathonite, 32 Hurai of the torrent Gaas, Abiel an Arbathite, Azmoth a Bauramite, Eliaba a Salabonite, 33 the sons of Assem a Gezon-

ite, Jonathan the son of Sage an Ararite, 34 Ahiam the son of Sachar an Ararite, 35 Eliphal the son of Ur, 36 Hepher a Mecherathite, Ahia a Phelonite, 37 Hesro a Carmelite, Naarai the son of Asbai, 38 Joel the brother of Nathan, Mibahar the son of Agarai. 39 Selec an Ammonite, Naharai a Berothite, the armorbearer of Joab the son of Sarvia. 40 Ira a Jethrite, Gareb a Jethrite, 41 Urias a Hethite, Zabad the son of Oholi, 42 Adina the son of Siza a Rubenite the prince of the Rubenites, and thirty with him. 43 Hanan the son of Maacha, and Josaphat, a Mathanite, 44 Ozia an Astarothite, Samma and Jehiel the sons of Hotham an Arorite, 45 Jedihel the son of Zamri, and Joha his brother a Thosaite, 46 Eliel a Mahumite, and Jeribai, and Josaia the sons of Elnaem, and Jethma a Moabite, Eliel, and Obed, and Jasiel of Masobia.

CHAPTER 12.

The Followers of David. 1 Now these are they that came to David to Siceleg, [u] while he yet fled from Saul the son of Cis, and they were most valiant and excellent warriors, 2 bending the bow, and using either hand in hurling stones with slings, and shooting arrows. Of the brethren of Saul of Benjamin: 3 the chief Ahiezer, and Joas, the sons of Samaa of Gabaath, and Jaziel, and Phallet the sons of Azmoth, and Baracha, and Jehu an Anathothite; 4 and Samaias of Gabaon, the stoutest amongst the thirty and over the thirty; Jeremias, and Jeheziel, and Johanan, and Jezabad of Gaderoth; 5 and Eluzai, and Jerimuth, and Baalia, and Samaria, and Saphatia the Haruphite; 6 Elcana, and Jesia, and Azareel, and Joezer, and Jesbaam of Carehim; 7 and Joela, and Zabadia the sons of Jeroham of Gedor.

8 From Gaddi also there went over to David, when he lay hid in the wilderness most valiant men, and excellent warriors, holding shield and spear. Their faces were like the faces of a lion, and they were swift like the roebucks on the mountains: 9 Ezer the chief, Obdias the second, Eliab the third, 10 Masmana the fourth, Jeremias the fifth, 11 Ethi the sixth, Eliel the seventh, 12 Johanan the eighth, Elzebad the ninth, 13 Jeremias the tenth, Machbanai the eleventh. 14 These were of the sons of Gad, captains of the army: the least of them was captain over a hundred soldiers, and the greatest over a thousand. 15 These are they who passed over the Jordan in the first month, when it is wont to flow over its banks. And they put to flight all that dwelt in the valleys both towards the east and towards the west.

16 And there came also of the men of Benjamin, and of Juda to the hold, in which David abode. 17 And David went out to meet them, and said: If you are come peaceably to me to help me, let my heart be joined to you; but if you plot against me for my enemies whereas I have no iniquity in my hands, let the God of our fathers see, and judge. 18 But the spirit came upon Amasai the chief among thirty, and he said: We are thine, O David, and for thee, O son of Isai. Peace, Peace be to thee, and peace to thy helpers. For thy God helpeth thee. So David received them and made them captains of the band.

19 And there were some of Manasses that went over to David, when he came with the Philistines against Saul to fight. But he did not fight with them, [v] because the lords of the Philistines taking counsel sent him back, saying: With the danger of our heads he will return to his master Saul. 20 So when he went back to Siceleg, [w] there fled to him of Manasses, Ednas and Jozabad, and Jedihel, and Michael, and Ednas, and Jozabad, and Eliu, and Salathi, captains of thousands in Manasses. 21 These helped David against the rovers, for they were all most valiant men, and were made commanders in the army. 22 Moreover, day by day there came some to David to help him till they became a great number, like the army of God.

The Chiefs of the Army. 23 And this is the number of the chiefs of the army who came to David, when he was in Hebron, [x] to transfer to him the kingdom of Saul, according to the word of the Lord: 24 The sons of Juda bearing shield and spear, six thousand eight hundred well appointed to war. 25 Of the sons of Simeon valiant men for war, seven thousand one hundred. 26 Of the sons of Levi, four thousand six hundred. 27 And Joiada prince of the race of Aaron, and with him

u 1 Kgs 27, 2.—v 1 Kgs 29, 4.—w 1005 B.C.—x 2 Kgs 5, 12; 1005 B.C.

three thousand seven hundred. 28 Sadoc also a young man of excellent disposition, and the house of his father, twenty-two principal men. 29 And of the sons of Benjamin the brethren of Saul, three thousand: for hitherto a great part of them followed the house of Saul. 30 And of the sons of Ephraim twenty thousand eight hundred, men of great valor renowned in their kindreds. 31 And of the half tribe of Manasses, eighteen thousand, everyone by their names, came to make David king. 32 Also of the sons of Issachar men of understanding, that knew all times to order what Israel should do, two hundred principal men. And all the rest of the tribe followed their counsel. 33 And of Zabulon such as went forth to battle, and stood in array well appointed with armor for war, there came fifty thousand to his aid, with no double heart. 34 And of Nephtali, a thousand leaders, and with them seven and thirty thousand, furnished with shield and spear. 35 Of Dan also twenty-eight thousand six hundred prepared for battle. 36 And of Aser forty thousand going forth to fight, and challenging in battle. 37 And on the other side of the Jordan of the sons of Ruben, and of Gad, and of the half of the tribe of Manasses a hundred and twenty thousand, furnished with arms for war.

38 All these men of war well appointed to fight, came with a perfect heart to Hebron, to make David king over all Israel. And all the rest also of Israel, were of one heart to make David king. 39 And they were there with David three days eating and drinking, for their brethren had prepared for them. 40 Moreover, they that were near them even as far as Issachar, and Zabulon, and Nephtali, brought loaves on asses, and on camels, and on mules, and on oxen, to eat: meal, figs, raisins, wine, oil, and oxen, and sheep in abundance, for there was joy in Israel.

2. Progress of the Davidic Kingdom

CHAPTER 13.

Removal of the Ark. 1 And David consulted with the captains of thousands, and of hundreds, and with all the commanders. 2 And he said to all the assembly of Israel: If it please you, and if the words which I speak come from the Lord our God, let us send to the rest of our brethren into all the countries of Israel, and to the priests, and the Levites, that dwell in the suburbs of the cities, to gather themselves to us. 3 And let us bring again the ark of our God to us, for we sought it not in the days of Saul.

4 And all the multitude answered that it should be so, for the word pleased all the people. 5 So David assembled all Israel, from Sihor of Egypt even to the entering into Emath, [y] to bring the ark of God from Cariathiarim.

6 And David went up with all the men of Israel to the hill of Cariathiarim which is in Juda, to bring thence the ark of the Lord God sitting upon the cherubim, where his name is called upon. 7 And they carried the ark of God upon a new cart, out of the house of Abinadab. And Oza and his brother drove the cart. 8 And David and all Israel played before God with all their might with hymns, and with harps, and with psalteries, and timbrels, and cymbals, and trumpets.

9 And when they came to the threshing floor of Chidon, Oza put forth his hand to hold up the ark, for the ox being wanton had made it lean a little on one side. 10 And the Lord was angry with Oza, and struck him, because he had touched the ark; and he died there before the Lord. 11 And David was troubled because the Lord had divided Oza; and he called that place the Breach of Oza to this day. 12 And he feared God at that time, saying: How can I bring in the ark of God to me? 13 And therefore he brought it not home to himself, that is, into the city of David, but carried it aside into the house of Obededom the Gethite. 14 And the ark of God remained in the house of Obededom three months; and the Lord blessed his house, and all that he had.

CHAPTER 14.

David's House and Children. 1 And [z] Hiram king of Tyre sent messengers to David, and cedar trees, and masons, and carpenters, to build him a house. 2 And David perceived that the Lord had confirmed him king over Israel, and that his

y 2 Kgs 6, 2.—z 2 Kgs 5, 11.

kingdom was exalted over his people Israel.

3 [a]And David took other wives in Jerusalem, and he begot sons and daughters. 4 Now these are the names of them that were born to him in Jerusalem: Samua, and Sobad, Nathan, and Solomon, 5 Jebahar, and Elisua, and Eliphalet, 6 and Noga, and Napheg, and Japhia, 7 Elisama, and Baaliada, and Eliphalet.

8 [b] And the Philistines hearing that David was anointed king over all Israel, went all up to seek him. And David heard of it, and went out against them. 9 And the Philistines came and spread themselves in the vale of Raphaim. 19 And David consulted the Lord, saying: Shall I go up against the Philistines, and wilt thou deliver them into my hand? And the Lord said to him: Go up, and I will deliver them into thy hand. 11 And when they were come to Baalpharasim, David defeated them there, and he said: God hath divided my enemies by my hand, as waters are divided. And, therefore, the name of that place was called Baalpharasim. 12 And they left there their gods, and David commanded that they should be burnt.

13 Another time also the Philistines made an irruption, and spread themselves abroad in the valley. 14 And David consulted God again, and God said to him: Go not up after them, turn away from them, and come upon them over against the pear trees. 15 And when thou shalt hear the sound of one going in the tops of the pear trees, then shalt thou go out to battle. For God is gone out before thee to strike the army of the Philistines. 16 And David did as God had commanded him, and defeated the army of the Philistines, slaying them from Gabaon to Gazera. 17 And the name of David became famous in all countries, and the Lord made all nations fear him.

Removal of the Ark to the City of David. 1 He made also houses for himself in the city of David, and built a place for the ark of God, and pitched a tabernacle for it. 2 Then David said: No one ought to carry the ark of God but the Levites, whom the Lord hath chosen to carry it, and to minister unto himself forever. 3 And he gathered all Israel together into Jerusalem, that the ark of God might be brought into its place, which he had prepared for it; 4 and the sons of Aaron also, and the Levites. 5 Of the children of Caath: Uriel was the chief, and his brethren a hundred and twenty. 6 Of the sons of Merari: Asaia the chief, and his brethren two hundred and twenty. 7 Of the sons of Gersom: Joel the chief, and his brethren a hundred and thirty. 8 Of the sons of Elisaphan: Semeias the chief and his brethren two hundred. 9 Of the sons of Hebron: Eliel the chief, and his brethren eighty. 10 Of the sons of Oziel: Aminadab the chief, and his brethren a hundred and twelve.

11 And David called Sadoc and Abiathar the priests, and the Levites, Uriel, Asaia, Joel, Semeia, Eliel, and Aminadab. 12 And he said to them: You that are the heads of the Levitical families, be sanctified with your brethren, and bring the ark of the Lord the God of Israel to the place, which is prepared for it; 13 [c] lest as the Lord at first struck us, because you were not present, the same should now also come to pass, by our doing something against the law. 14 So the priests and the Levites were sanctified, to carry the ark of the Lord the God of Israel. 15 [d] And the sons of Levi took the ark of God as Moses had commanded, according to the word of the Lord, upon their shoulders, with the staves.

Singers and Musicians. 16 And David spoke to the chiefs of the Levites, to appoint some of their brethren to be singers with musical instruments, to wit, on psalteries, and harps, and cymbals, that the joyful noise might resound on high. 17 And they appointed Levites, Heman the son of Joel, and of his brethren Asaph the son of Barachias; and of the sons of Merari, their brethren, Ethan the son of Casaia. 18 And with them their brethren: in the second rank, Zacharias, and Ben, and Jaziel, and Semiramoth, and Jahiel, and Ani, and Eliab, and Banaias, and Maasias, and Mathathias, and Eliphalu, and Macenias, and Obededom, and Jehiel, the porters. 19 Now the singers, Heman, Asaph, and Ethan, sounded with cymbals of brass. 20 And Zacharias, and Oziel, and Semiramoth, and Jehiel, and Ani, and Eliab, and a 2 Kgs 5, 13.—b 2 Kgs 5, 17.—c 1 Par 13, 10.—d Nm 4, 15.

Maasias, and Banaias, sang mysteries upon psalteries. 21 And Mathathias and Eliphalu, and Macenias and Obededom, and Jehiel and Ozaziu, sang a song of victory for the octave upon harps. 22 And Chonenias chief of the Levites presided over the prophecy, to give out the tunes:* for he was very skillful. 23 And Barachias and Elcana were doorkeepers of the ark. 24 And Sebenias, and Josaphat, and Nathanael, and Amasai, and Zacharias, and Banaias, and Eliezer the priests, sounded with trumpets, before the ark of God: and Obededom and Jehias were porters of the ark.

25 e So David and all the ancients of Israel, and the captains over thousands, went to bring the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the house of Obededom with joy. 26 And when God had helped the Levites who carried the ark of the covenant of the Lord, they offered in sacrifice seven oxen and seven rams. 27 And David was clothed with a robe of fine linen, and all the Levites that carried the ark, and the singing men, and Chonenias the ruler of the prophecy among the singers; and David also had on him an ephod of linen. 28 And all Israel brought the ark of the covenant of the Lord with joyful shouting, and sounding with the sound of the cornet, and with trumpets, and cymbals, and psalteries, and harps. 29 And when the ark of the covenant of the Lord was come to the city of David, Michol the daughter of Saul looking out at a window, saw king David dancing and playing, and she despised him in her heart.

CHAPTER 16.

The Ark is Placed in the Tabernacle. 1 So they f brought the ark of God, and set it in the midst of the tent, which David had pitched for it; and they offered holocausts and peace offerings before God.

2 And when David had made an end of offering holocausts and peace offerings, he blessed the people in the name of the Lord. 3 And he divided to all and everyone, both men and women, a loaf of bread, and a piece of roasted beef, and flour fried with oil.

4 And he appointed Levites to minister before the ark of the Lord, and to remember his works, and to glorify and praise the Lord God of Israel: 5 Asaph the chief, and next after him Zacharias, moreover Jahiel, and Semiramoth, and Jehiel, and Mathathias, and Eliab, and Banaias, and Obededom: and Jehiel over the instruments of psaltery, and harps, and Asaph sounded with cymbals. 6 But Banaias and Jaziel the priests, to sound the trumpet continually before the ark of the covenant of the Lord. 7 In that day David made Asaph the chief to give praise to the Lord with his brethren.

Asaph Praises the Lord. 8 g Praise ye the Lord, and call upon his name; make known his doings among the nations. 9 Sing to him, yea, sing praises to him; and relate all his wondrous works.

10 Praise ye his holy name; let the heart of them rejoice, that seek the Lord. 11 Seek ye the Lord, and his power; seek ye his face evermore.

12 Remember his wonderful works, which he hath done: his signs, and the judgments of his mouth. 13 O ye seed of Israel his servants: ye children of Jacob his chosen.

14 He is the Lord our God; his judgments are in all the earth. 15 Remember forever his covenant: the word, which he commanded to a thousand generations: 16 the covenant which he made with Abraham, and his oath to Isaac.

17 And he appointed the same to Jacob for a precept, and to Israel for an everlasting covenant, 18 saying: To thee will I give the land of Chanaan: the lot of your inheritance.

19 When they were but a small number, very few and sojourners in it, 20 and they passed from nation to nation, and from a kingdom to another people, 21 he suffered no man to do them wrong, and reproved kings for their sake. 22 h Touch not my anointed, and do no evil to my prophets.

A Blessing to the Lord. 23 i Sing ye to the Lord, all the earth; show forth from day to day his salvation. 24 Declare his glory among the Gentiles; his wonders among all people. 25 For the Lord is great and exceedingly to be praised; and he is to be feared above all gods. 26 For all the gods of the nations are idols; but the Lord made the heavens. 27 Praise and magnificence are before him; strength and joy in his place.

15, 22: The prophecy, to give out the tunes: singing praises to God is here called prophecy, the more because these singers were often inspired men.

28 Bring ye to the Lord, O ye families of the nations; bring ye to the Lord glory and empire. 29 Give to the Lord glory to his name, bring up sacrifice, and come ye in his sight; and adore the Lord in holy becomingness. 30 Let all the earth be moved at his presence, for he hath founded the world immovable.

31 Let the heavens rejoice, and the earth be glad, and let them say among the nations: The Lord hath reigned. 32 Let the sea roar, and the fullness thereof; let the fields rejoice, and all things that are in them. 33 Then shall the trees of the wood give praise before the Lord, because he is come to judge the earth.

34 Give ye glory to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy endureth forever. 35 And say ye: Save us, O God our savior, and gather us together, and deliver us from the nations, that we may give glory to thy holy name, and may rejoice in singing thy praises.

36 Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel from eternity to eternity; and let all the people say Amen, and a hymn to God.

37 So he left there, before the ark of the covenant of the Lord, Asaph and his brethren to minister in the presence of the ark continually day by day, and in their courses. 38 And Obededom, with his brethren sixty-eight, and Obededom, the son of Idithun, and Hosa he appointed to be porters. 39 And Sadoc the priest, and his brethren the priests, before the tabernacle of the Lord in the high place, which was in Gabaon, 40 that they should offer holocausts to the Lord upon the altar of holocausts continually, morning and evening, according to all that is written in the law of the Lord, which he commanded Israel. 41 And after him Heman, and Idithun, and the rest that were chosen, everyone by his name to give praise to the Lord, because his mercy endureth forever.

42 And Heman and Idithun sounded the trumpet, and played on the cymbals, and all kinds of musical instruments to sing praises to God. And the sons of Idithun he made porters.

43 And all the people returned to their houses; and David to bless also his own house.

CHAPTER 17.

God Promises a Son to David. 1 Now i when David was dwelling in his house, he said to Nathan the prophet: Behold I dwell in a house of cedar, and the ark of the covenant of the Lord is under skins. 2 And Nathan said to David: Do all that is in thy heart, for God is with thee.

3 Now that night the word of God came to Nathan, saying: 4 Go, and speak to David my servant: Thus saith the Lord: Thou shalt not build me a house to dwell in. 5 For I have not remained in a house from the time that I brought up Israel, to this day, but I have been always changing places in a tabernacle, and in a tent, 6 abiding with all Israel. Did I ever speak to anyone, of all the judges of Israel, whom I charged to feed my people, saying: Why have you not built me a house of cedar? 7 Now, therefore, thus shalt thou say to my servant David: Thus saith the Lord of hosts: I took thee from the pastures, from following the flock, that thou shouldst be ruler of my people Israel. 8 And I have been with thee whithersoever thou hast gone, and have slain all thy enemies before thee, and have made thee a name like that of one of the great ones that are renowned in the earth. 9 And I have given a place to my people Israel: they shall be planted, and shall dwell therein, and shall be moved no more; neither shall the children of iniquity waste them, as at the beginning, 10 since the days that I gave judges to my people Israel, and have humbled all thy enemies. And I declare to thee, that the Lord will build thee a house. 11 And when thou shalt have ended thy days to go to thy fathers, I will raise up thy seed after thee, which shall be of thy sons, and I will establish his kingdom. 12 He shall build me a house, and I will establish his throne forever. 13 I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a son; and I will not take my mercy away from him, as I took it from him that was before thee. 14 But I will settle him in my house, and in my kingdom forever; and his throne shall be most firm forever. 15 According to all these words, and according to all this vision, so did Nathan speak to David.

16 And king David came and sat before the Lord, and said: Who am I, O Lord God, and what is my house, that thou shouldst give such things to me? 17 But even this hath seemed little in thy sight, and therefore thou hast also spoken concerning the house of thy servant for the time to come, and hast made me remarkable above all men, O Lord God. 18 What can David add more, seeing thou hast thus glorified thy servant, and known him? 19 O Lord, for thy servant's sake, according to thy own heart, thou hast shown all this magnificence, and wouldst have all the great things to be known. 20 O Lord, there is none like thee, and there is no other God beside thee, of all whom we have heard of with our ears. 21 For what other nation is there upon earth like thy people Israel, whom God went to deliver, and make a people for himself, and by his greatness and terrors cast out nations before their face whom he had delivered out of Egypt? 22 And thou hast made thy people Israel to be thy own people forever, and thou, O Lord, art become their God. 23 Now therefore, O Lord, let the word which thou hast spoken to thy servant, and concerning his house, be established forever, and do as thou hast said. 24 And let thy name remain and be magnified forever, and let it be said: The Lord of hosts is God of Israel, and the house of David his servant remaineth before him. 25 For thou, O Lord my God, hast revealed to the ear of thy servant, that thou wilt build him a house; and, therefore, thy servant hath found confidence to pray before thee. 26 And now O Lord, thou art God, and thou hast promised to thy servant such great benefits. 27 And thou hast begun to bless the house of thy servant, that it may be always before thee, for seeing thou blessest it, O Lord, it shall be blessed forever.

CHAPTER 18.

David's Victories; His Chief Officer. 1 And [k] it came to pass after this, that David defeated the Philistines, and humbled them, and took away Geth, and her daughters out of the hands of the Philistines, 2 and he defeated Moab, and the Moabites were made David's servants, and brought him gifts.

3 At that time David defeated also Adarezer king of Soba of the land of Hemath, when he went to extend his dominion as far as the river Euphrates. 4 And David took from him a thousand chariots, and seven thousand horsemen, and twenty thousand footmen, and he houghed all the chariot horses, only a hundred chariots, which he reserved for himself. 5 And the Syrians of Damascus came also to help Adarezer king of Soba; and David slew of them likewise two and twenty thousand men. 6 And he put a garrison in Damascus, that Syria also should serve him, and bring gifts. And the Lord assisted him in all things to which he went. 7 And David took the golden quivers which the servants of Adarezer had, and he brought them to Jerusalem. 8 Likewise out of Thebath and Chun, cities of Adarezer, he brought very much brass, of which Solomon made the brazen sea, and the pillars, and the vessels of brass.

9 Now when Thou king of Hemath heard that David had defeated all the army of Adarezer king of Soba, 10 he sent Adoram his son to king David, to desire peace of him, and to congratulate him that he had defeated and overthrown Adarezer, for Thou was an enemy to Adarezer. 11 And all the vessels of gold, and silver, and brass king David consecrated to the Lord, with the silver and gold which he had taken from all the nations, as well from Edom, and from Moab, and from the sons of Ammon, as from the Philistines, and from Amalec.

12 And Abisai the son of Sarvia slew of the Edomites in the vale of the salt-pits, eighteen thousand. 13 And he put a garrison in Edom, that Edom should serve David. And the Lord preserved David in all things to which he went.

14 So David reigned over all Israel, and executed judgment and justice among all his people. 15 And Joab the son of Sarvia was over the army, and Josaphat the son of Ahilud recorder. 16 And Sadoc the son of Achitob, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, were the priests and Susa, scribe. 17 And Banaias the son of Joiada was over the bands of the Cerethi and k 2 Kgs 8, 1.

the Phelethi; and the sons of David were chief about the king.

CHAPTER 19.

Hanon Abuses David's Ambassadors. 1 Now l it came to pass that Naas the king of the children of Ammon died, and his son reigned in his stead. 2 And David said: I will show kindness to Hanon the son of Naas, for his father did a favor to me. And David sent messengers to comfort him upon the death of his father. But when they were come into the land of the children of Ammon to comfort Hanon, 3 the princes of the children of Ammon said to Hanon: Thou thinkest perhaps that David to do honor to thy father hath sent comforters to thee; and thou dost not take notice that his servants are come to thee to consider, and search, and spy out thy land. 4 Wherefore Hanon shaved the heads and beards of the servants of David, and cut away their garments from the buttocks to the feet, and sent them away. 5 And when they were gone, they sent word to David, who sent to meet them (for they had suffered a great affront) and ordered them to stay at Jericho till their beards grew and then to return.

6 And when the children of Ammon saw that they had done an injury to David, Hanon and the rest of the people sent a thousand talents of silver, to hire them chariots and horsemen out of Mesopotamia, and out of Syria Maacha, and out of Soba. 7 And they hired two and thirty thousand chariots, and the king of Maacha, with his people. And they came and camped over against Medaba. And the children of Ammon gathered themselves together out of their cities, and came to battle. 8 And when David heard of it, he sent Joab, and all the army of valiant men. 9 And the children of Ammon came out and put their army in array before the gate of the city; and the kings, that were come to their aid, stood apart in the field.

10 Wherefore Joab understanding that the battle was set against him before and behind, chose out the bravest men of all Israel, and marched against the Syrians, 11 and the rest of the people he delivered into the hand of Abisai his brother, and they went against the children of Ammon. 12 And he said: If the Syrians be too strong for me, then thou shalt help me; but if the children of Ammon be too strong for thee, I will help thee. 13 Be of good courage and let us behave ourselves manfully for our people, and for the cities of our God; and the Lord will do that which is good in his sight.

14 So Joab and the people that were with him, went against the Syrians to the battle; and he put them to flight. 15 And the children of Ammon seeing that the Syrians were fled, they likewise fled from Abisai his brother, and went into the city. And Joab also returned to Jerusalem.

16 But the Syrians seeing that they had fallen before Israel, sent messengers, and brought to them the Syrians that were beyond the river; and Sophach, general of the army of Adarezer, was their leader. 17 And it was told David, and he gathered together all Israel, and passed the Jordan, and came upon them, and put his army in array against them, and they fought with him. 18 But the Syrian fled before Israel; and David slew of the Syrians seven thousand chariots,* and forty thousand footmen, and Sophach the general of the army. 19 And when the servants of Adarezer saw themselves overcome by Israel, they went over to David, and served him. And Syria would not help the children of Ammon any more.

CHAPTER 20.

Other Victories of David. 1 And m it came to pass after the course of a year, at the time that kings go out to battle, Joab gathered together an army and the strength of the troops, and wasted the land of the children of Ammon; and went and besieged Rabba. But David stayed at Jerusalem, when Joab smote Rabba, and destroyed it. 2 And David took the crown of Melchom from his head, and found in it a talent weight of gold, and most precious stones, and he made himself a diadem of it. He took also the spoils of the city which were very great. 3 And the people that were therein he brought out, and made harrows, and sleds, and chariots of iron to go over them, so that they were cut and bruised to pieces. In this manner David dealt with all the cities of the children of Ammon; and he returned with all his people to Jerusalem.

4 n After this there arose a war at Gazer against the Philistines, in which Sabochai the Husathite slew Saphai of the race of Raphaim, and humbled them.

5 Another battle also was fought against the Philistines, in which Adeodatus the son of Saltus a Bethlehemite slew the brother of Goliath the Gethite, the staff of whose spear was like a weaver's beam.

6 There was another battle also in Geth, in which there was a man of great stature, whose fingers and toes were four and twenty, six on each hand and foot; who also was born of the stock of Rapha. 7 He reviled Israel, but Jonathan the son of Samaa the brother of David slew him. These were the sons of Rapha in Geth, who fell by the hand of David and his servants.

CHAPTER 21.

David's Vanity Is Punished. 1 And o Satan rose up against Israel, and moved David to number Israel. 2 And David said to Joab, and to the rulers of the people: Go, and number Israel from Bersabee even to Dan, and bring me the number of them that I may know it. 3 And Joab answered: The Lord make his people a hundred times more than they are; but, my lord the king, are they not all thy servants? Why doth my lord seek this thing, which may be imputed as a sin to Israel? 4 But the king's word rather prevailed; and Joab departed, and went through all Israel, and returned to Jerusalem. 5 And he gave David the number* of them, whom he had surveyed. And all the number of Israel was found to be eleven hundred thousand men that drew the sword, and of Juda four hundred and seventy thousand fighting men. 6 But Levi and Benjamin he did not number, for Joab unwillingly executed the king's orders.

7 And God was displeased with this thing that was commanded, and he struck Israel. 8 And David said to God: I have sinned exceedingly in doing this, I beseech thee take away the iniquity of thy servant, for I have done foolishly.

9 And the Lord spoke to Gad the seer of David, saying: 10 Go, and speak to David, and tell him: Thus saith the Lord: I give thee the choice of three things: choose one which thou wilt, and I will do it to thee. 11 And when Gad was come to David, he said to him: Thus saith the Lord: Choose which thou wilt: 12 either three years' famine,* or three months to flee from thy enemies, and not to be able to escape their sword; or three days to have the sword of the Lord and pestilence in the land, and the angel of the Lord destroying in all the coasts of Israel. Now, therefore see what I shall answer him who sent me. 13 And David said to Gad: I am on every side in a great strait; but it is better for me to fall into the hands of the Lord, for his mercies are many, than into the hands of men.

14 So the Lord sent a pestilence upon Israel. And there fell of Israel seventy thousand men. 15 And he sent an angel to Jerusalem to strike it; and as he was striking it, the Lord beheld, and took pity for the greatness of the evil, and said to the angel that destroyed: It is enough, now stop thy hand. And the angel of the Lord stood by the threshing floor of Ornan* the Jebusite. 16 And David lifting up his eyes, saw the angel of the Lord standing between heaven and earth, with a drawn sword in his hand, turned against Jerusalem, and both he and the ancients, clothed in haircloth, fell down flat on the ground. 17 And David said to God: Am not I he that commanded the people to be numbered? It is I that have sinned. It is I that have done the evil; but as for this flock, what hath it deserved? O Lord my God, let thy hand be turned, I beseech thee, upon me, and upon my father's house; and let not thy people be destroyed.

David Appeases the Wrath of God. 18 And the angel of the Lord commanded Gad to tell David to go up and build an altar to the Lord God in the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 19 And David went up, according to the word of

Gad, which he spoke to him in the name of the Lord. 20 Now when Ornan looked up, and saw the angel, he and his four sons hid themselves, for at that time he was threshing wheat in the floor. 21 And as David was coming to Ornan, Ornan saw him, and went out of the threshing floors to meet him, and bowed down to him with his face to the ground. 22 And David said to him: Give me this place of thy threshing floor, that I may build therein an altar to the Lord; but thou shalt take of me as much money as it is worth, that the plague may cease from the people. 23 And Ornan said to David: Take it, and let my lord the king do all that pleaseth him; and morever the oxen also I give for a holocaust, and the drays for wood, and the wheat for the sacrifice. I will give it all willingly. 24 And king David said to him: It shall not be so, but I will give thee money as much as it is worth, for I must not take it from thee, and so offer to the Lord holocausts free cost. 25 So David gave to Ornan for the place, six hundred sicles* of gold of just weight. 26 p And he built there an altar to the Lord; and he offered holocausts, and peace offerings, and he called upon the Lord, and he heard him by sending fire from heaven upon the altar of the holocaust. 27 And the Lord commanded the angel, and he put up his sword again into the sheath.

28 And David seeing that the Lord had heard him in the threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite, forthwith offered victims there. 29 But the tabernacle of the Lord, q which Moses made in the desert, and the altar of holocausts, was at that time in the high place of Gabaon. 30 And David could not go to the altar there to pray to God, for he was seized with an exceeding great fear, seeing the sword of the angel of the Lord.

3. End of the Davidic Kingdom

CHAPTER 22.

David Prepares Materials for the Temple. 1 Then David said: r This is the house of God, and this is the altar for the holocaust of Israel.

2 And he commanded to gather together all the proselytes of the land of Israel, and out of them he appointed stonecutters to hew stones and polish them, to build the house of God. 3 And David prepared in abundance iron for the nails of the gates, and for the closures and joinings, and of brass an immense weight. 4 And the cedar trees were without number, which the Sidonians and Tyrians brought to David. 5 And David said: Solomon my son is very young and tender, and the house which I would have to be built to the Lord, must be such as to be renowned in all countries. Therefore I will prepare him necessaries. And therefore before his death he prepared all the charges.

6 And he called for Solomon his son, and commanded him to build a house to the Lord the God of Israel. 7 And David said to Solomon: My son, it was my desire to have built a house to the name of the Lord my God.s 8 But the word of the Lord came to me, saying: Thou hast shed much blood, and fought many battles, so thou canst not build a house to my name, after shedding so much blood before me. 9 The son, that shall be born to thee, shall be a most quiet man, for I will make him rest from all his enemies round about, and therefore he shall be called Peaceable; and I will give peace and quietness to Israel all his days. 10 t He shall build a house to my name, and he shall be a son to me, and I will be a father to him. And I will establish the throne of his kingdom over Israel forever. 11 Now then, my son, the Lord be with thee, and do thou prosper, and build the house to the Lord thy God, as he hath spoken of thee. 12 The Lord also give thee wisdom and understanding, that thou mayest be able to rule Israel, and to keep the law of the Lord thy God. 13 For then thou shalt be able to prosper, if thou keep the commandments and judgments, which the Lord commanded Moses to teach Israel. Take courage and act manfully. Fear not, nor be dismayed. 14 Behold I in my poverty have prepared the charges of the house of the Lord, of gold a hundred thousand talents, and of silver a million of talents; but of brass and of iron there is no weight, for the abundance surpasseth all account; timber also and stones I have prepared for all the charges. 15 Thou hast also workmen in abundance, hewers of stones, and masons, and carpenters, and of all trades the most skillful in their work, 16 in gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in iron, whereof there is no number. Arise then, and be doing, and the Lord will be with thee.

17 David also charged all the princes of Israel to help Solomon his son, 18 saying: You see that the Lord your God is with you, and hath given you rest round about, and hath delivered all your enemies into your hands, and the land is subdued before the Lord, and before his people. 19 Give therefore your hearts and your souls to seek the Lord your God; and arise, and build a sanctuary to the Lord God, that the ark of the covenant of the Lord, and the vessels consecrated to the Lord, may be brought into the house which is built to the name of the Lord.

CHAPTER 23.

Distribution of Levites and Their Offices. 1 And [u] David being old and full of days, made Solomon his son king over Israel. 2 And he gathered together all the princes of Israel, and the priests and Levites. 3 And the Levites were numbered from the age of thirty years, and upwards; and there were found of them thirty-eight thousand men. 4 Of these twenty-four thousand were chosen, and distributed unto the ministry of the house of the Lord; and six thousand were the overseers and judges. 5 Moreover four thousand were porters; and as many singers singing to the Lord with the instruments, which he had made to sing with.

6 [v] And David distributed them into courses by the families of the sons of Levi, to wit, of Gerson, and of Caath, and of Merari.

7 The sons of Gerson were Leedan and Semei. 8 The sons of Leedan: the chief Jahiel, and Zethan, and Joel, three.

9 The sons of Semei: Salomith, and Hosiel, and Aran, three: these were the heads of the families of Leedan. 10 And the sons of Semei were Leheth, and Ziza, and Jaus, and Baria: these were the sons of Semei, four. 11 And Leheth was the first, Ziza the second; but Jaus and Baria had not many children, and therefore they were counted in one family, and in one house.

12 The sons of Caath were Amram, and Isaar, Hebron, and Oziel, four. 13 [w] The sons of Amram, Aaron, and Moses. [x] And Aaron was separated to minister in the Holy of Holies, he and his sons forever, and to burn incense before the Lord, according to his ceremonies, and to bless his name forever. 14 The sons also of Moses, the man of God, were numbered in the tribe of Levi. 15 The sons [y] of Moses were Gersom and Eliezer. 16 The sons of Gersom: Subuel the first. 17 And the sons of Eliezer were: Rohobia the first, and Eliezer had no more sons. But the sons of Rohobia were multiplied exceedingly. 18 The sons of Isaar: Salomith the first. 19 The sons of Hebron: Jeriau the first, Amarias the second, Jahaziel the third, Jecmaan the fourth. 20 The sons of Oziel: Micha the first, Jesia the second.

21 The sons of Merari: Moholi, and Musi. The sons of Moholi: Eleazar and Cis. 22 And Eleazar died, and had no sons but daughters; and the sons of Cis their brethren took them. 23 The sons of Musi: Moholi, and Eder, and Jerimoth, three.

The Sons of Levi Are Numbered. 24 These are the sons of Levi in their kindreds and families, princes by their courses, and the number of every head that did the works of the ministry of the house of the Lord from twenty years old and upward. 25 For David said: The Lord the God of Israel hath given rest to his people, and a habitation in Jerusalem forever. 26 And it shall not be the office of the Levites to carry any more the tabernacle, and all the vessels for the service thereof. 27 So according to the last precepts of David, the sons of Levi are to be numbered from twenty years old and upward. 28 And they are to be under the hand of the sons of Aaron for the service of the house of the Lord, in the porches, and in the chambers, and in the place of purification, and in the sanctuary, and in all the works of the ministry of the temple of the Lord. 29 And the priests have the charge of the loaves of proposition, and of the sacrifice of fine flour, and of the unleavened cakes, and of the fryingpan, and of the roasting, and

u 972 B.C.—v 1 Par 6, 1.—w 1 Par 6, 3.—x Heb 15, 4.—y Ex 2, 22; 18, 3. 4.

of every weight and measure. 30 And the Levites are to stand in the morning to give thanks, and to sing praises to the Lord; and in like manner in the evening. 31 As well in the oblation of the holocausts of the Lord, as in the sabbaths and in the new moons, and the rest of the solemnities, according to the number and ceremonies prescribed for everything, continually before the Lord. 32 And let them keep the observances of the tabernacle of the covenant, and the ceremonies of the sanctuary, and the charges of the sons of Aaron their brethren, that they may minister in the house of the Lord.

CHAPTER 24.

The Families to Serve in the Temple. 1 Now these were the divisions of the sons of Aaron: The sons of Aaron: Nadab, and Abiu, and Eleazar, and Ithamar. 2 [z] But Nadab and Abiu died before their father, and had no children; so Eleazar and Ithamar did the office of the priesthood. 3 And David distributed them, that is, Sadoc of the sons of Eleazar, and Ahimelech of the sons of Ithamar, according to their courses and ministry. 4 And there were found many more of the sons of Eleazar among the principal men, than of the sons of Ithamar. And he divided them so that there were of the sons of Eleazar sixteen chief men by their families; and of the sons of Ithamar eight by their families and houses. 5 And he divided both the families one with the other by lot; for there were princes of the sanctuary, and princes of God, both of the sons of Eleazar, and of the sons of Ithamar.

6 And Semeias the son of Nathanael the scribe a Levite, wrote them down before the king and the princes, and Sadoc the priest, and Ahimelech the son of Abiathar, and the princes also of the priestly and Levitical families: one house, which was over the rest, of Eleazar, and another house, which had the rest under it, of Ithamar.

7 Now the first lot came forth to Joiarib, the second to Jedei, 8 the third to Harim, the fourth to Seorim, 9 the fifth to Melchia, the sixth to Maiman, 10 the seventh to Accos, the eighth to Abia, 11 the ninth to Jesua, the tenth to Sechenia, 12 the eleventh to Eliasib, the twelfth to Jacim, 13 the thirteenth to Hoppha, the fourteenth to Isbaab, 14 the fifteenth to Belga, the sixteenth to Emmer, 15 the seventeenth to Hezir, the eighteenth to Aphses, 16 the nineteenth to Pheteia, the twentieth to Hezechiel, 17 the one and twentieth to Jachin, the two and twentieth to Gamul, 18 the three and twentieth to Dalaiau, the four and twentieth to Maaziau.

19 These are their courses according to their ministries, to come into the house of the Lord, and according to their manner under the hand of Aaron their father, as the Lord the God of Israel had commanded.

20 Now of the rest of the sons of Levi, there was of the sons of Amram, Subael, and of the sons of Subael, Jehedeia. 21 Also of the sons of Rohobia the chief Jesias. 22 And the son of Isaar Salemoth, and the son of Salemoth Jahath; 23 and his son Jeriau the first, Amarias the second, Jahaziel the third, Jecmaan the fourth. 24 The son of Oziel, Micha; the son of Micha, Samir. 25 The brother of Micha, Jesia; and the son of Jesia, Zacharias. 26 The sons of Merari: Moholi and Musi. The son of Oziau, Benno. 27 The son also of Merari: Oziau, and Soam, and Zacchur, and Hebri. 28 And the son of Moholi: Eleazar, who had no sons. 29 And the son of Cis, Jeramael.

30 The sons of Musi: Moholi, Eder, and Jerimoth. These are the sons of Levi according to the houses of their families. 31 And they also cast lots over against their brethren the sons of Aaron before David the king, and Sadoc, and Ahimelech, and the princes of the priestly and Levitical families, both the elder and the younger. The lot divided all equally.

CHAPTER 25.

Singers and Musicians. 1 Moreover David and the chief officers of the army separated for the ministry the sons of Asaph, and of Heman, and of Idithun, to prophesy with harps, and with psalteries, and with cymbals according to their number serving in their appointed office. 2 Of the sons of Asaph: Zacchur, and Joseph, and Nathania, and Asarela, sons of Asaph, under the hand of Asaph prophesying near the king. 3 And of Idithun: the sons of Idithun: Godolias, Sori, z Lv 10, 2; Nm 3, 4.

Jeseias, and Hasabias, and Mathathias, six, under the hand of their father Idithun, who prophesied with a harp to give thanks and to praise the Lord. 4 Of Heman also: the sons of Heman: Bocciau, Mathaniau, Oziel, Subuel, and Jerimoth, Hananias, Hanani, Eliatha, Geddelthi, and Romemthiezer, and Jesbacassa, Mellothi, Othir, Mahazioth. 5 All these were the sons of Heman the seer of the king in the words of God, to lift up the horn. And God gave to Heman fourteen sons and three daughters.

6 All these under their father's hand were distributed to sing in the temple of the Lord, with cymbals, and psalteries and harps, for the service of the house of the Lord near the king: to wit, Asaph, and Idithun, and Heman. 7 And the number of them with their brethren that taught the song of the Lord, all the teachers, were two hundred and eighty-eight. 8 And they cast lots by their courses, the elder equally with the younger, the learned and the unlearned together.

9 And the first lot came forth to Joseph, who was of Asaph. The second to Godolias, to him and his sons, and his brethren twelve. 10 The third to Zacchur, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 11 The fourth to Isari, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 12 The fifth to Nathania, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 13 The sixth to Bocciau, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 14 The seventh to Isreela, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 15 The eighth to Jesaia, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 16 The ninth to Mathanaias, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 17 The tenth to Semeias, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 18 The eleventh to Azareel, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 19 The twelfth to Hasabia, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 20 The thirteenth to Subael, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 21 The fourteenth to Mathathias, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 22 The fifteenth to Jerimoth, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 23 The sixteenth to Hananias, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 24 The seventeenth to Jesbacassa, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 25 The eighteenth to Hanani, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 26 The nineteenth to Mellothi, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 27 The twentieth to Eliatha, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 28 The one and twentieth to Othir, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 29 The two and twentieth to Geddelthi, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 30 The three and twentieth to Mahazioth, to his sons and his brethren twelve. 31 The four and twentieth to Romemthiezer, to his sons and his brethren twelve.

CHAPTER 26.

Porters of the Temple. 1 And the divisions of the porters: of the Corites Meselemia, the son of Core, of the sons of Asaph. 2 The sons of Meselemia: Zacharias the firstborn, Jadihel the second, Zabadias the third, Jathanael the fourth, 3 Elam the fifth, Johanan the sixth, Elioenai the seventh. 4 And the sons of Obededom, Semeias the firstborn, Jozabad the second, Joaha the third, Sachar the fourth, Nathanael the fifth, 5 Ammiel the sixth, Issachar the seventh, Phollathi the eighth, for the Lord had blessed him. 6 And to Semei his sons were born sons, heads of their families, for they were men of great valor. 7 The sons then of Semeias were Othni, and Raphael, and Obed, Elizabad, and his brethren most valiant men; and Eliu, and Samachias. 8 All these of the sons of Obededom: they, and their sons, and their brethren most able men for service, sixty-two of Obededom. 9 And the sons of Meselemia and their brethren strong men, were eighteen.

10 And of Hosa, that is, of the sons of Merari: Semri the chief (for he had not a firstborn,* and therefore his father made him chief), 11 Helchias the second, Tabelias the third, Zacharias the fourth: all these, the sons and the brethren of Hosa, were thirteen.

12 Among these were the divisions of the porters, so that the chiefs of the wards, as well as their brethren, always ministered in the house of the Lord. 13 And they cast lots equally, both little and great, by their families for everyone of the gates. 14 And the lot of the east fell to Selemias. But to his son Zacharias, a very wise and learned man, the north gate fell by lot. 15 And to Obededom and his sons that towards the south, in which part of the house was the council of the ancients. 16 To Sephim and Hosa towards the west, by the gate which leadeth to the way of the ascent: ward against ward. 17 Now towards the east were six Levites; and towards the north four a day; and towards the south likewise four a day; and where the council was, two and two. 18 In the cells also of the porters towards the west, four in the way, and two at every cell. 19 These are the divisions of the porters of the sons of Core, and of Merari.

Treasurers of the Temple. 20 Now Achias was over the treasures of the house of God, and the holy vessels.* 21 The sons of Ledan, the sons of Gersonni: of Ledan, were heads of the families, of Ledan and Gersonni, Jehieli. 22 The sons of Jehieli: Zathan and Joel, his brethren, over the treasures of the house of the Lord, 23 with the Amramites, and Isaarites, and Hebronites, and Ozielites. 24 And Subael the son of Gersom, the son of Moses, was chief over the treasures. 25 His brethren also, Eliezer, whose son Rahabia, and his son Isaias, and his son Joram, and his son Zechri, and his son Selemith. 26 Which Selemith and his brethren were over the treasures of the holy things, which king David, and the heads of families, and the captains over thousands and over hundreds, and the captains of the host had dedicated 27 out of the wars, and the spoils won in battles, which they had consecrated to the building and furniture of the temple of the Lord. 28 And all these things that Samuel the seer and Saul the son of Cis, and Abner the son of Ner, and Joab the son of Sarvia had sanctified. And whosoever had sanctified those things, they were under the hand of Selemith and his brethren.

29 But Chonenias and his sons were over the Isaarites, for the business abroad over Israel to teach them and judge them.

30 And of the Hebronites Hasabias, and his brethren most able men, a thousand seven hundred had the charge over Israel beyond the Jordan westward, in all the works of the Lord, and for the service of the king. 31 And the chief of the Hebronites was Jeria according to their families and kindreds. In the fortieth year of the reign of David they were numbered, and there were found most valiant men in Jazer Galaad, 32 and his brethren of stronger age, two thousand seven hundred chiefs of families. And king David made them rulers over the Rubenites and the Gadites, and the half tribe of Manasses, for all the service of God, and the king.

CHAPTER 27.

Captains for the Service of the King. 1 Now the children of Israel according to their number, the heads of families, captains of thousands and of hundreds, and officers, that served the king according to their companies, who came in and went out every month in the year, under every chief were four and twenty thousand.

2 Over the first company the first month Jesboam, the son of Zabdiel was chief, and under him were four and twenty thousand 3 of the sons of Phares, the chief of all the captains in the host in the first month. 4 The company of the second month was under Dudia, and Ahohite, and after him was another named Macelloth, who commanded a part of the army of four and twenty thousand. 5 And the captain of the third company for the third month, was Banaias the son of Joiada the priest: and in his division were four and twenty thousand. 6 This is that Banaias the most valiant among the thirty, and above the thirty. And Amizabad his son commanded his company. 7 The fourth, for the fourth month, was Asahel the brother of Joab, and Zabadias his son after him: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 8 The fifth captain for the fifth month, was Samaoth a Jezerite: and his company were four and twenty thousand. 9 The sixth, for the sixth month, was Hira the son of Acces a Thecuite: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 10 The seventh, for the seventh month, was Helles a Phallonite of the sons of Ephraim: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 11 The eighth, for the eighth month, was Sobochai a Husathite of the race of Zarahi: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 12 The ninth, for the ninth month, was Abiezer an Anathothite of the sons of Jemini: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 13 The tenth, for the tenth month, was Marai, who was a Netophathite of the race of Zarai: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 14 The eleventh, for the eleventh month, was Banaias, a Pharathonite of the sons of Ephraim: and in his company were four and twenty thousand. 15 The twelfth, for the twelfth month, was Holdai a Netophathite, of the race of Gothoniel: and in his company were four and twenty thousand.

16 Now the chiefs over the tribes of Israel were these: over the Rubenites, Eliezer the son of Zechri was ruler; over the Simeonites, Saphatias the son of Maacha; 17 over the Levites, Hasabias the son of Camuel; over the Aaronites, Sadoc; 18 over Juda, Eliu the brother of David; over Issachar, Amri the son of Michael; 19 over the Zabulonites, Jesmaias the son of Abdias; over the Nephtalites, Jerimoth the son of Ozriel; 20 over the sons of Ephraim, Osee the son of Ozaziu; over the half tribe of Manasses, Joel the son of Phadaia; 21 and over the half tribe of Manasses in Galaad, Jaddo the son of Zacharias; and over Benjamin, Jasiel the son of Abner; 22 and over Dan, Ezrihel the son of Jeroham: these were the princes of the children of Israel.

23 But David would not number them from twenty years old and under, because the Lord had said that he would multiply Israel like the stars of heaven. 24 a Joab the son of Sarvia began to number, but he finished not, because upon this there fell wrath upon Israel, and therefore the number of them that were numbered, was not registered in the chronicles of king David.

25 And over the king's treasures was Azmoth the son of Adiel; and over those stores which were in the cities, and in the villages, and in the castles, was Jonathan the son of Ozias. 26 And over the tillage, and the husbandmen who tilled the ground, was Ezri the son of Chelub. 27 And over the dressers of the vineyards, was Semeias a Romathite; and over the wine cellars, Zabdias an Aphonite. 28 And over the oliveyards and the fig groves, which were in the plains, was Balanan a Gederite; and over the oil cellars, Joas. 29 And over the herds that fed in Saron, was Setrai a Saronite; and over the oxen in the valleys, Saphat the son of Adli. 30 And over the camels, Ubil an Ismahelite; and over the asses, Jadias a Meronathite. 31 And over the sheep Jaziz an Agarene. All these were the rulers of the substance of king David.

32 And Jonathan, David's uncle, a counselor, a wise and learned man: he and Jahiel the son of Hachamoni were with the king's sons. 33 And Achitophel was the king's counselor, and Chusai the Arachite, the king's friend. 34 And after Achitophel was Joiada the son of Banaias, and Abiathar. And the general of the king's army was Joab.

CHAPTER 28.

General Rules for the Kingdom. 1 And David assembled all the chief men of Israel, the princes of the tribes, and the captains of the companies, who waited on the king, and the captains over thousands and over hundreds, and them who had the charge over the substance and possessions of the king, and his sons with the officers of the court, and the men of power, and all the bravest of the army at Jerusalem.

2 And the king rising up and standing said: Hear me, my brethren and my people: I had a thought to have built a house, in which the ark of the Lord and the footstool of our God might rest; and I prepared all things for the building. 3 And God said to me: b Thou shalt not build a house to my name, because thou art a man of war, and hast shed blood. 4 But the Lord God of Israel chose me of all the house of my father, to be king over Israel forever; for of Juda he chose the princes; and of the house of Juda, my father's house; and among the sons of my father, it pleased him to choose me king over all Israel. 5 c And among my sons (for the Lord hath given me many sons) he hath chosen Solomon my son, to sit upon the throne of the kingdom of the Lord over Israel. 6 And he said to me: Solomon thy son shall build my house and my courts, for I have chosen him to be my son, and I will be a father to him. 7 And I will establish his kingdom forever, if he continue to keep my commandments and my judgments, as at this day. 8 Now then before all the assembly of Israel, in the hearing of our God, keep ye and seek all the commandments of the Lord our God, that you may possess

the good land, and may leave it to your children after you forever. 9 And thou my son Solomon, know the God of thy father, and serve him with a perfect heart and a willing mind, [d] for the Lord searcheth all hearts, and understandeth all the thoughts of minds. If thou seek him, thou shalt find him; but if thou forsake him, he will cast thee off forever. 10 Now therefore seeing the Lord hath chosen thee to build the house of the sanctuary, take courage, and do it.

Exhortation to Solomon. 11 And David gave to Solomon his son a description of the porch, and of the temple, and of the treasures, and of the upper floor, and of the inner chambers, and of the house for the mercy seat, 12 as also of all the courts which he had in his thought, and of the chambers round about, for the treasures of the house of the Lord, and for the treasures of the consecrated things; 13 and of the divisions of the priests and of the Levites, for all the works of the house of the Lord, and for all the vessels of the service of the temple of the Lord. 14 Gold by weight for every vessel for the ministry. And silver by weight according to the diversity of the vessels and uses. 15 He gave also gold for the golden candlesticks, and their lamps, according to the dimensions of every candlestick, and the lamps thereof. In like manner also he gave silver by weight for the silver candlesticks, and for their lamps according to the diversity of the dimensions of them. 16 He gave also gold for the tables of proposition, according to the diversity of the tables; in like manner also silver for other tables of silver. 17 For fleshhooks also, and bowls, and censers of fine gold, and for little lions of gold, according to the measure he gave by weight, for every lion. In like manner also for lions of silver he set aside a different weight of silver. 18 And for the altar of incense, he gave the purest gold, to make the likeness of the chariot of the cherubim spreading their wings, and covering the ark of the covenant of the Lord. 19 All these things, said he, came to me written by the hand of the Lord that I might understand all the works of the pattern.

20 And David said to Solomon his son: Act like a man, and take courage, and do: fear not, and be not dismayed, for the Lord my God will be with thee, and will not leave thee, nor forsake thee, till thou hast finished all the work for the service of the house of the Lord. 21 Behold the courses of the priests and the Levites, for every ministry of the house of the Lord, stand by thee, and are ready, and both the princes and the people know how to execute all thy commandments.

CHAPTER 29.

Offerings of David and the Princes. 1 And king David said to all the assembly: Solomon my son, whom alone God hath chosen, is as yet young and tender; and the work is great, for a house is prepared not for man, but for God. 2 And I with all my ability have prepared the expenses for the house of my God: gold for vessels of gold, and silver for vessels of silver, brass for things of brass, iron for things of iron, wood for things of wood; and onyx stones, and stones like alabaster, and of divers colors, and all manner of precious stones, and marble of Paros in great abundance. 3 Now over and above the things which I have offered into the house of my God, I give of my own proper goods gold and silver for the temple of my God, besides what things I have prepared for the holy house. 4 Three thousand talents of gold of the gold of Ophir, and seven thousand talents of refined silver, to overlay the walls of the temple; 5 and gold for wheresoever there is need of gold; and silver for wheresoever there is need of silver, for the works to be made by the hands of the artificers. Now if any man is willing to offer, let him fill his hand today, and offer what he pleaseth to the Lord.

6 Then the heads of the families, and the princes of the tribes of Israel, and the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and the overseers of the king's possessions promised, 7 and they gave for the works of the house of the Lord, of gold, five thousand talents, and ten thousand solids; of silver ten thousand talents; and of brass eighteen thousand talents; and of iron a hundred thousand talents. 8 And all they that had stones, gave them to the treasures of the house of the Lord, by the hand of Jahiel the Gersonite. 9 And the people rejoiced,

d Ps 7, 10.

when they promised their offerings willingly, because they offered them to the Lord with all their heart; and David the king rejoiced also with a great joy.

Act of Thanksgiving. 10 And he blessed the Lord before all the multitude, and he said: Blessed art thou, O Lord the God of Israel, our father from eternity to eternity. 11 Thine, O Lord, is magnificence, and power, and glory, and victory; and to thee is praise; for all that is in heaven, and in earth, is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art above all princes. 12 Thine are riches, and thine is glory; thou hast dominion over all; in thy hand is power and might; in thy hand greatness and the empire of all things. 13 Now therefore our God we give thanks to thee, and we praise thy glorious name. 14 Who am I, and what is my people, that we should be able to promise thee all these things? All things are thine; and we have given thee what we received of thy hand. 15 For we are sojourners before thee, and strangers, as were all our fathers. [e] Our days upon earth are as a shadow, and there is no stay. 16 O Lord our God, all this store that we have prepared to build thee a house for thy holy name, is from thy hand, and all things are thine. 17 I know my God that thou provest hearts, and lovest simplicity, wherefore I also in the simplicity of my heart have joyfully offered all these things; and I have seen with great joy thy people, which are here present, offer thee their offerings. 18 O Lord God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Israel our fathers, keep forever this will of their heart, and let this mind remain always for the worship of thee. 19 And give to Solomon my son a perfect heart, that he may keep thy commandments, thy testimonies, and thy ceremonies, and do all things: and build the house, for which I have provided the charges.

Solomon on the Throne of David. 20 And David commanded all the assembly: Bless ye the Lord our God. And all the assembly blessed the Lord the God of their fathers; and they bowed themselves and worshiped God, and then the king. 21 And they sacrificed victims to the Lord; and they offered holocausts the next day, a thousand bullocks, a thousand rams, a thousand lambs, with their libations, and with everything prescribed most abundantly for all Israel. 22 And they ate and drank before the Lord that day with great joy. [f] And they anointed the second time Solomon the son of David. And they anointed him to the Lord to be prince, and Sadoc to be high priest. 23 And Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David his father, and he pleased all; and all Israel obeyed him. 24 And all the princes, and men of power, and all the sons of king David gave their hand, were subject to Solomon the king. 25 And the Lord magnified Solomon over all Israel, and gave him the glory of a reign such as no king of Israel had before him.

26 So David the son of Isai reigned over all Israel. 27 [g] And the days that he reigned over Israel, were forty years: in Hebron he reigned seven years, and in Jerusalem three and thirty years. 28 [h] And he died in a good age, full of days, and riches, and glory. And Solomon his son reigned in his stead.

29 Now the acts of king David first and last are written in the book of Samuel the seer, and in the book of Nathan the prophet, and in the book of Gad the seer, 30 and of all his reign, and his valor, and of the times that passed under him, either in Israel, or in all the kingdoms of the countries.

THE SECOND BOOK OF PARALIPOMENON

I: KING SOLOMON

1. The Beginning of Solomon's Reign

CHAPTER 1.

Solomon Offers Sacrifices at Gabaon. 1 And [a] Solomon the son of David was strengthened in his kingdom, and the Lord his God was with him, and magnified him to a high degree. 2 And Solomon gave orders to all Israel, to the captains of thousands and of hundreds, and to the rulers, and to the judges of all Israel, and the heads of the families. 3 And he went

with all the multitude to the high place of Gabaon, where was the tabernacle of the covenant of the Lord, which Moses the servant of God made in the wilderness. 4 [b] For David had brought the ark of God from Cariathiarim to the place which he had prepared for it, and where he had pitched a tabernacle for it, that is, in Jerusalem. 5 And the altar of brass, [c] which Beseleel the son of Uri the son of Hur had made, was there before the tabernacle of the Lord; and Solomon and all the assembly sought it. 6 And Solomon went up thither to the brazen altar, before the tabernacle of the covenant of the Lord, and offered upon it a thousand victims.

7 And behold that night God appeared to him, saying: Ask what thou wilt that I should give thee. 8 And Solomon said to God: Thou hast shown great kindness to my father David, and hast made me king in his stead. 9 Now therefore, O Lord God, let thy word be fulfilled, which thou hast promised to David my father; for thou hast made me king over thy great people, which is as innumerable as the dust of the earth. 10 [d] Give me wisdom and knowledge that I may come in and go out before thy people; for who can worthily judge this thy people, which is so great?

11 And God said to Solomon: Because this choice hath pleased thy heart, and thou hast not asked riches, and wealth, and glory, nor the lives of them that hate thee, nor many days of life, but hast asked wisdom and knowledge, to be able to judge my people, over which I have made thee king, 12 wisdom and knowledge are granted to thee; and I will give thee riches, and wealth, and glory, so that none of the kings before thee, nor after thee, shall be like thee.

13 Then Solomon came from the high place of Gabaon to Jerusalem before the tabernacle of the covenant, and reigned over Israel. 14 [e] And he gathered to himself chariots and horsemen, and he had a thousand four hundred chariots and twelve thousand horsemen; and he placed them in the cities of the chariots and with the king in Jerusalem. 15 And the king made silver and gold to be in Jerusalem as stones, and cedar trees as sycamores, which grow in the plains in great multitude. 16 And there were horses brought him from Egypt and from Coa by the king's merchants, who went and bought at a price, 17 a chariot of four horses for six hundred pieces of silver, and a horse for a hundred and fifty; in like manner market was made in all the kingdoms of the Hethites and of the kings of Syria.

2. The Construction of the Temple

CHAPTER 2.

Treaty With King Hiram. 1 And Solomon determined to build a house to the name of the Lord, and a palace for himself. 2 And he numbered out seventy thousand men to bear burdens, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountains, and three thousand six hundred to oversee them.

3 [f] He sent also to Hiram king of Tyre, saying: As thou didst with David my father, and didst send him cedars to build him a house, in which he dwelt, 4 so do with me that I may build a house to the name of the Lord my God, to dedicate it to burn incense before him and to perfume with aromatical spices, and for the continual setting forth of bread, and for the holocausts, morning and evening, and on the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and the solemnities of the Lord our God forever, which are commanded for Israel. 5 For the house which I desire to build, is great; for our God is great above all gods. 6 Who then can be able to build him a worthy house? If heaven, and the heavens of heavens cannot contain him, who am I that I should be able to build him a house? But to this end only, that incense may be burnt before him. 7 Send me therefore a skillful man, that knoweth how to work in gold and in silver, in brass and in iron, in purple, in scarlet and in blue, and that hath skill in engraving, with the artificers, which I have with me in Judea and Jerusalem, whom David my father provided. 8 Send me also cedars, and fir trees, and pine trees from Libanus; for I know that thy servants are skillful in cutting timber in Libanus, and my servants shall be with thy servants, 9 to provide me timber in abundance. For the house which I desire to build, is to be exceeding great, and glorious. 10 And

b 2 Kgs 6, 17; 1 Par 16, 1.—c Ex 38, 1.—d Wis 9, 10.—e 3 Kgs 10, 26.—f 3 Kgs 5, 2.

I will give thy servants the workmen that are to cut down the trees, for their food twenty thousand cores of wheat, and as many cores of barley, and twenty thousand measures of wine, and twenty thousand measures of oil.

11 And Hiram king of Tyre sent a letter to Solomon, saying: Because the Lord hath loved his people, therefore he hath made thee king over them. 12 And he added, saying: Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel, who made heaven and earth, who hath given to king David a wise and knowing son, endued with understanding and prudence, to build a house to the Lord, and a palace for himself. 13 I therefore have sent thee my father Hiram, a wise and most skillful man, 14 the son of a woman of the daughters of Dan, whose father was a Tyrian, who knoweth how to work in gold, and in silver, in brass, and in iron, and in marble, and in timber, in purple also, and violet, and silk and scarlet; and who knoweth to grave all sort of graving, and to devise ingeniously all that there may be need of in the work with thy artificers, and with the artificers of my lord David thy father. 15 The wheat therefore, and the barley and the oil, and the wine, which thou, my lord hast promised, send to thy servants. 16 And we will cut down as many trees out of Libanus as thou shalt want, and will convey them in floats by sea to Joppe; and it will be thy part to bring them thence to Jerusalem.

17 And Solomon numbered all the proselytes in the land of Israel, after the numbering which David his father had made, and they were found a hundred and fifty-three thousand and six hundred. 18 And he set seventy thousand of them to carry burdens on their shoulders, and eighty thousand to hew stones in the mountains; and three thousand and six hundred to be overseers of the work of the people.

CHAPTER 3.

The Plan and Ornaments of the Temple. 1 And [g] Solomon began to build the house of the Lord in Jerusalem, in mount Moria, which had been shown to David his father, in the place which David had prepared in the [h] threshing floor of Ornan the Jebusite. 2 And he began to build in the second month, in the fourth year of his reign.[i]

3 Now these are the foundations which Solomon laid, to build the house of God: the length by the first measure sixty cubits, the breadth twenty cubits. 4 And the porch in the front, which was extended in length according to the measure of the breadth of the house, twenty cubits; and the height was a hundred and twenty cubits: and he overlaid it within with pure gold. 5 And the greater house he ceiled with deal boards, and overlaid them with plates of fine gold throughout; and he graved in them palm trees, and like little chains interlaced with one another. 6 He paved also the floor of the temple with most precious marble of great beauty. 7 And the gold of the plates with which he overlaid the house, and the beams thereof, and the posts, and the walls, and the doors was of the finest; and he graved cherubim on the walls.

8 He made also the house of the Holy of Holies: the length of it according to the breadth of the temple, twenty cubits, and the breadth of it in like manner, twenty cubits: and he overlaid it with plates of gold, amounting to about six hundred talents. 9 He made also nails of gold, and the weight of every nail was fifty sicles. The upper chambers also he overlaid with gold.

10 He made also in the house of the Holy of Holies two cherubim of image work: and he overlaid them with gold. 11 The wings of the cherubim were extended twenty cubits, so that one wing was five cubits long, and reached to the wall of the house; and the other was also five cubits long, and reached to the wing of the other cherub. 12 In like manner the wing of the other cherub was five cubits long, and reached to the wall; and his other wing was five cubits long, and touched the wing of the other cherub. 13 So the wings of the two cherubim were spread forth, and were extended twenty cubits; and they stood upright on their feet, and their faces were turned towards the house without.

14 [j] He made also a veil of violet, purple, scarlet, and silk: and wrought in it cherubim.

15 [k] He made also before the doors of

g 3 Kgs 6, 1.—h 2 Kgs 24, 21; 1 Par 21, 26.—i 976 B.C.—j Mt 27, 51.—k Jer 52, 20.

the temple two pillars, which were five and thirty cubits high; and their chapiters were five cubits. 16 He made also as it were little chains in the oracle, and he put them on the heads of the pillars; and a hundred pomegranates, which he put between the little chains. 17 These pillars he put at the entrance of the temple, one on the right hand, and the other on the left: that which was on the right hand, he called Jachin, and that on the left hand, Booz.

CHAPTER 4.

Further Description of the Temple. 1 He made also an altar of brass twenty cubits long, and twenty cubits broad, and ten cubits high.

2 l Also a molten sea of ten cubits from brim to brim, round in compass: it was five cubits high, and a line of thirty cubits compassed it round above. 3 And under it there was the likeness of oxen, and certain engravings on the outside of ten cubits compassed the belly of the sea, as it were with two rows. 4 And the oxen were cast; and the sea itself was set upon the twelve oxen, three of which looked towards the north, and other three towards the west, and other three towards the south, and the other three that remained towards the east; and the sea stood upon them, and the hinder parts of the oxen were inward under the sea. 5 Now the thickness of it was a handbreadth, and the brim of it was like the brim of a cup, or of a crisped lily; and it held three thousand measures.

6 He made also ten lavers: and he set five on the right hand, and five on the left, to wash in them all such things as they were to offer for holocausts; but the sea was for the priests to wash in.

7 And he made ten golden candlesticks, according to the form which they were commanded to be made by: and he set them in the temple, five on the right hand, and five on the left. 8 Moreover also ten tables: and he set them in the temple, five on the right side, and five on the left. Also a hundred bowls of gold.

9 He made also the court of the priests, and a great hall, and doors in the hall, which he covered with brass. 10 And he set the sea on the right side over against the east towards the south.

11 And Hiram made caldrons, and fleshhooks, and bowls; and finished all the king's work in the house of God: 12 that is to say, the two pillars, and the pommels, and the chapiters, and the network, to cover the chapiters over the pommels. 13 And four hundred pomegranates, and two wreaths of network, so that two rows of pomegranates were joined to each wreath, to cover the pommels and the chapiters of the pillars. 14 He made also bases, and lavers, which he set upon the bases: 15 one sea, and twelve oxen under the sea; 16 and the caldrons, and fleshhooks, and bowls. And the vessels did Hiram his father make for Solomon in the house of the Lord of the finest brass. 17 In the country near the Jordan did the king cast them, in a clay ground between Sochot and Saredatha. 18 And the multitude of vessels was innumerable, so that the weight of the brass was not known.

19 And Solomon made all the vessels for the house of God, and the golden altar, and the tables, upon which were the loaves of proposition, 20 the candlesticks also of most pure gold with their lamps to give light before the oracle, according to the manner. 21 And certain flowers, and lamps, and golden tongs: all were made of the finest gold. 22 The vessels also for the perfumes, and the censers, and the bowls, and the mortars, of pure gold. And he graved the doors of the inner temple, that is, for the Holy of Holies; and the doors of the temple without were of gold. And thus all the work was finished which Solomon made in the house of the Lord.

CHAPTER 5.

The Ark Brought into the Temple. 1 Then m Solomon brought in all the things that David his father had vowed, the silver, and the gold, and all the vessels he put among the treasures of the house of God. 2 n And after this he gathered together the ancients of Israel, and all the princes of the tribes, and the heads of the families of the children of Israel to Jerusalem, to bring the ark of the covenant of the Lord out of the city of David, which is Sion. 3 And all the men of Israel came to the king in the solemn day of the seventh month. 4 And when all the ancients of Israel were come, the Levites took up the ark, 5 and brought it in, together with all the furniture of the tabernacle. And the priests with the Levites carried the vessels of the sanctuary, which were in the tabernacle. 6 And king Solomon and all the assembly of Israel, and all that were gathered together before the ark, sacrificed rams and oxen without number; so great was the multitude of the victims.

1 3 Kgs 7, 23.—m 3 Kgs 7, 51.—n 3 Kgs 8, 1.

7 And the priests brought in the ark of the covenant of the Lord into its place, that is, to the oracle of the temple, into the Holy of Holies under the wings of the cherubim, 8 so that the cherubim spread their wings over the place in which the ark was set, and covered the ark itself and its staves. 9 Now the ends of the staves wherewith the ark was carried, because they were something longer, were seen before the oracle; but if a man were a little outward, he could not see them. So the ark has been there unto this day.

10 And there was nothing else in the ark but the two tables which Moses put there at Horeb when the Lord gave the Law to the children of Israel, at their coming out of Egypt.

11 Now when the priests were come out of the sanctuary (for all the priests that could be found there, were sanctified; and as yet at that time the courses and orders of the ministries were not divided among them), 12 both the Levites and the singing men, that is, both they that were under Asaph, and they that were under Heman, and they that were under Idithun, with their sons, and their brethren, clothed with fine linen, sounded with cymbals, and psalteries, and harps, standing on the east side of the altar, and with them a hundred and twenty priests, sounding with trumpets. 13 So when they all sounded together, both with trumpets, and voice, and cymbals, and organs, and with divers kind of musical instruments, and lifted up their voice on high, the sound was heard afar off, so that when they began to praise the Lord, and to say: Give glory to the Lord for he is good, for his mercy endureth forever, the house of God was filled with a cloud. 14 Nor could the priests stand and minister by reason of the cloud. For the glory of the Lord had filled the house of God.

CHAPTER 6.

Solomon's Blessing and Prayer. 1 Then o Solomon said: The Lord promised that he would dwell in a cloud. 2 But I have built a house to his name, that he might dwell there forever.

3 And the king turned his face, and blessed all the multitude of Israel (for all the multitude stood attentive) and he said: 4 Blessed be the Lord the God of Israel, who hath accomplished in deed that which he spoke to David my father, saying: 5 From the day that I brought my people out of the land of Egypt, I chose no city among all the tribes of Israel, for a house to be built in it to my name; neither chose I any other man, to be the ruler of my people Israel. 6 But I chose Jerusalem, that my name might be there; and I chose David to set him over my people Israel. 7 And whereas David my father had a mind to build a house to the name of the Lord the God of Israel, 8 the Lord said to him: Forasmuch as it was thy will to build a house to my name, thou hast done well indeed in having such a will; 9 but thou shalt not build the house, but thy son, who shall come out of thy loins, he shall build a house to my name. 10 The Lord therefore hath accomplished his word which he spoke. And I am risen up in the place of David my father, and sit upon the throne of Israel, as the Lord promised; and have built a house to the name of the Lord God of Israel. 11 And I have put in it the ark, wherein is the covenant of the Lord, which he made with the children of Israel.

Solomon's Offering. 12 And he stood before the altar of the Lord, in presence of all the multitude of Israel, and stretched forth his hands. 13 For Solomon had made a brazen scaffold, and had set it in the midst of the temple, which was five cubits long, and five cubits broad, and three cubits high; and he stood upon it. Then kneeling down in the presence of all the multitude of Israel, and lifting up his hands towards heaven, 14 p he said: O Lord God of Israel, there is no God like thee in heaven nor in earth; who keepest covenant and mercy with thy servants, that walk before thee with all their hearts; 15 who hast performed to thy servant David my father all that thou hast promised him; and hast accomplished in fact what thou hast spoken with thy mouth, as also the present time proveth. 16 Now then, O Lord God of Israel, fulfill to thy servant David my father, whatsoever thou hast promised him, saying: There shall not fail thee a man in my sight, to sit upon the throne of Israel; yet so that thy children take heed to their ways, and walk in my law, as thou hast walked before me. 17 And now, Lord God of Israel, let thy word be established which thou hast spoken to thy servant David.

18 Is it credible then that God should dwell with men on the earth? If heaven and the heavens of heavens do not contain thee, how much less this house, which I have built! 19 But to this end only it is made, that thou mayest regard the prayer of thy servant and his supplication, O Lord my God, and mayest hear the prayers which thy servant poureth out before thee, 20 that thou mayest open thy eyes upon this house day and night, upon the place wherein thou hast promised that thy name should be called upon, 21 and that thou wouldst hear the prayer which thy servant prayeth in it, and hearken then to the prayers of thy servant, and of thy people Israel. Whosoever shall pray in this place, hear thou from thy dwelling place, that is, from heaven, and show mercy.

Prayers for the People of Israel. 22 If any man sin against his neighbor, and come to swear against him, and bind himself, with a curse before the altar in this house, 23 then hear thou from heaven, and do justice to thy servants, so as to requite the wicked by making his wickedness fall upon his own head, and to revenge the just, rewarding him according to his justice.

24 If thy people Israel be overcome by their enemies (for they will sin against thee), and being converted shall do penance, and call upon thy name, and pray to thee in this place, 25 then hear thou from heaven, and forgive the sin of thy people Israel, and bring them back into the land which thou gavest to them and their fathers.

26 If the heavens be shut up, and there fall no rain by reason of the sins of the people, and they shall pray to thee in this place, and confess to thy name, and be converted from their sins, when thou dost afflict them, 27 then hear thou from heaven, O Lord, and forgive the sins of thy servants and of thy people Israel, and teach them the good way in which they may walk; and give rain to thy land which thou hast given to thy people to possess.

28 q If a famine arise in the land, or a pestilence or blasting, or mildew, or locusts, or caterpillars; or if their enemies waste the country, and besiege the cities, whatsoever scourge or infirmity shall be upon them, 29 then if any of thy people Israel, knowing his own scourge and infirmity shall pray, and shall spread forth his hands in this house, 30 hear thou from heaven, from thy high dwelling place, and forgive, and render to everyone according to his ways, which thou knowest him to have in his heart (for thou only knowest the hearts of the children of men), 31 that they may fear thee, and walk in thy ways all the days that they live upon the face of the land, which thou hast given to our fathers.

32 If the stranger also, who is not of thy people Israel, come from a far country, for the sake of thy great name, and thy strong hand, and thy stretched out arm, and adore in this place, 33 hear thou from heaven, thy firm dwelling place, and do all that which that stranger shall call upon thee for; that all the people of the earth may know thy name, and may fear thee, as thy people Israel, and may know that thy name is invoked upon this house which I have built.

34 If thy people go out to war against their enemies, by the way that thou shalt send them, and adore thee towards the way of this city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built to thy name, 35 then hear thou from heaven their prayers and their supplications, and revenge them.

36 And if they sin against thee (r for there is no man that sinneth not) and thou be angry with them, and deliver them up to their enemies, and they lead them away captive to a land either afar off or near at hand, 37 and if they be converted in their heart in the land to which they were led captive, and do penance, and pray to thee in the land of their captivity, saying: We have sinned, we have done wickedly, we have dealt unjustly; 38 and return to thee with all their heart, and with all their soul, in the land of their captivity, to which they were led away, and adore thee towards the way of their own land which thou gavest their fathers, and of the city which thou hast chosen, and the house which I have built to thy name, 39 then hear thou from heaven, that is, from thy firm dwelling place, their prayers, and do judgment, and forgive thy people, although they have sinned. 40 For thou art my God: let thy eyes, I beseech thee, be open, and let thy ears be attentive to the prayer that is made in this place.

41 s Now therefore arise, O Lord God, into thy resting place, thou and the ark of thy strength. Let thy priests, O Lord God, put on salvation, and thy saints rejoice in good things. 42 O Lord God, turn not away the face of thy anointed; remember the mercies of David thy servant.

CHAPTER 7.

Heavenly Fire Consumes the Sacrifices. 1 And when Solomon had made an end of his prayer, fire came down from heaven, and consumed the holocausts and the victims; and the majesty of the Lord filled the house. 2 t Neither could the priests enter into the temple of the Lord, because the majesty of the Lord had filled the temple of the Lord. 3 Moreover all the children of Israel saw the fire coming down, and the glory of the Lord upon the house; and falling down with their faces to the ground, upon the stone pavement, they adored and praised the Lord, because he is good, because his mercy endureth forever.

Other Ceremonies. 4 And the king and all the people sacrificed victims before the Lord. 5 u And king Solomon offered a sacrifice of twenty-two thousand oxen, and one hundred and twenty thousand rams; and the king and all the people dedicated the house of God. 6 And the priests stood in their offices, and the Levites with the instruments of music of the Lord, which king David made to praise the Lord, because his mercy endureth forever, singing the hymns of David by their ministry; and the priests sounded with trumpets before them, and all Israel stood. 7 Solomon also sanctified the middle of the court before the temple of the Lord, for he offered there the holocausts, and the fat of the peace offerings, because the brazen altar, which he had made, could not hold the holocausts and the sacrifices and the fat.

8 And Solomon kept the solemnity at that time seven days, and all Israel with him, a very great congregation, from the entrance of Emath to the torrent of Egypt. 9 And he made on the eighth day a solemn assembly, because he had kept the dedication of the altar seven days, and had celebrated the solemnity seven days. 10 So on the three and twentieth day of the seventh month he sent away the people to their dwellings, joyful and glad for the good that the Lord had done to David, and to Solomon, and to all Israel his people.

11 v And Solomon finished the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all that he had designed in his heart to do, in the house of the Lord, and in his own house, and he prospered.

12 And the Lord appeared to him by night, and said: I have heard thy prayer, and I have chosen this place to myself for a house of sacrifice. 13 If I shut up heaven, and there fall no rain, or if I give orders, and command the locust to devour the land, or if I send pestilence among my people, 14 and my people, upon whom my name is called, being converted, shall make supplication to me, and seek out my face, and do penance for their most wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sins and will heal their land. 15 My eyes also shall be open, and my ears attentive to the prayer of him that shall pray in this place. 16 For I have chosen, and have sanctified this place, that my name may be there forever, and my eyes and my heart may remain there perpetually. 17 And as for thee, if thou walk before me, as David thy father walked, and do according to all that I have commanded thee, and keep my justices and my judgments, 18 I will raise up the throne of thy kingdom, as I promised to David thy father, saying: There shall not fail thee a man of thy stock to be ruler in Israel. 19 But if you turn away, and forsake my justices and my commandments which I have set before you, and shall go and serve strange gods, and adore them, 20 I will pluck you up by the root out of my land which I have given you; and this house which I have sanctified to my name, I will cast away from before my face, and will make it a byword and an example among all nations. 21 And this house shall be for a proverb to all that pass by, and they shall be astonished and say: Why hath the Lord done thus to this land, and to this house? 22 And they shall answer: Because they forsook the Lord the God of their fathers, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, and laid hold on strange gods, and adored them, and worshiped them: therefore all these evils are come upon them.

3. The Temporal Kingdom

CHAPTER 8.

Solomon Restores Various Cities. 1 And [w] at the end of twenty years after Solomon had built the house of the Lord and his own house, 2 he built the cities which Hiram had given to Solomon, and caused the children of Israel to dwell there. 3 He went also into Emath Suba, and possessed it. 4 And he built Palmira in the desert, and he built other strong cities in Emath. 5 And he built Beth-horon the upper, and Beth-horon the nether, walled cities with gates and bars and locks. 6 Balaath also, and all the strong cities that were Solomon's, and all the cities of the chariots, and the cities of the horsemen. All that Solomon had a mind and designed, he built in Jerusalem and in Libanus, and in all the land of his dominion.

7 All the people that were left of the Hethites, and the Amorrhites, and the Pherezites, and the Hevites, and the Jebusites, that were not of the stock of Israel, 8 of their children, and of the posterity whom the children of Israel had not slain, Solomon made to be the tributaries, unto this day. 9 But of the children of Israel he set none to serve in the king's works, for they were men of war, and chief captains, and rulers of his chariots and horsemen. 10 And all the chief captains of king Solomon's army were two hundred and fifty, who taught the people.

11 And he removed the daughter of Pharao from the city of [x] David, to the house which he had built for her. For the king said: My wife shall not dwell in the house of David king of Israel, for it is sanctified, because the ark of the Lord came into it.

12 Then Solomon offered holocausts to the Lord upon the altar of the Lord which he had built before the porch, 13 that every day an offering might be made on it according to the ordinance of Moses, in the sabbaths, and on the new moons, and on the festival days three times a year, that is to say, in the feast of unleavened bread, and in the feast of weeks, and in the feast of tabernacles. 14 And he appointed according to the order of David his father the offices of the priests in their ministries, and the Levites in their order to give praise, and minister before the priests according to the duty of every day, and the porters in their divisions by gate and gate; for so David the man of God had commanded. 15 And the priests and Levites departed not from the king's commandments, as to anything that he had commanded, and as to the keeping of the treasures. 16 Solomon had all charges prepared, from the day that he founded the house of the Lord until the day wherein he finished it.

17 Then Solomon went to Asiongaber, and to Ailath, on the coast of the Red Sea, which is in the land of Edom. 18 And Hiram sent him ships by the hands of his servants, and skillful mariners, and they went with Solomon's servants to Ophir, and they took thence four hundred and fifty talents of gold, and brought it to king Solomon.

CHAPTER 9.

Queen of Saba in Jerusalem. 1 And [y] when the queen of Saba heard of the fame of Solomon, she came to try him with hard questions at Jerusalem, with great riches, and camels, which carried spices, and abundance of gold, and precious stones. And when she was come to Solomon, she proposed to him all that was in her heart. 2 And Solomon explained to her all that she proposed; and there was not anything that he did not make clear unto her.

3 And when she had seen these things, to wit, the wisdom of Solomon, and the house which he had built, 4 and the meats of his table, and the dwelling places of his servants, and the attendance of his officers, and their apparel, his cupbearers also, and their garments, and the victims which he offered in the house of the Lord, there was no more spirit in her, she was so astonished. 5 And she said to the king: The word is true which I heard in my country of thy virtues and wisdom. 6 I did not believe them that told it, until I came, and my eyes had seen, and I had proved that scarce one half of thy wisdom had been told me; thou hast exceeded the same with thy virtues. 7 Happy are thy men, and happy are thy servants, who stand always before thee, and hear thy wisdom. 8 Blessed be the Lord thy God, who hath been pleased to set thee on his throne, king of the Lord thy God. Because God loveth Israel, and will preserve them forever: therefore hath he made thee king over them, to do judgment and justice.

9 And she gave to the king a hundred and twenty talents of gold, and spices in great abundance, and most precious stones. There were no such spices as these which the queen of Saba gave to king Solomon.

10 And the servants also of Hiram, with the servants of Solomon, brought gold from Ophir, and thyine trees, and most precious stones. 11 And the king made of the thyine trees stairs in the house of the Lord, and in the king's house, and harps and psalteries for the singing men. Never were there seen such trees in the land of Juda.

12 And king Solomon gave to the queen of Saba all that she desired, and that she asked, and many more things than she brought to him; so she returned, and went to her own country with her servants.

Riches of Solomon. 13 And the weight of the gold that was brought to Solomon every year, was six hundred and sixty-six talents of gold, 14 besides the sum which the deputies of divers nations and the merchants were accustomed to bring, and all the kings of Arabia, and the lords of the lands who brought gold and silver to Solomon.

15 And king Solomon made two hundred golden spears, of the sum of six hundred pieces of gold, which went to every spear; 16 and three hundred golden shields of three hundred pieces of gold, which went to the covering of every shield; and the king put them in the armory, which was compassed with a wood.

17 The king also made a great throne of ivory, and overlaid it with pure gold. 18 And six steps to go up to the throne, and a footstool of gold, and two arms one on either side, and two lions standing by the arms; 19 moreover twelve other little lions standing upon the steps on both sides: there was not such a throne in any kingdom.

20 And all the vessels of the king's table were of gold, and the vessels of the house of the forest of Libanus were of the purest gold. For no account was made of silver in those days. 21 For the king's ships went to Tharsis with the servants of Hiram, once in three years; and they brought thence gold and silver, and ivory, and apes, and peacocks.

22 And Solomon was magnified above all the kings of the earth for riches and glory. 23 And all the kings of the earth desired to see the face of Solomon, that they might hear the wisdom which God had given in his heart. 24 And every year they brought him presents, vessels of silver and of gold, and garments, and armor, and spices, and horses, and mules. 25 And Solomon had forty thousand horses in the stables, and twelve thousand chariots and horsemen, and he placed them in the cities of the chariots, and where the king was in Jerusalem. 26 And he exercised authority over all the kings from the river Euphrates to the land of the Philistines, and to the borders of Egypt. 27 And he made silver as plentiful in Jerusalem as stones, and cedars as common as the sycamores, which grow in the plains. 28 And horses were brought to him out of Egypt, and out of all countries.

29 Now the rest of the acts of Solomon first and last are written in the words of Nathan the prophet, and in the books of Ahias the Silonite, and in the vision of Addo the seer, against Jeroboam the son of Nabat. 30 And Solomon reigned in Jerusalem over all Israel forty years. 31 And he slept [z] with his fathers. And they buried him in the city of David; and Roboam his son reigned in his stead.

II: THE KINGS OF JUDA

CHAPTER 10.

Ten Tribes of Israel Revolt. 1 And [a] Roboam went to Sichem; for thither all Israel were assembled to make him king. 2 And when Jeroboam the son of Nabat, who was in Egypt (for he was fled thither from Solomon), heard it, forthwith he returned. 3 And they sent for him, and he came with all Israel, and they spoke to Roboam, saying: 4 Thy father oppressed us with a most grievous yoke, do thou govern us with a lighter hand than thy father, who laid upon us a heavy servitude, and ease something of the burden, that we may serve thee.

5 And he said to them: Come to me again after three days. And when the people were gone, 6 he took counsel with the ancients, who had stood before his father Solomon, while he yet lived, saying: What counsel give you to me, that I may answer the people? 7 And they said to him: If thou please this people, and soothe them with kind words, they will be thy servants forever. 8 But he forsook the counsel of the ancients, and began to treat with the young men, that had been brought up with him, and were in his train. 9 And he said to them: What seemeth good to you? Or what shall I answer this people, who have said to me: Ease the yoke which thy father laid upon us? 10 But they answered as young men, and brought up with him in pleasures, and said: Thus shalt thou speak to the people, that said to thee: Thy father made our yoke heavy, do thou ease it. Thus shalt thou answer them: My little finger is thicker than the loins of my father. 11 My father laid upon you a heavy yoke, and I will add more weight to it; my father beat you with scourges, but I will beat you with scorpions.
